PERIODICAL
ML5
.M85

Accessions
281,050.

Shelf No.
~~8055.10~~
v.20.
1879.

FOUNDED 1852
SIC IT FATRIBUS SIT DEUS NOBIS
BOSTONIA CONDITA A.D.
1630.
CIVITATIS REGIMINE DONATA A.D. 1822.
BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

Received Aug. 3, 1880.

8055.10.

January 1
1879

THE MUSICAL TIMES

No. 431

Price
Three Pence

CHARLES HALLÉ'S

MUSICAL LIBRARY SERIES.

APPENDIX TO HIS

PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.

THE favour with which the "PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL" has been received by Professors and Students has led to the present Publication, in which the principal features of the "School" will be preserved. The "MUSICAL LIBRARY" embraces Solos and Duets, both Classical and Modern, selected for their intrinsic value, all of which are thoroughly fingered, supplemented with signs of expression and foot-notes explaining ornaments where necessary, and the use of the Pedals carefully marked. Each piece is prefaced by a page of Exercises written expressly by me, and the degree of difficulty is indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, E, and by numbers, the former corresponding with the five Sections of the "PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL," and the latter with the particular number in each Section.

CHARLES HALLÉ.

SOLOS.

LETTER A, "ELEMENTARY."

		s.	d.
Muller, A. E.—Twelve Melodious Pieces	No. 4	4	0
Steibelt.—Two Favourite Rondos in C and F major	„ 5	4	0
Czerny, C.—Twelve Melodious Pieces	„ 6	4	0
Enckhausen, H.—Thirty Elementary and Progressive Pieces Book 1	„ 6	4	0
Ditto.— „ „ Book 2	„ 6	4	0
Ditto.—Sonatina in C major	„ 6	4	0

LETTER B, "EASY."

Hummel, J. N.—Allegro, Romanza, and Tempo di Minuetto	No. 2	4	0
Kuhlau, F.—Minuetto in C major, and Rondino in D major	„ 4	4	0
Enckhausen, H.—Rondo in G major	„ 5	4	0
Schumann.—Six Album Leaves (Third Selection)	„ 6	4	0
Dussek, J. L.—Sonatina in C major	„ 6	4	0
Ditto.—Sonatina in B flat major	„ 6	4	0
Ditto.—Sonatina in D major	„ 7	4	0
Hiller, F.—Cradle Song, Menuet, and Carillon	„ 7	4	0
Ditto.—March, Shepherd's Song, Ländler	„ 8	4	0
Kuhlau, F.—Sonatina in C major	„ 8	4	0
Ditto.—Sonatina in G major	„ 9	4	0
Ditto.—Three Easy Rondos, in C, F, and A	„ 9	4	0
Hiller, F.—Gavotte, Scotch Air, and Spinning Song	„ 14	4	0
Steibelt.—Two Favourite Rondos, in F major and B flat major	„ 17	4	0

LETTER C, "MODERATELY DIFFICULT."

Hiller, F.—Hunting Song, Swedish Song, and Valse	No. 4	4	0
Schubert, F.—Ten Valses	„ 5	4	0
Mayer, C.—Three Characteristic Pieces	„ 9	4	0
Moscheles, J.—Three Rondos, Op. 18	„ 10	4	0
Steibelt.—Gipsy Rondo	„ 11	4	0
Martini, P. G. B.—Gavotte in F	„ 11	3	0
Couperin, F.—Pilgrims and Reapers	„ 12	4	0
Schubert, F.—Twelve Ländler	„ 13	4	0
Haydn, J.—Caprice in F minor	„ 21	4	0
Heller, S.—Impromptu on Two Valses by Strauss	„ 29	4	0
Schumann, R.—Novelette in F major	„ 30	4	0

LETTER D, "DIFFICULT."

Schumann, R.—"All' Ballo," Novelette in D major, from Op. 61	No. 16	4	0
Chopin, F.—Nocturne in E major	„ 25	4	0
Mendelssohn, F.—Scherzo in G minor, from Midsummer Night's Dream	„ 32	4	0
Weber, C. M. von.—Il Moto Continuo, Rondo Brillante in C major	„ 36	4	0

DUETS.

LETTER A, "ELEMENTARY."

		s.	d.
Enckhausen, H.—Twenty Little Pieces for Master and Pupil (the Pupil's part within the compass of five notes) Book 1	No. 1	4	0
Ditto.— „ „ „ Book 2	„ 1	4	0
Ditto.— „ „ „ Book 3	„ 2	4	0
Ditto.—Twenty-seven Elementary and Progressive Pieces Book 1	„ 2	4	0
Ditto.— „ „ „ Book 2	„ 3	4	0
Ditto.— „ „ „ Book 3	„ 4	4	0
Ditto.— „ „ „ Book 4	„ 5	4	0

LETTER B, "EASY."

Volkmann, R.—Musical Picture Book Book 1	No. 5	4	0
Weber, C. M. von.—Moderato in C, Andantino in F, and Marcia in C	„ 6	4	0
Beethoven, L. van.—Sonata in D major	„ 20	5	0

LETTER C, "MODERATELY DIFFICULT."

Volkmann, R.—Musical Picture Book Book 2	No. 2	4	0
Weber, C. M. von.—Siciliana in D minor	„ 2	4	0
Ditto.—Marcia Funebre in G minor	„ 3	4	0
Haydn, J.—The Master and the Pupil, Variations in F major	„ 3	5	0
Weber, C. M. von.—Arioso in D major	„ 4	4	0
Ditto.—Introduzione and Polacca in C major	„ 4	4	0
Ditto.—Alla Militaire, Allegro in C major	„ 5	4	0
Ditto.—Andantino Grazioso, and Rondo all' Ongarese	„ 6	5	0
Volkmann, R.—Musical Picture Book Book 3	„ 7	5	0
Beethoven, L. van—Variations in C major, on a Theme by Count von Waldstein	„ 8	5	0
Schumann, R.—Children's Ball, Book 1, Polonaise	„ 9	4	0
Ditto.—Children's Ball, Book 2, Valse and Menuet	„ 9	4	0
Weber, C. M. von.—National Air with Variations, in E major	„ 11	4	0
Ditto —Rondo Scherzando, in B flat	„ 13	4	0
Schumann, R.—Children's Ball, Book 4, Ring Dance	„ 13	4	0
Beethoven, L. van.—Air in D major, with Six Variations	„ 14	4	0

LETTER D, "DIFFICULT."

Schumann, R.—Children's Ball, Book 3, Ecossaise and Française	„ 14	4	0

Also Charles Hallé's New Edition of all the most Popular Pianoforte Pieces carefully Edited, Fingered, and with Metronome Marks, &c.

NEW ORGAN ARRANGEMENTS BY SIR HERBERT S. OAKELEY.

	s.	d.		s.	d.		s.	d.
Funeral March. Op. 23	4	0	Four Morceaux from Gluck's Orpheus	4	0	Gluck's Minuet Grazioso in G	3	0

CATALOGUES POSTAGE-FREE.

FORSYTH BROTHERS,

LONDON: 272A, Regent Circus, Oxford St.

MANCHESTER: Cross St. and South King St.

AND ALL MUSICSELLERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE COLONIES.

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF THE CITY OF BOSTON

* 8055.10
V. 20,
1879.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND

SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

VOL. XX.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.,
1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET (E.C.)
BOSTON, NEW YORK, AND PHILADELPHIA: DITSON & CO.
1879.

B.M.
281.050
Aug. 3, 1882

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.,

PRINTERS,

69 & 70, DEAN STREET, SOHO, W.

INDEX TO MUSIC IN VOL. XX.

PIECES WITH SACRED WORDS.

No.
431	Turn Thee again, O Lord	Thomas Attwood.
	From all that dwell below the skies	T. A. Walmisley, Mus. Doc.
432	Grant us Thy peace (Da nobis pacem)	Mendelssohn.
437	Sing praises to God (Harvest)	Herbert W. Wareing.
440	Spare us, Lord most holy	E. A. Sydenham.
441	Give the King Thy judgments, O God (Christmas)	Arthur Henry Brown.
442	While Shepherds watch'd their flocks (Christmas)	W. T. Best.

PIECES WITH SECULAR WORDS.

433	The Spring's free sunshine falleth	Samuel Reay.
434	To Daffodils	J. Barnby.
435	Song for Spring	E. Silas.
436	Behold the sun in gold descending	Florence A. Marshall.
438	Ragged and torn and true	Clara A. Macirone.
439	Summer is nigh	Sir Julius Benedict.

GENERAL INDEX TO VOL. XX.

LEADING ARTICLES.

Page

A Musical Utopia 16
A Plea for the Flute 139

Beethoven and his "Missa Solemnis"... 193
Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis," An Analysis of ... 472, 515, 572, 638
Beethoven's "Tenth Symphony" ... 9, 66

Classical Music 200
Clavichord, Some Account of, with Historical Notices 356, 411, 468
Collections of Chants 299

Easy Rule for Tuning Organs and Harmoniums in Equal Temperament ... 520

Free and Cheap Concerts for the People 305

Great Composers, The, sketched by themselves—
No. 5. Schumann ... 14, 72, 136, 197
„ 6. Mendelssohn 254, 302, 359, 415, 474, 517, 574, 635

Harmony Modes 195, 259

Liszt's Writings on Music 513
London Musical Season, The ... 409

Mendelssohn Family, The 297
Mozart as a Pianoforte Composer ... 465
Municipal Abolition of Sacred Music ... 203
Music in Congress 577
Music in Elementary Schools ... 249
Musical Education 65
Musical Honours 257
Musical Instruction in German Schools 353

National Music, The Literature of 11, 69, 133

Organ, The Employment of in the Orchestra, especially as Illustrated by Mendelssohn 129

Philosophy of Music, The 418

Signs of the Times 77
Some Popular Feasts and their Music 641

Teachers' Registration Bill, The ... 362

Wagner's "Work and Mission of my Life" 569
Wanted—A Composer for the Organ ... 633
"Whistlerism" in Music 75

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Advertising Circulars 483
Alterations and New Readings ... 579
Amateur Composers 523
American Journalism 523
American Journals and Concert-givers 205
"American Singing Parson" ... 19
A "Theoretical and Practical Teacher of Music" 422

Bach MSS., Discovery of ... 77, 141
Birmingham Musical Festival ... 522
"Bohemian Girl" 204
Boito's "Mefistofele" 259
Books of Words and Advertisements 141, 643
Bülow's (Dr. von) Criticisms on England 140

Page

Cabs and the Opera 364
Cambridge University, Lectures, &c. ... 78
Choir Singers and their Salaries ... 140
Choral Societies 522
Cincinnati College of Music 422
"Classical" v. "Pretty" Music ... 19
Comic Singers and Music Halls ... 260
Concerts and self-made Criticisms ... 19
Copyright Music 524

Disputed Facts 478

Evening Dress at Operas and Concerts 78
Exeter Hall 261

Fees to Box-keepers (Her Majesty's Theatre) 308

Gilbert and Sullivan (Messrs.) Reception in America 644
Grand Opéra, Paris ... 259, 308

Handel's Music in Italy 423
"Harmonious Blacksmith" (The Anvil) 363
"H.M.S. Pinafore" in America ... 483
Huxley (Professor) on Prizes ... 483

Italian Opera (Autumn season) ... 579
Italian Operatic Music and the Music Publishers 140

Journalism and Gossip 205

Macfarren (Professor) on "Originality" 643
McCulloch (Mr. J.) and German Opera 422
Mouliérat (M.) 524
Music and Literary Taste 20
Music for Sunday... 522
Music Halls, Comic Songs 140
Music Halls, Entertainments at ... 79
Music Instruction Books 363
Music made easy 260, 579
Music Teachers in Private Schools ... 78
Musical Association (Proceedings of) ... 478
Musical Culture 578

Opera and Lyric Theatres in Paris ... 18
Operatic Management 423

Patti (Madame) in Wales 522
"People's Music" 644
"Professors" and their Methods ... 205
Promenade Concerts and Classical Music 478

"Quiriti" Troupe of Children ... 78

Remenyi and American Interviewers ... 18
Reviews 644
Royal Commission on Cathedral Establishments 420

St. Andrew's, Tavistock Place ... 363
St. James's Hall (Glove Fight) ... 307
Santley (Mr.), Prize for best Accompanist 308
Shakespeare Festival 260
Songs and Voices 423
Street Ballad Singing 204

Temperance Music 307

Vaillant (Mdlle.) and the Paris Conservatoire 644
Violin, Tricks on the 645

Wagner and his Commentators ... 306
Words of Old Songs 523

LONDON CONCERTS, FESTIVALS, &c.

Page

Bach Choir 267, 311
Bache's (Mr. Walter) Concert ... 209
Birmingham Musical Festival ... 524
Borough of Hackney Choral Association 81, 209, 314, 647
—— ("Hereward") 366
Bow and Bromley Institute 585
Bristol Musical Festival 579
Bülow's (Dr. Hans von) Recitals ... 365

Cambridge University Musical Society ("Semele") 20
Chester Musical Festival 424
Choir Benevolent Fund 583
Coenen's (Mr.) Brighton Concert ... 647
Crystal Palace 22, 145, 206, 261, 309, 585, 645

Hampstead Choral Society 209
Her Majesty's Theatre 21, 308, 364, 426, 584, 645
—— (Carl Rosa Opera Company) 79, 145, 205, 426

Hereford Musical Festival 527
Holland's (Miss) Amateur Choir ... 312

Kuhe's (Mr.) Brighton Festival ... 141

Leslie's (Mr. H.) Choir ... 208, 310, 364
London Gregorian Choral Association 319
London Musical Society ... 210, 431

Monday Popular Concerts ... 22, 80, 146, 207 262, 646

New Philharmonic Society 313

Orchestral Festival Concerts ... 310

Philharmonic Society 146, 209, 313, 364, 426
Promenade Concerts ... 484, 585

Royal Academy of Music ... 23, 431
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society 21, 82, 146, 206
Royal Italian Opera 261, 308, 364, 426

Sacred Harmonic Society ... 21, 82, 146
Scharwenka's (Herr Xaver) Concerts ... 366
Shakespeare Memorial Festival ... 314
St. Paul's Cathedral ("Last Judgment") 24
—— (Dedication Festival) 82
—— (London Gregorian Choral Association) 319
—— (Military Service) 314
—— (Sons of the Clergy) 314

Viard-Louis's (Madame) Concerts 23, 81, 147, 267, 312, 365

Westminster Abbey (Christmas Oratorio) 82

Zimmermann's (Miss Agnes) Concert ... 313

MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS, INTELLIGENCE, &c.

Adams, Mr. J. (Concerts) 657
Albani, Madame 270
Alexandra Palace 320, 378, 432
All Saints', Finchley Road 378

Page

All Saints', Lambeth (Harvest Festival) 597
American Portable Music-stand ... 216
Angell Town Institution (Organ Recitals) 597

Bach Choir 217
Barnett, Mr. J. F. 270
Belfast Philharmonic Society (Prospectus) 587
Benedict, Sir J. 270
Bermondsey Working Men's Institute... 597
Best, Mr. W. T. (Recital) ... 150, 588
Birkbeck Institution (Violin Class Concert) 149
—— (Mr. Stedman) ... 149, 597
Birmingham (Cheap Concert) ... 588
Birmingham Musical Festival 319, 433
Bishop, Mr. A. E. (Recital) 215
Bizet's Orchestral Symphony ... 322
Boito's "Mefistofele" 270
Borough of Hackney Choral Association 268
—— (Prospectus)... 536
Bow and Bromley Institute ... 84, 217, 537
Bridge, Dr. J. F. (Recital) 432
Bristol Musical Festival 217, 320, 377, 433, 485, 648

Brinsmead's Pianos ... 24, 322
Brixton Choral Society ... 33, 537
—— ("Fridolin")... 216
—— ("Judas") 320
—— ("Jephtha")... 656
Brixton School of Music 150
Bucknall, Miss M. (Marriage) ... 270 —— (Concert) 379
Bywater, Mr. H. T. (Concerts) ... 587

Calcutta, Music in 586
Callcott, William 34
Cambridge University (Examinations) 216, 485
—— (Preliminary Examination) ... 269
Cambridge University Musical Society 657
Carr, Mr. George 378
Chester Musical Festival 320
Chevé Method, Lectures on the 586, 655
Chigwell Musical Society 217
Choir Appointments 43, 103, 167, 226, 332, 387, 443, 546, 607, 665
Choir Benevolent Fund (Festival) 377, 434
—— (Report) 148
—— (Proposed performance in aid) ... 269
Choir, The 588
Christ Church, Clapham ... 378, 588
Christ's Hospital 34
City Temple (Festival) 321
Coburn, Mr. (Presentation)... ... 433
Coffee Music Halls Company ... 586
College of Organists (Paper by Mr. C. J. Frost) 216
Cooper, Miss (Presentation) ... 216
Cowen, Mr. F. H. 321
Cowland, Mr. F. 269
Craven Chapel ("Messiah") ... 379
Crystal Palace Concerts (Prospectus) ... 535
Customs' Orphanage 34

D'Alcorn, H. (Sale) 597
Datchelar Festival Service 537
Denmark Hill Concerts 215
Dickson, Miss E.... 84
Distin, Mr. T. 657
Done, Mr. W. (Presentation) ... 368
Dresden, Music in 490
Dublin University Choral Society ... 378
Duff and Stewart (Sale) 33
Dumfries Philharmonic Society ... 587
Dwight's Journal of Music 84
Dye, Mr. A. J. 34

East Dulwich Musical Society ... 321
Eayres, Mr. W. H. 657
Education Department (Report) ... 433
Edwards, Mr. F. G. (Recital) ... 268

Page

Ella, Professor, and the Musical Union 269
Essipoff, Madame (Recitals)... ... 322
Eton College 33

Fabre, Mdlle. Leona 433
Farmer, Mr. J. ("Christ and His Soldiers") 379, 433
Finsbury Chapel 587
Foreign Notes 39, 97, 160, 221, 272, 326, 383, 437, 489, 541, 601, 660
Frost, Mr. C. J. (Recital) 83

Gadsby's (Mr. H.) "Alcestis" ... 268
Gardner, Mr. C. 379
Glasgow Choral Union ... 537, 655
Glasgow Select Choir (Prize) ... 536
Goetz's "Taming of the Shrew" ... 322
Goode, Miss Nessie 433
Gounod's "Polyeucte" at Antwerp ... 270
Grosvenor Choral Society 84, ("Athalie") 148, 216, 321, 378, 432, 484, 586, ("Bride of Dunkerron") 656.
Grove House Choral Society 215, 656

Hallé, Mr. C. (Concerts) 537
Hampstead Choral Society 84
Hampstead Parish Church 217
Hampstead Parish Church Choir ... 377
Harradine, Mr. Lockwood 216
Harty, Mr. W. (Presentation) ... 537
Henschel, Herr (Concert) 655
Hereford Musical Festival ... 210, 322, 657
Her Majesty's Theatre (Prospectus) ... 210
Highbury Philharmonic Society 33, 537
"H.M.S. Pinafore" (New Orchestration) 217
Huddersfield Glee Competition ... 320

Iliffe's (Mr. F.) "Visions of St. John"... 149
Islington Choral Society 34, 217, 269, 537, 597

Jerrard, Mr. H. C. (Choral Reunions) ... 597

Kellogg, Miss C. L. 433
Kilburn Musical Association ... 655
King's "Royal Duke of Edinburgh Rosin Box" 34
Kuhe, Mr. (Festival) 656
Kyrle Society ("Elijah") 656

Laistner, Herr Max 378
Lancashire Association for the Cultivation of Music 33
—— (Manchester Branch) 83
Lavender Hill Choral Society ... 150
Leamington Parish Church (New Organ) 597
Leeds Musical Festival 648
Leigh, Mr. Faulkner ... 149, 597
Leslie, Mr. H. 657
Lewisham Orchestral Society ... 149
Leytonstone Amateur Opera and Comedy Company 378
Liverpool Philharmonic Society ... 536
London Church Choir Association 270, 322 379, 537, 655
London Excelsior Band of Hope ... 433
London Gregorian Choral Association (Magazine) 84
London Musical Society 656
London Society for Teaching the Blind 217, 597
London University (Examination) ... 83
London Vocal Union 216
Lough, Mr. W. (Presentation) ... 217

Mackenzie, Mr. A. C. (Scherzo) ... 34
Marble Rink, Clapham Road ... 433
Marshall, Mrs. Julian 215
Mazzucato, Signorina 270
Mendelssohn Scholarship 33 —— (Competition for) 215
Metzler and Co. 537

Page

Monday Popular Concerts 537
Monk and Ouseley's Psalter... ... 587
Morley, Mr. 656
Mozart (Drawing) 437
Musical Artists' Society 269
Musical Association 648
Musical Autographs (Sale) 269

Nettleship, Mr. T. 149
Neumeyer and Co. (Concert Hall) 597, 656
Northfield Hall, Highgate 433
North London Choral Association ("Messiah") ... ... 269.
North London Collegiate School for Girls (Organ) 433
North London Philharmonic Society 149, 321, 378

Obituary 43, 103, 167, 226, 279, 332, 387, 443, 493, 546, 607, 665
Old Change Musical Society ... 216
Old, Mr. J. ("Herne the Hunter") ... 322
Orchestral Festival Concerts 215, 268
Orchestral Pianoforte, The 215
Organ Appointments 43, 103, 167, 226, 279, 332, 387, 443, 493, 546, 607, 665
Oswestry Musical Festival 536
Oxford Philharmonic Society ... 368
Oxford University (Examinations) ... 484 —— Degrees 586

Park Church, Highbury 321
People's Concert Society 319
Philharmonic Society (Prospectus) ... 83
Phillips, Mr. A. 150
Plymouth Vocal Association 269, 484
—— (Prospectus)... 536
Polytechnic (Concerts) 597
Portraits, &c. (Sale of) 217
Potter, Mr. E. 150
Prentice, Mr. Ridley 321
Prout's (Mr. E.) "Hereward" ... 268

Randal, Mr. G. (Presentation) ... 217
Randegger, Signor (New Cantata) ... 322
Ringrose, Mr. W. W. (Subscription for) 268
Royal Academy of Music (Concert at Mansion House) 215
—— (Lecture) 322
—— (Sterndale Bennett Prize) ... 432
—— and National Training School ... 536
—— (Professor Macfarren's Address) ... 588
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society (Prospectus) 536
Royal Italian Opera ... 34, 322
—— (Prospectus)... 210
Royal Society of Musicians 150 —— (Anniversary Festival)... ... 216
—— ("Messiah") 321
Rummel, Mr. F. in New York 148, 378

Sacred Harmonic Society ... 587, 655
—— Benevolent Fund 268
St. Andrew's, Tavistock Place 33, 322, 433 484, 597, 657
St. Andrew Undershaft (Harvest Festival)... 588
St. Bartholomew's, Islington (Concert) 321
St. Edmund the King (Harvest Festival) 586
St. George's Glee Union 83, 149, 216, 432
St. James's, Clerkenwell ("Athalie") ... 83
St. James's Hall (Customs' Orphanage) 34
St. John's, Holloway (Choral Society)... 269
St. John's, Horselydown (Harvest Festival)... 587
St. John's Wood Victoria Choral Society 269
St. Luke's, Berwick Street (Harvest Festival) 587
St. Margaret's, Rood Lane ... 433, 588
St. Mary's, Edinburgh (Organ) ... 597
St. Mary's, Haggerston 149

Page

St. Mary's, Seymour Street (Harvest Festival) 656
St. Mary's, Tothill Fields (Harvest Festival) 588
St. Paul's Amateur Musical Society ... 433
St. Paul's Cathedral, Second Report on Music 321
St. Paul's, Wandsworth (Concert) ... 321
St. Peter's, Eaton Square 322
St. Peter's, Great Windmill Street (Concert) 84
—— (Harvest Festival) 588
St. Philip's (Dalston) Choral Society ... 269
St. Stephen's, North Bow ... 84, 597
St. Stephen's, South Kensington ("Calvary") 269
St. Thomas's, Portman Square ... 216
Sainton-Dolby's (Madame) "Thalassa" 322 —— (Pupils' Concert) 379
Salzburg Mozart Institution (Festival)... 439
Samson, Herr L. 217
Scottish Choral Society 34
Scottish Musical Society 433
Sell, Mr. (Presentation) 150
Shakespeare Key (Index) 655
Sherborne Musical Union 597
Shinn, Mr. G. (Recital) 597
Shoreditch Town Hall (Mr. G. Wells's Choir) 377
Sinclair, Miss Annie 322
Singing in Elementary Schools (Memorial) 82
Sloman, Dr. ("Supplication and Praise") 434
Smart, Mr. H. (Pension) 377
Snoxell Collection and Handelian Relics 432
Society of Arts (Examinations in Music) 322
South Kensington Ladies' Choir 217, 379, 657
South Norwood Orchestral Society 320, 657
Southwark Choral Society 378
Spark, Mr. E. J. (Concerts) 597
Spitalfields' Wesleyan Chapel ("Messiah") 269
Staniforth, Mr. Worsley 433
Statham, Mr. H. H. (Albert Hall) ... 322
Stedman, Mr. 149, 322
Steinway Hall ("Linda di Chamouni") 269, 433
Stocken, Miss Annie 379
Stockwell Musical Society 537
Sullivan, Mr. A. (New Opera) ... 322
Sutton, Mr. A. J. (Subscription Concerts) 537
Sydney Exhibition (Music at) ... 647

Tenison's Grammar School ("Messiah") 149
Tennyson's Songs 588
Tone-screw for Stringed Instruments ... 484
Tonic Sol-fa College (Bazaar) ... 268
Torrington, Mr. (Presentation) ... 377
Trinity College and Durham University 148, 210
—— (Examinations) ... 148, 379
—— (Faculties of Music and Art) ... 588
—— (Local Examination) 33
—— (Mr. W. H. Gladstone's Paper) ... 321
—— (String Quartett Competition) ... 321
Tufnell Park Amateur Choral Society ... 320
Turnham Green Vestry Hall ... 655

Vaughan, Mr. J. (Presentation) ... 321
Victoria Choral Society 657

"Wandering Minstrels" 656
Watson, Mr. J. S. (Subscription Concerts)... 588
Watts, Mr. G. (Ballad Concerts) ... 537
Wells, Mr. George (Choir) 33
Wesley, Dr. (Tablet to) 319
Wesleyan Church, Blackheath (Harvest) 656
Westminster Abbey (Ascension Day) ... 320
Westminster Choral Union 83
Winter Musical Evenings 588
Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society 587
Woodhouse, Mr. D. (Presentation) ... 84
Worrell, Madame 588
Wydford, Miss F. ... 379, 657

Zimmermann, Miss 150
Zimmermann, Miss (Hamburg) ... 377

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Anderson, Mrs. 84

Gruneisen, C. L. 656
Gye, Frederick 24

Havergal, Frances Ridley 378
Howell, James 484

Latrobe, Rev. J. A. 34
Lunn, W. A. B. 270

Metzler, G. T. 537

Parry, John 149
Paul, Mrs. Howard 378
Pinney, W., sen. 379

Sartoris, Mrs. (Adelaide Kemble) ... 485
Smart, Henry 423
St. Croix, Rev. H. C. de 597

Westrop, Henry 587

REVIEWS.

Abt, F. The Water Fairies ... 158
—— The Silver Cloud 658
—— Songs for Children 659
Adcock, John. The Key Table set to Music 325
Alexander, A. Give unto the Lord ... 601
Ancona. The Last Autumn Flower ... 96
Anthems for Public Worship, A New Handbook of 436

Bach, J. C. Concerto for Pianoforte ... 325
Balfe, M. W. My Love far away ... 600
Barnett, N. G. Twelve Chant Series for the Te Deum 437
Bartholomew, Mrs. Mounsey. The Tambourine Player 383
Bath's Musical Museum for the Harmonium 437
Batiste, E. A Selection of Compositions for the Organ 436
Benedict, Sir J. Andante and Rondo Brillante in A flat 382
Bizet, Georges. Carmen (English Version)... 325
Booth, Josiah. It was a Lover and his Lass 435
Booth, Otto. Gavotte and Bourrée ... 325
Boucher, J. B. A Broken Toy ... 383
Breitkopf und Härtel. Verzeichniss des Musikalien-Verlages 157
Bridge, J. C. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C 487
Bridge, J. F. Peace 541
Brown, A. H. This is the Birthday of my Love 541
Brundrit, Rev. R. W. Missa Sancti Laurentii 39
Buxtehude, Dietrich. Complete Organ Compositions 322

Caldicott, A. J. Winter Days ... 659
Cambridge, F. The Offertory Sentences 541
Cambridge, H. The Pianoforte Pupil Teacher 487
Coenen, W. True Love 220
Coles, S. R. Fourteen Offertory Sentences 221
Corder, F. Three Songs, "Rosamond's Epitaph," "On the Water," "Prayer" 218
Crane, Walter. The Baby's Bouquet ... 39
Curwen, John. Musical Theory, Book III. 219

Davidson, M. The Evening Tide ... 325
Diehl, L. Pilot Joe 221
Duggan, J. F. Six Songs 488

Eckersley, Rev. J. The Canticles of Matins and Evensong 437
Egerton, Seymour J. Part-Songs ... 435
Elliott, J. W. A Second Set of Sixty Voluntaries arranged for Harmonium 39
Elvey, S. The Psalter, &c. ... 437
English Organ Music ... 96, 660
Eyre, A. J. The Office of Holy Communion 39

Field, J. T. Offertory Sentences ... 39
Freake, Eliza P. If in a year.—Autumn Leaves 160

Gade, N. W. Christmas Eve ... 657
Gadsby, H. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D 272
Galin-Paris-Chevé Method, An Elementary Course of Vocal Music upon 38
Gaul, A. R. Presto alla Tarantella ... 160
Goetz, Hermann. Sechs Lieder (Op 12.)—Genrebilder (Op. 13).—Quintet (Op. 16.) 93
—— By the Waters of Babylon ... 379
—— Genrebilder (English Edition) ... 540
—— Nœnia 434
Grant, J. B. Love's Question and Reply 435
Greenwood, J. The Sol-fa System of Teaching Singing, as used in Lancashire and Yorkshire (Novello, Ewer & Co.'s Music Primers) 657
Grove, G. A Dictionary of Music and Musicians 270
Guiraud, E. Piccolino 84

Hale, Mary. The First Star.—The Maiden's Tryste 540
Handel, G. F., The Works of (German Handel Society) ... 217, 598
Hause, Carl. La Campanella ... 325
Heap, C. S. Lead, kindly Light ... 220
Heitere Musik (Vol. I.) 436
Heller, S. Feuillets d'Album ... 436
—— Pianoforte Studies 599
—— Second Sonatina 540
Helmore, Rev. T. Plain Song (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers) ... 96
Hemy, H. F. Royal Modern Tutor for the Pianoforte 660
Henschel, G. Out of Darkness ... 485
Hensel, F. Six Four-Part Songs ... 159
Hiller, F. Eight Songs for Three Female Voices (Op. 176) 220
—— Inventions 600
Holland, C. The Triumph of Death ... 435

Jarvis, S. Tarantella 601
Jervis, St. Vincent. Songs 599
Jordan, C. W. Allegretto quasi Andante 221

Karasowski, M. Frederic Chopin ... 434
Keeton, Haydn. Give ear, Lord ... 272
King, Oliver. Berceuse, Meditation et Valse pour le piano 486

Lacroix, Paul. The Arts in the Middle Ages, &c. Music 270
Lahee, H. The Sleeping Beauty ... 271

	Page
Lavoix, Henri. Histoire de l'Instrumentation	34
Leeves, Rev. W. Auld Robin Gray	96
Leo, Leonardo. Dixit Dominus	220
Macfarren, G. A. Counterpoint	381
Macirone, C. A. The Emigrant's Song.—Cavalry Song.—Dreams	159
—— O Musa	601
Mackenzie, A. C. Part-Songs	218
—— A Franklyn's Dogge	218
—— The Lord gave.—The blessing of the Lord	271
—— The Old Grenadier	539
—— There sits a bird	601
Martin, G. C. Let Maids be false	601
Massé, Victor. Fior d'Aliza	36
Mendel, H. Musikalisches Conversations-Lexicon	537
Mendelssohn. Four-Part Songs. New Edition	38
Mendelssohn's Original Compositions for Pianoforte Solo. Vol. V.	220
Miller, C. E. Service in D	220
Morandi, G. Overture and Offertorio	601
Mozart. Day of anger	659
Muffat, George, Selections from the Versets of	488
Mullineux, W. Grande Marche Triomphale	436
Musical Directory (Reeves)	326
Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers:
Church Choir Training	158
Lancashire Sol-fa	657
Musical Forms	95
Plain Song	96
Singing	95
Violin	598
Novello's Part-Song Book (A. C. Mackenzie and R. Schumann)	218
—— (S. J. Egerton, C. Holland, J. Booth, J. B. Grant)	435
Novello's Octavo Anthems:
A. C. Mackenzie	271
Mozart	659
L. Samson	324
Oakeley, Herbert S. Sehnsucht.—Frühlingsabend.—Swallow Song	219
—— Four Morceaux from Gluck's "Orpheus," for Organ	437
Orpheus (New Series)	218, 540
Parochial Psalter and Hymn Book	659
Pauer, Ernst. Musical Forms (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers)	95
Perrot, C. H. I acknowledge my transgressions	272
Pole, W. The Story of Mozart's Requiem	323
Pope, H. C. Daylight and Moonlight	221
Professional Pocket Book, The	39
Psalms and Hymns from Holy Scripture, for Chanting	221
Purcell, H. Te Deum and Jubilate in D	382
Ramann, Bruno. Miniatures for Pianoforte	540
Randegger, A. Singing (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers)	95
Reay, S. Part-Songs	540
Ridsdale, C. J. Suite de Pièces	324
Romberg, A. The Transient and the Eternal	271
Rossini, G. Petite Polka Chinoise	160
—— Soirée Musicale.—La Regata Veneziana	382
—— Barcarole	601
Samson, L. By the Rivers of Babylon.—For the Mountains	324
Samson, L. Danse Norvégienne	325
—— Billet Doux, &c., for Piano	600
School Round Book, The (New Edition)	158
Schröter, Max. Gondoliera	436
Schumann, R. Part-Songs	218
Schweizer, Otto. A Sailor's Song	160
Selby, B. Luard. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A	272
Silas, E. Six Pieces for the Organ	540
—— Magnificat	658
Singers, Advice to	37
Spark, W. The Organist's Quarterly Journal. Part XLI.	160
—— (Edited by) Short Pieces for the Organ	437
—— Twenty Celebrated Marches (Organ)	601
Stainer, John. The Music of the Bible	435
Stanford, C. Villiers. Sonate. A-dur (Op. 9)	150
Statham, F. R. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E♭	272
Stewart, Sir R. P. My Father	38
—— Service	96
Stiehl, H. Idylle	601
Stoeger, E. Pendant la Valse	325
Stone, Dr., W. H. Elementary Lessons on Sound	487
Stratton, S. S. Christabel	601
Tate, Rev. J. M. The Waterfall on the Exe	600
Taylor, Franklin. Pianoforte Tutor	600
Tours, B. The Cloud and the Flower	160
—— The Violin (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers)	598
Trinity College Calendar	658
Troutbeck, Rev. J. Church Choir Training. (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers)	158
Vinning, R. O'Leary. The Maiden at the Hostel	541
Wareing, H. W. O Mistress mine	221
Watson, M. Joyous Spring.—Versailles	436
Weber, C. M. von. Preciosa	271
Westlake, F. Episodes	159
Whittingham, A. The Major and Minor Scales, &c.	159
Williams, L. Æsop's Fables	659
Wilson, W. H. O how amiable are Thy dwellings	221
Witkowski, G. J. The Mechanism of Voice, &c.	539
Zimmermann, Agnes. Suite	159
—— Menuetto from Haydn's Quartett in D minor	325
Zoeller, Carli. Manda	383

CORRESPONDENCE.

	Page
Accompaniments to Oratorios	163
Amateur Composers	604
A Plea for the Flute	274, 328
Bach's Comic Cantatas	662
Beethoven's Mass in D	545, 662
Carl Engel's Clavichords	492
Cipriani Potter	41
Copyright	544
Counter-tenors	661
Diapason normal in Spain	223
Edition Nuisance, The	98
Elements of the beautiful in Music, The	40, 100, 163
English and Foreign Cathedral Services	543, 604
English Musical Pitch	327
Fourths to Old Chants	449, 492
Free Concerts for the People	441
Gas Engines for Organs	328, 385, 441
"Leger" or "Ledger" lines	327
Mendelssohn Scholarship, The	100
Minor Key, The Signature of the	41, 163
Monotone and speaking voice in Church	223, 275, 328
Mozart's Piano compositions	544
Mozart's Summer-house	662
Muffat, George and Gottlieb	544
Music in Dresden	490
Music in the United States	602
Musical Education in Schools	163, 224
National Music	274
Notation of the German sixth	162
Oboe d'Amore, The	385
Old Chromatic Notes, The	603
Organ improvements	224, 275, 385
Organ, The employment of in the Orchestra	224, 274
Quadruple Chant, The	41
Salzburg Mozart Institution, Festival of	439
Signature of minor keys and notation of the German sixth	99
Tempered and untempered intervals	223
The unprepared fourth	384
Use of the chord 6-4-3	545

COUNTRY CONCERTS, &c.

Aberdeen	224, 385
Abernant	328
Aberystwith	605
Aintree	41
Alford	663
Alnwick	275
Ampleforth	441
Arbroath	276
Armagh	276
Arundel	329
Ashton-under-Lyne	605
Auburn, N.Y.	276
Babbacombe	100
Bampton	164
Banbury	329, 441
Banff	41, 164, 329
Barbados	386
Barton-under-Needwood	164
Bath	276, 493
Beckenham	329, 441, 605
Bedford	329
Belfast	164, 329, 663
Benhilton	441
Berkhampstead	329
Berwick-upon-Tweed	224, 442
Birkenhead	100
Birmingham	41, 100, 164, 224, 276, 329, 386, 545, 605, 663
Blairgowrie	225
Bolton	164, 663
Bolton-le-Moors	329
Bradford	41, 100, 164, 225, 276
Brasted	276
Brechin	164, 329
Brecon	605
Brentwood	386
Bridgend	545

	Page
Bridlington	605
Brighton	100, 329, 605, 663
Bristol	100, 164, 225, 276, 329, 386, 545, 605, 663
Burford	276
Cardiff	101
Carlisle	276
Castleford	606
Cheltenham	101, 329, 545
Chepstow	101
Chertsey	101, 276
Chichester	276
Chiswick	165
Chorley	606
Chorlton-cum-Hardy	329
Christchurch, N.Z.	101
Clifton	101, 165, 663
Colchester	329
Colnbrook	42, 606
Cork	165, 276
Coventry	42, 101, 225, 386, 664
Crayford	386
Crewe	42, 277
Crieff	42, 330
Curdworth	165
Darwell	664
Deal	330
Devizes	165
Diss	277
Doncaster	664
Dromore	493
Dudley	165, 664
Dundee	42, 277, 664
Dunoon	165
Durham	225, 330
Eastbourne	442
Edinburgh	42, 101, 165, 225, 277, 330, 664
Ely	277
Enniskillen	101, 277, 606
Exeter	277
Farnham	165, 664
Farnworth	42, 330
Faversham	42, 442
Frome	42, 442
Garlinge	545
Gateshead	330
Glasgow	42, 277, 606
Glastonbury	165
Glossop	664
Gloucester	277
Golcar	225
Goole	277
Gravesend	42, 101
Greenock	225, 330
Haddington	165
Hadleigh	330
Halifax	165, 225, 330, 664
Halton	101, 165
Hamilton	606, 664
Handsworth	442
Hanley	277
Harlington	386
Hertford	664
Hetton-le-Hole	277
Hexham	277
High Wycombe	166, 277
Higher Tranmere	330
Holywood	278
Honley	386
Hope	386
Huddersfield	664
Hull	225
Hyères	278
Ilfracombe	42, 330
Ilkley	606
Ingestre	166
Inverness	386
Jarrow	330
Jedburgh	330
Kelvedon	442
Kidderminster	606, 664
Kingsbridge	330
King William's Town	386
Kirmington	606
Lancaster	42
Launceston	330, 386
Leamington	664
Leicester	278
Leighton Buzzard	664
Lee	166
Leeds	42, 101, 278, 442, 493
Leek	166
Lewisham	330, 386
Leyburn	166
Leytonstone	330
Liscard	101
Liskeard	545
Listowel	101
Liverpool	42, 101, 278
Llanidloes	278
Longton	166
Lyndhurst	101, 278, 545
Macclesfield	166
Madeley	42
Madras	102
Maidstone	225, 278, 545
Manchester	166, 225, 664
Margate	606
Marsh Chapel	664
Martock	545
Middlesborough	278
Mirfield	102
Montreal	102, 278
Morecambe	278
Mossley	226
Navan	442
New Mill	442
New Southgate	546
New Swindon	330
New Wortley	606
New York	102, 166
Newcastle (Staffordshire)	664
Newcastle-on-Tyne	102, 386, 493, 664
Newport (Essex)	442
Newton Abbot	546
Northampton	278, 330
Norwich	226, 278, 386
North Berwick	442
North Shields	664
North Tawton	102
Ockley	42, 102, 166, 665
Oldham	546
Ossett	493
Oxford	43, 226, 330, 665
Paisley	43, 226
Pendleton	665
Penninghame	278
Penzance	102
Plymouth	606
Poole	166
Portobello	387
Renfrew	665
Retford	330
Ripon	226
Rochdale	278
Rochester	43, 166, 331
Rock Ferry	387
Ross	331
Ryde	43
Rugby	387
St. Andrew's	279
St. Neots	226
Scarborough	102
Selkirk	331
Shepton Mallett	331
Sherborne	278, 442
Sidcup	331
Southend	278
South Penge	102
South Shields	102
South Weald	279
Spilsby	102
Stalybridge	606
Stoke-upon-Trent	166, 331
Surbiton	331
Sutton (Surrey)	606
Sydney	442, 493
Tamworth	279
Tenbury	442
Tenby	442, 493
Terre Haute (U.S.)	226
Tettenhall	387
Tewkesbury	43
Toronto	331, 606
Tring	331
Trowbridge	331
Tunbridge Wells	279, 331
Turnham Green	102
Tutbury	43
Uley	102
Ulverston	166, 279
Ventnor	102, 279
Victoria	546
Wakefield	226, 546
Wallington	665
Walton-on-the-Hill	665
Wantage	331
Warrington	43, 279, 665
Warwick	387
Watford	387
Watlington	606
Wedmore	166
Weekley	665
Wellingborough	665
Wellington (N.Z.)	166
Wells	387
Wem	607
Weston-super-Mare	607
Weybridge	166, 546, 665
Willesden	331
Winchester	607
Windsor	167, 226, 279, 331
Wirksworth	167
Wishaw	226
Witham	387
Wokingham	102
Wolverhampton	167, 226
Wombourn	607
Woodford	665
Woolwich	387, 442, 607
Worcester	167, 226, 442, 493, 665
Worthing	43, 331, 546
Wotton-under-Edge	43
Yeovil	331
York	43, 167, 332, 493, 607, 665

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

The Music Pages only are stereotyped; those persons who would possess the Musical Articles, Notices, Advertisements, &c. can only insure doing so by taking the work as it appears.

No. 431.—Vol. 20. JANUARY 1, 1879. Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

CAUTION.—MUSICSELLERS and the TRADE generally are hereby cautioned against selling any copies of Mendelssohn's "LIEDER OHNE WORTE," containing the 7th and 8th Books, except those published by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., who are sole proprietors of these Books and of the other copyright works of Mendelssohn.

TWO LEADING BOYS WANTED for a Church at South Kensington. Salary, £15, with increase after six months. Apply by letter to J. Mallitt Jones, Esq., 154, Finborough Road, South Kensington.

LEADING TREBLES WANTED for St. Barnabas, Bell Street, Edgware Road. Liberal salary. Apply to the Vicar, 17, Blandford Square, N.W.

CHOIR BOY WANTED.—A Boy is wanted for Derry Cathedral, who is able to read music and lead the TREBLE PART. He will receive a thorough classical and general education at Foyle College, Londonderry, and be provided with suitable board and lodging in a respectable family, under the immediate care of the Cathedral clergy. Or in case the boy's friends prefer to contribute a sum of £15 per annum, he will be placed as a boarder at Foyle College. For further particulars apply to the Dean.

SOPRANO wishes a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a Church of England choir. Nine years' experience. Address, N. K., 13, Harpur Street, W.C.

HEREFORD CATHEDRAL.—An ASSISTANT VICAR-CHORAL (TENOR) WANTED immediately. Stipend, £100. Two-thirds only of weekly duty. Apply, stating age and with musical and other testimonials, to Mr. J. H. Knight, Chapter Clerk, 30, Castle Street, Hereford.

TENOR WANTED, for a Church in South Kensington. Salary, £20 per annum. Cathedral Service. Address, Mr. T. Pettit, 75, Mornington Road, N.W.

TENOR.—Good Voice and Good Reader seeks ENGAGEMENT in West-End or City Church. Excellent testimonials. Address, S. K., 11, Southwark Street, Borough, S.E.

WANTED, a LEADER of PSALMODY for Trinity Presbyterian Church (Dr. McEwen's), Clapham Road, London. Salary, £60 per annum. Apply by letter, with testimonials inclosed, addressed to Mr. Robert Boyd, Irvine Villa, Rosehill Road, Wandsworth, London.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY ASYLUM, near Gloucester.—MALE ATTENDANTS REQUIRED, about 25 years of age (musicians preferred). Wages commence at £24 per annum, and rise to £35, with board, lodging, washing, and uniform. Applications, stating capabilities, &c., with testimonials, to be sent to Mr. E. Toller, Medical Superintendent, at the Asylum.
BENJ. SHADGETT, Clerk.

A LADY (Pupil of Mr. Hoyte) desires an ORGAN APPOINTMENT in London or suburbs, or occasional work as Deputy. Organist, Portman Library, Baker Street.

THE late ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of St. Andrew's, Pimlico, is open to immediate RE-ENGAGEMENT. Mr. Elson, 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

WANTED, an ARTISTIC VIOLINIST (single gentleman, above 36), as PARTNER. Apply to A. B., 3, Stroud Terrace, East Cliffe, Bournemouth.

MISS SHORLAND (from the Royal Conservatorium of Music, Leipzig) receives PUPILS for the PIANOFORTE, at 66, Sloane Street, Whalley Range, Manchester.

MISS AGNES LARKCOM having recovered from her recent severe indisposition is again prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIO and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. All communications to be addressed, 63, New Bond Street, W.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park. MUSIC SCHOOL: Head Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS to be competed for by pupils of not less than one year's standing in the Music School will be awarded by Professor Macfarren, of which due notice will be given in the papers.
FRANCIS J. HOLLAND, Chairman.
The term begins January 14.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., General Printers. Books, Magazines, Newspapers, Illustrated Catalogues, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Music Printers. Illustrated Titles, Engraving, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Colour Printers. Show Cards, Labels, Almanacs, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Typographical Music Printers. Hymnals, Books for Church Festivals, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Printers. Maps, Plans, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Music Engravers and Printers. Oratorios, Operas, Cantatas, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO. are prepared to forward estimates for the above or any other variety of printing. Works—69 & 70, Dean Street, Soho, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Publishers' and General Bookbinders. Estimates forwarded. Works—111 & 113, Southwark Street, S.E.

MR. FRANCIS HOWELL would be glad to have future communications addressed to his new residence, No. 1, Albion Place, Maidstone.

CAMBRIDGE MUSICAL EXAMINATION.—Candidates prepared in Acoustics, Counterpoint, and Harmony, by J. M. Bentley, Mus. Bac., Cantab., 18, St. Ann's Street, Manchester.

MR. C. STIEBLER COOK, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, five years Music and Choir Master at Uppingham School. For PIANO and HARMONY LESSONS, address, 17, Keppel St., Russell Square, W.C. Schools attended. Choirs conducted.

MR. H. T. BYWATER (TENOR) is OPEN to ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIOS and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. Address, 36, St. Germain's Road, Forest Hill, London, S.E.; or 40, Darlington Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. BRIDSON (BARITONE).—Communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts, Oratorios, &c., to be addressed to Mr. N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street, W.

J. W. HINTON, M.A., Mus. D., continues to Orchestrate or Revise Compositions. Harmony or Counterpoint by post, if desired. Address, care of Messrs. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thoroughbass, and Modulation," "Hiles' Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., by post.

MR. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., Oxon., L. Mus., T.C.L., PREPARES CANDIDATES for Musical Examinations; also gives lessons in Harmony, &c., by post. Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

A GENTLEMAN is desirous of giving LESSONS by post in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. References from present pupils if desired. Terms very moderate. Address, Magister, Musical Times Office, 1, Berners Street, London, W.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address, Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

ORGAN PRACTICE or INSTRUCTION.—Three Manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by Lea's Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, which are strictly inclusive, on application at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 11A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.
Sole Agent for LEA'S HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. The cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano).
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address, 150, Radnor Street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—C. Hallé, Esq., and E. Hecht, Esq.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano).
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS FARBSTEIN (Soprano).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 20, Story Street, Hull.

MISS FANNY CHATFIELD (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, Lessons, &c., 11, St. Ann's Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MRS. J. STOTT (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 8, City Terrace, Peterborough.

MISS JOHNSON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 134, Egerton Street, Oldham.

MISS DUMVILLE (Soprano).
For Oratorios, &c., address, 119, Elizabeth Street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MISS LOUISA BOWMONT (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 51, Mercer Street, Embden Street, Hulme, Manchester.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, Dinners, &c., address, 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimore Square, S.E.

MISS CRAGG (Contralto Vocalist).
Of the Leeds, Bradford, and Halifax Concerts.
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 12, North Castle Street, Halifax.

MISS PATTI HARGREAVES (Contralto).
21, Belle Vue Terrace, Victoria Street, St. John's Hill, Leeds.

MISS JEANIE ROSSE (Contralto).
Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby.
For Engagements and Lessons, address, 13, Kensington Crescent, W.

MISS KERSHAW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Clarksfield Terrace, Lees, Manchester.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
12, Berners Street, W.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
7, Park Place, Regent's Park.

MR. CHARLES BLAGBRO (Tenor).
Principal of Parish Church, Leeds.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Parish Church, Leeds.

MR. HENRY BRIGGS (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 7, Brunswick Street, Leeds.

MR. T. BUCKLAND (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Gibbet Street, Halifax.

MR. W. MANN DYSON (Tenor).
For Concerts or Oratorios, address, Cathedral, Worcester.
Répertoire includes Macfarren's "Joseph" and "St. John," and Bach's "Matthew Passion."

MR. H. PIERCEY (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, care of Truslove and O'Neill, 36, Union Passage, Birmingham.

MR. N. DUMVILLE (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, Cathedral, Manchester.

MR. J. GAWTHROP (Tenor).
MR. R. MILLS (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, the Cathedral, Wells.

MR. JOHN M. HAYDEN (Principal Tenor).
For Oratorios, &c., address, the Cathedral, or 40, New Street, Salisbury.

MR. THOS. NETTLESHIP (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 44, Holland Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. THEODORE DISTIN (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Operas, &c., address, 96, Penrose Street, Sutherland Square, S.E. Pupils prepared for Concert or Stage.

MR. RICKARD (Bass).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Signor Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, King Cross, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 2, Hallfield Place, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. W. MORTON (Bass).
(Leeds Parish Church).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 3, St. Helen's Terrace, Hunslet, Leeds.

MR. FARLEY SINKINS (Bass).
14, Cumberland Street East, Regent's Park, London, N.W.

MR. J. ROMNEY PEARSONE (Bass).
For Oratorios, &c., address, 122, Derby Road, Bootle, Liverpool.

MR. T. LAW (Basso).
(Of Madame Lemmens-Sherrington's Concert Party and of the London Popular Concerts.)
Address, 4, Rosemount, Bolton, Bradford, or 14, Ironmonger Lane, E.C.

MR. W. F. ILLINGWORTH (Solo Pianist).
From the Conservatoire, Leipsic.
Address, 33, St. James's Road, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. J. SHARPE (Oboeist).
For Oratorios, &c., address, 235, Lidgett Hill, Pudsey, near Leeds.
N.B.—Bandmasters and others supplied with the New Model Oboe. Best Oboe Reeds, 2s. each. Staples recaned, 1s. each.

MR. A. SLADDIN (Flautist).
For Oratorios, &c., address, Brighouse, Yorkshire.

FOR ORATORIO OR OTHER CONCERTS, &c.,
MADAME CROSS LAVERS,
Soprano;
MR. HENRY CROSS,
Bass.
ENGAGEMENTS as follows:—

January 1, Buckingham.	January 3, Towcester.
„ 2, Banbury.	„ 9, Salisbury.

Address, Mr. Henry Cross, 7, Mornington Crescent, N.W., or St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W.

DR. ALLISON instructed by post Candidates who passed Mus. Bac., Oxon, October, 1878; Mus. Bac., Cantab.; C.O. and T.C.L. examinations. Dr. A. graduated Mus. D. 206, Marylebone Road, London.

ORGAN PRACTICE, on a fine new instrument with 2 manuals, 16 stops, and full compass of bourdon pedals, blown by hydraulic engine. Terms (strictly inclusive), one shilling per hour, at the Organ Studio, 15, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy Street, Bedford Square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED to ARTICLE a YOUTH, age 17 (out-doors), in London, where he will have the advantage (if possible) of a daily service and a musical education. He has had daily practice and lessons on a two-manual organ for the last twelve months. Address, A. Lambert, Uxbridge Library, Uxbridge.

WANTED, in a British Colony, a Young Man of good address, to serve in a MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT. Must have a good knowledge of sheet music, and be able to show off Pianos and Harmoniums. A knowledge of musical instruments generally desirable. Address, with testimonials, to B. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a First-class PIANOFORTE TUNER. Good character indispensable. Apply to Mr. Henry Farmer, Nottingham.

WANTED, a copy of each of the following letter-press numbers of the "MUSICAL TIMES" for the year 1858, with or without the music:—Nos. 191, 192, 194, 197, 202, 210, and 225. Address, W. H. S., care of Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

PARTNERSHIP.—In a long-established MUSIC BUSINESS, in a central situation at the West-End of London, an active PARTNER REQUIRED to take chiefly the financial part of the business. A large connection is insured. For particulars, apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London.

FIRST-CLASS MUSICAL BUSINESS for DISPOSAL (cause of leaving, death). Well-established; seventeen years' lease to run. Rent, £150. Stock and fixtures to be taken at a valuation. For particulars apply personally at Mason and Co.'s, 26, Edgware Road, Hyde Park, near Marble Arch.

TO the Music Trade and others.—To be SOLD, the LEASE and STOCK of a well-established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC SELLER'S, in a main thoroughfare. Premises large, and the hiring might be considerably extended by a person with capital. This offers unusual advantages. Address, H. & H., 7, Haine Terrace, High Road, Kilburn, N.W.

CAPITAL OPPORTUNITY for a PIANOFORTE TUNER.—In one of the British Colonies an excellent TUNING BUSINESS for SALE. Worth £400 to £500 per annum, and easily increased. Present owner retiring. Apply to C. T. C., 6, Newgate Street, London.

AUTHORS' WORKS
CORRECTED, REVISED, AND PRINTED
WITH DESPATCH
On moderate Terms.
QUOTATIONS GIVEN ON RECEIPT OF MSS.
LONDON: B. WILLIAMS, 60, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.
CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the Music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED, APRIL, 1866.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION.

Mr. H. ASHTON (Alto). Mr. FRED. H. COZENS (First Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN (Second Tenor and Pianist). Mr. ALBERT HUBBARD (Bass).

ASSISTED BY Madame ASHTON
(Soprano).

For terms, either separately or collectively, address, Mr. H. ASHTON, Secretary, Ivy House, Stamford Hill, London, N.

THE UNDERSIGNED being charged to offer for SALE TWELVE VALUABLE AUTOGRAPHS of HAYDN, MOZART, BEETHOVEN, MENDELSSOHN, SCHUMANN, and SPOHR, are ready to give any desired information in answer to inquiries put to them.
Leipzig, Dec. 1, 1878. BREITKOPF & HÄRTEL.

NEW MUSIC PRINTING PROCESS.
Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.
50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.
PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,
8A, RED LION SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.

HOW to LEARN the ENGLISH CONCERTINA WITHOUT a MASTER. By C. ROYLANCE, 38, Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square; and all Musicsellers. Thirteen stamps.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK. Some chemists and stationers for extra profit deceive you. Genuine label, "Daughter of late John Bond." Works: 75, Southgate Road, N. No heating required.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE HAIR RESTORER for the MILLION. In bottles at 6d., 1s., and 2s. It is nourishing, strengthening, and developing. Genuine label has the words, "Prepared by the daughter of the late John Bond, the great marking-ink maker." Trade mark, Crystal Palace.

12S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, post-free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock.
James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord Street, Liverpool.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

T. R. WILLIS (established, 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES AND HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 12th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarinets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-instruction Books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price Lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell Road, Clerkenwell, London.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES.—150 by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Allison, &c., from 4 guineas upwards. HARMONIUMS (New), from £5, in Walnut or Mahogany cases. Largest stock of Pianos and Harmoniums in London at Kelly and Co.'s, 11, Charles Street, Middlesex Hospital. Trade supplied.

TO SELL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS of every description, also Libraries of Music, Music Plates and Copyrights, Stock-in-Trade, &c., SALE (devoted exclusively to this class of property) held every month. Single instruments inserted. Consignments received at any time. Puttick and Simpson, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C. [Established, 1794.]

A. MONK'S ORGANS, warranted First Class, at moderate prices, from 50 guineas. 100-Guinea Organs, 2 CC manuals, 10 stops, 16-feet pedal pipes. 200 guineas, 2 manuals, 16 stops. 300 guineas, 3 manuals, 21 stops. 400 guineas, 3 manuals, 27 stops. 600 guineas, 3 manuals, 36 stops. Larger or smaller Organs built to any Specification. Old Organs rebuilt. Additions, Repairs, Tunings, &c. Specifications and Estimates sent free. Sussex Terrace, Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.
Organs on the three years' system.

MALEY, YOUNG & OLDKNOW,
ORGAN-BUILDERS,
KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

Organs rebuilt to suit any position, repaired, enlarged, tuned, and revoiced in any part of the kingdom, at very moderate charges.
Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first class.
Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of organs.
N.B.—New and second-hand organs for sale. Inspection invited.

ORGAN for SALE.—Three manuals, 5 stops, 6 couplers, concave and radiating pedal-board, 30 bourdon pipes. Built by a London builder. Apply to C., Elleray Villa, Westwood, Scarborough.

TWO-MANUAL ORGAN, now standing in Trinity Church, Frome, to be SOLD, to give place to a larger, new instrument. Great organ: open diapason, stopped diapason, dulciana, principal, flute, twelfth, and fifteenth. Swell to tenor C. Double, open diapason, principal, fifteenth, and hautboy, pedal bourdon CCC to A. Price £80. Address, Rev. W. E. Daniel, the Vicarage.

ORGANS for SALE.—CHURCH ORGAN. Two manuals, CC swell, 6 stops in great, 5 in swell, 614 pipes, 2½ octaves, 16 feet pedals. £140. Useful CC CHANCEL ORGAN: One manual, 5 stops, 2 octaves pedals. £45. Small CHAMBER ORGAN. Second-hand. Four stops. 12 guineas. C. Smart, Tabernacle Square, Finsbury, E.C.

ORGANS (several Small) for SALE. Suit chamber or small church. Full round church tone. Bargains. Costloe and Son, Organ Works, Isleworth, Middlesex.

ORGAN for SALE, built for a Gentleman's Music-room, but fitted for chancel or studio. Full compass, 9 stops, 30 bourdon pedal pipes; 379 pipes; new case, deal varnished, with gilt front pipes. Bellows, double feeders; pedal coupler. Price moderate. Address, Dr. Haines Wood, Organist, Richmond House, Watford, Herts.

LARGE AMERICAN ORGAN to be SOLD.—Eight stops, splendid tone, equal to new. Cost £47. For further particulars, apply, A. B., care of Mr. Alfred Clark, Printer, &c., Loughborough.

A SMALL Chamber ORGAN for SALE. Six stops, pedals 27, gilt front, oak case. Price £45. Address, A. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

"THE OCARINA."

This new Musical Instrument forms a charming accompaniment to the Pianoforte.

PRICES, INCLUDING BOOK OF INSTRUCTIONS:—

No. 2.	No. 4.	No. 6.
1s.	1s. 6d.	2s.

Sold by all Musicsellers, or by the Manufacturers,

BARNETT SAMUEL AND SON,

32, WORSHIP STREET, FINSBURY SQUARE.

Samples in boxes, sent by post at an extra charge of 2d., 3d., and 6d. respectively.

THE "STANDARD"

AMERICAN ORGANS

MANUFACTURED BY

PELOUBET, PELTON, AND CO.,

NEW YORK,

Are celebrated for their organ-like quality of tone and general good workmanship.

PRICES, TEN GUINEAS AND UPWARDS.

To be seen at the principal Pianoforte Saloons in the kingdom, or at the London show-rooms,

32, WORSHIP STREET,
FINSBURY SQUARE.

LONDON AGENTS,

MESSRS. MOUTRIE AND SON,

PIANOFORTE SALOON,

55, BAKER STREET, LONDON, W.

MR. J. HAMILTON begs to inform Organists, Organ Students, and others that the Pedals and Action for attachment to Pianofortes manufactured by him can be inspected and ordered at the above address.

A set of Straight Pedals, 30 notes (C to F), with action and printed instructions, "How to Attach," price £4 10s. Or Radiating and Concave Pedal Board, with action, price £5 10s.

Orders accompanied with Cheque or P.O. Order will receive immediate attention. Send for prices to the Profession and Trade.

Address, J. HAMILTON, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

FOR SALE, several small Second-hand ORGANS, suitable for small places of worship. Apply to Mr. J. Porritt, Organ Builder, Leicester.

VIOLINS.—The GUARINI Violin, under the recommendation of Sivori, Léonard, Remenyi, Maurin. Send for testimonials. Price, single copies, £7 10s. Agents wanted. One old "Craske" Violin on sale, 20 guineas. Apply, W. Hargreaves, 61, Dale Street, Manchester.

VIOLINS.—For genuine and carefully selected Instruments, at moderate prices, apply to J. Wilson Browne, 6, Great Charles Street, Birmingham. Every instrument has been thoroughly tested.

VIOLINS, &c., by CRASKE, some of them fifty years old, and equal to Straduarius and Guarnerius, except in name only. The whole of this great maker's instruments on SALE at Edward Crompton's, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester. Will be sent for trial on receipt of satisfactory reference.

TO be SOLD, a Jacobi's Stainer VIOLIN; also a Percy's Grand. Apply to M. J. Swift, 30, Peter Street, Drogheda.

ORGANS, CHURCH or CHAMBER, New and Second-hand.—Several very superior Instruments of various sizes, by eminent Builders, for SALE or HIRE. Can be had on easy terms of purchase. Apply, E. Carder, East London Organ Works, 9, Burdett Road, Mile-End Road, London, E.

POHLMANN & SON,

PRIZE MEDAL

PIANOFORTE MAKERS.

STEAM WORKS, HALL STREET;

SHOW ROOMS AND MUSIC SALOON, PRINCESS STREET,

HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

ONLY MAKERS IN GREAT BRITAIN OF THE IRON OVERSTRUNG UPRIGHT GRAND

PIANOFORTES

(With double cast frame).

THESE UPRIGHT GRANDS ARE, WITHOUT EXCEPTION,

THE FINEST IN EUROPE,

AND FOR

PURITY OF TONE,
SUSTAINING POWER,
ELEGANCE OF DESIGN, EXCELLENCE OF WORKMANSHIP,

COMBINED WITH DURABILITY, THEY ARE

UNEQUALLED

BY ANY UPRIGHT PIANOS EITHER OF AMERICAN, GERMAN, OR ENGLISH MAKE.

COMPARISON INVITED.

POHLMANN & SON make also the undermentioned Specialties, which are unequalled at the price:—

The "MENDELSSOHN" Upright Grands, with Iron Frames, vertically strung.

The "INTERNATIONAL" Trichord Pianino, with best Escapement Action, Diminuendo Pedal, Stud Bridge, &c., in elegant case of new design. Price 60 Guineas.

The COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Two Unisons, Seven Octaves, &c. Price 36 Guineas.

The best value ever offered by any maker.

POHLMANN & SON are Sole Agents for the beautiful

"HERZOG" SHORT GRANDS,

Price 75 Guineas.

OVERSTRUNG AND WITH PATENT ACTION.

Liberal Discounts to Dealers.

Acknowledged by all to be the best Grand of the size (six feet) yet made.

POHLMANN AND SON,
HALIFAX.

MUSIC STRINGS—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

J. P. GUIVIER AND CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

ALL KINDS OF MUSIC STRINGS FOR ALL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Sole Depot for Signor ANDREA RUFFINI's (of Naples) Celebrated Strings for Soloists, manufactured by him on a system invented by Mons. J. B. VUILLAUME, of Paris.

Sole Agent for CHARLES ALBERT's (of Philadelphia, U.S.) new Patent Improved Chin Rest; also his improved String Gauge.

25, SHERWOOD STREET, REGENT CIRCUS, PICCADILLY.

Price List free on application.

All kinds of strings covered in a superior manner on powerful machines made on the best principle with all modern improvements.

The only Gold Medal for Wind Instruments with Keys, in the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878, was unanimously awarded by the Jury to Messrs. P. GOUMAS & Co., for the fine quality of tone and finish of their Instruments.

SPECIAL MANUFACTORY OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR CLARIONETS, FLUTES, PICCOLOS, OBOES, BASSOONS, COR ANGLAIS, FLAGEOLETS, AND SAXOPHONES.

P. GOUMAS & CO.

(Late BUFFET, CRAMPON & Co.),

ESTABLISHED 1830.

Nine Prize Medals have been awarded to GOUMAS & Co. for general excellence and improvements in the Manufacture of Wind Instruments with Keys.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Wood Wind Instruments for Military Bands, Musical Instrument Makers to Her Majesty's Army and Navy, and to the Armies, Navies, and Conservatoires of France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Austria, Spain, America, &c.

Manufactory at Mantes (Seine et Oise), France. Paris: Passage du Grand Cerf, 18 et 20.

LONDON: 5, MADDOX STREET, REGENT STREET.

Price Lists sent free on application.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms highly advantageous.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row.

Now ready.

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

SONGS FOR SAILORS

WRITTEN BY

W. C. BENNETT,

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. L. HATTON.

ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO, CONTAINING

FORTY SONGS:

Trafalgar.
Would you be a sailor's wife?
A fisher-wife's song.
Nay, never cry, lass.
A kiss to take to sea.
Homeward bound.
The Nile.
The apparition.
The Dutchman's broom.
Take me, lass, for life.
The fine old English admiral.
Ring, happy bells.
The forsaken.
The sailor's dream.
To sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.
A thousand leagues away.
Strike, and strike hard.
Were I that gull.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.
Saturday night at sea.
Duncan at Camperdown.
Rum.
Rodney and De Grasse.
From sea.
A wife's song.
The winds, inconstant ever.
Old Benbow.
There's nothing like a smoke.
The seaboy's dream.
A song of the sea.
The wife for a British sailor.
We roam and rule the sea.
The homeward watch.
Off to sea.
A mother's song.
Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
A Christmas song.
Outward bound.
Herrings are in the bay.

With Illustrated Cover and Engraved Portrait of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

POLYEUCTE

OPERA IN FIVE ACTS

WRITTEN BY

JULES BARBIER

AND MICHEL CARRÉ

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

CH. GOUNOD.

	s.	d.
VOCAL SCORE ... ... Net	21	0
THE COMPLETE OPERA, ARRANGED FOR PIANO SOLO ... ... „	10	6

SEPARATE MOVEMENTS.

OVERTURE (Solo)	4	0
No. 6. CHORUS, "Que le myrte et la rose," arranged for One Voice (Mezzo-Soprano)	4	0
„ 7. CAVATINA, "O dieux! O puissances" (Baritone) ...	5	0
„ 8. INVOCATION À VESTA (Soprano)	2	6
„ 9. GRAND DUO, "Pauline! dieux!" (Soprano and Baritone)	8	0
„ 11. BARCAROLLE, "Nymphes attentives" (Tenor) ...	4	0
„ 15. CANTILÈNE, "Quoi c'est peu de perdre" (Baritone)	4	0
„ 20. STANCES, "Sources délicieuses" (Tenor)	4	0

ARRANGEMENTS.

LACK, TH. Op. 32. Barcarolle (Transcription for Pianoforte Solo)	4	0
NEUSTEDT, CH. Op. 142. Fantaisie-Transcription ...	6	0
RUMMEL, J. Fantaisie	5	0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SUBSCRIPTION EDITION

OF

MOZART'S WORKS.

ISSUED IN DECEMBER.

		s.	d.
Série XIX.	Piano Duets ... ... net	12	0
„ XX.	Piano Solo, Sonatas, and Fantasias ... „	17	6
„ XXII.	Piano Solo, small pieces ... ... „	7	6

To be had singly of, and subscriptions received by, NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY

DIETRICH BUXTEHUDE

(1635—1707).

EDITED BY

PHILIPP SPITTA.

Containing Preludes and Fugues, Toccatas, Canzonettas, Chorales, &c.

Two Volumes ... ... each, net 24s.

Or Twelve Books ... ... each, 6s. to 10s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM ACCOMPANIMENTS.

To obviate the difficulty frequently experienced by Country Choral Societies, many of which are unable to procure the assistance of an orchestra for the performance of complete works, Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co. contemplate publishing an arrangement of the Orchestral Accompaniments of many popular works for Pianoforte and Harmonium.

The following are now ready:—

Sterndale Bennett's May Queen,

arranged by J. LEMMENS, folio, paper covers, price 7s. 6d.

Rossini's Stabat Mater,

arranged by J. LEMMENS, folio, paper covers, price 6s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S OPERA CHORUSES,

EDITED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN AND BERTHOLD TOURS.

AUBER'S FRA DIAVOLO.

1. Comrades, fill your glasses ... ... 4d.
En bons militaires.
2. Hail, festal morning ... . 2d.
C'est grande fête.

AUBER'S MASANIELLO.

3. All hail the bright auspicious day ... 2d.
Du Prince objet de notre amour.
4. All hail the bright auspicious day ... 1d.
Du Prince objet de notre amour.
5. O holy Power—O Dieu puissant ... 1d.
6. Companions, come. (Fishermen's chorus)—Amis, amis. ... ... 2d.
7. Behold the morn in splendour ... 2d.
Amis la matinée est belle.
8. Come hither all who wish to buy. (Market chorus) ... ... 3d.
Au marché qui vient de s'ouvrir.
9. We come, we will avenge thee ... 3d.
Courons à la vengeance.
O Power benign—Saint bien heureux.
60. All hail, the noble victor. (March and chorus) ... ... 6d.
Honneur! honneur et gloire.

BEETHOVEN'S FIDELIO.

10. Oh, what delight. (Prisoners' chorus) 3d.
O welche Lust.
11. Farewell, thou warm and sunny beam 4d.
Leb' wohl, du warmes Sonnenlicht.

BELLINI'S I PURITANI.

12. When yonder bugle calls us ... ... 1d.
Quando la tromba squilla.
13. Rejoice we!—A festa ... ... 1d.
14. Noble Arthur, welcome ... ... 1d.
Ad Arturo onore.
15. Once I sought thee—A te, o cara. ... 2d.
16. Fatal day—Ahi! dolor ... ... 2d.

BELLINI'S NORMA.

17. Hasten, ye Druids, the heights ascend 2d.
Ite sul colle, O Druidi.
18. Norma cometh—Norma viene ... 1d.
19. Not yet gone? no, yet they linger ... 2d.
Non parti? finora è al campo.
20. Vengeance, vengeance ... ... 1d.
Guerra, guerra!

BELLINI'S LA SONNAMBULA.

21. Hail! Amina—Viva! viva, Amina! 1d.
22. Fairest flower of the mountains ... 1d.
In Elvezia non v' ha rosa.
23. When dusky twilight—Ah fosco cielo 1d.
24. Here a moment we'll shelter and rest us ... ... 2d.
Qui la selva è più folta ed ombrosa.

DONIZETTI'S LA FIGLIA.

25. What pleasure, what gladness ... 2d.
Cantiamo, cantiamo.
26. Hark, how the drums are rolling ... 1d.
Sprona il tamburo e incora.
27. Rataplan, rataplan ... ... 1d.
Rataplan, rataplan.

DONIZETTI'S LUCIA.

28. Let us roam through these ruins deserted ... ... 1d.
Per corriamo le spiagge vicine.
29. Hail, to the happy bridal day ... 1d.
Per te d' immenso giubilo.
30. What from vengeance yet restrains me—Chi raffrena il mio furore ... 2d.
31. With warlike minstrelsy ... ... 1d.
D' immenso giubilo.

DONIZETTI'S LUCREZIA BORGIA.

32. Not a word—Non far motto ... ... 2d.
33. From his window ... ... 1d.
Rischiarata è la finestra.
34. Would you know how to while away sorrow—Il segreto per esser felice ... 1d.
90. Hark to that joyous strain ... ... 2d.
Senti, senti.

FLOTOW'S MARTHA.

71. Bright and buxom lasses (Chorus of farmers)—Mädchen brav und treu 3d.
72. Finale. The fair begins with sound of bell—Der Markt beginnt ... 3d.

GLINKA'S LIFE FOR THE CZAR.

66. Noble Chief! thee we hail (Polonaise with Chorus) ... ... 3d.

GLUCK'S IPHIGENIA IN AULIS.

78. Why so long wilt thou try our patience ... ... 3d.
C'est trop faire de résistance.
79. See what grace—Que d'attraits ... 2d.
80. Paris never beheld ... ... 2d.
Non jamais aux regards.
81. Be sad no more—Rassurez-vous ... 2d.
82. Come, sing to the praise ... ... 2d.
Chantez, célébrez.
83. This altar never heard ... ... 2d.
Jamais à tes autels.
84. Up to the vault of heaven ... ... 3d.
Jusques aux voûtes éthérées.

GLUCK'S IPHIGENIA IN TAURIS.

85. The Gods their anger turn away ... 2d.
Les dieux apaisent leur courroux.
86. Heaven's anger passes away ... ... 1½d.
Les dieux, longtemps en courroux.

MOZART'S DON GIOVANNI.

35. Let's enjoy while the season invites us ... ... 1d.
Giovinette, che fate all' amore.

MOZART'S LE NOZZE DI FIGARO.

36. Come, deck with flowers ... ... 1d.
Giovani liete.
37. Noble Lady, fairest roses ... ... 1d.
Ricevete, o padroncina.
38. Each voice now rejoices ... ... 1d.
Amanti, costanti.

MOZART'S DIE ZAUBERFLOETE.

67. Oh, Isis and Osiris (Chorus of Priests) 1d.

ROSSINI'S IL BARBIERE.

39. Sir, we humbly thank your honour ... 2d.
Mille grazie, mio signore.

ROSSINI'S GUILLAUME TELL.

61. Brightly the rosy morn ... ... 1d.
Quel jour serein.
62. Come, with flowers crown the bowers 2d.
Hyménee, ta journée.
63. Hark, how the horns gaily sounding 2d.
Quelle sauvage harmonie.
64. Hail to the mighty ruler ... ... 2d.
Gloire au pouvoir suprême.
65. Swift as the bird in summer sky (Tyrolean) ... ... 1d.
Toi que l'oiseau ne suivrait pas.

(To be continued.)

SCHUBERT'S ROSAMUNDE.

77. Forth to the meadows (Chorus of Shepherds) ... . 3d.
89. How merry is life. (Hunting chorus) 2d.

VERDI'S IL TROVATORE.

40. See how the darkness of night dissolves. (Gipsy chorus) ... ... 1d.
Vedi! le fosche notturne.
41. Now the dice invite our leisure! ... 1d.
Or co' dadi ma fra poco.
42. Miserere Scene ... ... 2d.

VERDI'S RIGOLETTO.

43. Hush, in silence fulfil we our errand 2d.
Zitti, zitti, moviamo a vendetta
44. Unto a lonely abode directed ... 1d.
Scorrendo uniti remota via.

VERDI'S LA TRAVIATA.

68. Where beauty and mirth are beckoning (Drinking song and Chorus) ... 2d.
Libiamo, nè lieti calici.
69. We are brave Matadors (Chorus of Spanish Matadors) ... ... 2d.
Di Madride noi siam Mattadori.
70. Lo, where the pride of the people advances (Bacchanal chorus) ... 1d.
Largo al quadrupedo.
87. A welcome to the gipsy (Chorus of Gipsies) ... ... 2d.
Noi siamo zingarelli.
88. Shame on the cruelty thy lips have spoken ... ... 6d.
Oh infamia, orribile.

VERDI'S ERNANI.

73. Day of gladness (Introduction galop and chorus)—Exultiamo ... ... 1d.
74. Rouse the long-slumbering lion (Chorus of Conspirators) ... ... 1d.
Si redesti il Leon.
75. We welcome, we hail thee. (Chorus) 1d.
Oh, come felice.

VERDI'S NABUCO.

76. Borne by memory on bright golden pinions—Va pensiero sull' ali dorate 2d.

WAGNER'S LOHENGRIN.

45. The call hath summoned us betimes 2d.
In Früh'n versammelt uns der Ruf
46. We follow where he leads! ... ... 1d.
Zum Streite saumet nicht!
47. May every joy attend thee ... ... 1d.
Gesegnet soll sie schreiten.
48. Faithful and true we lead ye forth ... 1d.
Treulich geführt ziehet dahin.

WAGNER'S TANNHÆUSER.

49. Hail, bright abode (the March) ... 4d.
Freudig begrüssen
50. Once more with joy. (Pilgrim's Chorus)—Beglückt darf nun dich 2d.

WEBER'S OBERON.

51. Light as fairy foot can fall ... ... 2d.
Lieve il piè colà volgiam.
52. Honour and joy—Gloria! ommagio... 2d.
53. Glory to the Caliph—Gloria al giusto 2d.
54. Who would stay in her coral cave ... 4d.
Chi potria fra l' onde restar.
55. For thee hath beauty (Women's voices)—Per te pomposa ... ... 3d.
56. Do. do. (Mixed voices) 2d.

WEBER'S DER FREISCHUETZ.

57. Victoria, victoria—Victoria, victoria 1d.
58. The Bridal wreath for thee we bind ... 1d.
Wir winden dir den Jungfernkrenz.
59. The joy of the Hunter. (Huntsmen's chorus)—Was gleicht wohl an Erden 2d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET (E.C.)
BOSTON, NEW YORK, AND PHILADELPHIA: DITSON & CO.

NEW NUMBERS
OF NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

ROBERT FRANZ.

334	ALREADY SNOW HAS FALLEN ...	...(S.A.T.B.)	1½d.
335	AT PARTING	... ,,	1½d.
336	THE FAIREST TIME	... ,,	1½d.
337	SPRING'S FAITH	... ,,	1½d.
338	MAY SONG	... ,,	1½d.
339	A MORNING WALK	... ,,	3d.

FRANZ ABT.

340	HOME THAT I LOVE	... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
341	EVENTIDE	... ,,	1½d.
342	O THOU WORLD SO FAIR	... ,,	3d.
343	SPRING'S AWAKING	... ,,	1½d.
344	NIGHT SONG	... ,,	1½d.
345	EVENING GLOW ON THE WOODS...	... ,,	3d.

FANNY HENSEL, née MENDELSSOHN.

346	DOST THOU HEAR THE TREES ...	... (S.A.T.B.)	1½d.
347	THE UNKNOWN LAND	... ,,	3d.
348	IN AUTUMN	... ,,	1½d.
349	MORNING GREETING	... ,,	3d.
350	THE WOODLAND VALLEY	... ,,	1½d.
351	WHEN WOODS ARE GLOWING ...	... ,,	3d.

A. C. MACKENZIE.

352	HOW I LOVE THE FESTIVE BOY ...	... ...	3d.
353	AUTUMN	... ...	1½d.
354	WHEN SPRING	... ...	4d.
355	THE DAY OF LOVE	... ...	3d.
356	THE STARS ARE WITH THE VOYAGER	...	1½d.

E. PROUT.

357	HAIL TO THE CHIEF	... (S.A.T.B.)	4d.

J. L. HATTON.

358	AT THE COMING OF THE SPRING	... (S.A.T.B.)	3d.
359	CALM NIGHT	... ,,	3d.
360	COME, LIVE WITH ME	... ,,	3d.
361	ECHO'S LAST WORD	... ,,	1½d.
362	HE THAT HATH A PLEASANT FACE	... ,,	3d.
363	KEEP TIME, KEEP TIME	... ,,	3d.
364	LO, THE PEACEFUL SHADES ...	... ,,	1½d.
365	NOT FOR ME THE LARK IS SINGING	... ,,	3d.
366	SPRING, THE SWEET SPRING ...	... ,,	3d.
367	TAKE HEART	... ,,	3d.
368	THE FISHING BOAT	... ,,	1½d.
369	THE LARK	... ,,	3d.
370	THE MOON SHONE CALMLY BRIGHT ...	,,	3d.
371	THE REPROACH	... ,,	1½d.
372	THE SWING	... ,,	3d.
373	THE WRECKED HOPE	... ,,	3d.
374	TWILIGHT	... ,,	1½d.
375	TWILIGHT NOW IS ROUND US VEILING	,,	3d.
376	WHAT IS GOT BY SIGHING	... ,,	3d.
377	WHERE SHALL THE LOVER REST ...	,,	1½d.

CH. GOUNOD.

378	NIGHT		3d.

S. REAY.

379	THE DAWN OF DAY		3d.

H. HILES.

380	THE CALM OF THE SEA...		4d.
381	THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS		6d.
396	HUSHED IN DEATH		6d.

R. SCHUMANN.

382	UNCERTAIN LIGHT		3d.
383	CONFIDENCE		3d.
384	THE DREAM		1½d.
385	THE BOAT		3d.

G. A. MACFARREN.

392	THE MILLER		3d.
393	AT FIRST THE MOUNTAIN RILL		3d.
394	ALL IS STILL		3d.

J. BARNBY.

395	SLEEP, THE BIRD IS IN ITS NEST		3d.

H. LESLIE.

397	EVENING (IT IS THE HOUR)		1½d.
398	SONG TO MAY MORNING		3d.
399	BOAT SONG (HAIL TO THE CHIEF)		3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ORPHEUS
(NEW SERIES)
A COLLECTION OF GLEES AND PART-SONGS FOR MALE VOICES.

Notwithstanding the popularity of the ORPHEUS in its former shape, it is believed that its issue in separate Voice Parts is scarcely in accordance with the present taste; it is therefore the intention of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. to publish a New Series of this favourite Collection, in which every composition will appear in the popular Octavo form, in single numbers printed in Vocal Score, with a carefully revised Pianoforte Accompaniment. In many instances the translation of the words will also undergo revision.

The ORPHEUS will now consist exclusively of Part-Music for

MALE VOICES ONLY.

The whole of the original Series, with a few unimportant exceptions, will be published in the new form, and new compositions by the best composers will be added from time to time, as well as a number of pieces which have become popular in other forms or in other Collections. The Part-Songs for Mixed Voices hitherto contained in the Series will in future appear in the "Part-Song Book."

The whole of the compositions by Mendelssohn, until now included in the ORPHEUS, will be issued as a separate publication, forming a complete collection of his Part-Songs.

1	THE LONG DAY CLOSES... ...	A. SULLIVAN ...	3d.
2	THE BELEAGUERED	A. SULLIVAN ...	3d.
3	THE HOMEWARD WATCH ...	H. SMART... ...	1½d.
4	COME AWAY, COME AWAY ...	SCHÄFER	1½d.
5	ONWARD ROAMING, NEVER WEARY	MÜLLER	1½d.
6	HARK! THE MERRY DRUM ...	KRUGH	3d.
7	VERMELAND	SWEDISH MELODY	1½d.
8	DEAR LAND OF MY FATHERS...	SWEDISH MELODY	1½d.
9	STILL AMID OLD SWEDEN'S YOUTH	DALECARLIAN SONG	1½d.
10	A FRANKLYN'S DOGGE	A. C. MACKENZIE	4d.
11	ALL THINGS LOVE THEE ...	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
12	A SONG OF WINTER	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
13	GOING AWAY	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
14	SLEEP, MY SWEET	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
15	SPRING, YE FLOW'RETS	J. L. HATTON ...	1½d.
16	SUMMER EVE	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
17	THE SWEET CREATURE ...	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
18	TO JULIA	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
19	O THOU WHOSE BEAMS (Ossian's Hymn)	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	6d.
20	T'OTHER DAY AS I SAT (Sycamore Shade)	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	4d.
21	HARK! HEARD YE NOT	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	6d.
22	THE COURTLY BARD (Kitty Fell)	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	4d.
23	THE CHASE	CH. GOUNOD ...	4d.
24	THE NIGHT IS CLOUDLESS AND SERENE	SCHUBERT... ...	4d.
25	BATTLE SONG...	SCHUMANN ...	3d.
26	WEIGHING ANCHOR (Outward Bound)	G. A. MACFARREN	4d.
27	I WISH TO TUNE MY QUIVERING LYRE	T. F. WALMISLEY	3d.
28	CHEERFULNESS	CIRO PINSUTI ...	6d.
29	HOW DEAR TO ME THE HOUR	CIRO PINSUTI ...	6d.
30	PEACE	J. FREDK. BRIDGE	4d.
31	WITH THEE, SWEET HOPE ...	J. FREDK. BRIDGE	6d.
32	LET MAIDS BE FALSE, SO WINE BE TRUE	GEORGE C. MARTIN	4d.
33	THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS	HENRY HILES ...	6d.
34	HUSHED IN DEATH	HENRY HILES ...	6d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.
Boston, New York, and Philadelphia: DITSON and Co.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY,

EXETER HALL.

MORNING PERFORMANCE OF ROSSINI'S ORATORIO,

MOSES IN EGYPT,

SATURDAY, JANUARY 11, 1879.

Doors open at 2.0; commence at 2.30.

Ticket, 3s., 5s., 7s., and 10s. 6d.

The Vocal Score (Octavo Edition), price 6s., may be obtained at 6, Exeter Hall, and of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, where also tickets for the performance may be had.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. President, H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh, K.G. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. THURSDAY, 23rd JANUARY, at Eight, ISRAEL IN EGYPT. Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, and Mr. W. H. Cummings. Organist, Dr. Stainer. The Duet, "The Lord is a man of war," will be sung by 400 Tenors and Basses. Prices, 7s. 6d., 5s., 4s., 3s., and 1s. Tickets may be had of the usual agents and at the Royal Albert Hall.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

LENT TERM.

Students can be received on MONDAY, JANUARY 13, and following days for the undermentioned Classes and Lectures:—Harmony, Professor Gordon Saunders, Mus. D.; Counterpoint, Canon, and Fugue, Professor Edwin M. Lott; Form in Musical Composition, Edward Silas; Orchestration, Henry Smart; Musical History, The Warden; Harmony Class (Ladies), Humphrey J. Stark, Mus. B.; Organ, W. S. Hoyte; Pianoforte, Bradbury Turner, Mus. B.; Harmonium, King Hall; Solo Singing, J. C. Beuthin; Violin, L. Szczepanowski; Violoncello, W. Pettit; Flute, J. Radcliff; Harp, J. Cheshire, Class-Singing, W. J. Westbrook, Mus. D.; Choir Management, B. Agutter, Mus. B.; String Quartett Practice, under the direction of the Professors.

ORGAN PRACTICE may be arranged for separately, on terms to be had on application.

For a Syllabus of Classes and other particulars, apply to the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, Weymouth Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

FINAL NOTICE.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC,
JANUARY 8, 9, 10, 1879.

All names and entrance fees for the above Examinations must be sent to the Resident Secretary, at the College, 6A, Weymouth Street, Portland Place, W., immediately. THE THEORETICAL EXAMINATIONS will be held simultaneously in London, Manchester, Dublin, and Shrewsbury. THE VOCAL AND INSTRUMENTAL EXAMINATIONS will be held in London only.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. Fifth Session, 1878-79.—THIRD MEETING, MONDAY, January 6, 1879, at five o'clock, a Paper will be read by EBENEZER PROUT, Esq., B.A., "On the Growth of the Modern Orchestra during the past Century."

JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.

9, Torrington Square, W.C.

LONDON GREGORIAN CHORAL ASSOCIATION.—The first number of THE GREGORIAN QUARTERLY MAGAZINE, published by the Association, will appear on January 1, 1879. Price 3d. Communications to be addressed to Rev. H. W. Miller, Richmond, Surrey. Applications for Advertisement space to be made to Hollings and Brock, 22, Paternoster Row.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

READY, JANUARY 15.

CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING

BY THE

REV. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

PRIEST IN ORDINARY TO THE QUEEN, & MINOR CANON OF WESTMINSTER.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

PAPER BOARDS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EACH MONTH)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

198 pp. Demy 4to.

SINGING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER,

PROFESSOR OF SINGING AT THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

PAPER BOARDS, 5s.

PREFACE.

On inquiring into the causes of the generally admitted and deplored fact that the art of singing has for a long time past shown signs of deterioration, the following questions suggest themselves:—

Are good voices less numerous now than in former years?

Is there any dearth of scientific and practical treatises on the production and training of the voice?

Is there any lack of competent teachers?

I answer that there is no scarcity either of good voices, of excellent printed methods, or of thoroughly capable teachers.

Nevertheless, a highly cultivated and artistic singer is nowadays but rarely found.

What is the cause of this?

I affirm that the principal cause is found in a disposition to curtail the labour and lessen the time which perfected study absolutely demands.

While instrumental performers take it as a matter of course that they must laboriously practise for years in order to gain a complete command over the mechanical difficulties of their respective instruments, would-be singers seldom realise the fact that they must endure a training at least as long, careful, and patient in order that the human voice may be used with skill, judgment, and artistic effect.

To attain this result it is necessary that both professor and student should make up their minds to begin at the beginning, and thoroughly to master each of the difficulties which successively present themselves in a systematic course of study.

The simple, fundamental principles of the only true art of emitting and fixing the voice in singing are most difficult both to teach and to acquire; but they are vitally important, because to neglect them at the outset is necessarily to impair the beauty, purity, and resonance of the vocal tones.

These primary rules I shall endeavour to explain in concise and intelligible language, purposely avoiding the use of diagrams and of technical expressions which would require special scientific knowledge on the part of the reader, and be, moreover, incompatible with the modest aims and proportions of a primer.

All who are competent to teach the art of producing the voice must necessarily have an exact knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the vocal organs; but such knowledge is not indispensable to the vocalist. To those who may desire to study the scientific side of the subject more profoundly, I recommend a careful perusal of the "Anatomical Description of the Vocal Organs," by Dr. Louis Mandl, of Paris, a translation of which, by his courteous permission, will be found in the Appendix.

Here my object is simply to lay down a clearly defined system of practice, such as will help to overcome the mechanical difficulties of voice-production and management.

I shall address the student in the plain and practical style which long experience has taught me to adopt with my pupils, and I trust that the title of this little book will be sufficient to absolve me from the need of offering an apology for the simplicity of its language.

At the same time it must be distinctly understood that no written theories on singing can presume to take the place of oral tuition.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
JANUARY 1, 1879.

BEETHOVEN'S TENTH SYMPHONY.

By LUDWIG NOHL.

I.—THE TWIN-CHARACTER OF BEETHOVEN'S SYMPHONIES.

THE fable of the "fable" of a Tenth Symphony by Beethoven, as told in the Musikalisches Wochenblatt of 1875, has found its way beyond the immediate circle of readers of that journal. In attempting, therefore, to state the real facts of the case in a connected form, and founded upon authentic sources, I am animated not merely by a desire to expose the ignorance of such would-be biographical authorities, but, above all, by the conviction that, beyond the purely historical interest attaching to it, the subject itself is one of the greatest importance concerning the artistic and æsthetic development of Beethoven, and thus of artistic and intellectual life in general.

The first intimation of the existence of a Tenth Symphony by Beethoven was given by Schindler, his well-tried companion. It was about the time when, reduced to a condition of absolute material want by his last wearisome illness, the master, upon repeated application, had received the sum of a hundred pounds sterling from the London Philharmonic Society "on account of the forthcoming concert." In a letter dated March 24, 1827, and addressed to Moscheles, who was the chief promoter of the concert in question, undertaken in aid of the composer, Schindler writes: "During three days after the receipt of your letter he was greatly excited, and wanted again to see the sketches of the Tenth Symphony, about the design of which he spoke to me a good deal. He has now quite made up his mind to give it to the Philharmonic Society." This letter I discovered in 1864 at Mannheim amongst Schindler's valuable Beethoven papers (now in Bohemia). It was published by me in the following year, and I have subsequently given it a place in my "Musikalisches Skizzenbuch" (Munich, 1866; p. 282). In the same place may also be found a passage from Beethoven's letter to Moscheles, intended to accompany that of Schindler, and which runs thus: "Tell these worthy men that when God will once more have restored me to health I will endeavour to realise my feeling of gratitude also in works, and that therefore I leave to the Society the choice of what I am to write for them. An entirely sketched-out Symphony lies now in my desk" (Eine ganze skizzirte Symphonie liegt in meinem Pulte). These words, although forming part of the original manuscript as dictated by Beethoven, have afterwards been crossed out by Schindler, and are consequently not to be found in the letter actually sent. Nevertheless, their substantial accuracy is confirmed by the above-quoted remark on the part of Schindler, even though the words "entirely sketched out" should not, perhaps, be applied in too literal a sense. And here I insert the statement made by Karl Holz, who was for some years the confidential friend and companion at table of the composer, and who expressly declares that he is citing "Beethoven's own words," viz.: "I shall in future, after the manner of my grand-master Handel, content myself by writing one oratorio and one concerto only every year—provided I have completed my Tenth Symphony and my 'Requiem.'" This conversation dates from the year 1826, and we shall hear anon that Holz had moreover obtained some actual knowledge of the work itself. Here also I will quote a conversation, carried on in the well-known manner with the deaf composer on his sick bed by the friend of his youth, Gerhard von Breuning, in January or February, 1827, and published in the "Berliner Conversationshefte:" "I am better pleased with you to-day than ever before.—Are there then vocal parts in the Symphony?—An entirely new idea!" It is, in fact, a work conceived and matured many years previously, according to his decisive plan, with which we are here dealing, and which, indeed, embodied "an entirely new idea." The suppressed passage from the letter above referred to has, I should add, already been published in 1865 in my "Beethoven's Briefe" (Stuttgart: Cotta; p. 341). Thus the fact of an intended Tenth Symphony after the gigantic Ninth—which appears to us to-day as the keystone of Beethoven's monumental creations, being regarded by some indeed as the last of all symphonies, after which further development can only be hoped for in new forms—may be considered as historically established. It will be my endeavour now to show this idea of yet another symphony to have been the natural outgrowth of the composer's strivings, forming part, in fact, of his entire artistic development.

The publication in sets, of songs, motetts, or cantatas, was a time-honoured custom which doubtless originated with the exigencies of the music-cultivating public itself. Thus we find Philipp Emanuel Bach writing six symphonies at a stretch; while Dittersdorf produced in 1786 at Vienna, on one and the same occasion, no less than twelve; and if in the latter instance the composer's avowed object was "to illustrate a few of Ovid's 'Metamorphoses' in characteristic symphonies," we have, on the other hand, the example of Father Haydn, the true originator of the species, whose world-famed "Twelve London Symphonies" form again a complete series. Mozart, whose genius infused a deeply poetic and almost psychological element into the hitherto comparatively trifling Sonata form, highly susceptible as it was to further spiritual development, had already restricted himself, especially in his symphonies, as regards the mere numerical grouping, by concentrating his efforts into but few of such works. Nevertheless his three still universally admired Symphonies in E flat, G minor, and C, were all written in the year 1788 within the space of six weeks, and form, therefore, like his six quartetts, a separate set, albeit a set of three stars forming a most brilliant constellation.

A similarly traditional practice, and perhaps also an undefined artistic want, it was which led Beethoven to observe, even in his symphonic creations, the grouping of at least two and two, as though the soul of the creative artist, whilst under the influence of the inspirations of genius, required an equilibrium for its powerfully stimulated activity in the successive production of two works entirely dissimilar both in character and technical construction. Between the first and second of Beethoven's Symphonies indeed no such relationship can be traced; neither are they works grown, as it were, from out of the depth of the composer's individuality, the first especially being merely a confident trial of skill in an existing groove. Already, however, in his "Eroica" he produces the untraditional in this monumental art-form; and this work, as is well known, owes its origin to very concrete historical suggestions, being intended as a memorial to Napoleon I. Notwithstanding this fact, however, we are justified in looking upon the symphony which followed the "Eroica" as forming its pendant. Born as it were out of the latter, it supplies the ethos to the pathos of the supposed underlying poem. It may be urged that, as a matter of fact, this Fourth Symphony was only completed in 1806, or three years after the production of the "Eroica;" but who shall say at what period is to be placed the origin of its fundamental germs, or the mental disposition and ideal contemplation which called them into existence? On the other hand, it may with certainty be assumed that the mind of the composer, touched to the innermost and strained to an unusual degree by the giant effort which produced a great heroic poem, had been kept in a state of tension until it could find relief in the contemplation of the serene pictures of the Fourth Symphony—a result which indeed none of the numerous intermediate compositions of a different class could have brought forward. For it is the Symphony which, to a symphonic poet par excellence, such as Beethoven was, conveys the "juice which speedily inebriates." Thus he himself writes in the year 1810 to Bettina Brentano: "It (the symphony) is a wine which inspires us to new creations, and I am the Bacchus who for mortal men produces this glorious wine which intoxicates their minds. When, by and by, they have become sober again, they have fished up something here and there which they carry away with them on the dry land;" and we all know how the most concentrated of all music, the instrumental and, most of all, the symphonic, would (again using the master's own expression) "elicit sparks from his soul."

It is a fact worthy of notice that the principal "motive" in the C minor Symphony dates its origin from the time when indeed "fate was knocking at the door," when he would "seize fate in the jaws"—the period of his approaching deafness, between 1798-1800. The "motive" referred to, as well as the melody of the Adagio of the same symphony, appear previously amongst the sketches for the Six Quartetts (Op. 18) dating from the end of last century. The symphony of which they now form part was, however, not commenced until 1805, by which time the final elaboration of the Fourth no longer engaged his serious attention, while its actual completion was in the year 1807. Simultaneously with the latter the sixth or so-called "Pastoral Symphony" grew into existence; indeed it was originally intended to be the fifth in order, a circumstance which would seem to point to an anterior conception of the work. However that may be, it is at least certain that it was completed long before the actual elaboration of the C minor Symphony—namely, in the year 1802, a period in which the composer, tortured by illness and, above all, by the dawning consciousness of his being incurably deaf, had been subjected to the most terrible inward struggles and revolutions, in which, for the first time, he had to seek support outside himself. The message conveyed in the Pastoral Symphony is that of regained peace, the comforter of whose advent Beethoven, during that hard summer of 1802, had well-nigh despaired, thinking he should perish in this conflict with himself, and prevented from laying hands on himself only by his beloved art and the consciousness of the high mission he had yet to fulfil in it. It was in those days the master penned that touching document which, with reference to the death-contemplating period from which it emanated, has been called the "Heiligenstadt Testament," and the concluding words of which form the "programme" to the Pastoral Symphony. "Only once again, O Providence, vouchsafe me a pure day of joy; so long, alas! have I been a stranger to the intense emotions of a true happiness. When, oh, when, O Deity, in the temple of nature and of mankind, shall I again experience it?" he exclaims at the conclusion of these pathetic utterances. And if with painful emotion he adds "Never?—no, it would be too cruel!" we also gather from those "Reminiscences of Rural Life," which the above symphony was intended to illustrate, that at last Nature had become to him not merely the dumb witness of his anguish, but the ministering mother, the soothing comforter; and thus he himself expressly defines the character of the work in the words, "rather the expression of emotion than mere painting." The terrible battle with fate, during which, like Faust, he was ready to "lay the world in ruins," had been fought, and it had found its powerful representative in the Fifth Symphony, during the completion of which Beethoven indeed contemplated the composition of Goethe's immortal drama. (It will be sufficient to allude to the scene in "Faust," headed "In forest and cave," and commencing "Erhabner Geist, du gabst mir, gabst mir alles, warum ich bat," to point out the striking analogy with the then prevailing state of mind of the composer.) But after this all but self-consuming combat, and the consequent almost superhuman exultation, as expressed in the Finale, reaction claims its own, and the composer finds his individual self again in the contemplation of the infinity of creation. Thus, we have once more the ethos after the pathos, the repose after a powerful effort, the slackening of wings after a heavenward flight, and a descent upon the serene enjoyment of this world, where, in contiguity with his fellow-beings, he could see his own individuality reflected, where "the mysterious wonders of his own breast" could once more reveal themselves. The religious character imparted to the hymn-like finale of the Pastoral Symphony was the natural outcome of this sinking of the composer's individuality in the universal existence.

We now arrive at Op. 92 and 93, marked like the fifth (Op. 67) and sixth (Op. 68) as a twin pair, even to judge merely from outward appearances. And though the seventh be baptised "May 13, 1812," and the eighth "in the month of October, 1812," the hour of birth of the two offsprings is nevertheless the same; the interval of six months counts but as an hour, and not the conception and maturing, but the accident of their final elaboration it is which has determined the interval between their material existence. Their numerical order had, however, evidently been fixed from the first, seeing that in the original sketch-book (now in the possession of Russia) it is already clearly indicated.

The intimate relationship and mutually balancing character of the two works is too evident to require to be specially pointed out after the foregoing observations. May it suffice to invite a comparison of the Symphony in A with the "Eroica." Here, as there, it was the impetus given by outward experiences and events to which they owe their existence. The Symphony in A presents a picture of the manifold nationalities of Austria bestirring themselves to shake off the French yoke in the first German war of liberation of 1809, being indeed, as Richard Wagner, with the instinct of congeniality, aptly remarks, an "apotheosis of the dance," from the depiction of bodily movement and gesture, as a result of the inner emotions, to the march and the martial play of war. In the same manner the peculiar similarity and the almost parallel character of the Fourth and the Eighth Symphonies in rhythm and colouring will be easily discerned.

With these facts before us, it can hardly be a matter of wonder if in the summer of 1822 Beethoven made the following remark to the musical savant, Friedrich Rochlitz, ("Für Freunde der Tonkunst," vol. iii., p. 358): "I have for some time already been occupied with the conception of three other great works. These I must get rid of first; two great symphonies, each peculiar in itself, and both differing from the rest of my symphonies." The third work alluded to was the Oratorio "The Victory of the Cross," which was fated to remain for ever unwritten, although we shall be able to indicate at least its embryonic idea as retained by Beethoven. The symphonies were, of course, the ninth and the tenth, the former of which was completed in the following year. The commission for a new composition, presented by Rochlitz and declined by the master, pending the completion of these works, was the setting to music of Goethe's "Faust;" and we shall be able to trace anon the inner relationship existing between this, the greatest tragic poem of Germany, and the Ninth Symphony, while entering now upon the history of the origin of the last gigantic twin pair of Beethoven's symphonic creations.

(To be continued.)

THE LITERATURE OF NATIONAL MUSIC.

By Carl Engel.

(Continued from page 657.)

Instruments.

An acquaintance with the musical instruments of different nations is of great assistance in the study of national music, since the peculiar construction of the instruments enables us in many instances to ascertain with accuracy the characteristic order of intervals, modulations, embellishments, and other such distinctive features prevailing in the music of a nation.

A reliable and really instructive work, intended to give a survey of all the musical instruments in use in different parts of the world, has hitherto not been published. F. J. Fétis evidently appreciated the importance of such an investigation, to conjecture from the attention he has given to the subject in his "Résumé philosophique de l'Histoire de la Musique," which prefaces the first edition of his "Biographie universelle des Musiciens" (Paris, 1837), and which he has afterwards incorporated, with additions, in his "Histoire générale de la Musique" (Paris, 1869). Fétis is an intelligent and pleasant writer, and the facility with which he has compiled comprehensive dissertations is as admirable as is his industry. Considering the diversity of the subjects which he has discussed, it is not surprising that some of them should be treated by him rather superficially. At any rate this is the case with national music, which requires more persevering attention than his manifold pursuits permitted him to bestow upon it. His shortcomings are sometimes rather aggravating, since he is apt to express his opinion in a dictatorial manner on questions which have not been positively ascertained by more careful inquirers. To note an instance. In his "Résumé philosophique" he is quite sure that the fiddle-bow originated in Europe; and in his "Recherches historiques," prefacing his treatise on Antonius Stradiuarius, he is quite sure that it originated in Hindustan. There is nothing reprehensible in a searcher after truth exchanging one theory for another; but opinions which are merely conjectural should be expressed with diffidence: bold assertions which cannot be proved as being indisputable are not likely to satisfy earnest students.

The musical instruments of certain ancient nations have been more carefully investigated than those of most races which are our contemporaries; nor is this surprising, considering how important a part those nations played in the history of the world. The description and illustrations of the musical instruments of the ancient Egyptians, in the works by Lepsius, Rossellini, and Sir Gardner Wilkinson, have proved of much use in the study of musical history; for, although these Egyptologists possessed no musical knowledge, the carefulness with which they have sketched and described their discoveries renders their communications reliable and valuable to musicians.

No doubt, the taste of a writer who draws attention to a literary work of his own is questionable. There may, however, be instances in which this proceeding is justifiable. Thus "The Music of the Most Ancient Nations, particularly of the Assyrians, Egyptians, and Hebrews, with special reference to recent discoveries in Western Asia and Egypt" (London: J. Murray, 1864; 8vo) claims a passing notice, because it was the first work which contained a circumstantial account, with illustrations, of the interesting Assyrian musical instruments represented on the sculptures which were exhumed, about the middle of the present century, in Western Asia; and also because almost all subsequent writers on Assyrian music have drawn from that book, though not all have had the honesty to point out the source from which they copied their statements. The Assyrian instruments are particularly interesting, since they afford us a hint as to the construction of the Hebrew instruments, of which so much has been written by the commentators on the Bible, but of which, in truth, very little is known. If the exploring expeditions which are engaged in exhuming Hebrew relics in Palestine should succeed in bringing to light sculptures or paintings of musical instruments like those of the Assyrians and ancient Egyptians, our old treatises on Hebrew music will probably experience some curious rectifications.

As regards the musical instruments of the ancient Greeks and Romans, almost all our standard histories of the art of music contain reliable drawings of them copied from the original illustrations. Nevertheless, extravagant notions as to the characteristics of the Greek instruments are occasionally maintained by some of the numerous writers, dilettanti as well as professional musicians, who have occupied themselves with the subject. To notice an instance—the opinions of Friedrich von Drieberg, in his "Wörterbuch der griechischen Musik" (Berlin, 1835; 4to). This book, which deserves a place in any collection of curiosities in musical literature, contains illustrations of about forty ancient instruments, with explanations more startling than well-founded. The author, who was a chamberlain of the King of Prussia, does not trouble himself to prove his assertions; but he introduces his dictionary with the statement that the subject which he is going to treat has never been properly understood by musical historians, and that all who differ from him are dunces. He is quite sure that the Greeks had a tonal system and scales similar to our own, only more perfect; that they employed harmony as we do; and that their musical instruments were constructed in a high degree of perfection. The circumstance that we do not find any such ingeniously constructed instruments represented on the Greek monuments, he accounts for by the surmise that it was not the custom with the Greek artists to depict other of their instruments than the most primitive and simple ones, the invention of which was assigned to their gods. He gives a detailed description of the hydraulic and pneumatic organs, with diagrams showing their mechanism; and he is quite sure that the hydraulic organ had several stops as well as a keyboard. Nay, the Greeks had, he says, even stringed instruments with a keyboard; for, he argues, it is recorded that they had instruments mounted with forty strings, and how could they play upon any such instrument with so many strings if it was not provided with a keyboard? This example of reasoning of a prejudiced musical historian requires no comment, especially as the unfoundedness of his assertions must be evident to any one acquainted with the descriptions of the Greek instruments given in our standard works on the history of music by Martini, Burney, Forkel, Fétis, Ambros, &c.

As regards the musical instruments of our ancestors during the Middle Ages, representations of them, showing their construction and capabilities, have been published by the Abbot Gerbert ("De Cantu et Music sacra") and by M. de Coussemaker ("Annales archéologiques"), which are taken from paintings and sculptures, and may be relied upon. It must be borne in mind that the mediæval artists, in depicting a musical instrument in the hands of an angel or some figure of their imagination, not unfrequently adhered as little to nature as do artists in our time. However, with some slight experience, the musical historian has generally no difficulty in discerning the fanciful conceptions.

Turning to the literature on musical instruments of the post-mediæval centuries, we meet with a considerable number of works. The most important ones shall briefly be noticed. Only one of the earliest publications shall be described somewhat more circumstantially, since it may interest the reader to ascertain the plan and form of such an early production.

The book alluded to is written in German, and is entitled "Musica getutscht und ausgezogen durch Sebastianum Virdung" (Basel, 1511; 4to). S. Virdung, who was a priest living in Amberg, Bavaria, states in his dedication of the book to Bishop Wilhelm, in Strasburg, that the publication consists of extracts from a larger work, the printing of which he has been obliged to postpone on account of the great expense it involves. The larger work appears to have remained in manuscript, as nothing further is known about it. The present abridgment is written in the form of a dialogue. After the Dedication, and a Preface which consists chiefly of quotations from the Bible, referring to the employment of sacred music, the author gives a wood-engraving showing the meeting of two old friends, whose names are Sebastian and Andreas Silvanus. Now follows the instruction, given in dialogue, and commencing as follows:—

"Andreas. My dear Herr Bastian! Be thou welcome a thousand times.

"Sebastian. Be thanked, my dear friend.

"Andreas. And how art thou, my dear Bastian?

"Sebastian. Bless thee for the inquiry; I am still pretty well through the mercy of Heaven.

"Andreas. Tell me, dear friend, where hast thou been all the time?

"Sebastian. I have sought, experienced, and found that for a long time I went a wrong way.

"Andreas. What dost thou mean?

"Sebastian. I mean, as regards the beautiful, practical, and instrumental Musica.

"Andreas. I have been told that thou hast for a long while contemplated to produce something new and singular, but I do not know in what it consists. Therefore, if thou canst spare a little time, I pray thee to show and explain it to me.

"Sebastian. I am quite willing to oblige in this, and even in matters of much greater import, in as far as I can do it without disadvantage to myself.

"Andreas. Dear friend! I assure thee, in good faith, thou shalt not come to harm by this. Let me see.

"Sebastian. It requires much labour and examination; besides, thou dost not understand the German explanations so well as thou understandest Latin poetry. If thou likest to look over the pictures of the instruments, thou art welcome; but to read the whole, this would take thee too long a time.

"Andreas. My dear friend, allow then that I survey it briefly.

"Sebastian. Very well, take it and inspect it carefully.

"Andreas. My good man, thou hast many nice pictures in the book! What is thy object with them?"

After a few more of such introductory sentences, which, no doubt, the author thought flowing and elegant, Sebastian explains the woodcuts. They represent the following instruments:—

Clavicordium. The clavichord. Virdung says, "I believe that the clavicordium is the same instrument which Guido Aretinus called monocordum, on account of its having had originally but a single string. For a long time it had not more than thirty keys."

Uirginal. An oblong-square spinet; the English virginal.

Lyra. The hurdy-gurdy, also called lyra mendicorum.

Clavicymbalum. The harpsichord.

Clavicitherium. Of this instrument Virdung remarks: "It is just like the uirginal, except that its strings are made of sheep's gut; they are twanged by means of nails and quills. It has only been recently invented, and I have seen only one specimen."

Lauten. Lutes. He mentions four different kinds, mounted with nine, eleven, thirteen, and fourteen strings; and he describes the different parts of the lute, and its tablature.

Grosse Geige. The antiquated large fiddle.

Quintern. The antiquated quinterna, twanged with a quill.

Harpffen. Harps. He mentions three kinds, and says that they are usually made in a triangular shape; that the new ones have a greater number of strings than the old ones.

Psalterium. Two kinds, viz.: the triangular and the quadrangular.

Hackbrett. The dulcimer.

Kleine Geige. The antiquated small fiddle.

Trumscheit. The marine trumpet.

Schalmey (shalm), Bombardt, Schwegel, Zwergpfeiff, Flöten, Russpfeiff, Krummhorn, Sensenhorn, Zinken, Platerspiel, Sackpfeiff (bagpipe), Busaun (trombone), Feldtrummet (military trumpet), Clareta (small trumpet), Thurnerhorn, Orgel, Positive, Regale, Cymbals, Glocken (bells), Baucken (i.e., Pauken, or kettle-drums), Ampos vnd Hemmer (i.e., anvil and hammers). As regards the last-named instrument, the musical reader will probably remember that the sound of the anvil beaten by a blacksmith is said to have suggested to Pythagoras important discoveries in acoustics. However this may be, the anvil has certainly been employed as a musical instrument in several modern operas; for instance, in "Alcidor," by Spontini, and in "Rheingold," by Wagner. Nay, at the American "International Peace Jubilee" at Boston, in the year 1872, an "Anvil Chorus" was performed, with the rhythmical accompaniment of a hundred anvils, which were struck by a hundred Boston firemen.

Ottomarus Luscinius, a German priest, whose proper name was Nachtigall, published in the year 1536, at Strasburg, a little book in Latin, with illustrations of musical instruments, entitled "Musurgia seu Praxis Musicæ." A considerable portion of this work is merely a translation of passages from Virdung's "Musica getutscht und ausgezogen." Sir John Hawkins, in his "General History of Music" (London, 1776; vol. ii., p. 442), gives illustrations of musical instruments copied from the "Musurgia" of Luscinius.

Other noteworthy publications containing descriptions and illustrations of the musical instruments of our forefathers are:—

"Musica instrumentalis," by Martin Agricola (Wittemberg, 1529; sm. 8vo); "De Organographia," by Michael Prætorius (Wolfenbüttel, 1619; 4to);

"Harmonie universelle," by F. Marin Mersenne (Paris, 1636; folio); "Musurgia universalis," by Athanasius Kircher (Rome, 1650; folio, two vols.); "Gabinetto armonico pieno d'istromenti sonori," by Filippo Bonanni (Rome, 1722: 4to; second edition, with a French translation, in 1776); "Essai sur la Musique," by Laborde (Paris, 1780; 4to, four vols.); "Musica Mechanica Organoedi," by Jakob Adlung (Berlin, 1768; 4to). The last-named is one of the most instructive works on the subject in question; those by Bonanni and Laborde are the least useful.

The more modern treatises on musical instruments may be noticed here with but few words, as they are easily accessible. A treatise by Wilhelm Schneider, entitled "Historisch-technische Beschreibung der musikalischen Instrumente" (Neisse and Leipzig, 1834; 8vo), contains descriptions of instruments without illustrations. On the other hand, a compilation by Welcker von Gontershausen, entitled "Neu-eröffnetes Magazin musikalischer Tonwerkzeuge" (Frankfort, 1855; 8vo), contains many illustrations; however, the explanations are often unsatisfactory. In France, Le Dulcet, Comte de Pontécoulant, published in the year 1861, in Paris, a work in two volumes entitled "Organographie; essai sur la facture instrumentale," which is an enlarged edition of a former publication by the same author (Paris, 1857). It is well spoken of by F. J. Fétis; but it is already out of print. It hardly deserves the praise bestowed on it by Fétis. The chapter which most inquirers will probably find interesting is that which gives an account of the various inventions of sound-producing means for musical performances which have been patented in France down to the year 1861. The names of German inventors are often vexatiously misspelt, and the names originally given by the inventors to their productions are translated into French, which renders it almost impossible to ascertain the real names. The fine engravings of musical instruments in the planches belonging to the French encyclopædias of the eighteenth century ought to be known to the student.

Attention must also be drawn to the treatises on instrumentation, especially the work by Hector Berlioz, of which an English translation by Mary Cowden Clarke (London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1856; royal 8vo) deserves to be noticed; likewise "Instrumentation," by Ebenezer Prout (London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1878). The "Manuel général de Musique militaire," by Georges Kastner (Paris, 1848), contains numerous drawings of military instruments. There are other modern dissertations of this kind which it is unnecessary to point out. Friedrich Zamminer has written a useful work on musical instruments considered in their relations to the laws of acoustics, the German title of which is "Die Musik und die musikalischen Instrumente in ihrer Berziehung zu den Gesetzer der Akustik" (Giessen, 1855; 8vo). The book is illustrated with above a hundred woodcuts. The celebrated work on acoustics by H. Helmholtz, "Die Lehre von den Tonempfindungen," should of course not be unknown to the student. An English translation of this work, by A. J. Ellis, has been published in London.

Treatises on the history and manufacture of certain musical instruments in common use with European nations, and books of instruction for playing the instruments, are likewise noteworthy; however, it will suffice here to mention the fact, since the reader may be supposed to be acquainted with the most important books of this kind. Even a short account of all our own instruments in use at the present day would fill a volume. Hector Berlioz, in his "Treatise on Modern Instrumentation and Orchestration," notices about sixty, and this is not the half of the number extant, if we include the various instruments which have no place in the orchestra, not to speak of the innumerable new inventions employed in military bands. As regards the Hindus, Chinese, and several other Asiatic nations, at least fifty instruments can be assigned to each of them. On the other hand, there are nations which evidently possess not more than half a dozen. If ten only be taken as the average number of instruments for each nation or tribe, and 150 as the number of the nations or tribes which, as has been ascertained, possess instruments of their own, it will be seen that about 1,500 would require to be described in a survey of the musical instruments of all nations.

Fine illustrations of the instruments of the Arabs and the Chinese are given in the treatises by Villoteau and Amiot, which will presently come under notice; and illustrations of Japanese instruments are to be found in Siebold's celebrated work on Japan; but the work does not contain any explanations respecting the instruments. Moreover, the student of national music would do well to consult the published catalogues of the collections of musical instruments deposited in public museums. The latest edition of the "Descriptive Catalogue of the Musical Instruments in the South Kensington Museum" (London, 1874), describes 353 instruments, and is illustrated with 143 wood-engravings and six photographs. This edition, which is the second, is preceded by an essay on the history of musical instruments. The first edition appeared in the year 1870. In France an interesting descriptive catalogue of the instruments in the Musée du Conservatoire National de Musique has been compiled by Gustave Chouquet (Paris, 1875). This book unfortunately does not possess any illustrations, which is a drawback to those students who have not the opportunity of visiting the Museum and of inspecting the objects described in the book. Fine photographs of a selection of thirty-five specimens from the instruments belonging to the Liceo Comunale di Musica, in Bologna, were made about the year 1872, under the direction of Gaetano Gaspari, the curator of the Museum, and contain some literary explanation printed with them. There seems to be now a prospect that also in this branch of musical art, which has been so long neglected, some progress will be made; at all events, if report may be relied upon, there are now antiquarians in different European countries who have taken it earnestly in hand. G. Nottebohm is said to be occupied with the compilation of a descriptive catalogue of the instruments belonging to the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde (Society of Lovers of Music), in Vienna; Victor Mahillon is engaged in preparing a similar work for the Museum of the Belgian Conservatoire Royal de Musique at Brussels; Max Freiherr von Branca has made about 500 drawings of instruments deposited in the different Museums at Munich, which he intends to publish as illustrative of the history of instrumental music, with special regard to military bands; C. Södling, in Westervik, Sweden, has been for years occupied in writing a history of Scandinavian music, in which he purposes to give an account, with illustrations, of scarce Swedish and Norwegian instruments, which are sure to be unknown to most musicians; Alexander Krauss, of Florence, has recently formed a comprehensive collection of antiquated and scarce instruments, including Italian specimens of the violin family, obtained by him during his search in Italian towns, and he is engaged in preparing a descriptive catalogue of his acquisitions, which, no doubt, will prove a valuable guide to musical antiquarians. If I venture here to add that I have nearly finished the manuscript of a comprehensive work in which I have endeavoured to give an account of all the musical instruments in the world, as far as I have been able to become acquainted with them, and that the work is illustrated with about 800 drawings of instruments, most of which have hitherto not been mentioned in any musical publication, I run the risk of incurring the censure of some musicians as being actuated by a selfish motive. Reasonable readers will however understand that such a work, the accomplishment of which has required long-continued perseverance, must have been a labour of love and of disinterestedness, as far as personal advantage comes into question; and for such readers only the statement is intended.

(To be continued.)

THE GREAT COMPOSERS, SKETCHED BY THEMSELVES.

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. V.—SCHUMANN.

FOR the first time in the course of these papers I meet with a composer who was also a contributor to musical literature, and it may be expected that, dealing with Schumann, I shall not overlook his writings. But there is a difference, and, for my purpose, a whole world of difference, between what a man intends for the public eye and a private communication to a friend. I do not undervalue the musical criticisms, &c., of Schumann, nor do I pretend to say they are not, one and all, faithful expressions of genuine sentiments. But the letters are above suspicion. There we have the real man, not as he poses before the world, but as he wishes to appear in the eyes of his intimates. I shall therefore confine my remarks and quotations to the master's correspondence as I find it in a recently issued English edition of Wasielwski's biography.*

The series of letters published by Wasielwski is admittedly incomplete, owing in part to circumstances such as must always necessitate the keeping back of confidential communications while persons whom they concern are yet living; in other part to the fact that some of the master's friends, among them Stephen Heller, Henselt, and Liszt, did not trouble to preserve the epistles they received; and in other to the refusal of all co-operation with the biographer by Madame Clara Schumann. The volume, nevertheless, contains sufficient for the purpose now in view, which is not the indulgence of curiosity so much as the determining of character. The first letter was written from Leipzig, in 1828, when Schumann was eighteen years old. It is addressed to Gisbert Rosen, a young law-student, who had accompanied the future master, then also destined for the law, on a tour in Bavaria. Even here, on the threshold of inquiry, we get a clear view of Schumann's sentimentalism, fostered by reading Jean Paul, and his tendency to rhapsody and melancholy. One cannot with much ease fancy a boy of eighteen saying, "Perhaps even now you are sitting among the ruins of the old mountain castle (Heidelberg) smiling gaily and happily at the blossoms of June, while I stand amid the ruins of my blasted air-castles, and gaze, weeping, out into the black horizon of present and future." An English boy writing thus, and having nothing really to trouble his mind, would probably be presented with a box of liver pills. But this is not all. In the same letter Schumann mentions a visit of a few hours only to his native place, and adds: "I . . . seated myself . . . in the corner of the stage-coach and—wept bitterly, and thought of all that had been torn from my heart, and even now lay crushed before me, and mused on the lazy, Utopian life which I had led for weeks, and alas! still lead." Further on he speaks of a visit to Jean Paul's widow, at Bayreuth, and says: "If the whole world read Jean Paul, it would be decidedly better, but more unhappy. He has often reduced me to the verge of despair, but the rainbow of peace always floats softly above the tears, and the heart is wonderfully exalted and transfigured." High-flown language of this sort came naturally to this specimen of young morbid humanity. He even takes leave of his friend with a gush at which the boys of eighteen among my readers will be disposed to laugh outright: "May you be happy. Every angel be with you; and may the genius of joyful tears ever accompany you." But let it be said here, once for all, that this excessive sentimentalism was due to the influence upon Schumann's mind of a peculiar physical constitution. The fact has been vouched for by his medical attendant, who, after pointing out certain features disclosed by a post-mortem examination, stated: "These four points stand in close connection with his physical condition for many years. As a whole they indicate serious disease, which first took root in early youth, gradually increasing with the growth of the man, and not resulting in madness for a long time. . . . His organisation was such that his mental infirmity was stamped by intense melancholy, such as is rarely witnessed in similar cases. Instead of the strange gaiety, idle self-satisfaction, and shallow optimism which usually bless and delude the patients in such diseases, the innate fervour, peculiar reserve, and contemplative nature, which were his in health, became the key-note of his mental discord, changing to melancholy, depression, sad forebodings, secret delusions, depreciation of his claims and merits, refusal of the homage due to him, and final infection of his whole frame." In the light of these remarks, though we may be amused at Schumann's youthful outpourings, we cannot think of their predisposing cause without pity for one so early doomed to misery.

In a second letter to Rosen more of the young man's strange and most unyouthful views of life are found. Referring to his pursuits at Leipzig, Schumann said: "I have not yet become intimate in any family, and fly, I know not why, from miserable mankind; go out seldom, and am sometimes heartsick at the pettinesses and miseries of this selfish world. Ah! what would a world without men be? A boundless churchyard; a dreamless sleep of death; a flowerless, springless nature; a lifeless peep-show without a puppet. And yet what is this world of men? A vast cemetery, filled with faded dreams; a garden of cypresses and weeping willows; a dull peep-show with sobbing dolls. O God, that is it! Yes. Whether we shall meet again the gods alone know; but the world is not so large that men can be parted for ever, especially friends. The meeting is never so remote as the parting, and we will not weep. For Fate's giant fists may silence men's tongues, but not their hearts, which love the warmer and esteem the dearer for distance, because they regard each other as invisible, dead, or superterrestrial." After this rhapsody of disease the letter closes: "Farewell, beloved friend. May your life have no more clouds than are necessary for a fine sunset, and no more rain than is needed for a lunar rainbow. When you sit at evening among the castle ruins, and gaze enchantedly at the blossoming vale and starry heavens, forget me not, your absent friend, who is crushed and unhappy, and wish me all that I wish you from afar." A remarkable feature in these letters is the evidence they supply as to the ease with which Schumann passed from one extreme of feeling to another. His first impressions of Italy were, like Mendelssohn's, all bright and joyous, and he could write charmingly sportive letters to his family. But a reaction soon came. Addressing Rosen from Milan, after a short trip to Venice, he said: "For several weeks I have been (and am ever more and more so) so poor and so rich, so weak and so strong, so decrepit and so full of life, that I . . . To-day too I can hardly hold my pen; so in all brevity this. I was ill in Venice; it was a kind of sea-sickness, with vomiting, headache, &c.—a living death. I could not get rid of the cursed memory of the cypress-trees in Milan. . . . After short consideration I resolved to return to Milan. Alas! I repeat, I ought not to have travelled without you." By way of change from this prevailing despondency came a time when Schumann went to the other extreme. He had looked forward to a student residence in Heidelberg as to "a life of flowers," and his earlier letters from that place still exhale a paradisaic fragrance. To his guardian, Mr. Rudel, the young man rarely "gushed," but now he could write to him and say, "My life has lost none of the charms which fill every letter to you." We may not therefore set down as mere make-believe for a purpose the opening lines of the important epistle in which he first asked his mother's leave to abandon law and adopt music: "Good morning, mamma!" he begins, and proceeds as follows: "How can I describe to you my bliss at this moment? The alcohol burns and bubbles in the coffee-urn; the heaven is pure and golden enough to kiss; and the very spirit of dawn, clear and cool, breathes around. Besides all this your letter lies before me, in which is disclosed a treasure of sensibility, intellect, and virtue; my cigar is capital; . . . in short, the world is beautiful at times,—that is man, if he would always rise early. Sunshine and blue skies abound in my life here. . . ." Nothing is more characteristic of such an organisation as Schumann's than its tendency to rebound from the depths of distress to the height of happiness; and in the almost hysterical exordium just quoted we see the future master at the moment when reaction has become most intense. Another example of keen, even more than feminine, susceptibility is found in a letter to his friend Henrietta Voigt, written when studying music at Leipzig under Wieck. It may be premised that Schumann, upon whom female charms were not thrown away, had got his affections entangled with a Miss Ernestine von Fricken, and that Madame Voigt acted the friendly part of a go-between. In the letter referred to he says: "I was completely exhausted yesterday, and your note came. It soothed me like an angel's hand, that is, for a day and night; and this morning . . . every nerve is a tear. I wept like a child over Ernestine's words to . . . but when I read the other paper to you my strength gave way. Is it a weakness to confess it? 'Tis my Ernestine whom I love beyond measure; 'tis you, Henrietta, my beloved friend. You glorious creatures, what can I offer in return for your supreme favour? 'Tis said that those who love each other shall meet again in some other star, where they shall live and rule alone. Let us hold this lovely saying to be true. When I wander out at night I will choose a very mild one, and show it to you if I have an opportunity—perhaps to a fourth also." It would appear from this that Schumann's excited fancy anticipated a Mahommedan paradise, with houris and all complete. How deeply he was smitten by Ernestine's charms, and touched by Henrietta's friendship, is shown in another extract. Writing to the latter he exclaimed: "I turn poet when I think of you, as all my relations know; for you stand before me like a vision, now musing, now advising, seldom sulky, sometimes gloomy, oftener merry, ever loving and kind. Then Ernestine appears with her Madonna face, her childlike devotion, soft and bright as a heavenly eye, blue, piercing the clouds; then Ludwig embraces you, gentle in aspect, anguish and noble scorn in his face—the group is complete. I draw the veil." But Schumann's highest rhapsody, tinged nevertheless with melancholy, is found in a letter through which he announced to Madame Voigt the consent of Ernestine's parents. One can see a good deal of the man, after making allowance for the lover, in these lines: "The state of my mind is as ever fearful, I have a masterly gift for getting hold of unlucky ideas; it's the evil spirit which opposes my happiness, and divides it. I often carry this self-torture so far as to be a sin against my nature, for I am never content; I would fain be in another body or pass over long eternities . . . Ernestine wrote to me most blissfully. She asked her father, through her mother, and he gives her to me . . . Henrietta, he gives her to me. . . . Do you understand me? And yet this fearful state! as if I dreaded to accept this jewel because I knew my hands to be unworthy. Would you bid me name my anguish? Alas! I cannot. I think it is just anguish: I cannot express it otherwise. Alas! perhaps it is love and longing for Ernestine. I can bear it no longer, and have written, bidding her hope for a speedy meeting. But if you would feel true delight, think of two souls who have bestowed upon your soul their holiest emotions, and whose future bliss is inseparable from yours . . . I just looked up to heaven. The clock has struck five. White, fleecy clouds float above me. There is no light in your room, but in the background I discern a slender form, her head on her hand. I gaze at her with melancholy eyes, as she wonders whether she shall still retain what are generally considered most sacred—friendship and love. Gladly would I venture nearer, and humbly kiss her hand, but she turns away. Well, be ever mine, dear friend."

* Life and Letters of Robert Schumann, with List of his Published Works. By Von Wasielwski. Translated by A. L. Alger. London: William Reeves.

It is strange to find the sadness which here casts a shadow upon otherwise perfect bliss associated with so many of Schumann's happy moments. The young musician could not even acknowledge a Christmas gift from a relative without wandering into a minor key. He thus thanks a sister for remembering him at the festive season: "What have I done to deserve such love, my Theresa? I danced round the Christmas-tree like a child as I saw one thing after another. . . . How much this year may bring! I often feel anxious. To stand upon the heights of time and vision, to assist others, to struggle, to be independent—not to mention all the mental and secret relations—it often makes me feel faint and sick. Yet I receive so much love from mankind, that I can never hope to repay it. From you, too; ah! remain my friend. In the torturing headache which sometimes attacks me, I have none but you to shelter and support me." There is nothing more pitiful in the biography than these earliest symptoms of the disease which was eventually to strike him down, nor can one trace the working of the morbid fancies resulting therefrom without infinite compassion. I would fain attribute to this cause Schumann's behaviour at a particular crisis in his courtship of the lady (Clara Wieck) with whom he fell in love after separating from Ernestine. In March, 1836, as Wasielwski points out, "his relations with his future wife, at first constrained, were for some time interrupted. . . . Added to this Clara Wieck and her father made a concert-tour, which rendered their meeting even more difficult than before." Yet

Schumann appears to have created for himself a state of things very different, and actually wrote to a Mr. Kahlert, whom he had never seen, asking him to act as a sort of intermediary between two engaged and devoted lovers. Wasielwski is disposed to explain the circumstance as the result of a poet's imagination or as a lover's stratagem. But Schumann, although stratagem in love is regarded as venial, if not praiseworthy, would never have stooped to deliberate misrepresentation; and I doubt not that when he wrote the subjoined lines he believed the truth to be spoken: "Clara Wieck loves and is loved. You might easily discover it by her gentle, almost heavenly, look and mien. Pardon me if I omit for the present her lover's name. The happy pair met, saw, spoke, and became engaged without her father's knowledge. He has discovered it, would cut it down, forbids all intercourse on pain of death; but they have braved him a thousand times. The worst of it is that he has taken her on a journey. The last news came from Dresden. I do not know certainly, but think, and am almost sure, that they will spend a short time in Breslau. Wieck will of course visit you and invite you to come and hear Clara play. Now comes my most heartfelt prayer, that you will let me know all you can learn concerning Clara, her feelings and her life, and that you will guard what I confide to you as my most precious secret as such, and not mention this letter to the old man, to Clara, nor indeed to any one. . . . Now mark, it will be an easy thing to get into Clara's good graces and confidence, since she has heard of you before now from me (for I told my love everything), and that I corresponded with you. She will be glad to see you on this account." The reader will form his own opinion of this singular transaction; but it may be pointed out that at the very time Schumann was living upon an imaginary state of things he could write to his sister-in-law when awake to reality: "In the mortal anguish which often seizes me, I have no one but you. You seem to hold and protect me in your arms." From the date of the master's marriage (1840) the published letters contain but few outpourings of his inmost thought and feeling. Happy in his home-life and satisfied with the artistic progress he was able to make, Schumann seems to have been for a long time at peace. Now and then, however, we meet with indications of the old trouble. What a revelation of secret dread and most miserable foreboding do we see in the subjoined extract from a note addressed to Ferdinand Hiller (1849): "Your letter and all that you wrote increased my desire to go to Dusseldorf. . . One thing more; I looked in an old geography recently for remarks on Dusseldorf, and found mentioned, among other buildings there, three nunneries and a lunatic asylum. The first are all well enough, but the last is most disagreeable. I will tell you my feeling in regard to it. Several years ago, you may remember, we lived at Maxen. I discovered that the chief thing to be seen from my window was Sonnenstein (a refuge for the insane). The prospect became horrible to me; indeed it spoiled all my pleasure. So I thought the case may be the same in Dusseldorf. However, perhaps the book was wrong, and the establishment may be merely an ordinary hospital. I have to guard against all such melancholy impressions. You know very well that, if we musicians live on sunny heights, the misfortunes of life cut all the deeper when they rise before us in all their bare outlines; at least, it's so with me, having so lively an imagination." But the reason contained in this last sentence was not all. Not merely a general feeling for misfortune created this dread of seeing a lunatic asylum. The chief cause lay far deeper, and the words of the master enable us to see the dreadful spectre that haunted him through life. In 1851 the shadow on Schumann's path grew darker, and he wrote: "We are all tolerably well, except that I am the victim of occasional nervous attacks, which sometimes alarm me, especially a few days ago, when I fainted on hearing Radecke play the organ." Next the morbid and diseased mind conceived a violent sympathy for the doctrines of spiritualism as then illustrated by "table-rapping." Writing to Hiller (April, 1853) he said, "We tipped the table yesterday for the first time. Wonderful power! Just think! I asked for the first two measures of the C minor Symphony. It delayed longer than usual with the answer; at last it began, but rather slowly at first. When I said, 'But the time is faster, dear table,' it hastened to beat the true time. When I asked if it could give the number which I was thinking of, it gave it correctly as three. We are all filled with wonder." Again, he said: "We have repeated our experiments in magnetism; we seem surrounded with wonders." From this time, with but now and then a break, the clouds grew darker and darker, till in 1856 death hushed the perturbed spirit to rest in the lunatic asylum of Edenich.

How important it is to bear the full nature of this gifted but unhappy man in mind when striving to understand his music, none will need to be told. But the influence of the one upon the other cannot be traced now. It will appear in a clearer light when all the characteristics which these letters reveal have been set forth.

(To be continued.)

A MUSICAL UTOPIA.

By HENRY C. LUNN.

WHEN a man is universally known as a "dreamer" it is not supposed that anybody accuses him of sleeping away an undue portion of his time; the term is merely used to indicate that society regards him as an over-enthusiastic and unpractical person. Custom allows us to slumber for a certain number of hours out of every twenty-four, and during this temporary visionary existence we of course think and do strange things; but then it must be remembered that sleeping men are not responsible for their thoughts or actions; and nobody would ever think of lowering his opinion of a person because he made a great fool of himself in his dreams. But when positive sleep does not close our eyelids we must mind what we are about, for we are then ruled by our intellect; and if the exercise of that intellect impel us to conjure up visions which appear absurd to a large majority of our fellow-creatures, it is ten to one if we are not speedily brought to our better—or at least to our more worldly—senses by the admonitions of those prudent persons who have our best interests at heart. And yet, on behalf of these waking-dreamers, may it not be urged that human progress has mainly been effected by those who, instead of invoking blessings upon the happy present, have dared to look forward to a still happier future? Have not the "dreamers," in fact, set the "workers" in action? and is it not a truth that the "blissful" conditions under which men in one age lived are those very conditions to which in another age men look back with horror?

Having then, I hope satisfactorily, made out my case, I come forward on the present occasion avowedly as a "dreamer;" and if my "Musical Utopia" should embody the wishes of some of my fellow-visionaries, it must be acknowledged that—to reverse the usual axiom—"fiction" is stranger than "fact."

With the new year, methinks I read an announcement of the opening of two Opera-houses, one for the performance of lyrical works written by composers in the English language, and the other for the representation of foreign Operas, sung in the language to which the music was originally composed. In both these establishments—which are built in accordance with the best-known acoustical principles and perfectly ventilated—private boxes will be entirely abolished; but all the seats will be arm-chairs, handsomely cushioned and commodious. A scale of charges for these seats will be drawn up according to their position in the house, but every place will command a good view of the stage. As there will be no longer exclusive little nooks for the accommodation of those ladies and gentlemen who have been so long accustomed to hold an evening conversazione with their friends, silence during the music will be tacitly enforced by the rules of good taste; but, if necessary, an appeal to regularly appointed officials will be quite sufficient to ensure the comfort of the general audience. Presuming that all persons will come in suitable attire, there will be no restriction as to dress; it being now thoroughly understood that good music can be truly enjoyed by many people who care not to put on a white necktie or even a dress-coat. The matter will, however, be left entirely to the discretion of every member of the audience, and no person who comes in evening dress will therefore be turned away. The time elapsing between the acts of the Opera will be strictly limited to a period sufficient for resting the vocalists and setting the scenery; so that those persons who reside at a distance may not be compelled to leave during the latter part of the performance, to oblige others who can roll away in their carriages at any hour they please. In carrying out the design of the foreign Opera-house it is not proposed to give a death-blow to Italian Opera, but merely to the tyranny it has hitherto exercised in this country. No longer then will German, French, and even English Operas be translated into bad Italian, with vapid recitatives to connect the principal pieces, but the language to which the composer set his music will be held sacred; and if dialogue be a portion of the work, it will be delivered by those who can give the meaning and spirit of the words. For the first time music-lovers may rely upon hearing a genuine instead of a spurious work; and vocalists may in future safely court our favour under their real names, instead of masquerading before an audience with a mock Italian one, which fits them no better than the language in which they are condemned to sing.

I like the title, "National Concert Room," which is to be given to the new Hall now completed, and to be opened about the first of May. Concerts every evening, with a picked band, recognised vocalists, and a Conductor who has not to learn his duties before the public, were much wanted; and these "National Concerts" seem likely to successfully supply the deficiency. The programmes which are shadowed forth in the prospectus are really model ones. No more than two orchestral works—one being a full Symphony—will be given in an evening, and this rule, I am glad to find, is to be rigidly enforced. No scraps of compositions will ever be performed; and the vocalists engaged will have the pieces they are to sing chosen for them by a committee. Of course, "Royalty" songs will thus be excluded; and the public may therefore rely upon hearing works worthy of the talents of those who sing them. A moderate sum will be charged for admission to every part of the Hall, the doors will be closed during each movement of a work, and an elegantly-printed programme of the evening's performance will be handed to every person. There can be little doubt, I think, of the success of this enterprise.

The "Society for the Encouragement of Sacred Compositions" seems to be a development of some former Association, the objects of which were found to be scarcely in accordance with the times. Everybody will wish well to this excellent institution, for at its concerts, which commence in the early part of the year, not only will the best existing works of both native and foreign composers be presented, but commissions will be given to those who have earned a reputation to write expressly for the Society; and it is proposed that two new compositions shall be produced every season. As it has been decided, after careful consideration, that any composer who can write a sacred work probably understands how to score it, "no additional instrumentation" will ever be permitted in the compositions of those who have been enabled to avail themselves of the resources of modern orchestras. The choir and band will be evenly balanced, and the concerts of the Society placed under the conductorship of one who brings to his task earnestness of purpose, and reverence for the works selected for performance.

Pianoforte Recitals appear to be on the increase during the coming season; but in the announcements of these I am glad to notice a very evident desire for some reform in their management. In the first place the programmes are arranged so as to represent not only various composers, but the varied styles of each; for as no Shakespeare lover would desire to see "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" performed on the same evening, so it is presumed that a number of the most elaborate works of any composer would scarcely be acceptable to an audience at one sitting. "Playing from memory" being entirely abolished, the attention of the listener will not be drawn away from the composer to the executant, in order to check, with the printed notes, whether he makes a "slip," slurs notes which ought to be staccato, or plays notes staccato which ought to be slurred. The "marvellous powers" of the performer therefore will only be spoken of henceforth with reference to his artistic interpretation of the works chosen for recital; and can have no possible connection with his extraordinary memory, capacity for physical endurance, or mere resolute defiance of the readings of those great pianists who have preceded him.

The advertisements for organists, at a salary of £150 a year, with a probable increase after a certain stipulated term of service, show that those artists who have devoted the best part of their lives to fit themselves for this responsible office have at length a chance of ranking a little above the pew-opener; and it seems indeed probable that their opinions on musical matters may now be respected by the resident clerical authorities. The plan of appointing delegates who can sing to represent those members of the congregation who cannot, is, no doubt, a very wise one; and there can be little doubt that the choirs now being formed in the churches even of the small villages throughout England will be the means of helping on the cause of sacred music without causing a shadow of dissatisfaction; for as no person with a good voice will be excluded from joining the singers, who will be trained under an efficient Conductor, all, save the positively incompetent, may assist in the musical services.

It is curious to note how important effects arise from small causes. I hear from good authority that the appointment of official Inspectors of the musical department in private schools—the duties of whom commence with the present year—was mainly due to the fact of a pupil of one of these establishments, who went up for a College examination, replying to the question, "What is the meaning of $\frac{3}{4}$ time?" that it signified "Playing three with one hand and four with the other." Whether this little anecdote be true or not, it is a great satisfaction to think that in future music cannot be taught in schools as it has been. It appears that there are to be annual examinations of the pupils, not only in the practical, but the theoretical portion of the art; and no person will be recognised as a competent teacher who has not received a diploma. These diplomas for pianoforte teachers will be procurable by all who can prove, before a committee of professors, that they understand how to make others play, as well as to play themselves. For this purpose pieces will be given to them, and they will be required to show how they would teach them, and also in what manner they would explain and illustrate the varied touches required for the pianoforte. Singing masters will be examined on the art of producing the voice, and severely tested as to their power of cultivating a pure style of vocalisation, and especially of making their pupils sing their words with a clear and distinct articulation. The ignorance of parents and guardians therefore on the subject of music—upon which so many persons have hitherto flourished—will no longer act detrimentally to the progress of school-pupils; for the necessity of judging of their advancement will be taken out of their hands, and they may rest quite satisfied that those only who have no talent or application will be reported as hopeless.

Everybody who takes an interest in the recent movement for establishing the validity of those musical degrees so inseparably associated with the names of some professors that they have for years remained unquestioned, will be glad to hear that from the commencement of the present year it will be an indictable offence for any person to call himself Mus. Bac. or Mus. Doc. unless he also state whence he obtained his degree. As neither of these honourable distinctions is conferred by any foreign University, and a list of those who have taken recognised degrees in England is open to the perusal of all, there can be no doubt that persons duly privileged to place these titles after their names will be too glad to say where they were procured, and that those not so privileged will scarcely dare to brave the law. Bachelors and Doctors of Music have as much right to be protected from pretenders as those who have earned similar degrees in any other art or science; and it will be a real benefit to the profession if the public will help in this good work by exposing any person who intentionally commits what will henceforth be considered a crime.

Children make castles with sand by the side of the sea which they know must shortly reach their structures and sweep them for ever from their sight. So, on the first day of a new year, do I build up an ideal world of art, with the full consciousness that before the twelvemonth is out the tide of events will overwhelm my "Musical Utopia," and leave not a vestige in memory of my work. Yet reforms march rapidly onward; and I am sanguine enough to hope that, in spite of the adverse influences of opposition and apathy, my fireside dream may some day prove a reality.

THE active Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts, M. Barboux, does not allow the questions now pending as regards the lyric theatres of Paris to rest. All parties seem to feel that the business is a delicate one, and should be treated with great caution; nevertheless, one step has just been taken towards deciding the future of the Grand-Opéra, the Commission Supérieure des Théâtres having decided, by nineteen votes against five, to adopt what is called a constitutional régime. By this our neighbours mean the government of the Opéra through the agency of a director in council. There is to be no more managerial despotism; and M. Halanzier, if he continue in his present post, will find both his power and responsibility divided. But will the plan work? A great majority of the experts whom M. Barboux called to his aid evidently think so, and their opinion is deserving of all respect. On the other hand, intelligent observers like M. Camille Doucet argue against it strenuously; and we incline to think, taking a general view of the question, that they are right. An opera-house is about the last place for constitutional rule. There, where undivided authority and promptitude of action are specially required, the king should not only reign but govern; and we confess to by no means sanguine anticipations as regards the French experiment. That it will be watched with interest, goes without saying; and if successful it cannot fail to have a widespread influence upon the future of other continental lyric theatres. But while the reorganisation of the Opéra is going on, that of the Théâtre-Lyrique does not stand still. It will be remembered that M. Barboux proposed to the municipality a kind of joint subvention in order to revive this establishment. The building belongs to the City; and the Minister intimated that, if the City would waive its claim to a rental, the Government would assist the enterprise with an annual grant of 200,000 francs. To the credit of the "conscript fathers," be it said, they took up the proposal in a liberal spirit, and at once proceeded to formulate the terms upon which they would be willing to concur in it. Should those terms be accepted, Paris will have a third lyric theatre playing the répertoire of the Grand-Opéra as well as of the old Théâtre-Lyrique, the Grand-Opéra supplying the singers. The tariff of admission is to be agreed upon later; but no tickets are to be sold at the "libraries," and in no case is the fixed price to be increased. Moreover the municipality demands two gratuitous performances in each year. These conditions are now before the Commission Supérieure, and will probably be adopted with but slight change. We cannot but congratulate Paris upon the earnestness with which it is striving to emulate the most glorious times of French art. "The lyric art," truly says Le Ménestrel, "is one of the living forces of the French nation, and touches not only the glory and the interior interests of the country, but also the exterior, for our lyric works have taken the first place on the stages of the two worlds." Meanwhile we in England—but perhaps it is better to avoid a painfulcontrast.

M. REMENYI, the distinguished Hungarian violinist, is at present touring in America, and has of course been subjected to the peculiar American process known as "interviewing." On one of these occasions the talk ran on violins, and M. Remenyi surprised his interlocutor by declaring that "startling revelations will soon be made in the art of violin-making." We much regret that he declined to lift the veil hanging over his secret, only permitting himself to say that "there is at the present moment a man who will revive the lost art of violin-making," and hinting that Americans will be peculiarly happy when they know him. Just at present one naturally thinks of Professor Edison, who seems to discover everything; but speculation as to the coming Stradivarius must necessarily be unprofitable. It is more to the purpose to learn that M. Remenyi believes, as regards violin-making, in epidemics of genius. The Renaissance witnessed an epidemic of painting genius. From the advent of Haydn to the death of Schumann an epidemic of musical creative genius raged more or less fiercely. In like manner the age of Guarnerius and Stradivarius was one of epidemic, the years from 1700 to 1784 being those when the "glorious art of violin-making" reached its highest development. Since then there has been a steady decline, for which M. Remenyi accounts by a reference to the "limitation of human capacity." Men are not capable of remaining a long time in perfection, and, inevitably, having once reached it, fall away. Thus Lupot made splendid violins, "imitating Stradivarius in every respect—in shape, varnish, wood, and workmanship." He was a genius, according to M. Remenyi, but his instruments "are not to be compared with those of the two great masters of the first half of the century," who had a "special genius," like that of M. Remenyi's hero, for the advent of whom we shall wait so curiously. In prospect of his coming, the happy possessors of violins by Guarnerius or Stradivarius should not be in a hurry to sell, like a good many holders of gas shares in view of the electric light. They had better ascertain first what sort of a "revelation" it is that M. Remenyi has promised.

We have within our recollection an instance of an enthusiastic young musician who, it was said, could not by any possibility be kept away from his pianoforte. Of course it was presumed that he had dived deeply into the treasures of the art; but on being asked by the teacher he had engaged whose music he chiefly delighted in, he replied that at present he had confined his attention entirely to his own. Bearing this incident in mind, we are often inclined to wonder when notices penned by artists upon themselves are sent to us for insertion, whether the writers are recognised critics, or merely persons temporarily inspired by an intense admiration of their own performances. Sometimes—as in a recent instance—these communications are introduced by such a threatening preface as, "You please put in a notice of the following concert;" but generally they are inclosed with the usual compliments. Yet really, when we read in one of these self-made criticisms that the concert-giver played "in such a manner as to rank him amongst the most accomplished violinists of the day," and that another artist (bearing the family name of the bénéficiaire) "created quite a sensation, and is undoubtedly the greatest pianist we have"—to say nothing of the slur thrown upon the many pianoforte-players constantly heard in London—we cannot but think that, however just may be these remarks, it would have been better had the writer waited until their truth were endorsed by somebody else. Besides it must be remembered that our Country News is headed by the announcement that "we do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary." In case of inserting such criticisms as we have mentioned, however, it is clear that we should become responsible; for our readers would certainly not believe that we should print a man's opinion of himself unless we agreed with it; and as the fame of many of these artists has not yet reached the metropolis, it will be seen that we have no alternative, on receiving these communications, but to consign them at once to the custody of the waste-paper basket.

The lady who advertises to recommend "a Christian as an attendant on an invalid: wages £18, and everything found," is just the sort of person for whom Moody and Sankey's Hymns are written, and for whom, no doubt, the grand sacred music of the great composers has but little charm. It would be absurd to deny the magnitude of the class to which she belongs; but it cannot be too often said that the verses of the effusions we have alluded to bear about as much relation to true religion as the music does to true art, and that those who "sit under" preachers of the Moody and Sankey persuasion are merely patronising an entertainment given in a church instead of a concert-hall. The "American singing parson," who has recently been "drawing" large congregations at Nottingham, is evidently fully alive to the impossibility of attracting listeners by the legitimate exercise of his sacred calling; and at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington Causeway, at a meeting of the master and journeymen butchers, after a prayer had been offered up for Mr. Spurgeon's speedy recovery, a person who travels through the country preaching, singing, and playing, is stated to have, "both vocally and upon the cornet, cheerfully amused the audience in an earnest, religious manner." Now we can perfectly understand how an accomplished performer and singer can "cheerfully amuse" his listeners, and also how they can be impressed with the truths of divine precepts by an "earnest, religious manner," but we should scarcely like to trust ourselves to say what we think of the man who would attempt to produce both these effects at the same time and by the same means. There is a great deal too much of this cant in the present day, and a little plain speaking on the subject is much wanted. It is pleasant to read of master and journeymen butchers meeting together; but if they want to be "cheerfully amused" by singing and cornet-playing, let them honestly hire a room where they can enjoy themselves without the necessity of assuming that "earnest, religious manner" which they seem to think fits them for the atmosphere of a tabernacle.

An editor desirous of encouraging correspondence has sometimes very difficult questions to answer, and one of the most difficult, recently adressed to us, touches upon a matter of the utmost importance to the progress of art. A young student wishes us to tell him what to do under the following circumstances: He has been carefully educated in music, for which he has considerable aptitude and an intense love; he is an efficient pianist, and knows most of the classical works; but when he goes amongst his friends and plays what he has studied, he is requested to "give them something pretty," as they have no desire to be made miserable or to be sent to sleep. This, as we have already said, is an awkward matter to give advice upon. It is of course unfortunate for the student that he has not an artistic circle of acquaintances; but we should counsel him to make the best of it, and by all means rather to assert his own intellectual musical position than to suffer himself to be brought down to the level of theirs. We remember hearing of a very clever, but firm and resolute man who said that whenever he found that anything did not agree with him, he continued taking it until it did. Some such principle as this has guided the directors of the Monday Popular Concerts. At first, we can vouch from our own experience, many of the audience went to sleep; then they began to be a little ashamed of this, because so many of their friends kept awake; gradually they succeeded not only in keeping their eyes but their ears open; and, this point gained, victory was certain, for those who were not conquered were taken prisoners. Let our student profit by this example, and remembering that he has a mission rather to instruct than amuse, select such pieces for performance as will lead his audience by degrees to an appreciation of the best works. He will find that only two or three will listen at first; but if he persevere, and, above all, have patience to wait, he may rest satisfied that the rest will follow their example.

MANY of the newspapers have been making excellent capital out of the fact of Charles Peace, the burglar, practising, and showing great fondness for, music. That the art has spread so rapidly as to reach the burglars is a good sign; but the greatest enthusiast could scarcely believe that because a man loves music he should cease to break open houses; and that sacred compositions even should turn a man from his evil ways may well be doubted when we find that those who have been wholesale heart-breakers, instead of housebreakers, have devoted a large portion of their ill-gotten wealth to building churches. One journal says, "a love of music and even some skill in the art is not always accompanied by much literary taste or even intelligence." Surely no sane person would doubt the truth of this assertion. That many people with but little intelligence or literary taste find pleasure in music is a proof how universal is the love for the art, and indeed is the fact upon which a large number of pretenders trade. Few who, either from habit or inclination, listen to the highest musical compositions can really comprehend them; and we are convinced that the most fanatical worshipper of Shakespeare would not say that it shows the love of the farmers for the great dramatist when he sees announced for "Cattle Show week" the "sublime tragedy of 'Hamlet.'"

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY MUSICAL SOCIETY.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE managers of this Society act fully up to the maxim, Noblesse oblige. They know that among institutions of the kind, that which bears the name, and is, in some respects, representative of an ancient and illustrious University, must be foremost in public regard. No ordinary work can, in the nature of things, be expected of it. It must live for art; it must labour not only towards the highest refinement, but towards an extension of knowledge, and it must be above all suspicion of views which are not broadly liberal. Any Society so highly placed failing to do this is certain to be severely judged, but the Cambridge University musicians are not actuated simply by a wish to avoid censure. They might keep clear of blame, and accomplish much less. No; it is evident that in them we have men really devoted to the interests of art, and resolved to make up, as far as possible, for the shortcomings of others who, purveying music more or less in a business capacity, are constrained to adapt their wares to the market.

No better proof of the Society's enlightened zeal can be desired than its prompt action with regard to Handel's Cantata "Semele." In common with many other associations, it may often have desired to make the acquaintance of that work while, as yet, copies were difficult or almost impossible to obtain. But no sooner did Messrs. Novello and Co. add "Semele" to their octavo edition, thus bringing it, admirably edited by Mr. E. Prout, within easy reach, than its performance was undertaken. The Society felt a natural and proper ambition to be the first to revive Handel's noble music after its long sleep of more than a hundred years, and the wish was gratified. All honour to the University musicians for this. They have deserved well of music-lovers everywhere, and November 27, 1878, should be a red-letter day in the Society's calendar henceforth.

I need hardly say that the performance of "Semele" attracted attention far beyond the limits of the University. Many faces well-known throughout the musical world might have been seen in the afternoon trains to the banks of the Cam, and quite a little crowd of artists and connoisseurs returned by the "special" which the Society had so thoughtfully provided for its metropolitan visitors. Only real enthusiasm could have taken anybody out of London on that day. The weather was November at its worst. Darkness, dreariness, rain, mud, and fog had things their own way in town; nor did Cambridge prove to be one whit better as the Londoners rumbled in damp flys or omnibuses through the rain-washed and almost deserted streets. One found it hard to believe that the Society could muster an audience in such weather, and, no doubt, the attendance was to some extent adversely affected thereby. Nevertheless a goodly number of ladies and gentlemen, and a fair representation of gownsmen, gathered in the Guildhall, the flood of light from whose windows and doors made the otherwise dreary Market Place look cheerful, and actually attracted a few curious though sodden spectators. Inside all was bright and gay enough. The Society's audience is well-dressed and goodly to look upon, while the members themselves invariably make an appearance which many similar bodies, not quite so careful to please the eye, might imitate with advantage. As usual, the orchestra, "led" by Mr. T. Watson, was found to consist mainly of London artists, but a glance at the solo vocalists showed that the Society had drawn upon its own members, or, at any rate, from local sources; the only professionals being Miss de Harpe and Madame Patey. This seemed a bold experiment, but it was justified by results. The amateurs, if not up to professional mark, were adequate to their work in the sense that they set Handel's music fairly before the audience, and enabled a just estimate of its character and value to be formed. Mr. C. Villiers Stanford, the Society's hard-working Conductor, was in his place as a matter of course, and it must be said generally that adequate preparations had been made for discharging the responsibility undertaken. Perhaps I ought in strict justice to make a single exception from the scope of this remark. The performance had not progressed far before it was obvious that the orchestra needed further rehearsal. It played timidly and not always correctly, the result being a serious drawback to the pleasure of the evening. But it is hard to blame anybody in consequence. The Society's treasurer, I imagine, is not burdened with superfluous cash, and a thorough orchestral rehearsal of a strange work involves considerable expenditure. In this case probably the players travelled down to Cambridge in the morning, and went through the Cantata in the afternoon as well as the time at disposal permitted. If the Society could not afford a preparatory rehearsal in town, we may be sorry, but we cannot blame; censure not applying to those of whom it is truthfully said, "They have done what they could."

This is no place for a review of "Semele," nor indeed is it needful to add words to those which have already appeared in the MUSICAL TIMES on the subject. Amateurs well know the very brief history of the work; how it was an attempt on Handel's part to open up secular themes for treatment in the manner of Oratorio; how it was performed only six times during the master's life; how it was revived in 1762, and then laid on the shelf, there to remain for upwards of a century. They are not less acquainted with the fact that the book, altered from a libretto by Congreve, deals with a subject not the most dignified, though quite characteristic of the actors; and they are perfectly assured that the music as a whole may claim a place among Handel's finest productions. With reference to the story there can be no doubt that, if the characters in it were men and women of the present day, objections might fairly be raised on the score of taste. But as it deals with Olympians, the "far-removedness" which Wagner insists upon as a great merit in the "myth" has a decided influence, not to speak of the classical halo that surrounds the personages concerned. I need not enlarge upon this matter. Pace the master just named, in any musical drama the music stands first; and if that be good nobody cares to look very closely either at the story or the manner in which it is told. Regarded as a choral work, "Semele" has not the importance which belongs to most of Handel's sacred dramas, nor even to "Acis and Galatea." The choruses, ten in number, are for the most part briefly developed, but it must also be said of them that, as far as they go, they show us Handel at his best. I need only cite in proof, "Now, Love, that everlasting boy," "Bless the glad earth," and "Happy shall we be." The principal charm of "Semele," however, lies in its recitatives and airs. Some of the former, especially that in which Juno vows vengeance upon her rival, are simply magnificent illustrations of intense musical and declamatory expression; while all the latter, the mere show-songs excepted, are full of grace, or else made acceptable by the close union between music and words. "Semele" indeed is exceptionally strong in Handel's best airs, and to this fact the future which we trust awaits the Cantata will be largely indebted. But the main question decided at Cambridge on November 27, was this:—Is "Semele" worth keeping before the public? and none, so far as I could ascertain, disputed an affirmative reply.

Coming to the performance, let me first give hearty praise to the chorus for really able work done. The members knew their music well, and they sang it with unfailing success: taking up points with precision, and giving each chorus an unusual degree of dramatic expression. It has already been intimated that the amateur soloists were fairly equal to a heavy task, but now particular mention should be made of the Rev. L. Borissow (Jupiter), Mr. G. F. Cobb (Cadmus), Hon. S. Lyttelton (Somnus), and Mr. E. J. Bilton (Athamas). All these gentlemen fairly earned applause, while of Mr. Lyttelton it may safely be said that his singing more nearly approached professional excellence than that of any amateur I have heard for a long time. Miss de Harpe did considerable justice to the music of Semele and Iris, but the honours were carried off by Madame Patey, who has rarely, if ever, appeared to more advantage than in the part of Juno. Her denunciatory recitatives were given with splendid fire; and in that to which reference is made above she so excited the audience that applause went on and on as though it could not exhaust itself. On the whole, therefore, the performance was a success, and Mr. Villiers Stanford, who conducted with great care, may be congratulated accordingly. Apropos to this gentleman, I may add that when "additional accompaniments" to "Semele" were not forthcoming as expected, Mr. Stanford set to work and filled in the score for himself. Achieved in haste, the result may have claimed indulgence; but, as a matter of fact, there was little in it to call for mere toleration. The accompaniments were not obtrusive, and interfered as slightly as possible with the work as it originally stood. Let me conclude this report as I began it—by awarding to the Cambridge University Musical Society all the honour due to artistic enterprise.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

THE only event of special interest at this establishment has been the production of Weber's Opera "Oberon," after an interval of about fourteen years. Whatever may be the estimate of this work as originally performed at Covent Garden Theatre, with English dialogue, there can be little doubt that in an Italian version with recitatives—even allowing that those supplied by Sir Julius Benedict are really good of their kind—it will never prove attractive. Weber's charmingly melodious music must always make its effect, even with a general audience; but, not to dwell upon the utter absurdity of turning Planché's excellent verses into bad Italian, more especially perhaps observable in such well-known pieces as "Ocean, thou mighty monster," and "A lonely Arab maid," the most ardent admirers of the composer can scarcely sit through the long scenes which connect these pieces without a sense of weariness. With the exception of Madame Trebelli's Fatima, too, the cast of the Opera on the 7th ult. was not strong enough to redeem the defects which we believe to be inherent to the Opera in its present form. In many of the more impassioned portions—particularly in the Scena "Ocean"—Madame Pappenheim sang well, and received warm and well-merited applause; and had not Mdlle. Bauermeister taken the Mermaid's song too slowly, her rendering of it would have been highly satisfactory. But the great hit of the evening was made by Madame Trebelli, whose singing of "A lonely Arab maid" and "Oh, Araby" was simply perfect. Signor Gillandi was a mild Sir Huon, both vocally and histrionically; and the same may be said of Signor Carrion as Oberon, and Miss Purdy as Puck. Signor Mendioroz scarcely realised the intention of the composer in the part of Sherasmin; but he sang correctly, if somewhat jerkily, in the melodious and characteristic duet with Fatima, "On the banks of sweet Garonne," both singers being much applauded. The establishment closed on the 21st ult., after a brief season, which has most successfully solved the question as to whether there is a public to support Opera during the autumn months.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

THE second Concert of the eighth season, which took place on November 28, brought a very satisfactory performance of Haydn's ever-popular Oratorio "The Creation," the music of which reflects most faithfully the simple piety, the naïve contemplation, and the vivid imagination of its composer. It is owing to these special characteristics, and irrespective of the great technical beauties of the work, that we are able to derive from it novel sensations at every hearing; and indeed it is said of "Papa Haydn" himself that, when after an interval of some years he again heard his own masterpiece performed at a Viennese church, he was quite overcome with emotion, exclaiming, "O God, not I, but Thou art the author of all this!" Under Mr. Barnby's able guidance the admirably trained choir gave the choruses with great effect, a special feature having been, as usual, the rendering of that grand "hymn of praise" known as "The heavens are telling." The vocal solo portions were delivered by Madame Lemmens Sherrington, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Signor Brocolini, whose efforts were rewarded by frequent applause, of which a considerable share was bestowed upon the lady vocalist, who gave the Air "With verdure clad" with a purity of style and refined grace which could scarcely be surpassed. The orchestra was thoroughly efficient, and the accompaniments were played in a manner worthy of a noble work, Dr. Stainer giving due effect to the part assigned to the organ.

At the third Concert of the season, on the 12th ult., Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" were produced, with Madame Lemmens Sherrington, Miss de Fonblanque, Messrs. E. Lloyd and R. Hilton, as the soloists; a performance of the "Messiah" having been announced for the 26th ult.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

ROSSINI'S "biblical drama," "Mosè in Egitto," adapted to English audiences as an Oratorio, in which form the work had been revived by this Society in May last, was again produced at the second Concert of the present season on the 13th ult. in a manner which reflected great credit upon all concerned. We have already dwelt at some length upon the leading features, musical and historical, presented by this in many respects remarkable work on the occasion of its well-merited revival just referred to. It will suffice therefore to state now that the numerous vocal soli were for the greater part rendered by the same artists who had assisted at the previous performance, viz.: Madame Lemmens Sherrington, Miss Julia Elton, Mdlle. Enequist, Messrs. E. Lloyd, Cummings, Hilton, Bridson, and Santley, the latter gentleman successfully assuming on this occasion, for the first time, the part of Moses. Special effect was again produced by the splendid rendering of the duets, "Losing thee" (Madame Sherrington and Mr. Lloyd) and "O Fate" (Messrs. Lloyd and Bridson); by the Quintett, "O Thou who grief consolest," and the Quartett, "My heart sinks within me," the Conductor, in the exercise of a wise discretion, ignoring frequent enthusiastic demands for an encore which, if acceded to, would have retarded the dramatic progress of a work the proportions of which, considered as an Oratorio, are already sufficiently lengthy. Notwithstanding this latter circumstance, however, the interest manifested by a crowded audience never flagged for one moment, almost all the auditors remaining in their seats until the last—a phenomenon in our concert experience which may perhaps be partly explained by the fact that the beautiful "invocation" music, in which the "Oratorio" culminates, is at the same time the best-known and admired portion of the work. Regarding the origin of this stirring composition an interesting anecdote is told by a contemporary of Rossini (M. de Stendhal), who visited Naples at the time of the first production of "Mosè" in 1818. It appears that during the first and the succeeding performances the audience, in the final scene representing the Israelites crossing the Red Sea—a problem for the stage-manager almost impossible to solve satisfactorily—burst out into an irresistible fit of laughter, thus marring the otherwise complete success of the work. On the day preceding that on which the third representation was to take place the author of the libretto, Tortola, entered the composer's bed-room, where he was in the habit of receiving visitors. "Maestro, maestro," the poet exclaimed, "I have saved the third act," producing at the same time the manuscript of the famous prayer, and adding that he had written it all in an hour. "If," rejoined Rossini, glancing rapidly over the paper, "if it has taken you an hour to write this, I will set it to music in a quarter of that time." And proceeding at once to make good his assertion, amidst the hum of conversation on the part of those present, the music of the preghiera was completed in the short space of some ten minutes. It is needless to add that upon the subsequent repetition of "Mosè" at the Carlo Theatre the anticipated hilarity on the part of the audience, when the concluding scene was about to open, was, through the magic effect of the added "invocation," speedily converted into almost unbounded enthusiasm, and the success of the work was finally assured. Resuming our report of last month's performance we have merely to add that the massive choruses which abound in the score were given with admirable power and precision, and that the execution of the orchestral portions scarcely left anything to be desired. So great has been the success of this Oratorio in its English form that a repetition of it is announced for Saturday the 11th inst., this being the first instance of a morning concert given by the Society. The annual performance of the "Messiah," on Friday the 20th ult. was preceded by the Dead March in "Saul," as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Princess Alice.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

PROBABLY the most interesting performance yet given during the present season of Saturday Concerts was that of November 30, when Berlioz's Symphony "Harold en Italie" was brought forward for the first time at the Crystal Palace. It is but seldom that opportunities are afforded to our concert-goers of making acquaintance with the more important works of the talented French composer. In the first place they are of more than average difficulty, and require an exceptionally good performance to bring out their beauties; and besides this the music is so thoroughly original, both in style and in form, that the givers of concerts not unnaturally hesitate before offering to the public works which, excepting from curiosity, are but little likely to "draw." Fortunately Mr. Manns is able to disregard this latter consideration. Whatever he may think worthy of production at the Crystal Palace is at least certain of a respectful hearing. In the case of "Harold" the complete success of the work was beyond all question. The Symphony differs widely in its form from the accepted models; it is throughout "programme music," and a special character is given to it by the introduction of a solo viola as representing the personage of Harold himself. The four movements of which the work consists are entitled "Harold in the mountains—scenes of melancholy, happiness, and joy," "March of Pilgrims," "Serenade of the Peasant of the Abruzzi to his Mistress," and "Orgy of Brigands." Of these the first three deserve unqualified praise, the "March of Pilgrims" and the "Serenade," especially are full of the most charming effects both of melody and harmony. The final "Orgy of Brigands" is much less satisfactory, being wild, noisy, and on the whole uninteresting. The orchestration of the entire work is a perfect treat to musicians. Berlioz is well known as one of the most gifted of all writers for the orchestra; his combinations of tone are frequently perfectly new, and often of remarkable beauty. The performance of the Symphony under Mr. Manns was most admirable, and the solo viola part was played to perfection by Herr Straus. The remainder of the Concert included Brahms's "Song of Destiny," and Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm, the solo parts of which were sung by Mrs. Osgood and Messrs. Tower, Beckett, Thorndike, and D'Egville.

On the 7th ult., Raff's "Im Walde" Symphony (the third of eight which this prolific composer has published) was produced for the first time at these Concerts. On the Continent this work is generally considered Raff's masterpiece, and opinions in this country will probably be to the same effect. The Symphony is one of its composer's most characteristic works, showing both his strong and his weak points. Among the former must be named his flow of melody—not always, it may be admitted, of a highly original kind—his perfect mastery of form, and his rich and diversified instrumentation. The weak points of the work are an occasional tendency to vulgarity, and too great prolixity. In the finale of this Symphony (the score of which occupies 137 pages) this is especially noticeable. The first movement, though also very long, is so rich in beauties that the same impression of diffuseness is not felt. The slow movement and the scherzo are also excellent. The impression produced by the work, aided as it was by a splendid performance, was very favourable; and the Symphony will probably, as it deserves, be heard again. On the same afternoon Mdlle. Janotha, a pupil of Madame Schumann, made her first appearance at the Crystal Palace. She played Beethoven's Concerto in G, with Madame Schumann's cadenzas, in a manner which called forth the heartiest admiration, not only of the public but of the numerous connoisseurs present. The young pianist possesses not only excellent technique, but real musical feeling; and a more satisfactory rendering of Beethoven's work could not have been desired. The vocalists at this Concert were Madame Sherrington and Mr. Bridson; the latter, who had not before been heard at Sydenham, produced a very favourable impression.

The last Concert before Christmas was given on the 14th, when Beethoven's Choral Symphony was brought forward, the soloists being Miss Emma Thursby, Miss Redeker, and Messrs. E. Lloyd and Santley. It is needless to speak of so well-known a work; we will only add that the programme also included Benedict's clever Overture "Das Käthchen von Heilbronn," the "Dance of Nymphs and Reapers," from Sullivan's "Tempest," and vocal pieces by Ambroise Thomas, Handel, and Henschel.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

OWING to the customary adjournment for the Christmas festivities, only three of these Concerts were held during last month, comprising the evenings of the 2nd, 9th, and 16th ult., the posts of pianist and leading violinist being on each occasion admirably filled by two ladies, viz., Mdlle. Janotha and Madame Norman-Néruda. The programme of the first Concert referred to presented a novelty in the production, for the first time at this institution, of Spohr's Quartett in A major (Op. 93) for stringed instruments, which received an excellent interpretation on the part of the lady violinist just mentioned, and Messrs. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti. The Quartett belongs to a class, the composition of which Spohr had every inducement to cultivate, being in fact what may be styled a "virtuoso-quartett," in which the principal violin not merely leads but simply domineers over its companions. Thus the apparent object of the composer (himself a consummate master of the instrument), to afford an opportunity for the special display of virtuoso qualities in this and similar compositions, somewhat disturbs the unity which this classical art-form demands; and thus, despite their manifold beauties, their revival can only be an occasional one. Mdlle. Janotha initiated herself into the favour of the audience by an effective performance of Beethoven's "Thirty-two variations" on a theme in C minor, in which the gifted lady had an opportunity to prove the versatility of her talent as well as the grace and brilliancy of her executive skill. Being recalled twice, which among concert-frequenters signifies an encore, Mdlle. Janotha added Chopin's Mazurka in E minor to the solo performances of the evening. Brahms's Quartett in A major (Op. 26) concluded the programme. Mdlle. Redeker gave in her usual refined style two arias by Giordani and Stradella, as well as songs by Henschel and Jensen, Mr. Zerbini playing the pianoforte accompaniments.

The second Concert under notice opened with Beethoven's incomparable Quintett in C major (Op. 29), the second and last work of the kind which we owe to the genius of its composer; and the mere mention of which will suggest to the musical amateur a world of revealed beauty, of tender passion, and of fantastic humour, like the painting of a Titian to the art-student, or a Shakespearean drama to the literary enthusiast. Yet while masterpieces emanating from the "sister arts" just named are universally recognised by even the uninitiated, one cannot help regretting—albeit in the midst of a crowded and appreciative audience —that musical art in this country should still remain in a somewhat subordinate position; and that to a great majority among even the educated the title of a masterpiece of inspired genius like the Quintett in C major should fail to convey any meaning whatever. The Quintett was worthily rendered by Madame Norman-Néruda, Messrs. Ries, Zerbini, Schræurs, and Piatti, this having been the twenty-fourth occasion of its performance at these Concerts. Mdlle. Janotha, in her solo performance of Chopin's Scherzo in B minor, again proved herself an artist of considerable attainments, both technically and intellectually; her spirited execution of the work of the Polish tone-poet (who even in his Scherzos was terribly in earnest) having been deservedly encored. The lady-pianist was afterwards associated with Madame Norman-Néruda and Signor Piatti in Schumann's Trio in D minor, the execution of which, entrusted as it was to such excellent artists, left nothing to be desired. Miss de Fonblanque, who was the vocalist on this occasion, contributed materially to the enjoyment of the evening by singing an air, "Lento il piè," by Mozart, and Bennett's "May-dew," in each of which pieces her cultivated style and fine mezzo-soprano voice showed to great advantage. The Concert concluded with a second performance at the Popular Concerts of Bach's Sonata in E major for pianoforte and violin, in which the brilliant technique of Mdlle. Janotha and Madame Norman-Néruda combined to produce an excellent rendering of a work the real beauties of which can only be fully appreciated by careful individual study.

At the last Concert of the month Haydn's beautiful Quartett in C major (Op. 20) opened the performance, and was rendered by Madame Norman-Néruda, Messrs. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti with that perfect finish and precision to which these artists have long since accustomed us. Mdlle. Janotha and Signor Piatti gave an admirable reading of Rubinstein's Sonata in D major (Op. 18) for pianoforte and violoncello, the lady responding to a persistent encore by playing a valse by Leschitizki, in which her brilliant executive powers were displayed to the best advantage. The only instrumental solo performance announced in the programme was that of the Adagio from Spohr's Seventh Violin Concerto, with a pianoforte arrangement of the orchestral score, which was given by Madame Norman-Néruda with the true refinement and the complete mastery over the capabilities of her instrument in which that lady has but few rivals. The Concert concluded with Beethoven's Trio in E flat (Op. 70) for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, in the performance of which Mesdames Janotha, Norman-Néruda, and Signor Piatti took part. Miss Clara Merivale was the vocalist, and contributed an air by Handel and a song by Gounod to the numbers of an altogether very interesting programme. Mr. Zerbini was the Conductor. The Concerts will be resumed on the 6th inst.

MADAME VIARD-LOUIS' CONCERTS.

THE second Concert of the present season took place in St. James's Hall on the 17th ult., and, like the first, was remarkable for the abundance of its novelty. Like the first also it began with a familiar overture, Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas," which has not often been more splendidly executed than by Mr. Weist Hill's orchestra. It is when engaged upon music thoroughly known, like the work in question, that the full power of this fine band is displayed with startling force, and Madame Viard-Louis does well therefore to include some such in the programme. The first novelty was a Rondo Scherzino, styled "The Brooklet," by Mr. F. Corder, late Mendelssohn Scholar. It is one of five movements constituting an orchestral suite, and suggested by a holiday tour in the Black Forest. The sooner we hear the remaining four the better, since it is clear that Mr. Corder possesses a graceful fancy, the power of happy expression, and, for a young man, no ordinary skill in writing for an orchestra. We do not say that "The Brooklet" is distinguished by great originality. There has been too much water music composed for a new treatment of the theme to be very practicable. But putting originality aside, we find in the work the promise of a successful composer in an exacting branch of art. The audience apparently did the same, and were warm in their applause. Mozart's noble Pianoforte Concerto in D minor came next, Madame Viard-Louis taking the solo instrument, and discharging her task with great spirit, although suffering from the effect of an accident to her hand. Upon this work no comments need be made, but notice is due to the cadenzas written by Dr. G. A. Macfarren specially for the performance. Many other masters have furnished Mozart with cadenzas, but few have shown greater ingenuity than Dr. Macfarren, or more thoroughly recognised the fact that a cadenza should exhibit musicianly construction as well as furnish the player with material for tours de force. Following the Concerto, Boccherini's well-known Minuet for strings was delightfully played and encored; and then came the only orchestral Symphony written by Hermann Goetz, composer of "The Taming of the Shrew." This was given for the first time in England; indeed, the very existence of the work was probably unknown amongst us till a performance of the Opera at Drury Lane excited an interest in the composer's artistic remains. The Symphony is a remarkable production, full of earnest thought and musicianly treatment. Thus much was obvious to all at first hearing. But further acquaintance is necessary to a decided opinion of its claims. Goetz, though adhering generally to orthodox forms, still has a manner of his own; and we must be more familiar with the manner before we can be qualified to decide upon the matter. It seemed to us that the young master crowded his score unnecessarily at times, and somewhat obscured the course of his themes; but, taken for all in all, we regard the Symphony as one to be heard again and again till the greatness only suggested now shall have proved either a reality, as we anticipate, or a delusion. The performance was unusually good, and each movement evoked loud applause. The programme continued with a movement from Chopin, well played by a rising young pianist, Miss Bessie Richards; an Entr'acte and Ballet music from Cherubini's "Ali Baba," and Berlioz's own arrangement for orchestra alone of the March and Chorus in "Les Troyens." Madame Pappenheim being absent through illness, her place as vocalist was taken by Miss Clara Merivale, a young lady with a good mezzo-soprano voice and obviously well-cultivated artistic feeling. Miss Merivale gives promise of future success.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A STUDENTS' Orchestral Concert was given at St. James's Hall on the 19th ult. before a large audience. After the Dead March in "Saul"—performed as a tribute to the memory of the late Princess Alice—an Elegy in memory of Henry John Cockram, who was drowned in the recent disastrous collision on the Thames, composed by his fellow-student, Myles Birkett Foster, was given, and created a great impression, not only from the sad event which it commemorated, but from the intrinsic merit of the composition itself, which is in every respect highly creditable to the young pupil. The soprano solo was excellently sung by Miss Amy Aylward; and notwithstanding the solemn character of the work, the applause at the conclusion was warm and unanimous. Another student's composition was a Pianoforte Concerto, performed by the composer, Mr. R. Harvey Löhr, the first movement of which, especially, is excellently written; the "Notturno" and "Allegro vivace" also containing passages of so much interest as to elicit the most decisive marks of approbation. Mr. R. Addison's Introduction and Last Movement from a MS. Symphony may be also praised as an admirable specimen of pupil's workmanship, much of the instrumentation being evidently written with a commendable desire to escape from the conventional groove, and many of the ideas being extremely fresh and vigorous. A graceful and expressive song, "Devotion," by Mr. E. Ford (well sung by Mr. Sidney Tower), completed the selection of students' compositions, all of which afforded ample proof of the excellent teaching, as well as the talent of those who are under instruction, in the Institution. The pianoforte-playing was unusually good, Miss Alice Borton in Schumann's Concertstück in G, and Mr. Percy Stranders in Mendelssohn's Rondo Brillante in E flat, displaying not only digital dexterity, but true artistic feeling, and a quiet unobtrusive style quite refreshing in these "sensational" times. Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion"—the principal parts by Miss Amy Aylward, Miss Amy Gill, Mr. Sidney Tower, and Mr. Brereton—was rendered with much precision and effect; and vocal solos were also given by Mrs. Mudie-Bolingbroke, Miss Kate Brand, and Mr. Robert George. Mention too must be made of Mr. Charles Catchpole's Horn Solo, which was so well played as to evidence his right to the "Professors' Scholarship" which we perceive he holds. Mr. Walter Macfarren directed a highly efficient orchestra, the quality of which was successfully tested by the performance of Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas."

SPOHR'S "LAST JUDGMENT" AT ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

PERHAPS the most effective service it has been our lot to attend was that held in St. Paul's on Tuesday, the 10th ult., when the above-named work was performed; yet the choir was not augmented as is usual on these occasions, neither was there any orchestral band, but merely the ordinary Cathedral choir, with the organ for accompaniments. The service, from a religious point of view, was so exceedingly impressive that perhaps a short sketch of it may be not only interesting to some of our readers, but also useful. On entering the Cathedral each person was presented with a printed form of service, at the beginning of which was a number of suggestions for the proper observance of Advent. After the choir had entered the chancel, Psalms l. (Deus deorum) and cxxx. (De profundis) were sung by all kneeling, then after a few versicles, &c., and two collects, followed Spohr's "Last Judgment," a work singularly beautiful and appropriate for the Advent season. Though we feel it would be distinctly wrong to criticise a service of this kind, for a service it certainly was, we must be allowed to mention those numbers which apparently produced special impressions. Among the most prominent were the following—Quartett and chorus, "Yes, every tear," and "Lord God Almighty;" the duet, "Forsake me not;" chorus, "Destroyed is Babylon," and "Blest are the departed." We must also say that the gentlemen of the choir acquitted themselves with astonishing ability; for it is so seldom that we find soloists of such distinction enter into the spirit of chorus-singing with so much enthusiasm and care, that this instance deserves notice and commendation. Neither must the chorister boys be unnamed, all the nuances of expression being so delicately given as to prove that their work is one of love as well as duty. The bass music was divided between Messrs. De Lacy and Kempton, and Mr. A. Kenningham sang that allotted to the tenor voice. The soprano and contralto parts were taken by Masters Whittle, Banermann, and Tresilian; and last, but by no means least, the accompaniments were played by Dr. Stainer. Few of those present will easily forget his splendidly brilliant and well-judged rendering of the Symphony in C minor, which forms such a grand introduction to the second part of the Oratorio. Our feeling at the close of this performance was that the Cathedral authorities, as well as those who usually attend St. Paul's, might be not only satisfied but proud of both organ and organist. Then followed the Collect for Advent Sunday, and so ended a service which cannot but produce beneficial results on the large and to all appearance devout congregation.

THE melancholy death of Mr. Frederick Gye, for so many years lessee of the Royal Italian Opera-house, Covent Garden, has caused a deep feeling of regret in the musical world during the past month. Mr. Gye was shooting at Dytchley, with his host, Lord Dillon, Mr. Spencer Ponsonby Fane, and Sir Alfred Horsford, when by the accidental discharge of a gun, which he held for a friend whilst he mounted a wall, he received a severe wound in the side, from the effects of which, in spite of the best medical advice and assistance, he succumbed in a few days. In early life Mr. Gye took an active part in the management of Vauxhall Gardens, which became the property of his father and Mr. Hughes, by purchase, in 1821. He was also associated with the late M. Jullien in the direction of his "Promenade Concerts," at Covent Garden Theatre; but his operatic career brought him most prominently before the public, and this dates from the time when the leading artists of Mr. Delafield's company resolved, on the retirement of that gentleman, to carry on the Royal Italian Opera themselves, and Mr. Gye was appointed manager. The "republic" soon collapsed, and, in 1851, Mr. Gye took the entire responsibility upon himself, remaining in the difficult position he then assumed till the day of his death. His energy and resources underwent a severe trial in 1856, when, after Professor Anderson's bal masqué, Covent Garden Theatre was destroyed by fire. But Mr. Gye was fully equal to the emergency. Carrying on his operatic work temporarily at the Lyceum, he caused the present fine edifice to rise on the ruins of its predecessor. The new theatre was opened May 15, 1858, with a performance of "Les Huguenots," and then began a series of representations which soon made it famous all the world over. The deceased was in every respect fitted for the post he so long filled; and many with whom he was connected will severely feel his loss, not only as an operatic manager, but as an upright and honourable gentleman. The funeral, which took place at Norwood Cemetery, was attended by his sons, Mr. Percy Gye, Mr. Lionel Gye, and Captain Herbert Gye (his eldest son, Mr. Ernest Gye, not being able to return to England in time for the ceremony), and a large number of artists and others anxious to pay a last tribute to the memory of one whom they had so long known and respected.

ALTHOUGH we in England have not yet risen to the American dignity of a "piano war," yet the competition among makers is sufficiently close to ensure constant improvement, or attempt at improvement, in the quality of the "household instrument." Manufacturers of English pianos are beginning to feel the effects of the foreign competition which assails them at all points; M. Bord flooding the country with his cheap pianettes, while the great house of Steinway leaves no stone unturned in order to gain a footing for their mighty "Grands." So situated, native makers can do no other than put forth all their ingenuity and strength, and every such effort, in so far as it secures the supremacy of home productions, is a national good. We need scarcely remark that Messrs. Brinsmead and Sons have long been distinguished for attempts to improve the quality of the English piano, but they never, perhaps, approached nearer to perfection than in the instrument made for Mr. Ledger, of the Era, and recently shown to a number of persons eminent in the musical world. The "Grand" in question is of the largest size, and of a compass not less than seven and a half octaves, the lowest note being G, the highest C. Its peculiar merits are of various kinds. Thus the makers claim that its "sostenente sounding-board" is of extreme sensitiveness, and able to augment and prolong the tone in a measure beyond common. It is urged further that the casting of the iron framework in one piece gives special solidity to the structure, while the ingenious action invented by this firm, and known as the "perfect check repeater," not only secures an admirable touch, but gives peculiar facilities for the execution of rapid passages of repeated notes. But it is more interesting to observe that the strength of the framework and the exceptional dimensions of the instrument make possible a greatly increased length and thickness of string. The "pull" of the strings in Mr. Ledger's "Grand" is estimated at thirty tons—as much again as in ordinary pianos of the kind, and it need not be pointed out in what measure this is calculated to increase the tonal power. Moreover, an attempt has been made, as in the Steinway "Grands," to utilise the sections of the string beyond the bridges. Ordinarily, the wires are here deadened by listing, so that no inconvenience may arise from their vibrations. But Messrs. Brinsmead and Sons allow them to vibrate freely, having first, by means of an extra bridge, tuned them in octaves with the part of the string which receives the blow of the hammer. Thus sympathetic action is turned to account, and the power of the instrument magnified. Yet another novelty is a sostenuto pedal—differing materially from that of the Steinways—which enables the performer to keep the dampers lifted in connection with any given key or keys, without raising them, as the ordinary pedal does, from the whole. Not to enter into the merits of these devices, we may at once express an emphatic opinion as to the worth of the instrument. The Ledger "Grand" is a magnificent Psalm xc. 13.

Turn Thee again, O Lord.

ANTHEM FOR FOUR VOICES.

THOMAS ATTWOOD.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Larghetto.

SOPRANO. SEMI-CHORUS. p

Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, O

ALTO. SEMI-CHORUS. p

Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, O

TENOR. SEMI-CHORUS. p

Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, O

BASS. SEMI-CHORUS. p

Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, O

Larghetto.

ORGAN. ♩ = 69. p Diaps.

Lord, at . . the last, . . and be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy

Lord, at the last, be gra - cious un -

Lord, at the last, . . and be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - -

Lord, at the last, and be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - vants, un - to Thy ser - vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - vants.

- to Thy ser - - - - - vants, Thy ser - - vants.

- - - - vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - vants.

ser - - - - vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - vants.

VERSE.
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee,
VERSE.
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee,
VERSE.
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee,
VERSE.
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee a - gain, O
turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee a - gain, O turn Thee, turn, turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee a - gain, O turn Thee, turn Thee, turn Thee, O
Lord, at the last, and be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - -
Lord, at the last, and be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - -
Lord, at the last, and be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - -
Lord, at the last, un - to Thy ser - - -

- vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - - vants.
- vants, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - - vants.
- vants, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - - vants.
- vants, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - - vants.
Ped.
CHORUS.
pp
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, . . at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, O
CHORUS.
pp
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, O
CHORUS.
pp
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, turn Thee, turn Thee, O
CHORUS.
pp
Turn Thee a - gain, O Lord, at the last, O
pp
Lord, at the last, . . and be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy Lord, at the last, be gra - cious un -
Lord, at the last, . . and be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - - -
Lord, at the last, and be gra - cious un - - to Thy ser - vants, un - to Thy ser - vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - -

- to Thy ser - - - - - - vants, Thy ser - - - -
- - - - - - vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - - - ser - - - - - vants, be gra - cious, be gra - cious un - to Thy ser - -
A - - men,
- vants. A - - - - - - - men, A - -
- vants. A - - men, A - - - men, A - - men,
- vants. A - - men, A - - - men, A - - men,
- vants. A - - - - - - - - men, A - - -
Ped.
A - men,
- - - - - men, A - - - - - men, A - men. . . .
A - - men, A - men, A - men, A - - men.
A - - men, A - - - - men, A - men.
- - - - - men, A - men, A - men, A - - men.

A Folio Edition of this Anthem is also published by Novello, Ewer and Co., price 6d.; Single Vocal Parts, 6d.

From all that dwell below the skies.

CHORAL HYMN.

THOMAS ATTWOOD WALMISLEY, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Treble.
From all that dwell be - low the skies, Let the Cre - a - tor's
Alto.
From all that dwell be - low the skies, Let the Cre - a - tor's
Tenor (8ve. lower).
From all that dwell be - low the skies, Let the Cre - a - tor's
Bass.
From all that dwell be - low the skies, Let the Cre - a - tor's Organ.
♩ = 84.
*
praise a - rise, Let the Re - deem - er's Name be sung Thro'
praise a - rise, . . Let the Re - deem - er's Name be sung Thro' praise a - rise, . . Let the Re - deem - er's Name be sung Thro' praise a - rise, Let the Re - deem - er's
ev' - ry land, by ev' - ry tongue, Thro' ev' - ry land, by ev' - ry tongue, Thro'
ev' - ry land, by ev' - ry tongue, Thro' ev' - ry land, by ev' - ry tongue, Thro'
ev' - ry land by ev' - ry tongue, Thro' ev' - ry land, by ev' - ry tongue, Thro'
Name . . . by ev' - ry tongue, by ev' - ry tongue, Thro' cres - cen - do.
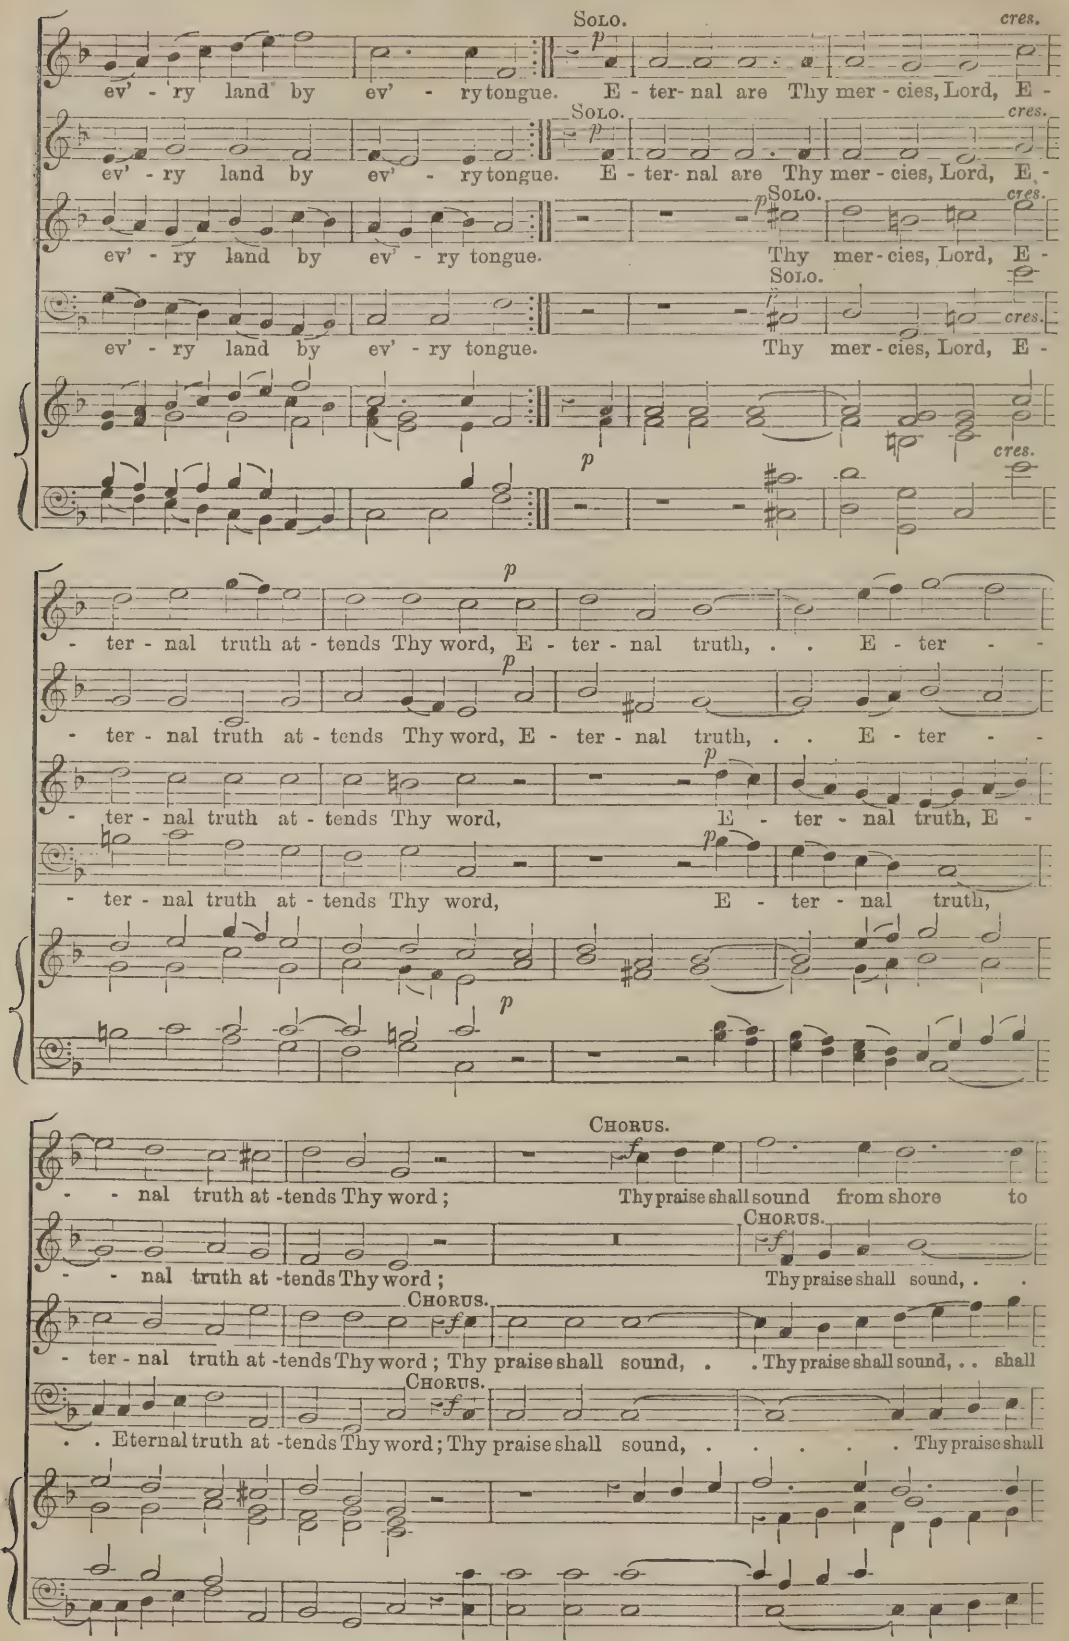
8ves.
8ves.

* May be sung first time as Quartett and repeated in Chorus.



Solo.
cres.
ev' - ry land by ev' - ry tongue. E - ter- nal are Thy mer - cies, Lord, E - Solo.
cres.
ev' - ry land by ev' - ry tongue. E - ter- nal are Thy mer - cies, Lord, E - Solo.
cres.
ev' - ry land by ev' - ry tongue. Thy mer - cies, Lord, E -
Solo.
cres.
ev' - ry land by ev' - ry tongue. Thy mer - cies, Lord, E -
cres.
- ter - nal truth at - tends Thy word, E - ter - nal truth, . . E - ter - -
- ter - nal truth at - tends Thy word, E - ter - nal truth, . . E - ter - -
- ter - nal truth at - tends Thy word, E - ter - nal truth, E -
- ter - nal truth at - tends Thy word, E - ter - nal truth,
Chorus.
- - nal truth at -tends Thy word; Thy praise shall sound from shore to Chorus.
- - nal truth at -tends Thy word; Thy praise shall sound, . .
Chorus.
- ter - nal truth at -tends Thy word; Thy praise shall sound, . . Thy praise shall sound, . . shall Chorus.
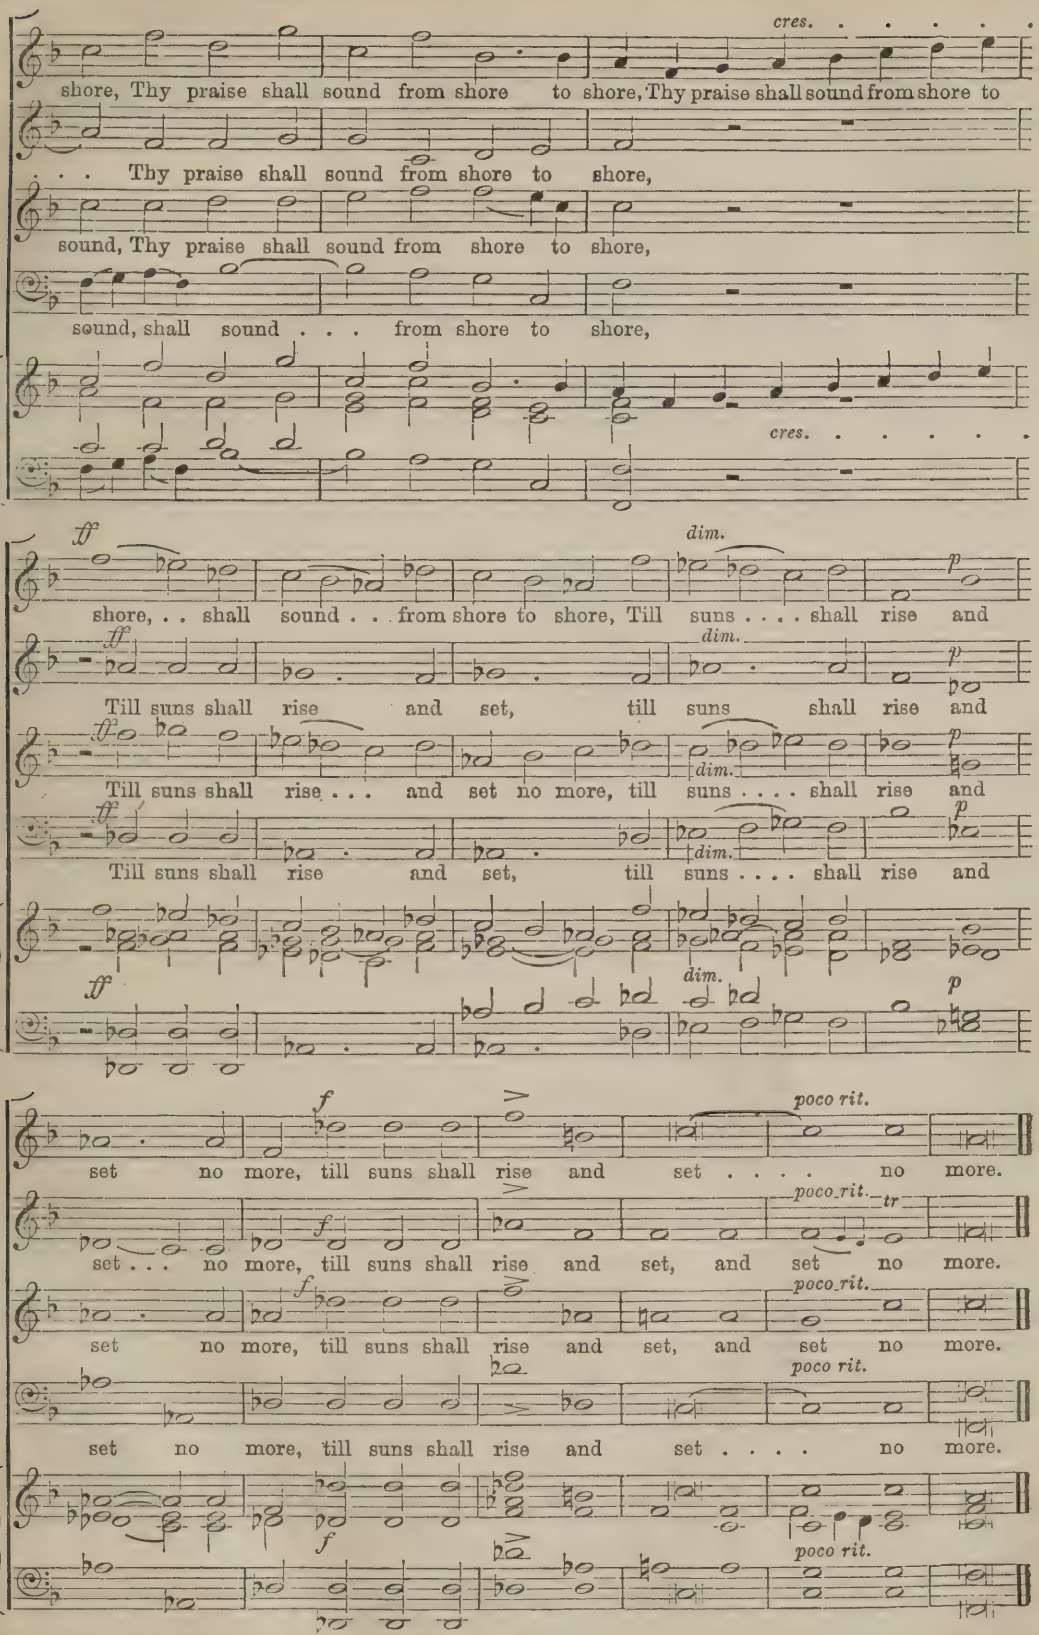
. . Eternal truth at -tends Thy word; Thy praise shall sound, ... Thy praise shall



cres.
shore, Thy praise shall sound from shore to shore, Thy praise shall sound from shore to . . . Thy praise shall sound from shore to shore, sound, Thy praise shall sound from shore to shore, sound, shall sound . . . from shore to shore,
cres.
ff
dim.
p shore, . . shall sound . . from shore to shore, Till suns . . . . shall rise and Till suns shall rise and set, till suns shall rise and Till suns shall rise . . . and set no more, till suns . . . . shall rise and Till suns shall rise and set, till suns . . . . shall rise and f poco rit.
tr
set no more, till suns shall rise and set . . . . no more.
set . . . no more, till suns shall rise and set, and set no more.
set no more, till suns shall rise and set, and set no more.
set no more, till suns shall rise and set . . . . no more.

Novello's Octavo Edition of Anthems.

VOLUME I.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

1. Come unto Him ... Gounod 2d.
2. Glory be to God ... S. S. Wesley 2d.
3. O love the Lord Arthur Sullivan 2d.
4. This is the day ... ...J. Turle 3d.
5. Blessing, glory ... B. Tours 4d.
6. I will wash my hands E. J. Hopkins 3d.
7. Judge me, O God ... Mendelssohn 4d.
8. O taste and see ...Sir John Goss 3d.
9. All ye who weep ... Gounod 3d.
10. My God, my God ... Mendelssohn 6d.
11. O day of penitence ... Gounod 6d.
12. O come near to the cross Do. 8d.
13. This is the day ... John Sewell 2d.
14. O praise the Lord ... J. Barnby 4d.
15. Blessed be the God... S. S. Wesley 4d.
16. O give thanks ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
17. O give thanks ... William Rea 3d.
18. Lift up your heads ... J. L. Hopkins 1½d.
19. Therefore with angels V. Novello 2d.
20. With angels and archangels ... ... J. L. Hopkins 3d.
21. Praise the Lord, O my soul ... ... Sir John Goss 6d.
22. Word of God incarnate Gounod 3d.
23. Why rage fiercely ... Mendelssohn 6d.
24. As the hart pants ... Gounod 3d.
25. O Lord, our Governour H. Gadsby 3d.
26. Wherewithal shall a young man ... Dr. H. Hiles 3d.

VOLUME II.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

27. I will magnify Thee Sir John Goss 3d.
28. Fear not, O land ...Sir John Goss 6d.
29. I will give thanks ... J. Barnby 4d.
30. All Thy works praise Thee, O Lord ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
31. The wilderness ...Sir John Goss 6d.
32. I was glad .. ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
33. In Thee, O Lord ... B. Tours 3d.
34. O God, Thou art worthy to be praised ... A. Sullivan 4d.
35. O God, have mercy J. Baptiste Calkin 4d.
36. Sing praises ... ... Gounod 6d.
37. Lead, kindly light ... Dr. Stainer 4d.
38. Remember now thy Creator ... ... Dr. Steggall 4d.
39. The Lord is loving ... Dr. Garrett 3d.
40. O praise God T. T. Trimnell 4d.
41. The Lord is King T. T. Trimnell 4d.
42. O give thanks ...Sir John Goss 3d.
43. Hosanna to the Son of David ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
44. The Lord is great ... W. T. Best 3d.
45. Prepare ye the way ... Dr. Garrett 3d.
46. Father of Heaven Dr. Walmisley 3d.
47. O how amiable ... J. Barnby 3d.
48. O how plentiful ...T. M. Pattison 3d.
49. God be merciful ... S. S. Wesley 3d.
50. The Lord is my light Dr. H. Hiles 3d.
51. O Saving Victim (No. 2) Gounod 4d.
52. Come, and let us return Sir J. Goss 3d.

VOLUME III.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

53. If we believe ... ...Sir John Goss 3d.
54. Lord, let me know mine end ... ...Sir John Goss 3d.
55. Ponder my words ...Henry Gadsby 3d.
56. Awake, awake, put on Dr. Stainer 6d.
57. What are these ... Dr. Stainer 3d.
58. If ye then be risen ... John Naylor 3d.
59. Praise the Lord ... S. S. Wesley 6d.
60. Rejoice greatly ...Henry Gadsby 3d.
61. In Christ dwelleth ... Sir John Goss 3d.
62. Thou, O God, art praised in Sion ... S. Wesley 3d.
63. Praise the Lord ... Dr. Garrett 6d.
64. Blessed is the man ...Sir John Goss 4d.
65. Behold now, praise ye the Lord ... ... J. B. Calkin 3d.
66. O give thanks ... S. S. Wesley 4d.
67. The Lord is my Shepherd (S.S.A.A.) ... F. Schubert 4d.
68. Stand up and bless ...Sir John Goss 4d.
69. Wherewithal shall a young man... ... Sir G. Elvey 6d.
70. Praise the Lord ... Sir G. Elvey 4d.
71. O praise the Lord ...Sir F. Ouseley 3d.
72. Thou wilt keep him ... Dr. Gauntlett 3d.
73. I will cry unto God ... Dr. Steggall 3d.
74. We have heard ... A. Sullivan 6d.
75. God said, Behold I have given you G. A. Macfarren 6d.
76. We give Thee thanks, O Lord ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
77. Blessed are they ... W. H. Monk 3d.
78. I will magnify Thee J. B. Calkin 4d.

VOLUME IV.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

79. I was glad ... ...C. E. Horsley 6d.
80. Psalm XLVII. (S.S.A.) E. H. Thorne 6d.
81. Plead Thou my cause Mozart 6d.
82. O clap your hands ... Dr. Stainer 6d.
83. The Lord is King ...Henry Gadsby 6d.
84. The Lord that made J. Turle 2d.
85. Say, where is he born / There shall a star } Mendelssohn 6d.
86. The morning stars ... Dr. Stainer 6d.
87. O that I knew where / I might find Him } Sir W. S. Bennett 3d.
88. Give ear, O ye heavens Dr. Armes 3d.
89. Behold I bring you ... J. Barnby 3d.
90. Distracted with care and anguish ... Haydn 4d.
91. It came even to pass Sir. F. Ouseley 4d.
92. Break forth into joy Ridley Prentice 6d.
93. These are they Rev. J. B. Dykes 1s.
94. Hear, O Lord ...Sir John Goss 2d.
95. Come and let us return Wm. Jackson 3d.
96. Lift up thine eyes ...Sir John Goss 6d.
97. Blow ye the trumpet Henry Leslie 3d.
98. Brother, thou art gone before us ... ...Sir John Goss 4d.

VOLUME V.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

99. Sing to the Lord ... Mendelssohn 8d.
100. I will sing a new song Dr. Armes 8d.
101. God is our Refuge ... Dr. H. Hiles 6d.
102. In sweet consent ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
103. Come unto Me ... Adapted from Bach by Dr. Stainer 3d.
104. How lovely are Thy dwellings fair ... Spohr 8d.
105. God came from Teman ... ... Dr. Steggall 4d.
106. O God the King of glory ... ... Henry Smart 4d.
107. Thou wilt keep him S. S. Wesley 3d.
108. Make me a clean heart J. Barnby 3d.
109. Ascribe unto the Lord S. S. Wesley 8d.
110. The Wilderness ... Do. 8d.
111. Holy, Holy, Holy ... Dr. Crotch 3d.
112. The Lord will comfort Zion ... ... Dr. H. Hiles 6d.
113. All they that trust in Thee, Lord ... Dr. Hiller 8d.

VOLUME VI.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

114. I was glad ... ... T. Attwood 4d.
115. Who is this that cometh Dr. Arnold 4d.
116. Call to remembrance J. Battishill 6d.
117. I have set God ... Dr. Blake 6d.
118. Bow Thine ear ... W. Bird 3d.
119. I was in the spirit .. Dr. Blow 6d.
120. I beheld, and lo ... Dr. Blow 6d.
121. By the waters ... Dr. Boyce 4d.
122. I have surely ... Dr Boyce 4d.
123. O where shall wisdom Dr. Boyce 6d.
124. O praise God ... Dr. Clarke 6d.
125. Praise the Lord ... J. Clark 3d.
126. I will love Thee, O Lord J. Clark 4d.
127. We will rejoice ... Dr. Croft 4d.
128. God is gone up ... Dr. Croft 4d.
129. Hosanna ... ... O. Gibbons 3d.
130. I have set God ... J. Goldwin 3d.
131. God is our hope ... Dr. Greene 6d.

VOLUME VII.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

132. Let God arise ... Dr. Greene 6d.
133. O clap your hands ... Dr. Greene 4d.
134. I will sing ... ... Dr. Greene 4d.
135. O worship the Lord Dr. Hayes 6d.
136. Great is the Lord ... Dr. Hayes 4d.
137. Praise the Lord ... Dr. Hayes 4d.
138. Hear, O heavens ... P. Humphreys 3d.
139. Hear, O Lord ... C. King 2d.
140. The souls of the righteous ... ... Dr. Nares 3d.
141. O God, Thou art my God H. Purcell 3d.
142. O sing unto the Lord H. Purcell 6d.
143. Be merciful ... ... H. Purcell 6d.
144. O give thanks ... H. Purcell 6d.
145. Rejoice in the Lord H. Purcell 3d.
146. Hear my prayer ... C. Stroud 4d.
147. Ascribe unto the Lord J. Travers 6d.
148. In Thee, O Lord ... J. Weldon 3d.
149. Awake, awake ... M. Wise 4d.
150. Awake up, my glory M. Wise 3d.
151. Prepare ye the way M. Wise 3d.

VOLUME VIII.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

152. The Lord is my shepherd J. Shaw 3d.
153. I will magnify Thee J. Shaw 3d.
154. I will mention ... A. Sullivan 6d.
155. The righteous shall flourish ... ... J. B. Calkin 4d.
156. I will give thanks ... E. J. Hopkins 6d.
157. They that go down... T. Attwood 4d.
158. O ye that love the Lord ... ... Sir G. Elvey 4d.
159. Praise God in His holiness ... ... B. Tours 3d.
160. Unto Thee have I cried ... ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
161. This is the day ... S. C. Cooke 3d.
162. Hear, O Lord ...Sir F. Ouseley 4d.
163. The Lord hath done great things ... Henry Smart 4d.
164. Rejoice in the Lord. F. R. Statham 4d.
165. Lord, how are they increased ... Hamilton Clarke 6d.
166. O pray for the peace E. H. Thorne 4d.
167. Sing to the Lord ... Henry Smart 1s.
168. I desired wisdom ... Dr. Stainer 6d.
169. Sing praises to the Lord Dr. Croft 4d.
170. Save, Lord, and hear us Dr. Hayes 6d.

VOLUME IX.—Cloth, gilt edges, 7s.

171. I saw the Lord ... Dr. Stainer 6d.
172. Praise the Lord Sir Julius Benedict 8d.
173. Happy is the man ... E. Prout 8d.
174. The righteous live Dr. Stainer 4d.
175. While the earth remaineth ... Dr. C. S. Heap 4d.
176. Out of the deep ... Dr. J. Naylor 4d.
177. The glory of the Lord Sir John Goss 6d.
178. O praise the Lord of heaven ... ... Sir John Goss 6d.
179. King all glorious ... J. Barnby 6d.
180. It is a good thing ... J. Barnby 6d.
181. Whoso dwelleth ... G. C. Martin 4d.
182. Blessed are they ... Arthur Page 3d.
183. Blessed be the Lord Dr. C. S. Heap 6d.
184. O Lord, look down... Battishill 3d.
185. Sing a song of praise Dr. Stainer 3d.
186. Wash me throughly S. S Wesley 3d.
187. Great and marvellous E. G. Monk 3d.

VOLUME X.

188. O God, Thou hast cast us out Purcell 4d.
189. Seek ye the Lord Dr. J. V. Roberts 3d.
190. My soul is weary ... Dr. Beckwith 4d.
191. Thou visitest the earth ... W. H. Callcott 2d.
192. I will sing ... H. W. Wareing 3d.
193. The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away A. C. Mackenzie 2d.
194. The blessing of the Lord ,, ,, 3d.
195. I will lay me down H. Gadsby 2d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET (E.C.)
BOSTON, NEW YORK, AND PHILADELPHIA: DITSON & CO.

example of English workmanship, full and brilliant in tone, capable of great expression, and having a touch which is a perfect luxury to the performer. With such a pianoforte, to say nothing of masterpieces from other makers, we ought to be able to hold our own against any kind of foreign competition; and in so far as the fact has been demonstrated by them, Messrs. Brinsmead and Sons have earned general approval.

AT the meeting held on the 26th of November at the Owens College, Manchester, with the object of establishing a Manchester branch of the "Lancashire Association for the Cultivation of Music among all," the Dean of Manchester (the Very Rev. B. M. Cowie) presided; and there were also present, the Earl of Wilton, Sir Henry Cole, Dr. Greenwood (Principal of the Owens College), and several others interested in the subject. Sir Henry Cole moved:—

That this meeting approves of the preliminary steps which have been taken to establish a Lancashire Association for promoting music as an art especially useful for the general culture and recreation of all classes, and resolves that those who have already joined the Association be formed into its committee, with power to add to their number, and appoint an executive committee to frame rules and do what is necessary.

This resolution was seconded by the Earl of Wilton, and carried. The Rev. Dr. Burton proposed:—

That as soon as practicable, and when the time is favourable, a School of Music be established in Manchester, where teachers may be trained for giving instruction in the public elementary schools; and that in the meantime ten scholarships shall be awarded by public competition, to be held by the music-classes already existing in the city.

Mr. W. H. J. Traice seconded this resolution, which was passed. On the motion of Dr. Greenwood, seconded by the Rev. E. P. Anderson, it was also resolved:—

That a deputation wait upon the Corporation and request that, like free libraries, public parks, and museums, music may be promoted by the Corporation, as most desirable for the general culture and recreation of the people of the city of Manchester and its suburbs."

The proceedings were concluded with the passing of a vote of thanks to the Chairman for presiding.

THE Highbury Philharmonic Society gave its first Concert on the 16th ult., at the Highbury Athenæum. This newly founded institution may be said to be still in its infancy; its first meeting having been held as recently as last October. It differs from many suburban Societies in the fact that, besides a large choir of some 150 voices, it has a nearly complete amateur orchestra, numbering between forty and fifty performers. The programme of the first concert was well selected; the principal works given being Romberg's Cantata "The Transient and the Eternal," Schumann's "Gipsy Life," Gade's "Spring's Message," Handel's "Haste thee, Nymph," and Prout's "Hail to the Chief." There were unaccompanied part-songs by E. H. Thorne and Dr. Bridge, the Conductor of the Society. The solo music was given by Miss Thornthwaite, Mrs. Schneegans, Mrs. Bradshawe McKay, and Messrs. Edward Dalzell and E. J. Bell. The instrumental selections comprised the Minuet from Mozart's Symphony in E flat, a portion of the Ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde," and the Barcarolle from Bennett's Fourth Piano Concerto, the solo part of which was excellently played by Mrs. Birch, the pianist to the Society. The chorus-singing was of great promise, the attack being very good. The orchestral playing was less satisfactory; but an amateur orchestra should not in fairness be too severely criticised. Dr. Bridge showed himself an excellent Conductor, and may be fairly congratulated on the success of the Society's first public performance.

A MUSICAL Service was held at Eton College on Saturday the 7th ult., at which Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice were present. Their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Lord Bridport, Lady Ely, and Miss Bauer, left Windsor Castle shortly after four o'clock, and drove to the college quadrangle, where they were received by the Rev. C. O. Goodford, the Provost, and conducted to the Fellows' stalls in the chapel, which was filled with a large congregation. The service commenced at half-past four, and was intoned by the Rev. F. Vidal. The anthem was Mozart's "Requiem Mass," which was sung by the united choirs of St. George's and Eton College Chapels and the members of the School Musical Society, accompanied by organ and instrumental music, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Barnby, the Precentor. Their Royal Highnesses returned at the close of the service to Windsor Castle. Dr. Hornby, the Head Master, and most of the school authorities were present.

AT the opening Concert for the present season of the Brixton Choral Society, on November 27, Dr. Stainer's Cantata "The Daughter of Jairus" and Haydn's First Mass were performed, under the able conductorship of Mr. W. Lemare. Of the Cantata, when produced at the late Worcester Festival, we spoke at length; and the favourable impression then formed we are certain will be deepened at every succeeding representation. The solo parts were most satisfactorily given by Madame Worrell-Duval, Mr. Kenningham and Mr. Tinney, and the whole of the choruses were effectively sung throughout. The Mass was also efficiently rendered, and the concert was in every respect worthy of the increasing reputation of the Society. Dr. Stainer presided at the organ at the performance of his own work, and Mr. John Harrison during Haydn's First Mass.

THE Mendelssohn Scholarship, founded in honour of Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy, for the education of musical students of both sexes, is now vacant; and candidates who are single, and between the ages of fourteen and twenty-four, natives of, or domiciled in, Great Britain or Ireland, are invited to apply in writing to the Secretary on or before the 18th inst. In proof of what good has already resulted from this Scholarship, we may mention that Dr. Sullivan was the first and Mr. Shakespeare the second elected; the third, Mr. Corder, who has just completed his term, having given decisive proofs of his powers by some songs of rare merit, which will be shortly published, and also by the composition of an Opera for which he has himself written the libretto.

THE members of Mr. George Wells's Choir gave a performance of his Cantata, "Peace and War," at St. John's School, Hoxton, on Tuesday the 10th ult. The choruses were well sung, especially the "Lamentation Chorus of Women," the unaccompanied chorale, "The Battle Prayer," and the "Battle Chorus" (trumpet obbligato, Mr. Jackson). The solos were all rendered by members of the choir. Mrs. Cox received an encore for "'Tis sweet to stroll" (flute obbligato, Mr. Phillips), and Mr. Seymour for "Thoughts of home." Mr. B. D. Pope sang the bass solos with spirit and effect, and was warmly received. The second part was miscellaneous. Miss Rosa Henman was the pianist, and Mr. A. H. Mathews presided at the American organ.

THE stock of Messrs. Duff and Stewart, consisting of musical copyrights and plates, was offered for sale by Messrs. Brown, Swinburne, and Morrell, at their rooms, 353, Oxford Street, on the 9th ult. and three following days. Amongst the items which brought large prices the following may be mentioned: J. L. Hatton's song, "A Bird sang in a Hawthorn Tree," £330 (Mills); "The Heather Wreath," £289 17s. (Jefferys); "Loved and lost," £241 3s. (B. Williams); "O that we two were Maying," £273 (Howard); Jules Rochard's Arrangements of Popular Melodies, £490 5s. (Ashdown and Parry); and "Esmeralda," £546 (Bath). The total realised by the four days' sale amounted to £6,785.

A NOVELTY in local musical examinations has been recently tried in Gloucestershire. Responding to a desire generally expressed in the provinces, Trinity College, London, has instituted a system of local examinations in singing and pianoforte-playing, and appointed a visiting examiner, on whose report certificates may at any time be granted to efficient candidates. Professor E. M. Lott has already commenced his duties at Stroud, and examined in one week more than sixty candidates. In several cases the organ was accepted as a subject in substitution for the pianoforte.

AT the Services at St. Andrew's, Tavistock Place, on November 30 (St. Andrew's Day), Purcell's Te Deum in D was performed with full orchestral accompaniment and a choir numbering 100 voices. The solos were excellently rendered, Mr. Stedman's singing of "Vouchsafe, O Lord," being especially good. Attwood's Anthem, "I was glad," and H. J. Stark's Evening Service, both with orchestral accompaniment and excellently sung, were also included in the Service, which, notwithstanding its exceptional interest, was but moderately attended.

A VOCAL and Instrumental Concert by the boys was given in the large hall, Christ's Hospital, on the 18th ult. The programme was of a very varied character, and comprised a selection from Haydn's "Creation," followed by solos, part-songs, and instrumental pieces. The several items were exceedingly well executed, and reflected great credit upon all the masters engaged in the musical training of the youthful band. The arrangements for the accommodation of the visitors were very good, and the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

THE Annual Concert in aid of the funds of the Orphanage of H.M. Customs was given in St. James's Hall on the 5th ult., under the direction of Mr. W. Phillips. The solo vocalists were Miss Mary Davies, Miss Orridge, Madame Ashton, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Maybrick, Mr. H. Ashton, and Mr. Frederic King. Mr. John Thomas, harpist to her Majesty, and the English Glee Union also contributed several pieces. Sir Julius Benedict and Mr. Fountain Meen were the accompanists. Every number was received with warm approbation, the recalls being numerous.

WE understand that, by the will of the late Mr. Frederick Gye, the Royal Italian Opera-house, amongst other property, has been left entirely to his family, and they have decided to carry on the Royal Italian Opera as usual. Mr. Ernest Gye, who has for some years been associated with his father in the Opera, will, with Mr. Herbert Gye, undertake the management. The season of 1879 will commence in April, Madame Patti and Madame Albani being amongst the principal artists engaged.

THE Islington Choral Association gave Bradbury's sacred Cantata, "Esther the Beautiful Queen" at the Barbican Chapel, Hoxton, on Tuesday, the 3rd ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Tavender, Esther; Miss Carpenter, First Maid of Honour; Miss Toynbee, Zerish; Mr. A. Bird, King; Mr. Sparks, Haman; and Mr. Butt, Mordecai. The chair was taken by the Rev. J. Boyle. Conductor, Mr. George Randal; Organist, Mr. W. H. Whitmore.

A CONCERT was given at the Crouch End School-rooms by Mr. Alfred J. Dye, on the 19th ult. Miss Elene Webster in Cowen's "It was a dream," Miss Helen de Valence in Anderton's "Come to me, O ye children," Mr. Stedman in Stark's "Sea Song," and Mr. Egbert Roberts in Mozart's "Qui sdegno," were much applauded. The instrumentalists were Miss Augarde (piano), Mr. Grimson (violin). Mr. Deane (viola), and Mr. Trust (cello). Mr. Dye was an efficient accompanist.

MR. A. C. MACKENZIE'S "Scherzo," which was played in Glasgow on the 30th of November, and in Edinburgh on the 2nd ult., achieved a marked success, the applause being most enthusiastic, and the composer, who conducted it, being unanimously recalled. The scoring of the work is masterly, and the ease with which it was given by the orchestra proved that it had been carefully and zealously rehearsed.

THE Guardian of the 11th ult. announces the death at Gloucester of the Rev. John Antes Latrobe, late Vicar of St. Thomas's, Kendal, author of the "Music of the Church," and other well-known works. Mr. Latrobe died on November 19, and was son of Haydn's friend, the Rev. C. J. Latrobe, the Moravian minister.

A GOOD word must be said for "G. R. King's Royal Duke of Edinburgh Rosin Box," a specimen of which has been forwarded to us. This box is filled with the best treble, purified, medicated rosin; and both as a cleanly and effective article will no doubt be found highly useful by violinists.

IN a paragraph announcing the decease of Mr. "William Callcott" last month, the name was wrongly printed "William Hutchins Callcott." Our obituary notice was correct, and we gladly take the earliest opportunity of rectifying the error in the paragraph.

THE Scottish Choral Society gave an excellent Concert of Scottish music at Exeter Hall on November 30 (St. Andrew's Day) before a large audience. The programme was well chosen; and the enthusiasm of the listeners proved the thoroughly national character of the assembly.

REVIEWS.

Histoire de l'Instrumentation, depuis le seizième siècle jusqu'à nos jours. Par Henri Lavoix fils.
(Paris: Firmin-Didot and Co.)

IT is scarcely a matter for surprise that although numerous histories of music and musicians have from time to time appeared, no history of Instrumentation should ever, so far as we know, have been published until the present year. It would be difficult, if not impossible, for any one who has not made a special study of Instrumentation to realise the amount of labour involved in the compilation of such a work as the handsome volume of 470 pages by M. Lavoix, which now lies before us. Not merely would it be needful to have access to an enormous mass of music, much of which exists only in manuscript, and to read, it is appalling to think, how many thousands of pages of scores, in order to collect the necessary materials; but the author must further be gifted with a prodigious memory to enable him to compare the various styles of orchestration, and to render to each composer his appropriate due.

It would be little short of a miracle were such a work as the present to be found free from errors; and, as a matter of fact, we shall have to note some as we proceed with this review: the wonder is that any one can be found who would and could undertake so herculean a task as that which the preparation of this history necessarily implies.

The origin of the present volume is due to the fact that in 1873 the Académie des Beaux-Arts announced as the subject of the Bordin prize for 1875, the "History of Instrumentation." Eighteen months only were allowed for the treatment of this elaborate subject. Two essays were sent in. That of M. Lavoix was declared the best; but as he had been unable to complete his work, which was only carried down to the time of Mozart, the Académie considered that the prize could not be awarded to an unfinished book, and decreed the author an honourable mention and a gold medal, at the same time encouraging him to complete and publish the volume. This he has at length done, and the result lies before us.

As an official in the grand National Library of Paris, M. Lavoix has enjoyed special advantages for his task. He has had constant access to one of the largest musical collections in the world. Judging from his volume, he appears also to have great natural qualifications for the work he has undertaken. His patience and research seem inexhaustible; in nearly every case he evidently gives us the results of personal investigation. His accuracy, with a few exceptions, is unimpeachable, so far as we have had the opportunity of verifying his statements; while his studied impartiality, and evident freedom from prejudice in favour of any one school or style, command our respect even where we may feel compelled to differ from the opinions which he expresses.

It is obviously impossible within the limits of a review to do anything like justice to a book so full of detail as the present. We shall therefore confine ourselves to an outline of its contents, noting from time to time such interesting facts as may present themselves.

The volume is divided into two parts, preceded by an introduction which gives a rapid glance at the nature and employment of the instruments of the Middle Ages. The first part of the work, occupying about one-third of the whole, treats of the history of musical instruments. The author traces in detail the various changes in the form of the instruments, and the periods at which such changes were introduced; and many noteworthy facts are mentioned incidentally. For example, it is interesting to learn that the violoncello was first used in the French opera in 1725 (p. 51), and that the first score in which the double bass is to be found is the "Alcyone" of Marais, produced in 1706 (p. 53). So again at p. 111 we read that it is in Gluck's Italian "Alceste" that we first meet with the cor anglais, and at p. 222 that the horn was introduced into the French opera by Campra (1735). The various instruments now obsolete are treated of in sufficient but not too great detail. It may be as well to note in passing that at p. 109 M. Lavoix has confounded the oboe d'amore and the oboe da caccia, and that what he says as to the notation of the former is only true of the latter, as may be seen at once by an examination of Bach's scores. The section on brass instruments gives us a full history of the various inventions for completing their scale. The author mentions incidentally that the ophicleide was first used in the opera by Spontini, in his "Olympia," while to Wagner is due the naturalization in the modern orchestra of the bass-tuba. With respect to this instrument M. Lavoix quotes an interesting anecdote from Wagner's "Recollections of Spontini," which is worth reproducing. When Wagner was conductor at Dresden he produced the "Vestale." As a compliment to the composer, Spontini was invited to attend the last full rehearsals. The old master listened to his work, and then said to Wagner, "I have heard in your 'Rienzi' an instrument called bass-tuba; I don't wish to banish that instrument from the orchestra—write me a part for the 'Vestale.'"

The second part of M. Lavoix's volume deals with the history of Instrumentation. After a brief sketch of the early dances and ballets in Italy, France, and Germany, and a chapter on the invention and employment of the basso continuo, we find a very interesting account of the early Italian orchestration of the seventeenth century. The method of treating the instruments at that time was, of course, widely different from that now adopted; but the variety of the instruments used will surprise many readers. To give but one example out of many—in a sonata for instruments by Massimiliano Neri, published at Venice in 1651, there are parts for two cornets, four trombones, one bassoon, two violins, two violas, and a theorbo. It will be as well to mention that the "cornet" was, of course, not our modern cornet-à-piston, but a wooden instrument, now obsolete, belonging to the same family as the hardly less obsolete serpent. It is worthy of notice that in the beginning of instrumentation it was very much the fashion to combine the various instruments of one class into families, so to speak, using one group at a time for the purposes of accompaniment. Of this system we find traces in the scores of Bach; and it is not a little curious that Wagner in his latest work, "Der Ring des Nibelungen," has to a great extent reverted, though of course with very different effect, to the original method of treatment.

It is hardly surprising that in his notices of the earliest orchestration M. Lavoix should treat at greater length of French composers than of any others. The probable explanation is that in the National Library his countrymen are more fully represented than either Germans or Italians. In the case of one of the old German masters, Keyser, the author acknowledges (p. 253) that, contrary to his habit, he has not been able to meet with any music by this composer, and is therefore forced to rely on the judgment of others. This, however, is an exceptional case; and the industry with which M. Lavoix has studied the works of composers many of whose names are now forgotten, but who have nevertheless contributed their quota to the advancement of the science of instrumentation, is worthy of all praise.

Very interesting to the student is the elaborate analysis of the works of Lulli and Rameau given in the fourth chapter, to which we can only refer. We must also pass over the following chapter, on the predecessors of Handel and Bach, and come to that in which the orchestration of these two great masters is dealt with in considerable detail. It is a curious thing that almost the only serious mistakes we have noted in reading the volume are to be found in the account of Handel's works. A few of the most important are worth pointing out. On p. 267 we read that the orchestration of Handel's choruses was so complete that Mozart in his additional accompaniments only retouched the airs—a most absurd statement, which irresistibly leads us to conclude that M. Lavoix has never seen Mozart's scores of either the "Messiah" or "Alexander's Feast," both of which are printed. An even more amusing mistake is found on p. 270, where, in speaking of Handel's use of the organ, our author says that "the stops of the sacred instrument take part in the instrumentation in a special manner, as in the 'Dettingen Te Deum,' where the full sounds of the 'Principal' contribute much to the general sonority of the piece." As a matter of fact, the part marked "Principal" in Handel's score is not the organ part at all, but that of the third trumpet. It is in "L'Allegro," not in the Coronation Anthems (as stated by M. Lavoix) that the contrafagotto is introduced; and in "See the conquering hero comes" it is horns, not trumpets, that are found in the score. The analysis of the scores of Bach, on the other hand, is, so far as we have tested it, of remarkable accuracy. With Bach and Handel we reach the end of what we may call the old school of instrumentation. In the concluding lines of his chapter on these composers M. Lavoix says:—

> Placed thus in the first half of the eighteenth century, Bach and Handel mark the separation of the two epochs; after them the orchestra will only be enriched in a very small degree with regard to the number of instruments; but it is in their employment that an entirely new art will be revealed.

The second of the "two epochs" referred to in the above quotation, is that which extends from Haydn to our own time. The treatment of this part of his subject must in one respect have been easier to our author than that of the earlier music, in so far as his sources of information were more readily accessible; but owing to the greater complexity of the modern orchestration, the comparison of the styles of various masters would yet be far from a light matter. M. Lavoix's sound judgment shows itself very conspicuously in this part of his work; indeed, there are but few of his opinions from which we should be disposed to differ.

The chapter on "The Symphony in Germany" is one of the most valuable in the book. Commencing with Haydn, M. Lavoix justly remarks, that more than any other composer he invented instrumental colouring; that he was the first who gave the modern orchestra its present constitution, discarding many of the instruments which before his time had been in use, but which with the modern system of instrumentation would be an encumbrance rather than an advantage. Mozart's orchestration is to be studied in his grand operas rather than in his symphonies; though M. Lavoix quotes from Köchel several curious specimens of instrumental combination. Mozart was the first who seems fully to have appreciated the resources of the clarionet, though in his treatment of this instrument he was subsequently surpassed by Weber.

Of Beethoven our author says that he was the first to individualize each instrument of the orchestra. We note, as we read, an inaccuracy in the statement that the Symphony in A (No. 7) contains parts for two trombones (p. 296). French musicians in general seem (so far as our experience goes) so apt to underrate Mendelssohn, that we are very glad to find so just and enthusiastic an appreciation of his orchestration as that given on pages 307, 308, which, did space allow, we should willingly quote. We are surprised to find the name of Schubert altogether omitted. His instrumentation is so characteristic and so individual, that we can only infer that M. Lavoix does not know the Symphonies in B minor and C major, the "Rosamunde" music, or the Mass in E flat. The author is very just in his strictures on Schumann's orchestration, which he characterises as heavy and dull, adding, with great truth, that "when hereafter justice is rendered to the talent of Schumann, it is as an inspired poet, as a bold and often happy harmonist, but certainly not as a colourist, that he will rank among the great composers of the modern school."

Our notice of this, to us at least, truly fascinating volume has already extended to such a length that we must pass hastily over the chapters which still remain to be noticed. An excellent analysis of the orchestration of the operas of Gluck and Mozart is followed by some remarks on the influence of these composers on modern music. We next have a sketch of the progress of the orchestra in France from Rameau to Rossini. The list of the composers whose works are noticed in more or less detail in this chapter may help our readers to form a slight idea of the amount of labour involved in the preparation of the present volume. M. Lavoix speaks (evidently from personal knowledge) of the scores of Grétry, Monsigny, Dalayrac, Nicolo, Philidor, Gossec, Salieri, Sacchini, Cherubini, Méhul, Lesueur, Catel, Spontini, Berton, and Boieldieu. We can only quote one point. He mentions (p. 342) that Spontini was the first to introduce the modern system of orchestrating by large masses, whence no doubt results greater sonority, but also in the long run inevitable monotony. The following chapter, on the Italian orchestra before Rossini, chiefly proves to us how little skill in instrumentation the larger number of Italian composers possessed. The simple explanation is to be found in the fact that they looked upon the orchestra as nothing more than an instrument for accompanying the voice, and therefore always relegated it to a subordinate position. After an interesting analysis of Beethoven's "Fidelio" and the operas of Weber, with remarks on colour and romanticism in dramatic music, we reach one of the most elaborate chapters of the work—that devoted to Rossini and Meyerbeer. This occupies forty-five pages, and the details as to the orchestration of "Guillaume Tell," and of the grand operas of Meyerbeer, are of much value to the student. A chapter on the modern dramatic orchestra in France (Auber, Hérold, Halévy, Félicien David) succeeds; of which we would remark that M. Lavoix hardly appears to us to fully appreciate the exquisitely polished and often most piquant instrumentation of Auber. The works of Berlioz are next examined in detail, and justice rendered to one of the most original thinkers, and undoubtedly one of the greatest colourists of modern times; while in the final chapter on contemporary instrumentation, a careful and unprejudiced examination of Wagner's scores is to be found. Most Frenchmen entertain such a bitter hatred of the composer of "Tannhäuser" that it is pleasant to read M. Lavoix's opinion of him. His words are (p. 456):—

> A musican powerful and full of passion, possessing in the highest degree the science of effects of harmony and instrumentation, endowed, whatever one may say, with remarkable richness of melody, Richard Wagner is incontestably the first musician of our age.

The scores of the "Ring des Nibelungen" are analysed at some considerable length, and this portion of the work will interest the numerous readers for whom the price of the scores themselves would be prohibitory. It is singular that not a word is said in this chapter of three great German composers of the present day, whose instrumentation is, to say the least, worthy of mention. We do not find the names either of Liszt, Brahms, or Raff—all of them great colourists. It is probable that their works have hardly yet made their way into France.

In taking leave of M. Lavoix's most valuable work, we can only express the hope that at no distant time an English translation may be published. We have said enough in our notice to show that it is no less interesting than instructive, and in conclusion cordially recommend it to the notice of musicians.

Fior d' Aliza. Opéra en quatre Actes. Tiré du Roman de A. de Lamartine. Par MM. Carré and H. Lucas. Musique de Victor Massé. [Paris: Choudens.]

AFTER experience of M. Massé's "Paul et Virginie," it may appear superfluous to ask attention for another work from the same pen. But a composer can neither be made nor marred by a single effort. It is true that "Paul et Virginie," though not deficient in striking numbers, has radical defects, and there is little chance of its obtaining a permanent place upon our lyric stage. That however is no reason why M. Massé's other productions should be included in a wholesale condemnation. Rather should it incline us to a patient and impartial examination of their claims, in the hope of finding something able to redeem the credit of the composer, and prove that the measure of reputation he enjoys rests on a basis of fact. Without further preamble, therefore, we turn to M. Massé's setting of the libretto founded upon Lamartine's touching romance.

Readers of French literature will remember "Graziella," and at once recognise in it the materials of a charming pastoral opera full of strongly dramatic situations, and actuated by the purest feeling. True the story is, in its elements, an old one—as old as woman's unselfish devotion to the man she loves. It presents us with another "Fidelio," and illustrates not less strongly than Beethoven's Opera the justice of high Heaven, who guards the innocent and punishes the guilty. But while all this in Massé's work is familiar, the scenes, incidents, and details are so fresh and charming that we welcome it as an old friend with a new and attractive face. The beginning of the Opera is delightful in its rustic sweetness and joy. After an overture which reproduces some of the more significant themes in the body of the work, including a Saltarello, we see the cottage in which Fior d' Aliza dwells with her parents, Antonio and Magdalena, under the shadow of a huge and favourite chestnut-tree. Within, the maiden is singing gleefully; and from without, Geronimo, a young peasant who has always associated with her on the footing of a brother, answers in kindred strains. Then follows a simple air for Fior d' Aliza, "O mon doux ami," based entirely on a tonic or dominant pedal, with a distinctive musette accompaniment. The young people meet, and an important duet ensues as a matter of course. They speak of their mutual happiness in unaffected strains, till at length Geronimo ventures to tell his companion why she is so glad. This he does in an Andantino cantabile, "Sais tu pourquoi tout rayonne en ton âme?" marked by considerable grace and fervency of expression as well as melodic beauty. "It is love," says the young man, "that lights up thy soul;" and she naïvely answers, "Love, sayest thou?" as not wholly comprehending the purport of the remark. In all this, as need scarcely be pointed out, we have an anticipation of "Paul et Virginie." After the duet comes an air for Hilario, a good monk who collects alms for the poor of the neighbouring monastery. The worthy brother sings of his "house" and his duties with considerable unction and appropriate sedateness. He is on good terms with himself and all around him; which happy state of things the music, by its easy flow, well reflects. Arrived at the house of Antonio, the monk bestows something like a blessing upon the venerable chestnut-tree, commencing a quintett with the four inmates of the cottage, who are nothing loth to join in so agreeable a theme. "O vieux châtaignier! arbre centenaire," exclaims Hilario, the others answering, "Puisses-tu, respecté de la hache et du temps, reverdir encore dans cent ans?" The quintett is short and unpretending, but quite in harmony with the occasion and subject. So far the Opera is an idyll all redolent of the flowers of Eden, but in the finale of Act I., which we now reach, the genius of evil makes his appearance. Four woodmen enter, armed with axes, and announce that their errand is to cut down the tree. This purpose they state in a brusque and rhythmic two-part chorus, at the close of which Antonio pleads for his favourite in the true spirit of a well-known English song, while his wife invokes the name of the Madonna. But the woodmen are under orders, and simply repeat their chorus. Then Geronimo speaks to the effect that it will be the worse for the first man who lifts axe against the venerable trunk. At this crisis a diversion occurs. Fior d' Aliza, who has wandered away, shrieks for help; Geronimo runs in the direction of her voice, a shot is heard; and presently the young fellow returns, avowing that he had killed a man who dared to offer insult to his "sister." The victim is a captain of gendarmes, whose love had been rejected by Fior d' Aliza, and who in revenge had purchased the cottage of Antonio that he might, as landlord, rightfully cut down the tree. Geronimo's act excites the greatest alarm among his friends, not without reason. The gendarmes appear on the scene; and the act closes with a long ensemble expressing the wrath of the officers at the loss of their leader, the dismay of the onlookers, the anguish of the culprit's parents, and the mutual devotion of the lovers. In this concerted piece M. Massé takes care to keep within his depth. The music is not complicated, nor does it aim at very original effects, but at the same time it fairly expresses the conflicting emotions of the scene, and brings down the curtain with éclat.

The second act opens with a recitative and air for Fior d' Aliza, full of the trouble that has come upon her. We regard the air, "Hélas, à cette heure triste et suprême," as one of the most expressive and charming in the Opera. Its structure is very simple, but throughout it is instinct with true feeling. At the close of the song, the maiden declares that a ray of hope has come to her. She receives, as she fancies, an order from Heaven to save her lover; the music, like herself, suddenly becoming animated. We now reach the close of day, and the unhappy parents of Geronimo prepare to take such rest as they can. Their duet, after the orchestra has played a suggestive Allegretto malinconico, is a little dreary, but we forget the fact in the interest of the subsequent scene. Fior d' Aliza has assumed the dress of a pifferaro, and prepares clandestinely to leave the cottage while the old people are asleep. But Antonio awakes, and strenuously opposes her departure. Vainly does the young girl speak in passionate accents of her divine mission. The father is obstinate till Hilario interferes, and in a well-written and impressive solo bids him submit to the will of Heaven. Then follows an ensemble which ends the scene. We are next shown a country-road, and hear the sound of merry rustic music. Peasants are returning from market singing gaily of their gains. They pass from sight, and, next, Fior d' Aliza appears, foot-sore and exhausted. Falling down by the wayside, she appeals to the Madonna for help in a touching air, "O Madone, douce et bonne." This is one of the gems of the work, and is quite equal to expressing the pathos of the situation; in fact, it is a thoroughly "safe" number. The prayer ended, Fior d' Aliza remains by the road, along which now comes, in happy contrast, a wedding procession, with cheerful marriage music. A quaint chorus, the male voices keeping up a "La, la, la," brings the revellers to the spot where the poor pifferaro lies, and the bridegroom and bride are soon bending over the unconscious wanderer. Opening her eyes, Fior d' Aliza sees in the veiled form of the latter the Madonna come to her help; but soon the attentions of her new friends revive her to a sense of the actual situation, and she receives as another revelation from Heaven the news that the wedding feast is to take place in the apartments of the jailer who has Geronimo in charge. "C'est un secours du ciel," she exclaims, as the orchestra repeats the theme of her prayer. Gladly the poor heroine accepts an invitation to play and sing at the feast, and the procession moves on to a repetition of the marriage chorus. In the treatment of this situation there is no great force, M. Massé not being a strong composer. But there is propriety, and one cannot but recognise a certain fitness between the pastoral character of the surroundings and the unaffected nature of the music.

The third act opens in Geronimo's prison, where we meet Fior d' Aliza and her new friends once more. Again all sing the praises of the married pair, whose aged relatives have a strain to themselves (in imitation of the old men's chorus in "Faust"), referring chiefly to the pleasures of the table. The jailer answers with grim humour, expressing sorrow that his guests had not committed some crime in order that he might detain them. Another ensemble, combining the two themes previously heard, brings this joyous opening to an end; and then Fior d' Aliza, as the feast goes on, wonders where her lover is immured. She is in no mood for singing, but, at the request of the bride, strikes up a gay Saltarello, the subject of which appeared in the Overture. It is a thoroughly characteristic piece, and as piquant as quaint. The song finished, the singer is thanked; and then, with a charming little chorus of gratitude to their host, the bridal party breaks up. But Fior d' Aliza contrives to remain, and we now see her endeavouring, like another Fidelio, to discover the dungeon in which her lover lies. This she does, like another Blondel, by playing on her cornemuse the theme of the duet which opens the first act Geronimo answers in passionate delight, taking up the theme and calling on her to burst his bonds, that they might once more wander free among their native mountains. Here M. Massé shows considerable intensity of expression, and, though limiting himself to a subject already heard, fairly achieves his object. But a fresh character appears on the scene. Piccinina, a gipsy girl, is an inmate of the prison, and has fallen in love with Geronimo. She is but half-witted, but there is method in her madness, as subsequently appears. First, however, she sings a wild song, "Ma mère était bohémienne"—one of those characteristic effusions with which Bizet's "Carmen" has made our public familiar. We now enter Geronimo's dungeon, and hear the prisoner reassuring himself that the voice of Fior d' Aliza was not a dream, while Piccinina occasionally breaks in with a snatch of her gipsy melody, like Azucena in "Il Trovatore." The heroine is also present, unobserved in the gloom, and her expressions of love, hope, and fear mingle with the utterances of the others. For a time she hesitates to approach, but when Geronimo complains of thirst, she—again "Fidelio"—hastens to his relief, and is recognised. An outburst of affection ensues, while across the joy and hope it expresses the half-witted gipsy throws a dark shadow by croning of the death awaiting Geronimo, whose fate seems sensibly approaching as, to the strains of a solemn march, an official enters and reads a decree of condemnation. Upon the agony of the lovers, the pity of the other prisoners and the stern comments of the officers, Piccinina intrudes again with her wild snatches of song. But the gipsy has an object, and contrives to bid the condemned man still hope. Upon this situation the curtain descends.

The last act begins with a largely developed air for Geronimo, "De tout serment la mort cruelle nous delié," the interest of which is not great. An amend is made however in the next scene. Fior d' Aliza appears, with the monk Hilario, who reminds us of "Les Huguenots," by uniting the lovers in marriage, though death awaits the bridegroom at the door. The music here is fittingly earnest, solemn, and dignified, while in the duet, "O cher époux," which follows, M. Massé puts out all his strength. A finer number the work does not contain, nor one more distinguished by dramatic and musical interest. The day of execution dawns, and the lovers greet its light with sighs and tears. Not so Piccinina, who, under the window of the cell, warbles once more her Bohemian ditty. But once more she does it with a purpose. She has loosened the bars, and Geronimo, free to escape, promptly disappears, leaving Fior d' Aliza behind. Now we reach the crisis of the story. Our heroine hears the tramp of the soldiers coming to conduct their prisoner to death. His flight will be discovered before there has been time to get clear away, so, with noble self-sacrifice, Fior d' Aliza puts on the condemned robe in order if need arise to suffer in her husband's stead. As she does so, we are again reminded of "Il Trovatore" by the "Miserere" of the monks chanted outside—a solemn strain sung in unison and capable of impressive effect. The scene changes to a place of execution, and we hardly know whether more to pity the doomed heroine or to marvel at the blindness which cannot detect her pious fraud. She is about to suffer when, happily for our opinion of Geronimo, he hastily enters, stricken with remorse for having abandoned his spouse. The spectators, in energetic tones, demand mercy; but the officials are stern, and again prepare to carry out the sentence, this time on the proper victim. Happily, Fior d' Aliza's faith in Heaven is justified. Hilario appears with a pardon from the sovereign, and the Opera closes with a brief but triumphant chorus.

Looking back upon the entire work, it is impossible not to see that the libretto has been indifferently made. Most of its chief incidents are stale, and the final scenes are clumsy while violating probability to an unusual degree. Nevertheless the story has an undeniable charm, due to the nobility of the feeling it chiefly illustrates, the idyllic simplicity of its prevailing life, and the happy contrasts it affords. As regards the music we can only say that, though never great, it rarely fails to be expressive and appropriate. "Fior d' Aliza," it may be added, was first performed at the Opéra-Comique, February 5, 1866.

Advice to Singers. By a Singer. [W. Reeves.]

WE are glad to see that the author of this treatise does not profess to issue a few pages of printed rules by which a student can teach himself to sing; indeed it must in justice be said that, so far from this, he boldly tells his readers that it is utterly impossible to become a good vocalist without the aid of an experienced instructor. We are inclined however to doubt the truth of the following sentence: "At the same time there are points which a master would not feel called upon to speak; nor would he (except perhaps in the course of a very long period of training) be likely to touch on many matters which, though closely connected with the life or business of an accomplished singer, yet lie rather outside the province of the voice-trainer." Unquestionably a mere "voice-trainer" might never lead his pupil to consider any of the many subjects belonging to the singer's art save the proper method of producing vocal sounds; but such a person is not worthy of the name of a teacher, and we cordially welcome works as thoughtful as that under notice in the hope that they may open the eyes of those who engage "professors" of singing to the small amount of capital in the shape of general musical culture upon which too many of them trade. Whoever may be the author of the "Advice" so modestly put forth we are quite certain that if he be not a "singer" already known to the public he is in a fair way of becoming one; for what can be more sensible artistic counsel than the following: "The student must be prepared to exercise a good deal of self-denial; to put aside all notions of self-merit for a long time to come; and to be humble, and ready to take a hint from any source. Whatever merits he may have at starting are certainly not due to his own skill; they are simply natural gifts, and the better they are the more is there for him to learn in doing justice to them. Let him not waste time in admiring what he is, or has done; but let him keep all his energy for what he may yet be, and for what he has yet to accomplish." We have nothing whatever to say about the soundness of the advice respecting the habits and diet of the vocal student, especially that on early rising, exercise, and dress; but when directions are given for the proper management of the hair, and we are told to avoid "pomatums, washes, and greasy messes of every kind;" if a moustache is worn not to "cut it straight across the lip, but to train it right and left;" and are informed that when we take a warm bath we should "not have it hot, but simply warm, and, of course use soap with it," we feel inclined to ask whether all these salutary maxims are more necessary for a vocalist than for any other person who desires to make himself acquainted with the usual sanitary laws. When we come to the real "advice to singers" the remarks are excellent, many of those on the due pronunciation of words being evidently the result of a careful study of the subject. We quite agree with the observation that "the words of a song are as much worthy of the singer's study as the music, that is if the song is worth singing at all." The following paragraph too is worthy of attention: "In pronouncing consonants be careful to give each its due value, but without exaggeration. Be especially particular to sound the last letter of each word distinctly. But take care to avoid adding a slight sound (as of an e mute) after the final letter; for instance, do not say 'When other-é lips,' &c., or 'Bright-é days,' and so on." The common trick of prefixing a sound of "n" to the first word of a song or passage in singing, our author truly says arises from "a kind of nervous feeling of the teeth with the tongue. as if to make sure that all is right for a start;" and the instance that he gives of an aspiring youth beginning a well-known song thus: "Nwaft her Rangels Nthrough the sky" is by no means unlike what we have ourselves heard, except that the last word should be "skies," which is too often transformed into "ske-ies." The observations upon the real quality of a voice, as distinguished from its compass, will be found extremely useful to amateurs, as many persons are deceived in this important matter by the power of going "up very high" or "down very low," and will often scarcely believe those who tell them the truth. "Let it be stated once for all," says the author of this treatise, "singing cannot be taught in twelve easy lessons, and can scarcely be acquired in one hundred very severe lessons. Therefore distrust at once any one who holds out so tempting a bait to you; remember that there is no 'royal road' to singing, any more than there is to the acquirement of any other art; and the person who tells you that he can teach you to do without trouble that which costs great artists the study of a lifetime, proclaims himself, ipso facto, to be a humbug." To these plain truths we have not a word to add.

An Elementary Course of Vocal Music upon the Galin-Paris-Chevé Method.

[London: Bullen, Paternoster Square.]

THE signs of revolt against the old musical notation are multiplying. Neither for voices nor instruments does it seem to b accepted as satisfactory. Popular vocal classes and students bound down to the pianoforte by custom established groan as they fag through keys with sharps and flats, and, whilst they meekly obey their master, have an indistinct but rapidly growing notion that music should not and need not be so difficult, but that it is kept so to suit the traditions of instructors. The way of escape is obviously the vocal. The voice may follow at once a rational notation, and whatever is irrational can be kept well out of sight. Hence we have the "Tonic Sol-fa" system, with its thousands of adherents. But long before the "Tonic Sol-fa" system was heard of the "Galin-Paris-Chevé" system was in full career. In the sixteenth century a numerical notation was, we believe, invented by Pierre Davantes. A hundred and thirty years ago Jean-Jacques Rousseau proposed that the seven notes of the key should be signified by figures—from 1 to 7. The invention lapsed, but was revived and improved, forty years or so after Rousseau's death, by Galin; was added to by Paris and by Chevé; and is now the highly successful method for popular vocal tuition throughout France. We will attempt very briefly to describe it.

The tonic is always 1, whatever the key, when major, and the six other notes of the key are 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. These represent the medium octave for voices, the octave above or below being shown by a dot above or below the figures. In the minor key 6 takes the place of 1 as the tonic. Sharps and flats are indicated by a short line through the figure—from right to left for sharps, and from left to right for flats. The length of note is indicated by a large dot for prolongation, and by a nought for "silence." The division of the unit is "binary" or "ternary," and this again may be "binary" or "ternary," the proper direction being placed above. The figures and signs of prolongation or silence appear according to the rhythm, and a thick horizontal line over them shows how they are grouped.

The "Galin-Paris-Chevé" method is excellent for popular singing-classes, and is moreover very "workable," for any printing office can set up music on the plan; but we confess that it is not very satisfactory as an ultimate notation, even for vocal music; and for instrumental music it avows its incompetency. Must the notation of the future have two divisions—one for vocal, one for instrumental music? The multitudinous and fast-increasing pianists are still left out in the cold.

My Father. A Home Song. Words by the late Miss Lilla C. Composed by Sir R. P. Stewart, Mus. Doc. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WHEN words of this character are treated by a musician like the Professor in the University of Dublin, instead of by the mawkish song-makers who have latterly brought what may be termed "domestic music" into contempt, we may expect a really sympathetic and earnest composition, which can be welcomed in the home circle, and listened to by artists with pleasure. In every phrase throughout his song the composer has evidently felt how deeply its import may be impressed upon the listener by music which seems to spring rather from the warm heart than from the cold skill of the writer; and although a good singer will be required to do the piece full justice, amateurs with but limited vocal resources will find that they can produce more effect in this song than in most of the conventional effusions of the day. The melody throughout is both attractive and appropriate; the changes of key, although frequent, are always most happily expressive of the words; and the harmonies and accompaniments in true character with the nature of the composition. May we suggest, however, that the F♯ in the last chord of the second bar should be G♭? We have always considered that this is the chord of the augmented sixth on the minor sixth of the scale—with a perfect fifth (in olden times known as the "German sixth")—and do not like to have our ideas disturbed without a very sufficient reason.

Four-part Songs. Edited, and with an accompaniment (ad lib.), by Berthold Tours. Composed by Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

FOR the first time Mendelssohn's "Four-part Songs" for mixed voices, and also those for men's voices only, are issued in one volume handsomely bound, and at a price which will place them within reach of the numerous lovers of these well-known beautiful compositions. We have often heard inquiries for the whole of this composer's vocal part-music; but they have hitherto been so scattered about that it was necessary to purchase many books before a complete collection could be made, and it was a wise step therefore to publish them in the present form. The words, too, appear to have been carefully supervised, and the best only selected, regardless of the translator; so that in every song the verses go as smoothly to the music as if they had been those originally set by the composer. The work has been most carefully edited, and the pianoforte part, for use at practice only, has been added by Mr. Berthold Tours. It should also be mentioned that the volume for mixed voices, and that for men's voices only, can be had separately; the songs for mixed voices being also printed in a still cheaper edition without accompaniment. All the songs can be had in the usual separate form.

A Second Set of Sixty Voluntaries. Arranged for the Harmonium; by J. W. Elliott. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE selection, as well as the arrangement, of these Voluntaries should ensure for them an extensive sale amongst the many amateurs of the instrument for which they are especially designed. Mr. Elliott has so legitimately earned for himself a right to be respected as an authority upon the subject of Harmonium music that performers may safely trust themselves to his guidance; and as the writers drawn upon in this collection include the names of such composers as Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Handel, Sir Sterndale Bennett, Sir John Goss, Joseph Barnby, G. A. Macfarren, Sir Julius Benedict, Arthur Sullivan, Berthold Tours, Charles Gounod, Dr. Stainer, and others of equally high reputation, the book may be conscientiously recommended to all who desire to possess a variety of short and really good Voluntaries which shall not too severely tax the performer.

The Baby's Bouquet. A Fresh Bunch of Old Rhymes and Tunes. Arranged and decorated by Walter Crane. Cut and printed in colours by Edmund Evans. [London and New York: George Routledge and Sons.]

REALLY if such charming little books as these are prepared for the juvenile members of a family, instead of having the children brought down for a treat into the drawing-room, the grown people will of their own accord walk up into the nursery; for the artistic eye can see beauty in small as well as large things; and anything in better taste or better executed has rarely been issued than the "Bunch of Old Rhymes and Tunes" now before us. The illustrations are quaint and fanciful in the extreme, the music appropriately simple; and we cannot imagine a more welcome New Year's gift than this handsome little volume of rhymes, some few of which, by the way, are in German and some in French, but all familiar as "household words" to baby ears.

The Professional Pocket-Book, or Daily and Hourly Engagement Diary for 1879. [Rudall, Carte and Co.]

THIS useful little Pocket-book seems now so established in favour with musical professors, that we need add but little to our former commendation of its contents. It is published, as usual, under the immediate direction of Sir Julius Benedict. As the dates of some of the concerts during the season are given, it seems a pity that the Birmingham Festival should not be mentioned, as it has been for some time fixed to commence on August 26.

The Office of the Holy Communion. Set to music by Alfred J. Eyre. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS is an ambitious service, and will be found worthy to be placed on the lists of our very best Cathedral or other choirs. It contains much excellent writing for both voices and organ; indeed, the accompaniment may be said to be somewhat elaborate. We fail to see why the "Et Incarnatus" should have been set to such a very pastoral like theme; however, excepting this, we have nothing but praise and encouragement for this young composer.

Missa Sancti Laurentii. By Rev. R. W. Brundrit, M.A. [Burns and Oates.]

WE are unable to say much in favour of this composition. The Kyrie raised our hopes and led us on to expect further pleasure, but the following numbers are comparatively of little musical value. The Mass, however, is very easy to sing, and may possibly find favour in some churches; but surely the highest kind of art in music should be used in this the highest act that man is capable of performing.

Offertory Sentences. By J. T. Field. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

GOOD settings of the above are not very numerous, and choirmasters who are beginning to tire of those they have in use will be glad to make acquaintance with Mr. Field's new publication. The music is certainly of a good classical vein, melodious and charmingly varied.

FOREIGN NOTES.

THE first of a series of what are styled "Festival Concerts" took place on the 17th ult. at Paris, with the co-operation of MM. Gounod, Massenet, Saint-Saëns, and Vinzentini. The locality selected for these special performances (of which one is to be given every month during the winter) is the largest covered hall for monster performances in the French capital, known as the Hippodrome. The number of auditors on the occasion referred to is estimated at over 15,000, and the undertaking has thus far proved a complete success. The acoustic arrangements of the vast building are said to be excellent. The programme of the interesting Concert will be found in our usual appendix.

At the Grand-Opéra performances of M. Gounod's "Polyeucte," although not of such frequent occurrence as heretofore, are still continued. M. Saint-Saëns's new Opera, entitled "Etienne Marcel," is to be performed for the first time during this month at the Grand-Théâtre at Lyons, the event being looked forward to with much interest. It is also stated that M. Massenet has undertaken to write two operatic works, one being destined for the National-Opéra, and the other for the Opéra-Comique. The two last-named composers were both candidates at a recent election for a membership of the Académie des Beaux-Arts in the room of François Bazin, when M. Massenet obtained a majority of five votes. According to the Revue et Gazette Musicale, M. Massenet is the youngest artist who ever entered that distinguished body, he being only thirty-six years of age.

A score edition of the Marquis d'Ivry's successful Opera, "Les Amants de Vérone," has just been published. It is dedicated to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

A project has been submitted to the consideration of the Town Council of Paris advocating the founding of a popular lyrical stage to be subsidised from the municipal funds. The projected establishment is to have the right of performance of the entire répertoire of the Grand-Opéra, which is also to furnish the solo performers. At least twice during the year free Sunday afternoon representations are to be given. The Châtelet and the Gaîté Theatres are pointed out as offering suitable localities for the proposed Théâtre-Lyrique Populaire.

It is stated that the receipts of the Official Concerts held in connection with the recent International Exhibition at Paris exceeded the sum of one million francs.

M. Ambroise Thomas's Opera "Mignon" has lately been produced for the first time at the Royal Theatre at Lisbon with great success.

There has been no absolute novelty in the répertoire of the Royal Opera at Berlin, performances of special interest having been those of Weber's "Oberon" and of Wagner's "Meistersinger." At the Kroll'sche Theater, where a season of Italian Opera is just now being carried on, the first appearance last month of Madame Adelina Patti has been the signal for the display of immense enthusiasm on the part of the otherwise phlegmatic Berliners, and the house is crowded each night that she performs. Herr Ferdinand Gumbert, the well-known critic of the Neue Berliner Musikzeitung, in a eulogistic notice on the diva's singing in "Il Barbiere" and "Lucia di Lammermoor," says: "The fact of her having recognised at once the change in the character of her voice which in the course of time had taken place, and of having, with true musical instinct, modelled her general style and her choice of fioritura passages accordingly, is in itself a sufficient proof of the genius of the artist. In the realm of song Madame Adelina Patti will figure for all time as one of its most brilliant representatives."

M. Lecocq's Operetta "Le Petit Duc" was brought out at the Friedrich-Wilhelmstadt Theater, at Berlin, with a German version of the libretto, and is said to have been well received.

In spite of the almost universal complaint of "hard times," the flood of concerts both in the Prussian capital and other centres of musical life in Germany is running high, and the journals are filled with notices of performances both at regular institutions and of travelling virtuosos whose number appears to be steadily increasing every year. Among the latter may be mentioned the Spanish violinist, Pablo de Sarasate, who is just now engaged upon what may be described as a triumphal tour through Fatherland, Marchetti's Opera "Ruy Blas" is in course of preparation at the Court Theatre of Dresden.

Lortzing's Opera "Undine" has recently been produced in the Flemish language at Brussels.

M. Louis Brassin, the eminent Belgian pianist and professor of the Brussels Conservatoire, has extended his present concert tournée to St. Petersburg, where his exceptional attainments met with a most flattering appreciation.

A second edition has just been published of Herr Karasowski's "Life of Chopin" (Friedrich Chopin, sein Leben und seine Briefe), condensed into one volume, but containing some additional hitherto unpublished letters of the Polish composer. The interesting work has been reviewed in this journal.

The concluding drama of Herr Wagner's famous Tetralogy, viz., "Götterdämmerung," is in active preparation at the Imperial Opera at Vienna, and will be brought out in the course of this month. The establishment in question will thus have completed the mise-en-scène of the entire work.

Whenever, within the last few years, we have had occasion to refer to the appearance in public of Madame Pauline Lucca it has been in connection with a performance given in aid of some charitable institution. Her periodical visit of late years to the Austrian capital has invariably been marked by the humane use thus made of her exceptional talents—a fact which has again been illustrated by the recent appearance of the lady in the part of Selica, in Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," at a performance of that Opera at the Imperial Court Theatre, for the benefit of the pension fund of that institution. Her impersonation of the character, which has long been associated with her name, met with the most enthusiastic demonstrations on the part of the audience.

Notwithstanding the frequent performances at Vienna of Herr Wagner's latest music dramas, it would seem that a section of the Viennese public still regards the music of the stern reformer with some distrust, preferring at any rate to have the message he has to convey broken to them "gently." The following is the programme of a "Wagner-concert" recently held at the Austrian capital and vouched for by the Neue Berliner Musikzeitung: 1. Prelude to "Lohengrin;" 2. Valse by Strauss; 3. Duet from "Flying Dutchman;" 4. Polka by Strauss; 5. Air from "Tannhäuser;" 6. Valse by Strauss; 7. Entr'acte music from "Lohengrin;" 8. Mazurka by Strauss; 9. Overture to "Rienzi;" 10. Finale from "Tristan und Isolde:" 11. Valse by Strauss; 12. March from "Die Meistersinger." This remarkable concert, we should add, was held under the direction of Herr E. Strauss.

A niece of Franz Schubert, Mdlle. Caroline Geissler, played with great success, at the recent Hummel Festival held at Pressburg, the pianoforte part of that composer's Sextett in D minor.

We have been requested to correct a statement which has made the round of foreign journals, and had also found a place in these columns, to the effect that the performance of M. Leo Delibes' Opera "Le Roi l'a dit" had been prohibited at Copenhagen "on political grounds." The work, it appears, was produced several times at the Danish capital, and met with a very good reception.

In a recent issue of our esteemed French contemporary the Revue et Gazette Musicale a notice occurs of the death, in November last, of "Albert Methfessel, the well-known composer of songs." We are not aware of two "well-known" composers of that name, whereas he who made that name famous in Germany by his truly national songs died in March, 1869, at the mature age of eighty-five.

The death is announced, at Pisa, of Marco-Aurelio Zani de Feranti, whose literary contributions to the Revue Musicale Belge and La Belgique Musicale were once much esteemed. He was born at Bologna in the year 1800.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—First Concert du Conservatoire (December 1): Symphony, in D (Beethoven); Fragments from "Elijah" (Mendelssohn); Andante and Intermezzo from Symphony in A minor (A. Holmes); Fragments from "The Seasons" (Haydn); Overture, "Le Carnaval romain" (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (December 1): Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven); "Sadko," Symphonic Poem (Rimsky-Korsakoff); Symphony, E flat (Mozart); Andante con variazioni, Op. 47 (Beethoven); Scherzo for pianoforte and orchestra (H. Litolff); Invitation à la valse (Weber). Châtelet Concert (December 1): Oratorio, "Paradis Perdu" (Dubois). Concert Populaire (December 8): Symphony, in F (Beethoven); Ave Maria (Righini); Fragments from "Manfred" (Schumann); Andante from "Kreutzer-Sonata" (Beethoven); Minuet from "L'Arlésienne" (Bizet); Overture, "Sigurd" (Reyer). Festival Concert at the Hippodrome (December 17): Overture, "Oberon" (Weber); Marche Hongroise (Berlioz); Prayer from "Moïse" (Rossini); Marche religieuse and "Gallia" (Gounod); March "Orient et Occident" and Carnaval from "Timbre d'Argent" (Saint-Saëns); Fragments from "Le Roi de Lahore" (Massenet). Concert du Conservatoire (December 15): Symphony, in E flat (Schumann); Paternoster, unaccompanied chorus (Meyerbeer); Andante and Finale from Violin Concerto (Taudou); Choruses from "Oberon" (Weber); Overture, "Leonore" (Beethoven). Concert-Populaire (December 15): Symphony, B minor (Haydn); "La Jeunesse d'Hercule," Symphonic Poem (Saint-Saëns); Andante and Tarantella for Violin (Lancien); Fragments from "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz); Fragments from "Prometheus" (Beethoven); Overture, "Euryanthe" (Weber).

Leipzig.—Conservatorium Concert (November 21): Quartett, D major (Haydn); Hommage à Handel (Moscheles); Three Preludes and Fugues (Bach); Pianoforte Solos (Beethoven, Chopin, Kirchner). Euterpe Concert (November 27): Overture, "Medea" (Cherubini); Concerto, D minor (Rubinstein); Symphony, D major (Brahms); Pianoforte pieces (Haydn, Raff). Conservatorium Concert (November 29): Fugue (Bach-Liszt); Duet for Violin and Viola (Spohr); Sonata for Pianoforte (Richter); Violin Solos (Raff, Wieniawski). Euterpe Concert (December 3): Overture, "Faust" (Wagner); Scherzo for Orchestra (Goldmark); Cantata, "Frithjof" (Bruch). Gewandhaus Concert (December 8): In Memoriam (Reinecke); Violin Concerto (Mendelssohn); Serenade (Holstein); Violin Fantasia (Lalo); Overture, "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn). Gewandhaus Concert (December 12): Symphony, C minor (Haydn); Ballet Music from "Feramors" (Rubinstein); Violoncello Concerto (Saint-Saëns); Overture, "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn).

Berlin.—Concert of the Stern'sche Verein (November 29): Overture, Op. 124 (Beethoven); Violin Concerto (Bruch); Entr'acte from "Manfred" (Reinecke); Ave verum (Mozart); Violin Fantasia (Lalo). Bilse Concert (November 13): Overture, "Coriolanus" (Beethoven); Rhapsody (Liszt); Symphony, D minor (Raff); Gavotte (Bazzini); Overture, "Rienzi" (Wagner).

CORRESPONDENCE.

"THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In the interesting essay on "The Elements of the Beautiful in Music," which forms No. 16 of "Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers," the author, while briefly justifying the threefold division of his subject into Formal, Characteristic, and Ideal Beauty, remarks as follows: "Every production of art must first of all be considered as a thing, and consequently as having a form; secondly, it is to be considered as a separate thing, and consequently as possessing its own separate and individual character; and thirdly, it must be considered in reference to a general motive or design," &c.

I cannot help thinking that this explanation not only fails completely to define the true relations between the constituent elements of an art-work, but also tends to obscure the important place held by form in the philosophy of art. When the author writes that a work of art has a form because it is a "thing," and a character because it is a "separate thing," he surely reaches the point where simplicity becomes unintelligible. Yet the true explanation follows quite naturally from the definition of art. It is generally acknowledged that art originates in the desire to express—the desire to realise an idea. And since expression is only possible through forms, and forms are only intelligible on a material, it follows that every art-work consists in the union of a certain form with a certain matter. For instance in sculpture we have a union of form with stone; in painting, of form with colour; in poetry, of form with language; and in music, of form with sound. The technical ideal of an art-work is the complete unity of form and matter. Music alone approaches this ideal unity, and music is therefore the most technically perfect of all the arts. "All art," says Mr. Walter Pater, "constantly aspires to the condition of music." Bearing in mind that the artist's aim is to express a particular idea by means of a particular form united to a particular material, and setting aside the material as beyond criticism, we find that the critical analysis of any work of art must necessarily propose three questions for discussion:—

1. The idea.
2. The expression of the idea.
3. The form of the expression of the idea.

It is also quite clear why character is peculiarly revealed in expression. Every art has a more or less recognised form, and every artist endeavours to realise the idea of beauty in some shape or other; but individuality will always find its own characteristic expression, and stamp the work accordingly.

This theory is not new, and its main point—art, the unification of form and matter—is at least as old as Schelling.

I am, sir, faithfully yours,

December 16, 1878. A LOVER OF MUSIC.

RE CIPRIANI POTTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I must apologise to your readers for having, in the course of some remarks on "A New Edition of Mozart" in your last number, alluded to Cipriani Potter as a pupil of Mozart, which I find is not only incorrect, but impossible, as he was born the year after Mozart died. I knew that Potter had been spoken of and regarded as the pupil of one of the great composers; and, his name being before me all my life as the editor of Mozart's pianoforte works, I connected his pupildom also with the same composer.*

I have, in fact, been tricked for once by a memory which has usually proved exceptionally retentive in regard to any fact about music or musicians once learned or read. My present slip shows the danger of trusting to this faculty too much; though I might plead that my moral guilt is hardly greater than that of some very distinguished instrumentalists of the day, who are applauded for trusting everything to memory, and who also in consequence—make mistakes.

H. H. STATHAM.

December 13, 1878.

THE SIGNATURE OF THE MINOR KEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—More than ten years ago I called the attention of several publishers to the necessity of introducing the proper signature for the minor key, but not one had the courage to print a piece so arranged. At last Mr. Jewell undertook to print a "Tarantelle in A minor," and also the Pianoforte Scales; but even in this case the true signatures were engraved in small notes, and placed side by side with the other method. Some time afterwards a lady who had learnt my Tarantelle under the guidance of a gentleman in the country brought it to me. To my amazement the G♯ signature had been altered all through to F♯, and every G and F had an accidental ♯ and ♮, together with a polite intimation in a foot-note that "the signature was all wrong." By inserting this letter in your next issue you will oblige.—Yours truly,

BENNETT GILBERT.

The Laurels, Gipsy Hill.

* It was Beethoven whose pupil he was said to have been, but incorrectly.—H. H. S.

THE QUADRUPLE CHANT.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I would strongly advise your correspondent "G. K." not to use a quadruple chant for the Te Deum. It is peculiarly unsuitable to the words, and involves an unnatural repetition of a portion of the chant either in the middle or at the end of the Canticle, confusing to the congregation and upsetting the rhythm of the chant. If "G. K." has not seen a copy, he should purchase Ouseley and Monk's "Canticles and Hymns," published by Novello, Ewer and Co. Here the Te Deum is set to a double and single chant by an appropriate arrangement which is neither monotonous, uncongregational, nor unnatural. I have adopted this setting in a purely agricultural parish, and not only am constantly reminded of its approval by the congregation, but am also frequently asked by strangers where it can be procured, with a view to its adoption elsewhere.

EDM. LACON.

Nether Wallop Vicarage, Stockbridge.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.*

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

AINTREE.—Mr. James J. Monk gave his Handel lecture at St. Peter's School-room, on Thursday evening, November 28. The musical illustrations were contributed by Miss Eleanor Byers (pupil of Mr. Monk), Mr. Sanderson, Mr. Lenton, and Mr. Jones. The selection from L'Allegro, Il Pensieroso, ed Il Moderato, was received very warmly by the audience. Other examples of the great master's different styles were given from Rinaldo, Acis, Dryden's Ode, Saul, Samson, Israel, Messiah, Theodora, Joshua, &c. The lecturer gave on the pianoforte a selection from the Water Music, and harpsichord Suites.

BANFF.—The members of the Musical Association gave the first Concert of their second session in the County Hall on Friday night, the 6th ult., before a very large audience. Herr J. Hoffmann conducted. The programme was miscellaneous, the principal item being Schubert's Song of Miriam, which was well sung by Miss Stewart, Mrs. Barclay, Miss J. Dickson, and a chorus about forty strong. Mrs. Garden Wood and Miss J. Simpson accompanied on the piano. Violin accompaniments to pianoforte quartetts were contributed by Herr Hoffmann. At the close of the Concert, Sheriff Scott Moncrieff proposed a vote of thanks to Herr Hoffmann for the very able manner in which he had conducted.

BIRMINGHAM.—The members of Mr. A. J. Sutton's Choir, under the direction of their able Conductor, gave a Concert of secular music at the Masonic Hall, on the 28th of November, when Herr Heinrich Hofmann's Cantata Melusina was performed for the first time in Birmingham. The part of Melusina was sung in a sympathetic manner by Mrs. Sutton, and the other principal characters found effective supporters in those who undertook them. The choruses were given with spirit and commendable precision. The pianoforte accompaniments were played throughout the evening by Mr. George Bond. Mr. Sutton conducted in his well-known masterly manner.

BRADFORD.—The members of the Festival Choral Society gave a fine performance of Elijah in St. George's Hall, at their first extra Concert of the season, on the 6th ult. The principal vocalists were Madame Nouver, Madame Antoinette Sterling, Mr. J. W. Turner, and Mr. Thornton Wood; the chorus comprised the full strength of the Bradford Festival Choral Society, with important additions from other towns in the district; the band was Mr. Hallé's famous "forty-eight;" the organist was Mr. J. H. Clough; and the Conductor was Mr. R. S. Burton. Madame Nouver sustained the soprano solos with admirable effect, and in the concerted pieces her voice told always to advantage. In the trio (encored) "Lift thine eyes," she had efficient support in Mrs. Brook-Myers and Madame Sterling, the latter lady being highly effective in her rendering of the solos and recitatives which fall to the contralto. The tenor solos were well given by Mr. J. W. Turner, and the part of the Prophet was ably sustained by Mr. Thornton Wood. All the choruses were given with great effect.

COLNBROOK, NEAR WINDSOR.—The first Concert of the season of the Colnbrook Choral Society took place on Wednesday the 11th ult. A selection of glees and part-songs was given by the members of the choir, and two pianoforte solos, "The Æolian Harp" (Sydney Smith) and "Variations on the National Anthem" (Kuhe), played by Mr. A. R. H. Wright, R.A.M., were listened to with much pleasure and redemanded. Mr. Richard Ratcliff was the Conductor.

COVENTRY.—The reopening of the organ at Christ Church was celebrated on the 3rd ult. with a selection of vocal music (the choir numbering 100 voices), accompanied by orchestra and organ. There was also a short address by the vicar, and a recital on the organ by Mr. Arthur Trickett, F.C.O. The offertory amounted to nearly £40.——An Orchestral Concert, under the conductorship of Mr. F. W. Humberstone, was given by the St. John's Choral Society, in St. Mary's Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 10th ult. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Mason (late of the Royal Academy of Music), soprano; Miss Hinde, contralto; Mr. Johnson, tenor; and Mr. W. Sutton, bass. The first part of the programme consisted of a sacred Cantata entitled The Entry into Jerusalem (by the Conductor), the solos of which were rendered in an artistic manner, and the choruses sustained with a firmness and precision most creditable to the Society. In the second part a pianoforte duet by the Misses Merry, a song by Mrs. Mason, an air, with variations for pianoforte and orchestra (pianoforte, Mr. Arthur Trickett, F.C.O.), and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," were deserving of special praise.

CREWE.—The members of the Philharmonic Society gave their first Concert of the current season in the Town Hall on November 26, when Sir William Sterndale Bennett's Cantata The May Queen was performed, followed by a miscellaneous selection. The principal parts were sustained by Miss Harriette Leders, Miss Minnie Jones, Mr. Edward Dalzell, and Mr. Cecil Tovey, all of whom were very satisfactory. Mr. S. Benn, of Mr. Charles Hallé's band, led the Orchestra, which was considerably strengthened by a valuable contingent from Mr. Edward De Jong's band, Manchester. Mr. G. Young, pianist to the Society, performed good service at the pianoforte and harmonium. The concert was under the conductorship of Mr. F. James (the Society's Conductor), who discharged his duties in a most efficient manner.

CRIEFF, PERTHSHIRE.—Special Services were held in St. Columba's Episcopal Church on Saturday the 14th ult., to inaugurate the new Organ recently erected by Messrs. Bishop and Son, London. There was a full choral service at 3 p.m., the anthem being, "I shall see him but not now" (Spark), which was creditably rendered by the choir. Mr. E. J. Sanglier, Organist of Bamburgh Church, presided at the organ. The sermon was preached by Bishop Wordsworth, and the intoning ably performed by the Rev. Mr. Kitchin, Muthill. At the conclusion of the service Mr. C. K. K. Bishop (of Bishop and Son) played an excellent selection of music. The organ has a very elegant appearance, the front pipes being beautifully illuminated in gold and colours, harmonising well with the interior of the church. The tone of all the stops is extremely fine, and all the latest improvements have been adopted in the mechanism. There are six stops in the great organ, five in the swell, with sixteen feet open in the pedals, three couplers, and three composition pedals to the great organ. Messrs. Bishop and Son have made every provision for future additions.

DUNDEE.—A performance of Sir Michael Costa's Oratorio Naaman was given in the Kinnaird Hall, under the auspices of the Dundee Choral Union, on November 27. About 130 voices were engaged in the choir, and the vocal solos were entrusted to Mrs. Osgood, Madame Jenny Pratt, Mr. William Shakespeare, and Signor G. Valcheri. The instrumentation was played by the Glasgow Orchestra, Mr. Burnett principal violin, and Mr. Henry Nagel conducted. The performance, which was highly satisfactory, was thoroughly appreciated.

EDINBURGH.—A Concert in connection with the Students' Club Bazaar was held in the Music Hall, George Street, on the 11th ult. There was a large audience. The programme was an interesting one, and included the well-known chorale "Ein' Feste Burg," arranged expressly for the occasion by Sir Herbert Oakeley, the organ accompaniment being played by the Professor of Music; a chorus for female voices, "He in tears that soweth," by Hiller; Bennett's quartett "God is a Spirit;" and several part-songs by Bishop, Sullivan, Smart, and other composers. Mr. Burn Callander and Mr. Sanderson, of St. Mary's Cathedral, contributed solos. The chorus of students was conducted by Mr. Adam Hamilton, and the choir of ladies and gentlemen by Mr. Waddel. Mr. F. W. Bridgman acted as accompanist. ——The Choral Union gave a performance of Israel in Egypt on the 18th ult. The choruses generally were well sung, especially the "Hailstone" and "Sing ye to the Lord," but the choir was somewhat wanting in light and shade. The tenor solos were undertaken by Mr. Barton McGuckin, and Mrs. Davison, and a lady not named gave the soprano music. The duet "The Lord is a man of war," was sung by the basses in full chorus, and the orchestra rendered efficient assistance in the accompaniments. A considerable portion of the second part of the Oratorio was omitted.

FARNWORTH.—On Thursday, November 28, Mr. Eccles, of Darwen, gave an Organ Recital in the Market Street Congregational Church. The programme was selected from the works of Handel, Whitfeld, Mendelssohn, Tours, Batiste, and Dr. Blake. The choral pieces were sung by the choir, under the conductorship of Mr. A. Barnes, B.A.

FAVERSHAM.—The Choral Society gave its first Concert of the season on Tuesday evening, the 10th ult., before a large audience. The platform had been extended, and was very well arranged to admit of the large number of choristers and instrumentalists. Mr. Drake conducted, and must have been well pleased with the highly satisfactory manner in which his pupils acquitted themselves. The work selected was Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's Cantata The May Queen. The soloists were the Misses Harlow and Stransom, and Messrs. H. Wilkinson and W. H. Longhurst, all of whom were highly successful. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous.

FROME.—The members of the Frome Harmonic Society gave a very successful Concert at the Mechanics' Hall, on the 5th ult., the works performed being Weber's Mass in G, and Bennett's May Queen. The band of the Society was, as usual, strengthened by leading professionals from Bristol and Bath, and the organ was used with much effect in the Mass. The principal solos were taken by Miss Coombs, Mr. and Mrs. F. Harrold, and Mr. Trotman. Mr. W. E. Cox led the band, Mr. W. H. Cox was at the organ, and Mr. J. Davis Cox conducted with his usual care and ability.

GLASGOW.—The members of the St. George's Choral Union, conducted by Mr. W. Moodie, gave an admirable performance of Haydn's Seasons in the Public Hall on Thursday evening, the 5th ult. The chorus was excellent, and the orchestra ably furnished the accompaniments and instrumental interludes. The vocalists were Miss Emma Beasley, Mr. Henry Guy, and Mr. Bridson, all of whom were heard to great advantage.

GRAVESEND.—The Concert in aid of the funds of the Customs' Orphanage was given in the Assembly Rooms on the 10th ult., under the direction of Mr. W. Phillips, assisted by Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Bessie Stroud, Miss Martha Harries, Miss Annie L. Turner, Mr. Sidney Tower, Mr. Rowcliffe, Mr. Carpenter, and Mr. H. P. Matthews. Mr. Arthur Miller accompanied. Their efforts were highly successful, and were rewarded with warm manifestations of appreciation, the recalls being numerous.

ILFRACOMBE.—The members of the Ilfracombe Choral Society gave their fifth Miscellaneous Concert at the Oxford Hall on Thursday evening, the 5th ult., with the assistance of Madame Suchet Champion, soprano, and Mr. Sidney Harper, tenor. Mr. B P. Willis conducted. There was a tolerably good attendance. At the end of the Concert the Vicar approached the platform, and said the members of the Society had imposed on him the pleasing duty of presenting Mr. Willis with a purse containing £10, and desired him to say that they gave it to him to show their appreciation of his efforts on their behalf. Mr. Willis, in replying, said he felt amply repaid for anything he had done; music was to him a labour of love, and he hoped the Society would continue many years to give Concerts not only equal to that night's, but even better.

LANCASTER.—On Wednesday evening, November 27, a second Concert in aid of the St. Anne's Church Organ Fund was given in St. Anne's School-room, and was well attended. The mayor (Dr. Hall) officiated as President, and, at the commencement, explained that the proceeds of the concert were to be applied to help pay off a debt existing upon the new organ in St. Anne's Church. The performances of the band were very good indeed, and reflected credit upon the Conductor, Mr. R. W. Strickland. Altogether the concert was a success. Previous to dispersing, the Rev. J. Francis proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Strickland for the pains he had taken in organising the concert, and to the performers who had so willingly come forward to assist him.

LEEDS.—On the 3rd ult. Dr. Spark gave a lecture on "The Vocal Gems of English Opera," in St. James's Hall, with illustrations by Miss Gustave, Miss Clementina Gustave, Mr. White, and Mr. Charlesworth, of the Leeds Arion Society; and Mr. Dodds, who took the place of Mr. Arthur Grimshaw. The lecturer commenced by describing Opera and operatic music, its origin and general characteristics, after which he passed in review chronologically a number of historical facts marking the progress of the English Opera. Specially interesting was the account of the manner in which recitative and intonation owed their origin to the speaking by the Greeks in vast buildings where ordinary utterance would not have reached the ears of the large multitudes addressed. The selections in the first part were from Purcell, Arne, Shield, Braham, and Bishop. The second part was devoted to a consideration of the development of English Opera down to modern times.

LIVERPOOL.—Mr. W. H. Jude and his concert-party gave their forty-ninth entertainment at Hope Hall on Saturday evening, the 14th ult. The first and principal item on the programme was a selection from H.M.S. Pinafore, which was excellently rendered. Mr. Jude's harmonium and melopiano performances also gave great satisfaction. There was a very fair attendance. ——Dr. Sullivan's Oratorio The Light of the World was given on the 17th ult. by the Philharmonic Society as their Christmas Concert, in place of the customary performance of the Messiah. This substitution, as well as the similarity of subjects in the two works, makes it impossible to avoid something like a comparison between them, and the high quality and complete originality of Dr. Sullivan's music is at once made apparent by a reference to so high a standard. The music to which the words spoken by Christ are set was sung by Mr. Bridson with good taste and elevation of style. Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, and Mr. Edward Lloyd filled their parts as might have been expected from artists of their reputation. The second bass part was assigned to Mr. Alsop, to whose excellent singing of his part in the unaccompanied quartett the applause which followed was largely due: this was the only encore of the evening. The choruses were well sung on the whole, though the "leads" were not always taken up as they should have been. Between the two parts of the Concert the "Dead March" was played amid a stillness that was very impressive, the audience standing.

MADELEY, SALOP.—On Tuesday evening, the 17th ult., the Madeley Choral Society gave a performance of the Messiah with a chorus of sixty voices, accompanied by the pianoforte and Mustel organ, played by Miss Laura Anstice and Miss Anstice. The solos were taken by Mrs. A. J. Sutton (Birmingham), Mrs. J. Hayward (Wolverhampton), Mr. W. Anstice, and Mr. J. A. Anstice. The Concert was a complete success. Mr. Smart (Newport), who has taught the Society from its commencement in January, 1877, conducted, and there was a large audience.

OCKLEY.—Mr. Charles G. Sadler, Organist of the parish church, gave a Concert in aid of the choir fund on November 29, when he was assisted by Miss Chasemore, Miss Marian Piggott, Lee Steere, Esq., M.P.; H. C. Lee Steere, Esq.; Rev. F. P. Du Sautoy, B.D, and the choir of St. Margaret's. The programme consisted of glees, songs, and piano solos. The singing of Rossini's "Carnovale" by the choir won a deserved encore, and reflected much credit on Mr. Sadler's training. The room was crowded. Mr. Sadler conducted.

OXFORD.—The Philharmonic Society gave a miscellaneous Concert of glees, part-songs, &c., interspersed with some instrumental music in the Town Hall, on November 28. The principal item in the programme was Mendelssohn's C minor Trio for piano, violin, and violoncello. Fraulein Amalie Kling and Mrs. Hubert Blake sang, the latter introducing a song of her own. Mr. Taylor conducted.——The Misses Robertson, assisted by Miss de Fonblanque, Mr. Tower, and Mr. Thorndike, gave a Concert in the Town Hall on the 6th ult. The programme was miscellaneous. Signor Randegger was the Conductor.

PAISLEY.—The members of the Sol-Fa Institute gave their first Concert for this season in the Abbey on the 13th ult., when Spohr's Oratorio The Last Judgment, Mendelssohn's 13th Psalm, and selections from the Stabat Mater were well rendered. The principal singers were Miss José Sherrington, Miss Emily Dones, and Mr. Pearson. The accompaniments were sustained by the Glasgow Resident Orchestra, and Mr. Pattinson presided at the organ. The bass solos were sung by a member of the choir, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of Mr. Fox. Mr. J. A. Brown conducted in his usual careful manner.

ROCHESTER.—The eighteenth Subscription Concert of the Choral Society took place on Monday the 9th ult., when Herr Kappey's Cantata, entitled Per Mare per Terram, was performed for the first time. The story, written by the Rev. J. G. Bailey, is mainly of a martial character, and afforded the musician ample scope for variety of treatment. Herr Kappey may be congratulated on the successful result of his labours. Miss Mary Davies sang the soprano music with much taste and artistic feeling, creating a special impression in the song "My heart is full of fear," and in the final duet with Mr. Lloyd, the latter piece being encored. Mr. Lloyd gave the tenor music with his accustomed finish and excellence, being encored in the song with chorus, "O wild is the joy of the soldier's life," and Mr. Bridson's fine voice was heard to advantage in the bass air, "The watch at sea," which was warmly redemanded. The most noteworthy choruses were the Sailors' chorus in the first part, and the Funeral March, "Lay them to rest," the latter being loudly encored. The band (led by Herr Kummer) and chorus, consisting of over 250 performers, had evidently rehearsed with much care; and the advantage of the public rehearsal given on the previous Saturday, in accordance with the custom of this Society, was fully apparent at the performance. At the rehearsal the solo music was rendered by Miss Mary Davies, Mr. Blandford, and Signor Federici. The rehearsal and performance were conducted by the composer, who was recalled at the conclusion to receive the warm congratulations of the numerous audience.

RYDE.—On Tuesday, the 3rd ult., the Ryde Choral Union, under the direction of Miss Margaret F. Fowles (Organist of St. Michael and All Angels Church), gave Handel's Judas Maccabæus, in the large Town Hall. Mr. C. Fletcher was the leader of the orchestra, which consisted of the full complement of strings, with flute, oboe, clarionets, cornet, trombone and drums. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Brown, Miss Florence Wydford, and Messrs. Kenningham and Horscroft, of St. Paul's Cathedral. The choir, consisting of about fifty voices, attacked the whole of the choruses with considerable precision. Mr. J. C. Beazley, R.A.M., rendered great assistance by his able accompaniments of the recitatives on an American organ.

TEWKESBURY.—On Thursday evening, the 12th ult., the Philharmonic Society gave its first Concert of the season at the Music Hall. The programme consisted of selections from Judas Maccabæus. The principal vocalists were Miss Julia Jones, of Cheltenham, Miss Hilda Wilson and Mr. Brandon, of Gloucester, and Mr. Frederiks, of Hereford. The air "Pious orgies" was rendered by Miss Jones with much expression. Miss Hilda Wilson also made a marked impression by her excellent singing of the air "Father of Heaven." The choruses were given with precision, and reflected great credit upon Mr. George Watson, the energetic Conductor of the Society.

TUTBURY.—A Ballad Concert was given on Friday the 13th ult. by the Parish Church Choir, assisted by Miss Honeybone (Nottingham), Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cox, Mr. F. Baldwin, Mr. J. H. Twinn (harp), and Mr. R. Hodges (violin). An excellent programme was performed, much to the satisfaction of the audience, who redemanded several pieces. The special feature of the evening was the splendid singing of the choir (forty voices). Caldicott's special prize Glee, "Humpty Dumpty," was loudly applauded, and had to be repeated; Eaton Faning's "Song of the Vikings" was well sung, the effect being greatly enhanced by the pianoforte duet accompaniment brilliantly played by Miss C. F. Peach and Miss Florence Warren; and the "Legend of the Bells" (Les Cloches de Corneville) showed the high state of efficiency attained by the choir-boys under the careful training of Miss C. F. Peach. The concert was most successful. Mr. H. Drury (Derby) conducted.

WARRINGTON.—The Musical Society gave its first Concert for the season on Tuesday evening, the 10th ult., when Handel's Oratorio Samson was performed. The chorus numbered more than 100 voices, and the band thirty performers. The soloists were Miss Anna Williams, Madame Enriquez, Mr. W. Shakespeare, and Signor Brocolini. Dr. Hiles conducted. The rendering of the Oratorio was highly satisfactory; the choir is larger and better balanced than ever, and the band has wonderfully improved. The whole of the practices have been held under Dr. Hiles's direction, and the advantage of uniform training was abundantly manifested.

WORTHING.—The members of the Worthing Sacred Harmonic Society gave an excellent performance of the Messiah on Wednesday evening, the 11th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Catherine Penna, Miss Annie Butterworth, Mr. Sidney Tower, and Mr. Bridson; Organist, Mr John Spearing, organist of the Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society. The choir presented its full strength, and the performance was conducted by Mr. L. S. Palmer, who is entitled to great praise for the general excellence of the Concert. The orchestra was very efficient, the excellent trumpet obbligato of Mr. A. H. Collet giving additional effect to Mr. Bridson's rendering of the air "The trumpet shall sound."

WOTTON-UNDER-EDGE.—A most successful Concert was given in the Town Hall on Friday evening, November 29. The vocalists were Miss L'Estrange, Miss Lydia Elsmore, Mr. Dyson (of Worcester Cathedral), and Mr. Montagu Worlock, all of whom were enthusiastically received. The concerted pieces were excellently rendered. Mr. F. W. Partridge, organist of Christ Church, Beckenham, conducted, and played two pianoforte solos by Chopin and Rubinstein.

YORK.—The York Musical Society inaugurated its second season by a very praiseworthy rendering of Mendelssohn's Oratorio St. Paul. The principal vocalists were Madame Edith Wynne, Miss Helen D'Alton, Mr. Barton McGuckin, and Mr. Thurley Beale. The band and chorus, about 200 strong, under the able conductorship of Mr. R. S. Burton, acquitted themselves very creditably.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Thomas Armstrong, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church of Tenby, South Wales.—Mr. F. Angel, to Royal Dockyard Church, Portsmouth.—Mr. C. Stanley Wise, Organist and Choirmaster to Godalming Parish Church.—Mr. W. J. Kempton, to St. Mark's, Dundela, near Belfast.—Mr. Law Starkey, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's Episcopal Church, Dumfries.—Mr. Francis Howell, Organist and Choirmaster to Boxley Church, Maidstone.—Mr. G. Hermann Lott, to St. John's, Hammersmith.

CHOIR APPOINTMENT.—Mr. Herbert Schartau (Alto), Lay Vicar Choral to Westminster Abbey.

OBITUARY.

On November 19, at Gloucester, the Rev. JOHN ANTES LATROBE, late Vicar of St. Thomas's, Kendal.

On November 30, at 34, Manor Street, Clapham, after a painful illness of nine months, MARY CATHERINE HALLETT, aged 10 years and 1 month, elder daughter of J. Hallett Sheppard.

On the 4th ult., at Dytchley Park, Oxford, FREDERICK GYE, in his 69th year.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

RANDEGGER, A.—Singing (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers). Paper covers, 4s.; paper boards, 5s.

BRIDGE, J. F., Mus. Doc., Oxon.—Mount Moriah. Chorus parts.

ROSSINI.—Stabat Mater. The Accompaniments arranged for Pianoforte and Harmonium, by J. LEMMENS. 6s.

SERGISON, W. de M.—Te Deum in A, a plain setting for Congregational use. Octavo, 6d.

SHEPPARD, Rev. H. FLEETWOOD.—Nunc dimittis to the 6th Tone. For Voices and Organ. Post 8vo, 2d.

—— Te Deum. Composed and partly arranged from Ancient Melodies. Octavo, 3d.

CLAXTON, W.—"Blessed is the people." Anthem, 8vo, 6d.

PERROT, C. H.—"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom." Anthem. Octavo, 3d.

SIMPSON, J. J.—"Bow down Thine ear, O Lord." Anthem for Lent or general use. Octavo, 3d.

LONGDEN, Rev. W. G.—Six Hymns by various Authors. Octavo, 6d.

WILLIAMS, C. L.—An Evening Hymn "Eventide is hushed in silence." The words by Sir GEORGE R. FETHERSTON, Bart. Octavo, 4d.

MENDELSSOHN.—"Hear my prayer, O Lord" (Veni Domine). Op 39. No. 1. Octavo, 3d.

—— "O Praise the Lord" (Laudate pueri Dominum). Op. 39. No. 2. Octavo, 4d.

—— "O Lord, Thou hast searched me out (Surrexit pastor bonus). Op. 39. No. 3. Octavo, 6d.

CALDICOTT, A. J.—"Yule." Part-song. 8vo, 4d.

MACFARREN, G. A.—"The Miller." Four-Part Song (S.A.T.B.). Words by GEORGE COLMAN (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Part-Song Book, No. 392). 3d.

BRIDGE, Dr. J. F.—"Forget-me-not." Song. Words by Miss G. E. TROUTBECK. 1s. 6d.

—— "Tears." Song. Words by J. F. INNES POCOCK. 1s. 6d.

LEEVES, Rev. W.—"Auld Robin Gray." With a Recitative as originally composed about 1770. 1s.

TOZER, A. E.—"Holy Worship." Sacred Song. 2s.

JOYCE, C. P.—The Ramleh Polka. 1s. 6d.

SILAS, E.—Bagatelle, for Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

SPARK, Dr. W.—Organist's Quarterly Journal. Part XLI. 5s. Overture, G. Merkel (Op. 123); Andante, Richard I. Monkton; Postlude, John Naylor, Mus. Doc., Oxon.; Andante, Henry Hiles, Mus. Doc, Oxon.; Fantasia, C. J. Frost, Mus. B.

MISS ANNETTE IVANOVA (Soprano).
Pupil of Signor Lablache and Signor Odoardo Barri.
For Concerts, &c., address, Brooklyn, Howard Road, South Norwood

MISS MARGARET BUCKNALL, A.R.A.M.
(Pianiste).
For Concerts, address, Lawn House, 35, South Lambeth Road, S.W.

MR. GORDON GOOCH (BASS).—Bronze and Silver Medalist of the Royal Academy of Music, having recovered from his severe indisposition, begs to announce that he can now accept ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIO and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MENDELSSOHN SCHOLARSHIP. Founded in honour of the memory of Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy for the education of musical students of both sexes. A scholarship of the value of £80 per annum, subject to renewal, is now VACANT. Candidates between the ages of 14 and 24, being single, and natives of or domiciled in Great Britain or Ireland, should apply in writing (inclosing testimonials and certificate of birth) to the Secretary. Address, as below, on or before Jan. 15 next. In awarding scholarship preference will be given to talent in composition, specimens of which should be sent with the applications.

Copies of the rules may be had from the Secretary.

By order, JULIAN MARSHALL, Hon. Sec.
13, Belsize Avenue, London, N.W., Dec. 2, 1878.

ALTO, TENOR, and BASS WANTED. Surpliced Choir. Organista, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWO LAY-CLERKSHIPS (ALTO and TENOR) are VACANT in Canterbury Cathedral. Applications and testimonials should be sent, on or before January 11, to the Precentor, from whom particulars may be obtained.

ORGANIST of Parish Church in a Cathedral town would be glad to meet with a Young Gentleman as PUPIL. He would reside with the Organist, assist at the services, and receive a general musical education. Three-manual organ. Premium required. Town very healthy. Address, A. A., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. APPOINTMENT WANTED, by the late Organist of St. Jude's Church, Glasgow. Good testimonials and references as to character and ability. Address, Mr. George Paxton More, 26, Lucius Street, Torquay.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and SALESMAN.—WANTED a respectable young man as indoor Tuner. He would occasionally be required to assist in selling instruments; he should therefore be able to try a piano nicely, and be of good appearance and address. Apply, stating salary and full particulars, to Pigott and Co., 112, Grafton Street, Dublin.

WANTED, a PIANOFORTE REPAIRER and REGULATOR; one who can tune preferred. State salary required, &c., to C. J. Vincent, 30, Bridge Street, Sunderland.

QUARTERLY SALE OF MUSICAL PROPERTY.—IMPORTANT to the TRADE and PUBLIC.—145 Pianofortes by Collard, Broadwood, Kirkman, Hopkinson, Allison, Erard, Wornum, Maunder, Gautier, Cayley, Ivory, Ziegler, &c. Harps by leading makers. Harmoniums and Organs by best English and Continental manufacturers. Music and Music-Stools. A great assemblage of Pianoforte Small Work, comprising Hammers, Felt, Skins, Screws, Butts, Dampers, Rails, Legs, &c. Musical Boxes, Violins, Tuning-Hammers, Circular Saws, Umbrellas, Watches, Rings, Paintings, Orchestral Music, Kettle and Bass Drums, Cymbals, Violoncellos, Concertinas, Bugles, &c., &c., being unredeemed pledges from Pawnbrokers, and Surplus Stock (from several dealers) returned from hire.

MESSRS. KELLY & CO. will Sell the above by Auction, at their Great Rooms, 11, Charles Street, Berners Street, London, W., on Wednesday, January 8, 1879, commencing at 12 o'clock precisely. The goods may be viewed, and catalogues had, the day prior and morning of sale.

MARATHON

A CANTATA

COMPOSED FOR SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BASS, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA, OR PIANOFORTE

BY

R. FORSEY BRION

Associate of the Royal Academy of Music.

Price Three Shillings net. Orchestral Parts on loan.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; B. HOLLIS and Co., 63, Ebury Street, Eaton Square, W.

MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH

ARRANGED FOR PIANOFORTE SOLO BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price Five Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL, &c.

41, RATHBONE PLACE, LONDON, W.
October 1, 1878.

GENTLEMEN,

I have the pleasure to inform you that I have been appointed by Messieurs DEBAIN and Co., of Paris, their sole representative for the United Kingdom and Colonies, and to attach hereto their letter to this effect.

The lease Messieurs DEBAIN and Co. had of the building, 357, Oxford Street, having expired, I have taken suitable premises at the above address, which will be so stocked as to meet with promptitude all orders for Instruments indicated on the Descriptive Lists.

I scarcely need mention that the superior character of Messieurs DEBAIN and Co.'s manufactures is so well known as not now to require an introductory commendation: this is confirmed—the Gold Medal having been awarded to them by the Jury of the present Paris Exhibition.

Trusting to receive a continuance and extension of your favours, which at all times will have my best and prompt attention,

I beg to remain,
Gentlemen,
Yours obediently,
J. STUTTAFORD.

LONDRES ET PARIS,
Octobre 1, 1878.

MESSIEURS,

Le bail de notre établissement de Londres (357, Oxford Street) ayant expiré, nous avons fait des arrangements avec Monsieur JOHN STUTTAFORD pour nous représenter en qualité de Seul Agent en Angleterre et ses Colonies.

Toutes les lettres d'affaires que nous recevrons de ces sources seront renvoyées à M. STUTTAFORD pour qu'il y réponde, et pour éviter tout délai nous vous prions d'adresser toute votre correspondance directement à M. STUTTAFORD.

Monsieur STUTTAFORD a été attaché à notre maison pendant un grand nombre d'années, et c'est en toute confiance et avec le plus grand plaisir que nous le nommons notre représentant.

Dans l'espoir que vous voudrez bien continuer à nous favoriser de vos commandes, nous vous prions, Messieurs, d'agréer l'assurance de notre parfaite considération.

DEBAIN ET CIE

[Translation.]

LONDON AND PARIS,
October 1, 1878.

GENTLEMEN,

Our lease of the premises at the above address having expired, we have arranged with Mr. JOHN STUTTAFORD to represent us as our Sole Agent for England and the Colonies.

As all business letters received by us from the above sources will be forwarded to Mr. STUTTAFORD for his reply, delays would be avoided by addressing to the London Agency direct.

Mr. STUTTAFORD has been engaged in our Firm for many years, and it is with the utmost confidence and pleasure we instal him as our representative.

In the hope that you will continue to favour us with your commands, we beg you, gentlemen, to accept the assurance of our sincere regards.

DEBAIN & CO.

THE LATE DR. ELVEY'S PSALTER.

THE PSALTER;

OR, CANTICLES AND PSALMS OF DAVID.

Pointed for Chanting on a New Principle, with Explanations and Directions.

BY THE LATE

STEPHEN ELVEY, MUS. DOC.,

Organist of New and St. John's Colleges, and Organist and Choragus to the University of Oxford.

EIGHTH EDITION. Demy 8vo, cloth, 5s.

ALSO,

A CHEAPER EDITION

(the Eleventh).

With a Memorandum on the Pointing of the "GLORIA PATRI," by Sir G. J. ELVEY. Fcap. 8vo, cloth limp, 2s. 6d.

THE CANTICLES SEPARATELY

(Sixteenth Edition). Fcap. 8vo, 6d.

The Psalter is used at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and at many Cathedrals.

"There can be no doubt but that we owe most of what is good in the chanting of to-day to the (seven years) labour and care bestowed on the first edition of this work issued in 1856."—Musical Standard, September 25, 1875.

"Taken as a whole, Dr. Elvey's work has not been surpassed. . . . We believe that educated musicians generally—with a sense of the importance of this part of worship—if they must chant from such a pointed Psalter, would prefer Dr. Elvey's conscientious framework to any other we know."—The Orchestra, January, 1878.

OXFORD AND LONDON: JAMES PARKER AND CO.

THE PSALTER AND CANTICLES

POINTED AND SET TO ACCOMPANYING

CHANTS, ANCIENT AND MODERN,

By the Rev. SIR H. W. BAKER, Bart., and WILLIAM HENRY MONK,

Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, London.

The Cheap Edition, with Vocal Score (Gregorians in unison), is now ready; size, double post 16mo.

Limp cloth, cut flush, and lettered ... ... 2s. od.
Cloth boards, turned in, and lettered ... ... 2s. 6d.
Cloth boards, turned in, gilt lettered, red edges ... 3s. od.

A large Imperial 8vo Edition, with accompanying harmonies for the Gregorian Tones, is in the Press.

The distinctive object aimed at is to unite under the same pointing two forms of chant hitherto considered incompatible—the Ancient and the Modern, the Gregorian and the Anglican—and to introduce a new form of Chant, which is commended with confidence for the use of Parish Choirs.

The work includes about 50 varieties of the Gregorian Chants, some from sources not easily accessible; and about 390 chants of the Anglican form, of which 100 are more or less well known, the remainder having been composed expressly for this work by musicians of distinction, including most of our Cathedral Organists.

Canticles only, 6d., 9d., and 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa and Plain Song Editions will be published as soon as possible.

London: W. CLOWES and SONS, 13, Charing Cross, S.W.

New and Enlarged Edition.

THE

WESTMINSTER ABBEY CHANT-BOOK.

EDITED BY

JAMES TURLE,

AND

J. F. BRIDGE, MUS. DOC., OXON,

Paper Cover, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth ..	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper covers. 32mo.	0	3
Canticles, 32mo	0	1
Ditto, 8vo	0	3
The Psalter, with Chants, Post Quarto, cloth ..	5	0

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post Quarto, paper covers	2	0
Ditto, cloth	3	0
Foolscap Quarto, paper covers	1	0
Ditto, cloth	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The Musical Times.

CASES

FOR BINDING THE NUMBERS FOR THE PAST YEAR,

VOLUME XIX.,

Are now ready, and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country.

Cloth, bevelled boards, handsome design.

PRICE 1s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

New Vocal Album of Part Music

EDITED CHIEFLY BY

DR. G. A. MACFARREN.

SECULAR SERIES.

Zephyr, taking thy repose (S.A.T.B.)	Dr. Macfarren	2d.
As the moments roll (A.T.T.B.)	Webbe ...	1d.
A little farm well tilled (T.T.B.)	J. Hook ...	1d.
Come on, jolly hearts (T.T.B.)	Dr. Hayes ...	1d.
Lass of Richmond Hill (S.A.T.B.)	J. Hook ...	2d.
Dame Durden (S.A.T.B.)		1d.
Three merry chafers (T.T.B.B.)	Truhn... ...	1d.
Soldier's love (T.T.B.B.)	Kücken ...	1d.
In the wood (Am Walde) (T.T.B.B.)	Kücken ...	1d.
Good night (S.A.T.B.)	Cooke... ...	2d.
The lost (S.A.T.B.)	W. Spinney ...	2d.
Spring (S.S.S.)	E. H. Thorne	4d.
Remembrance (S.A.T.B.)	G. B. Lissant	3d.

Order Dr. Macfarren's editions.

HOLLIS and Co., 63, Ebury Street, S.W.

THE CLASSIC COMPANION. 60 easy and moderately difficult pieces of the 17th and 18th centuries (from Corelli to Mozart) revised by E. PAUER (Mozart's Portrait at the age of seven). 4to, paper, 8s; elegantly bound, net, 12s. AUGENER and Co.

THE CHILDREN'S HANDEL. 36 Piano Pieces (without octaves) and Duets. Arranged by E. PAUER, with Portrait and Biography. Blue 4to, vol. 8,151, net, 3s. AUGENER and Co., Newgate Street, and Regent Street.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S ALBUMS OF DANCE MUSIC.

The ever-increasing sale of these Albums in the United Kingdom, the Colonies, and America, is the best evidence that the judicious selection of the Dances in them is fully appreciated. Many publications of the kind contain a large proportion of music which has been found to be unsuccessful in the ordinary form; the music in ASHDOWN & PARRY'S Albums, on the contrary, is the best of its kind, and every piece has in its original form attained great popularity; in this respect they are unique, and form a permanent, attractive, and varied selection of excellent Dance Music in a portable and convenient form at an extremely low price.

FIRST ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC.

CONTENTS.

Valse	"Cornflower"	C. Coote, jun.
Quadrille	"Dolly Varden"	Marriott.
Galop	"The Outpost"	C. Godfrey.
Polka-Mazurka	"Trebelli"	H. Roubier.
Lancers	"Punch and Judy"	H. S. Roberts.
Schottische	"The Atherstone"	J. C. Van Maanen.
Quadrille	"Caledonians"	Marriott.
Valse	"Princess Louise"	C. Godfrey.
Polka	"Early in the Morning"	C. Coote.
Country Dance	"Sir Roger de Coverley"	Old English.

Price One Shilling.

SECOND ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC.

CONTENTS.

Valse	"L'Innocence"	C. Coote, jun.
Quadrille	"Punch and Judy"	H. S. Roberts.
Galop	"Fun of the Ball"	Marriott.
Polka-Mazurka	"Mignonette"	C. Godfrey.
Lancers	"Ye Merrie Old Times"	F. Godfrey.
Schottische	"Kettledrum"	C. Godfrey.
Quadrille	"Caledonians" (with the figures)	R. Coote.
Valse	"An der Themse Strand"	Kéler Béla.
Polka	"Butterfly's Ball"	C. Coote, jun.
Country Dance	"Speed the Plough"	Old English.

Price One Shilling.

THIRD ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC.

CONTENTS.

Valse	"Pauline"	C. Coote, jun.
Quadrille	"Chilpéric"	Marriott.
Galop	"After Dark"	Montgomery.
Polka	"Blush Rose"	C. Godfrey.
Lancers	"Princess Louise"	C. Godfrey.
Schottische	"Jenny Bell"	H. C. Swatton.
Quadrille	"England and Wales"	Marriott.
Valse	"Kathleen Mavourneen"	Montgomery.
Galop	"Wind-up"	C. Godfrey.
Country Dance	"Off She goes"	Old English.

Price One Shilling.

FOURTH ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC.

CONTENTS.

Valse	"The Language of Flowers"	C. Coote, jun.
Quadrille	"Blue Beard"	C. Coote, jun.
Galop	"Domino"	C. Coote, jun.
Polka	"Jolly Dogs"	Marriott.
Lancers	"Christmas Time"	W. C. Levey.
Schottische	"Nelly"	C. Godfrey.
Quadrille	"Patchwork"	E. M. Lott.
Valse	"Kate Kearney"	C. Coote.
Polka-Mazurka	"Blue Bell"	Marriott.
Country Dance	"The Tank"	Old English.

Price One Shilling.

LONDON: ASHDOWN & PARRY,
HANOVER SQUARE.

TITO DI GIO. RICORDI, OF MILAN,

Has the honour to announce that on the 21st ult. his

LONDON MUSIC ESTABLISHMENT WAS REMOVED
TO
No. 265, REGENT STREET, W.

LISTS OF VOCAL, PIANOFORTE, OR INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC OF EVERY DESCRIPTION
Gratis and Post-free.

ALL SHEET MUSIC AT HALF-PRICE.

SAMPLE COPIES TO THE TRADE ON THE USUAL TERMS.

ALL WORKS PRODUCED IN ITALY, &c., PROMPTLY
PROCURED WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE.

265, { REGENT STREET, W., LONDON. } 265,

SCHOTT AND CO.'S
NEW CATALOGUES
OF

PIANOFORTE MUSIC	HARP MUSIC
VIOLIN "	CHAMBER MUSIC
TENOR (VIOLA) "	(Pianoforte Trios, Quartetts, &c.)
VIOLONCELLO "	ORCHESTRAL MUSIC
DOUBLE-BASS "	SACRED "
FLUTE "	MASSES
CLARIONET "	ELEMENTARY VOCAL MUSIC
ORGAN "	FRENCH ROMANCES

HARMONIUM MUSIC.

AND OF THE WORKS OF

RICHARD WAGNER	ALEX. GUILMANT
CHARLES GOUNOD	CAMILLE SAINT-SAËNS

J. MASSENET.
ALSO THE MELODIES OF
J. FAURE.

May be had, post-free, on application to SCHOTT and Co., 159, Regent Street, London, W.

Just published.

RIENZI:
THE LAST OF THE TRIBUNES.
BY RICHARD WAGNER.

Only complete Vocal Score, German, Italian and English words (the latter by J. PITTMAN). 8vo.

Price, paper covers, net 5s.; paper boards, net 6s.; cloth, richly gilt, net 7s. 6d.

SCHOTT and Co., 159, Regent Street, London, W.

Just published.

SUITE
PRELUDE, MAZURKA, SCHERZO, AND MARCH FOR PIANOFORTE,
COMPOSED BY
AGNES ZIMMERMANN.
Op. 22.
Price 10s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A

MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

Choir-Trainers and Schoolmasters

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight in a comparatively short time.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT.

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CLASS SINGERS' A B C

Price Sixpence,

BY LOUISA GIBSON,

Author of "A First Book," "A Second Book," and "A Third Book on the Theory of Music." Very highly recommended by the leading musicians of Great Britain for the use of schools.

London: WEEKES & Co.; NOVELLO, EWER & Co.; WHITTAKER & Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO VIOLINISTS, TEACHERS, and AMATEURS. 100 Easy and Progressive DUETS from the works of the best composers. In four books, post-free, 2s. each. A Pianoforte and Violoncello part to Books 1 and 2 for Easy and Progressive Trios and Quartetts. London: J. Williams, 24, Berners Street; or H. S. Davies, 4, Stratford Road, Kensington, W.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Also an APPENDIX, containing faults in action with remedies. Price 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. Hemstock, Diss, Norfolk.

THE YOUNG PIANIST'S GUIDE

BY

HEINRICH WOLFAHRT.

Twelfth Edition, containing 206 Exercises. The English translation by ARTHUR O'LEARY.

Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, MUS. DOC., M.A.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR SCHOOLS AND SINGING CLASSES.

Now Ready, 15th Edition, price 1s. 6d.

SILCHER'S MELODIES for YOUTH, containing Sixty Songs for two, three, and four equal voices, composed by SILCHER, and adapted to English words for the use of Schools and Singing-Classes, by FRANCIS L. SOPER.

"One of the best publications of its kind."—Athenæum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., Stationers' Hall Court.

TRUTH AND EASE IN MUSIC. NO MORE SHARP OR FLAT KEYS FOR INSTRUMENTALIST OR VOCALIST.

Just published, price Sixpence, with illustrations, a new edition (1879) of

THE SEQUENTIAL SYSTEM OF MUSICAL NOTATION.

BY WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

"Its completeness and simplicity, when once understood, should recommend it to universal adoption."—Blackburn Standard.

London: E. W. ALLEN, 11, Ave Maria Lane.

Now ready.

FOURTH EDITION, REVISED AND CORRECTED,

A TREATISE ON HARMONY

AND THE

CLASSIFICATION OF CHORDS

WITH

QUESTIONS AND EXERCISES FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS

BY

JOHN STAINER,

Mus. Doc., M.A.

CLOTH, SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

Just published.

(186 pp.)

MUSICAL FORMS

BY

ERNST PAUER.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

PAPER BOARDS, 2s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

SEVENTH THOUSAND

REVISED AND ENLARGED

THE

RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC

BY

W. H. CUMMINGS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

PAPER BOARDS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIXTY-FIRST EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

Third edition, 2s. 6d. net.

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

SECOND EDITION.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

ARRANGED FOR

TWO AND THREE VOICES.

SPECIALLY ADAPTED FOR

HIGH SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS, PUBLIC SCHOOLS, & SINGING-CLASSES.

In Three Books, price 3s. each, net.

BOOKS I. AND II., DUETS; BOOK III., TRIOS.

COLLEGIATE ORGAN TUTOR.

EDITED BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

3s. 6d. net.

"Well adapted for making an excellent player."

"For pedal-playing, any difficulties surmounted in a short time."

"Contains the most pleasing arrangements for the organ we have seen."

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

COLLEGIATE PIANOFORTE TUTOR.

5s. (2s. 6d. net.)

FOR BEGINNERS.—"Not to be equalled."
" "Suited for every capacity."
" "Cannot fail to make a good player."
FOR TEACHERS.—"A great boon."
" "Once tried, always used."

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

SACRED COMPOSITIONS

OF

R. L. DE PEARSALL.

TO BE PUBLISHED IN ONE VOLUME, CLOTH.

Subscribers, One Guinea; Non-Subscribers, 31s. 6d.

CONTENTS.

SERVICES.	ANTHEMS.
Te Deum, Jubilate, Sanctus and Kyrie } in C.	O give thanks unto the Lord.
	I will cry unto God.
	O clap your hands.
Magnificat, Nunc dimittis } in F.	I will arise.
	My heart is fixed.
Magnificat, Nunc dimittis } in G.	Let God arise.
	I heard a voice.
	O come let us sing.
Psalm Tunes and Chants.	Blessed is every one.

Subscribers' Names received by the Editor, Mr. W. F. TRIMNELL, Clifton College, Bristol.

BALLET-OPERA CHORUSES

(WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT).

COMPOSED BY

R. L. DE PEARSALL.

No. 1.	Chorus—	"Sing to me, nightingale!" ...	S.A.T.B.	3d.
„ 2.	„	"Come to the woods so free!" ...	„	3d.
„ 3.	„	"When nightingales are singing"	„	3d.
„ 4.	„	"Shining waters!"	„	3d.
„ 5.	„	"Pluck roses while you may!" ...	„	3d.
„ 6.	„	"Sing, glad hearts!"	„	3d.
„ 7.	„	"When the heart is gay"	„	3d.
„ 8.	„	"Homeward sailing!"	„	3d.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

CHRISTMAS CAROL

COMPOSED BY

R. L. DE PEARSALL

Faithful Homage Pay.

Price Twopence.

(No. 101.—COLLEGIATE SERIES.)

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

COLLEGIATE SERIES

PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, &c.,

COMPOSED BY

R. L. DE PEARSALL.

No.
52.	Ballad Dialogue	...Who kill'd Cock Robin? (Folio, 3s.)	3d.
50.	Part-Song...	...Brave Lord Willoughby	3d.
25.	Madrigal ...	...Here on the waters	4d.
53.	Part-Song...	...Her eyes the glow-worm	3d.
4.	Student's Song	...The Three Friends. S.A.T.B.	3d.
5.	Student's Song	... „ „ T.T.B.B.	3d.
60.	Madrigal ...	...Down by a river straying	4d.
61.	Madrigal ...	...Hie away! o'er bank and brae	4d.
58.	Glee ...	...Flow, limpid stream. A.T.B.B.	3d.
51.	Student's Song	...Gaudeamus igitur	3d.
74.	Part-Song	...Springs she not as light as air	2d.
68.	Part-Song	...A lad and lassie. S.A.T.B.	2d.
70.	Part-Song	...True love, to-day I must away	2d.
64.	Madrigal ...	...When old King Cole	3d.
54.	Madrigal ...	...My bonnie lass, she smileth	3d.
67.	Glee ...	...Glorious Apollo	2d.
73.	Part-Song	...Was there not a look of fondness	2d.
55.	Part-Song	...Robin Hood	3d.
65.	Glee ...	...King Charles	3d.
72.	Part-Song	...My mother loves me not	2d.
69.	Part-Song	...Spring brings flow'rets fair	2d.
71.	Part-Song	...'Twas a trumpet's pealing sound	3d.
63.	Part-Song	...My enemies they do increase...	3d.
62.	Part-Song	...'Tis raining!	3d.
59.	Part-Song	...The poacher's song	3d.
56.	Market Chorus	...The Villagers (with Pianoforte, Flute, or Violin Accompaniment), Chorus of Peasants, Market Women, Swiss Jodel, &c.	4d.
102.	Part-Song	...Sally in our alley	2d.

DULCIANA.

13.	National Anthem, God save the Queen ... (With Organ Accompaniment, Full Score, 2s. 6d.)	20th Edition	2d.
7.	Part-Song	...Auld lang syne (Organ Acc.) 26th Edition	3d.
27.	National ...	...Rule, Britannia (Organ Accompaniment)...	2d.
48.	Chorus (Noël)	...Christmas (Piano and Organ Accomp.) ...	2d.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper covers, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT-BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

REDUCED PRICES OF

OUSELEY AND MONK'S

POINTED PSALTER.

		s.	d.
4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score		4	0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	Each	1	6
32mo Edition. Words only		0	9
Ditto ditto with Proper Psalms		1	0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

SOFTLY THE ECHOES COME AND GO. Christmas Carol for One and Four Voices. 2s. 6d. By W. HARGREAVES. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Manchester: W. Hargreaves, 61, Dale Street.

SIMPLE CAROLLERS ARE WE. Carol for Christmastide. Words by J. P. DOUGLAS. Music by J. B. BOUCHER. Price 2d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS
OF THE
MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS
With Accompaniments for Organ and Orchestra:

DR. STAINER (in A). 6d.	GEORGE C. MARTIN (in C). 6d.
HENRY GADSBY (in C). 6d.	GEORGE C. MARTIN (in A). 6d.
DR. BRIDGE (in G). 4d.	BERTHOLD TOURS (in F). 4d.
EATON FANING (in C). 6d.	C. E. MILLER (in E). 6d.

The above may also be performed either with String and Organ Accompaniment, or with Organ only, when necessary.

GEORGE C. MARTIN (in B♭). 6d.

(For full Military Band, or Trumpets, Trombones, and Organ only).
Orchestral parts to the above Services can be had on hire from the publishers.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dr. S. S. Wesley's Chant Services.

	s.	d.
CHANT SERVICE, in the Key of G	1	0
CHANT SERVICE, in the Key of F (LETTER B)	0	9
EVENING SERVICE, from ditto	0	4
TREBLE PART OF COMPLETE SERVICE	0	4

In ordering this Service, please specify LETTER B.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DR. S. S. WESLEY'S EUROPEAN PSALMIST.—A few surplus copies of the Subscription Edition of this Work are to be had of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. Price 24s.

Just published.
THE
MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE
Set to music in the key of A, by
F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.
Op. 69.
New Edition, edited by Dr. STAINER.
Octavo, One Shilling and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS
(IN C)
BY
EATON FANING.
Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, 1878.
Octavo, 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.
HARK! 'TIS THE BREEZE OF TWILIGHT CALLING. Duet. Soprano and Tenor, or Two Soprani, 4s. Also Solo, arranged as a Song for a Single Voice, in a lower key, 4s. Sold at half-price. Sung by Her Grace the Duchess of Newcastle, Mdlle. Titiens, Miss Banks, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Tom Höhler, and Mr. W. H. Cummings.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"There is a beautiful duet, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze,' which may be sung by young ladies' or boys' voices, and would be well worth introducing into our schools and colleges."—Dublin Review.

"The gem of the Oratorio—a duet for soprano and tenor, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze,' in which the voice parts are treated in canon."—Times.

"A charming duet, entitled, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' was enthusiastically encored."—Morning Advertiser.

"The most melodious and completely finished composition is the canon, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' and this was encored with well-bestowed enthusiasm."—Daily Telegraph.

"The really charming duet, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' produced a most spontaneous and enthusiastic encore."—Standard.

"A graceful duet in form of canon, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' one of the most charming pieces in the Oratorio, was unanimously encored."—London Review.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUITABLE FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.
THE BENEDICTUS
(BLESSED BE THE LORD GOD OF ISRAEL).
Set to Music for Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra
BY
C. SWINNERTON HEAP,
Mus. Doc., Cantab.
Octavo, Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PAROCHIAL ANTHEMS, by T. MEE PATTISON.

O PRAISE THE LORD (Chorus, Duet for Two Trebles, Chorus)	3d.
O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus)	3d.
IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus)	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
BACH CHOIR MAGAZINE
SELECT VOCAL PART-MUSIC OF DIFFERENT SCHOOLS.
Edited and marked for the use of the Bach Choir by
OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT.

Adoramus te. Motett	Palestrina / Vittoria	3d.
Jesu Dulcis. Motett
Presentation of Christ in the Temple. Motett, 6 voices	Eccard	6d.
Hodie Christus natus est. Christmas Motett, 2 choirs	Palestrina	6d.
Now is Christ risen. Choral-Motett, 5 voices	Michael Bach	3d.
Sanctus (Missa Papæ Marcelli)	Palestrina	6d.
Benedictus and Agnus Dei (Missa Papæ Marcelli) ...	Palestrina	6d.
Magnificat. 8 voices	Gabrieli	6d.
Now shall the grace. Double Chorus	J. S. Bach	8d.
Psalm xxiii. Solo Voices and Eight-part Chorus ...	L. Spohr	9d.
Adoramus te. Motett	Palestrina / Vittoria	4d.
O quam gloriosum. Motett
Sanctus...	J. S. Bach	6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:—

No.		s.	d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper covers	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo	1	6
„	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type, Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK, containing 258 Tunes and 85 Chants.

No 1.	Limp cloth, turned in	2s.	6d.
„ 2.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3s.	6d.
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 3.	Limp cloth, turned in	2s.	od.
„ 4.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2s.	6d.

About 250,000 copies have already been sold.

Now Ready.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK (Second Series), containing 298 Tunes and 74 Chants.

No. 5.	Limp cloth	2s.	6d.
6.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3s.	6d.
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 7.	Limp cloth	2s.	od.
„ 8.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2s.	6d.

First and Second Series Bound together.

No. 9.	Limp cloth	4s.	od.
„ 10.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	5s.	od.
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa, cloth	3s.	od.

Now Ready.

SMALL EDITION of the COMPLETE WORK.

715 Tunes and Chants, providing for nearly 200 Varieties of Metre.

No. 11. Cloth 3s. od.

Each Edition may be had in Superior Binding.

Communications and inquiries as to Copyrights, and also as to supplies of this work at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; and all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Now Ready.

THE LONDON TUNE-BOOK. A Companion for all Hymnals. Cloth, 3s.; red edges, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Enlarged Edition.

TUNES, NEW AND OLD; comprising all the Metres in the Wesleyan Hymn-Book. Also, Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON; and for the most part revised or re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc.; JOHN FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon.; and SAMUEL REAY, Mus. Bac., Oxon. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, and 80 & 81, Queen Street. Sold also at 66, Paternoster Row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 5s. TONIC SOL-FA EDITION: plain cloth, 2s.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 3s.

Just published.

POHLMANN'S NATIONAL PSALMODY

BY THE LATE

Dr. H. J. GAUNTLETT.

Super Royal Octavo, price 5s. 6d.

Large Quarto, on finest paper, in elegant cover, price 7s. 6d., or in various bindings of new designs, suitable for presentation, prices, 8s. and 10s. 6d.

This work, the last completed by the late Dr. Gauntlett, contains a fine collection of HYMN-TUNES, with words, arranged for HOME OR CONGREGATIONAL USE, and some practical rules for CHANTING AND SINGING SACRED MUSIC, with observations on accent, expression, &c., by W. H. WHITAKER.

Just published, SONATINA, by E. SILAS. Price 4s.

Published by POHLMANN and SON, Halifax; and may be had from FORSYTH BROS., London and Manchester; SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., London; and all booksellers and musicsellers.

CARNIE'S PSALMODIC WORKS. Complete Editions.

NORTHERN PSALTER. (40th Thousand.) Old Notation, 2s. 6d.; New do., 2s. 402 Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Chants, &c.

ANTHEM APPENDIX. (10th Thousand.) Either Notation, 6d. 43 Congregational Anthems and Sentences—mostly new.

PSALTER AND APPENDIX. Old Notation, 3s.; New, 2s. 6d.

PRECENTOR'S COMPANION and TEACHER'S INDICATOR, 6d.

A limited number of the original 1s. 6d. Vocal Score Edition of the Psalter, now reduced to 1s.

Aberdeen: LEWIS SMITH; TAYLOR & HENDERSON, &c. Edinburgh and Glasgow: MENZIES & Co. Dundee: METHVEN, SIMPSON & Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Revised edition. Price 7s., cloth.

PARR'S PSALMODY. 712 Tunes, Chants, and Responses: with Memoirs of the Composers and Histories of the Pieces, and references to above 200 works used in the compilation.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BURNLEY TUNE-BOOK.—NOTICE.—An ADDENDA of nearly 500 Tunes, inclusive of all the old favourite and standard Tunes, will shortly be added, and every known metre will be provided for. MSS. received. Address, the Editor, Burnley.

Just published. Price 10s. 6d., cloth boards.

200 HYMN-TUNES, by ARTHUR WOLFE, Rector of Fornham All Saints', Bury St. Edmunds, and late Tutor of Clare College, Cambridge.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IN MEMORIAM.—A Collection of the Hymn-Tunes of the late JOHN ROBERTS, of Henllan. Price 2s. 6d. post-free. To be had from W. H. Roberts, Mansfield House, Seacombe.

"Some are remarkable for freshness and originality. Evidently the author of these tunes was gifted by nature with genuine talents for music."—The Musical Times.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH.—TE DEUM in F, Threepence. SOUTHWELL SCHOOL SONGS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE MORNING SERVICE. Set to music in the key of C, by EDWIN J. CROW, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist and Choirmaster of Ripon Cathedral. Octavo. One Shilling and sixpence. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; or direct from the Author.

EASY and EFFECTIVE TE DEUMS for Parish Choirs, by ALFRED J. DYE. In E flat, price 3d.; organ copy, 6d.; and in D, price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL LAY ME DOWN IN PEACE. Anthem. Composed expressly for the Choir Benevolent Fund by HENRY GADSBY. Price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE

OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION

Set to Music in the Key of E Flat

BY

ALFRED J. EYRE,

Organist and Director of the Choir of St. Peter's, Vauxhall.

Price One Shilling.

The "BENEDICTUS QUI VENIT" and "AGNUS DEI" can be had separately, price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper covers, 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus.Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Thirteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper covers; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small Edition is in preparation.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

No. 1. Let your light so shine.	13. Charge them who are rich.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	14. God is not unrighteous.
3. Whatsoever ye would that men.	15. To do good.
4. Not every one that saith unto Me.	16. Whoso hath this world's goods.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
7. If we have sown.	19. He that hath pity upon the poor.
8. Do ye not know.	20. Blessed be the man.
9. He that soweth little.	21. Let your light so shine. Festal Setting.
10. Let him that is taught in the word.
11. While we have time.
12. Godliness is great riches.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES.

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. T. FIELD.

1. Let your light so shine.	11. While we have time.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	12. Godliness is great riches.
3. Whatsoever ye would.	13. Charge them who are rich.
4. Not every one.	14. God is not unrighteous.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	15. To do good.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	16. Whoso hath this world's good.
7. If we have sown.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
8. Do ye not know.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
9. He that soweth little.	19. He that hath pity.
10. Let him that is taught.	20. Blessed be the man.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES from the GOSPELS. Set to Music by the Rev. VYVYAN POPHAM. May be used as Introits or Short Anthems. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Edition.

THE OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION, viz.: Kyrie, Creed, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in Excelsis. Set to music (chiefly in unison) by FREDERICK CAMBRIDGE. 8vo, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY SOUL TRULY WAITETH STILL UPON GOD. Anthem for Four Voices. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d.; octavo, 4d.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD. Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 2s. 6d.; octavo, 8d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM (New).—"O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS," W. H. WILSON. Solo, Quartett, and Chorus. (Time of performance, six minutes.) Suitable for Festival or Dedication Services. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready, 8vo, price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED. Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST'S

EASY CHURCH MUSIC.

Composed expressly for Parish Choirs.

Almighty God, give us grace	Anthem 2d.
Almighty and everlasting God	,, 2d.
And I will pray the Father	,, 2d.
God is gone up	,, 2d.
Hear my prayer	,, 2d.
He shall be great	,, 3d.
Like as Christ was raised up	,, 3d.
Thou visitest the earth	,, 3d.
The Offertory Sentences (complete)	4d.
Te Deum Laudamus, in G major	3d.
Morning Service, in C major	4d.
Communion Service, ditto	6d.
Evening Service, ditto	2d.
Complete Service, ditto	1s.
Ten Kyries and Glorias before and after Gospel	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 73, Farleigh Road, Stoke Newington, N.

NEW ANTHEM FOR LENT.

BOW DOWN THINE EAR, O LORD

Composed by J. J. SIMPSON,

FOR PAROCHIAL CHOIRS.

"Short, easy, and effective." 8vo. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 3d. "Easy and Effective."

ANTHEM, "GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH." Composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by FRANK BATES, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Baldred's Episcopal Church, North Berwick, N.B. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 6, Quality Street, North Berwick, N.B.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD TOURS. In one volume, Cloth, gilt, price 5s.; or in two parts, in Paper covers, 2s. each; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d. each.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, without accompaniment. Price, in Paper covers, 1s.; in Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; or twelve numbers divided as follows, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 41.
1. In the woods ... ...
2. O fly with me ... ...
3. One night there came ...
4. Over the grave ... ...
5. May song ... ...
6. On the sea ... ...

Op. 48.
7. The first day of Spring ...
8. The primrose ... ...
9. The celebration of Spring
10. The lark's song ... ...
11. Morning Prayer (The deep repose of night) ...
12. Autumn song ... ...

Op. 59.
13. The woods ... ...
14. Early Spring ... ...
15. Departure (O hills, O vales)
16. The nightingale ... ...
17. The vale of rest ... ...
18. Hunting song ... ...

Op. 88.
19. For the New Year ...
20. The happy lover ... ...
21. The shepherd's song ...
22. The wood minstrels ...
23. The victors' return ...
24. The wandering minstrel...

Op. 100.
25. Remembrance ... ...
26. Praise of Spring ... ...
27. Spring song ... ...
28. In the forest ... ...

* A Tonic Sol-fa Edition of the above Songs (for S.A.T.B.) is in preparation.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, with ad lib. Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d; or twenty-one numbers, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 50.
29. Turkish drinking song.
30. The hunter's farewell.
31. Summer song.
32. On the water.
33. Love and wine.
34. Wanderer's song.

Op. 75.
35. The merry wayfarer.
36. Serenade.
37. Eastern drinking song.
38. Farewell meeting.

Op. 76.
39. Song of the worthy man.
40. The Rhine.
41. 'Tis the song whose spirit.
42. Students' parting song.

Op. 120.
43. A festal greeting.
44. Gipsy song.
45. Hunting song (Waken, lords).
46. Land of beauty.
47. The recompense.
48. Night song.
49. The foundation-day festival.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS

With the German and W. BARTHOLOMEW'S Original English Words.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo (German and English words), paper, 2s. net; cloth, gilt, 4s. net; or singly, 3s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

No. 1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from Ruy Blas.

N.B.—The Quartett score to No. 13, 1s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR FOUR-PART SONGS BY GABRIEL DAVIS.

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN ... ... 2d.
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE (14th Edition) ... 2d.
THE DISTANT SEA ... ... 2d.
TO THE WOODS ... ... 2d.
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC ... ... 2d.
THE HOUR OF REST ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

"ENGLAND'S GLORY"

PATRIOTIC PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Octavo, Threepence.

BY WILLIAM J. YOUNG.

"Gaily through the greenwood." 8vo. 28th edition ... ... 2d.
"I love the merry springtime." 8vo. 20th edition ... ... 2d.
"Hail, merry Christmas." 8vo. 16th edition ... ... 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION OF

Trios, Quartetts, &c.,

FOR

FEMALE VOICES.

1. The coralled caves of ocean	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
2. Heaven	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
3. Hope and memory ...	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
4. Night sinks on the wave	3 voices	Henry Smart	3d.
5. Oh! skylark, for thy wing	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
6. The bird at sea	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
7. The wood-nymphs ...	3 voices	Henry Smart	3d.
8. The fay's song	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
9. Evening	3 voices	Henry Smart	2d.
10. The water-nymphs ...	3 voices	Henry Smart	4d.
11. Where are the angels ...	3 voices	J. L. Hatton	3d.
12. Youth, joy, and hope ...	3 voices	J. L. Hatton	4d.
13. Coronach	3 voices	Schubert	3d.
14. The Lord is my shepherd	4 voices	Schubert	4d.
15. God in nature	4 voices	Schubert	4d.
16. Serenade	4 voices, with solo	Schubert	6d.
17. Glory to the Lord Almighty	3 voices	Schubert	3d.
18. O clap your hands (Ps. 47)	3 voices	E. H. Thorne	6d.
19. O sing to God (Noël) ...	3 voices, with soli S. & A.	Ch. Gounod	6d.
20. Lord, how long	3 voices	Brahms	4d.
21. Summer eve	4 voices	J. L. Hatton	3d.
22. Hail to thee, child of the earth ("Bride of Dunkerron")	3 voices	Henry Smart	2d.
23. Ave Maria ("Loreley") ...	3 voices	Mendelssohn	2d.
24. Jesus, heavenly Master ("Calvary")	3 voices	Spohr	2d.
25. Spinning Chorus ("Flying Dutchman")	S. & A. with S. solo	Wagner	3d.
26. Say, where is He born ("Christus")	3 voices	Mendelssohn	2d.
27. Hearts feel that love thee ("Athalie")	3 voices	Mendelssohn	2d.
28. Welcome to this place ...	4 voices	Sir H. Bishop	2d.
29. I waited for the Lord ("Lobgesang") ...	3 voices	Mendelssohn	3d.
30. Ave Maria	3 voices	Marchetti	3d.
31. The shades of night are flying	3 voices	Spohr	4d.
32. Yet once again ("The Magic Flute")	3 voices	Mozart	2d.
33. The Fisher Wife's Song	3 voices	J. L. Hatton	3d.
34. With a laugh as we go round ("The May Queen")	3 voices	Sir W. S. Bennett	4d.
35. In the wood	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
36. Peace	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
37. Bells in May	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
38. When does a maiden ...	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
39. Hours of rest	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
40. The Secret	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
41. Call to the mountains ...	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	3d.
42. The Wanderer's Night Song	3 voices	Dr. F. Hiller	2d.
43. Rise again, glad summer sun	3 voices, with A. solo	Henry Leslie	3d.
44. Good night	3 voices, with soli S. & A.	Henry Leslie	3d.
45. The Swallow	3 voices	Henry Leslie	3d.
46. Glorious stand the mountains	3 voices, with soli S. & A.	C. Reinthaler	2d.
47. The approach of May ...	3 voices	T. A. Walmisley	3d.
48. The mermaids	3 voices	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
49. Blanche of Provence ...	3 voices	Cherubini	3d.
50. Sunset	3 voices	Franz Abt	3d.
51. A Spring morning ...	3 voices	Franz Abt	3d.
52. On departure	3 voices	Franz Abt	2d.
53. The Father's watchful eye	3 voices	Franz Abt	3d.
54. Twilight	3 voices	Franz Abt	3d.
55. Fly forth, my song ...	3 voices	Franz Abt	3d.
56. Hear, O hear my prayer...	3 voices	Mendelssohn	3d.
57. O praise the Lord... ...	3 voices	Mendelssohn	4d.
58. O Lord, Thou hast searched	4 voices	Mendelssohn	6d.
59. Evening rest	3 voices	Oskar Wermann	4d.
60. Make the car of a golden king-cup	... ...	Sir M. Costa	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MANCHESTER GENTLEMEN'S GLEE CLUB'S PRIZE GLEES, 1878.

HUSHED IN DEATH.

A SERIOUS GLEE FOR S.A.T.B.

COMPOSED BY DR. H. HILES. PRICE SIXPENCE.

The original Edition for A.T.B.B. Price Sixpence.

HENCE, LOATHED MELANCHOLY!

A CHEERFUL GLEE FOR FIVE VOICES.

COMPOSED BY HENRY LAHEE. PRICE SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SPECIAL PRIZE GLEE.

"Humpty Dumpty" ... ... 6d.

"Jack and Jill"... ... ... 4d.
"Yule" ... ... 4d.

Post-free of the Composer, ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Worcester.

In the Press, "Little Jack Horner."

HUMPTY DUMPTY AND JACK AND JILL,

BY

A. J. CALDICOTT.

These popular glees are now published in TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Price 1½d. each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR PART-SONGS

BY

W. W. PEARSON.

THE IRONFOUNDERS ... ... 3d.
THE OCEAN ... ... 3d.
PIBROCH OF DONUIL DHU ... ... 3d.
SWEET TO LIVE AMID THE MOUNTAINS ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE REAPER AND THE FLOWERS. Four-part Song with Solos. Words by H. W. LONGFELLOW. Music by J. B. BOUCHER. Price 3d. A folio edition of the above, for one voice, may be had, post-free, price 1s. 6d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

HERE'S TO HIS HEALTH IN A SONG. By J. M. BENTLEY. "Sung with great effect on festive or civic occasions." "The finest masonic song ever composed." Post-free, 2s. 18, St. Ann's Street, Manchester.

SONGS BY

C. SWINNERTON HEAP.

		s.	d.
It is not always May	Soprano	2	0	net.
Lead, kindly light (Sacred)	Contralto	2	0	,,
Entreat me not to leave thee (Sacred) ...	Mezzo-Soprano	1	6	,,
The Sea King	Baritone	1	6	,,
Winter, in G or E	Tenor or Baritone	1	6	,,
Sacred Duet, I will not be afraid ...	Tenor and Bass	2	0	,,

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHARLES SALAMAN'S LATEST SONGS.—2s. net.

A LEAVE-TAKING ... T. or S. Words by Algernon C. Swinburne.
SWEET, HAVE THE ROSES ... ... T. or S. ,, Malcolm C. Salaman.
WHAT SHALL I SEND TO THEE, SWEET? C. or B. ,, Malcolm C. Salaman.
EVA TUAL. New Irish Song ... ... C. or T. ,, Perceval Graves.
ZULEIKA. Oriental Romance ... ... T. or S. ,, Arthur O'Shaughnessy.

CHARLES SALAMAN'S ANCIENT LYRICS.—2s. net.

AD CHLOEN (To Chloe), in Latin and English. Horace's 23rd Ode. Book I.

DONEC GRATUS (Duo S.T.), in Latin and English. Horace's 9th Ode. Book III.

PARA TEN SKIEN—Παρα την σκιην (Deep is the silence), Duo S.C. Anacreon's 22nd Ode, in Greek and English.

CHARLES SALAMAN'S ANTHEMS for Eight and Four Voices. Score, 2s. 6d. net.

HOW LOVELY ARE THY HABITATIONS. 84th Psalm. } Separate vocal parts.
GIVE TO THE LORD. 29th Psalm. }

Sung at Westminster Abbey, the Cathedrals of Worcester, Ely, Salisbury, Chichester, &c.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A FRANKLYN'S DOGGE LEPED OVER A STYLE.

PART-SONG FOR MALE VOICES.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.—Reduced Prices.

Choral Songs for School & Home.

FORTY-TWO ORIGINAL SONGS

FOR

ONE, TWO, OR FOUR VOICES.

COMPOSED BY ROBERT JACKSON.

Cloth, complete, 2s. 6d.; Parts I. and II., paper cover, 1s. each; Single Numbers, 1d.

From Concordia.

"This little book is designed for singing-classes in schools, and the simplicity, tunefulness, and attractiveness of the small compositions it contains eminently adapt it for such a purpose."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

HAIL TO THE CHIEF

Boat Song from Sir WALTER SCOTT'S "Lady of the Lake."

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EBENEZER PROUT.

Octavo, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHORUSES

FROM

SCHUBERT'S "ROSAMUNDE."

CHORUS OF SHEPHERDS ("Forth to the meadows") ... 3d
HUNTING CHORUS ("How merry is life") ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 2s. net.

NEW SONG,

THE COMING YEAR

WORDS BY DEAN ALFORD.

MUSIC BY GABRIEL DAVIS.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"It would be difficult to find words better suited to musical treatment than those by the late Dean of Canterbury. Mrs. Davis has evidently studied them well, and shown considerable merit."—Orchestra.

"First in the rank is 'The Coming Year,' the touching words by Dean Alford, the appropriate music by Gabriel Davis."—Graphic.

The beautiful words of this song were written shortly before the death of the late lamented Dean of Canterbury.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 2s. net.

NEW SONG,

THE ZINGARA.

Written and composed by GABRIEL DAVIS.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HANDEL'S ORATORIO

SEMELE

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised from that of the German Handel Society, by

EBENEZER PROUT.

Paper covers, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE

THE LAY OF THE BELL

BY

ANDREAS ROMBERG.

ONE SHILLING.

Paper Boards, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS

FROM THE

GREAT MASTERS,

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN

With Pedal Obbligato by

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.

1. "Wedding March," by Mendelssohn.
2. March from "Tannhäuser," by Wagner.
3. March from "Scipio," also from Occasional Oratorio, both by Handel.
4. "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Prophète."
5. "The Dead March" in "Saul" and "See the conquering hero comes," both by Handel.
6. Andantino, from the 11th Grand Symphony by Haydn, and "Waft her, angels," from Handel's "Jephtha."
7. "As pants the hart," from Spohr's "Crucifixion," and "Where'er you walk," from Handel's "Semele."
8. "My heart ever faithful" (Mein gläubiges Herz frohlocket), by Bach.
9. Andantino from the 5th and Andante from the 4th Sonatas, by Pleyel.
10. "The Hero's March," by Mendelssohn.
11. "Quis est homo?" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
12. Air et Chœur, from "La Dame Blanche," by Boïeldieu.
13. Grande Marche Héroïque in C, by Fr. Schubert.
14. Grande Marche Héroïque in D, by Fr. Schubert.
15. Overture, "Berenice," by Handel.
16. Overture, "Sosarmes," by Handel.
17. Handel's Overture, "Alcina."
18. Gavotte, from Handel's Overture, "Otho."
19. "La Carità," by Rossini.
20. "Angels ever bright and fair," and "Pious orgies," both by Handel.
21. "Ave Maria," by Franz Schubert.
22. Aria, by Antonio Lotti. Circa 1700.
23. "My soul thirsteth for God," Aria from Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm.
24. "Gloria in excelsis," from Weber's Mass in G.
25. "Fac ut portem," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
26. "Pietà, Signore," from the Oratorio "San Giovanni Battista," by Stradella.
27. Handel's Overture to "Julius Cæsar."
28. Serenade, by Franz Schubert.
29. Aria, by Cavaliere Gluck. 1765.
30. Aria, from "Alcina," by Handel.
31. Aria, from "Artaserse," by Leonardo Vinci. 1730.
32. Cantata, by Alessandro Scarlatti.
33. Aria, by Ch. Gluck. 1769.
34. Aria, by Domenico Cimarosa. 1784.
35. "Diedi il Coro," Aria by Handel.
36. Siciliana Long.
37. Andante.
38. Aria, by Padre Martini. 1763.

[Continuing.]

Price Two Shillings each.

Volume I., bound in cloth, containing 20 numbers of above, now ready.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row.

AUGENER & CO.'S NEW HARMONIUM VOLUMES (in Blue Covers, Quarto size).

CLARK, SCOTSON.—First Steps in Harmonium Playing net 4s.
" " Voluntaries for Harmonium Solo (5th Edition) ... ... net 3s.
LÖW, JOS.—Harmonium Album. A Collection of 100 Favourite Songs and Airs, &c., arranged in progressive order. For Harmonium Solo... ... ... net 3s.
PAUER, E.—March Album, containing 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged for Piano and Harmonium by Jos. Löw ... ... net 5s.

London: AUGENER and Co., 86, Newgate Street; also Foubert's Place, and 81, Regent Street, W.

AUGENER & CO.'S NEW ORGAN VOLUMES (in Blue Covers, Quarto size).

ANDRÉ, J.—Voluntaries for the Organ (Op. 65) ... ... net 3s.
BACH, J. S.—Twelve Preludes and Fugues. Edited by SCOTSON CLARK ... ... net 3s.
CLARK, SCOTSON.—First Steps in Organ Playing ... " 5s.
" " Twelve Choruses from Handel's Oratorios ... ... net 4s.
" Twelve Songs from ditto ... ... " 3s.
GLADSTONE, F. E.—The Organ Student's Guide ... " 4s.
" Organ Music for Church use ... " 3s.
PAUER, E.—March Album. A Collection of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged by W. J. WESTBROOK ... ... net 4s.

London: AUGENER and Co., 86, Newgate Street; also Foubert's Place, and 81, Regent Street, W.

Price 5s., paper covers; or 7s. 6d., handsomely bound in scarlet cloth, gilt lettered, gilt bordered, and gilt edges.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST. New Edition, complete in One Volume. It contains 78 Voluntaries, all of which, except 4, were composed expressly for the work by nearly all the most eminent English musicians.

"Shows in an interesting manner the present state of musicianship in England."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 1s. 6d. each, post-free.

THE COLLEGE MARCH, for Organ or Pianoforte. "Very playable, and would be effective on the organ."—Musical Standard.

LA BELLE. Valse Facile. "A well-written waltz, both as to melody and harmony. We recommend it for teaching purposes, as it is calculated to refine and improve the taste."—Musical Standard.

SKETCH, in C. "An easy and graceful Allegretto, which will be found pleasing and instructive."—Musical Standard.

SONG. 'NEATH THE HAWTHORN BOUGHS. Suitable for tenor or baritone.

E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., L. Mus., &c., Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

FIVE INTRODUCTORY VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN. Composed by T. MEE PATTISON.

These Voluntaries, of medium difficulty, with Pedal Obbligato, will be found eminently useful for the introduction of Divine Service, both as regards character and length. Price 3s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE "MARSCHNER ANDANTE."—PRELUDE for the ORGAN, HARMONIUM, or PIANO, by F. MIRUS. Price 3s.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row.

Now ready, No. XVI., 76 columns, price 2d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. Order of your Bookseller. By post, 3d., of Reid and Nephew, Advertising Agents, 14, George Street, Mansion House. Trade supplied by Pitman.

THE PIANIST'S PRACTICAL GUIDE to THEORETICAL KNOWLEDGE and MANUAL EXECUTION. By F. WEBER, Resident Organist, German Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. Third edition, 4s. net. "A work eminently calculated to improve the method of teaching the piano."—Daily News.

London: J. B. CRAMER; NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; SCHOTT and Co.; STANLEY LUCAS and Co.

R. ANDREWS' "STRAINS OF OTHER DAYS." Transcribed as solos. Piano. Nos. 1 to 6, 1s. 6d. each, net. To commemorate the author's "Golden Wedding" (1878). The proceeds will be given to aid the "Wadmore Fund" (London) and the "Blind Asylum" (Manchester) until January 16, 1879. Orders executed (post-free) by R. ANDREWS, 14, Park Avenue, Bedford Terrace, Manchester.

New Organ Work, dedicated to W. T. Best, in oblong folio, with Pedal Obbligato.

GUSTAV HERMANN'S SIX ORIGINAL PIECES.

No. 1. Quasi duetto.
" 2. Harvest March.
" 3. The Pilgrim's Return (Fantasia).
No. 4. Dolce far niente (Pastorale).
" 5. Concert March.
" 6. Impromptu on an Original Church Melody.

These pieces are rapidly rising in favour with good Organists, and will be welcome to all who desire effective original works of moderate difficulty, uniting the resources of modern with the purity of the old school. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each; the set, 6s., stamps.

London: EWALD and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

RIX'S NEW FLUTE MUSIC.—SIX ORIGINAL DUETS for FLUTE and PIANO, by this rising Composer, forming a most important contribution to the flautist's répertoire, are now ready, 2s. each, or 8s. the set, post-free.

No. 1. Air Varié, in D.
" 2. Nocturne, in C.
" 3. Scherzo, in A minor.
No. 4. Rustic March, in G.
" 5. Gavotte, in G.
" 6. Fantasia, in F.

London: EWALD and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

PIANO COMPOSITIONS

BY

CAMILLE SAINT-SAËNS.

	s.	d.
Gavotte, in C minor	3	0
Mazurka, in G minor	4	0
Paraphrase on "Gallia"	5	0
First Concerto, D major, Op. 17 ... ... net	7	0
First Mazurka, Op. 21	5	0
Second Concerto, C minor, Op. 22 ... ... net	8	0
Third Concerto, E flat, Op. 29 ... ... "	7	0
Marche Héroique, Op. 34	9	0
Danse Macabre. Op. 40. Arranged by Liszt ... ... net	5	0
" " " " Vilbac	5	0
Fourth Concerto, C minor. Op. 44 ... ... net	8	0
Danse des Prêtresses, from "Samson and Dalila." Op. 47 ...	5	0
Six Etudes. Op. 52. ... ... net	6	0
Nos. 1 and 4... ... ... each	4	0
" 2	3	0
" 3 and 5... ... ... each	6	0
" 6	9	0
Menuet and Valse. Op. 56 ... ... net	4	0
Twelve Transcriptions of works of J. S. Bach each 4	0 to 9	0
Three Transcriptions of Quartetts of Beethoven:
No. 1. Adagio, from 6th Quartett	7	6
" 2. Scherzo " 7th "	7	6
" 3. Finale " 9th "	7	6

All Saint-Saëns's Vocal and Instrumental Works, and Lists, to be had on application to NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONG FOR THE NEW YEAR

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN.

The English Version translated from the German of Friedrich Rückert by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

Octavo, One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE BY LISZT.

ROSE, SOFTLY BLOOMING

ROMANCE

BY L. SPOHR.

TRANSCRIBED FOR THE PIANOFORTE BY

FRANZ LISZT.

Price Three Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MOZART'S REQUIEM MASS.

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment arranged, by

W. T. BEST.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW AND CAREFULLY REVISED EDITIONS

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

LIEDER OHNE WORTE

Octavo, 160 pp., paper covers	4s.	od.
„ „ cloth, gilt edges	6s.	od.

CHEAP EDITION.

Octavo, 104 pp., paper covers	2s.	6d.
„ „ cloth, gilt edges	4s.	6d.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION CONTAINING BOOKS 7 and 8.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS

IMPORTED BY

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

	s.	d.
BRAHMS, J.—Symphony in C minor, arranged for two Pianos (eight hands)	30	0
—— Hungarian Dances. Arranged for two Violins	8	0
—— Liebes Lieder. Op. 52. Arranged for two Violins... ...	6	0
BRONSART, H.—Ballade for Piano Solo. Op. 5	6	0
CHOPIN, F.—Polonaise, A major. Arranged for two Pianos (eight hands). Op. 40, No. 1	6	0
DESSOFF, F. O.—Quartett for two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello. Op. 7. Score	6	0
Parts	7	0
HANDEL, G. F.—Chaconne for Orchestra. Score and parts together	12	0
HEUBERGER, R.—Night Music, for string instruments— Score	5	0
Parts	11	0
Piano Duet	6	0
JOACHIM, JOS.—Concerto for the Violin and Orchestra. Op. 11. Score	36	0
MENDELSSOHN, F.—Rondo in E flat. Arranged for two Pianos (four hands). Op. 29	8	0
—— Serenade and Allegro Giojoso. Arranged for two Pianos. Op. 43	7	0
SARASATE, P.—Spanish Dances. Arranged for Violoncello and Piano	9	0
SCHUMANN, R.—Gipsy Life. Arranged for two Pianos (eight hands). Op. 29	3	0
—— Ditto. Arranged for Pianoforte and Violin	2	0
WAGNER, R.—Vorspiel (Ouverture), "Lohengrin." Arranged for two Pianos (eight hands)	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - - E. PAUER.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. CUMMINGS.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - - - DR. STAINER.
5. SINGING (4s. Paper boards, 5s.) A. RANDEGGER.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - - - A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - - E. PAUER.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - - - - DR. STAINER.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - - DR. BRIDGE.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - - - - JAMES HIGGS.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - - - - - DR. STONE.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - - REV. T. HELMORE.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. PROUT.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - - - E. PAUER.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - - JOHN CURWEN.

IN PREPARATION.

4. THE HARMONIUM - - - KING HALL.
12. HISTORY OF MUSIC - - E. PAUER.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (Ready January 15) - REV. J. TROUTBECK.
17. THE VIOLIN - - - BERTHOLD TOURS.
19. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON - - - - DR. BRIDGE.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN PAPER BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ONLY GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878,

TO

Mason & Hamlin's American Organs.

LISTS, POST-FREE AND GRATIS, ON APPLICATION TO

METZLER & CO.,

37, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

MASON & HAMLIN'S AMERICAN ORGANS.

SECOND-HAND.

A large number of these celebrated Instruments, lately returned from hire, to be sold at greatly reduced prices for cash, or on the three years' system of hire and purchase. Lists post-free.

London: METZLER & Co., 37, Great Marlborough Street, W.

HARMONIUMS.

SECOND-HAND.

A large number of these Instruments, lately returned from hire, to be sold at greatly reduced prices for cash, or on the three years' system of hire and purchase. Lists post-free.

London: METZLER & Co., 37, Great Marlborough Street, W.

CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS, CAROLS, &c.

BETHLEHEM. The Shepherd's Nativity Hymn, for the use of Choirs, by CH. GOUNOD. Price 3d. (words only may be had, 4s. per 100).

HOSANNA TO THE SON OF DAVID ... ... J. L. HATTON 2d.

LET US NOW GO EVEN UNTO BETHLEHEM... ... ... „ 2d.

ALL THE ENDS OF THE WORLD... ... ... „ 2d.

BLESSED IS HE THAT COMETH IN THE NAME OF THE LORD ... ... „ 3d.

NOW WHEN JESUS WAS BORN „ 2d.

IN THE DAYS OF HEROD THE KING ... ... „ 2d.

A NEW CHRISTMAS CAROL. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

UPON THE SNOW-CLAD EARTH ... ... 3d.

FOUR CHRISTMAS CAROLS. Arranged for Four Voices. Words by F. G. LEE, D.C.L. Music by W. BORROW.

No. 1. JOSEPH DOWN A-KNEELING.
„ 2. IN THE EARLY MORNING.
„ 3. LOWLY IN THE BETHLEHEM MANGER.
„ 4. SLOWLY FALL THE SNOW-FLAKES.

Price 2d. each; or complete, price 9d.

METZLER & CO.'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS. New and Old. In handsome wrapper; red edges. Price 1s.

IN THE BEGINNING WAS THE WORD. Anthem for Christmas. Composed by J. L. HATTON. Price 3d.

H.M.S. PINAFORE; or, The Lass that loved a Sailor. An entirely new and original Nautical Comic Opera. Written by W. S. GILBERT. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Price complete, vocal score, 4s. Pianoforte score, 2s. 6d.

THE SORCERER. An Original Modern Comic Opera, written by W. S. GILBERT. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Complete, vocal score, price 5s.

CARMEN. Opéra-Comique, by GEORGES BIZET. Complete Vocal Score (Italian and German words), 20s.; complete Vocal Score (French words), 15s. The Opera complete, arranged for the Pianoforte, price 6s.

CARMEN. Fantaisie brillante sur l'Opéra de GEORGES BIZET. Pour piano par W. KUHE. Price 5s.

CARMEN. Fantaisie brillante, par J. LEYBACH. Op. 213. Price 4s.

NOW READY.

GRACEFUL DANCE. No. III. From the Incidental Music to Shakespeare's Henry VIII. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Price 4s.

RAFF'S Celebrated LÄNDLER from the Suite in G minor. Op. 162, No. 3. Arranged for the Pianoforte by LUDWIG BUSSLER. Price 3s.

RAFF'S MÄHRCHEN, from the Suite in G minor. Op. 162, No. 3. Price 4s.

THE CHORISTER. Song for Contralto, sung with great success by Madame Antoinette Sterling. Composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

O sweet and dim the lights and shade
Across the Minster stealing;
I heard the grand old organ played,
The anthem upward pealing.

Price 4s.

NEW EDITION.

BURROWES'S HARMONY and THOROUGH-BASS PRIMER. Edited by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 2s., paper covers; cloth boards, 3s. 6d.

NEW EDITION, REVISED AND ENLARGED.

METZLER and CO.'S NEW WORK for the AMERICAN ORGAN. Directions for Tuning and Regulating Mason and Hamlin's American Organs. A complete Guide for Tuners, and by the aid of which a careful person may remove any derangements. By C. SPANSWICK. Price 1s.; post-free, 14 stamps.

London: METZLER & CO., 37, Great Marlborough Street, W.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co. at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Wednesday, January 1, 1879.

ARTHUR ALLISON & CO.

Pianoforte, Harmonium, and American Organ

MANUFACTURERS,

LATE OF 110, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W.,

40, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.

Steam Factories—APOLLO WORKS, LEIGHTON ROAD, CHARLTON KING'S ROAD,

KENTISH TOWN, LONDON, N.W.

EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED.

BOUDOIR PIANETTES, with Patent Check Action, from		30	Guineas
PICCOLO PIANOS	,,	32	,,
COTTAGES AND GRAND OBLIQUES ...	,,	35	,,
HARMONIUMS	,,	8	,,
AMERICAN ORGANS	,,	14	,,
ONE-, TWO-, & THREE-MANUAL & PEDAL HARMONIUMS	,,	30	,,

Sole London Agents for DAWES' PATENT MELODY ORGANS, as supplied to HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and H.R.H. the PRINCESS LOUISE.

"The Melody Organ is the only perfect reed-instrument for accompaniment, and possesses a tone of an extraordinary quality."

Illustrated Price Lists to be had of all Musicsellers.

H. BROOKS & CO.'S

STEAM PIANOFORTE ACTION MANUFACTORIES,

31 TO 36, CUMBERLAND MARKET, REGENT'S PARK;

138, Hampstead Road; Lyme Street, Camden Town; and Bartholomew Road, London, N.W.

PATENT RISING MUSIC-STOOL

(THE "HALLÉ").

THIS Stool is an improvement beyond all others, and has been recommended by Professors and the Music Trade generally. Its mechanical appliance is simple, noiseless, and durable; enables the sitter of any age to raise or lower the elevation with one hand, without quitting the seat, and from its extreme steadiness and comfort for Pianoforte players is testified by Charles Hallé, Esq., to be "the most useful stool for public and private use," and is used by him in his public performances. The patronage thus given has greatly increased the demand, and justified a revision in its original charge. It can now be obtained at a considerable reduction in Walnut, Rosewood, or Mahogany, covered in any coloured Leather, Satin, Velvet, or other fancy material.

Price Lists and Illustrations free on application to us or to any Musicseller, through whom these Stools and other articles of Music Furniture can be obtained.

Black and Gold Stools and Canterburies in great variety.

HONOURABLE MENTION, 1862.

CHALLEN AND SON'S
GOLD MEDAL PIANOS,
20, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

PRIZE MEDAL, LONDON, 1862.

FOR EXCELLENCE OF TOUCH AND TONE.

GOLD MEDAL.

SOUTH AFRICA, 1877.

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

FOR GOOD AND CHEAP PIANOS.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL PIANETTE
WITH CHECK ACTION, IN ELEGANT WALNUT OR ROSEWOOD CASE.
FROM 25 GUINEAS.

"The Pianettes manufactured by CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments."—Anton Rubinstein.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL SEMI-COTTAGE,
WITH CHECK REPEATER ACTION.
FROM 32 GUINEAS.

"I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing at a most moderate cost pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice as being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence.

"The Instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, at Paris, were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section."—John Stainer, M.A., Mus. Doc., one of the Jurors of the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL COTTAGE
TRICHORD THROUGHOUT; BRASS BRIDGE; CHECK REPEATER ACTION.
FROM 60 GUINEAS.

"CHALLEN & SON is a name synonymous with wonderful durability, great beauty of tone, and moderation in price. We know of not one single maker whose Pianos excel theirs in the qualities most desirable in a good and lasting Piano."—Cape Argus, May 7.

EXCELLENCE IS GUARANTEED, AND EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED TO BE OF THE HIGHEST CLASS WORKMANSHIP AND MATERIALS.

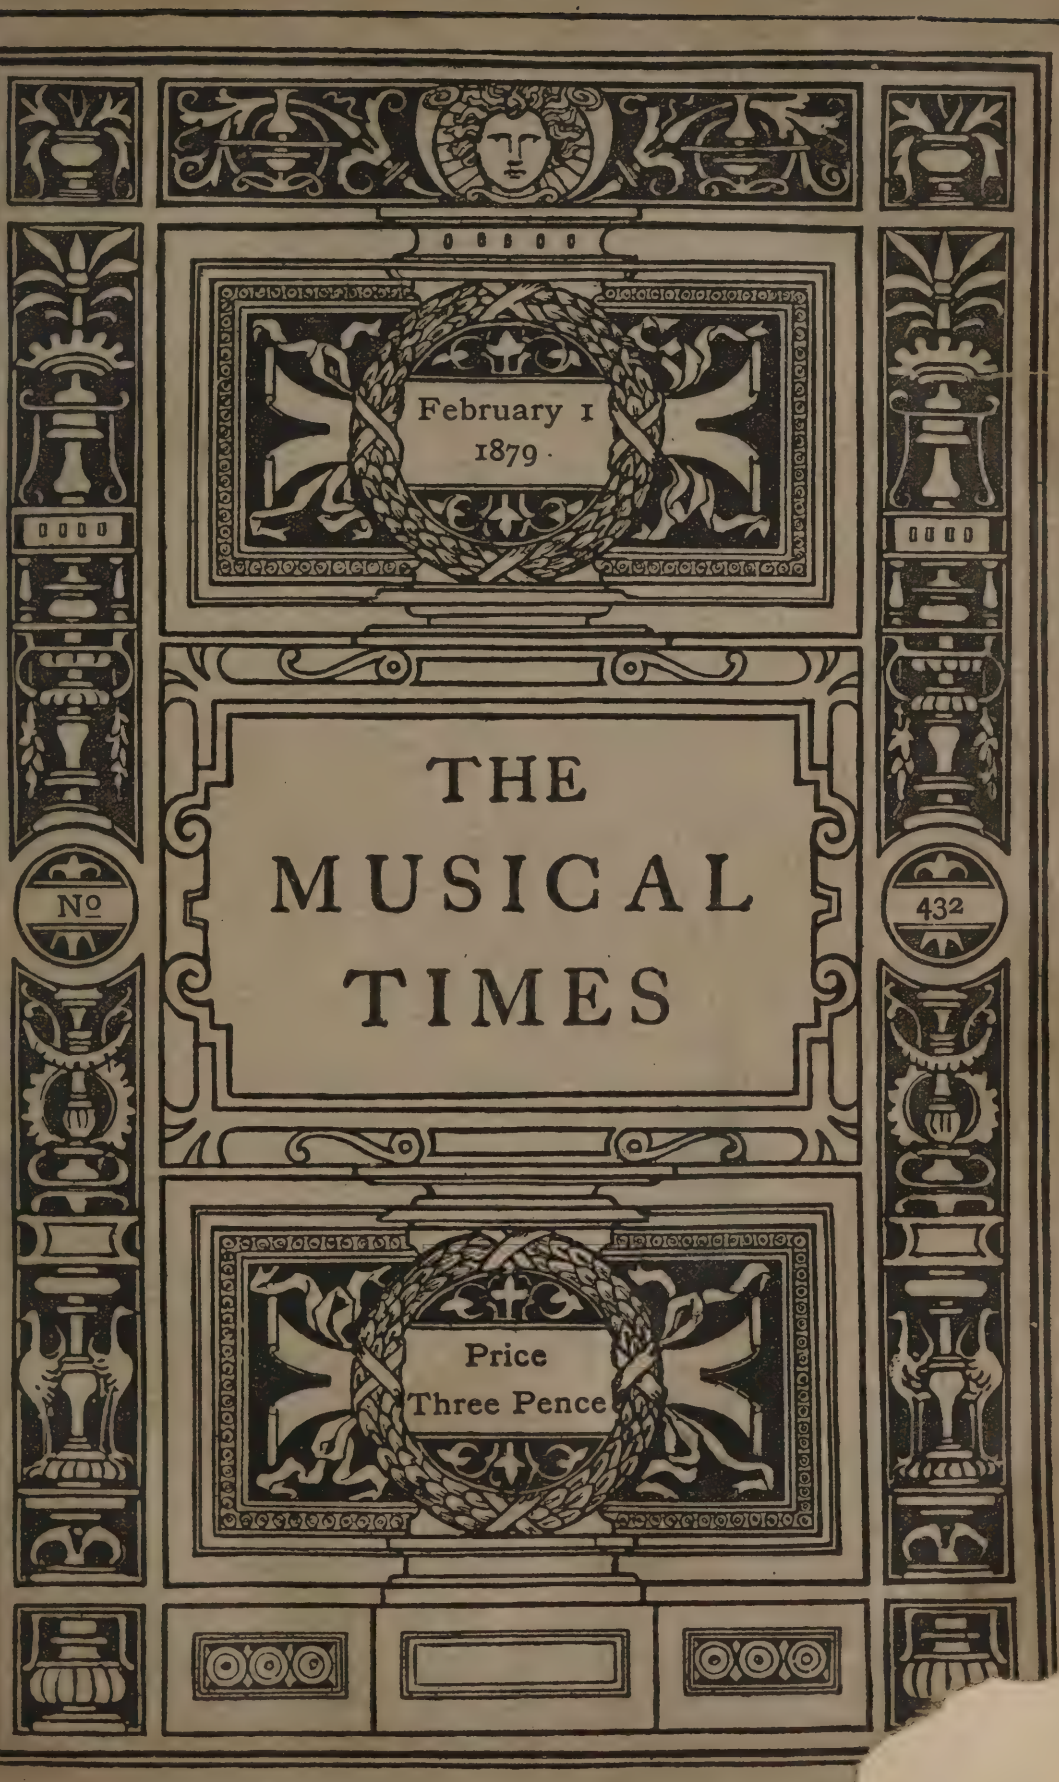
EBONISED AND GOLD PIANOS
Kept in Stock, of Superior [illegible] and Elegant Designs.

May be obtained from all [illegible] List forwarded free.

CHALLEN & [illegible], 20, OXFORD ST.
STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Wednesday, January 1, 1879.



February 1
1879
THE MUSICAL TIMES
No
432
Price
Three Pence

THE GREATEST OF ALL PIANOFORTES

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES

AND

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA COMPANY.

THE following Testimony to the UNRIVALLED EXCELLENCE of the STEINWAY PIANOFORTES from the distinguished Artists whose names are thereto attached, is the complement of the similar testimonies which have been given by the GREAT PIANISTS of Europe. It is scarcely necessary to add that the verdict of public opinion has amply confirmed that of these eminent authorities—the STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, although necessarily commanding the highest prices, having by far the largest annual sale of any Pianofortes throughout the world, and a demand which is co-extensive with civilisation.

"NEW YORK, December 28, 1878.

"Messrs. STEINWAY & SONS.

"GENTLEMEN,—Having used your celebrated [illegible] and in private, during the present Opera Season, [illegible] unqualified admiration of their sonority, evenness, duration of tone, most beautifully blending with [illegible] These matchless qualities for accompanying the [illegible], precision of action and unequalled capacity of remaining in tune for a great length of time, render, in our opinion, the Steinway Pianofortes, ABOVE ALL OTHERS, the most desirable Instruments for students of vocal music and the musical public generally.

(Signed)

"MINNIE HAUK.	ETELKA GERSTER.	MARIE ROZE.
"CL. CAMPOBELLO.	G. LABLACHE.	G. DEL PUENTE.
"ITALO CAMPANINI.	A. F. GALASSI.	F. DE RIALP.
"J. FRAPOLLI.	A. J. FOLI.	LUIGI ARDITI."

Miss MINNIE HAUK has also written in the following terms:

"December, 1878.

"Messrs. STEINWAY & SONS.

"DEAR SIRS,—Allow me to express to you the entire satisfaction I feel in praising your magnificent Pianos. They are the finest Instruments in the world, and I have therefore taken every opportunity while in Europe to extol their sterling qualities.

"Believe me, yours very sincerely,
"MINNIE HAUK."

STEINWAY HALL (LONDON),
SEYMOUR ST., PORTMAN SQ., LONDON, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 432.—Vol. 20. FEBRUARY 1, 1879. Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

CAUTION.—MUSICSELLERS and the TRADE generally are hereby cautioned against selling any copies of Mendelssohn's "LIEDER OHNE WORTE," containing the 7th and 8th Books, except those published by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., who are sole proprietors of these Books and of the other copyright works of Mendelssohn.

PETERBOROUGH CATHEDRAL.—There will be a TRIAL for a CHORISTER BOY (age 8½ to 11) in the Cathedral Practice-room at 3 p.m., on Tuesday, February 18. The choristers receive a classical education at the Cathedral Grammar School; Head Master, Rev. W. D. Sweeting, M.A. For further information, apply to Dr. Keeton, Minster Precincts, Peterborough.

SOLO TREBLE BOY WANTED, for a Church in the N.W. district. Sundays twice, two week-night services, and Festivals. Must have a good voice and be able to read well. Salary according to merit, from £10 to £15. Vacancies for other boys, living near, at a small salary. Address, Mr. A. W. Marchant, F.C.O., 98, Brecknock Road, Camden Road, N.

WANTED, ALTOS, TENORS, and BASSES for Holy Trinity, Upper Chelsea, S.W. Apply to Geo. Minns, 19, Markham Square, Chelsea, S.W.

ALTO, disengaged after February 9. References. Address, T. Foreman, St. Mary's Road, Hornsey.

MANCHESTER CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—TENOR WANTED at Easter. None but trained Cathedral Voices accustomed to Solos need apply. Full particulars can be obtained from the Rev. the Precentor, Manchester Cathedral.

CHESTER CATHEDRAL.—There is a VACANCY for a LAY CLERK (TENOR) in the Cathedral choir. Stipend, £75 per annum, and other perquisites, particulars of which will be furnished on application. Applicants, who must be under 30 years of age, should send in their testimonials at once, to the Rev. the Precentor, Abbey Court, Chester.

TENOR desires SUNDAY EVENING ENGAGEMENT, or to act as Deputy, or can take Daily Choral Service. Address, Delta, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

WANTED, FIRST TENOR at a Catholic Church, N.W. district. Must read well, and be accustomed to the Latin. £20 per annum. W. H. Wall, 1, St. Paul's Crescent, Camden Square.

ROLLS CHAPEL, CHANCERY LANE.—WANTED, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS VOICES (voluntary). Full Cathedral service; Sunday morning only. Address, Mr. F. J. Sharland, 100, Albion Road, Stoke Newington, N.

BASS WANTED, for Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury. £10. Surpliced choir. Two months' holiday in the year. Apply to Dr. Bradford, at the Chapel, Friday Evenings, at Seven.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED by the first Sunday in March, for the Parish Church, Kettering, Northants. Salary, £35. Apply to Rev. Canon Lindsay, Rector.

WANTED, an ORGANIST (Communicant) for St. Bartholomew's Church, Islington, at March 25. Must reside within two miles of the church. Married preferred. Very good organ (Willis). Small salary only can be offered—£20 per annum. For particulars apply, personally, to Rev. L. Stanham, 15, Milner Square, Islington, N.

ORGANIST WANTED for St. Thomas's Church, Douglas, to take sole charge of a mixed choir. An efficient man required. State terms. Apply (with references) to the Incumbent, St. Thomas's Church, Douglas, Isle of Man.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, for the Old Meeting House, Sudbury, an ORGANIST. One who can train a choir preferred. The organ is a new one, built by Messrs. H. Willis and Sons; has 2 manuals, 15 stops, radiating pedals, and all the modern improvements. Candidates for the vacancy are to apply with copy testimonials, stating on what terms they would be willing to undertake the office, to Mr. A. Boggis, Sudbury, Suffolk.

WANTED, a CHOIRMASTER for a Church in Quebec, Canada. Opening for private tuition. Apply to Rev. C. C. Hamilton, 17, Wilton Street, S.W.

A VOLUNTARY DEPUTY ORGANIST WANTED for a City Church. Large organ. Address, M. N., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., General Printers. Books, Magazines, Newspapers, Illustrated Catalogues, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Music Printers. Illustrated Titles, Engraving, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Colour Printers. Show Cards, Labels, Almanacs, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Typographical Music Printers. Hymnals, Books for Church Festivals, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Printers. Maps, Plans, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Music Engravers and Printers. Oratorios, Operas, Cantatas, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO. are prepared to forward estimates for the above or any other variety of printing. Works—69 & 70, Dean Street, Soho, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Publishers' and General Bookbinders. Estimates forwarded. Works—111 & 113, Southwark Street, S.E.

CALEDONIAN CHURCH of SCOTLAND, Holloway Road.—Gentleman required to play American Organ and train Choir. Salary, £20. Apply by letter, stating experience, &c., to Mr. C. Gregory, 9, Athelstane Villas, Finsbury Park, N.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, a Gentleman of Christian character as ORGANIST for the Upper Norwood Congregational Church (close to the Crystal Palace). Efficiency as a player, aptitude in training the Choir, beside residence within walking distance of the church, are requisites. Letters and testimonials, address, W. M. Hitchcock, Lynton Villa, Beulah Hill, Upper Norwood.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for St. George's Church, Stamford, Lincolnshire, who would also, under a separate agreement, hold the appointment of Music Master in Stamford Browne's Middle Class School. Total remuneration from the Church Salary and School Fees probably not less than £100 a year. Application for particulars, with copies of testimonials, to be addressed to the Rev. H. B. Browning, St. George's Rectory, Stamford, Lincolnshire.

WANTED immediately, CHOIRMASTER and ORGANIST. Salary, £50. Full Choral Services on Sundays. Gregorian and Anglican music. Applications with testimonials to the Vicar, King's Sutton, Banbury, by whom full particulars will be given.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of an important Church in London is open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Highest references. Salary not so much an object; but light duty is desired. Address, E. W., 179, Euston Road, N.W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of some years' experience, who has had great success in Choir-Training, will shortly be open to an ENGAGEMENT. The highest testimonials and references. A Choral Service and good Organ desired. Address, B., Organist, care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

MR. HORACE BUTTERY (for 13 years Organist and Choirmaster of S. Mary's, Boltons, West Brompton) is open to a similar ENGAGEMENT. 173, Piccadilly, W.

ORGANIST or BARITONE.—Immediate APPOINTMENT desired by a Roman Catholic. Thoroughly experienced. Town or suburbs. Cantor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ORGANIST, &c., desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in London. G. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

AN ORGANIST will be DISENGAGED after March 7. Highly recommended by the Rev. Canon Ridley Address, Organist, Hambleden, Henley-on-Thames.

MR. MARTIN BRADLEY, F.C.O., late Organist of the Priory Church, Leominster, is open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT at a Parish Church. Address, Little London, Chichester.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED, by a Youth, a SITUATION as DEPUTY ORGANIST, for practice and instruction. Fair musician. Address, M. V., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano).
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano).
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address, 150, Radnor Street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—C. Hallé, Esq., and E. Hecht, Esq.

MRS. J. STOTT (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 8, City Terrace, Peterborough.

MISS FANNY CHATFIELD (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, Lessons, &c., 11, St. Ann's Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MISS JOHNSON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 134, Egerton Street, Oldham.

MISS ANNETTE IVANOVA (Soprano).
Pupil of Signor Lablache and Signor Odoardo Barri.
For Concerts, &c., address, Brooklyn, Howard Road, South Norwood.

MISS ADA MOORE (Soprano) and MISS MARIE MOORE (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 95, Bristol Street, Manchester; or Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 42, St. George's Street, Cheltenham.

MISS HELEN SWIFT (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Forsyth Brothers, Cross Street, South King Street, Manchester.

MRS. DAGLISH (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Newark, Notts. Reference, S. Reay, Esq., Mus. Bac., Newark, Notts.

MISS ROSA BAILEY (Mezzo-Soprano Vocalist).
Of the Bath, Clifton, and Bristol Concerts.
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, &c., 15, Brigstock Road, Bristol.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, Dinners, &c., address, 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimore Square, S.E.

MISS KERSHAW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Clarksfield Terrace, Lees, Manchester.

MISS PATTI HARGREAVES (Contralto).
21, Belle Vue Terrace, Victoria Street, St. John's Hill, Leeds.

MADAME PATTIE KEATE (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 66, Fentiman Road, S.W., or City Arms Hotel, Bristol.

MISS JULIA DERBY (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 19, Herbert Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto).
Sidney House, 257, Cambridge Road, E.

MISS ANNIE COCKBURN (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 135, Albany Rd., Camberwell, S.E.

MR. T. BUCKLAND (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Gibbet Street, Halifax.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
7, Park Place, Regent's Park.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
12, Berners Street, W.

MR. CHARLES BLAGBRO (Tenor).
Principal of Parish Church, Leeds.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Parish Church, Leeds.

MR. H. PIERCEY (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, care of Truslove and O'Neill, 36, Union Passage, Birmingham.

MR. S. FORD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Mander Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. T. BALLAM (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, Waterloo, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Sig. Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. THOS. NETTLESHIP (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 44, Holland Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. THEODORE DISTIN (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Operas, &c., address, 96, Penrose Street, Sutherland Square, S.E. Pupils prepared for Concert or Stage.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 2, Hallfield Place, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. RICKARD (Bass).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Signor Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, King Cross, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. W. MORTON (Bass).
(Leeds Parish Church).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 3, St. Helen's Terrace, Hunslet, Leeds.

MR. D. SUTTON SHEPLEY (Bass).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 1, Hope Street, Halifax, Yorks.

MR. J. ROMNEY PEARSONE (Bass).
For Oratorios, &c., address, Rushall, near Walsall; or 122, Derby Road, Bootle, Liverpool.

FOR ORATORIO OR OTHER CONCERTS, &c.,
MADAME CROSS LAVERS,
Soprano;
Address, 7, Mornington Crescent, N.W.
MR. HENRY CROSS,
Bass.
Address, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W.; or 7, Mornington Crescent.

MISS MARGARET BUCKNALL, A.R.A.M.
(Pianiste).
For Concerts, address, Lawn House, 35, South Lambeth Road, S.W.

MR. W. F. ILLINGWORTH (Solo Pianist).
From the Conservatoire, Leipsic.
Address, 33, St. James's Road, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. J. SHARPE (Oboeist).
For Oratorios, &c., address, 235, Lidgett Hill, Pudsey, near Leeds.
N.B.—Bandmasters and others supplied with the New Model Oboe. Best Oboe Reeds, 2s. each. Staples recaned, 1s. each.

MISS FRANCES THOMAS (Clarinettist).
For Concerts, &c., address, 16, Gordon Square, W.C.

MISS AGNES LARKCOM, having recovered from her recent severe indisposition, is again prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIO and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. All communications to be addressed, 63, New Bond Street, W.

MR. H. T. BYWATER (TENOR) is OPEN to ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIOS and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. Address, 36, St. Germain's Road, Forest Hill, London, S.E.; or 40, Darlington Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. BRIDSON (BARITONE).—Communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts, Oratorios, &c., to be addressed to Mr. N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street, W.

MR. R. HOLLINS respectfully requests that all communications, in future, be addressed to 30, St. Stephen's Avenue, Shepherd's Bush, W., or to N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street, W.

DONALD W. KING, Professor of Singing and Musical Conductor, Cumberland Villa, Cavendish Road, Kilburn.

MR. C. STIEBLER COOK, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, five years Music and Choir Master at Uppingham School. For PIANO and HARMONY LESSONS, address, 17, Keppel St., Russell Square, W.C. Schools attended. Choirs conducted.

DR. ALLISON instructed by post Candidates who passed Mus. Bac., Oxon, 1878; Mus. Bac., Cantab.; C.O. and T.C.L. examinations. 206, Marylebone Road, London.

DR. BRADFORD can receive a few extra PUPILS for Lessons by correspondence in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. Address, Secretary, South London Musical Training College, S. James's, Hatcham, S.E.

DR. BRADFORD has a VACANCY for one resident ARTICLED PUPIL. Address as above.

J. W. HINTON, M.A., Mus. D., continues to Orchestrate or Revise Compositions. Harmony or Counterpoint by post, if desired. Address, care of Messrs. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thorough-bass, and Modulation," "Hiles' Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., by post.

MR. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., L. Mus., T.C.L., PREPARES CANDIDATES for Musical Examinations; also gives lessons in Harmony, &c., by post. Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

TUITION by CORRESPONDENCE.—Competent Tutors PREPARE CANDIDATES for Musical and other Examinations. Three thousand pupils have been thus instructed since 1871. Details post-free from James Jennings, Deptford, S.E.

HARMONY and COMPOSITION.—A late Organist and Choirmaster of a Public School is open to give LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c. Address, G. E., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CAMBRIDGE MUSICAL EXAMINATION.—Exercises in Counterpoint, Harmony, and Acoustics, Hints for "Vive voce," &c. Apply to J. M. Bentley, Mus. Bac., Cantab., 18, St. Ann's Street, Manchester.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park. MUSIC SCHOOL: Head Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS to be competed for by pupils of not less than one year's standing in the Music School will be awarded by Professor Macfarren, of which due notice will be given in the papers.

FRANCIS J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

The term began January 14.

MR. G. F. GEAUSSENT, Organist and Director of the Choir, S. Margaret's, Lee, Conductor of the Blackheath Musical Society, has a VACANCY for a Second ARTICLED PUPIL (non-resident). Great advantages offered. Large new organ. Address, 6, Park Place, Blackheath.

A GENTLEMAN is desirous of giving LESSONS by post in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. References from present pupils if desired. Terms very moderate. Address, Magister, Musical Times Office, 1, Berners Street, London, W.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address, Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

TO MUSICAL STUDENTS.—A Comfortable HOME is offered in family of the Organist of a Church in North London. Healthy neighbourhood. Access to large modernised three-manual organ. Terms moderate. Address, W. E. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE or INSTRUCTION.—Three Manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by Lea's Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, which are strictly inclusive, on application at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Sole Agent for LEA'S HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. The cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy Street, Bedford Square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN PRACTICE, at the South London Organ Studio, on a three-manual instrument. Blown by hydraulic engine. 343, Coldharbour Lane, three minutes' from Brixton Station.

ORGAN PRACTICE, on a fine new instrument with 2 manuals, 16 stops, and full compass of bourdon pedals, blown by hydraulic engine. Terms (strictly inclusive), one shilling per hour, at the Organ Studio, 15, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

ORGAN LESSONS or PRACTICE, 140, STRAND (opposite the Gaiety, and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W.), on fine two-manual C ORGANS (HILL and SON). Pedalling specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE WANTED. N.W. district preferred. Address, with terms, to L., 53, Haymarket.

ORGAN PRACTICE or INSTRUCTION at the Camberwell Studio. Three manuals, 20 stops. Terms very moderate. Entwisle, 1, Charles Street, Camberwell New Road.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

DEGREES.—See Exposure and Treachery, in TREATISE. 2s. 6d. Address, Dr. Fowle, Winchester.

WANTED, Good PIANO and HARMONIUM REPAIRER for country work. If suitable, situation permanent. Apply, W. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, TUNER and REPAIRER, in Yorkshire. Must understand Harmoniums and American Organs. None but thoroughly competent and steady men need apply. References, &c., to H. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co, 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, for a Country Business, a Good PIANOFORTE TUNER. State age, salary required, references, and last situation. Address, X., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER WANTED. A first-class one with good references. Apply by letter, addressed, Pianoforte Tuner, care of Messrs. Forsyth Brothers, 272A, Regent Circus, Oxford Street, London.

WANTED, a LADY ASSISTANT in a Music Business. Apply, stating age and all particulars, to E. Henry and Co., Musicsellers, Manchester.

MUSIC TRADE PARTNERSHIP or otherwise.—A firm doing a large and prosperous business, is desirous of increasing the capital by the admission of a SLEEPING PARTNER, or one of the present partners would retire in favour of another with larger capital. The business is situated in one of the largest manufacturing towns in the North of England, and, with the introduction of capital to the extent of £2,000 to £4,000, a corresponding profitable business would ensue. For further particulars apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE in a favourite locality, and within six miles of London, including a good Tuning Connection—in consequence of the present owner retiring from business. There are forty-one Pianos and Harmoniums in stock and out on hire. The purchase-money about £1,400. For further particulars, apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—An ASSISTANT VICAR CHORAL, after upwards of 26 years' service, has been compelled, owing to a recent regulation, to retire from active duties. He has established a PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS in a most prominent Western position, which has every prospect of ultimate success; but in order to fully develop it additional capital is required. A gentleman with £1,000 would find this an excellent investment, as good interest is offered and ample security given. Address, Basso, at Horncastle's Central Advertisement Offices, 61, Cheapside, E.C.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS to be DISPOSED OF, 18 miles from London. A Bargain. For particulars, Musicus, 43, Hurley Road, Kennington Lane, S.E.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE.—Old established; large Hiring and Tuning Connection. Good opening for Teaching Address, Leo, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ADVERTISER wishes to take off a good TUNING and MUSICAL INSTRUMENT BUSINESS. Address, W. B. F., care of Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, London.

SHOP and HOUSE to be LET at Croydon, suitable for Instruments and Music Trade. Size of shop 22 by 45. Address, London Road, Croydon, corner of Oakfield Road. Particulars of Mr. Read, 94, Cheapside.

WAREHOUSEMAN WANTED. Apply, stating particulars, to Barnett Samuel and Son, 32, Worship Street, Finsbury, London.

WANTED, TRAVELLERS (Town or Country) for Music Publisher, on handsome commission. Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, W.

WANTED, a Young Man of good address, in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Must have a knowledge of sheet music, able to show off Pianofortes and Harmoniums, to assist at book-keeping, &c. One able to play the Violin preferred. Address, with testimonials, experience, and lowest salary, for a permanency, to A.B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as TUNER and REPAIRER of Pianos and Harmoniums. Good references. For particulars, apply X. Y. Z., Music Warehouse, New Briggate, Leeds.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, thorough, experienced (Collard and Collard), requires a RE-ENGAGEMENT, out-door. Town, country, or abroad. First-class references to ability, character, &c. Full particulars required. Fancher, 206, High Street, Camden Town.

WANTED, SITUATION by competent PIANOFORTE TUNER, REGULATOR, and REPAIRER. Address, Tuner, 6, Park Avenue, Oswestry.

AS TUNER.—Advertiser seeks an ENGAGEMENT as first-class PIANOFORTE TUNER. Good reference. A. S. J., 17, Eversholt Street, Camden Town, N.W.

WANTED abroad, ENGAGEMENT in PIANOFORTE TUNING (knowledge of sheet-music trade). Good references. Free about March. Address, M. H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER seeks RE-ENGAGEMENT. First-class references. Address, B. C., Piano tuner, Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., London.

TUNER and REPAIRER open to an ENGAGEMENT. Good references. Address, C., 13, Oxford Grove, Oxford Road, Manchester.

WANTED, by a Young Man (23), a SITUATION as JUNIOR TUNER. Knowledge of out-door work, repairing, and counter trade. Steady and willing. Address, J. R., 59, Cheltenham Street, Barrow-in-Furness.

TO PIANOFORTE or MUSIC WAREHOUSES.—WANTED, SITUATION by TUNER and TONER, from one of the leading firms. Can teach or assist at organ. No objection to country. Used to driving. T. J., 16, Ports Road, Highbury New Park, London, N.

AN Experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER desires a POSITION. First-class references. Address, Thos. J. Adair, 17, South Norton Place, Edinburgh.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the Music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED, APRIL, 1866.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION.

Mr. H. ASHTON (Alto).
Mr. FRED. H. COZENS (First Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN (Second Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. ALBERT HUBBARD (Bass).

ASSISTED BY

Madame ASHTON (Soprano).

For terms, either separately or collectively, address, Mr. H. ASHTON, Secretary, Ivy House, Stamford Hill, London, N.

TUNER and COUNTER-ASSISTANT.—A Young Man respectably connected, four years in present employment as Assistant Tuner and Counter-Man, is desirous of obtaining another SITUATION. In a large music and pianoforte warehouse a moderate salary would be accepted. Address, E. M. T., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANO TUNER by a competent practical man. Address, Tuner, 6, Ivy Street, Southport.

RE-ENGAGEMENT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE REQUIRED by a Lady thoroughly acquainted with the music trade. Address, J. J., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, full Orchestral Parts for Handel's "JEPHTHA." (Second-hand.) Apply, stating price, &c., to William Elliott, Secretary to the Birstall Philharmonic Society, Bradford Road, Birstall, near Leeds.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK. Some chemists and stationers for extra profit deceive you. Genuine label, "Daughter of late John Bond." Works: 75, Southgate Road, N. No heating required.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE HAIR RESTORER for the MILLION. In bottles at 6d., 1s., and 2s. It is nourishing, strengthening, and developing. Genuine label has the words, "Prepared by the daughter of the late John Bond, the great marking-ink maker." Trade mark, Crystal Palace.

To the Directors and Conductors of Choral Societies, Choirs, &c.—The valuable Musical Library of the late Wm. Williams, Esq.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON will Sell by Auction, at their House, 47, Leicester Square, W.C., on MONDAY, February 24, at One o'clock, the extensive and valuable MUSICAL LIBRARY of the late WILLIAM WILLIAMS, Esq., Conductor of the South London Choral Society and other Institutions, comprising Scores and Parts of Oratorios, Cantatas, Masses, Anthems, Glees, &c., Songs, Duets, Trios, and Quartetts, with instrumental accompaniments, and other music suitable for Choirs and Choral Societies. Also a large assemblage of Musical Instruments.

 Instruments intended for insertion in this Sale should be forwarded by the 14th.

LARGE SALE OF MUSICAL PROPERTY.

MESSRS. KELLY & CO., 11, Charles Street, Berners Street, London, beg to announce to the Trade, Profession, and Public, that they will submit to Auction, at their Great Rooms, as above, on WEDNESDAY, February 19, 1879, about 150 MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. They will comprise Pianos by COLLARD, BROADWOOD, KIRKMAN, ERARD, CRAMER, WORNUM, ALLISON, HERMANN, KAPS, and others; Harmoniums by ALEXANDRE, CHRISTOPHE, CRAMER, KELLY, &c.; Harps by ERARD, SCHWIESO, &c.; Violins, Flutes, Drums, Guitars, Musical Boxes, &c. Also a quantity of Sundries, and large parcels of Modern Music. The goods may be viewed and catalogues had (post-free) the day prior and morning of sale.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 20, Minories, London.

T. R. WILLIS (established, 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES AND HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the army, navy, and rifle corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 12th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarinets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-instruction Books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price Lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell Road, Clerkenwell, London.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES.—150 by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Allison, &c., from 4 guineas upwards. HARMONIUMS (New), from £5, in Walnut or Mahogany cases. Largest stock of Pianos and Harmoniums in London at Kelly and Co.'s, 11, Charles Street, Middlesex Hospital. Trade supplied.

TO SELL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS of every description, also Libraries of Music, Music Plates and Copyrights, Stock-in-Trade, &c., SALE (devoted exclusively to this class of property) held every month. Single instruments inserted. Consignments received at any time. Puttick and Simpson, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C. [Established, 1794.]

A. MONK'S ORGANS, warranted First Class, at moderate prices, from 50 guineas. 100-Guinea Organs, 2 CC manuals, 10 stops, 16-feet pedal pipes. 200 guineas, 2 manuals, 16 stops. 300 guineas, 3 manuals, 21 stops. 400 guineas, 3 manuals, 27 stops. 600 guineas, 3 manuals, 36 stops. Larger or smaller Organs built to any Specification. Old Organs rebuilt. Additions, Repairs, Tunings, &c. Specifications and Estimates sent free. Sussex Terrace, Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.

Organs on the three years' system.

MALEY, YOUNG & OLDKNOW,

ORGAN-BUILDERS,

KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

Organs rebuilt to suit any position, repaired, enlarged, tuned, and revoiced in any part of the kingdom, at very moderate charges.

Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first class.

Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of organs.

N.B.—New and second-hand organs for sale. Inspection invited.

"A supreme and perfect harmony of Notes."

E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS and REED ORGANS. For tone, touch, articulation, and general excellence, are pronounced by the profession and public the best and cheapest extant. Prices, designs, &c., free, of E. & W. Snell. Works: King Street North, Camden Town, London, N.W. Trade supplied. The new Spécialité "Drawing-Room" Model, 24 guineas.

THE ORGAN at the Church of SS. Peter and Edward, Palace Street, to be SOLD for ready cash, £50. One manual, 6 stops, pedal board; in perfect order; built by WALKER. Apply to Rev. F. Kirk, 25, Palace Street, Buckingham Gate, S.W.

THE "STANDARD"

AMERICAN ORGANS

MANUFACTURED BY

PELOUBET, PELTON, & CO.,

NEW YORK,

ARE CELEBRATED FOR THEIR

ORGAN-LIKE QUALITY OF TONE

AND

GENERAL GOOD WORKMANSHIP.

PRICES, TEN GUINEAS AND UPWARDS.

To be seen at the principal Pianoforte Saloons in the kingdom, or at the London Show-room,

32, WORSHIP STREET,

FINSBURY SQUARE.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878.

DEBAIN & CO.,

Fournisseurs (by Brevet) to Her Majesty,

41, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

(LATE 357, OXFORD STREET).

HARMONIUMS

Simple and Percussive—(Debain, Inventor),

FROM 8 TO 200 GUINEAS.

ORGANOPHONES

(Debain, Inventor),

FROM 40 TO 200 GUINEAS.

PIANOS-MÉCANIQUES

(Debain, Inventor),

FROM 100 GUINEAS.

PIANOS

Seven Octaves, Trichord, Check Action, Plinth and Consoles, &c. (Suitable for Export),

FROM 31 TO 180 GUINEAS.

MUSIC SEATS

(Metal Tube Frames, gilt with the best gold bronze).

Harmonium Chairs, 31s. 6d.; Piano Stools, "Tonic," without screw, 42s. Piano Stools, "Trépied," with screw, 63s.

Lists and Drawings on application.

DEBAIN & CO.,

41, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

J. STUTTAFORD, REPRESENTATIVE.

MUSIC STRINGS—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

J. P. GUIVIER AND CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

ALL KINDS OF MUSIC STRINGS FOR ALL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Sole Depot for Signor ANDREA RUFFINI'S (of Naples) Celebrated Strings for Soloists, manufactured by him on a system invented by Mons. J. B. VUILLAUME, of Paris.

Sole Agent for CHARLES ALBERT'S (of Philadelphia, U.S.) new Patent Improved Chin Rest; also his improved String Gauge.

25, SHERWOOD STREET, REGENT CIRCUS, PICCADILLY.

Price List free on application.

All kinds of strings covered in a superior manner on powerful machines made on the best principle with all modern improvements.

The only Gold Medal for Wind Instruments with Keys, in the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878, was unanimously awarded by the Jury to Messrs. P. GOUMAS & Co., for the fine quality of tone and finish of their Instruments.

SPECIAL MANUFACTORY OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR

CLARIONETS, FLUTES, PICCOLOS, OBOES, BASSOONS, COR ANGLAIS, FLAGEOLETS, AND SAXOPHONES.

P. GOUMAS & CO.

(Late BUFFET, CRAMPON & Co.),

ESTABLISHED 1830.

Nine Prize Medals have been awarded to GOUMAS & Co. for general excellence and improvements in the Manufacture of Wind Instruments with Keys.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Wood Wind Instruments for Military Bands, Musical Instrument Makers to Her Majesty's Army and Navy, and to the Armies, Navies, and Conservatoires of France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Austria, Spain, America, &c.

Manufactory at Mantes (Seine et Oise), France. Paris: Passage du Grand Cerf, 18 et 20.

LONDON: 5, MADDOX STREET, REGENT STREET.

Price Lists sent free on application.

PARIS EXPOSITION UNIVERSELLE INTERNATIONALE, 1878.

FRENCH SECTION, GROUPE II., CLASSE XIII.—MUSIQUE.

MILLEREAU'S BAND INSTRUMENTS

Highest class of Excellence for Artists.

Cornet-à-pistons, Horns, Trombones, Altos, Baritones, Basses.

Boehm and English Clarionets, Conservatoire and Boehm Oboes, Cylindrical Boehm Flutes,

IN WOOD, METAL, AND VULCANITE.

Priced Catalogue and Designs post-free to any part of the world.

PARIS. 66, Rue d'Angoulême. FRANCE.

LONDON AGENTS,

MESSRS. MOUTRIE AND SON,

PIANOFORTE SALOON,

55, BAKER STREET, LONDON, W.

MR. J. HAMILTON begs to inform Organists, Organ Students, and others that the Pedals and Action for attachment to Pianofortes manufactured by him can be inspected and ordered at the above address.

A set of Straight Pedals, 30 notes (C to F), with action and printed instructions, "How to Attach," price £4 10s. Or Radiating and Concave Pedal Board, with action, price £5 10s.

Orders accompanied with Cheque or P.O. Order will receive immediate attention. Send for prices to the Profession and Trade.

Address, J. HAMILTON, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

ORGANS, CHURCH or CHAMBER, New and Second-hand.—Several very superior Instruments of various sizes, by eminent Builders, for SALE or HIRE. Can be had on easy terms of purchase. Apply, E. Carder, East London Organ Works, 9, Burdett Road, Mile-End Road, London, E.

FOR SALE, several small Second-hand ORGANS, suitable for small places of worship. Apply to Mr. J. Porritt, Organ Builder, Leicester.

A SMALL Chamber ORGAN for SALE. Six stops, pedals 27, gilt front, oak case. Price £45. Address, A. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN for SALE.—Three manuals, 5 stops, 6 couplers, concave and radiating pedal-board, 30 bourdon pipes. Built by a London builder. Apply to C., Elleray Villa, Westwood, Scarborough.

ORGAN for SALE.—To be Sold, to make room for a larger instrument, a powerful CC Organ. Ten stops, 2½ octaves pedals. No reasonable offer refused. Apply to W. Goulden, Boyne Hill, Maidenhead.

CHURCH AND SALOON ORGANS.

MR. AUGUST GERN begs to call the attention of the Clergy and Profession to his system of ORGAN BUILDING, which combines the best principles adopted by the leading builders in Germany, France, and England, in which countries he has occupied responsible positions with the most noted constructors of these instruments. The best materials only used and the prices moderate. Specifications, with Testimonials, on application at the Factory, Boundary Road, Notting Hill (near Uxbridge Road Station). N.B. Improvements, additions, and alterations are personally superintended by A. Gern, on his improved system, on very moderate terms.

TWO-MANUAL ORGAN, now standing in Wesleyan Chapel, Liskeard, to be SOLD to make room for larger instrument. Great: CC to F—open diapason, stopped diapason, dulciana, principal, fifteenth, twelfth, sesquialtra. Swell: tenor C—open diapason, stopped diapason, principal, fifteenth, twelfth, hautboy, bourdon on pedals. No reasonable offer refused. Apply, Mr. H. Lucas, Liskeard, Cornwall.

ORGAN for SALE, now in the Parish Church of S. Mary, Bathwick, Bath, by GRAY and DAVISON, 3 manuals, 31 draw stops. Handsome case. For further particulars, apply to Hy. Argent Simmons, Esq., Bathwick Hill, Bath, to whom tenders for the purchase should be sent.

ORGAN by HENRY WILLIS, in Pitch Pine Case, FOR SALE, now in Trinity Congregational Church, Croydon. Two manuals, CC to G, and Pedals (30 notes). Five stops on the swell, 9 on the great, and good bourdon on the pedals, 3 couplers, and 3 composition pedals. The instrument is in perfect condition, and would be disposed of much below cost to make room for a larger one. For particulars and to view apply to Mr. Ingham, Moira House, Upper Addiscombe Road, Croydon.

AN ORGAN for SALE. Five stops. Price £25. Owner obliged to sell it, having no room for it. Apply to J. E., 6, South Crescent, Store Street, W.C.

TO BE SOLD, a fine old Chamber ORGAN by BEWSHER and FLEETWOOD, Liverpool, one manual, with pedal attachment, compass GGG to F. Five stops all going through, general swell, composition pedals, &c. Handsome Spanish mahogany case and gilt front pipes. Apply, W. R. Pemberton, New Ferry, near Birkenhead.

ORGAN for SALE, compass CC to G. Now in use in the chancel of the Abbey Church. Eleven draw stops, number of pipes 544; built to order of the Vicar by WALKER and SONS for its present position in 1864. Materials, workmanship, and tone of best description, is in condition equal to new. Sold to make room for parish organ. For particulars, apply to the Churchwarden, Waltham Abbey, near London.

ORGAN for SALE, two manuals, pedals, bourdons, 10 stops; nearly new. Particulars by letter, G. Cooke, 1, Station Buildings, Gloucester Road Station, South Kensington.

CHAMBER ORGAN to be SOLD for £15. In good repair. Two stops, dulciana, and flute. Apply, between the hours of 6 and 8, at 101, Cowley Road, Brixton Road, S.E.

ORGAN, 6 stops, 1½ octave pedals, handsome speaking front, perfect instrument. Price £25. To be seen at 161, Loughborough Road, Brixton, S.W.

ORGAN, 5 stops, mahogany front with gilt pipes, pedal action. Price £12. To be seen at above address.

ORGAN, 6 stops, spare slide ornamental front, pedal action. Maker's name, BEVINGTON. Price £20. To be seen at above address.

ORGAN for SALE, by EAGLES, consisting of 2 CC manuals, 19 stops, separate pedal organ of 30 notes, in handsome case with gilt speaking front. Photograph of same forwarded on application to H. A., 2, Victoria Town, Deal.

CABINET ORGAN for SALE, 2 manuals, 5 octaves and pedals CCC to F, in handsome walnut case with round ends and decorated front of chaste design. The instrument has just been finished in the best manner, has solid ivory drawstops, best ivory keys, hand and foot blower, 17 stops and composition pedals, reed both in swell and great organ. Would be sold cheap to an immediate purchaser, as proprietor is about removing. J. S., 1, Laburnum Cottages, Maynard Road, Walthamstow.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE, cheap. Can be seen at the church it is in, or full particulars given on applying to J. King, Debenham, Suffolk.

PEDAL PIANO for SALE, with 2 manuals and set of pedals. Good bargain. £16 cash. Apply by letter, R. G. F., 32, Portland Road, Notting Hill.

BASSO DI CAMERA for SALE cheap. Very old and unique specimen, playable as C Basso. 104, Walworth Road, S.E.

VIOLINS.—For genuine and carefully selected Instruments, at moderate prices, apply to J. Wilson Browne, 6, Great Charles Street, Birmingham. Every instrument has been thoroughly tested.

VIOLINS, &c., by CRASKE, some of them fifty years old, and equal to Straduarius and Guarnerius, except in name only. The whole of this great maker's instruments on SALE at Edward Crompton's, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester. Will be sent for trial on receipt of satisfactory reference.

VIOLONCELLO, by BANKS, for SALE; date, 1775. After 6 o'clock, to E., 10, Arlington Square, Islington.

ORGAN MUSIC.—A Choice Collection to be SOLD cheap. Address, Mrs. Newman, The Elms, Furnace Lane, Lozells, Birmingham.

TO TEACHERS, &c.—Carefully selected parcels of Music, suitable for teaching, sent on sale or return, on low terms. Reference requested. Accounts quarterly. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, London, W.

R. J. MITCHELL and SONS, the Cheapest Music Stores in London, 52, Buckingham Palace Road, S.W. (opposite the Grosvenor Hotel, Victoria Station). A large assortment of popular vocal and instrumental music on sale at very greatly reduced prices.

15 S. WORTH of POPULAR SONGS for a SHILLING. Best composers. Nice clean copies. Post-free, 1s. 3d. Miss Thistlewood, Hockley Hill, Birmingham.

12 S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, post-free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord Street, Liverpool.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row.

AUTHORS' WORKS
CORRECTED, REVISED, AND PRINTED WITH DESPATCH
On moderate Terms.
QUOTATIONS GIVEN ON RECEIPT OF MSS.
LONDON: B. WILLIAMS, 60, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

NEW MUSIC PRINTING PROCESS.
Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.
50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.
PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,
8A, RED LION SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.

WITT & CO.
Beg to inform the Trade that their publications will in future be supplied by MESSRS. NEUMEYER & CO.,
7, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE,
LONDON, W.

NEUMEYER & CO.,
PUBLISHING DEPARTMENT
(LATE WITT & CO.),
MUSIC PUBLISHERS & IMPORTERS,
Publishers of H. Hofmann's Compositions.
7, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE,
LONDON, W.

TO COMPOSERS WISHING to PUBLISH.—Music Engraved, Printed, and Published in the very best style, at unusually low prices. Estimates free on receipt of MS. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, Regent Street, London, W.

HOW to LEARN the ENGLISH CONCERTINA WITHOUT a MASTER. By C. ROYLANCE, 38, Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square; and all Musicsellers. Thirteen stamps.

REDUCED PRICE.

TOY INSTRUMENTS
FOR THE PERFORMANCE OF
TOY SYMPHONIES.

A COMPLETE SET OF INSTRUMENTS, CONSISTING OF

2 Whistles	Cuckoo.
2 Trumpets.	Rattle.
Cymbals.	Nightingale.
Triangle.	Drum.

Also the Music to Haydn's Symphony for Piano Solo and Toy Instruments; and Romberg's Symphony for Pianoforte Solo, Two Violins, Violoncello, and Toy Instruments.
Price complete, One Guinea and a Half.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW NUMBERS
OF NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

ROBERT FRANZ.

334	ALREADY SNOW HAS FALLEN	(S.A.T.B.)	1½d.
335	AT PARTING	,,	1½d.
336	THE FAIREST TIME	,,	1½d.
337	SPRING'S FAITH	,,	1½d.
338	MAY SONG	,,	1½d.
339	A MORNING WALK	,,	3d.

FRANZ ABT.

340	HOME THAT I LOVE	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
341	EVENTIDE	,,	1½d.
342	O THOU WORLD SO FAIR	,,	3d.
343	SPRING'S AWAKING	,,	1½d.
344	NIGHT SONG	,,	1½d.
345	EVENING GLOW ON THE WOODS... ...	,,	3d.

FANNY HENSEL, née MENDELSSOHN.

346	DOST THOU HEAR THE TREES	(S.A.T.B.)	1½d.
347	THE UNKNOWN LAND	,,	3d.
348	IN AUTUMN	,,	1½d.
349	MORNING GREETING	,,	3d.
350	THE WOODLAND VALLEY	,,	1½d.
351	WHEN WOODS ARE GLOWING	,,	3d.

A. C. MACKENZIE.

352	HOW I LOVE THE FESTIVE BOY	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
353	AUTUMN	,,	1½d.
354	WHEN SPRING	,,	4d.
355	THE DAY OF LOVE	,,	3d.
356	THE STARS ARE WITH THE VOYAGER	,,	1½d.

E. PROUT.

357	HAIL TO THE CHIEF	(S.A.T.B.)	4d.

J. L. HATTON.

358	AT THE COMING OF THE SPRING ...	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
359	CALM NIGHT	,,	3d.
360	COME, LIVE WITH ME	,,	3d.
361	ECHO'S LAST WORD	,,	1½d.
362	HE THAT HATH A PLEASANT FACE ...	,,	3d.
363	KEEP TIME, KEEP TIME	,,	3d.
364	LO, THE PEACEFUL SHADES	,,	1½d.
365	NOT FOR ME THE LARK IS SINGING ...	,,	3d.
366	SPRING, THE SWEET SPRING	,,	3d.
367	TAKE HEART	,,	3d.
368	THE FISHING BOAT	,,	1½d.
369	THE LARK	,,	3d.
370	THE MOON SHONE CALMLY BRIGHT ...	,,	3d.
371	THE REPROACH	,,	1½d.
372	THE SWING	,,	3d.
373	THE WRECKED HOPE	,,	3d.
374	TWILIGHT	,,	1½d.
375	TWILIGHT NOW IS ROUND US VEILING	,,	3d.
376	WHAT IS GOT BY SIGHING	,,	3d.
377	WHERE SHALL THE LOVER REST ...	,,	1½d.

CH. GOUNOD.

378	NIGHT	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.

S. REAY.

379	THE DAWN OF DAY	(S.A.T.B.)	4d.

H. HILES.

380	THE CALM OF THE SEA...	(S.A.T.B.)	4d.
381	THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS	,,	6d.
396	HUSHED IN DEATH	,,	6d.

R. SCHUMANN.

382	UNCERTAIN LIGHT	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
383	CONFIDENCE	,,	3d.
384	THE DREAM	,,	1½d.
385	THE BOAT	,,	3d.

G. A. MACFARREN.

392	THE MILLER	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.
393	AT FIRST THE MOUNTAIN RILL	,,	3d.
394	ALL IS STILL	,,	3d.

J. BARNBY.

395	SLEEP, THE BIRD IS IN ITS NEST ...	(S.A.T.B.)	3d.

H. LESLIE.

397	EVENING (IT IS THE HOUR)	(S.A.T.B.)	1½d.
398	NOW THE BRIGHT MORNING STAR ...	,,	3d.
399	BOAT SONG (HAIL TO THE CHIEF) ...	,,	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ORPHEUS
(NEW SERIES)
A COLLECTION OF GLEES AND PART-SONGS FOR MALE VOICES.

Notwithstanding the popularity of the ORPHEUS in its former shape, it is believed that its issue in separate Voice Parts is scarcely] in accordance with the present taste; it is therefore the intention of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. to publish a New Series of this favourite Collection, in which every composition will appear in the popular Octavo form, in single numbers printed in Vocal Score, with a carefully revised Pianoforte Accompaniment. In many instances the translation of the words will also undergo revision.

The ORPHEUS will now consist exclusively of Part-Music for

MALE VOICES ONLY.

The whole of the original Series, with a few unimportant exceptions, will be published in the new form, and new compositions by the best composers will be added from time to time, as well as a number of pieces which have become popular in other forms or in other Collections. The Part-Songs for Mixed Voices hitherto contained in the Series will in future appear in the "Part-Song Book."

The whole of the compositions by Mendelssohn, formerly included in the ORPHEUS, are now issued as a separate publication, forming a complete collection of his Part-Songs.

1	THE LONG DAY CLOSES... ...	A. SULLIVAN ...	3d.
2	THE BELEAGUERED	A. SULLIVAN ...	3d.
3	THE HOMEWARD WATCH ...	H. SMART... ...	1½d.
4	COME AWAY, COME AWAY ...	SCHÄFER	1½d.
5	ONWARD ROAMING, NEVER WEARY	MÜLLER	1½d.
6	HARK! THE MERRY DRUM ...	KRUGH	3d.
7	VERMELAND	SWEDISH MELODY	1½d.
8	DEAR LAND OF MY FATHERS...	SWEDISH MELODY	1½d.
9	STILL AMID OLD SWEDEN'S YOUTH	DALECARLIAN SONG	1½d.
10	A FRANKLYN'S DOGGE	A. C. MACKENZIE	4d.
11	ALL THINGS LOVE THEE ...	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
12	A SONG OF WINTER	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
13	GOING AWAY	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
14	SLEEP, MY SWEET	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
15	SPRING, YE FLOW'RETS... ...	J. L. HATTON ...	1½d.
16	SUMMER EVE	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
17	THE SWEET CREATURE ...	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
18	TO JULIA	J. L. HATTON ...	3d.
19	O THOU WHOSE BEAMS (Ossian's Hymn)	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	6d.
20	T'OTHER DAY AS I SAT (Sycamore Shade)	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	4d.
21	HARK! HEARD YE NOT	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	6d.
22	THE COURTLY BARD (Kitty Fell)	SIR JOHN GOSS ...	4d.
23	THE CHASE	CH. GOUNOD ...	4d.
24	THE NIGHT IS CLOUDLESS AND SERENE	SCHUBERT... ...	4d.
25	BATTLE SONG...	SCHUMANN ...	3d.
26	WEIGHING ANCHOR (Outward Bound)	G. A. MACFARREN	4d.
27	I WISH TO TUNE MY QUIVERING LYRE	T. F. WALMISLEY	3d.
28	CHEERFULNESS	CIRO PINSUTI ...	6d.
29	HOW DEAR TO ME THE HOUR	CIRO PINSUTI ...	6d.
30	PEACE	J. FREDK. BRIDGE	4d.
31	WITH THEE, SWEET HOPE ...	J. FREDK. BRIDGE	6d.
32	LET MAIDS BE FALSE, SO WINE BE TRUE	GEORGE C. MARTIN	4d.
33	THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS	HENRY HILES ...	6d.
34	HUSHED IN DEATH	HENRY HILES ...	6d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.
Boston, New York, and Philadelphia: DITSON and Co.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. President, H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh, K.G. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. Organist, Dr. Stainer. THURSDAY, February 13, at Eight, Mendelssohn's ST. PAUL. Mrs. Osgood, Miss De Fonblanque; Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. E. Bell, Mr. E. Wharton, and Herr Henschel. ASH WEDNESDAY, February 26, at Eight, Handel's MESSIAH. Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Patey; Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Bernard Lane, and Mr. Thurley Beale. Prices: 7s. 6d., 5s., 4s., 3s., and 1s. Tickets of the usual agents and at the Royal Albert Hall.

THE THIRD ANNUAL CHORAL FESTIVAL SERVICE will be held in the City Temple, Holborn Viaduct, on THURSDAY, May 15, at 7.30 p.m. Any choir wishing to take part should communicate with Mr. E. Minshall, Organist, the City Temple, E.C.

W. T. BEST, ESQ., will give an ORGAN RECITAL in the City Temple, Holborn Viaduct, on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 6, at 7.30 p.m. Vocalist, MRS. GEORGINA WELDON. Tickets, 6d. and 1s., may be obtained at usual agents.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. MONDAY, February 3, 1879. A Paper by G. A. OSBORNE, Esq., "On Berlioz" (a sketch). Chair taken at 4.30; Paper read at 5 p.m.
9, Torrington Square, W.C. JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.—ANTHEMS for the MEADOWCROFT MEMORIAL PRIZE COMPETITION of 1879 may be sent in on or before June 30. Conditions may be obtained by letter, inclosing stamped envelope. The amount of the Prize is 16 guineas. E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
41, Queen Square, Bloomsbury.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

HALF-TERM.

Students can be received on MONDAY, FEBRUARY 17, and following days for the undermentioned Classes and Lectures:—Harmony, Professor Gordon Saunders, Mus. D.; Counterpoint, Canon, and Fugue, Professor Edwin M. Lott; Form in Musical Composition, Edward Silas; Orchestration, Henry Smart; Musical History, The Warden; Harmony Class (Ladies), Humphrey J. Stark, Mus. B.; Organ, W. S. Hoyte; Pianoforte, Bradbury Turner, Mus. B.; Harmonium, King Hall; Solo Singing, J. C. Beuthin; Violin, L. Szczepanowski; Violoncello, W. Pettit; Flute, J. Radcliff; Harp, J. Cheshire, Class-Singing, W. J. Westbrook, Mus. D.; Choir Management, B. Agutter, Mus. B.; String Quartett Practice, under the direction of the Professors.

ORGAN PRACTICE may be arranged for separately, on terms to be had on application.

For a Syllabus of Classes and other particulars, apply to the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, Weymouth Street, W.

MASKELYNE and COOKE, EGYPTIAN HALL, ENGLAND'S HOME OF MYSTERY.
EVERY EVENING, at EIGHT. TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY AFTERNOONS at THREE.

A Programme fresh with Mysterious Novelties. A unique entertainment, purely original, and beyond correct imitation. A genuine and permanent success. Established by its own sterling merit. An Entertainment for everybody. Equally enjoyable by all, irrespective of age or class. Private Boxes from 21s.; Stalls, 5s.; Admission, 2s. and 1s.
W. Morton, Manager.

LABIAL.—Mr. A. J. PHASEY, Solo Euphonium Player to the Queen, and the greatest authority on the subject, contributed to the Musical World, of the 4th ult., the following letter:—

"Having been informed by several friends that Mr. Maskelyne had constructed a mechanical performer upon the euphonium which was a formidable rival to myself, I took the first opportunity of visiting the Egyptian Hall, and I send you a description of the automaton, thinking it may interest your readers. When the curtain rose I could scarcely bring myself to believe that 'Labial' was not a living being, so correct was his attitude, both in a sitting posture and in the holding of the euphonium, and when I heard his first tones on the instrument, I was still more sceptical. I was not particularly struck with his sudden and rough burst out with the 'Jingo' song, 'We don't want to fight.' I thought the tone rather coarse, but, upon reflection, I concluded that, at the present political juncture, an Englishman would not sing such a song in a tame, but in a blustering manner, and that, therefore 'Labial' was right. Afterwards he astounded me by his truly wonderful performance of the 'Death of Nelson,' which was accompanied by Mr. Charles Mellon (who, by the way, is a brilliant pianist, and plays with great taste); Mr. Maskelyne and the automaton which he has named 'Fanfare,' also accompanying with two cornets. 'Labial's' observance of light and shade (so necessary to a good performance on the euphonium when used as a solo instrument) filled me with wonder—in fact, I was spell-bound. The lip action, in my opinion, is as perfect as with a human being, and in his strict attention to the nuances he was very far superior to many professional artists. The impression made upon me at the termination of his admirable performance was a mixture of delight and depression—the latter from fearing lest, at some future time, living performers in orchestras may be displaced in favour of automata. Upon my first visit I was under the impression that the performer could not be an automaton, but possibly a clever illusion. I accordingly paid a second visit, and sat close to the stage to notice whether the fingering was correct or not. I found, to my astonishment, that the passages were not only correctly fingered, but that 'Labial' introduced slurs and appoggiaturas equally as well as any Professor of the instrument, and I have no reason to doubt the fact that it is a mechanical arrangement, for the automaton is supported with a clear glass pillar, and any one among the audience is allowed to examine the figure. To such musicians as feel inclined to witness a marvellous performance I would strongly recommend a visit to 'Labial.' "I am, Sir, yours truly, A. J. PHASEY.
"December 24, 1878."

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EACH MONTH)
Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.
EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

198 pp. Demy 4to.

SINGING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER,

PROFESSOR OF SINGING AT THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

PAPER BOARDS, 5s.

PREFACE.

On inquiring into the causes of the generally admitted and deplored fact that the art of singing has for a long time past shown signs of deterioration, the following questions suggest themselves:—

Are good voices less numerous now than in former years?

Is there any dearth of scientific and practical treatises on the production and training of the voice?

Is there any lack of competent teachers?

I answer that there is no scarcity either of good voices, of excellent printed methods, or of thoroughly capable teachers.

Nevertheless, a highly cultivated and artistic singer is nowadays but rarely found.

What is the cause of this?

I affirm that the principal cause is found in a disposition to curtail the labour and lessen the time which perfected study absolutely demands.

While instrumental performers take it as a matter of course that they must laboriously practise for years in order to gain a complete command over the mechanical difficulties of their respective instruments, would-be singers seldom realise the fact that they must endure a training at least as long, careful, and patient in order that the human voice may be used with skill, judgment, and artistic effect.

To attain this result it is necessary that both professor and student should make up their minds to begin at the beginning, and thoroughly to master each of the difficulties which successively present themselves in a systematic course of study.

The simple, fundamental principles of the only true art of emitting and fixing the voice in singing are most difficult both to teach and to acquire; but they are vitally important, because to neglect them at the outset is necessarily to impair the beauty, purity, and resonance of the vocal tones.

These primary rules I shall endeavour to explain in concise and intelligible language, purposely avoiding the use of diagrams and of technical expressions which would require special scientific knowledge on the part of the reader, and be, moreover, incompatible with the modest aims and proportions of a primer.

All who are competent to teach the art of producing the voice must necessarily have an exact knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the vocal organs; but such knowledge is not indispensable to the vocalist. To those who may desire to study the scientific side of the subject more profoundly, I recommend a careful perusal of the "Anatomical Description of the Vocal Organs," by Dr. Louis Mandl, of Paris, a translation of which, by his courteous permission, will be found in the Appendix.

Here my object is simply to lay down a clearly defined system of practice, such as will help to overcome the mechanical difficulties of voice-production and management.

I shall address the student in the plain and practical style which long experience has taught me to adopt with my pupils, and I trust that the title of this little book will be sufficient to absolve me from the need of offering an apology for the simplicity of its language.

At the same time it must be distinctly understood that no written theories on singing can presume to take the place of oral tuition.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
FEBRUARY 1, 1879.

MUSICAL EDUCATION.

THE excited discussion on the reform of musical education in this country has been followed by a lull which, we trust, will not be permanent. Of the vast schemes which were said to be entertained in high places nothing further has been heard, and, since his oracular communication to the Times two months ago, Mr. Henry Leslie has not vouchsafed another word of explanation. What these schemes may have been, and what the issue of the various discussions and propositions has been in the past, or will be in the future, we do not pretend to know. But for the following facts we can vouch: a gentleman of exalted rank has shown lively interest in the matter, the leaders of the two great political parties have been sounded, and there is every hope that, if a reasonable scheme for a national school of music is laid before the House, the public purse-strings will be loosened, and official England will for the first time recognise the importance of musical art. This fact alone is of enormous importance, and no stronger test of the rapid growth of love of music in this country could well be required. For legislators represent constituents, and a grant of public money is the best proof of public sympathy. That an opportunity of this kind should not be allowed to pass without result must be the wish of all musicians, whatever opinion they may happen to hold with regard to the various schemes proposed. No one can doubt that we want in this country an institute of musical education, not only accessible to the poorest, but, in its own turn, desirous to search for talent in whatever condition of life it may be found. Neither is there much doubt that of this talent England contains a fair proportion. Sir George Bowyer's letter served a twofold purpose. In the first instance, it showed his own gross ignorance and total incompetence to speak on the matter; secondly, it exposed in its true colour the absurd prejudice which Englishmen are too apt to hold and to express against the musical taste of their own countrymen. It would be difficult to assert that our composers take equal rank with the great masters of the Continent; but it is equally true that men like Field and Sterndale Bennett established their reputation sooner and more lastingly abroad than at home. All this, of course, will be different when, with the national school of music, some standard of national taste has been established; for, the position of an ultimate court of appeal in matters æsthetic, claimed by Mr. Matthew Arnold for literary academies, would in equal measure belong to a Conservatorium in the true sense of the word, Even so radical a reformer as Richard Wagner bears testimony to this, as it might be termed, historic mission of a national music school. At the same time, there is little danger that such a tribunal ot taste would ever exercise a despotic sway in this country. We are constitutionally averse to centralisation, and the "note of provinciality," to borrow Mr. Matthew Arnold's striking term, will always be heard in the concord of our national opinion. There is, indeed, little doubt that the constitution of the Paris Conservatoire, excellent as it is in most respects, would have to be considerably modified to be found acceptable in England. We are not alluding to the broad principles of gratuitous instruction, prix de Rome, examinations, or indeed the general management of the Paris institute. These have been tried by the experience of many years, and it would be hazardous to suggest improvements or alterations, barring such slight changes as are necessitated by local conditions. But we greatly doubt whether, for instance, the system of the so-called succursales would ever become popular in this country. Lyons, and Marseilles, and Rouen willingly follow the lead of Paris, and are glad to pocket the small annuity set down for their branch institutes. Liverpool, and Manchester, and Birmingham would scorn to accept advice from London, or 6,000 francs from Government. Supposing that the present agitation leads to permanent results, the large provincial towns would probably soon have music-schools as firmly established, if not as largely attended, as the central London institute.

That the existence of the latter cannot in any way interfere with, but would rather tend to stimulate, the success of private enterprise is sufficiently proved by the example of the most musical country in the world, Germany. Here endowed and private schools flourish together, not only in the same province, but in the same city; and sometimes the latter need not shun comparison with their more powerfully supported rivals. A musical branch of the Royal Academy of Berlin was, some years ago, opened under the directorship of Joachim; but, in spite of the support it receives from government, it has not, during its nine years' existence, achieved any startling results that we are aware of. On the other hand, the private Conservatoire named after its founder, Professor Stern, can boast of the more or less temporary co-operation of such men as Bülow, Marx, Brassin, and Kiel; and amongst its pupils was by far the most gifted of the younger dramatic composers of Germany, Hermann Goetz, the author of "The Taming of the Shrew" and of the Symphony in F, played with so much success at Madame Viard-Louis' Concerts. It is true that in Germany the principle of decentralisation is carried on with the same zest which, for a long time, prevented the political union of the country. A musical Bismarck, who would abolish half a score of minor conservatoires for the benefit of a genuine State school at Berlin, might do much good; but the principle of free competition in musical education ought not to be judged by its excesses. At any rate, the statistical fact remains that, as demand creates supply, so first-rate supply will, in its turn, stimulate demand.

And with this formula we approach the easiest and most natural solution of the present dilemma in England. We have heard a great deal of a scheme of amalgamation between the National Training School and the Royal Academy of Music. The absolute value of this scheme we do not propose to discuss. The proposal has been received by representatives of the old-established institution with an animus which, if not absolutely called for, was at least excusable. It has been pointed out that the Royal Academy is first of all a pecuniary success. It is self-supporting—for the miserable pittance it receives from Government is hardly worth mentioning—and it provides for the education of the more gifted pupils through means of prizes and scholarships. Moreover, the want of the infusion of new life and spirit does not seem to be felt by the teaching body at least. To all this we have nothing to object. If the Academy desires to be separate, separate it must remain; but it appears to us absolutely monstrous to make the establishment of a Government school dependent on the amalgamation scheme above referred to. The Conservatoire in Paris has 600 pupils. Supposing that our music school were established on the same scale, it would be quite inadequate to accommodate more than a small percentage of musically-gifted English men and women, not to speak of the large influx from the United States which, in that case, would naturally reach London instead of Stuttgart and Leipzig. This large surplus of students, minus only the 600 Academy scholars, would inevitably find its way to the private or semi-private schools. We have, indeed, little hesitation in saying that these, one and all, would profit by the new stimulus given to musical life, and the keen competition consequent thereon. At the same time the artistic tone of this competition would be secured by the example of the National School, which, independent itself of commercial considerations, would serve as an educational model to teachers and taught. In this way the nucleus and germ of national musical life might be formed without prejudice to vested rights and individual susceptibilities, and it ought not to be difficult to find a common basis on which all serious-minded musicians could meet. Details should be left to a later period. The whole musical community must appear before Parliament in serried rank and file. The battle-cry should be: a National School for Music, supported by Government, and constituted, broadly speaking, on the model of the Paris Conservatoire. This is a scheme which the most practical-minded legislator will appreciate, for it implies nothing but the acceptance of a well-tried example. At any rate, let us first get the money, there will be plenty of time afterwards to discuss how it may be spent most advantageously.

BEETHOVEN'S TENTH SYMPHONY.

By Ludwig Nohl.

(Continued from page 11.)

II.—THE NINTH AND THE TENTH.

"Whatever the Philharmonic Society may desire me to do I shall endeavour to carry out, and never before have I undertaken a new work with so much love." These are the concluding words of the expunged portion, already referred to, of the letter intended for Moscheles in London, while in the one actually received the following passage occurs: "May heaven only grant me a speedy restoration to health, and I will then prove to those generous English how well I know to value their compassionate interest in my cruel fate." Now, although this Tenth Symphony, intended for the "generous English," was never accomplished, it is nevertheless to England we owe in the first instance Beethoven's chef-d'œuvre, the Ninth. With the outward circumstances of the origin of the latter work the twin-character of this last and most gigantic double conception is to some extent connected. We must therefore consider the subject somewhat more closely, since it moreover affects the general character of both works; their predominating abstractedly poetic tendency, and with it the progression of Beethoven's symphonies in the direction of the "symphonic poem," and in this respect, also, the external influence bearing upon the origin of the works in question must be allowed a share of importance in the further development of our art generally.

The intention on the part of our composer to write new symphonies we meet with during the composition and after the final completion of the Seventh and Eighth, viz., in the year 1812. In the sketches referred to in our previous article, those of the Seventh contain the words, "Second Symphony, D minor," and again in those of the Eighth, the words occur, "Symphony in D minor—third symphony." Hence, as a pendant to the Eighth, the Ninth had been found unsuitable, i.e., too grandly conceived. For it is to be presumed that it was the latter which was present in Beethoven's mind when fixing the key. Of the first movement (which in a symphony is, of course, all decisive) we possess, it is true, no earlier sketches than those from the year 1816. But even if none should have existed at a more remote period (an assumption by no means proved), the mere fixing of the characteristic key for an instrumental work, like the symphony or the sonata, indicates, so to speak, the first breath of life, the presence of the creative "Spirit of God upon the face of the waters," since in an art-work partaking of the sonata form, the conception is, like the poet's, the result of the contemplation of a picture of life, whereas in the fugue and other polyphonic structures, the whole is built up or "composed" in an architectural form from the theme. Thus Schiller, after close self-observation, distinctly recognised the fact that the creative activity of his genius manifested itself in the first instance as a musical mood, during which the poetic imageries and the diction gradually developed themselves. In the case of the creative tone-poet, this fugitive point of life is infinitely more dependent for its presence upon a similar momentary mood, flitting past like a brilliant shadow, and is doubtless fixed first of all by the determination of the key, the respective character of which impresses upon every musical composition its distinctive peculiarity. Beethoven himself attached great importance to this distinct individuality of the separate keys. Writing to his esteemed friend Madame Streicher in the year 1817, he says: "If you visit the old ruins (at Baden, near Vienna), remember then that Beethoven has often lingered there; if you wander through the magnificent pinewood, think that Beethoven has often poetised there, or, as they call it, composed." He looked upon himself, then, as a poet, and to be a poet is to possess the faculty of creating by abstract contemplation, and from out the depth of emotion, a picture of life. And of such an inwardly conceived picture, one of the grandest that ever poet produced, we have here the first distinguishable traces, while, alas! those acquainted with Beethoven's biography will recognise the fact that his preceding bitter experiences in life had sufficiently prepared him for the conception of a tragic world-picture such as the Ninth Symphony enrols. Individual emotions of a most intense nature, as well as outward shocks of peculiar violence, were, however, yet needed in order to call this dark-coloured vision of life into the living reality of the elaborated picture itself; and in this respect the special circumstances of the commission for writing this Ninth Symphony were as significant as the composer's individual experiences during the years between 1812 and 1816, when the first sketches for the work appeared. It will be necessary to dwell upon this subject, more especially since it concerns the history of the Tenth Symphony quite as much as it does that of the Ninth.

In the first place it is a fact worthy of notice that we meet with sketches of the Scherzo of the Ninth Symphony as far back as 1813. In the same year, and more strikingly still in the autumn of 1814 (on the occasion of the famous "academy," held during the sitting of the Congress of Vienna, when Beethoven produced his Seventh Symphony), the composer experienced for the first time on a grand platform the colossal effect produced by his genius in an artistic sphere wherein his soul could pour itself out to the fullest extent, wherein his imaginative powers could be displayed without restraint, viz., in purely instrumental music, above all in the orchestra. Hence in a book of sketches for the cantata, "Der Glorreiche Augenblick," intended as a welcome to the august assembly at the Congress, and dating presumably from the year 1814, we find the words inserted, "Sinfonie für zweierlei Horn." This suggestion has, it is true, never been followed up by the composer, neither has a "Symphony in B minor," alluded to in a sketch-book, likewise of 1814, ever become a reality. But the same book also contains the following memorandum: "At Drury Lane Theatre on the 10th, and by general desire repeated on the 13th"—referring to the composer's "Battle of Vittoria," intended to glorify the first decisive victory which British valour had achieved over the mighty French conqueror whom Beethoven hated as immoderately as his imagination had exalted the deeds of Wellington and of the English generally. For had he not, when in the composition referred to he depicted the entry upon the field of the British army amidst the strains of the national anthem, exclaimed, "I must show these Englishmen what a blessing there lies in their 'God save the King!'" And now this same "noble Albion" tendered him a recognition of his genius, all the more to be appreciated by him since it was in London where a Handel had lived, where a Haydn had reaped a full measure of honours, and where a Mozart too would undoubtedly have met with a personal appreciation equally stimulating, had not death prematurely shortened his career. The time, moreover, had gone by when it was the attractive power of English gold merely which brought foreign musicians to London. England, great already at home, had recently manifested a high spirit in her influence upon European politics, and in an album possessed by the youthful Beethoven we already meet with the words: "Siehe es winkt, Freund, lange dir Albion." With the composer's growing fame, the solicitations on the part of his English visitors to undertake the journey to England had gradually become more urgent, while now, after the to him so significant experiences in connection with the Congress, the importunities of his admirers took the form of direct invitations. In answer to one of these he replied (June, 1815) that he had always "cherished this wish," and in his diary he writes: "What joy to behold once more my native country, to visit England, and then to spend here (referring to Bonn) some four weeks." Meanwhile English publishing firms were offering liberal terms for the acquisition of some of his more important works, such as "Wellington's Victory" and the Symphony in A major; and in the summer of 1815 one of the founders of the London Philharmonic Society, Charles Neate (but recently deceased at the age of ninety-one) paid a visit to Vienna, where the amiable musician soon gained the entire friendship of Beethoven. Subsequently, on the 24th of January, 1816, the latter wrote a canon on a leaf of Neate's album, dedicating it to "his dear English compatriot," and recommending him on his departure to his friends Brentano at Frankfurt as "an excellent English artist and congenial man." Besides this new friend, Beethoven's own pupil, F. Ries, was an old resident in London. Thus, the projected visit to the English metropolis became more and more plausible, and although it was, as we know, never actually carried out, we must not lose sight of the fact that the thought of his being able at any moment to take his flight abroad, to breathe the stimulating atmosphere of fresh fame and new successes, assisted materially in upholding both his courage and elasticity of mind during the trying circumstances in which he was placed after the year 1815. But more than this, the associations which connected him with England, whose men, according to his own expression, "are mostly capital fellows" (tüchtige Kerle), exercised an immediate influence upon his work, and this in a most important and noble direction. For was it not a matter of necessity in carrying out his favoured project that he should hasten the production of some new and striking compositions? He, of whom Zelter had once written to Goethe that "his mother must have been a man," would not he, when coming to England, have to measure himself as a man with men, and, as an artist, with a composer of whom his own opinion is said to have been expressed thus: "Handel is the unapproached master of all masters. Go and learn from him how to produce with simple means such mighty effects." In the spring of 1816 his C minor Symphony had received a splendid rendering in London, and we can thus the more easily interpret the drift of a note which just at that time occurs in his diary: "Operas and everything else to be laid aside, writing only after your own fashion." His fashion, however, was instrumental music, above all, the symphony, in which art-form he was about to achieve the highest standard of perfection. We are approaching the last mighty symphonic twin-pair, the Ninth and the Tenth, and this brings our subject to the final conclusion.

The Ninth Symphony had, as we have seen, already for some years stood within the periphery of the powerfully creative imagination of the artist, while sketches of its first movement exist as far back as the year 1816. Mighty, tragic pathos is its chief characteristic; it is the strife against fate in its all-embracing magnitude; it is the terrible resistance offered by the individual will against an unalterable necessity which is here represented—a subject quite in keeping with the character of a people which had produced a Shakespeare. Taking into account the fact that ever since the year 1813, when the intention of visiting England for the purpose of producing his latest compositions first enters into his serious consideration, this eventuality continues from year to year to take a firmer hold upon his imagination, it becomes the more probable that the expression of manful vigour and of serious contemplation of life imparted to the Symphony should be in part intended to appeal to the character of the nation upon which his thoughts were directed. We shall see, moreover, that Beethoven himself was fully conscious of this, permitting this element to have full play upon his artistic inspirations; nay, even especial orchestral advantages, which a performance in London would have offered him, exercised a distinct influence upon the elaboration of the Ninth. Through the exertions mainly of his friends Ries, Neate, and the music-publisher Smart, it had at last been brought about that the composer received an official invitation on the part of the Philharmonic Society to come to London, and to bring with him some new works. "My dearest Beethoven," says Ries (like Neate, one of the directors of the Society), in a letter dated July 7, 1817, "the Society, who prefers your compositions to any others, desires to give you a proof of respect and gratitude for the numerous delightful moments which your extraordinarily genial (genialisch) works have afforded us. . . . Friends will receive you with open arms, and as an earnest of our intentions I have been commissioned to offer you the sum of 300 guineas under the following conditions:" which were, that he should come to London and write two great symphonies, two such works at least being invariably performed at the Society's concerts. Beethoven, in his reply dated July 9, considers the offer "very flattering," asking only that he should receive a portion of the sum tendered in advance, since he should "at once commence the composition of these great symphonies," and adding in conclusion, "Would that I could fly there instead of this letter." A postscript, moreover, contains the assurance that he should "use all his efforts" in order to "acquit himself in the most worthy manner of the honouring request coming to him from such a select artistic body."

"Notwithstanding his earnest intentions," the journey was not undertaken; indeed, it would have been barely possible for the hopelessly deaf master to accomplish it. "And yet," continues the so-called "Fischhof'sche" manuscript, "the wish had taken firm root in his soul, while his longing to see it fulfilled was constantly kept alive by his friend Ries. He had persuaded himself that nowhere should his stupendous genius, which anticipated the progress of many centuries, meet with adequate recognition except in Great Britain. He believed that the spirit of his compositions would be nowhere better understood. Hence the quite natural predilection for that country, the offspring of his just self-esteem. The distinction conferred upon him by the British nation he valued more highly than that which the rest of Europe together had to offer him; for they had always understood him best—they in whose country art is not the plaything of fashion." Now, although the copyist of this document (the Viennese musician, Fischhof) has added the sign of a query to the last-quoted paragraph, seeing that such a blissful state of things never existed even in England; yet this ideal conception of the "proud English," however exaggerated as regarded his special art, was nevertheless destined to exercise a very decided influence upon Beethoven's work. Indeed, the author of the biographical manuscript from which we are quoting (the composer's friend, Zmeskall) here inserts the personal remark that Beethoven's individuality, in its especial peculiarities, had much in common with the English national character, while "his self-consciousness may also have contributed to his liking for the nation, since they so readily acknowledged his genius."

And now, what has become of the second of these two great symphonic works, for the conception of which, as we have just seen, the master had received the desired impulses and the concrete impressions? For, as regards the first of the two—the mighty Ninth—it lives and proclaims its existence year after year the whole world over, and I will only add that the idea of the majestic bass recitatives of the Finale originated in Beethoven's acquaintance with the great contra-bassist Dragonetti, who was the leader of the basses at the Philharmonic Concerts. Of the Tenth Symphony itself we have, however, the following traces, which, imperfect though they be, will nevertheless indicate clearly enough the leading idea and character of the work. Consulting Schindler again, in his report to Moscheles already alluded to, we come across the following passage: "But, my dear friend, if Beethoven should really be able to write this Tenth Symphony, I fear the generation has yet to be born which would be capable of understanding it." No wonder, however, that, to quote Faust's words, "all hope should leave this simpleton," seeing that the famulus in question has to the end of his life failed truly to appreciate the genius of his master. Nevertheless, he has succeeded in retaining for us the impression made upon his mind by the vision of the tone-picture which on this occasion Beethoven unfolded before him, and which will enable us to arrive at a conclusion as to the grandeur of its intended design. "In the confusion of his domestic arrangements," continues Schindler, "it was impossible to convey to paper all that he said, and the more so since he continually referred to gigantic plans he meant yet to carry out, but which he would never once pause to explain." The music to "Faust" is again mentioned, touching upon which Beethoven is said to have exclaimed, "That shall be something!" (Das soll was geben.) Our informant concludes with the appropriate exclamation: "A thousand pities that during this overflow of his imagination, when his conversation would assume a poetic fluency such as I but rarely witnessed in his normal state of health, some intelligent listeners, or better still shorthand writers, were not present! The benefit conferred by such instruction upon art would have been immense!" Turning now to this remarkable plan of the Tenth Symphony itself, we rely upon the following note from the year 1818, which, after the above manifold references and allusions, we are justified in associating with the projected work we treat of. The memorandum says: "Adagio cantique, hymn-like song, in a symphony written in the old modes (Lord God, we praise Thee, Hallelujah), either separate or as introduction to a Fugue. Perhaps in this manner the entire second Symphony to be characterised, in which case the voices would appear in the last movement, or already in the Adagio. The orchestral violins, &c., will in the last movement be increased tenfold; or else the Adagio will in the last movement be repeated, when the voices will only gradually enter. The text to be Greek mythos, cantique ecclésiastique; in the Allegro, 'Feast of Bacchus.'" Not the introduction of the human voice, even though in this instance it had been already intended in the Adagio, was the "entirely new idea" to which we have heard Breuning make allusion; for already the Ninth Symphony had included it, nay even the Choral Fantasia. Nor was it the direct interconnection of the different movements, important though it be for the further development of the poetic capabilities inherent in the Sonata form, but ceasing to be merely latent since Beethoven. But important in the highest degree is the ethic significance of the work which might, likewise, appropriately be called "The Victory of the Cross," because the most profound Greek mythos, the Mysteries of Dionysos (containing in itself already the germs of religious regeneration) was by this cantique ecclésiastique, by the religion of divine grace and love, to be superseded or rather fulfilled and sanctified; and this reconciliation and union of old and new world ideas—a theme which occupies the minds of all modern poets and thinkers—was to have been artistically illustrated in symphonic language: beyond doubt "an entirely new idea," an idea which in the directness and concreteness of the poetic intention foreshadowed an enormous augmentation of the dramatic power of which the organism of the Symphony admitted. The religious disposition of the composer's mind had long since been prepared by bitterest sufferings and purest spiritual elevations. His soul was irresistibly drawn towards "the Eternal, the All-powerful, the Infinite," and, far more profoundly than in the "Missa Solemnis;" this fact is proclaimed by the Ninth Symphony, in the words "Ihr stürzt nieder Millionen, Ahnest du den Schöpfer, Welt?" and in the joy of an all-embracing love which is the result of a similarly exalted state of mind. And were not the English known to be particularly orthodox in matters concerning the Christian faith and doctrine? What, then, could be more natural than that he should select a subject which would appeal directly to the comprehension of the people for whom this tone-picture was intended, and which would at the same time afford him an opportunity of solving after "his fashion" a problem of the highest ethical import. More circumstantial evidence with regard to the foregoing æsthetic and psychological observations will be found in my "Beethoven's Leben;" we must be content here to add merely a few historical gleanings having reference to this "second Symphony," the pendant to the Ninth.

With regard to the key, Beethoven's friend Holz (who during these last years of the composer's life was on specially intimate terms with him) gives the following account: "The Tenth Symphony commences with an Andante in E flat, $\frac{3}{4}$ time, assigned to wind instruments, and changes suddenly into a stormy Allegro representing the Feast of Bacchus." The latter, of which the sketches are extant, has $\frac{6}{8}$ time and the key of C major, while Holz mentions C minor as being the key of the entire conception, a supposition which is also borne out by the subsequent sketches. When, in the year 1824, after the brilliant performance of the Ninth Symphony, the old project of the composer's visiting England had again revived, the "Tenth" was at once thought of. Neate had again written, assuring him that his talents were more appreciated in England than in any other country, adding that Beethoven would indeed become a happy man if he could make up his mind to visit a country where he would meet with none but friends, and where the fame of the "great Beethoven" surpassed that of any other composer. The Philharmonic Society, the writer continues, was anxious to renew their former offer, while expecting a second Symphony, the first of the two (namely the "Ninth") having already been received. Thus the old plan was again discussed, and the sketches for the composition in question (now in the possession of the Berlin Library) again looked over. When on his death-bed the master once more asked to see these sketches, they were handed to him by Schindler, and it was on this occasion that the latter was made acquainted with the general design of the work. Subsequently Schindler communicated what he knew about the subject to "Hirschbach's Musikalisch-Kritisches Repertorium" (Leipzig, 1842), and it was then, for the first time, that the world obtained some positive information concerning the Tenth Symphony. The motive of the Scherzo, C minor, $\frac{3}{4}$, is the first of the sketches; then follows a motive B, A, C, H (the latter being the B of the German scale), originally appertaining to a long-projected overture in honour of the "arch-father of harmony," Sebastian Bach; this is followed by the jubilant theme in $\frac{6}{8}$ time, the Feast of Bacchus, which is superscribed "Finale of the first movement." Next comes a notation, "$\frac{2}{4}$, A flat major," referring, according to Schindler, to the Adagio; but neither an "old mode," nor a Te Deum laudamus, nor Hallelujah, can be discovered. Finally, to the word "Fugue," the sketches contain a motive in C minor, $\frac{2}{4}$, resembling the second portion of the theme of the Fugue in E major from the second part of Bach's "Wohltemperirte Clavier," evidently the Finale of the work, since, as we have heard, the Adagio was to have culminated in a Fugue.

Thus everything is found together which constitutes a "great" Symphony, and the idea thus shadowed forth is indeed as worthy of the genius of Beethoven as it is of the "magnanimity of the generous men" who had bespoken the work, and who had been instrumental in conveying to the dying man the last ray of hope and comfort. Here too, then, the twin-character of Beethoven's Symphonies has been de facto maintained, although, unfortunately for our art, we do not possess the measure which would enable us to form a final opinion upon this last conception, since it was never actually matured. Nevertheless, it will be admitted that the "poetic idea," or rather the spiritual design of the "Tenth Symphony," renders it to the fullest extent equal to its companion, the "Ninth," and we recognise in it at the same time the first step to a mighty development of the Symphony itself, and to the participation of musical art in the solution of the highest problems of modern life and culture.

THE LITERATURE OF NATIONAL MUSIC.

By Carl Engel.

(Continued from page 14.)

Treatises.

In our survey of the collections of national songs, we have already become acquainted with several treatises which are published as introductory to the collections. It remains now to notice the most important treatises relating to national music which have been brought out independently of any collection. Let us turn first to Asia.

Sir William Jones's essay "On the Musical Modes of the Hindus," written in the year 1784, and subsequently much enlarged by the author, is printed in "Asiatic Researches" (Calcutta, 1792; vol. iii., p. 55); in "Dissertations and Miscellaneous Pieces relating to the History and Antiquities, &c., of Asia" (London, 1796; 8vo, vol. iii.); and in "The Works of Sir William Jones" (London, 1799; 4to, vol. i., p. 413). A German translation of this essay, by F. H. von Dalberg (Erfurt, 1802; 4to), contains some additional accounts respecting the music of uncivilised nations. "An Essay on the Music of Hindustan," by Sir William Ouseley, is printed in "Oriental Collections," &c. (London, 1797; 4to, vol. i., p. 70). Augustus Willard's "Treatise on the Music of Hindustan" (Calcutta, 1834; 8vo), contains many statements respecting the history of music in general which may be supposed to be well-known to any one who intends to study the music of the Hindus. However, among the unnecessary statements the author occasionally and sometimes incidentally mentions facts referring to the popular songs and tunes of Hindustan which deserve the careful attention of the student. The most interesting chapters in the book are those which treat of the Rags and Raginees, of musical instruments, of vocal compositions, and of the peculiar manners and customs of the Hindus to which allusions are made in their popular songs.

An elaborate treatise on the music of the Chinese, written by the Jesuit missionary Amiot, and illustrated with fine engravings of musical instruments, forms the sixth volume of "Mémoires concernant l'histoire, les sciences, les arts, les mœurs, les usages, &c., des Chinois, par les Missionnaires de Pékin" (Paris, 1780; 4to). It is rather unfortunate for musical students that some of the most interesting treatises on the art are incorporated in voluminous and expensive publications, and are not procurable separately, except by some chance which rarely occurs. Amiot is said to have sent to Paris several manuscripts of essays on Chinese music, besides that which has been printed. Adrien de la Fage, in his "Histoire générale de la Musique" (Paris, 1844; vol. i., p. 10), states that they are unaccountably lost; and he deplores the loss of Amiot's translation of a treatise on music written by Ly-Koang-ti, a learned Chinese who lived in the eighteenth century. The Abbé Arnaud published an abridgment of this treatise in the "Variétés littéraires, ou Recueil des Pièces tant originales que traduites" (Paris, 1768). Moreover, the treatise was published in a Spanish translation, at Madrid, in the year 1779. Adrien de la Fage doubts this. He says that no one has seen the Spanish translation, and that all his inquiries about it have been unsuccessful. F. J. Fétis is of the same opinion. He says ("Biographie universelle des Musiciens," vol. i., p. 90): "Lichtenthal indique ('Bibliogr. della Musica,' t. iii., p. 43) d'après un article du 'Journal Encylop.' (Mars, 1780; t. ii., part 3, p. 543) une version espagnole de la traduction française du traité de musique de Ly-Koang-ti, par le père Amiot, sous ce titre 'Memoria sobre la Musica de los Chineses; Madrid, imprinta de Bablo y Texero, 1780.' Malgré ces indications si précises, j'avoué que je doute de l'existence de ce livre; car toutes les recherches que j'ai fait faire à Madrid n'ont pu en faire découvrir un seul exemplaire. La traduction a pu être faite; mais il est vraisemblable qu'elle n'a point paru."

The treatise has, however, been published; and in order to dispel all uncertainty about its existence, I shall give a short account of its contents. I obtained in London a copy of "Variedades literarias, ó Colección de piezas escogidas de literatura, asi originales, como tracucidas de diversos Idiomas al Frances, pertenecientes á las Artes y Ciercias; por los Señores Arnod y Suard. Traducidas al Castellano por Don Felix Fguia, Presbytero, Teologo, y Examinador del Tribunal de la Nunciatura; Tomo II. En Madrid; en la imprenta de Pedro Marin; Ano de 1779." This book contains, among other essays, the musical one in question. It has the heading: "Traduccion Manuscrita de un libro sobre la Musica de los Chinòs, compuesta por Ly-Koang-ti, Doctor y Miembro del primer Tribunal de Letras, Ministro del Imperio, &c.; adornada de varias reflexiones y notas curiosas." The introductory portion of the treatise evidently emanated from a European pen, perhaps from that of Amiot himself. It points out an apparent or supposed similarity of the Chinese musical system with that of the ancient Egyptians and that of Pythagoras. We are told of the miraculous power attributed to music by the ancient Chinese, and of the wonderful effect of the instrument Kin, mounted with silken strings, which in ancient time must have been a sacred instrument, for, we are told, it was never played unless incense was burned during its performance. The author maintains that the character of the Chinese music has experienced in the course of time fewer modifications than have the notions of the Chinese about the art. He records the unsuccessful attempts of the Emperor Kang-hi to introduce into China the European music, with which he had in some measure become acquainted through the Jesuit missionaries; and the author believes that the organ of hearing of the Chinese is constructed somewhat differently from that of the Europeans; this accounts, in his opinion, for their peculiar musical taste. Howbeit, the Emperor Kang-hi soon became convinced that, though he had the power of deciding on the life or death of his subjects, he could not alter their music. The author has much to say respecting the different kinds of musical performances which formerly were observed at the Court and on certain solemn popular celebrations. He records the construction of improved instruments during the reign of the Emperor Kang-hi, in the latter half of the seventeenth century; however, he adds that the new instruments were made exactly after the pattern of the old ones used at the Imperial Court; the improvements must therefore have been but slight. The subsequent portion of the treatise refers mostly to the history of the art, and to religious and other ceremonies with musical performances. Particularly interesting is the account of the method used by the Chinese music-masters in teaching the signs for reading their music, and such-like elementary knowledge. This subject would, however, take too much space to discuss here; nor does it come strictly within the scope of the present survey. Sufficient has probably been said to give the reader a correct idea of the treatise under consideration, which occupies about sixty pages in the small octavo volume in which it is printed.

The same volume contains another curious translation, entitled "Memoria sobre los Bayles de los Chinos, sacada de una traduccion manuscrita di algunas obras de Confucio," which refers almost exclusively to the dances of the Chinese, the musical performances accompanying them being referred to only incidentally.

The music of no other Asiatic race has been so carefully investigated by Europeans as that of the Arabs. Among the treatises giving information on the musical system and instruments of the Arabs may be specified:—

"Die Musik der Araber, nach Originalquellen dargestellt, von R. G. Kiesewetter" (Leipzig, 1842; 4to).

"Esquisse historique de la Musique Arabe, par Alexandre Christianowitsch" (Cologne, 1863; folio).

"La Musique Arabe, ses rapports avec la Musique Grecque et le Chant Grégorien, par F. Salvador Daniel" (Algiers, 1863; 8vo).

An instructive chapter on the songs and musical instruments of the Arab-Egyptians is to be found in "An Account of the Manners and Customs of the Modern Egyptians," by E. W. Lane. The first edition of this work appeared in London in the year 1836, and about half a dozen editions of it have subsequently been brought out.

By far the most valuable dissertation on the music of the Arabs is the work by G. A. Villoteau, which forms part of the large and costly publication entitled "Description de l'Egypte, ou Recueil des Observations et des Recherches qui ont été faites en Egypte pendant l'expédition de l'armée française" (Paris, 1809; second edition, Paris, 1823). Villoteau's carefully written dissertation is enhanced by the addition of three beautiful plates in folio, showing the described instruments with the peculiar construction of their different portions. Here again the musical student has perhaps to deplore that such interesting information should be almost hidden from him by being incorporated in an expensive work amounting to above twenty volumes. True, several subsequent musical writers of inexpensive books have used much of the information given by Villoteau; but it is always preferable for the student to refer to the original source from which the compilers have drawn.

This remark leads to the expression of a wish wherein the reader will probably likewise join. It is a well-known fact that the more civilised Asiatic nations possess many treatises on music. Oriental scholars mention several of the Hindus. Amiot, in his work before cited, gives a list of about seventy by Chinese authors. The Japanese, it may be supposed, are in this respect not behind the Chinese, considering the natural intelligence and inquisitiveness of the Japanese. As regards the Arabs and the Persians, the names of a number of authors on music are known, and the titles of many treatises. Occasionally a translation into a European language has been attempted, such as, for instance, the English translation published by Eli Smith in the "Journal of the American Oriental Society" (Boston, 1749; vol. i.), which is chiefly derived from a treatise by Mikhâil Meshâkah of Damascus.

There are considerable difficulties in producing a correct and useful translation of such a work. The translator must not only be thoroughly acquainted with the language in which it is written; he must also be an experienced musician, well informed in our own music, and familiar with the characteristics of the foreign music on which the work treats; he must especially be conversant with the exact meaning of the technical terms used by the author. Where these necessary qualifications are combined in the translator, interesting information might be obtained, particularly from some of the old Arabic treatises, which would probably throw light upon certain obscure questions relating to the history of our own art.

The earliest Arabic writer on music was, as far as is known, the learned El-Kindi, who lived about the middle of the ninth century of our era. There is, however, a treatise on music written by the famous Al-Farabi, of which a faithful translation would be perhaps even more desirable. Al-Farabi wrote his treatise about the year 900 of our Christian era. Three manuscript copies of it are known to be extant. One of these, of which Mariano Soriano Fuertes has published extracts translated into Spanish, is in the Escurial; another is in the Library at Leyden; and a third, which is said to be a particularly fine and clearly written manuscript, is in the Ambrosian Library at Milan. With these sources at his command it would no doubt be possible to a really musical Oriental scholar to produce a valuable rendering in English, German, or French, with a fac-simile reproduction of the original drawings of the musical instruments with which the treatise is said to be illustrated.

It is well known that some of the old Arabic, Persian, Hindu, and Chinese musical theorists exhibit speculations of their own which were not in agreement with the musical systems popular at the time when the theorists wrote. Suggestive though these speculations may be, translations of them are likely to prove less instructive than translations of treatises which explain the music as it actually was or is in practical use.

This may be the place to draw attention to a curious dissertation on the Eastern origin of the national music of the Scotch, written in German, and entitled "Erste Wanderung der ältesten Tonkunst, &c., von G. W. Fink" (Essen, 1831; sm. 8vo). The aim of the author is to prove that the music of the Celtic race was originally derived from Asia, and that its original characteristics were preserved more intact in Scotland than in any other European districts owing to the isolated position of that country, and to similar circumstances. Twenty-four years before the publication of Fink's interesting book, John Gunn, a Scotch musician, had already given, at the end of his treatise entitled "An Historical Enquiry respecting the Performance on the Harp in the Highlands of Scotland," &c. (Edinburgh, 1807; 4to), a prospectus of "An Enquiry into the Antiquity of the Harp, and into the Oriental Extraction and Ancient History of the Caledonian Scots, demonstrating from the language, ancient religion, superstitious rites, their kalendar and festivals, their remarkable traditions, manners and customs, and from other documents and monuments still existing in Asia, France, Great Britain, and Ireland, that they brought the harp, together with other arts of civilized life, from Armenia and the western coast of Asia into the southern parts of England, prior to the era at which our writers commence the history of Great Britain," &c. This contemplated work has never been published, which is the less to be deplored since —to judge from the circumstantial prospectus, of which the commencement only is here quoted—the author proves himself too superficially acquainted with Oriental music for the successful execution of his projected task. G. W. Fink was evidently far better prepared for engaging in the same inquiry. Perhaps he had seen the prospectus issued by J. Gunn, and it suggested to him to investigate the questions raised by the Scotchman. However this may be, he would not have laid so much stress upon the similarity of the musical scale without the intervals of the fourth and seventh, traceable in the music of the Scotch and of the Chinese, had he been aware of its existence in the music of several nations in different parts of the world, of which there appears not to be the slightest probability that they borrowed it from each other. In fact, this peculiar order of intervals, which is now known as the pentatonic scale, may not improperly be regarded as the most natural musical scale, because evidences are not wanting which show that it naturally suggests itself to people whose music is in its infancy; and because it has often been observed that, even in European countries where the diatonic scale prevails, little children in their first attempts to sing this series of intervals are apt to omit the two semitones and to produce the pentatonic series. At any rate, unbiassed investigators must admit that the pentatonic scale is more simple, more impressive, and easier to sing than the diatonic scale; and these qualifications perhaps sufficiently account for its frequent occurrence in the tunes of uncivilised nations or tribes widely separated and having little or no affinity with each other. Although the subject is suggestive and very important to the student of national music, a further discussion of it would be out of place in the present essay. I shall, therefore, restrict myself to citing only one example in confirmation of the opinion expressed.

The reader will probably remember the so-called Jubilee Singers—emancipated negro-slaves from the United States of North America, who visited Europe for the purpose of giving concerts to obtain funds for the establishment of a college at Nashville, in Tennessee, for the higher education of the freed negroes. In "The Story of the Jubilee Singers, with their Songs" (London: Hodder and Stoughton, 1876; 8vo, fourth edition), are given above a hundred airs in notation, with some curious statements respecting their origin and performance, communicated by T. F. Seward. He remarks: "Their origin is unique. They are never composed after the manner of ordinary music, but spring into life, ready made, from the white heat of religious fervour during some protracted meeting in church or camp. They come from no musical cultivation whatever, but are the simple, ecstatic utterances of wholly untutored minds. From so unpromising a source we could reasonably expect only such a mass of crudities as would be unendurable to the cultivated ear. On the contrary, however, the cultivated listener confesses to a new charm, and to a power never before felt, at least in its kind." Having pointed out as a noticeable feature of the airs the rare occurrence of triple time, or three-part measure, the cause of which he assigns to the habit which these negroes have of beating the foot and swaying the body while singing—motions which are in even measure and in regular time—he remarks: "It is a coincidence worthy of note that more than half the melodies in this collection are in the same scale as that in which Scottish music is written; that is, with the fourth and seventh tones omitted. The fact that the music of the ancient Greeks is also said to have been written in this scale suggests an interesting inquiry as to whether it may not be a peculiar language of nature, or a simpler alphabet than the ordinary diatonic scale, in which the uncultivated mind finds its easiest expression."

The Germans possess a considerable number of treatises on music translated from foreign languages. The English possess but few such publications, their translations of foreign works on music being mostly from productions of a rather gossiping kind. There are, however, indications of an increasing demand in England for really instructive works; indeed, this must be the natural consequence of the greatly increasing extent to which the musical art has been practically cultivated in England since about the middle of the present century. The following books are, almost all of them, either in English, in French, or in German—languages which may be supposed to be known to many intelligent musicians. It would probably be of but little use here to enumerate the treatises written in other than those languages.

"Ueber die Musik der neuern Griechen," by R. G. Kiesewetter (Leipzig, 1838; 4to). The student will find interesting specimens of tunes of the modern Greeks, Turks, and Wallachians, in "Geschichte des transalpinischen Daciens," by F. J. Sulzer (Vienna, 1781; 8vo, three vols). Chrysanthos has published two works on the music of the modern Greeks, which are written in the Greek language. The first of these works is an "Introduction to the Theory and Praxis of the Greek Church Music." It was neatly printed by Rignoux in Paris, in the year 1821, and was intended for publication in Constantinople. The other is a similar work, but larger, and not so well brought out; it was printed, in the year 1832, by Michael Weiss, in Trieste.

"Histoire de la Musique en Russie. Première Partie: Musique Sacrée, suivie d'un Choix de Morceaux de Chants d'Eglise anciens et modernes," par le Prince Nicolas Youssoupoff (Paris, 1862; royal 8vo). The author's intention to publish, in a second volume, a treatise on the secular national songs of Russia has not yet been carried out. The student would do well to consult "Dissertations sur les Antiquités de Russie, contenant l'ancienne mythologie, les rites payens, les fêtes sacrées, les jeux, les oracles, l'ancienne musique, les instrumens de musique villageoise, les coutumes, les cérémonies, l'habillement, les divertissemens de village, les mariages, les funérailles, l'hospitalité nationale, les repas, &c., des Russes, comparés avec les mêmes objets chez les Anciens, et particulièrement chez les Grecs; par Matthieu Guthrie" (St. Petersburg, 1795; 8vo). An elaborate treatise on Russian Church music, written by Razumoffsky, in Russian, and containing many curious notations with explanations, has been issued in two volumes (Moscow, 1867 and 1869; 8vo).

A treatise on Russian Church songs, written in German, by Alexis von Lwoff, is entitled "Ueber den Freien-Rhythmus des altrussischen Kirchengesangs" (St. Petersburg, 1859; royal 8vo). A. von Lwoff is the composer of the well-known Russian National Anthem, which resembles the "Sicilian Mariners' Hymn."

"Entstehung, Fortgang, und jetzige Beschaffenheit der Russischen Jagdmusik, von J. C. Hinrichs" (St. Petersburg, 1796; 4to). An account of the so-called Russian Horn Band, in which each performer has only a single tone; with illustrations and specimens of the peculiar notation contrived for insuring that each player falls in with his note at the right moment. The inventor of the Russian Horn Band, Johann Anton Maresch, was born in the year 1719 in Bohemia, and migrated in the year 1748 to St. Petersburg.

"Beiträge zur Kenntniss der Slavischen Volkspoesie, von F. v. Miklosich" (Vienna, 1870; folio). "Historical View of the Languages and Literature of the Slavic Nations, with a Sketch of their Popular Poetry," by Talvj (New York, 1850; 8vo).

"Des Bohémiens et de leur Musique en Hongrie, par F. Liszt" (Paris, 1859, small 8vo). A German translation of the same: "Die Zigeuner und ihre Musik in Ungarn, deutsch bearbeitet von Peter Cornelius" (Pesth, 1861; 8vo). The style of this book is rather bombastic, and the author states but few instructive facts, although he displays much sentiment respecting the music of the gipsies.

"Music and the Anglo-Saxons; being some account of the Anglo-Saxon Orchestra; with remarks on the Church Music of the Nineteenth Century," by F. D. Wackerbarth (London, 1837; 8vo). This book is noticed here only on account of the interesting subject on which it professes to treat. It is an unsatisfactory compilation, and its title is the best part of the book.

"Musical Memoirs of Scotland, with historical annotations and numerous illustrative plates," by Sir John Graham Dalyell (Edinburgh, T. G. Stevenson, 1749; 4to). The value of this book, which is replete with extraneous matter, consists in the interesting illustrations of ancient musical instruments, taken from old sculptures and paintings extant in Scotland and England.

"Die Minnesänger und Liederdichter des 12, 13, und 14 Jahrhunderts, von F. H. Hagen" (Leipzig, 1838; 4to, 3 vols.); with specimens of mediæval songs in notation.

"Ueber die Lais, Sequencen und Leiche; ein Beitrag zur Geschichte der rhythmischen Formen und Singweisen der Volkslieder und der volksmässigen Kirchen—und Kunstlieder im Mittelalter," von Ferdinand Wolf (Heidelberg, 1841; 8vo); with eight fac-similes and nine plates of musical notation. An account of the national songs of the Middle Ages will be found in "Histoire de l'Harmonie au Moyen Age, par E. de Coussemaker" (Paris, 1852; 4to). The student will do well to consult "The Lays of the Minnesingers, or German Troubadours of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries; illustrated by specimens of the contemporary lyric poetry of Provence and other parts of Europe; with historical and critical notices, and engravings from the MS. of the Minnesingers in the King's Library at Paris, and from other sources" (London, 1825; 8vo). The annotations are by Edgar Taylor.

"Altcechische Leiche, Lieder, und Sprüche des XIV. und XV. Jahrhunderts; mit einer Einleitung und Anmerkungen, von Julius Feifalik" (Vienna, 1862; 8vo); "Volksschauspiele aus Mähren; mit Anhängen: 1, Sterndreherlieder; 2, Weihnachtslieder; 3, De Sancta Dorothea, Passional, 1495: und einem Nachtrage, gesammelt und herausgegeben von Julius Feifalik" (Olmütz, 1864; 8vo).

"On Purity in Musical Art, by Anton Friedrich Justus Thibaut (Heidelberg, 1825), translated from the German by W. H. Gladstone" (London, John Murray, 1877; sm. 8vo). The German title of this book is "Ueber Reinheit der Tonkunst." The first edition was published in the year 1825, at Heidelberg, without the name of the author. The little book, written with much spirit, and entirely free from the pedantry so usual in musical treatises, produced sensation among the German musicians and lovers of the art. The second edition (Heidelberg, 1826) contains several additions, and a portrait of Palestrina. A third edition, edited by K. Bähr, appeared in 1851, and a fourth in 1875. Thibaut was a professor of law at Heidelberg, and an ardent admirer of the old Italian and Flemish church composers. His book is mentioned here especially on account of an interesting essay on National Songs which it contains.

(To be continued.)

THE GREAT COMPOSERS, SKETCHED BY THEMSELVES.

By Joseph Bennett.

No. V.—SCHUMANN.

(Continued from page 16.)

Having, by the help of his letters, discerned something of Schumann as a man, I ask the reader to look with me, through the same unerring medium, at what he was as an artist. The master's connection with art, it should be remembered here, was twofold, since he stood towards it in the double relationship of a man who not only writes music but writes about it. When we come to that point in his career where this duality first asserted itself, it will be needful to follow him along each road separately, but for the present our business lies with the circumstances under which Schumann first adopted music as a profession.

Although Schumann's father, with true discernment, saw in his boy a great musical capacity, and actually requested C. M. von Weber to educate him, his mother, an excellent and well-meaning but somewhat narrow-minded woman, was bitterly opposed to the idea. Von Wasielewski says of her: "Destitute of all interest in music, she was as incapable of appreciating her son's gifts as of disregarding the petty prejudices which then prevailed in certain circles against any artistic profession. She thought only of the deprivations and discomforts felt by Mozart and other masters, and emphatically pointed out to her darling the hardships of such a calling." We shall presently find that Frau Schumann knew how to give way on this matter, but being a widow when the time came to make choice of a profession for Robert, no one could thwart her resolve to educate him for the law. Schumann accordingly was sent to Leipzig, whence he removed to Heidelberg, and entered as a student at the University. But law was very far from the young man's thoughts, albeit he obeyed his widowed mother's behest to regard it as a vocation. There is reason indeed to believe that he spent his time at Heidelberg in a very desultory fashion, working, when he worked at all, at music, toying with legal lore, and being utterly unable to make up his mind with regard to either. Meanwhile his little fortune rapidly dwindled, for, if there was anything outside music to which Schumann applied himself earnestly, it was to the abstraction of money from the pocket of his guardian and trustee. He laboured under a chronic sense of impecuniosity, and most of his letters to Herr Rudel are full of ingenious pleadings for cash. On one occasion he wrote: "However expensive my life may have been for the last three months, my brothers must have told you that it was pleasant and cheerful. I'm as well as a fish in water, and happy besides. You must also be aware that I am in debt—the only thing which troubles me frequently. I have paid my tailor above one hundred and forty florins for this winter term, to say nothing of all the other bills that I did not have to pay with the money allotted to me by the court for purposes of study at Leipzig. If you reflect you will find that my Leipzig expenses were much the same as these. The worst is that everything is dearer, finer, and better here, because the student lords it here, and for that very reason is cheated. How much you would oblige me, dear Mr. Rudel, by sending me as much money as possible and as soon as possible. Believe me a student never needs more than when he hasn't a penny in his pocket, especially in little university towns where he can borrow as much as he likes. For two out of the past seven weeks I have been without a farthing, and can truly say that I never had so many wants as during those seven weeks." It should be noted that this aimless and, in the truest sense, extravagant life nowise resulted from an infirm purpose. If Schumann hesitated between law and music, as Hamlet hesitated between killing his uncle and letting him live, it was not, as in the case of the Prince of Denmark, for any reason to be found in himself. The cause lay at Zwickau with his mother, whose fond desire to make a lawyer of him he long hesitated to thwart. But things could not go on so. Decisive action had to be taken, and in July, 1830, Schumann wrote the letter which, though it distressed his loving parent exceedingly, settled his future career. The letter in question is the one beginning, "Good morning, mamma," from which a quotation was made in a previous article as showing the fanciful state of mind into which the writer sometimes fell. But the pith of it lies here: "I burn when I think of myself. My whole life has been a twenty years' war between poetry and prose, or, let us say, music and law. I've had as lofty an ideal in practical life as in art. This ideal was hard labour, and the hope of struggling into a great sphere of action; but what prospect is there, especially in Saxony, for a plebeian without influence or money, with no true love for legal petitions and petty controversies! In Leipzig I led an idle life, dreamed and loitered about, and did really nothing; here I have been more industrious; but both there and here have become more and more attached to music. Now I stand at the parting of the roads, and shudder at the question, Whither? If I follow out my own bent, it points, and as I believe correctly, to music. . . . There can be no more painful thought to a man than that he has prepared an unhappy, dead, and shallow future for himself. . . . My fancy is now but young, and would be cherished and ennobled by music. I am also certain that with industry, perseverance, and a good teacher, I could in six years rival any pianist, since pianoforte-playing is pure mécanique and skill. Now and then I have also a fancy, perhaps a taste, for composition. . . . Now comes the question, one or the other; for only one thing can be done greatly and well in a lifetime; and I can give but one answer—undertake a good and worthy object; firmness and calmness will complete and bring it to a perfect end. I am now more eager than ever in this struggle, dear mother—sometimes rash and confident in my own strength and will; sometimes terrified when I think of the great career which I have already set aside and now again renounce. . . . Farewell, my dear mother. Fear not; heaven only aids when man helps himself." The earnestness of this admirable letter need not be insisted on, but it may be worth while to point out the evidence it affords that Schumann regarded himself as, first of all, a possibly great pianist, and only as incidentally a composer. We shall find later that he persisted in this view till Destiny intervened, and by what is called an "accident" put matters on a proper footing.

It is clear from the letter written by Frau Schumann to Herr Wieck asking his advice, that Robert's communication was a source of great distress. The maternal heart of the woman prompted her to grant his desire, while her judgment urged that it should be resisted. Thus, "in a strait betwixt two," she pleaded for Wieck's guidance with an earnestness and eloquence that should be taken full note of as giving an insight into her character, and accounting in some measure for the deference shown towards her by her son. A quotation from the letter to Wieck may therefore be given here with entire propriety. Addressing Schumann's future father-in-law as "Honoured Sir," the anxious parent proceeded thus: "According to the request of my son, Robert Schumann, I take the liberty of applying to you in regard to the future of this dear son. With trembling and deep anxiety I seat myself to ask how you like Robert's plan, which the inclosed letter will explain. It is not in accordance with my views, and I freely confess that I have great fears for Robert's future. . . . He has now studied for almost three years, and had many, very many wants. Now, when I thought him almost at the goal, I see him take another step, which puts him back to the beginning; see, when the time has come for him to provide for himself, that his little fortune is gone, and that he is still dependent. Whether he will succeed! Alas! I cannot tell you how sad, how cast down, I feel when I think of Robert's future. . . . All rests on your decision—the peace of a LOVING MOTHER, THE WHOLE HAPPINESS FOR LIFE of a young and inexperienced man, who lives but in a higher sphere, and will have nothing to do with practical life. I know that you love music. Do not let your feelings plead for Robert, but consider his years, his fortune, his powers, and his future. I beg, I conjure you, as a husband, a father, and a friend of my son, act like an upright man, and tell me your opinion frankly—what he has to fear or to hope. Excuse the distraction of my letter: I am so overcome by all that has passed that I am soul-sick, and never was a letter so hard for me to write as this." Wieck, who knew Schumann's capacity, could give but one answer to this passionate appeal, and that was not the one the mother desired. Frau Schumann yielded, however, on receipt of it, and Robert went wild with delight. The crystal gates of Paradise were open; the dragon guarding the fruit of Hesperides was slain; the water rose to the lips of Tantalus; and joy reigned in the heart of the poor Heidelberg student for such great mercy. What a rhapsodical letter was that he immediately wrote to Wieck. It reminds one of a child long "in populous city pent," gambolling knee-deep in buttercups and daisies, or a liberated seagull dashing itself against the wave-crests in pure ecstasy. Saluting Wieck as "most honoured of teachers," the young man went on thus: "It was long ere my ideas grew calm and smooth. Do not ask me how your letter stirred me. . . . The Atlas was crushed, and a child of the sun stood pointing to the East. Bow before nature; else your genius will be for ever lost. The path to knowledge leads over icy Alps; the path of Art has its cliffs; but they are Indian, covered with flowers, hopes, and dreams—so it seemed when I read your and my mother's letters. Now I am much calmer. I cleave to Art. I will cleave to it; I can, and must. . . . I confide myself wholly to you. I give myself up to you. Take me as I am, and above all things bear with me. No blame shall depress me; no praise shall make me idle. . . . Most honoured one, take my hand and lead me. I will follow where you will, and never tear the bandage from my eyes, lest they should be dazzled by the light. Would hat you could see my soul. It is still, and all around the breeze of morn breathes clear and calm. Trust me; I will deserve the name of your scholar. Alas! why is man so blessed at times in this world, most honoured one? I know."

To his guardian and purse-holder, Herr Rudel, Schumann addressed himself in a very different style. Rhapsody would have been lost upon, if it had not bewildered, this matter-of-fact gentleman, and his ward demeaned himself accordingly. The letter from which I am about to quote is somewhat remarkable, and open to a suspicion of insincerity. It is remarkable because proving, in conjunction with a previously cited opinion as to pianoforte-playing being merely a question of technique, that the writer's views of his chosen profession were not the most exalted, and it is of doubtful sincerity because it states a readiness to do, under certain conditions, that which was never seriously contemplated. Much, however, must be forgiven to a young man who wishes to coax money from his guardian. The chief passages in the letter are as follow: "I will devote myself for six months exclusively to music under Wieck in Leipzig. Rely on Wieck, most honoured Herr Rudel, and await his opinion. If he says that I can in three years from these six months attain the highest pitch of art, then let me go in peace, for I shall not fail. But if Wieck entertain the slightest doubt (after these six months), then there is nothing lost to law, and I shall be ready and willing to pass my examination in a year; in which case I shall have studied no more than four years. . . . Therefore be so kind as to send me a considerable sum of money at your earliest convenience, that I may pay my travelling and other expenses. From a hundred and fifty to a hundred and eighty thalers would make me perfectly happy. I pledge myself in return not to ask you for another penny till the end of the year." Herr Rudel seems to have been greatly offended by the act of his ward, and sent no answer to this letter. Schumann's impecuniosity however did not hinder him from running over to Strasburg to see as much as was there visible of the Revolution of July. On getting back to Heidelberg he found more pressing need than ever for cash, and assailed Herr Rudel a second time: "Once more I eagerly beg you to answer me quickly, sending some money (if in any way possible a very large sum), and ease my troubled mind. You cannot conceive the anxiety and fearful suspense I suffer. I am the only student here (it was vacation time), and wander about, deserted and poor as any beggar, head over ears in debt, through the woods and lanes. Be lenient with me, most worthy Herr Rudel. Send me money this once, only money, and do not force me to seek other means of paying for my journey hence, which would be very injurious to me, and could not be agreeable to you." Schumann obtained the money, but with this all intercourse between the two appears to have ceased. Their views were directly opposed, and while the ward took his own way, the guardian made no effort to stop him.

Every one knows that Schumann, domiciled with Wieck at Leipzig, tried to carry out his notion that excellence in art was only mechanical skill, and that he permanently lamed his finger. This gave him pause, and brought better counsel. Hence, he could write to his friend Töpken, in 1833, as follows: "We did indeed err when we thought we could accomplish by capricious mechanism what the peace and leisure of later years would spontaneously bring; or, we grasped the handle so firmly that we lost the blade (the reverse is much worse). In this respect and to make skill balance with the other powers, I have often been obliged to correct my ideas. Much which I once considered as infallible has been discarded as useless and hindering. Often have I sought to unite the powers of opposites. For equal powers elevate and multiply each other here, as in the physical world, but the stronger kills the weaker, and, to apply it to art, a poetic whole can be formed only by the harmonious cultivation of skill and ability (culture and talent). I play but little on the piano now; don't be alarmed (I am resigned, and consider it a decree of fate)." A decree of fate it was, since from that time his thoughts and energies were addressed to the work of composition, as to the principles of which he then knew little, and as to the practice of which, beginning so late, he never could be a thorough master.

Only a little while elapsed before the "coming event" of Schumann's appearance as a musical critic threw its shadow before in the form of an article on Chopin, contributed to the Universal Journal of Music—an article memorable as first introducing the imaginary characters, Florestan and Eusebius, afterwards so prominent in the Davidsbündlerschaft. But it was not till the close of 1833 that a party of "young hot-heads," of whom Schumann was chief, met in Leipzig, and, having resolved unanimously that the musical world suffered from incompetent critics, resolved also to start a new journal and set matters to rights. "Why do we look idly on?" exclaimed the young hot-heads. "Let's take hold and make things better; let's restore the poetry of art to her ancient honour." Thus rose the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik. The particular fault Schumann sought to rectify in criticism appears from a passage in a letter addressed to Töpken, which runs as follows: "All that there is in youth, consequently futurity, shall soon echo through the land. It is almost inexplicable that this critical honey-daubing has not been put a stop to long ago. So strike right at the people, although it is like a flock of sheep who look up once when it lightens, and then quietly go on grazing. The flock shall look up for one moment at least." Instead of honey-daubing, the Neue Zeitschrift proceeded to lay on bitter aloes by way of change, that process being necessarily involved in the carrying out of a programme which sought, as Schumann declared, "to acknowledge the remote past, to contest recent ages as inartistic, and to aid the coming of a new and poetic era." No one will be surprised to hear that in less than twelve months after entering upon this magnificent campaign all the "young hotheads," Schumann excepted, had put up their swords and retired from the battle. Our master, thus left alone, assumed exclusive proprietorship of the journal, and carried it on in his own way. First of all, he sought to obtain good correspondence from the principal European capitals. To Fishof, at Vienna, he wrote: "You may consider the young work, our journal, which our friend (Ludwig Schunke, just then dead) so joyfully and zealously supported, worthy your aid. I have motives which I will explain later for begging you most urgently either for letters or reviews. . . . A journal which enjoys such favour must not cease to circulate. I will answer for your prompt payment for future work, and hope soon to be able to offer you the best of terms." Then Schumann bethought him of London, and appealed for help to Moscheles, calling him, with customary effusiveness, "most honoured of men," and saying: "Spite of all our efforts, we have not yet succeeded in obtaining any musical news from the capital you inhabit. Wherever we applied, promises were plenty, but labour scarce. We are, therefore, in some degree excusable if we now apply to the man who we know has never ceased to take an interest in the aims and efforts of German musicians. Our question and request is whether you chance to know a musician—that is, a careful, clever, if possible, German musician—who would write us a certain style of letters on the events of the day, English musical life in general, and the musicians there; not mere facts, but elaborate pictures of the musical condition of England. . . . It is our earnest wish, which we utter so humbly that you may never hear it, to receive an occasional contribution to our journal from the illustrious master to whom these lines are addressed, under any title whatsoever. . . . Your indulgence and pardon for these lines, dictated by interest and enthusiasm for music. With heartfelt esteem I part for the present from the man whose bright and intellectual eyes have so often glanced at and blest me." Moscheles appears to have complied with the first of these requests, but the name of the correspondent recommended by him cannot be gathered from the letters. We know, however, that he ceased to write at the end of the year in which he was appointed, and that, three months afterwards, the late Mr. Hogarth took his place. With reference to this change Schumann wrote to Moscheles: "I consider it as a rare mark of kindness that you have gained my paper a new correspondent in Mr. Hogarth. The London article has been missing for three months, so that I should like to hear as soon as possible. If he wants a special invitation, he shall have it forthwith." Hogarth, like his predecessor, remained in connection with the Neue Zeitschrift but a little while. This we learn from a paragraph in a letter written to Moscheles four months later than the one from which a quotation has just been taken: "My best thanks for your last note, inclosing one from Thomson, who would greatly oblige me by frequent news from Edinburgh. Since I received no further accounts of your May concert, I patched up what I could from the notice in the Atlas, which you sent to Mendelssohn and he to me, and made a letter, whose spuriousness you doubtless detected. The Globe is now the only source whence I take a notice, although I don't think it adequate. Mendelssohn wrote to me in glowing terms about Mr. Klingemann, secretary of legation. Do you think he would write now and then at my express request and your recommendation?" Alas! for the Neue Zeitschrift, which was to be the organ of light and truth, and rearticulate a disjointed world! Here already was its enthusiastic editor reduced to sit in his office and write himself letters from London by help of the Atlas and the Globe. Truly, truly, Vanitas vanitatem, omnia vanitas. But we can see very clearly through these letters that Schumann had his whole soul in literary work. The "journal" appears to have been always his first thought, the editor taking precedence of the composer, who, indeed, was content to produce no more than a few bagatelles at this particular time. To Heinrich Dorn, in Riga, he wrote: "Thanks for your many proofs of interest in our effort. Much is yet undone; but we are young, and Time does good to all. Special thanks for mentioning the journal and gaining it friends. . . . If you feel like sending us a few honest reviews, especially in regard to musical festivals, and how to make them instrumental for the culture of the people, and on the music of the future, recent dissensions and discords, &c., pray do so. A comparison (Schumann must have meant a contrast) between Breitkopf's Journal and ours would be interesting, but of course it must be in a third paper (the Journal of Elegance, the Comet, or the Evening Journal). Won't you think of it?" In August, 1837, the Neue Zeitschrift having attained a circulation of 500, Schumann thought the time had come to expand it; in what manner appears from the following, written to Moscheles: "My urgent entreaties have at last moved the publisher of my journal to insert some good composition every four months. I shall put all sorts of fine ideas into it, and it will make a stir among the musicians. Songs are also to be written, and the most interesting published in a volume, one or two bad ones with the rest, to give the critics some work (artful editor!), and make the reader follow notes in hand. The manuscripts of talented and unknown composers will be preferred; your name would break the ice—the journal has about five hundred readers, who would all receive the compositions gratis. From time to time we shall give old music, extant only in manuscript, such as Scarlatti's fugues and the score of a Bach concerto."

Here we may stop for the present. How, later, Schumann removed the Neue Zeitschrift to Vienna, the reasons for doing so, and the result of the act, and how and why he took the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, will, together with cognate matters, supply interesting material for another chapter.

(To be continued.)

"WHISTLERISM" IN MUSIC.

MR. WHISTLER, in his clever but exceedingly expensive little "arrangement in brown paper," acknowledges that the "skirmish fought the other day at Westminster" was really part of an old contest between the "pen and the brush." He tells us that his anathemas are launched solely against the art-critic he wishes to extinguish. The literary critic, he thinks, has some reason for his existence; but from Mr. Whistler's assertion that "taste has long been confounded with capacity, and accepted as sufficient qualification for the utterance of judgment in music, poetry, and painting," we must assume he rather favours the notion that, even in music, no criticism can be admitted unless "emanating from a man who has passed his whole life in the science which he attacks." We quite agree with Mr. Whistler that taste alone will not be a sufficient qualification in the critic. In the present day there are few critics who venture into the public arena without a considerable degree of practical knowledge. The old saying, that the ranks of the critics are recruited from the never-ceasing supply of disappointed authors, is confirmatory of the fact that critics as a rule have a practical knowledge of the particular art they profess to judge, and very often their knowledge is superior to that of the author they criticise. The triumph of an author does not always depend on his practical knowledge, but on the genius and mastery with which he can apply such knowledge as he may possess. It is either the want of genius which makes the disappointed author turn critic, or it is the want of knowledge or long practice. The whole hierarchy of painters, poets, and composers is simply a question of classification according to the degree in which the creative and mechanical qualifications are distributed. Mr. Whistler speaks of painting as a "science." With much more reason music could be called a science. But neither one nor the other is a science. It is not very exact to speak, as Mr. Whistler does, of "attacking a science." Science is not attacked, except by fanatics, whose prejudices and preconceptions may be offended by its results. In the course of formation a science may give rise to different opinions, and those opinions are attacked; but here we are much in that very region of criticism Mr. Whistler would limit; the only difference being that in science it is wholly a question of opinion, and in art it is partly a question of taste, which may be cultivated, but cannot be acquired by any amount of practice. In the late trial, "Whistler v. Ruskin," it was stated by one of the witnesses, not we think on the side of the plaintiff, that what an artist looks at is the "finish of the picture." We can all of us understand that an artist who spends his life in the handling of the brush is attracted principally by the technical merits of a picture. Any of us can appreciate the difference between fresco-painting and wall-decoration, between real work and general effect. But a weak conception or subject can be well finished; or, with practical knowledge and mechanical aptitude, we can beautifully finish other people's ideas, as some of us do, in music particularly. We take Mr. Whistler to be a man of genius; and we are quite sure he would not admit that the "finish" of a picture is the whole question. A contrary opinion would only degrade painting from a fine art to the status of a mechanical art. In a fine art it is not the mechanic, not the mere professional, whose judgment we are to take as final. Even the greatest of artists are often the worst of critics. Were we to think differently, in music we should with Spohr speak of Weber as "that little man," and with Cherubini talk of Sebastian Bach as "that barbarous German." The question Mr. Whistler has revived is of special interest just at present, because what in art we used formerly to refer to as "inspiration," and were accustomed to surround and obscure with a now nearly effete phraseology borrowed from the Germans, is being gradually dissected by science. Every one knows the celebrated letter of Mozart in which he endeavours to describe the process of musical composition, and how he formed in his mind a vivid or photographic representation of what he had conceived, and with such distinctness that he could criticise and amend his work as if it had a positive or objective existence. In Mozart's case the phenomenon was all the more incredible, as in addition to the vivid mental representation of what we may describe as a page or two of musical notation, he tells us he both saw and heard his composition "all at once." Many of our readers will have seen during the last week or two an interesting series of letters and articles in the Spectator in reference to the late Mr. G. P. Bidder, a well-known prodigy in mental calculation, who with perhaps a still more remarkable specimen of the kind, the American boy, Zerah Colburn, is referred to in Carpenter's "Mental Physiology." It is not our business to enter into such questions, more than to call attention to the marvellous similarity in all these phenomena that seem to resolve into efforts of memory, strikingly exhibited in musical composition, in chess, and in mental calculation. The process seems to be in a great measure automatic; but in these extraordinary cases the mechanical power is derived from natural organisation, or as we call it "a natural gift," and in ordinary people the same power is acquired by practice, and then only in a comparatively infinitesimal degree. The musician may make up his mind sadly, that unless he is conscious of possessing that power, he may work away until middle age; and under the most favourable circumstances, admitting a certain degree of endowment, he may write one song or one opera which will have acceptance, but each succeeding effort will only mark the degree of exhaustion and decadency. Only on this theory, that is, the "specific localisation" of the musical gift, can we account for the fact that many who possess it to a certain extent write trash, and many who are sparingly endowed write music that is good as dramatic music, or as scholarly or devotional music, each description bearing the impress of other faculties or emotions quite distinct from the gift, which will alone give ease or fluency in composition and completeness; although general capacity will assert itself in music as in everything else. It is the province of the critic to detect at once in a work of art how much of it is the result of technical knowledge and practice, how much of it comes of general knowledge and capacity, and how much is due to that natural gift which is alone sufficiently sensitive or pliant to respond to those rapid and delicate promptings of feeling and imagination that produce what we call originality. We assume that the originality is in a man's whole nature, but the power of expression or of rapid and vivid concatenation is in the specific apparatus, faculty, gift, or whatever we may choose to call it. It is a curious fact, which the back numbers of any musical journal will easily confirm, that for hundreds who will detect mechanical skill and excellence of models in music, there will only be one critic who possesses the intuitive power of immediately recognising genius or originality. It is probably the same in painting, and the fact was surely in Mr. Whistler's mind when he alluded to the "shock of surprise" experienced by Balaam "when the first great critic proffered his opinion." We are quite alive to an obvious retort in taking a particular side in this question; but, as far as our recollection goes, the remark of the ass was, "Why smitest thou me?" and appears less like a criticism than an expostulation against an unmerited castigation. Balaam's interlocutor saw more than he did. Mr. Whistler seems to us to have thrown away, for the sake of a witticism, his best card; and particularly in this country, where eccentricity and even genius itself have so little chance against a dead weight of pious formality, hypocrisy, and dull pedagogism. We had always looked upon "Whistlerism" as a protest in all the colours of the rainbow against our national arrangements in snuff and whitewash. We are disappointed that in plain black and white Mr. Whistler should have so forgotten history as to speak of "work received in silence as it was in the days to which the penmen still point as an era when art was at its apogee," and, as he should have added, when the press did not exist, and annual exhibitions were unknown; and when the large niches were filled by Angelos and Titians, and there were no niches at all for little people, and certainly no place for critics.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

THE sage in olden times was wont to study the heavens and the stars to discover portents of good or ill, and to enable him to hazard predictions of what events were likely to happen to mankind in this sublunary sphere; but the wise man of to-day is fain to turn his eyes earthward and around him to enable him to guess at the probabilities of the near future. Surely he who does so at this present time will perceive many indications that a long winter of musical stagnation and ignorance is about to break up; whether it will be followed by a genial and promising spring time only can show. One of the most gratifying and marked signs of the times is the unwonted prominence accorded to music and musical topics in the leading daily journal. Not long since we found the columns of the Times teeming with letters respecting the authorship of our National Anthem. Soon after followed a warm and interesting discussion as to our national capabilities for profiting by general instruction in the divine art. Considerable space has also been devoted to the vindication of the merits of the Royal Academy of Music, and the endeavours to promote a National Training School; and now quite recently we have had a series of letters and a leading article on "Music in the Church Service."

The question of "Music in the Church Service," as might have been anticipated, brought into the arena doughty champions of extreme ecclesiastical schools; one apparently desiring that the Church Service should be wholly musical, the other that music should be reduced to a minimum. The Times leader, with commendable moderation in its general tenor, pointed out the fact that most of the heart-burnings and difficulties arose from the lamentable ignorance of both laity and clergy—a truth amusingly illustrated by the following sentence:—

> The clergyman intoning the Lord's Prayer, and expecting the worshipper to think in quavers and semiquavers.

A little more knowledge would have been of service here, for, of course, quavers and semiquavers are merely technical terms for portions of time, and therefore all speech, in common with all song, must of necessity be in quavers or some other time-sign. Again, the suggestion that—

> Plain-song offers a concealment of the common incapacity for good reading, from which a multitude of English clergymen suffer. Nothing is more difficult than to read the Liturgy well; yet it is only within a very few years that the profession, whose duty that especially is, has begun to entertain the faintest doubt that the gift of reading aloud comes to an English gentleman by nature. With the growth of a consciousness that a power to read intelligently is no more innate than a power to construe the Greek Testament, has arisen an alarmed desire to hide the inability.

Those who have studied vocalism and musical declamation will at once perceive that here is a most sufficient reason for the low estimation in which intoning is held in certain quarters; for if it be true that reading aloud is an art, so also is singing and intoning, only in a much greater degree, and yet the Times says:—

> Many a timid curate who cannot read aloud more impressively than a National-school child, intones with a courage bred of a belief that for one who can criticise plain-song ten can criticise plain reading. In fact, choirs and clergy who think that all singing in church is music are deluding themselves.

Alas! this is but too true, and the only remedy to be looked for is in the general advance of the musical education of the people. We thoroughly endorse the closing sentences of the Times leader:—

> The Church Services contain matter which ought to be spoken and matter which ought to be sung. When congregations and their clergy have learned to do both competently, we hope we shall hear no more of encroachments by slovenly chanting on territory which is occupied more appropriately by good reading.

The most pleasant characteristic of the correspondence which has appeared in the Times on the subject of "Church Music" has been the sober earnestness and the kindly way in which the disputants have advocated their various views, presenting a happy contrast to an article on the same subject which appeared in the Church Review a short time since, in which the Rev. G. P. Grantham aired his notions respecting Gregorian and Anglican Church music, and in which we find the following elegant sentences:

> Anglican chants or Anglican hymn-tunes are often allowed to be introduced at intervals throughout the various services, like as we find in a sandwich a dainty morsel of luscious but unclean swine interlarded between the wholesome solid covers of honest bread and butter. . . . A trumpery Anglican chant finds as appropriate a place for itself in the midst of the glorious plain-song Missa as a Punch-and-Judy show would in the middle of the Bodleian Library.

Judging from the general tone of the article from which we have quoted, we are forced to conclude that reading is not the only branch of a polite education which might with advantage be cultivated by some of our clergy who set themselves up as infallible musical guides.

The signs of the times, as we read them, seem to indicate an intense desire throughout society for musical knowledge and culture; and also that the time is not yet ripe for either clergy or people to give a sound verdict as to the precise programme which shall be laid down for musical services in our churches.

AN extraordinary story comes to us from Germany. It is said that Robert Franz, the distinguished editor of Bach's works, having long been engaged in endeavouring to discover the compositions which Bach is known to have written, but which could nowhere be found, visited in the course of his researches a mansion called "Schloss Witzthun." There one day his attention was casually attracted to some thick paper used for tying up young trees in the garden. On looking closely he was astonished and delighted to recognise Bach's autograph. Inquiring of the gardener he was told that a lot of the same paper filled several trunks in the attic of the mansion. Hastening thither he discovered that one trunk at least had not been rifled, and that it was full of manuscript music in the shape of 150 Violin Sonatas. What the other trunks contained we can unhappily only conjecture, but it is too probable that many important and long-looked-for compositions have perished in the hands of the ignorant German gardener. Franz's discovery therefore excites at one and the same time congratulation and regret—congratulation, because the musical world has been enriched by a large number of precious examples of a great master; regret, because we now know that many others are lost for ever while only barely evading our hands. We may congratulate Robert Franz upon a stroke of fortune which he of all men would know how to value; violinists too may be heartily felicitated upon a discovery which has for them a very special interest. As regards amateurs generally we must of course await further particulars before attempting to estimate the interest the matter has for them. But meanwhile one certain good will arise from it: the search which has always been going on more or less zealously for missing compositions by great masters will receive special stimulus, and who knows that there may not be many a "Schloss Witzthun" in wide Germany which will ere long have to give up its treasures. But we devoutly hope that there may not be many "Schloss Witzthun" gardeners.

In common with all admirers of Mozart, we cannot but peruse with feelings of sorrow the announcement, recently discovered, of those concerts given by the father of the composer for the purpose of exhibiting the precocity of his two children, Wolfgang and Marianna. "My son," he says, "will cover the keys of the clavecin with a cloth, and play on the instrument equally well as though it were not so covered." That this might prove a profitable entertainment to the father, and interest a gaping crowd of idlers, can hardly be doubted; yet that so great a genius should have been carried about and made a show of at the very age when his marvellous powers demanded the utmost care and watchfulness, is pitiable in the extreme. It is true that Mozart, celebrated as he was when a boy, became more celebrated as a man; but in proof that this forcing of unripe talent is fatal alike to body and mind, another instance is scarcely within our recollection of a child shown publicly as a musical prodigy who afterwards obtained the highest rank in the world of art; whilst, on the other hand, we could name many whose mental growth was thus fatally blighted. The "Quiriti" troupe of children, exhibited this year as a Christmas attraction at the Criterion Theatre, may be cited as perhaps the most decisive illustration that could be furnished of the force of these remarks. It is true that they are full of animal spirits; that they keep the stage alive throughout the evening; and that they show signs of having been carefully trained in all the dramatic conventionalities; but it is as singers that they come before us, and it is almost needless to say that nothing more painful to musical ears can be imagined than their attempts to ape the qualifications of adult artists. Forced almost to scream in order to make themselves heard, their voices become harsh and disagreeable, and often most faulty in intonation. Supposing, indeed, that any of these children have exceptionally good vocal organs, it is hopeless to expect that the mischief now done can ever be repaired. Some of them may probably become good actors in the future, but not one can possibly become a good singer.

As we are told, and assuredly with much truth, that the current literature of any period reflects tolerably faithfully the prevailing opinion of the majority of readers, it is good, we think, for those who watch with interest the growth of art amongst the people not to despise the writings of those pleasant gossiping authors who, perhaps somewhat bluntly, tell us their own feelings upon certain conventional artistic surroundings which have been only protected by their age. That music is fast shaking itself free from the fetters of fashion can scarcely admit of a doubt; and when enthusiasts in the art can go either to the Opera or to a Concert without the feeling that they must prepare themselves for an evening party, many will gladly avail themselves of this privilege who now reluctantly stay at home. In proof of our position that this reform, like most others, is shadowed forth in our literature, we quote the following from a little book of Sketches, entitled "Half-Hours of Blind Man's Holiday," by Mr. W. W. Fenn, an artist who became blind at the age of thirty-five. After saying that he is extremely fond of music, he continues thus: "I am afraid the Opera and the Concert-room do not open up such resources for me as would generally be imagined; I get oppressed and made fidgety by the confinement, glare, and heated atmosphere, and the inevitable paraphernalia, so to speak, incidental to such 'society' doings. A good orchestra and orchestral performances generally afford me immense pleasure if—and this is a very important 'if'—I can hear them in my own way; that is, free from any approach to a crowd seated in gorgeous array, with the ceremony inseparable from all evening assemblies." Messrs. Mapleson and Carl Rosa have already proved how largely this feeling is shared amongst the middle classes; and if some equally energetic concert-givers will aid them in the good work, we may shortly expect to permanently erase that long-standing line in our fashionable programmes, "Evening dress indispensable."

The "Board of Musical Studies" at the University of Cambridge, in view of the many important changes recently sanctioned in connection with the faculty of music, has issued a report which proves how earnestly the subject has been considered, and how desirous are the authorities to give instruction in every branch of the art at the University itself. With regard to candidates for the musical degree, it is said that special instruction should be provided in Acoustics at the University because "it will not be found easy to obtain adequate teaching elsewhere;" but we can scarcely believe that it will be necessary for any person to go to Cambridge solely for the purpose of mastering the principles of Acoustics sufficiently to pass an examination. It is gratifying, however, to see that not only is it suggested that lectures should be given on Acoustics, but on Counterpoint, Harmony, the history of Music (especially Church Music), with an exposition of the most approved methods of elementary music-teaching in primary schools, and hints for the superintendence of Church Choirs; and for those who may hereafter be called upon to give elementary musical instruction in schools, it is recommended that rules should be given for the right method of imparting knowledge to beginners. Feeling that for the duties required of the Professor of Music—who should be called upon to deliver lectures, not on the subjects mentioned above, but upon those of a higher and more special character—the stipend ought to be raised, and that he should reside not less than one term in Cambridge, the members of the board, we are glad to see, virtually declare that the University of Cambridge should regard its Chair of Music as something more than a mere post of honour; and that in making such excessive demands upon the time and energy of an eminent artist as will be necessary under the new arrangements, the rate of remuneration, therefore, should be increased in proportion.

Much has recently been written about the music taught in private schools; and a very laudable attempt has been made to impress upon those who are employed as Professors in these establishments the necessity of upholding the dignity of the art by inculcating a love for sterling works, instead of fostering a frivolous taste for the "showy" pieces of the day. Yet cordially as all must agree with this well-meant advice, we cannot but believe that we are dealing with the effect rather than the cause of the evil; for as long as these positions are occupied either by incompetent teachers, or by those who favour the compositions issued by any special music-publisher or publishers, it is perfectly hopeless to expect any change. In the course of our experience we could have named many who come under the first category; and an advertisement in a morning paper now before us for a Professor, who is requested to "state terms per lesson, by letter only," proves beyond doubt how they are procured. With regard to the second class it can only be said that, although perhaps perfectly efficient in the duties required of them, they are not free agents; and as the music they teach satisfies at least two-thirds of the parents and guardians of their pupils, they can afford to defy the opinion of the minority. Of course those who conduct these seminaries could easily correct such abuses by never engaging a master without being satisfied, by the production of a diploma, of his talent and experience, and by seeing that in the pieces he selects for tuition he is guided rather by the name of the composer than by that of the publisher. It would of course be satisfactory to find that this course of action were pursued by those so deeply interested in the matter; but this we can with certainty affirm, that if some reform of this kind do not come from within the schools, it will certainly, and very speedily, come from without.

We have often alluded to the peculiar class of entertainment provided at the so-called "Music-halls" in the metropolis; but it was not until perusing a recent announcement of the company engaged at some of these popular resorts that we found a language employed in describing the various "stars" which to us is perfectly unintelligible. It may be that, as the humour of the "comic" songs is only to be appreciated by a Music-hall audience, words which convey no real meaning to our ears may be full of suggestion to the initiated—even as the followers of a celebrated preacher, in days gone by, were deeply moved by the eloquence of the "unknown tongue"—but as it is no doubt the desire of the proprietors of these places of amusement to appeal also to the general public, many would like to know, we are certain, how a "Royal Tenor" differs from any other tenor; what are the special characteristics of a "Vital spark actress and vocalist;" what countryman can possibly be the "white-eyed musical Kaffir and Scotch American comedian," or why the "lion comic," according to our usual method of placing nouns and adjectives, should not be termed the "comic lion." But singular as these specimens of "Music-hall" phraseology may appear, they are certainly beaten by the following; for, in spite of our own efforts, and the assistance of those familiar with the good, bad, and indifferent days of the Drama, we cannot in the least divine what kind of entertainment is to be expected from the "celebrated pugnacious knockabout coloured comedians."

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

A new series of representations of Opera in English was inaugurated by this company at Her Majesty's Theatre on the 27th ult., on which occasion Richard Wagner's Opera "Rienzi, the last of the Tribunes," was performed for the first time in this country, before a crowded and appreciative audience.

We are not aware of any one witnessing the first performance at Dresden in 1842 of Herr Wagner's Opera "Rienzi," having predicted that the name of its author would some day mark an epoch in the development of the musical drama itself; but he, if ever he existed, must have been a man endowed with an extraordinary insight into the mysterious workings of genius. It may be an idle assertion, in the face of succeeding events, yet it is a legitimate one, that if the composer, disappointed as he was in his professional career, and embittered by a want of appreciation on the part of the public, had laid his pen aside for ever after writing the work in question, his music of "Rienzi" would have been classed in the same category with the productions which he himself subsequently characterised by the eminently expressive term of "Capellmeister Musik." Familiar as we now are with the later manifestations of his remarkable genius, we instinctively view this early production of a confident imitator of an existing phase of Opera through the prism of our experience, and we are able to discern here and there the flashes of genius lighting up, for a moment, the conventional atmosphere of the so-called Grand Opera. For, taken as a whole, "Rienzi" is neither more nor less than a grand opera constructed upon the model furnished by Meyerbeer with all its spectacular arrogance and cosmopolitan adoption of musical styles. Trials of a very severe order had yet to exercise their refining office in the career of the poet-composer before the true individuality of his genius could be brought to the surface, the first manifestations of which became apparent, as we all know, in his "Flying Dutchman." Fortunately for the appreciation of Herr Wagner's art in this country, the Opera-drama, which of all others presents in the most attractive and conciliatory form the full artistic significance of his reformatory strivings, viz., "Lohengrin," was at the same time the first to preach, as an entire stage representation at least, the gospel of the "Art-work of the future" to English audiences. Since then we have been led backward in the development of the composer's genius, thanks to the efforts of Herr Carl Rosa, by numerous performances of "The Flying Dutchman," and again onward last year by the production of "Tannhäuser," a work which marks a period of transition from the embryonic state of the composer's theories to their first fully developed manifestation in "Lohengrin." To the praiseworthy zeal of Herr Carl Rosa we now owe the first performance in this country also of Richard Wagner's first recognised Opera, "Rienzi," an event which the subsequent achievements of the poet-composer of the Nibelungen Tetralogy have rendered specially interesting.

The libretto of "Rienzi," written, like the rest of the text-books of his opera-dramas, by the composer himself, is founded upon the well-known novel, bearing the same title, by Bulwer Lytton. It will suffice, therefore, to give a brief outline of the principal incidents made use of in Herr Wagner's dramatised version. As regards the character of the hero, the main features as portrayed by the novelist have been retained in the Opera. He appears "a grand nature struggling amidst the darkness of his times to re-establish the glories of a wondrous past—a young enthusiast, dreaming among the desolate ruins of ancient Rome of making the Eternal City once more the queen of all the world." Through the brutal murder, on the part of one of the followers of a Roman patrician, of his little brother, and for which he appeals in vain for just retribution, the enthusiastic dreamer is converted into a man of action, a stirring leader of the people, whose patriotism is stimulated by the desire for revenge. As such we are introduced to him in Herr Wagner's Opera, the first act of which opens in the Piazza of San Giovanni del Laterano, on one side of which stands Rienzi's house. Prince Orsini (we are partly following the "argument" contained in the preface to the English version) is attempting to carry off Irene, Rienzi's sister, but she is saved by the timely appearance of her lover, Adrian di Colonna. While the followers of the rival factions assail each other in the street, Rienzi appears on the scene, and addresses the unruly nobles in indignant language. The nobles finally agree to fight out their quarrel next morning outside the city gates, and this is the opportunity for which Rienzi has long been waiting. He resolves to put an end, by a bold stroke, to the oppression under which Rome has been so long suffering. Having secured the support of the Holy See, and arranged an armed rising of the populace, he determines that the nobles shall enter Rome again submissive to the constitution or as captives. The signal for the rising is sounded, and Rienzi, appearing on the threshold of the Lateran Church, is greeted by the people as Rome's deliverer, and leads them to battle, The second act transports us to a stately reception-room in the Capitol. Messengers of peace enter, singing. Rienzi's military success has been complete, and the Orsini-Colonna factions have been subjugated. Rienzi has been invested by the people with supreme power, and bears the title of "Tribune of Liberty, Peace, and Justice." Festivities to celebrate the happy event are taking place, during which the young Orsini, representing the discontented nobles, attempts to stab the newly elected Tribune. But the latter, besides being warned by Adrian, wears a shirt of mail under his toga, and the dagger recoils from his breast. The nobles, who all declare themselves responsible for Orsini's deed, are condemned to death; but Adrian and Irene beg off the former's father, old Colonna, and Rienzi persuades the infuriated people to pardon the conspirators. With this Rienzi's star begins to pale. The treacherous nobles, however, have forgiven the Tribune his leniency as little as they did his assumption of power. Thus we find in the third act Orsini and Colonna, having united their forces in order to regain the supreme power in Rome, against them Rienzi leads the citizens of Rome amidst the stirring sound of the war-hymn, "Santo spirito cavaliere." But the leniency exercised by the Tribune towards the conspirators had undermined the confidence of the people in their leader, while, on the other hand, the defeated nobles had, by special promises of their support, prevailed upon the Pope to withdraw his protection from the Tribune and even to excommunicate him. Returning, at the commencement of the fourth act, from a victorious campaign, Rienzi is met on the stairs of the Lateran Church—whither he goes to a triumphal procession to celebrate a Te Deum for his successes—by the Legate, who refuses him entrance and pronounces the Papal ban upon him. Transfixed with astonishment, Rienzi stands on the marble stairs of the Basilica, deserted by all his friends and late worshippers. His sister alone clings to him with unbroken fidelity and affection. Adrian implores her to fly with him, but she repulses him with indignation. She gives up love and life to prove herself a Roman like her brother. In the final scene, Rienzi attempts to address the populace excited against him, but the leaders refuse to allow him to be heard. Adrian fruitlessly strives to induce Irene to leave her brother. The populace surround the Capitol, set it on fire, and the Tribune and his sister sink to earth amidst the flaming ruins. With this the Opera closes. It will be gathered, even from the foregoing scanty outline of the libretto, that a good deal of ingenuity has been brought to bear upon the general arrangement of the plot, each important incident leading up to a tableau admirably adapted for the display of spectacular effects and appropriate musical illustration.

Turning now to the first English performance of the work by the Carl Rosa Company, a full measure of praise is due to the managers for the liberal manner in which the Opera has been placed upon the stage, both as regards decorations, costumes, and general scenic arrangements. The opening scene of the second act, presenting a hall in the Capitol, overlooking the higher parts of the City of the Seven Hills, may be instanced as particularly effective. Mr. Joseph Maas, as Cola Rienzi, scarcely possesses the physical qualifications for a part which taxes the endurance of the singer to the utmost; but, this fact apart, he both acted and sang well, it being chiefly the sentimental aspects in the character of the Tribune which his impersonation realised with good effect. The singer was much applauded during the evening, particularly after his delivery of the beautiful prayer in the fourth act (which also lends to the Overture its chief characteristic element), which he sang with much taste and feeling. Madame Hélène Crosmond gave a good impersonation of the gentle yet heroic sister of the Tribune; while Madame Vanzini successfully maintained the difficult rôle of Adrian, producing however occasionally something of an anti-climax in her otherwise effective delivery, by unduly forcing in one or two instances the exceptionally high capabilities of her voice. Mr. Walter Bolton was a capital Orsini, Mr. George Olmi being also an efficient representative of the head of the rival faction, Stefano Colonna. The remaining characters of the Opera were cast as follows: Raimondo (Papal Legate), Mr. Henry Pope; Two Roman Citizens, Messrs. Cadwalader and Snazelle; a Messenger of Peace, Miss Georgina Burns; the latter being deservedly applauded in the delivery of her solo at the commencement of the second act. Special applause was of course elicited by the grand Finale to the second act, undoubtedly the most remarkable portion of the Opera, being full of dramatic power and concentrated musical effects. The Ballet incidental to the pageantry in connection with this Finale was given with much splendour and taste. Certain shortcomings in the performance, both musically and scenically, which were apparent on the occasion of the first performance, will, no doubt, be amended at its repetition, which was to have taken place on the 30th ult. The ensemble was on the whole satisfactory; and considering the few rehearsals which it has been possible to bestow upon the work, we are bound to say that the performance we speak of was in the highest degree creditable to the Conductor and those who assisted him in the general mounting of Herr Wagner's interesting first operatic production. Herr Carl Rosa and the leading vocalists were summoned to appear before the curtain, a good deal of enthusiasm being displayed by the audience during the evening. The libretto, we should add, has been very ably rendered into English by Mr. John P. Jackson, who has made the translation of Wagnerian poetry a specialty.

Sir Julius Benedict's "Lily of Killarney" was announced for the 28th ult.; and on the following evening, for the first time in England, Guiraud's romantic Opera, "Piccolino;" the remaining evenings of the month being occupied by the repetition (already referred to) of "Rienzi" and the performance of Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" respectively.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

AFTER the customary adjournment over Christmas, these performances recommenced on the 6th ult., on which occasion the first appearance this season of Mdlle. Marie Krebs was, as usual, a welcome feature in the programme. The lady, it need scarcely be added, met with a very warm reception on the part of an audience less numerous than on previous occasions, owing no doubt to the prevalence of fog in the metropolis, which had even penetrated into the spacious concert-room. The solo performance of the gifted artist just named consisted in an excellent rendering of Beethoven's Sonata in E flat (Op. 81), to which the composer himself has supplied the "programme" in the title "Les Adieux, l'Absence et le Retour," suggesting a romance to the poetic interpretation of which the individual player may lend infinite variety. Signor Piatti, to whose earnest artistic zeal amateurs are indebted for the occasional revival of works by the earlier Italian masters, introduced, for the first time at these concerts, a Violin Sonata by Locatelli (a composer who flourished during the first half of last century), adapted by him for the violoncello, with added pianoforte accompaniments. The almost endless applause which followed his performance must have convinced the sterling artist that his efforts in the direction indicated are thoroughly appreciated. Nor should we omit to say a word in praise of the able and musicianlike manner in which Mr. Zerbini invariably discharges the by no means easy office of accompanist, and which on the occasion in question was particularly conspicuous. Beethoven's Quartett in C major (Op. 59), one of the three dedicated to Count Rasoumowski, was well played (for the twentieth time at these concerts) by Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, although the misty cloud in which these artists appeared enveloped on the platform somewhat interfered with the delicate timbre of their instruments. The Concert concluded with a novelty, M. Saint-Saëns's Quartett in B flat for pianoforte, violin, viola, and violoncello, in the execution of which Mdlle. Krebs was associated with Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Zerbini and Piatti, the mention of whose names sufficiently indicates the respective instruments for which the work is written, as also the fact that its execution left nothing to be desired. It would be manifestly unjust, after a first hearing, to pronounce a definite opinion on the merits of the work of the talented and rising French composer, in whose writings the influence of the modern German schools is plainly discernible. Suffice it to say, that the impression produced on our mind by the performance in question is that of a certain straining after originality, frequently met with also in compositions of the representatives of the school alluded to. The final Allegro appears to us the most consistently and ably developed of its four movements, being full of sprightliness and animation, and forming an agreeable contrast to the preceding Poco Allegro with its episode in B flat major, the undoubted originality of which is of a kind bordering very closely upon vulgarity. Mr. Barton McGuckin, who was the vocalist of the evening, was much applauded in his rendering of songs of a very diversified character, by David, Salvatore Rosa, and Abt. This gentleman's singing has much improved since we last had an opportunity of hearing him at these concerts; we would remind him, however, that a tenor voice, however robust, is a "fragile thing," and that the sympathetic quality of his notes, as well as his general delivery, will gain nothing by being forced to an undue degree.

The second evening Concert of the month (on the 13th ult.) presented a programme truly popular in the sense of the title adopted by this excellent institution, including, as it did, Beethoven's Serenade Trio in D major for violin, viola and violoncello (Op. 3, nineteenth performance); Chopin's Introduction and Polonaise Brillante for pianoforte and violoncello; and Schubert's Quartett in G major (Op. 161), for stringed instruments. The last-mentioned work, the latest of the kind which the composer has written, is at the same time one upon which his singular individuality is most markedly impressed, being likewise full of those "heavenly lengths" about which the genial Schumann was wont to go into raptures, a feeling which was evidently shared by the present audience, whose enthusiastic plaudits after every movement testified to the maturity of their musical appreciation. The executants, to whose efforts much of this approbation was due, were MM. Straus, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti. The first-named gentleman we have never heard to better advantage than in his performance of the leading violin part in Beethoven's Serenade Trio, he having been the first to introduce, in the same capacity, this now so familiar work during the seventh season of the Popular Concerts. Chopin's "Polonaise" was played with much effect by Mdlle. Krebs and Signor Piatti, the lady pianist having previously given a very refined and thoughtful interpretation of Beethoven's Sonata in E major (Op. 109). The vocal soli were Gounod's "There is a green hill far away," and Scarlatti's "O cessate di piegarmi," well rendered by Signor Federici. Mr. Zerbini was again the accompanist.

On the succeeding Monday (20th ult.) the Concert opened with Mozart's string Quartett in E flat (No. 4) interpreted by Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Ries, Zerbini and Piatti. Mdlle. Janotha, who on this occasion reappeared as the pianist of the evening, gave a very effective reading of Beethoven's familiar "Moonlight Sonata," playing also by "special desire," in association with Signor Piatti, Rubinstein's Sonata in D major for pianoforte and violoncello, the performance of which, it is hardly necessary to say, elicited much applause. Haydn's Pianoforte Trio in G major, capitally rendered by the two lady-artists and Signor Piatti, concluded the evening's proceedings. Miss Mary Davies was the vocalist. We must defer our notice of the following Concert, which took place on the 27th ult., until our next number.

MADAME VIARD-LOUIS'S CONCERTS.

HOWEVER the general public may regard these Concerts, the aspect of St. James's Hall on the evening of the 21st ult., when the third of the course was given, proved that they have attracted the attention of connoisseurs. To use a common phrase, limiting it of course to people in the musical world, "everybody was there," and the greatest interest prevailed. The reason for this is easy to discover, because so special an audience cannot be attracted by ordinary or familiar things. Thus, we may be sure that the general desire was not to hear Wagner's overture to "Tannhäuser," though a performance of that work by so powerful and capable an orchestra might well excite uncommon interest. Nor was it to hear Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor (played by Madame Viard-Louis), or Bennett's Rondo Piacevole (also one of the spirited concert-giver's solos), or the air from Loder's "Night Dancers" (sung by Mr. Lloyd). These works are welcome when they come, but as connoisseurs scarcely make a point of going forth to meet them, we must look for the loadstone of the concert in the remaining part of the programme—that is to say, in a Menuet by M. Bourgault-Ducoudray, Goetz's Symphony in F (repeated by desire), and the Barcarole and Ballet music from Gounod's "Polyeucte." Here we have no difficulty in finding it. So many novelties might well draw the most confirmed musical hermit out of his cell. M. Bourgault-Ducoudray's Menuet is a pretty trifle, worthy of the Gavotte played, and encored, at the first concert of the season. The composer does not use a big orchestra for his dance music—if that may be so called to which nobody ever dances, off the stage—but he employs a small one with a great deal of taste and judgment. His treatment of the themes, moreover, is, as a rule, very fanciful and pleasing. M. Bourgault-Ducoudray should be known to us by something more important and more worthy a Professor of the Conservatoire than Menuets and Gavottes. Concerning Goetz's remarkable Symphony we spoke last month, and may be content to say now that it appears more and more worthy of all that has been written in its favour. Rarely does a Symphony leap so soon into popularity. The other day unknown even as to its bare existence, it is now an object of wide-spread interest, and will assuredly go the round of our orchestras. Why is this? Simply because the work unites to technical merits, fancy, feeling, and original expression in no ordinary degree. It is never pedantic and never shallow, while always animated by that spirit of art which is superior to and better than its mere form. The Symphony was again played with immense spirit by the fine orchestra. We are of opinion, however, that the movements were taken a shade too fast. Such music will not bear hurry. It is so thickly crowded with ideas that there must be time to grasp them as they pass. The Barcarole of M. Gounod was fortunate in having Mr. Lloyd as an exponent, but most unhappy in the English translation supplied to the singer. Mr. Lloyd, we believe, never sings in French, but it would have been better for him to have done so a first time on this occasion than to have used verses which tended to make the subject ridiculous. As regards the song itself an opinion has already been expressed in these columns, and need not be repeated. Doubtless the Barcarole will be annexed by most tenors to their repertory, and brought out whenever there is an orchestra to furnish the picturesque accompaniments. Our readers have been made familiar also with the circumstances under which the ballet in "Polyeucte" takes place, and the character of the fête with which it is connected. We are not called upon, therefore, to do for them what was properly done in the programme-books for Madame Viard-Louis's patrons. They will hardly be surprised to learn that the ballet music was heard throughout with interest, often with special admiration. The movements, it is true, are not of equal value, but the best are very good indeed—charmingly melodious and richly coloured. Among these are the dances in honour of Venus, and the tuneful Adagio with which Pan is invoked. A few "cuts" were made by Mr. Weist Hill, but substantially the whole of the ballet music had a hearing. We trust nobody judged "Polyeucte" by it and the Barcarole, for these numbers, elegant though they be, are among the weakest in the opera.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

THE programme of the Second Concert, on the 13th ult., contained two works of the utmost interest, and but little known to the general public. The first, Handel's Sixth Chandos Anthem—although the programme stated that it has "probably not been given with orchestra within the memory of any one living"—was performed at the Hereford Festival of 1873, with the same excellent additional accompaniments by Mr. Silas as those used on the present occasion; and the second, Mendelssohn's setting of the 114th Psalm, "When Israel out of Egypt came," a grand piece of choral writing in eight parts, was rendered in a masterly manner some years ago by Mr. Barnby's choir, and was also one of the pieces included in the concerts of the Bach Society last season; an Association which has already done much to place some of the strangely neglected works of the great masters before a modern audience. The singing of Handel's Anthem by the choir, so efficiently trained by Mr. Ebenezer Prout, revealed all the beauties of this noble composition to perfection; the choruses, "With cheerful notes let all the earth," and "Ye boundless realms of joy," especially, being given with a decision in the points of attack and a careful management of the gradations of tone worthy of the highest praise. The principal vocalists, Miss Annie Marriott, Mr. Frank Boyle, and Mr. Frederic King (all from the National Training School for Music) acquitted themselves with much credit, and throughout their arduous task gave decisive promise of future excellence. Mendelssohn's Psalm was unquestionably the finest specimen of choral singing we have yet heard from this body of vocalists; and indeed not only for accuracy, but for the far higher merit of unity of feeling in the varied expression of the text, was so remarkable a performance, that we see no reason why works of the utmost elaboration should not be placed before an audience evidently—if we may judge by the warm applause bestowed upon those selected for this concert—perfectly prepared to receive them with a cordial welcome. Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, which commenced the second part, was delicately and intelligently played throughout, each movement eliciting the most enthusiastic marks of approbation; Beethoven's trio, "Tremate, empi tremate," was well sung by the vocalists before mentioned, and Mr. Eaton Faning's clever and characteristic chorus, "Song of the Vikings," was so persistently redemanded, that Mr. Prout found it necessary to inform the audience that he always had resisted, and, so long as he had the honour to conduct the Association, intended to resist, the system of encores, a resolution for which we are certain all the thinking portion of the audience will heartily thank him. The concert was brought to a successful termination by a spirited rendering of Rossini's Overture, "The Siege of Corinth," Mr. Prout, on retiring from the orchestra, receiving that sincere tribute of applause which he had so worthily earned.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE afternoon performance of Rossini's "Moses in Egypt" (under the direction of Sir Michael Costa) attracted a large audience on the 11th ult., and the work was again received with the warmest demonstrations of approval. The principal vocalists were Madame Sherrington, Mdlle. Enequist, Miss Julia Elton, Messrs. Lloyd, Cummings, Wallace Wells, Hilton, and Bridson.

Handel's Oratorio, "Samson," was given on the 17th ult., with Sir Michael Costa's additional accompaniments. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, Mr. Shakespeare (who replaced Mr. Vernon Rigby, absent from indisposition), Mr. Wallace Wells, Messrs. Santley and Hilton. Mr. T. Harper's trumpet obbligato, to "Let the bright Seraphim," was a special feature in the performance; and the choruses were rendered with good effect throughout. Sir Michael Costa conducted as usual, and Mr. Willing presided at the organ.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

HANDEL'S "Israel in Egypt" (with G. A. Macfarren's additional accompaniments) was given on the 23rd ult., the choruses, which form so conspicuous a feature in the work, being rendered in a manner which worthily sustained the high reputation of this choir. As usual at these concerts, the duet, "The Lord is a Man of War" was sung by the tenors and basses of the choir, and so well as to be redemanded. The principal vocalists were Misses Anna Williams and Katharine Poyntz, Madame Patey, and Mr. Cummings; the air, "The enemy said," being so finely given by the last-named artist as to elicit an enthusiastic encore. Mr. Barnby conducted with his accustomed efficiency, and Dr. Stainer ably presided at the organ.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

THE Dedication Festival (Conversion of St. Paul) was observed in the usual manner at St. Paul's Cathedral on Saturday, the 25th ult. There were two early celebrations of the Holy Communion, and at ten o'clock Matins with the usual choir in attendance, the music to the Te Deum and Benedictus being Walmisley in D, and the anthem, Beethoven's "Hallelujah" from "The Mount of Olives." The great musical service, however, took place at four o'clock, when, besides a powerful choir of more than three hundred voices, there was a fine band of fifty performers led by Mr. Amor, Messrs. Watson, Zerbini, G. Horton, Lazarus, Harper, and other well-known instrumentalists being amongst the performers. No tickets were required for admission, and the congregation numbered probably between seven and eight thousand. After a few voluntaries had been played on the organ, and when the choir and clergy had taken their places, the Overture to Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was faultlessly played by the band. Then commenced the service proper, the Special Psalms being sung by the ordinary Cathedral choir, while the Glorias were taken up by the whole body of voices combined with orchestra and organ. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were sung to music, in the key of F, composed by the Rev. Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., and, if we mistake not, this was the setting written for the Worcester Festival some short time ago. The compositions are undoubtedly of a high character, and many points came out grandly on the present occasion—namely, the modulation to D♭ major at the words "All generations shall call me blessed," the fugato, "He hath shewed strength," and "He remembering His mercy," the latter of which is both original and masterly. A most appropriate selection from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" occupied the place of the anthem, and, taken as a whole, was well performed. The following numbers must be mentioned as having produced perhaps more than their usual effect, "Rise up, arise," "See what love hath the Father," "I praise Thee, O Lord my God," "O God have mercy," "Be Thou faithful unto death," "Now we are ambassadors," and the final chorus, "Not only unto him." The soloists who contributed much towards the success of the service were Masters Banemann, Whittle, and Tresilian, Messrs. Kenningham, Winn, De Lacy, and Kempton; Messrs. Hodges, Thornton, and Tinney, supporting the soli parts of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Of course, the musical arrangements were under the direction of Dr. Stainer, who conducted as usual from the lectern, and Mr. George C. Martin, the sub-organist, presided at the organ. Perhaps one of the most striking features of these Special Services at St. Paul's is the orderly manner in which everything is carried out, and, as a rule, the reverent behaviour of the congregation.

BACH'S "CHRISTMAS ORATORIO" IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

A CONSIDERABLE portion of the above work was performed at a Special Service in the Abbey on Tuesday evening, the 14th ult., by a band and chorus of 200, under the direction of Dr. Bridge. Every part of the building was crowded by an attentive congregation, and the performance, which was as a whole exceedingly good, created a great impression. The band comprised some of the best wind instrumentalists, this department of the orchestra being by far the most important in Bach's accompaniments to solos, &c. The obsolete oboe da caccia in Dr. Stone's hands proved most effective in the Pastoral Symphony. Mention must also be made of the admirable manner in which the very difficult horn parts were rendered, not, as is often the case, on corni Inglesi, but upon French horns. The effect of these accompaniments in the Chorus "Come and thank Him" was very good. The treble and alto solos were well given by the boys, Mr. Kearton (a recent and valuable addition to the Abbey choir) taking those for the tenor. Dr. Stainer played the important organ part as few could have done it, Dr. Bridge of course conducting. The selection occupied about an hour and a half in performance, being preceded and followed by a few Versicles and Prayers, the Dean reading a short Lesson after Part II. It is to be hoped that this or a similar selection may be given annually in the Abbey.

WE understand that a Memorial has been sent to the Education Office on the subject of teaching singing in elementary schools, signed by 118 members of the Western Counties Musical Association, including the Right Hon. the Earl of Devon, President of the Association; and amongst the Vice-Presidents, Professors Ouseley and Macfarren, some Members of Parliament, and many other influential persons. The petition of the Memorial is based on the ground that, under the present system, the teachers, although in most instances able to instruct pupils by note, adopt the principle of teaching by ear, as giving less trouble; that a great deal of the time devoted to this subject is occupied in learning, by heart, the words only of each song; and that the children consequently leave school without the slightest knowledge of the principles of vocal music, and are therefore neither disposed nor prepared to keep up what might be to them a really valuable source of pleasure and even of profit. It is suggested that such an alteration of the scale of payment should be made as would give less encouragement to singing by ear, and greater encouragement to singing by note; and that at least two hours a week should be provided in the time-table for this study, even at the risk of reducing the time spent on some other subject. We are glad to find that this matter is now being taken up in earnest; for although the question is usually asked at examinations by the Government Inspector whether the children sing by ear or by note, the answer to the inquiry does not in the slightest degree make any difference in the grant.

THE First Examination under the new regulations for Degrees in Music at the University of London was held on the 9th and 10th of December last. The examination was called the "First Bachelor of Music Examination;" it was devoted exclusively to theoretical subjects, and it comprised the following heads:—

The relations between musical sounds and the vibrations of sonorous bodies, as affecting the pitch of the sounds.
The simpler properties of stretched strings, and the sounds produced by them. Compound vibrations. Nodes.
The nature of harmonics.
The general theory and simpler phenomena of compound sounds.
The theoretical nature and values of musical intervals.
The theoretical construction of the modern scales: Temperament, Melody, Time, Rhythm.
The theoretical nature of consonance and dissonance as determined by Helmholtz.
The principles of the construction of chords.
The history of music, so far as it relates to the growth of musical forms and rules.

The Examiners were: For the Physical subjects—Professor W. G. Adams, M.A., F.R.S.; Professor A. W. Reinold, M.A. For the Musical subjects—Dr. W. Pole, F.R.S.; Dr. Stainer, M.A. There were eight candidates, out of whom five passed, namely: First Division—G. W. Bullen; R. Deakin, B.A.; H. K. Moore, B.A. Second Division—Thos. Jones, B.A.; W. H. Sampson. These have to go up again in December, 1879, for the Second or Practical Examination, which they must pass in order to obtain their degree.

ON Thursday evening, the 16th ult., Mr. C. J. Frost, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist of S. Mary's, Haggerston, gave a recital on a large chamber-organ at the residence of Thomas Spratt, Esq., Vassall Road, Brixton. The instrument is of unusual size and power for a chamber-organ, consisting of three manuals, independent pedal organ, fifty sounding stops, with twelve hydraulic movements acting on them, ten couplers, and a total of 3,182 pipes. Pneumatic action is applied to the great and swell organs, and also to the couplers, and the instrument is blown by a Crossley's gas-engine. The pipe-work is partly by Mr. J. Courcelle, and partly by Mr. T. S. Jones. The organ is erected in a chamber specially built for it, of a suitable capacity to hold about 100 persons. The room was well filled with an appreciative audience. Several pieces in the programme were comparatively unknown, such as Mr. Stephens's Fantasia on Chorale, "St. James;" Mr. Smart's Air, with variations and finale fugato, written for the opening of the Albert Hall Organ; and Mr. Hopkins's Andante, written for the same purpose. The Recital lasted about two hours, and the auditors gave abundant evidence of their approbation both of the excellence of the performer and the selection of the compositions. It is to be hoped that connoisseurs, of whom there were several present, may have other opportunities of hearing this instrument.

THE prospectus of the Philharmonic Society for the coming season announces no orchestral novelty, but Brahms's Second Symphony is a welcome item in the selection. Madame Arabella Goddard plays at the opening concert, and a hope is expressed that Madame Schumann will be able to accept an engagement for March 20. Herr Joachim is amongst the artists engaged; and the vocalists named are Mrs. Osgood, Miss Thursby, Madame Patey, and Herr Henschel. It is evident that the Directors are resolved to persevere in the system of placing only well-known works before the audience; and if by this method a satisfactory pecuniary result can be obtained, they can afford to turn a deaf ear to those who clamour for compositions, if not by our own countrymen, at least new to this country: but it must be remembered that by excluding novelty the auditor is practically invited to direct his attention chiefly to the merits of the performance; and, considering the progress of orchestral playing within the last few years, it behoves the Philharmonic Society therefore to exercise increased caution both in the choice of its instrumentalists and the preparation for its concerts. Mr. W. G. Cusins retains the post of Conductor; and the season is advertised to commence on the 6th inst.

THE Committee of the Manchester Branch of the Lancashire Association for promoting the Cultivation of Music among all, have recently reported to the Society of Arts that ten free scholarships for teachers of elementary schools have been awarded, by competition, at Owens College. Mr. Hecht, Professor of Harmony and Composition at Owens College, says that the examination was in a knowledge of notes, keys, and time, as well as in voice and ear; that eight scholarships were obtained by schoolmasters of elementary schools, one by a teacher of music, aged seventeen, and one by a warehouseman aged twenty. Mr. Hecht also states that the musical knowledge of most of the candidates was highly satisfactory; and that he is prepared to say that had he assembled for examination, under similar conditions, an equal number of schoolmasters from any continental nation, he would not have found so large a proportion with good voices and with such a general proficiency in the principles of music. This is indeed a practical proof of the rapid progress of the art in this country, and the best possible refutation of the oft-repeated assertion that the English are not a musical people.

THERE was a large congregation at St. James's Church, Clerkenwell, on the 21st ult., to listen to a Service of Praise from the choir—the piece chosen being Mendelssohn's "Athalie." After the Litany had been sung, the Rev. J. H. Rose gave an address "On the Bible Story," 2 Kings, xi., and in doing so passed a warm eulogium on the talents of Mendelssohn, whose "Shakespeare's music," composed when very young, breathes the soul of poetry in every note, and shows what a success he might have attained had he chosen to write more for the stage. The choir, augmented to fifty voices, then gave Mendelssohn's superb work, the principal vocalists being Miss Paget, R.A.M., Miss Martin, and Miss London. The Rev. J. A. Nash read the words, and the music was conducted by Mr. James Robinson, whose son presided most efficiently at the organ. The soloists acquitted themselves of the difficult task imposed on them in an excellent manner; and the choir gave the whole of the choruses with much precision and dramatic effect.

THE St. George's Glee Union gave its 120th consecutive monthly Concert at the Pimlico Rooms, on Friday the 3rd ult. The first part consisted of part-songs, &c., well sung by the choir, and songs by Miss Bessie Spear, Miss Alice Scoones, and Mr. R. F. Roberts. Mr. Frank Amor was warmly applauded for a violin solo by Mendelssohn. Sullivan's Cantata "On Shore and Sea," with Miss Bessie Spear and Mr. J. R. Jekyll as soloists, filled the second part of the programme. Mr. G. F. Smith, R.A.M., presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. F. Kinkee at the harmonium; Messrs. Garside and Monday conducted. The Committee announces the following works for performance during the current year:—Mendelssohn's "Athalie," "Hear my Prayer," and "Judge me, O God"; Spohr's "God, Thou art great"; Bennett's "Woman of Samaria," and "May Queen"; Aspa's "Endymion," and "Gipsies"; Fox's "Jackdaw of Rheims"; Howell's "Song of the Months"; Sullivan's "On Shore and Sea"; and a varied selection of madrigals, glees, and part-songs.

THE members of the Westminster Choral Union assisted at a Ballad Concert given at the Crystal Palace, on Thursday evening, the 9th ult. The choir contributed the following numbers to the programme:—"Bethlehem" (Gounod), "In going to my lonely bed" (Edwards), "The ferry maiden" (A. R. Gaul), "In this hour of softened splendour," (Pinsuti), "The Lass of Richmond Hill" (H. Leslie), and "A Christmas Madrigal" (Ions). Miss Ada Patterson, Miss Annie Butterworth, Mr. Wilford Morgan, and Mr. Thurley Beale, sang several songs with good effect. Miss Emma Barnett played two pianoforte solos, and Miss C. Rossiter a concertina solo. Mr. Sydney Tower, a young and promising student at the Royal Academy, gave a song by Roeckel, for his rendering of which he was enthusiastically recalled. Mr. H. M. Higgs was a thoroughly efficient accompanist; and the choir was directed by Mr. A. Cottman.

OUR obituary this month includes the name of Mrs. Anderson, who died December 24, in her ninetieth year. At the concerts of the Philharmonic Society, both at the old Argyll Rooms (which were destroyed by fire) and the Hanover Square Rooms, Mrs. Anderson was for many years the leading pianist; and, as an exponent of the chaste and classical school of playing, she justly maintained the highest rank in this country. Her Majesty the Queen (when Princess Victoria) was one of her early pupils; and she also instructed the youthful Princesses, and several eminent professional artists, amongst whom may be mentioned Madame Arabella Goddard. Mr. Anderson, her husband, (who died two years ago) held the office of Master of the Private Band of King William the Fourth and of Queen Victoria, a post to which his nephew, Mr. W. G. Cusins, succeeded.

THE London Gregorian Choral Association has now a publication devoted exclusively to its interests, No. 1 of the "Gregorian Quarterly Magazine," commenced with the present year, fully reporting the progress and advancement of the principles of the ancient Plain Song of the Church, and containing original papers, reviews, and correspondence upon the subject of what is popularly known as "Gregorian Music." Those who wish well to the cause will be glad to find that the Magazine is intended to "afford an open channel for the expression of temperate opinions upon all matters connected with Church Music," because there is always a danger of an avowedly sectarian journal becoming so narrow in its views as to enlist the sympathies of but a very limited class of readers.

THE Grosvenor Choral Society held its eighty-third Monthly Concert on the 17th ult. The selection was miscellaneous, and chiefly noticeable for the singing of Miss Agnes Ross and Mr. Walter Bolton. The choir sang several part-songs, &c., including "Come if you dare," solo by Mr. Arthur Weston, and "The Tramp Chorus," solo by Miss Josephine Pulham. Mr. S. Dean Grimson contributed a violin solo by De Beriot, and, in conjunction with Mr. J. G. Callcott, a duet for violin and pianoforte on airs from "William Tell." Haydn's Trio, "Maiden fair," sung by Messrs. Maunder, Nettleship, and Baker, received a well-merited encore.

A SERVICE of Sacred Song, entitled "The Child Jesus," was given in St. Stephen's Church, North Bow, after Evening Prayer on Friday, December 27. The alto solo, "O Thou that tellest," with its chorus, and the "Hallelujah Chorus," were added to the Service, the whole being sung with great steadiness and precision. The chanting of the special Psalm (lxxii.) was unusually good; the accents were invariably well marked, and the words to the reciting-note were taken deliberately. Mr. Price presided at the organ, and Mr. E. Stroud (the Choirmaster) conducted, and also sang the recitative and solo from the "Messiah."

WE perceive that Dwight's Journal of Music, one of the oldest of the many American periodicals devoted to the art, has passed from the business management of Oliver Ditson and Co. into the hands of Houghton, Osgood and Co., by whom it will in future be published. We are glad to see that it will remain under the editorship of John S. Dwight, whose earnest and independent views upon music and musicians have mainly contributed to the success of a journal which we find dates back twenty-six years. The first number of the new volume, published with the present year, is in every respect fully equal to its predecessors.

A CONCERT took place at St. Peter's School-room, Great Windmill Street, on the 24th ult. Miss A. Parish, Miss Tylee, Miss J. M. Hill, Miss E. Reed, Mr. W. Rendell, Mr. H. Tylee, and Mr. H. G. Froome contributed vocal solos; Messrs. Humm, Rendell, Dorey, and Froome sang several well-known glees; Messrs. A. Dorey and P. Kling performed two pianoforte duets; and Mr. W. Dorey gave two concertina solos. The concert gave much satisfaction to a tolerably numerous audience. Mr. A. Dorey, the Organist of the church, was the accompanist.

MISS EMMELINE DICKSON gave her first Concert at the Langham Hall on Thursday the 16th ult., which was well attended by a fashionable audience. The artists were Madame Lemmens Sherrington and Miss Emmeline Dickson (soprani), Miss Damian (pupil of Madame Sainton) (contralto), Mr. Faulkner Leigh (tenor), Mr. Geo. Fox (baritone), and Mr. W. Ganz. Mr. Henry Parker conducted. The concert was a decided success.

THE Saturday Popular Organ Recitals at the Bow and Bromley Institute are resumed for the season. The arrangements for the present month include, on the 1st, Mr. E. H. Turpin and the Choir of the Institute; on the 8th and 15th, Mr. W. T. Best (of Liverpool)—vocalists, Mrs. D'Alton and Mr. Maybrick; and on the 22nd, a Pianoforte Recital by Mr. Silas—violin, Herr Kummer; violoncello Mr. C. Ould.

ON Friday evening, the 24th ult., Mr. D. Woodhouse, Organist and Choirmaster of All Saints' Church, Pimlico, was presented with a handsome writing-desk. The presentation was made by Dr. Lavies, and bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Mr. D. Woodhouse by the Members of All Saints' Choir, Pimlico, as a token of their esteem. January, 1879."

A NEW Choral Society under the conductorship of Mr. Willem Coenen, and entitled the "Hampstead Choral Society," has been established with every prospect of success. The rehearsals have commenced; the works taken in hand being Schubert's "Song of Miriam" and Weber's "Jubilee Cantata." The meetings take place on Friday evenings at the new Vestry Hall, Hampstead.

REVIEWS.

Piccolino. Opéra Comique en trois actes de Victorien Sardou et Charles Nuitter. Musique de E. Guiraud. [Paris: Durand, Schœnewerk et Cie.]

ONCE more we ask the attention of our readers to a new opera, and again the composer is a Frenchman. Truly our gifted neighbours are asserting their genius as creators of lyric drama, and it is well that this should be so. The special characteristics of French music are essential to the completeness of the branch of art in question, for proof of which let the incredulous examine the choicest examples in the repertory of Opera, and imagine them divested of whatever is due to the influence, direct or indirect, of the nation which admittedly takes the lead in everything pertaining to dramatic feeling or expression. But we have not now to discuss this interesting theme, and go on, therefore, to point out that, as regards "Piccolino," there is no question of probable performance in England, as was the case when we reviewed "Carmen," "Polyeucte," "Le Roi de Lahore," and "Fior d'Aliza." Before these lines appear in print "Piccolino" will have been performed at Her Majesty's Theatre, under the direction of Mr. Carl Rosa, to whom already belongs so much credit for an enterprising spirit, and who never fails to carry out his intentions with all the resources at disposal.

Who is M. Guiraud? The question is as pertinent as, some months back, was "Who is M. Bizet?" or, still more recently, "Who is Hermann Goetz?" We will answer it in brief before turning to his opera.

Ernest Guiraud was born at New Orleans, in June, 1837, and is, therefore, in his forty-second year. His father, Jean-Baptiste Guiraud, himself a musician, though a somewhat unfortunate one, discerned the son's budding promise, and took him to Paris at the age of twelve, that his imagination might be impressed by the artistic wonders of the capital. Returning to New Orleans, with some libretti in his pocket, young Guiraud brought out an opera, "Roi David," when only sixteen years old, and achieved so much success that he at once removed to Paris, determined upon making that his home. Having entered the Conservatoire, Guiraud became a pupil of Halévy, and in 1859, won the Grand Prix de Rome with a Cantata entitled "Bajazet et le Jouer de flûte." At this time he played the drums in the orchestra of the Opéra-Comique, but, of course, removed to Rome, and there gained, as well as knowledge of many kinds, that insight into student-life which is vividly reflected in "Piccolino." According to the conditions of the Grand Prix, Guiraud sent to Paris an important work yearly, the first being a "Messe Solennelle;" the second, an Italian opéra bouffe, "Gli Avventurieri;" and the third, an opéra comique, "Sylvie." The last-named was brought out in the Rue Favart in 1864; but not till 1869 could Guiraud get a hearing for his second Opera, "En Prison." In 1870 he produced a third, "Le Kobold," but the war very soon cut short its career; and the composer, throwing down his pen, took up the sword, and fought for his country in several fierce engagements, out of which he happily came unwounded. Peace having been restored, Guiraud went back to composition, and in 1872 produced a Suite d'orchestre at the Concerts Populaires, with a good deal of éclat. In the same year he appeared at the Athenée with a two-act comic Opera, "Madame Turlupin;" and in 1873 he was represented at the Opéra by a Ballet, "Gretna Green." Returning to the Opéra-Comique, he brought out "Piccolino" in April, 1876, and since then has been engaged at the Conservatoire as professor of harmony and accompaniment, in succession to the late Edouard Batiste. Such is the man whose latest contribution to lyric drama has just challenged English criticism.

Guiraud was undoubtedly fortunate in having Sardou as a collaborateur, and it is not difficult to trace the hand of that accomplished dramatist in the pretty story of "Piccolino." We shall not, however, deal separately with the libretto, but include it in a general survey.

The Overture is of greater length than usual in modern French operas, but follows the common plan of taking its themes from the body of the work. Its subjects are strung together without reference to any obvious design; and thus the interest excited arises, not from the overture as an example of art, but from its connection with various salient points in the drama. Whether this method of preluding an opera is preferable to that adopted by the older masters, who gave us such overtures as those to "Die Zauberflöte," "Fidelio," and "Der Freischütz," is a point we need not discuss. Nor need the fact be insisted on that the method, even if less artistic, is more convenient. When the curtain rises it shows a room in the house of Pastor Ziegler, who has spiritual care of a village near Lausanne, and whose wife and daughters, Denise and Charlotte, are busily making preparations for a Christmas feast. A sprightly Trio in E major, expressive of anxiety about nuts, oranges, and spoons, &c., together with the state of the young ladies' "back hair," opens the scene well. The music is simple and unpretending, as it should be, but overflowing with brightness and good humour. In the course of the trio, some surprise is expressed at the absence of Marthe, about whom, as yet, we know nothing; and, when the trio becomes a quartett, it is not because Marthe has appeared, but because Vergaz, the village watchman, has entered with a Christmas-tree and a lot of presents provided by the good pastor for his family and guests. These are duly discussed to a continuation of the same pleasing music, in which a valse movement obtains and deserves prominence in right of its piquancy and daintiness. A present has been brought for Marthe as well as the rest, and again there are cries for that lagging damsel, who now appears at the door of her room, and promises, though with little zest, to help dress the tree. All go out for this purpose, leaving Marthe, who sings a cavatina, "Softly he said, 'I love thee only.'" It is the "old, old story" of man's promise and woman's betrayal; and the music, an Andante in B minor, well reflects the sadness of the victim. Yet nothing could be more simple, or more thoroughly rely for effect upon expressive melodic phrases. A dialogue follows between Madame Ziegler and Vergaz, in the course of which we learn that Marthe was adopted by the pastor when her mother, a stranger, died in the village. This information is partly conveyed in the Carl Rosa version by a song, "A smile upon her face she wore," which we do not find in the printed copies, and as to the music of which we cannot now speak. The narration ended, the pastor's grandsons appear, and there is much merry Christmas talk before a procession of village children and young people, some of whom represent Scriptural characters associated with the Nativity, enters upon the scene. At this point the music resumes, the procession moving to the sound of a March (previously heard in the Overture), the theme of which might be that of some rustic carol. Presently the whole party join their voices in an actual Christmas ditty, "With our joyous singing, welcome we this day," the orchestra continuing as before. The pastor's daughters then welcome the "Kings of ancient story," and a Chorus, "A star so brightly gleaming," succeeds, followed by a Chorus of Children, "The angels watching o'er us." This ended, the first Carol is repeated, and so the ceremony concludes. With appropriate simplicity, M. Guiraud's Christmas music combines a decided character, the children's song above all, thanks to a quaint accompaniment; and the whole may fitly be described as pleasing. During the feast which follows, Vergaz appears, attended by three roving students — Musaraigne, a composer; Comète, an amateur painter; and Tourteau, a sculptor—whom he had found roaming about the village, and taken into custody as vagrants. The Pastor soon convinces the watchman of his mistake, and some lively conversation ensues, in the course of which Musaraigne takes occasion to rail at everything Swiss, and sings a song, "All your celebrated scenery," comparing the country to a peep-show, and its inhabitants to puppets. The music of this number calls for no particular remark, and indeed is more than a little commonplace. At its close the talk is resumed, and Marthe hears that the guests had visited the spot on the recommendation of a fellow-student named Frédéric. Then she learns that her forgetful lover is still unmarried, and that all hope need not be abandoned. The visitors leave, and the Pastor, alone with Marthe, insists upon knowing the cause of her trouble. After some resistance the girl tells her story, and the good man at once resolves to set out for Rome in search of her betrayer. At this point the finale of the first act begins, opening with the Pastor's Solo, "My child, my duty bids me go." Here M. Guiraud appears at his best. The melody is flowing and agreeable, full of tender expression, and accompanied with much delicacy. A happy mixture of dignity and sweetness pervades the air, disposing us to think more highly than at any previous time of the composer's powers. Left alone at its close, Marthe takes the bold resolution to anticipate the pastor, and herself set out for Rome. As she does so, Vergaz is heard crying, "Nine o'clock. It snows." But this deters not the girl, who, while the children in another room repeat their carol, writes a hurried "Farewell," and stealthily leaves the house. As she disappears, Denise enters calling "Marthe," and ascends the stairs to look for her in her apartment, the merry Christmas voices all the while singing, "Kings of ancient story, please to step inside:" the warmth of Christmas festivity bitterly contrasting with the situation of the poor wanderer who has just gone forth. Then the curtain falls. So far, though the music is never great, it cannot fail to please us. We recognise a harmony between its unaffected simplicity and the idyllic character of the drama, and with this have good reason for content.

The second act takes us to Tivoli, near the Temple of the Sybil, and introduces us to a crowd of beggars, who relieve the tedium of lying in wait for prey by singing a chorus, "Mendicity was once a prosperous trade," which soon becomes more energetic and dramatic as a party of American tourists approaches, convoyed by guides. "We're in luck," exclaim the beggars, and commence to play upon their instruments a pifferari melody with a drone bass, while others dance. Next the men whine in two-part harmony a very characteristic and happily conceived chorus, "Your charity we pray;" and when these are finished the guides, reinforced by Marcassoni, a neighbouring innkeeper, begin their routine description of the place. Presently the beggars recommence, this time in four-part chorus; and between the ciceroni on the one hand and the mendicants on the other the poor travellers are in bad case. We, however, enjoy the scene, for the music is clever and humorous, and when the Americans go away without putting their hands in their pockets, we laugh as a fortissimo scream "Canaglia" rends the air. But all this is apart from the story, which resumes when the innkeeper and his two daughters talk of a certain guest of theirs named Frédéric, describing him as madly in love with a sister of the Duca Strozzi. Illustrating a well-known proverb, this gentleman soon enters, enabling us for the first time to look upon the betrayer of Marthe. He has obtained an interview with the Contessa Elena unknown to her hostile brother, and elatedly sings an air, "In spite of wealth and high position," that may fairly be reckoned among the best numbers in the opera. Quite French in character, and calling up reminiscences of M. Gounod without actual plagiarism, it stands an excellent chance of meeting with favour from those who love a pretty melody and prefer sentiment not too profound. Frédéric, it appears, had arranged to meet Elena at the inn, and is not long kept waiting for her appearance. A love Duet of course follows, the abandon of which is somewhat checked by the lady's fear of discovery. She swears nevertheless to be faithful, and the concluding ensemble is melodious and passionate enough to "bring down the house" if at all decently sung. We gather from this number that M. Guiraud cannot enter very deeply, as a composer, into human feeling. He is always somewhat superficial, but, as he is at the same time pleasing, few will murmur. A little bit of stage "business" follows the duet, the Duke appearing, and Elena slipping away unobserved, while the orchestra plays a short movement. Strozzi has come to dine at the inn attended by his bravo Beppo, and as they pass we hear them arrive at a mutual understanding that Frédéric shall be somehow put out of the way. Meanwhile that young gentleman receives visitors. There come from Rome in search of him the three students whom we saw in Switzerland and three lady models, Rosetta, Angelica, and Violina. They are a merry party, and, suspecting Frédéric to be in the inn, essay to "draw" him by singing a piece from Musaraigne's grand opera, "The Maniac Mother-in-law"—a serenade with vocal accompaniment in imitation of a guitar. This is a clever and ingenious bit of fooling, and answers its purpose by bringing Frédéric to the balcony, where he is uproariously recognised and saluted. He begs his friends to let him alone, but they answer with another chorus from the same opera, "Our curses on his head"—a piece of mock-heroics well conceived and carried out. Yielding at last, Frédéric orders an al fresco dinner, and the dishes are discussed in a sparkling, lively chorus, which the Carl Rosa version omits. When, however, the talk runs on the lady of Frédéric's choice, the three students speculate in a Trio with chorus upon her personal appearance, and this Mr. Rosa has wisely retained, since it is a thoroughly piquant and agreeable number. So far, in the act, the drama has "marched" slowly, but now its interest revives. A sweet voice begins singing outside, and presently a boy enters, and is requested to entertain the company with a song. Wandering minstrels are only too glad to comply with such a desire, and the lad begins a ditty, "Thy perfumed shore, Sorrento," the melody of which obviously imitates, in style and character, those that may be heard any day in the Italian towns. Charmed with the new comer, the merry party buy up his stock-in-trade, but not before we hear the "boy" identify Frédéric, and hear Frédéric wonder where he had seen his face before. Under the influence of this feeling, the young painter asks permission to sketch Piccolino (for so the minstrel is called), and doing so he questions him as to his antecedents. A duet ensues in which Frédéric is himself questioned, and thus carries on the drama without, however, adding in any especial measure to its musical interest. The result is that the young painter offers to admit Piccolino into the artistic fraternity, and after some hesitation the lad accepts. Frédéric's friends, absent throughout this dialogue, now return, and a comical ceremony of initiation takes place, the neophyte being asked gravely whether he has yet painted the Sixtine Chapel, whether he is sought after by the ladies, whether he drinks till he sees the bottom of the bottle, &c. To all these queries Piccolino replies, "Not yet," and receives the solemn caution, "It is better to remain the ignorant young chap you are." M. Guiraud has caught the true spirit of this scene. His music combines a half-seriousness with just enough of fun to make a true burlesque, and to help the action merrily along. As the game is at its height the Angelus gives a signal for the party to break up, but at that moment Beppo and another enter with a pretended letter for their destined victim Frédéric. Fortunately Piccolino thrusts himself in the way and receives a slight wound in the shoulder. The action here is exciting. The young men would remove Piccolino's clothing, but are met with protestations that nothing is the matter. Enough is the matter however to cause faintness, and while Frédéric tries to restore his preserver, the rest sing an "Ave Maria." Recovering consciousness Piccolino is relieved to find that his clothing has not been disturbed, and after a while the whole party join in a merry chorus before setting out for Rome. With this the second act ends.

The third act shows us Frédéric's atélier in "an old and dilapidated palace," where are assembled Tourteau, Comète, and a number of students. After a lively introduction, tempo di valse, an Ensemble begins, in the course of which Comète receives an unlimited amount of "chaff" à propos to a picture of his on the easel. This is really a continuation of the valse movement, and has a bright and inspiriting effect, appreciated by us if not by the object of its raillery. But relief comes to the young amateur with the noise of a fanfare behind the scenes, and the uproar of a merry Chorus sung by a Carnival mob. "We rule o'er Rome, and while our reign's enduring, no peace a single soul shall know," cry the boisterous crowd—a sentiment received by the occupants of the stage with a sympathetic "Ta, ta, ta, ra." "They are pursuing some one," observes Comète; and then the some one enters in the person of Musaraigne, who, in a capital buffo Air, "In this crowd and this confusion," describes the attention paid to him by the mob, and his preference for the quieter Carnival of Paris. This song is really excellent of its kind, because not less marked by musical ability than genuine humour. It cannot fail to make a "hit." Musaraigne has brought an invitation to a fancy ball from the owner of the dilapidated palace, and, as it is being discussed, Frédéric and Piccolino enter. All set to work, but presently Piccolino is called upon for a story. He prefers, however, to sing a song, and chooses one which exactly reproduces the tale of Marthe's betrayal and Frédéric's unfaithfulness. "It was a shepherd maiden," with its short, interpolated choruses, is, of course, a simple ditty, with no musical pretensions beyond giving fit expression to the subject. This it does, in our opinion, sufficiently well, allowing the singer ample scope for whatever of natural pathos she can command. Frédéric is naturally touched by what he has heard, but forgets it all when a crowd of masqueraders enter, dancing and singing a mad-cap chorus, in which the composer appears to special advantage. Here the orchestra plays a distinguished part, and the whole reflects a wild exuberance of animal spirits in a manner that makes us suspect the existence in M. Guiraud of a dramatic power greater than any that has yet appeared. In the course of the revel, a bouquet, intended for Frédéric, is dropped, and secured by Piccolino, who, when all have retired, finds in it a note from Elena making an appointment to meet in the studio. Piccolino at once resolves to receive her in person, and, when the Countess enters, masked, pretends to take her for a model. Elena, irritated, unmasks, and is then bluntly told that she cannot see Frédéric. "Who are you that dare prevent me?" exclaims the Countess, and is answered "A woman." At this point begins an important Duet for Elena and Marthe—Piccolino no longer. The situation, it will be observed, is highly strung and capable of passionate treatment, so that we are curious to see how far M. Guiraud will prove himself equal to it. Marthe begs with tears that Elena will give up Frédéric to her, but the proud lady utters words of scorn and contempt, both the supplication and the refusal growing in intensity as the duet proceeds. On the whole, M. Guiraud comes out of the ordeal well. He does not employ elaborate means of expression, nor seek to use the orchestra rather Grant us Thy Peace.

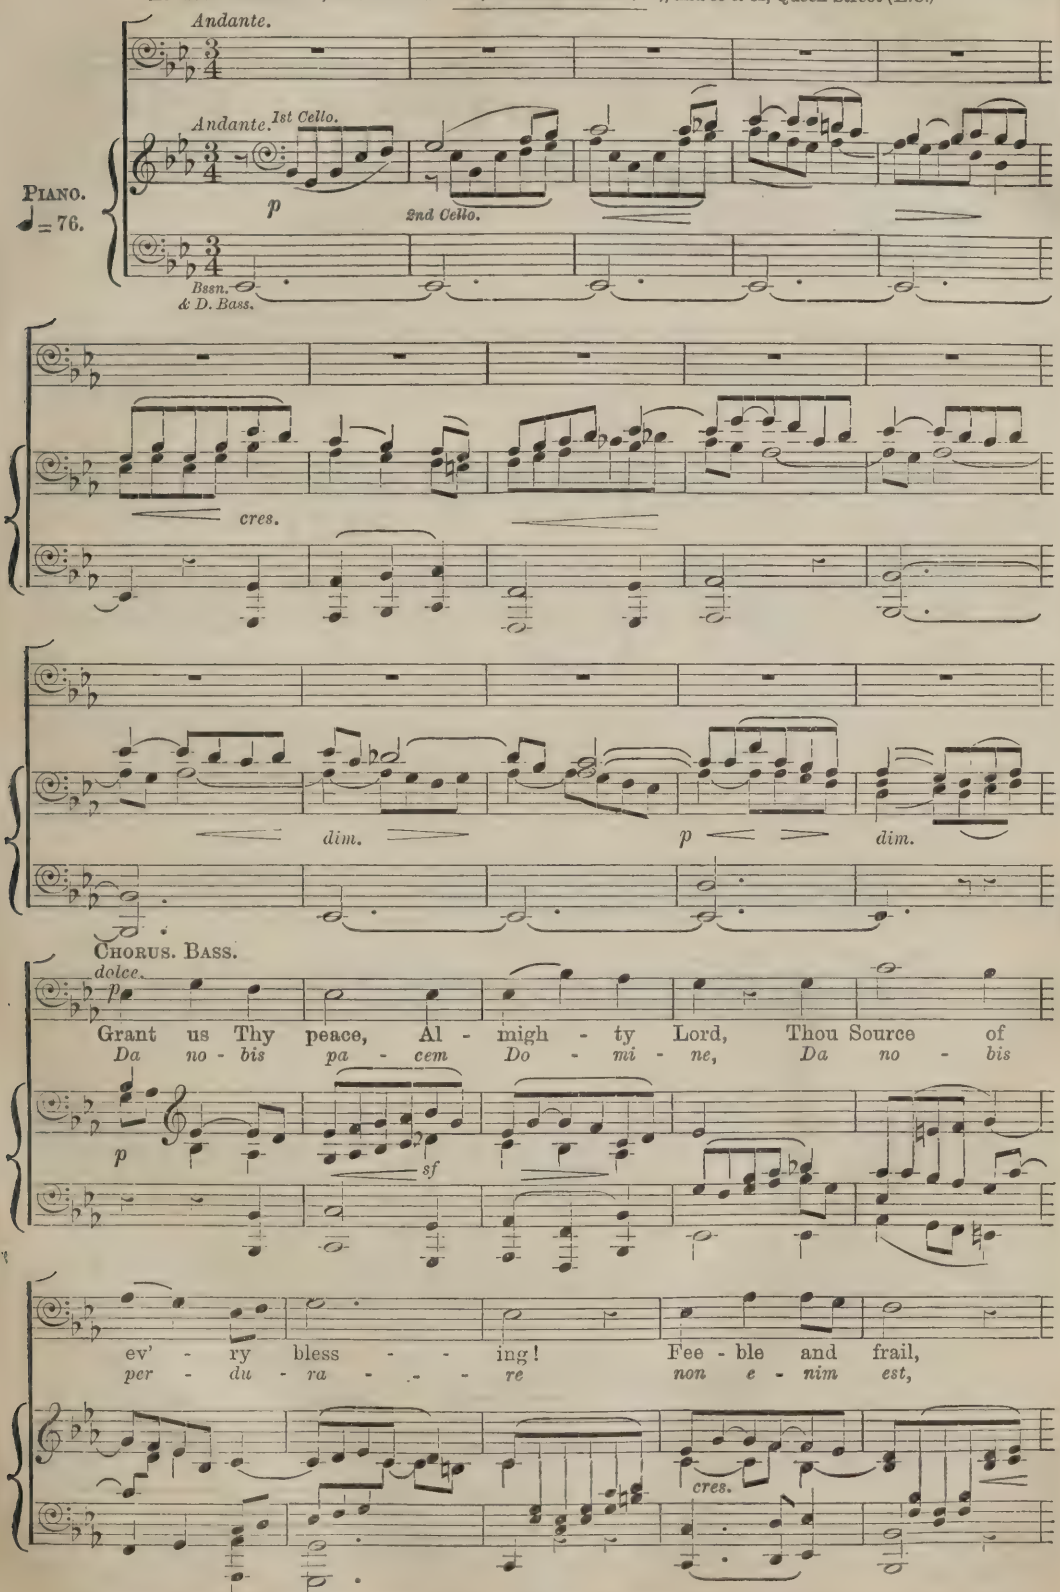
(DA NOBIS PACEM)

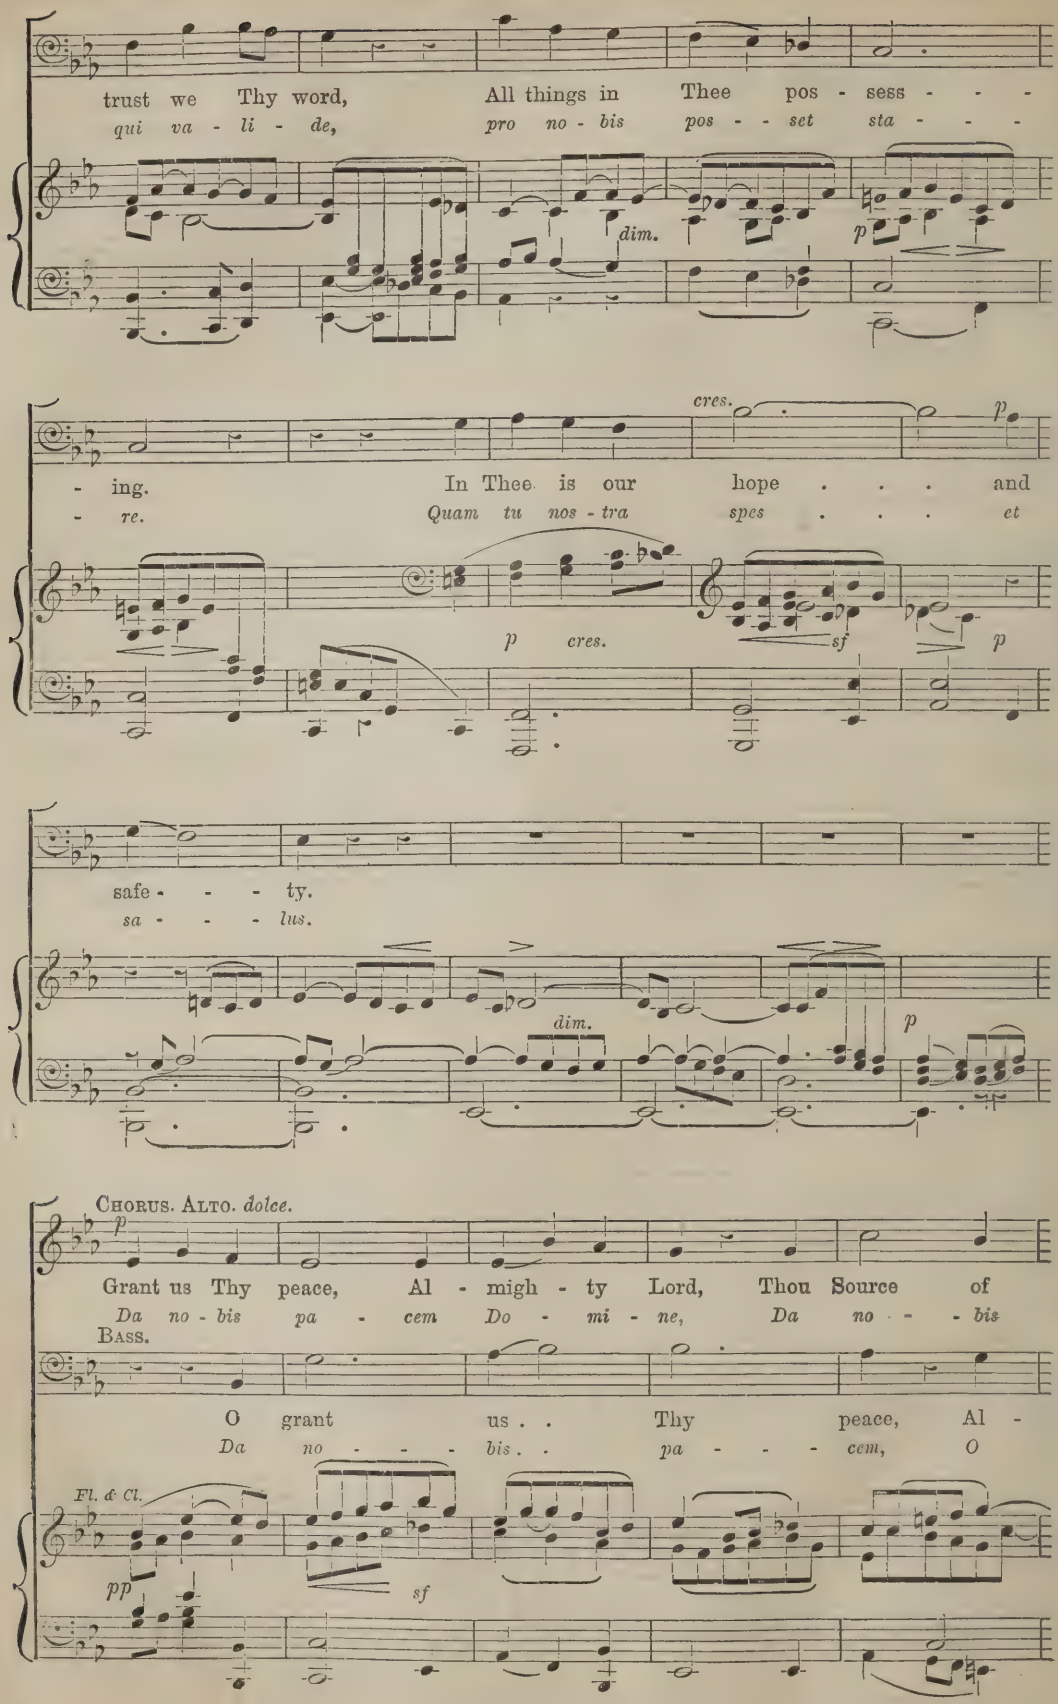
MOTETT FOR FOUR VOICES WITH ORCHESTRAL ACCOMPANIMENTS.*

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1 Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)



* These accompaniments (which may be obtained of the Publishers, price 2s. 6d.) are for 2 Violins, 2 Flutes, 2 Clarionets, Viola, 2 Violoncellos, 2 Bassoons and Double Bass.



trust we Thy word, All things in Thee pos - sess - - - qui va - li - de, pro no - bis pos - - set sta - - -
dim.
p
cres.
p
- ing. In Thee is our hope . . . and
- re. Quam tu nos - tra spes . . . et p cres. sf
p safe - - - ty.
sa - - - lus.
dim.
p
Chorus. Alto. dolce.
p
Grant us Thy peace, Al - migh - ty Lord, Thou Source of Da no - bis pa - cem Do - mi - ne, Da no - - - bis
Bass.
O grant us . . Thy peace, Al -
Da no - - - bis . . pa - - - cem, O
Fl. & Cl.
pp sf

ev' - ry bless - - - ing! Fee - ble and frail, per - du - ra - - - re, non e - nim est,
- migh - ty Lord! Fee - ble and frail, fee - ble and Do - mi - ne, non e - nim est, non e - nim
cres.
trust we Thy word, All things in Thee . . pos - sess - - -
qui va - li - de, pro no - bis pos - - set sta - - - frail, trust we Thy word, All things in est. qui va - li - de, pro no - bis cres. dim. p cres. dim.
- ing, In Thee is our hope . . . and
- re, Quam tu nos - tra spes . . . et
cres.
Thee pos - sess - ing, In Thee is our hope pos - - set sta - re, Quam tu nos - tra spes, p cres. sf p
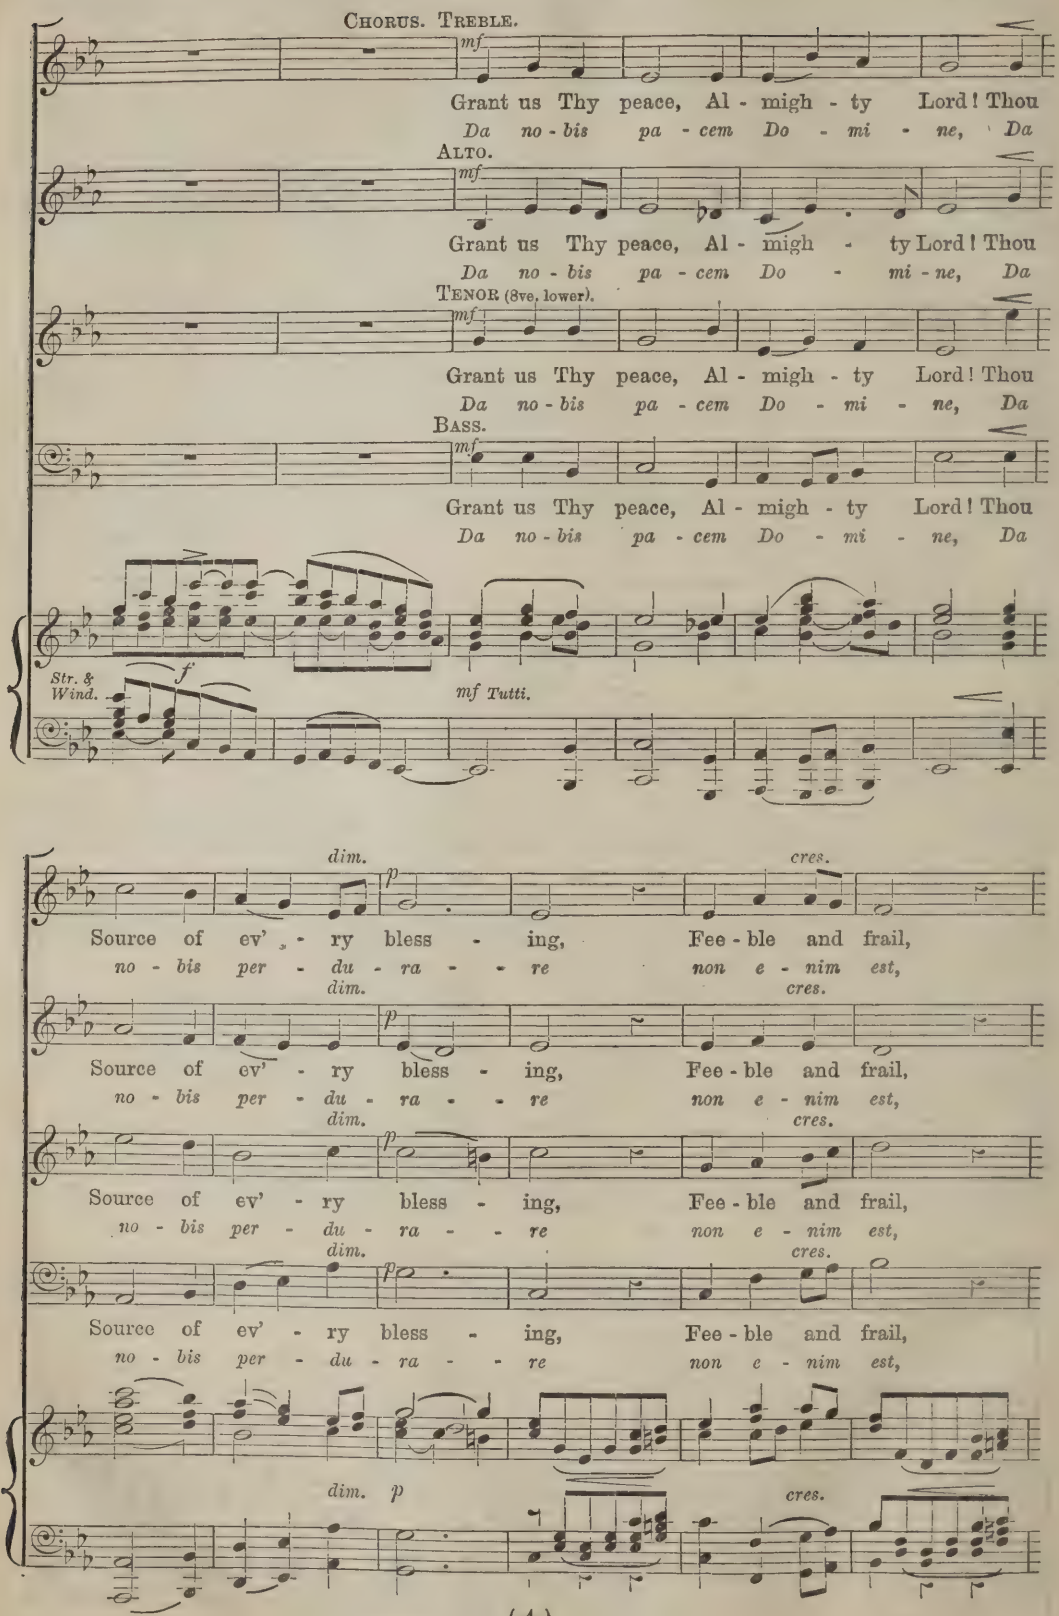
safe - - ty.
sa - - lus.
dim.
and safe - - ty.
et sa - - lus.
cres.



Chorus. Treble.
mf
Grant us Thy peace, Al - migh - ty Lord! Thou
Da no - bis pa - cem Do - mi - ne, Da
Alto.
mf
Grant us Thy peace, Al - migh - ty Lord! Thou
Da no - bis pa - cem Do - mi - ne, Da
Tenor (8ve. lower).
mf
Grant us Thy peace, Al - migh - ty Lord! Thou
Da no - bis pa - cem Do - mi - ne, Da
Bass.
mf
Grant us Thy peace, Al - migh - ty Lord! Thou
Da no - bis pa - cem Do - mi - ne, Da
Str. & Wind.
f mf Tutti.
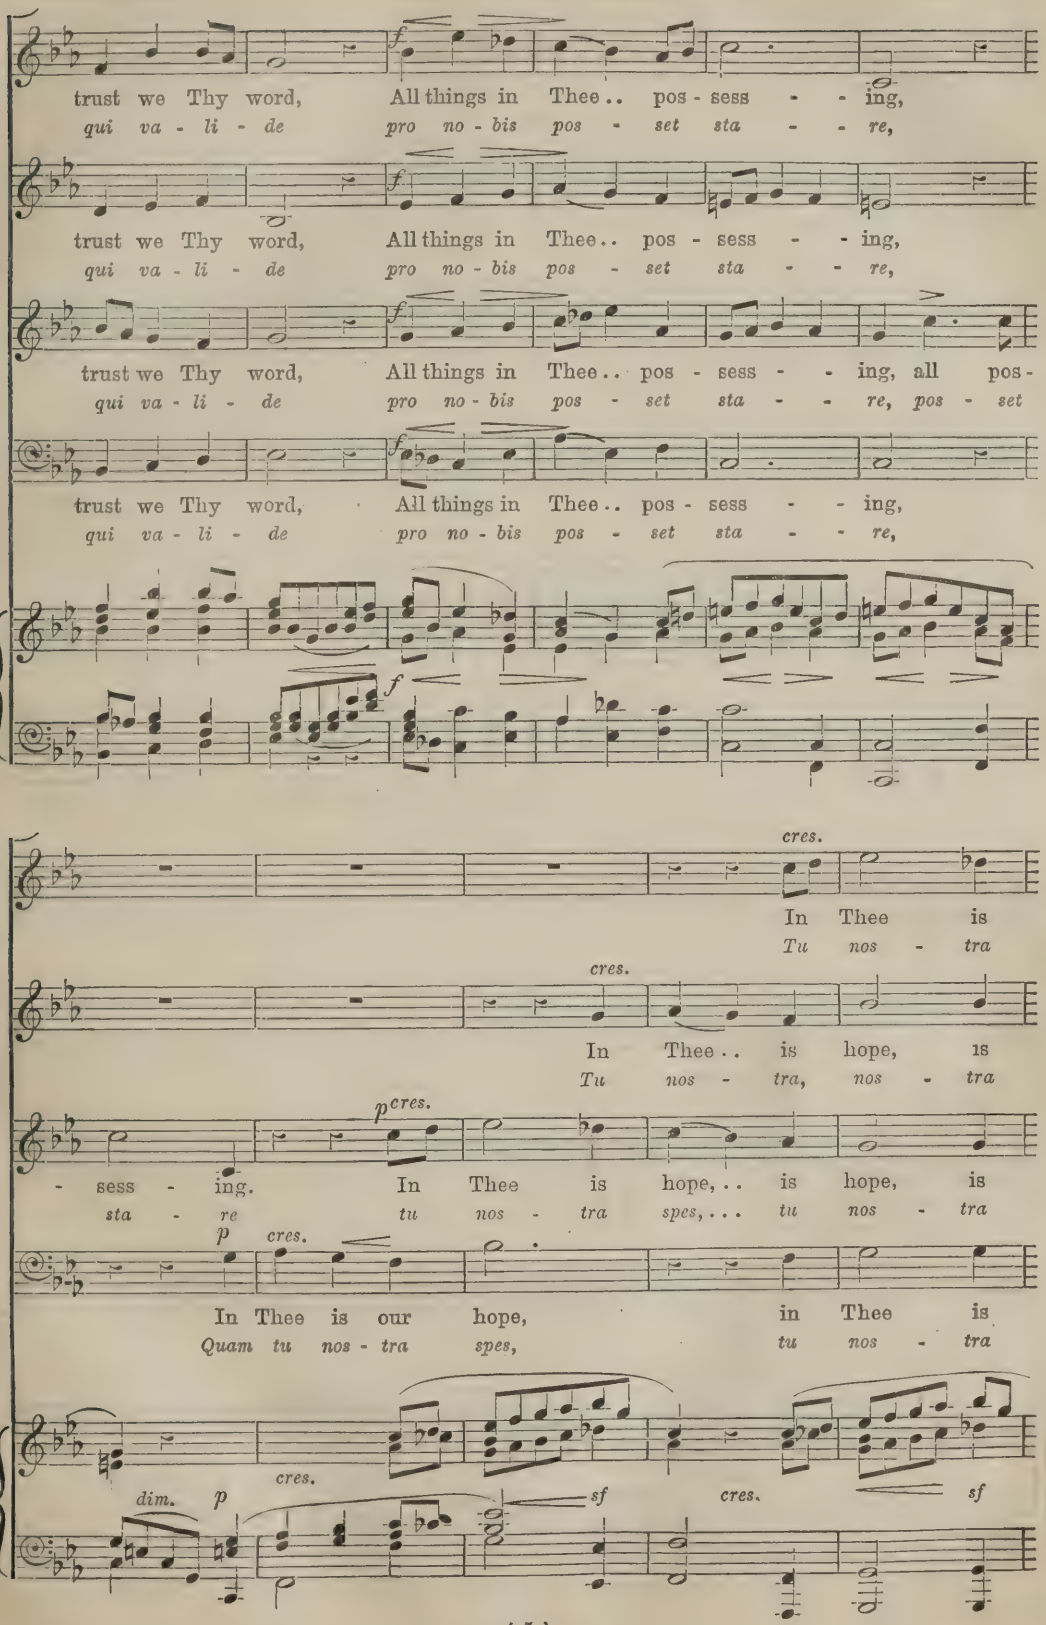
dim.
p
cres.
Source of ev' - ry bless - ing, Fee - ble and frail,
no - bis per - du - ra - re non e - nim est,
dim.
p
cres.
Source of ev' - ry bless - ing, Fee - ble and frail,
no - bis per - du - ra - re non e - nim est,
dim.
p
cres.
Source of ev' - ry bless - ing, Fee - ble and frail,
no - bis per - du - ra - re non e - nim est,
dim.
p
cres.
Source of ev' - ry bless - ing, Fee - ble and frail,
no - bis per - du - ra - re non e - nim est,
dim. p
cres.



trust we Thy word, All things in Thee.. pos - sess - - ing,
qui va - li - de pro no - bis pos - set sta - - re,
trust we Thy word, All things in Thee.. pos - sess - - ing,
qui va - li - de pro no - bis pos - set sta - - re, trust we Thy word, All things in Thee.. pos - sess - - ing, all pos - qui va - li - de pro no - bis pos - set sta - - re, pos - set trust we Thy word, All things in Thee.. pos - sess - - ing, qui va - li - de pro no - bis pos - set sta - - re,
cres.
In Thee is Tu nos - tra
cres.
In Thee.. is hope, is Tu nos - tra, nos - tra
- sess - ing. In Thee is hope,.. is hope, is sta - re tu nos - tra spes,... tu nos - tra
In Thee is our hope, in Thee is Quam tu nos - tra spes, tu nos - tra
dim.
cres. sf
cres. sf

dim.
p
hope and safe - - - ty, in Thee is hope and safe - - -
spes et sa - - - lus, tu nos - - tra spes et sa - - -
hope and safe - - - ty, in Thee is hope and safe - - -
spes et sa - - - lus, tu nos - - tra spes et sa - - - hope and safe - - - ty, in Thee . . . . is hope and spes et sa - - - lus, tu nos - - - - - tra spes et
cres.
hope and safe - - - ty, in Thee . . . is hope and spes et sa - - - lus, tu nos - - - - - tra spes et Celli.
Ped.
*
- ty.
- lus.
safe - - - ty.
sa - - - lus.
pp

than the voice for that purpose. Nearly the whole of the sentiment of the music lies in its melodic phrases, and these, it must be confessed, are happily chosen; above all, when Marthe pleads with her rival, urging that, while Elena is rich and happy, the poor Swiss girl has nothing but love to reconcile her to life. This, however, is characteristic of M. Guiraud, who, avoiding any attempt to be profound, rests satisfied with a judicious employment of the more natural and obvious resources of his art. At the close of the duet Elena hears her brother approaching, and hides in an adjoining room. Immediately after the Duke, come Frédéric, Torteau, and Musaraigne. Strozzi desires to warn Frédéric that, should he persist in his suit, Elena will be compelled to take the veil. This he does in significant language, and retires, leaving the young painter furious with rage and bent upon carrying Elena off that night. But he reckons without the lady, who overhears all, and leaves a note behind her bidding her lover farewell for ever. Frédéric picks the missive up, discovers what has taken place, and goes away in anger, bidding Piccolino find some other home. That home, Marthe resolves, shall be the bed of the Tiber, and, as she meditates thus putting an end to trouble, the orchestra plays the Christmas carol, "Kings of ancient story." Hardly has she left the house, before Frédéric enters, making arrangements for carrying off Elena, while outside a riotous Carnival Chorus bursts forth. Now the end of the story has come. Marthe, rescued from the Tiber, is carried in, and soon Frédéric recognises in the half-drowned girl his victim of the Swiss mountains. Struck with remorse, and touched by her fidelity, all his love revives, and in a brief, passionate solo he pleads for forgiveness, which is gladly accorded; and after the "minstrel boy" has been introduced to the students as Frédéric's wife, the Opera concludes with a portion of the merry chorus previously sung by the masqueraders.

To sum up, let us say that the drama of "Piccolino" is one of strong interest and varied attraction, and that the music, while never great, always pleases, in right of its simple natural melody, its dramatic fitness, and unpretending character. "Piccolino" should be a popular success.

Sechs Lieder für Sopran oder Tenor mit Begleitung des Pianoforte (Op. 12).

Genrebilder. Sechs Klavierstücke (Op. 13).

Quintet für Pianoforte, Violine, Viola, Violoncell, und Contrabass (Op. 16). Componirt von Hermann Goetz. [Leipzig: Kistner.]

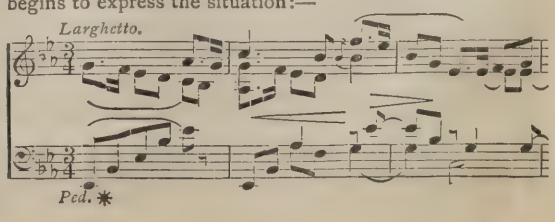
Having regard to the sudden and wide-spread interest taken in this composer since the production of his "Taming of the Shrew" at Drury Lane Theatre, by Herr Carl Meyder, and the performance of his Symphony in F at Madame Viard-Louis' Concerts, we shall be consulting the wishes of our readers if we lay before them some particulars regarding his other works. For this purpose we make no careful selection with a view to set the composer in a particular light, but take such of his later productions that happen to be at hand. The majority of those to be noticed now and hereafter, though the Opus number of the latest is no higher than 17, are unfortunately posthumous, only up to Opus 13 having been published during the lifetime of the unfortunate author. This fact lends to our task a melancholy interest, and makes our perception of Goetz's genius more and more painful as it becomes more and more complete. Every talent discovered is a talent lost; every promise of greatness, a flower nipped in the bud. But we may feel thankful all the same that, though the man has gone and his hopes have perished, something remains as his contribution to our artistic wealth. In music, no more than in any other branch of human enterprise, is any man a necessity. The thing wrought upon endures, though among the workers "one generation passeth away and another cometh;" and happy should he be who leaves an abiding mark of his existence upon the mighty aggregate of the labour of ages.

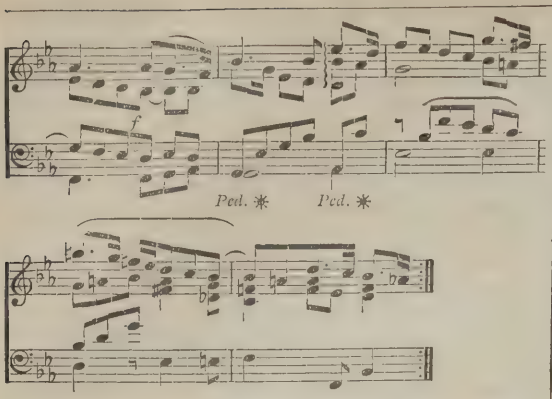
Taking the compositions before us in the order of their publication by Kistner of Leipzig, we come first upon "Six Songs for Soprano or Tenor, with Pianoforte Accompaniment" (Op. 12), dedicated by the composer to "his beloved Laura." The verses here set to music are by various writers, as Richard Pohl, Th. Storm, Julius Wolff, and Albert Trager; nearly all of them being distinguished by a tenderness and depth of sentiment such as we should expect to find in any poetry chosen of Goetz. With this, however, we have not specially to do, and, as regards the music, it is clear that Goetz studied the German lied in its best and most attractive forms, without sacrificing his own individuality. Every bar seems to have been inspired by careful reading of and profound sympathy with the verse. In all cases the one art—the woman, as Wagner would say—follows, and is subordinate to the other—the man; taking such forms as may best express the poet's feeling without reference to any notions of symmetry. The result is entirely beautiful; the more because Goetz has always at command a wealth of appropriate melody, and knows how to make the pianoforte almost as eloquent as the voice. We might illustrate this with copious extracts, but matter of greater "pith and moment" awaits us; and we dismiss these songs, for the present at least, with a hope that an English edition may soon appear. Of their favourable reception in our drawing- and concert-rooms we have not the smallest doubt.

Opus 13 is entitled "Genrebilder: Sechs Klavierstücke," and dedicated to the composer's sister Marie. Each of these pieces, we should note, is headed by a verse of poetry, in the same manner as the Symphony in F. This appears to have been a favourite method with Goetz, who found in the thoughts of others an incentive capable of arousing within him the spirit of composition. Musical authors seek this help more often than is generally supposed, because the fact is not always acknowledged. Haydn, we are told, invariably imagined some story or incident when sitting down to write, and the practice has nowadays so widened its scope that "programme music" is a department in itself, containing, let us add, a good deal of matter pour rire. In the little works now before us, as in his Symphony, Goetz makes no attempt to describe that which, musically speaking, is indescribable, but limits himself to the legitimate task of expressing feelings called up by the sister arts. Ex uno disce omnes—here is the motto of the first of these six pieces:—

Jetz wird sie wohl im Garten gehen,
Der blüht und glüht im Sonnenlicht,
Und in die Ferne wird sie spähen—
Mich aber, ach, mich sieht sie nicht!

In the illustration of lines like these, music, we need not say, is perfectly at home, and few will question that an association of the two arts has charms for a circle of amateurs wider than that affected by abstract music. With reference to the workmanship of the "Genrebilder," we decline to assert that there are no passages adapted to make a purist examiner in harmony angry enough to tear his hair. Goetz shows considerable hardihood in this respect, but we have arrived at an epoch in musical art when all of us consider ourselves entitled to put Beethoven's question, "Who made the rules?" Nowadays, in music, if not in morals, "the end justifies the means," and if a composer can produce a desired effect by flying in the face of law, we are disposed rather to admire his courage than censure his audacity. But the most prominent characteristics of the "Genrebilder" are those which stand so well to the front in Goetz's opera and symphony, intense earnestness, keen feeling, and powerful expression. There is no doubt at all with us that the man was a true poet, gifted with a poet's susceptibility to influences from without, his perception of the beautiful, and ability to transmute and reproduce beauty stamped with the stamp of his own individuality. We could prove this over and over again from the pages before us, but a single passage will speak for all—at any rate, it does so to us. Goetz has in mind a man looking on the scenes of his happy boyhood under the influence of feelings at once tender and melancholy, and this is how the composer begins to express the situation:—





Indefinite as, in its very nature, is the language of music, the foregoing passage may not produce the same effect on all who hear it; but its sweet tenderness well stands for the emotion of one to whom the happy days of "auld lang syne" are recalled. We claim, then, for these unpretending little flowers of art the greatest distinction to which they can aspire—not only modest beauty, but a language.

Turning to concerted chamber-music, let us see how our composer distinguishes himself there. This branch of art is represented among Goetz's posthumous works by a Quintett in C minor for pianoforte, violin, viola, violoncello and double-bass—an important contribution to its repertory, at all events in design and intention. The Quintett begins with a short Andante sostenuto, the opening bars of which (for strings only) at once arrest attention, and, by the way, illustrate the polyphony which is so marked a characteristic of the composer's style. Ending on the dominant seventh chord, the Introduction is followed by an Allegro con fuoco, the development of which strikingly recalls the first movement of the Symphony in one very important respect. We refer to the absence of the discursive episodes with which composers who are not adepts at development eke out their movements. The Allegro in this instance is a model of skill in making the most of carefully chosen themes, while its form is as clear as crystal. A casual glance at the music may, perhaps, dispose one to think that it somewhat lacks variety; but careful inspection dissipates the idea, so ingeniously diversified, and with such nice regard to the effect of slight changes, are the themes worked out. It may be well to cite the principal subjects. The first is simply this:— and the second, this:—

The slow movement is an Andante con moto in A flat, having its chief thematic material in a melody first given out by the violin, to a simple pianoforte accompaniment. The motive in question runs as follows:—

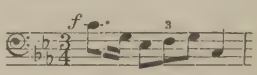
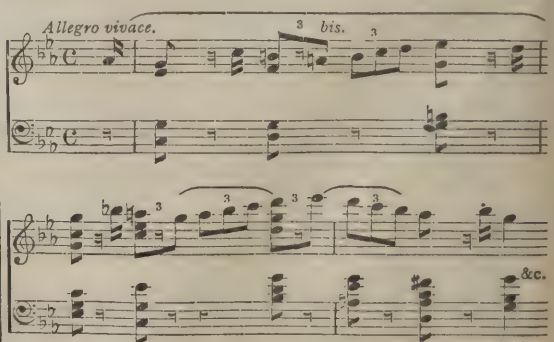
It is then taken up by the violoncello, the violin, as do the violins in the slow movement of the Symphony, continuing with an independent melody of its own. The movement duly exhibits episodes and a second subject, but these are all subordinate to the subject just quoted, Goetz's treatment of which grows highly interesting after it has been heard in extenso from the viola, accompanied in semiquaver arpeggios by the pianoforte. Thus its first section is worked in varied "imitation," and always the interweaving parts are managed with the skill of a true master of polyphonic writing. We may cite the movement, further, as showing with what care Goetz studied the character of each instrument. The pianoforte part is always pianoforte music, while each member of the string family is provided with matter suited to its genius. As a specimen of the young master's part writing, the following may be given—the pianoforte semiquavers are omitted:—

The third movement is an Allegretto (quasi Menuetto) in which a curious effect is produced by the intimate association of a short, energetic phrase, with a suave and graceful theme. Phrase:—



Theme:—

The Trio consists of a simple diatonic melody in C major, first announced by the violoncello and then treated as a canon on the octave by that instrument, and the pianoforte. Altogether the movement is graceful, pleasant and unpretending. Life and energy animate the finale (Allegro vivace) from beginning to end. Mark how, after a few bars of introduction, the pianoforte announces its chief theme:—



The first episode is in the same key, bold and march-like, but the second subject is more noteworthy on account of its treatment, first appearing as a canon on the octave for violin and viola—and then being inverted, also as a canon, by the basses and viola. But Goetz here revels in counterpoint, for after the reappearance of his main theme he treats a portion of it fugally, and in a manner worthy of careful notice on account of its ingenious devices. The temptation to quote liberally is very strong, but enough has been said, we trust, to kindle the reader's interest alike in the composer and his work. We shall take another opportunity of directing attention to the dead master's setting of Psalm 137, his Frühling's Overture, and other important compositions.

Novello's Music Primers. Edited by Dr. Stainer.
Singing, by Alberto Randegger, Professor of Singing at the Royal Academy of Music.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE fact—which appears universally admitted—that it is not necessary to be a public singer in order to secure a high position as a teacher of the art seems to confirm the theory which has been often advocated in these columns, that mere executive proficiency in any branch of music should not be accepted as the only qualification requisite for one who has to form and direct the plan of study for others. But the time has not yet come when the capacity of the instrumental professor to make his pupil play shall be as severely tested as the capacity of the vocal professor to make his pupil sing; and meanwhile, therefore, we must cling to the hopeful sign that a man like Signor Randegger, who is one of the deepest thinkers upon his art, an excellent musician and a successful composer—but who never, as far as we are aware, has sung before an audience—should be regarded as a recognised authority upon vocal training, and be the master of very many of the most favourite singers of the day. It is very true, as the author of the excellent Treatise now before us says, that "no written theories on singing can presume to take the place of oral tuition;" but works of this class—like medical books by our eminent authorities—are most valuable as guides; although we should certainly not recommend any person to attempt either to teach himself or cure himself by their aid. If, however, it were possible for an amateur to glean enough knowledge to become a tolerable singer solely by obeying printed instructions upon the subject, we really believe that his object would be more effectually gained by attentively studying Signor Randegger's Manual than by poring over any other with which we are acquainted. In the first place, on opening the book, we are pleased to find the announcement that it is the purpose of the author to explain the primary rules "in concise and intelligible language, purposely avoiding the use of diagrams and of technical expressions, which would require special scientific knowledge on the part of the reader;" because we are satisfied that, although a thorough acquaintance with the anatomy of the vocal organs is absolutely necessary for the professor, many persons are deterred from the study of the art by those somewhat repulsive illustrations which are so plentifully scattered through many of the works on the subject. The author has very carefully classified, and indicated the compass of, the various voices; and some important hints are given respecting the necessity of exercising great caution in training the delicate vocal organs of young children. The subject of "Resonance connected with the Registers of the Voice" is most ably treated; and it is truly said "the notion that certain sounds come from the chest or from the head must be rejected as absurd," the fact being that "the shape and action of the vocal organs vary according to the pitch of the sound; and in conformity with the different shapes which the vocal organs assume—their different actions, the greater or less pressure of, and the direction given to, the vibrating column of air—the singer experiences peculiar physical sensations, as if the sound were actually generated in the chest, mouth, or head, while in fact these cavities only act respectively as the 'resonance apparatus' of the voice." The systematic arrangement of the preparatory lessons will sufficiently show how carefully and gradually an experienced master trains the voice to produce beauty of tone by the practice of the sustained note, before he proceeds to blend the registers, and should act as a caution to those ambitious amateurs who plunge into songs without the power of even singing a scale correctly. Passing through the numerous studies, which really contain everything essential for the acquirement of pure tone and facile execution, we come to the explanation and examples of the various embellishments. As might be expected, we here get the true definition of the Appoggiatura and Acciaccatura, the real meaning of which two words is most incorrectly stated in many of the elementary musical books which have lately come before us. Regarding the Trillo our author says, "It is one of the most brilliant displays of executive skill in a singer, and should be practised as soon as the student has conquered the difficulties of the Preparatory Exercises." This is quite true, and although few of our modern vocalists use this embellishment, there can be no doubt that the real reason of this is not so much, as is often asserted, that it is an old-world ornament, as that there are but few artists who can perfectly execute it. Some excellent Exercises are given upon the method of practising these ornaments, and also for the acquisition of the Mordente, Gruppetto, Portamento, &c.; the observation with regard to the last named, however, that, although "graceful and effective when sparingly and judiciously applied, its abuse or misemployment becomes most nauseous and offensive, besides giving unmistakable evidence of bad taste in the singer," being one which should be taken to heart by the many who fancy that this effect appeals, on all occasions, with irresistible force to the auditor. The method of singing notes in a smooth and connected manner (no gliding being permitted) is also dwelt upon—Legato vocalisation, it being truly said, forming "the most prominent and valuable attribute of a good singer"—and directions are given for the various degrees of Staccato, with specimens of each for practice. The observations upon Elocution and Declamation are short but important: "No song," it is remarked, "should be attempted without first reading the words aloud, and trying to render them clear and intelligible: 1, by perfect articulation; 2, by a well-defined contrast of the various phrases, accents, and inflections; and, 3, by an exact expression of the author's meaning. Having thus studied the poetical sense of a song, the relation of the music to the words should be analysed." How rarely all these directions are attended to it is almost needless to say; but there can be no question that the neglect of them prevents the possibility of any person becoming more than a singing machine. It is a wholesome indication of the desire to convey instruction upon the various branches of musical art in the best form when we find that so many eminent men have associated themselves with Messrs. Novello as authors of the series of Manuals now so fast increasing; but, in truth, although we are bound to accept this work by Signor Randegger as a "Primer" because it is so termed, the matter is treated so exhaustively that we cannot consider any second work called for. Of course very much could be said upon the purely intellectual portion of the study; but, as we have already indicated, this is a subject the essence of which cannot be successfully conveyed in writing. "Technical and æsthetic principles," says Signor Randegger at the conclusion of his book, "must thenceforward go hand in hand; for the greatest mechanical efficiency would prove cold and lifeless without the animating spirit; whilst no æsthetic beauty could possibly exist apart from a perfect command over technical resources." This we fully admit; and although no more competent person could be found to lay down rules for so important a branch of art than the author of this Manual, he wisely refrains from doing so at any length, feeling no doubt, with us, that whoever desires to be an "æsthetic singer" must employ an "æsthetic master."

Novello's Music Primers. Edited by Dr. Stainer.
Musical Forms, by Ernst Pauer.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE title of this work gives at once a fair notion of the object it has in view, namely, to become a handy-book of reference as to the shape and character of the various compositions which form the literature of music. No one could probably have been found more capable of producing such a book than Mr. Pauer. He has as it were one foot in England and the other in the very home of "form in music"—Germany. As a domiciled Englishman he is fully acquainted with all that has been said on the subject by our best thinkers; as a German by birth, he has at his finger-ends all the most valuable gleanings of contemporary Teutonic labour. But it would be but poor praise to say that Mr. Pauer has here given us only a catalogue of musical forms. He has done more than this; for in every possible case much evident care has been bestowed on the elucidation of difficult questions, and minute details have been given wherever careful reading has been able to unearth them. The first division of the book consists of a succinct but most useful account of form, beginning with its simplest elements, and proceeding onward to its more complicated development. We specially mention this as a merit, because there is a great tendency to limit the use of the word "form," even in some very influential quarters, to the general outline of an extended work. The author then traces the growth of that early ingenuity which, germinating in counterpoint, reached its full growth in the noble Fugue. After this the form of vocal pieces is described under their proper names, separated into sacred and secular divisions. A certain number of compositions which seem to belong without many distinctive features to either or both of these branches, are described as if on neutral ground. Under the group of secular vocal forms much information will be found which will be specially valued by those who have not the time to dip into foreign books. The article "Opera," which extends from page 94 to page 105, and closes with a most useful chronological table of composers of operas, is of marked interest. The early part of that portion of the work devoted to instrumental music contains useful explanations of several words and titles of pieces frequently talked of, but about the nature of which many persons are lamentably ignorant. Under the head "Cyclical Forms" Mr. Pauer has given a most excellent account of Sonata-form, appending tables showing the position and key of the motifs in several standard works, also an admirable sketch of the framework of the first movements of Beethoven's "Waldstein" Sonata (Op. 53, in C), which young students will find most instructive. The short notice of Overture form is also well worth study, as giving a trustworthy account of the historical growth of the form. Dance tunes of the old type are fully explained, and the verbal explanation well illustrated by a few bars of music showing the rhythm of each form. On the whole this Primer will, we believe, be found replete with valuable facts. It would of course be easy to say that some of the articles are too concise, but on the other hand it must undoubtedly have been a task of no small difficulty to the author to keep the book within reasonable limits as to size and price. That Mr. Pauer has done his task thoroughly well cannot be doubted, and most young musicians will be glad to reap the benefit of his highly trained intellect and extensive reading.

Novello's Music Primers. Edited by Dr. Stainer.
Plain-Song, by the Rev. Thomas Helmore.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The author of this capital book has devoted so much time and energy to the resuscitation of ancient music in this country that he is worthily considered a sort of apostle of ancient church-song. His reputation for complete mastery of his subject will be fully maintained by this work, which first gives the history of the growth of plain-song and the signs used for the purpose of representing it to the eye, and is then devoted to useful practical instruction. We can confidently assert that the book will be found both useful and interesting not only to those who feel in duty bound as churchmen to incorporate church-song into church-services, but also to those who have a hazy notion that plain-song is something much to be respected for its antiquity, although sometimes rather ugly. The latter class, it is to be feared, is still very large; but there is no longer any excuse for ignorance on the subject when so much instruction in such an interesting shape can be thus easily and cheaply obtained.

A Morning and Evening Service, consisting of Te Deum, Jubilate Deo, Cantate Domino, and Deus Misereatur. Set to music for a Double Choir, and the Organ Part arranged from the Orchestral Score by Sir Robert P. Stewart, Mus. Doc. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

We have no hesitation in saying that with an adequate chorus and band this Service would produce a very magnificent effect, so skilfully is it conceived and wrought; but, excepting at choral festivals, we fear only our largest and best choirs could perform it with anything like credit to themselves or to the talented composer. Of the several numbers composing this work, we must be allowed to single out the Cantate Domino and the Deus Misereatur as possessing great poetic beauty, though probably the Te Deum, with its massive harmony and antiphonal phrases, displays the composer as a master of the intricacies of what may be called the higher forms of musical learning.

English Organ Music, chiefly for Church Use. Published monthly, under the direction of the Editor of the Musical Standard. [W. Reeves.]

This publication should be known to all organists and others who desire to encourage this branch of English musical literature—Church organ music—which until lately has been greatly neglected. If all the gentlemen whose names are to be found in the prospectus contribute to this work, there can be no doubt whatever that it will be both very valuable and useful. We sincerely regret that the music should be printed in such an exceedingly microscopic style. Notes of this size can scarcely be distinct enough to make reading at sight an act either of certainty or pleasure.

The last Autumn Flower. Song. Words by Fides. Music by Ancona. [J. B. Cramer and Co.]

Were it generally understood that music is a science, and that its rules, as in other sciences, must be comprehended before even amateurs can be justified in giving forth their compositions to the world, we should cease to be inundated by such songs as "Ancona" has forwarded to us, and relieved from the unpleasant duty of saying what should have been said to the composer before the work was engraved. We can well understand how any person with a love of melody, but unskilled in the simplest laws of rhythm, can pick out the voice-part of the song before us; but a few weeks' study of any work upon Harmony would convince her (for we presume that "Ancona" is a lady) that, apart from putting false basses to her melody, there are scarcely two consecutive chords correctly written. Without dwelling upon the number of dominant sevenths rising, and discords tumbling down to notes with which they have no affinity, let us direct attention to the harmonies of the four bars of symphony in E flat minor (page 6), and to the bass notes A, B, rising with the voice (bars 1 and 2, page 7), in justification of our remarks, and with a kindly wish that some professor, or at least competent musical friend, may be consulted whenever "Ancona" is again desirous of publishing.

Auld Robin Gray; as originally composed about the year 1770, by the Rev. William Leeves.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This melody has often been described as of Scottish origin; but the edition now before us—issued by Mrs. Moon, of Brighton, the granddaughter of the composer, the Rev. William Leeves—sets the matter at rest. The words were given to Mr. Leeves, when a young officer in the Foot Guards, by the Hon. Mrs. Byron, who received them from Lady Ann Lindsay; and it is here published with the original recitative. Mr. Leeves—who afterwards became Rector of Wrington, in Somerset, where he died in 1828, aged eighty—accompanied the air merely with bass notes; but the pianoforte part in this edition is mainly the same as that appearing in "Wilson's Songs of Scotland." Generally speaking, this is sufficiently sympathetic with the air; but we should recommend accompanists to raise the hand, or at least treat the chord very tenderly, on the third crotchet (bar 14, p. 2), lest the effect of the acciaccatura, A, should be marred. We sincerely hope that the present version of "Auld Robin Gray," the genuineness of which is attested on authority not to be disputed, will increase the popularity of a ballad which, for the purity of the words as well as the beauty of the music, stands almost unrivalled.

FOREIGN NOTES.

MADAME ADELINA PATTI has left Berlin, the scene of her latest triumphs, amidst the demonstrations of regret on the part of the lovers of the bel canto, and to the apparent relief of the adherents to the modern German school, in whose creed diva-worship is one of the abuses branded with an anathema. Herr Ferdinand Gumbert, the able critic of the Neue Berliner Musik Zeitung, in a farewell notice dedicated to the gifted vocalist, whom he styles "the greatest vocal artist of our time," improves his opportunity by pointing out some of the reasons for the existing scarcity of native prime donne, and the superabundance on the other hand of second and third-rate singers. Want of discretion on the part of young candidates for the stage in choosing the profession, the critic thinks, is not the least important of the causes which have led to these results, adding in conclusion: "It is high time the fact should be recognised that in order to become a good operatic singer five qualities are indispensable, namely: a sufficiently powerful voice, vocal talent, musical talent, dramatic feeling, histrionic talent. Of course, all the young ladies who nowadays enter upon a stage career possess these qualities—in their own estimation—and it is the fault of their teacher if they do not speedily attain a position of eminence. As if he could create a voice, talent, and diligent application in his pupils, when among fifty of their number there is frequently scarcely one having a true calling for the profession. And have not the most famous professors of the art presented the world with very indifferent singers indeed? Again, have not great vocalists, with but scanty instruction, solely by untiring study and eager and intelligent listening, attained to a high position in their art?" It may be said that there is nothing new in the above remarks of the Berlin critic; but they convey at least some wholesome truths which, if commonplace, are, for that very reason perhaps, but too frequently lost sight of amidst the vociferous applause with which we greet many a prima donna of the hour whose short-lived fame is the result merely of the fascinating influence of a sympathetic voice.

Madame Adelina Patti and Signor Nicolini, after giving a series of concerts in Leipzig, Dresden, and other German towns before crowded audiences, have proceeded to Italy to fulfil their engagements in that country.

Glinka's "The Life for the Czar" has recently been performed for the first time at Hanover, under the direction of Dr. Hans von Bülow, with a German translation of the libretto. The interesting work of the Russian composer was very successful, and has been several times reproduced since. Owing to the exertions of the indefatigable conductor of the Hanoverian orchestra the revival may also shortly be expected of Hector Berlioz's Opera "Benvenuto Cellini," which, since its first performance some years ago at Weimar, has not been taken up by any other German operatic establishment.

Herr Anton Rubinstein is just now at Berlin, where he has appeared at several concert performances, the chief object of his stay at the Prussian capital being however to direct the preparations now being made for the mise-en-scène of his Opera "Feramors," the first representation of which at the Royal Opera will shortly take place. The work, it will be remembered, was brought out not long ago at Königsberg, under the direction of the composer, achieving a moderate success.

Herr Goldschmidt's Oratorio "Die Sieben Todsünden" is to be performed this month at Hanover, under the direction of Herr Emil Paur. The German press refers to the work of the young composer in terms of the highest eulogium, while its author is being looked upon as one of the most promising representatives of the "new German" school.

An interesting performance of Beethoven's "Fidelio" took place on the 7th ult., at the Court Theatre of Sondershausen, a specialty on this occasion being the production during the evening of the four overtures written by the composer for his only operatic work.

The following works will form part of the programme of this year's Music Festival of the Lower Rhine, to be held about Whitsuntide at Aix-la-Chapelle, viz.: Beethoven's "Missa solemnis," Schubert's C major Symphony, Max Bruch's latest work, "The Lay of the Bell," and Schumann's Symphony in B flat major.

The representation of the entire Tetralogy, "Der Ring des Nibelungen," now being held at the Leipzig Stadt Theater, having attracted the attention of the King of Saxony, that art-loving monarch has recently paid a visit to the town in order to be present at the performance of a selection from the work in question, given by his special desire, and consisting of the opening and concluding scenes from "Rheingold," and the third act from "Götterdämmerung." The performance is said to have been a most brilliant one.

Herr Wagner's already so-much-talked-of opera-drama, "Parsifal," is announced to be completed, and the pianoforte arrangement of the score, from the pen of Herr Kellermann, will shortly be published. It may be added that the Society of Patrons of the Bayreuth undertaking, upon whom the worthy representation of the new work during the coming year will devolve, now possesses some two hundred branches extending far beyond the limits of fatherland, and whose members are steadily increasing in number.

At the eleventh concert of the Leipzig Gewandhaus Herr Joachim created much enthusiasm by playing a new violin concerto composed expressly for him by Herr J. Brahms. The work, which exists as yet in manuscript only, is said to be written in classical style, clear and ingenious, while presenting manifold difficulties to the executant.

Herr Ignaz Brüll, the composer of "The Golden Cross," is understood to be engaged upon the composition of a new operatic work.

Madame Pauline Lucca, whose predilection for the lyrical stage is apparently reviving, will, it is stated, shortly assume two new characters at the Imperial Opera of Vienna, viz., that of Carmen in Bizet's Opera and of Elsa in "Lohengrin." The announcement has, it need scarcely be said, greatly excited the curiosity of the Viennese public.

Dr. von Bülow has already found an imitator in his remarkable effort of memory recently displayed in this country. On the occasion of the anniversary of the death of Beethoven (December 16), the Viennese pianist, Herr Bonawitz, played in succession, from memory only, the composer's last five pianoforte Sonatas, to the entire satisfaction of his audience.

The second part of Herr Wagner's Tetralogy, "Die Walküre," is shortly to be performed at Pesth, with the text translated into Hungarian by Herr Csisky. The same composer's Opera "Rienzi" was to have been performed for the first time last month at St. Petersburg in the Russian language.

At Paris, the so-called Festival-Concerts now being held at the Hippodrome, to which reference has already been made in our last number, continue to be a great success. The acoustic properties of the monster hall are described as absolutely perfect, and the fact that a building constructed of iron and glass, and intended originally for the exhibition of acrobatic and similar non-musical performances, should by mere chance have been found to possess these qualities in such a high degree, has set Parisian architects thinking. The discovery is the more noteworthy since the acoustic arrangements of the grand national concert hall of the Trocadéro, erected at so much expense, has been found to be anything but perfect.

A new Opera entitled "La Reine Berthe," from the pen of M. Victorin Joncières, was recently performed at the Grand-Opéra, but failed to create much attention. The new production has been somewhat severely handled by the French musical press. M. Massenet has, at the request of the Italian publishing firm, Ricordi, undertaken to write a grand Italian Opera entitled "Erodiade," the libretto of which is from the pen of Signor Zanardini. The Salle Ventadour, devoted during many years to the performance of opera, was definitely closed some weeks ago, and will in all probability be converted into a banking establishment. (!) Efforts are, however, being made on the part of the shareholders to avert such an eventuality, and to preserve to the building its original raison d'être.

A project for the enlargement of the building of the Paris Conservatoire is just now awaiting the sanction of the French Government, the existing locality being considered insufficient to meet the requirements of the growing institution. The estimated cost of the proposed extension is eight million francs.

The French Minister of Fine Arts has granted the sum of 20,000 francs to the directors of the Lyons Opera towards defraying the expenses of that establishment in placing on the stage M. Saint-Saëns's Opera "Etienne Marcel," the first performance of which took place on the 18th ult. under the personal direction of the composer.

A series of letters by Hector Berlioz have just been published at Paris under the title of Correspondance inédité de Berlioz, edited by M. Daniel Bernard. Among other matters of interest, the letters throw a new light upon the position held by the composer with regard to Richard Wagner and the "music of the future."

During one of the Concerts Populaires recently held at the French capital, the director, M. Pasdeloup, permitted—incredibile dictu—the performance on the part of the pianist, Mr. Ritter, and the full complement of orchestral violins, of the theme with variations in Beethoven's "Kreutzer-Sonata."

The "Villa Rossini," which since the decease of the composer's widow has again become the property of the City of Paris, is being offered for sale at the nominal price of 350,000 francs.

The Apollo Theatre at Rome has reopened with a performance of Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," on which occasion a young singer, Mdlle. de Vere, made a highly successful début in the rôle of Inés. The Theatre La Scala, of Milan, likewise commenced a new season of operatic performances on December 26: Verdi's "Don Carlos," Massenet's "Le Roi de Lahore," Gomes' "Maria Tudor," and Scuteri's "Dolores," are among the works included in the répertoire.

It is stated in Le Ménestrel that M. Brassin, the eminent pianist and professor of the Brussels Conservatoire, has been prevailed upon to accept a similar post at St. Petersburg. M. Brassin has been connected with the Belgian establishment for more that ten years.

A comic Opera, written for the music publisher, Sonzogno, by the Maestro Usiglio, will be performed during the present season at the Royal Opera at Madrid.

Heinrich Proch, the Viennese capellmeister and well-known composer of favourite songs, died at the Austrian capital on December 18, at the age of seventy. Proch, who was also much esteemed as a teacher of singing, numbered among his pupils Mdlle. Tietjens and Frau Materna, the interpreter of the character of Brünnhilde at the Bayreuth Festspiele.

The death is also announced of Charles Soullier, littérateur and musician, the translator of the libretti of several operas by Weber and Rossini, and the author of a "Dictionnaire de Musique." The deceased was eighty-one years of age.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Concert Populaire (December 22): Symphony, "In the Forest" (Raff); Prelude (Paladilhe); Overture, "Fingal" (Mendelssohn); Pianoforte Concerto in C minor (Beethoven); Air de Ballet from "Philémon et Baucis" (Gounod). Châtelet Concert (December 22): "Le Tasse," symphonie dramatique (B. Godard). Concert Populaire (December 29): Queen's Symphony (Haydn); "Sadko," légende populaire russe (Rimsky-Korsakoff); Third Violin Concerto (Bruch); Septett (Beethoven); Overture, "Carnaval romain" (Berlioz). Concert du Conservatoire (January 5): "Roméo et Juliette," symphonie dramatique (Berlioz); Theme with variations from Septett (Beethoven); Overture, "Der Freischütz" (Weber). Concert Populaire (January 5): "Judith," lyrical drama in three parts (Charles Lefebvre). Second Festival Concert at the Hippodrome (January 9): Overture, "La Muette" (Auber); Hymne à la France (Berlioz); Fragment from "Dimitri" (Joncières); Scene from "Armide" (Gluck); Suite d'Orchestre from "Sylvia" (Léo Delibes); Prelude to "La Reine de Berthe" (Joncières); Third Act from "Le Roi de Lahore" (Massenet); Fragments from "L'Africaine" (Meyerbeer); Finale of Second Act from "Guillaume Tell" (Rossini); Hallelujah from "Messiah" (Handel). Concert du Conservatoire (January 19): Pastoral Symphony (Beethoven); Fragments from Third Act of "Euryanthe" (Weber); Introduction and Chorus from "Mount of Olives" (Beethoven). Concert Populaire (January 19): Symphony in D minor (Schumann); Largo (Handel); Overture "Cid" (Brink); Theme with variations from Serenade (Beethoven); Andante and Finale from Symphony No. 29 (Haydn). Châtelet Concert (January 19): Overture "Carnaval romain" (Berlioz); "Sapho" tableau antique (Lacombe); "Phaëton" poême symphonique (Saint-Saëns); Third part of "Le Tasse" (B. Godard).

Leipzig.—Gewandhaus Concert (January 1): Overture (J. Lachner); Air from "Belmont and Constanze" (Mozart); Manuscript Concerto for Violin (Brahms); Notturno and Mazurka (Chopin); Chaconne for Violin (Bach); Symphony, A major (Beethoven). Euterpe Concert (January 7): Festival Overture (Reinecke); Concerto for Violoncello (Saint-Saëns); Soli for Violoncello (Bach and Chopin); Symphony, C major (Schumann). Gewandhaus Concert (January 9): Overture, "Anacreon;" Arioso from "Elijah" (Mendelssohn); Symphony, C major (Mozart); Vocal Soli. Gewandhaus Concert (January 16): Overture "Wikingerfahrt" (Bohlmann); Seventh Violin Concerto (Spohr); Variations for Violin (Rode); Romance and Scherzo from Second Violin Suite (Ries); Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven).

Berlin.—Concert of the Symphoniekapelle (December 21): Symphony, D minor (Spohr); Overture, "Ali Baba" (Cherubini); Symphony, A major (Mendelssohn); Overture, "Oberon" (Weber). Bilse Concert (December 21): Overture, "Meeresstille" (Mendelssohn); March, B minor (Schubert-Liszt); Symphony (Radecke); Overture, "Freischütz" (Weber). Bilse Concert (December 28): Overture, "Sakuntala" (Goldmarck); "Danse macabre" (Saint-Saëns); Rhapsody, D major (Liszt); Pastoral Symphony (Beethoven); Hungarian Dances (Brahms); Funeral March from "Götterdämmerung" (Wagner). Symphoniekapelle Concert (January 2): Symphony, "Ocean" (Rubinstein); Adagio from Clarinet Quintet (Mozart); Overture, "Coriolanus," and Symphony, B flat major (Beethoven). Concert of the Stern'sche Gesangverein (January 17): "The Lay of the Bell," Cantata (Bruch). Soirée of Dr. von Bülow, for the benefit of the Bayreuth Fund (January 22): Fantasia, C major (Schumann); Variations, in E flat major, with Fugue (Beethoven); Six Pianoforte pieces (Chopin); Capriccio, Op. 5 (Mendelssohn); Impromptu (Schubert).

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE EDITION NUISANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—If the edition fabricators are to have their own way, a time will come soon when it will be impossible to get a piece by any of the great masters such as it was written by them. It would require quite a long article to point out all the havoc already committed with Mozart's and Beethoven's works. The edition-makers have a special turn now at Bach. One of the worst examples which I have seen lately is the Chromatic Fantasia (published at Bote and Bock's, Berlin, and "edited" by Dr. H. von Bülow). This gentleman says in a preface that he has doubled passages and strengthened chords in order to heighten the colour! Mr. v. Bülow, not satisfied with putting in octave passages and altering the Fantasia in the style of modern productions, has also taken liberties with the fugue; for instance, writing passages in sixths where Bach has single notes, &c. Quite apart from the want of respect for author's rights, every student of fugue should know that all the parts ought not to go on moving the whole time with the monotony of a steam-engine. If ever there was a man who knew anything about fugues it was certainly the venerable Sebastian; and putting extra parts into his works, therefore, cannot but be regarded as an unwarrantable liberty. What is wanted now is a firm which shall provide unadulterated works of the classics. Surely such a firm ought to be found in England, where good music is so much talked about, and where so much of it is played. Let those who do not see the importance of the question, and often cannot understand it, imagine an antique Roman or Greek statue of the glorious period of sculpture dressed up in modern costume, and they will have an idea what the edition nuisance has done in certain quarters for the so-called advancement of art.

I am, sir, yours obediently,

January 6, 1879. ALLEGRO.

P.S.—I add a few bars of the spurious "Fantasia Chromatica" as a specimen:—

FANTASIA. BACH (original).

BÜLOW'S EDITION.

BACH (original).

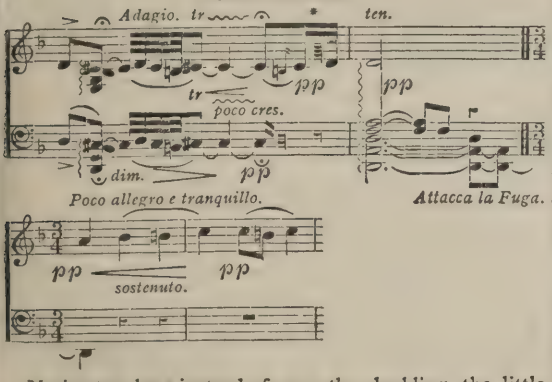
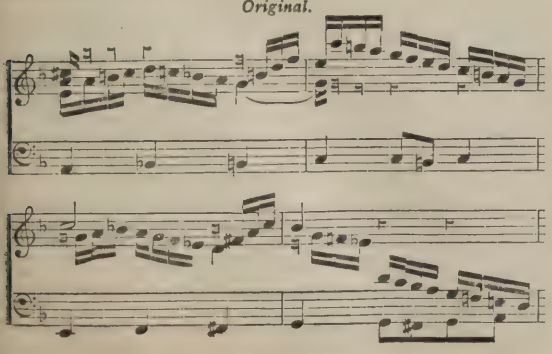
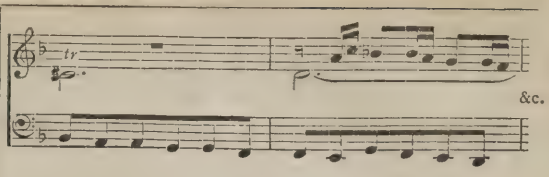
BÜLOW'S EDITION.



Notice two bars instead of one, the doubling, the little aerial comical jump at *, and bringing over the bass D to the fugue; whereas in the original the A at § is not written as fifth from D.

Original.





BÜLOW'S EDITION.

Observe staccato passages in sixths and thirds in bars two and four; in bar five he destroys the original part-writing by putting a rest and a note, A, which has no business there.

SIGNATURE OF MINOR KEYS AND NOTATION OF THE GERMAN SIXTH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—While agreeing with Dr. Gilbert that a better signature for minor keys is desirable, I confess that I see little chance of any such being generally adopted until some agreement is come to as to the correlation of the two modes—a subject on which different opinions are maintained with almost equal plausibility.

Without obtruding my own notions on this matter, I venture to make a suggestion which interferes with no prejudices, and has the advantage of being already more or less in practical use. The proposal is simply that music in a minor key should be noted with the signature of the tonic instead of the relative major, the necessary accidentals being inserted as required.

I avail myself of this opportunity to put in a word on another subject referred to in a notice of a song by Sir R. Stewart that appeared in your last number. Objection is there taken to an unusual way of noting the "German" sixth, which I must say seems to me perfectly justifiable.

When the dominant $\frac{6}{4}$ follows this chord, the anomaly of the rising flat strikes most young harmonists, and has always seemed to me unnecessary. I cannot say that I myself have ever ventured to run counter to the usual practice, but I have seen it done more than once, and can discover no sound objection to the innovation.

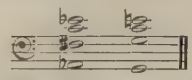
If the progression—be correct, then the chromatic alteration—would seem to be equally correct, and I do not see why it may not be used instead of—



This unusual notation of an old progression shows also, in my opinion (and the books notwithstanding), that the interval of a fourth, like other concords, may appear in four states: (1) Minor (or perfect), (2) Diminished, (3) Major (the Tritone), and (4) Augmented (as above).

The term "augmented" is clearly erroneous when applied to the Tritone, and is properly falling into disuse. But I regret to observe in some recent treatises an attempt to still further complicate our musical nomenclature by calling the lesser of the two diatonic fourths (hitherto known as the "perfect" fourth, whatever that may mean) the major fourth, thus directly contradicting the etymology of the word.

I am, &c.,

Dover, January 9, 1879. C. W.

["C. W." appears anxious to preserve the etymology of words, but not of chords. Sir Robert Stewart has forwarded us a very sensible letter admitting that the notation we suggest is correct, but that he has written F♯ instead of G♭ for the sake of ease in reading. "C. W.'s" notion that in the example he gives D♮ (which is in the chord) can be altered at will to D♯ (which is not in the chord) is certainly a concession to the ignorance of "young harmonists" which we should be sorry to see extensively followed.—The writer of the review on Sir R. Stewart's Song.]

"THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Your correspondent, "A Lover of Music," has evidently bestowed considerable thought on the subject on which he writes, and he is perfectly right in saying that an artist's aim is "to express a particular idea by means of a particular form united to a particular material." This is a most true account of the synthetical process by means of which an artist or composer is enabled to present a work of art to the world. But "A Lover of Music" forgets that the analytical study of a work of art must necessarily go through the reverse process. Thus, when listening to a piece of music (unassisted, of course, by an explanatory programme or descriptive title) it is first discovered that the material used is sound; next, that it is moulded into a particular form; lastly, that it is the outcome of a particular idea. Mr. Pauer is, therefore, perfectly right in giving this last order of sequence as an analyst; while "A Lover of Music" is equally correct in saying that a composer as a synthesist proceeds from the idea to the formal expression of the idea in a material.

I am, yours faithfully,

J. STAINER.

THE MENDELSSOHN SCHOLARSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Will you permit me a little space to correct an error that appears in the MUSICAL TIMES of January, in calling attention to the vacancy that has now occurred in the Mendelssohn Scholarship?

In the notice referred to, it is mentioned that Mr. Shakespeare was the second elected to the Scholarship. I think you will find on inquiry that Mr. Shakespeare succeeded me, and he was therefore the third, as I was elected in January, 1865, and continued to hold the Scholarship for three years.

I am, sir, yours faithfully,

C. SWINNERTON HEAP, Mus. Doc., Cantab.

Clarendon Road, Birmingham.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

M. M.—Mozart's "Maurerische Trauermusik" is published by J. André, Offenbach, but can be obtained in London.

ORGANIST.—Apply to the Secretary, at the College, 41, Queen Square, W.C.

CARILLON.—The author of the tune "Adeste fideles" was John Reading.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

BABBACOMBE, TORQUAY.—On Tuesday the 7th ult., a Miscellaneous Concert was given by the members of the Choral Union. The part-songs were admirably sung, under the conductorship of Mr. Claude R. Fowles. The vocalists were Mrs. Hewett, Miss Turner, and Mr. Pridham. Two violin solos were well played by Mr. Sparke, of Torquay. Miss Rivington acted as accompanist, assisted by Mr. Fowles and Mr. Turner.

BIRKENHEAD.—At the third Subscription Concert the instrumentalists were Mr. Charles Hallé, Madame Norman-Neruda, and Franz Neruda. The vocalist was M. Theo. Marzials, who was heard for the first time at these concerts. This gentleman possesses a baritone voice of unusually fine quality, which showed to great advantage in songs by Scarlatti, Gounod, Schumann, &c. &c.

BIRMINGHAM.—The usual annual performance of the Messiah, by the Festival Choral Society, took place in the Town Hall on Thursday, the 26th Dec. The vocal soloists were Mrs. Osgood, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Lander, and Mr. Bywater. Mr. T. Harper was principal trumpet, and Mr. Stimpson, Organist. Mr. Stockley conducted with his accustomed ability.——The Philharmonic Union gave a Concert on Friday evening, Dec. 27, which was of more than usual interest, as affording local amateurs an opportunity of hearing portions of Bach's Christmas Oratorio, of which the first two parts were given. There was an excellent band, and the accompaniments were generally well executed; the Pastoral Symphony being listened to with great attention. The soloists were Miss Mary Davies, who made an excellent first appearance in Birmingham, Miss Annie Butterworth, Miss E. Bailey, Mr. Welch, and Mr. Blower. The second part of the programme contained well-known airs for the vocal principals: a new song by the Conductor, "Lead, kindly light," given with orchestral accompaniment, well sung by Miss Butterworth, and warmly applauded; a violin concerto (De Beriot), Op. 70, capitally played by Mr. F. Ward; and the Symphony of the Lobgesang (Mendelssohn), for the band. Mr. G. I. Halford accompanied the recitatives in the Oratorio on the harmonium, and Mr. Robinson was very efficient in the difficult trumpet part in the same work. Dr. Heap conducted. ——The third of a series of Concerts, in aid of St. Barnabas' Schools, was given in the large room on Monday, the 13th ult. Miss Jessie Percivall afforded much pleasure by her brilliant pianoforte playing. Two trios for piano and strings, by Mas and Haydn, were well rendered by a party of amateurs. The vocalists were Miss Rainsford, Fräulein Weinert, Mr. Walters, Mr. Randell, and Mr. Matthieson. The Concert was under the direction of Mr. S. S. Stratton. There was a large attendance, and the various performances were warmly applauded.

BRADFORD.—A vocal and instrumental Concert took place on the 6th ult. at the Lecture Hall of the Church Institute, the proceeds being devoted to the choir fund of Christ Church. The programme included the Military Symphony (Haydn) and the Overtures to Masaniello (Auber) and Il Barbiere di Siviglia (Rossini), which were ably performed by the Philharmonic Society, Mr. Loaring, F.C.O., conducting with great ability. Several glees were well sung by the church choir, and Miss Cater contributed two songs: "Laura," by Rastrelli, and "Evening song," by Blumenthal. The other soloists were Mr. W. Golden, Mr. T. A. Duckitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Wild. Mr. F. Walker played the accompaniments. There was a fair attendance.

BRIGHTON.—A Testimonial was recently presented to Mr. Alfred King, Organist of St. Peter's Parish Church, formerly Organist at the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, by a few of his friends in the choir. The testimonial consisted of a handsome black marble clock, surmounted by an elegant bronze, supplied by Messrs. Lewis and Sons, of the King's Road. On a gilded metal plate, let into the marble, is the following inscription: "Presented to Alfred King, Esq., Organist at St. Michael's Church, Brighton, 1865-1877, by a few past and present members of the choir."

BRISTOL.—On Saturday the 11th ult., a series of Popular Concerts was commenced in the New Broadmead Rooms, under the direction of Mr. A. Whitaker. A band of about twenty performers, led by Mr. J. O. Brooke, performed a selection of popular music, including the overture to Masaniello. Miss Kate Hayes and Mr. H. J. Dyer were the vocalists.

Cardiff.—The members of the Llandaff Madrigal Society gave their second public performance at the Assembly Rooms of the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening the 15th ult., when there was a large and fashionable attendance. Mr. C. L. Williams, the Organist of Llandaff Cathedral, conducted, and Colonel Hill presided. The Llandaff choir was reinforced by contingents from the Bristol, Hereford, Gloucester, and Worcester Cathedral choirs. The programme was selected from the works of Mendelssohn, Pearsall, Walmisley, Horsley, Leslie, Saville, Cooke, Fleming, Smart, Macfarren, Benet, Stevens, Battishill, Ford and Barnby. The most spirited performance of the evening was Pearsall's "Who shall win my lady fair," which was sung with a hearty good-will, and repeated by general desire. The other encores were for Macfarren's "O gentle summer rain," sung with good emphasis; Fleming's "Integer vitæ," in which the efficiency of the choir was most strikingly exemplified; and Mendelssohn's "When the west with evening glows."

Cheltenham.—The second Subscription Concert of Mr. J. A. Matthews's Choral Society for the season took place on the 21st ult., in the Winter Garden. There was a large and fashionable audience. The programme consisted of the Oratorio The Messiah. The principal vocalists were Madame Suter and Miss Julia Jones (soprano), Miss Marion Severn (alto), Mr. Kenningham and Mr. Twinning (tenors), and Mr. Cecil Tovey (bass). The number of vocalists and instrumentalists had been considerably increased for the occasion, the orchestra seating some 220 performers. The band was led by Mr. E. G. Woodward. The trumpet solos were taken by Mr. T. Harper, and Mr. J. A. Matthews conducted. The Concert was an entire success.

Chepstow.—Mr. T. Wainwright's Choral Class gave its first Concert for the season on the 2nd ult., when Sir Sterndale Bennett's Cantata, the May Queen, and a miscellaneous selection were performed.

Chertsey.—On the reassembling of Mr. Frederick Monk's Choir on the 20th ult., the members presented their Conductor with a handsome electro-plated cruet-stand, with an address, as a wedding present. Mr. Monk has also received from the choirmen of St. Mary's Church, Byfleet (of which church he is Organist and Choirmaster), a folio copy of "Hymns Ancient and Modern," and from the Rev. N. J. Spicer, Rector of Byfleet, a handsome Bible, on the occasion of his marriage.

Christchurch, New Zealand.—The Choral Society connected with S. Michael's (the cathedral church of this city) gave a farewell Concert to its musical director, Mr. Robert Parker, on October 9. The programme included Barnett's Cantata, Paradise and the Peri, and a miscellaneous selection, which comprised, amongst other items, Brahms's Hungarian Dances (for four hands), Ebenezer Prout's arrangement of William Tell (for harmonium and piano), Gade's Cantata, Spring's Message, Handel's "Haste thee, nymph," and an unaccompanied quartett, "The Rainy Day," by the director. At the conclusion of the concert, which was highly successful in every way, the President of the Society (the Rev. E. G. Penny, M.A.) handed to Mr. Parker a gold watch as a souvenir from the members of the Society, and the choir-boys then came forward and presented him with a silver inkstand and an address. The adult members of the choir, and several members of the congregation, have also presented Mr. Parker with testimonials on his departure to Wellington as organist of the cathedral church, and conductor of the Choral Society in that city.

Clifton.—On Thursday the 9th ult., the Bristol Madrigal Society gave its Annual (Forty-third) Ladies' Night in the Victoria Rooms before a large audience, consisting of musicians of eminence and amateurs, and lovers of this class of music from far and near. The performers numbered ninety-eight, balanced with the greatest care, and all well under the bâton of the Conductor, so that the result was a performance perfect in all respects. The programme was skilfully compiled, and included compositions by the old madrigal writers, viz., Benet, Wilbye, Morley, Weelkes, Marenzio, Gastoldi, and Monteverde, and some by Mendelssohn, Pearsall, W. Beale, H. Smart, Sir Geo. Elvey, and W. Macfarren, the programme concluding, as usual, with Saville's "Waits." Of the old examples Weelkes's "To shorten winter's sadness," Wilbye's "Ladye, when I behold," and Marenzio's "When April decked," were most charmingly rendered. The same may be said of Beale's "What ho!" Smart's "Dream, baby, dream," and Pearsall's three excerpts, all of which were sung with the most loving care by the Society. Sir Geo. Elvey's "Song of the Zetland fishermen" deserves a special word as a new work. It is a most effective setting, in the composer's best style, and was unanimously encored. The credit for a most successful evening was undoubtedly due to Mr. D. W. Rootham, the Conductor, and to Mr. E. A. Harvey, the Hon. Secretary.

Coventry.—A performance of the May Queen was given in the Corn Exchange on the 6th ult., by the Musical Society. The solos were sustained by Miss Robertson, Mr. Shakespeare, and Mr. Geo. Fox. The second part of the concert opened with an admirable performance of Haydn's Symphony in D minor by the full band. Mendelssohn's first Concerto, the pianoforte part being played by Mr. Arthur Trickett, F.C.O., was also a great feature in the programme. Mr. Fox was deservedly encored in "Tom Tough," and Miss Robertson delighted the audience by her rendering of an Air with Variations by Persiani.

Edinburgh.—Sir Herbert Oakeley's Recital on the afternoon of the 16th ult. was given to a crowded audience in the Music Class-room. The programme was throughout very warmly received, and comprised five numbers not performed previously in the class-room. The Christmas "Volkslied" drew forth an encore which could not be resisted, and the novelty and freshness of S. S. Wesley's variations on a melody composed for Holsworthy Church Bells, elicited warm applause.

Enniskillen, Ireland.—The Annual Soirée in connection with the Church Choir was held on the 15th ult., in the Town Hall, when the following programme was gone through with remarkable precision and taste by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Arnold, the Organist. Anthem, "How beautiful upon the mountains" (R. A. Smith); Christmas Carol, "Welcome, Christmas" (S. Cooper); Part-Song, "The hardy Norseman" (Pearsall); "A happy New Year" (Young); Christmas Carol, "Good King Wenceslas" (arranged by Dr. Stainer); and at the close of the meeting Ebdon's Nunc dimittis in C was sung.

Gravesend.—At the first Concert given by the Milton Choral Association, at the Assembly Rooms, Harmer Street, on Monday the 13th ult., Handel's Judas Maccabæus was attempted, and well rendered throughout. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Florence Wydford, Mr. William Clinch and Dr. Tipple. Mr. C. R. Green conducted. Mr. Howard Moss efficiently performed the duties of accompanist, and Herr Kummer was the leader of the orchestra. Miss Jessie Royd delivered the air, "Pious orgies" to perfection, and was equally effective in the recitative and air, "To heaven's Almighty King," and "O Liberty." The duet, "Come, ever smiling liberty" was beautifully rendered by Miss Jessie Royd and Miss Florence Wydford, the latter lady having a rich, full contralto voice of much power. The choruses were exceedingly well rendered, and Mr. C. R. Green deserves special commendation for the work which he has been instrumental in bringing about within so short a time.

Halton.—On the 21st ult. Mr. S. W. Pilling, of Bolton, gave an Organ Recital in Trinity Wesleyan Chapel, Halton, near Runcorn. His programme contained selections from Guilmant, Merkel, and Salomé; Henry Smart's "Festival March," F. E. Bache's Andante and Allegro, and Sir W. S. Bennett's Minuetto and Trio. A large audience much applauded Mr. Pilling's skilful performance. The vocalists were Miss and Mr. Pierpoint and the Chapel choir, which was considerably augmented by ladies and gentlemen from Runcorn. Mr. A. E. Davies was an efficient conductor.

Leeds.—The unfortunate collapse of the Saturday Evening Popular Concerts, which have recently been given under the auspices of the Town Hall Concert Society, has emboldened Dr. Spark to give a series of Organ Recitals, aided by the services of vocalists of undoubted repute. The first of these Recitals took place on the 18th ult. in the Victoria Hall, Dr. Spark being assisted by Miss Emily Smythe (vocalist) and Mr. J. W. Denham (solo pianist). The programme included selections from Handel, Beethoven, and from Gounod's last opera, Polyeucte. Miss Smythe sang several songs in a pleasing manner, and Mr. J. W. Denham (who, we believe, is a pupil of Dr. Spark) played his solos with very good effect. It is to be hoped that the music-loving public of Leeds will appreciate Dr. Spark's praiseworthy efforts, and render him the encouragement which his exertions in the cause of music undoubtedly merit.

Liscard.—A Concert was given on Wednesday evening the 15th ult. which was highly appreciated by a large audience. Madame Norman-Néruda and Mr. Charles Hallé were received with the greatest possible satisfaction. The vocalist was Madame Porter, who was very successful, especially in Handel's "Let me wander not unseen" and the Cavatina "Di piacer." Mr. Billinie Porter was the Conductor.

Listowel.—Two Concerts were given in the Court House on December 30 and 31. The local Choral Class and Reed Band were in attendance, and acquitted themselves admirably. Vocal and instrumental solos, duets and glees were contributed by the Misses Horgan, Walle, Hetreed, McGurie, Master J. Sandes, Messrs. Stack, Hayes, Horgan, Tackaberry and by the Conductor, Mr. W. C. Hetreed. The piano accompaniments were correctly and effectively played by the Conductor's son, a lad of fourteen. The efficiency of the band and choral class, as well as the soloists, was highly satisfactory, considering that they have been in training only since the Conductor came to live in the locality a few months ago. The arrangements of Moore's Melodies as solos, duets, and quartetts by M. W. Balfe, were largely drawn upon, and much appreciated, as were also the chorus "Libiamo" and Bishop's glee "When winds whistle cold."

Liverpool.—Mr. Lea's fifty-fifth Concert was given in Hope Hall on the 18th ult., Mr. W. H. Jude, as usual, conducting. Cellier's comic Opera, The Spectre Knight, formed the chief item in the programme, the several recitatives, duets, quartetts, and choruses being admirably given. Encores were awarded to the Misses Haworth and Ternan, and Messrs. Cantor, T. J. Hughes, and Gladwynne. The second half of the programme was miscellaneous. Mr. Jude contributed a pianoforte solo.——The St. Andrew's Musical Society gave an open rehearsal in St. Andrew's Hall, Rodney Street, on the 20th ult., which was well attended. Mr. Tommaso Radcliffe conducted, and had the members of the choir well under command. In Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise the choruses were excellently rendered, especially "Let all men praise the Lord." Mr. T. Radcliffe was highly successful in his pianoforte performances. The entertainment concluded with Macfarren's May Day.——The eighth Subscription Concert of the Philharmonic Society was given on the 21st ult. The important item in the programme was the Symphony by Hermann Goetz, performed here for the first time, and its second production in England. Peculiar and somewhat pathetic interest attaches to this work, from the fact that its composer had but just attained the first step in the ladder of fame when death prematurely cut short his promising career in his thirty-sixth year. The work has great merits of its own, which at once strike the ear and impress the mind that no ordinary composition is being given. The orchestra had no easy task to perform, not alone through the composition being entirely unknown, but from the great difficulties contained in the score, almost every instrument having music of solo importance to perform. The execution was therefore most praiseworthy, and its excellence must be in a large measure attributed to the pains and vigilant care evinced by Signor Randegger, who, in the absence of Sir Julius Benedict, conducted.

Lyndhurst.—A very successful Evening Concert was given by the Lyndhurst Choral Society at the school-rooms on Tuesday the 21st ult. The first part consisted of Dr. Rimbault's Cantata, Country Life, with pianoforte and harmonium accompaniment. The choruses were given with great spirit and precision, and the solos well rendered by the Hon. Mrs. Robinson, Mr. G. Wade, and Mr. S. H. Lushington. Mrs. Macleay presided at the piano, and Miss Burrard at the harmonium. In the second part Mr. Charles Fletcher displayed great ability as a solo violinist, and Miss Dillon, Mrs. Robinson, and Mr. G. Wade contributed songs with good effect, the two latter securing an encore. Mr. E. Hammick conducted.

MADRAS.—A Concert was given in the Banqueting Hall, Government House, on Friday evening, December 13, by the Madras Philharmonic Society. The first part of the programme was miscellaneous, and the second part consisted of Bennett's May Queen. The band and chorus numbered ninety performers. The playing of the band was especially good throughout, and the choruses were rendered with a precision and firmness of attack that was most gratifying to all concerned. The solos were done ample justice to by members of the Society. This concert was the first of the fifteenth season of the Society, which was formed in 1864. Among the visitors were his Grace the Governor and the Ladies Grenville, H.H. the Rajah of Travancore, and H.H. the Prince of Arcot. Mr. W. D. St. Leger (Organist of S. George's Cathedral), the Musical Director of the Society, conducted.

MIRFIELD.—A most successful Concert was given by the Battyeford Amateur Musical Society, on Thursday the 9th ult., in the Town Hall, before a large and fashionable audience. The first part of the programme consisted of Barnby's Rebekah, and the second of Sterndale Bennett's Cantata, the May Queen. The principal vocalists were Miss Henriette Tomlinson (soprano), Miss Sweeney (contralto), Mr. C. Blagbro (tenor), and Mr. Singleton (bass). Mr. F. C. Atkinson, Mus. Bac., Cantab., of Bradford, conducted and presided at the pianoforte.

MONTREAL.—At the recent Mendelssohn Choir Concert, given in the American Church, the choir was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, and to this the success of the concert was due in great degree. Mr. Barnes in his organ solos proved that in him Montreal possesses an organist who has already attained a foremost place amongst the performers on this instrument. Chopin's Funeral March and a Toccata and Fugue from Bach were much admired. Mrs. Barnes's rendering of "Hear ye, Israel," and of the solo in Hear my Prayer, was so distinguished for purity of style and facile execution as to elicit the warmest applause. The singing of the choir too deserves the greatest praise. We must not omit to mention the masterly organ accompaniments of Mr. Barnes, and the skill with which the Conductor, Mr. Gould, directed the well-trained choir.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Mr. Amers gave a very successful Concert in the Central Exchange Art Gallery on Saturday, the 11th ult. The artists were Madame Edwyn Frith, R.A.M., Mr. Whitehead, Durham Cathedral, and Mr. E. J. Rogers. The success which continues to attend these concerts is proof that the musical public of Newcastle can appreciate Mr. Amers' untiring endeavours in the cause of art.——A Public Meeting was held on the 14th ult. to consider the proposal to establish a branch of Trinity College, London, at Newcastle, for higher musical education. The Mayor took the chair, and Mr. Frederic Clark, organising secretary of the College, attended to explain the details of the scheme. Among those present were Mr C. F. Lloyd, Mus. B., Oxon (who has been nominated as superintendent professor), Mr. H. C. Hemy (hon. local secretary), and Mr. Nicholson (Hexham Abbey). Resolutions, expressing the desirability of forming the branch, and appointing a provisional committee, were unanimously passed. A similar meeting was held in the Town Hall, North Shields, under the presidency of the Mayor of Tynemouth, on the 16th ult.

NEW YORK, U.S.A.—On Christmas-Day, an elaborate musical programme was prepared, and executed in a manner worthy of all praise, the precision of attack, correctness in phrasing, and quality of tone displayed by the choir of Old Trinity Church, fully sustaining its reputation, and proving conclusively the excellence of the training it receives at the hands of its musical director, Mr. A. H. Messiter, who conducted the Service from his seat at the chancel organ. Shortly before 11 a.m., Mr. Henry Carter, who presided at the great nave organ, commenced the opening voluntary, Raff's March, from Leonora Symphony; following it by a Pastorale (Bach); at the conclusion of which the processional hymn, "The faithful shepherds keep" (Le Jeune) was sung by the choir and clergy. The first anthem was an arrangement of the "Adeste Fideles" (H. G. Thunder), the most noticeable effect in which was the quartett for tenors and basses in the second verse, and the brilliant execution of the florid obbligato passages for the soprani. The Communion Office included the Kyrie, Credo, Sanctus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in excelsis, from Haydn's First Mass in B flat. The Offertory was Niels W. Gade's Christmas Cantata, "The holy night." No extra voices were engaged, the solos being sung by Masters John McGrayne and Harry Case (soprani), Messrs. W. Smedley and Henry B. Faucon (alti), Edward Devon and Charles A. McPherson (tenori), and Henry Price and F. H. Dunkinson (bassi). During the celebration of Holy Communion Mr. Carter performed a selection of music on the great organ.

NORTH TAWTON.—A Concert was given by Mr. Robertson, the local Organist, in the Market Hall, on Monday the 6th ult., under the patronage of the Rector (Rev. R. Hole). The artists were Miss Jessie Royd, Madame Poole, Mr. Farley Sinkins; solo violin, Mr. M. G. Rice; solo violoncello, Herr Adolphe Brousil; solo piano, Mr. Robertson. The programme was well selected and admirably executed.

OCKLEY.—Mr. Charles G. Sadler, Organist of the parish church, gave the second Concert in aid of the choir fund on the 6th ult., when he was assisted by Mrs. Calvert, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. Kennedy, Col. Calvert, H. C. Lee Steere, Esq., Rev. L. S. Kennedy, M.A., Rev. F. P. Du Sautoy, B.D., and the choir of St. Margaret's. Mr. Sadler conducted. The two concerts have proved a great success, and Mr. Sadler has been enabled to hand over the sum of £14 4s. 9d. to the choir fund.

PENZANCE.—The Members of the Choral Society gave an admirable performance of Elijah in St. John's Hall, on Friday, December 27. Miss Catherine Penna, of London, was engaged as principal soprano, the other parts being sung by members of the Society. Mrs. Nunn's rendering of "O rest in the Lord" was especially worthy of praise. Mr. M. Sampson sang "If with all your hearts," and the recitative, "Man of God," with excellent effect; and Mr. A. L. Wills, as the Prophet, was highly efficient. At the conclusion of the Oratorio, Sir John St. Aubyn, M.P., in a complimentary speech, presented Mr. Nunn, the Conductor, with a silver salver and a scroll, beautifully engrossed by Mr. J. W. Stevens, of Messrs. Rodd and Cornish's offices, which contained the names of the twenty-four gentlemen constituting the committee, and of 200 other subscribers. The salver was inscribed as follows: "A Memorial of Three Hundred Guineas presented December 27, 1878, as a token of gratitude and respect to John Hopkins Nunn, Esq., A.M.R.A., by numerous admirers of the distinguished ability, zeal, and success with which he has served the cause of choral and orchestral music in West Cornwall."

SCARBOROUGH.—Miss Margaret Bucknall, Associate and Medalist of the Royal Academy of Music, gave a Pianoforte Recital at the Royal Hotel on the 22nd ult., before a large audience. She was assisted by Miss Clara Samuell, whose songs, Spohr's "Rose softly blooming," Gounod's Valse from Mireille, and a ballad by Maude White, "Loving and true," were charmingly rendered, and elicited warm applause. Miss Bucknall delighted her audience by a most finished reading of Beethoven's C sharp minor Sonata, and in this as well as in Chopin's Berceuse, Waltz, and Nocturne, a Fantasia on Rigoletto by Liszt, and several fugitive pieces, showed the possession of a touch of truest sympathy and a facility of execution and command of her instrument which augur for her a brilliant career. Mr. Alfred J. Eyre accompanied the songs with taste and discretion.

SOUTH PENGE.—A Concert was given on the 21st ult. in aid of Holy Trinity Schools Building Fund, by Mr. Frederic W. Clarke, in which the following performers took part: Vocalists—Miss Helen Place, Mr. A. B. Newth, and Mr. John Barrow; Instrumentalists—violin and viola, Mr. E. Eberwein; pianoforte Mr. F. W. Clarke, and Mr. C. F. South. An interesting programme was provided, amongst the special attractions of which must be mentioned a masterly rendering of Golterman's "Romance and Allegro," for piano and viola, by Mr. F. W. Clarke and Mr. E. Eberwein; and the excellent singing by Miss Helen Place of Weber's Scena, "Softly sighs," from Der Freischütz. The concert was a great success.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—On Friday evening, December 27, a meeting was held at the Barnes School-rooms to present Mr. Wm. Rea, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Mary's Church, with a testimonial consisting of an illuminated address and a cheque for £100, for the purchase of a pianoforte. Alderman Dale occupied the chair, and the presentation was made by Alderman Williamson. The address stated that the testimonial was the gift of the worshippers at St. Mary's, and expressed the high admiration they had for Mr. Rea's talents and for the manner in which he had conducted the musical part of the services of their church during the fourteen years he had been amongst them, and regretted that they were now to lose his valuable assistance and direction. Mr. Rea, in accepting the testimonial, expressed his heartfelt thanks for the present, and his great sorrow in taking leave of all his friends in South Shields. During the evening a selection of part-songs, &c., was sung by the choir of St. Mary's.

SPILSBY.—The Spilsby and Wainfleet Choral Society gave on the 21st ult. its annual Concert before a crowded audience. The first part was H. Smart's "Bride of Dunkerron," in which Miss Rose Maddison, the Rev. T. W. Sale, and Mr. E. Dunkerton took the principal solos, supported by a chorus of fifty-six members, an efficient string band, cornet obbligato and harmonium, for which the wood and reed instrumental parts had been specially arranged by the Conductor. The second part was miscellaneous. At the close of the concert a vote of thanks to Mr. Keller, the Conductor, was proposed by the President of the Society, and cordially assented to by the audience.

TURNHAM GREEN.—A Concert was given in the Vestry Hall on the 17th ult., for the benefit of the aged poor of the district. The large hall was crowded. Among the successful numbers were two songs (encored), "Maid of Athens" and "Ah non credea," exquisitely sung by Mrs. Baly, who also with Miss Baly contributed two duets. Mr. Everard Wylde's song, "Lady Clara Vere de Vere," was redemanded. The Misses Beaven with Mr. Streather played a duo concertante by Bach, and concerto by Handel for violin, pianoforte, and harmonium, and were very much applauded. Other songs were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard, Miss Weeden, Mr. Lane, and Mr. G. H. Jupp.

ULEY.—The members of the Uley Church Choir gave a most successful Christmas Recital in the National School-room, on Tuesday, December 31, under the direction of Mr. B. W. Leach, Organist of the parish church. Miss Leach was the accompanist. The programme, which was miscellaneous, opened with a duet for the pianoforte and violin, played by Miss Leach and Mr. Vick. The glee, "The Forester," was well rendered by the choir, and closed the evening's performance.

VENTNOR.—The Choral Society gave its Annual Concert on the 7th ult., Handel's Samson being the work selected for performance. The principal singers were Madame Worrell-Duval (her rendering of "Let the bright Seraphim" being much admired), Mr. Roche (who gave "Total eclipse" with much effect), and Mr. Jones. The choir was excellent throughout, and the band, numbering about twenty, was thoroughly efficient. Master Edwin H. Lemare (holder of the Sir John Goss scholarship) presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Edwin Lemare, Organist of Holy Trinity Church, conducted.

WOKINGHAM.—Mr. T. S. Brown's Annual Concert took place in the Town Hall on Wednesday the 8th ult. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Emily Brown, and Mr. James Sydney; and the instrumentalists, Mr. John Cheshire (harp), and Mrs. John Cheshire and Mr. Robert M. Brown (pianoforte). Miss Larkcom received an enthusiastic encore for her rendering of "Casta Diva," and "She wandered down the mountain side" (Clay). Miss Brown was very successful in a duet with Miss Larkcom, and in her song, "Darby and Joan," which was redemanded; and Mr. Sydney was warmly received in all his songs. Mr. and Mrs. Cheshire displayed much talent in their instrumental solos, which were highly appreciated. Mr. Robert M. Brown rendered efficient aid in the accompaniments. There was a full attendance, and the concert was a complete success.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. M. Gaite, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church of St. Peter, Stanley, near Wakefield.—Mr. Bernard H. Hurst, to the Church of the Holy Trinity, Long Melford, Suffolk.—Mr. Robert Parker, to the Cathedral, Wellington, New Zealand.—Mr. John W. Potter, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Stephen's Church, Ealing.—Mr. F. W. N. Smith, to St. Augustine's, South Bermondsey.—Mr. O. Stimpson, Mus. Bac., Oxon., to Christ Church, Tunbridge Wells.—Mr. Walter Wesché, Organist and Choirmaster to Lock Chapel.—Mr. J. J. Hardeman, to the Church of England Chapel, Madeira.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. James T. Lewis (Alto), to St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.—Mr. Prenton (Bass), to St. Stephen's, South Kensington.—Mr. A. Lawrence Fryer (Principal Tenor), to New College, Oxford.

OBITUARY.

On December 23, at 2, Oak Villas, Church Lane, Merton, JOSEPH MCMURDIE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., aged 85.

On December 23, at her residence, 4, Nottingham Place, W., ELIZABETH MARGARET, second daughter of the late EDMUND DORRELL, Esq.

On December 24, at her residence, 34, Nottingham Place, Mrs. LUCY ANDERSON, pianist to the Queen, in her 90th year.

On December 30, at 34, Manor Street, Clapham, after seven hours' illness, TERESA MADELEINE HALLETT, aged six years and two months, younger and only remaining daughter of J. HALLETT SHEPPARD.

On the 3rd ult., suddenly, ELIZABETH SARAH, wife of EDWIN ASHDOWN, The Elms, Golder's Green, Hendon.

On the 7th ult., at Heathcote Street, Mecklenburgh Square, ELEANOR, widow of G. COOPER, Esq., Organist of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal and St. Sepulchre, London, aged 44.

On the 10th ult., CHARLES MCKORKELL, forty years Organist of All Saints' Church, Northampton, aged 69.

On the 11th ult., at 34, Manor Street, Clapham, S.W., of consumption, J. HALLETT SHEPPARD, aged 43.

On the 22nd ult., J. ROGERS, forty-three years Organist of Doncaster Parish Church.

On the 23rd ult., at Windsor, Lady ELVEY, wife of Sir GEORGE J. ELVEY.

MISS ANNIE MARRIOTT (Principal Soprano).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 8, Coleherne Road, South Kensington.

HAMPSTEAD CHORAL SOCIETY,

NEW VESTRY HALL, HAVERSTOCK HILL.

Conductor, Mr. WILLEM COENEN.

THIS Society has been formed for the Study and Practice of high-class Music, Sacred and Secular.

The Rehearsals take place on Friday evenings, commencing at Eight o'clock, from January to May, and October to December. The first Rehearsal was held on Friday evening, January 17, when

SCHUBERT'S "SONG OF MIRIAM"

AND

WEBER'S "JUBILEE CANTATA"

were placed in practice.

For terms of Membership and other particulars, apply to

GEORGE T. S. GILL, Hon. Sec. (pro tem.)

29, Steele's Road, Haverstock Hill, N.W.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—Conductor, Mr. W. G. CUSINS.—EIGHT CONCERTS, St. James's Hall:—Thursday Evenings, February 6, 20, March 6, 20; Wednesday Evenings, April 30, May 21, June 11, July 2; at eight o'clock. Subscription—Stalls or front row of balcony, £3 3s.; reserved balcony, £2 2s.; unreserved balcony, £1 11s. 6d.—Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co., 84, New Bond Street, W.; usual Agents; and Austin's Ticket office, St. James's Hall.

CHOIR BOYS WANTED for a City Church. Morning Service only. Must be good Sight-Readers. Salary, £5 per annum. Address, B.G.H., care of Mr. Rose, 224, Upper Thames Street, E.C.

TWO LEADING TREBLES WANTED (must be good Readers, and have good Voices) for St. James's, Norlands, W. Two Services on Sunday and one weekly practice. £10 per annum. Apply, E. H. Birch, Mus. Bac., Oxon., 91, Lancaster Road, Notting Hill, W.

WANTED, at a City Church, LADY SOPRANOS, TENOR, and BASS. Two Services on Sunday. Week-night rehearsal. Salary, £10 per annum. Apply, to Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

CONTRALTO WANTED in the Choir of a Wesleyan Chapel, North of London. Services Morning and Evening, on Sundays and Tuesday evenings, with practice. Good Reader. Address, G.H., 41, Brighton Road, Stoke Newington, N.

AN ALTO (Cathedral), with a powerful Voice, is open to an ENGAGEMENT on Sundays (London or suburbs only), or would undertake the Training of a Choir. Address, with particulars and salary, A. B. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ALTO and BASS VOICES WANTED for S. Augustine's Church, Queen's Gate, South Kensington. Address, Rev. R. R. Chope, 129, Gloucester Road.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

GADSBY, H.—The Lord of the Isles. A Dramatic Cantata. The libretto founded on Sir Walter Scott's Poem by FRANK MURRAY. Paper covers, 4s.

CORNELL, J. H.—The Apostles' Creed in Monotonic Recitation, with Organ Accompaniment. 8vo, 3d.

MILLER, CHARLES E.—Certain portions of the Office of Holy Communion intended for supplemental use with other Services. 8vo, 1s.; or singly, No. 1. Introit, 3d.; No. 2. Benedictus, 3d.; No. 3. Agnus Dei, 4d.; No. 4. O Salutaris, 3d.

SHEPPARD, REV. H. FLEETWOOD.—Te Deum, for Congregational use (partly from Ancient Melodies). Post 8vo, 1d.; organ score, 3d.

KERBUSCH, LEO, Mus. D.—Missa in honorem (S. Cecilia). 8vo, 1s. 3d.

ELVEY, SIR GEORGE.—The souls of the righteous. An Anthem. Sung by command of the Queen in the Private Chapel, Windsor, December 18, 1878, at the Service in Memory of Her late Royal Highness the Princess Alice. 8vo, 6d.

PERROT, C. H.—I acknowledge my transgressions. Anthem. 8vo, 4d.

LYTTEL, REV. E. Z.—"Jesu, still lead on." Hymn. Words by H. L. L., in Hymns from the Land of Luther. 8vo, 4d.

WALKER, REV. CHARLES.—"We are marching through the desert." Processional Hymn. 8vo, 2d.

MENDELSSOHN.—"Now May again." Chorus (for Female Voices) from the First Walpurgis Night. (No. 61, Novello's Octavo Trios, &c.)

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

No. 385.	The boat. R. SCHUMANN	...	3d.
386.	Spring's approach. SEYMOUR EGERTON	...	3d.
387.	Wild rose " "	...	3d.
388.	In the woods " "	...	3d.
389.	The rose and the soul " "	...	1½d.
390.	Adieu to the wood " "	...	3d.
391.	King Winter " "	...	3d.
392.	The Miller. G. A. MACFARREN ...	...	3d.
393.	At first the mountain rill " ...	...	3d.
394.	All is still " ...	...	3d.
395.	Sleep, the bird is in its nest. J. BARNBY...	...	3d.
396.	Hushed in death. H. HILES	...	6d.
397.	Evening (It is the hour). H. LESLIE...	...	1½d.
398.	Now the bright morning star " ...	...	3d.
399.	Boat Song (Hail to the chief) " ...	...	3d.

NOVELLO'S OPERA CHORUSES.

No. 91. Why must every joy be banished? (Darf mit nächtig düstren Traümen) Flotow's "Martha" ... ... 2d.

92. { O Diana, who us beholdest (O Diane, sois nous propice) ... ... / O Latona's virgin daughter (Chaste fille de Latone). Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" ... } 2d.

PEARSON, W. W.—"The dream of home." S.A.T.B. 8vo, 2d.

BUNNETT, DR. E.—"Winter." Song. The words by W. WOMERSLEY. 1s. 6d.

COENEN, W.—"True love" (Treue liebe). Song. The words translated from the German of E. FERRAND by NATALIA MACFARREN. 2s.

BRUMLEU, E.—Valse d'Amour, for Pianoforte. 2s.

GOUNOD, CH.—Marche Solennelle. Arranged for Harmonium and Pianoforte. 2s. 6d.

KING, OLIVER.—Berceuse, Méditation et Valse, pour le Piano. 2s. 6d.

WANTED, for Christ Church, Rendlesham Road, Clapton, ALTO, TWO TENORS and BASSES. Voluntary Choir, mixed Anglican and Gregorian Services. Apply by letter to Organist, 33, Evering Road, Stoke Newington.

TENOR.—ENGAGEMENT WANTED, in London, for Full Choral Service. Several years' experience in a Cathedral Choir. Address, Musicus, 5, Devonshire Street, Islington, N.

CHOIRMASTER WANTED for a Church in North London. Must be a good trainer of boys, and understand church music well. Present stipend, £20 per annum, will be increased to £40. Address, with testimonials, Mr. B. Madden, 90, Lambeth Road, S.E.

WANTED at once a thorough Good PIANOFORTE TUNER. One who has a knowledge of repairing preferred. A good and permanent situation offered for a willing and competent person. Age from 20 to 30. Good references indispensable. Address Y. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street W.

THE LATE DR. ELVEY'S PSALTER.

THE PSALTER;

OR, CANTICLES AND PSALMS OF DAVID.

Pointed for Chanting on a New Principle, with Explanations and Directions.

BY THE LATE

STEPHEN ELVEY, Mus. Doc.,

Organist of New and St. John's Colleges, and Organist and Choragus to the University of Oxford.

EIGHTH EDITION. Demy 8vo, cloth, 5s.

ALSO,

A CHEAPER EDITION

(the Eleventh).

With a Memorandum on the Pointing of the "GLORIA PATRI," by Sir G. J. ELVEY. Fcap. 8vo, cloth limp, 2s. 6d.

THE CANTICLES SEPARATELY

(Sixteenth Edition). Fcap. 8vo, 6d.

The Psalter is used at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and at many Cathedrals.

"There can be no doubt but that we owe most of what is good in the chanting of to-day to the (seven years) labour and care bestowed on the first edition of this work issued in 1856."—Musical Standard, September 25, 1875.

"Taken as a whole, Dr. Elvey's work has not been surpassed. . . . We believe that educated musicians generally—with a sense of the importance of this part of worship—if they must chant from such a pointed Psalter, would prefer Dr. Elvey's conscientious framework to any other we know."—The Orchestra, January, 1878.

OXFORD AND LONDON: JAMES PARKER AND CO.

THE PSALTER AND CANTICLES

POINTED AND SET TO ACCOMPANYING

CHANTS, ANCIENT AND MODERN,

By the Rev. SIR H. W. BAKER, Bart., and WILLIAM HENRY MONK,

Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, London.

The Cheap Edition, with Vocal Score (Gregorians in unison), is now ready; size, double post 16mo.

Limp cloth, cut flush, and lettered ... ... 2s. od.
Cloth boards, turned in, and lettered ... ... 2s. 6d.
Cloth boards, turned in, gilt lettered, red edges ... 3s. od.

A large Imperial 8vo Edition, with accompanying harmonies for the Gregorian Tones, is in the Press.

The distinctive object aimed at is to unite under the same pointing two forms of chant hitherto considered incompatible—the Ancient and the Modern, the Gregorian and the Anglican—and to introduce a new form of Chant, which is commended with confidence for the use of Parish Choirs.

The work includes about 50 varieties of the Gregorian Chants, some from sources not easily accessible; and about 390 chants of the Anglican form, of which 100 are more or less well known, the remainder having been composed expressly for this work by musicians of distinction, including most of our Cathedral Organists.

Canticles only, 6d., 9d., and 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa and Plain Song Editions will be published as soon as possible.

London: W. CLOWES and SONS, 13, Charing Cross, S.W.

PIANOFORTE, ORGAN, and MUSIC SELLERS. WANTED, for Youth aged 17, SITUATION (indoors) as IMPROVER. Good pianist; understands sheet music; good penman. London or good provincial town. Johnstone, St. Ives, Hunts.

TUNER.—A good firm TUNER and REPAIRER is DISENGAGED. Well up in American Organs and Harmoniums. B. A., Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED for Occasional Tunings. Apply, W. Marriott and Sons, 296, Oxford Street.

FOR DISPOSAL, the GOODWILL of a well-established PIANOFORTE WAREHOUSE, with Organist's Appointment, and Tuition, producing an income of £500 per annum, proof. The premises are in a capital centre for teaching, and within twenty miles from London. Mr. Robert Bath, 12, St. Benet Place, Gracechurch Street.

MOZART'S REQUIEM.

Will be Published during February,

THE STORY OF MOZART'S REQUIEM

Carefully compiled from the best and most authentic Sources,

BY WM. POLE, F.R.S., Mus. Doc.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

This immortal work, independently of its value as a musical composition, has great interest on account of its very remarkable history. The mysterious commission given for it, the supernatural impression made by this on Mozart, his composition of the work under such pathetic circumstances, partly on his deathbed, the difficulties as to its publication, the fierce controversy as to its authorship, which for fourteen years engaged the attention of some of the most learned men and profound musicians of Europe, the extraordinary disappearance and long concealment of the manuscripts, their ultimate discovery, the difficult and perplexing questions as to their genuineness, the strange revelations gradually made as to the secret history of the various transactions, and the doubts which, after all possible information has been obtained, still hang over the authorship of some parts of the work; all these things, spread over seventy or eighty years, form a story of unparalleled interest in the annals of music.

The object of the present essay is to tell this story, which is hitherto but little known in England; and it will form, it is hoped, an appropriate companion to the various editions of the "Requiem," published by Messrs. Novello and Co.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MUSIC PUBLISHING.—A favourable opportunity offers for a PARTNERSHIP in the above line of Business. Capital required, about £1,000. Apply to Mr. Frederick Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

WANTED a SECOND-HAND ORGAN in good condition for a place of worship containing 500 sittings. Send full particulars to the Secretary of Mid Street Congregational Church, Fraserburgh, N.B.

CHAMBER ORGAN to be SOLD cheap. Short of room. New, full compass, 5 stops, open diapason, clarabella, stopped diapason, bass, principal, and waldflute, speaking front pipes plain, one octave of pedals. Blow by either foot or hand. Height, 10 ft. 6 in.; depth, 3 ft.; front, 6 ft. 6 in. Price £45. Pine case. Apply to H. H. Beaumont, Ilkeston, near Nottingham.

ORGAN, Small Chamber, containing five Stops and Pedals. Price £12. In good condition. Apply to W. Seager, 121, Old Kent Road, S.E.

LARGE HARMONIUM for SALE by Alexandre, 16 stops, percussion, extra blower and knee swells. 26 guineas, cost 65 guineas. 462, Hackney Road.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS (in A). A Plain Setting for Congregational use, by W. DE M. SERGISON. Octavo, 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PRICE SIX SHILLINGS.

J. S. BACH'S

FORTY-EIGHT PRELUDES & FUGUES

IN ALL THE MAJOR AND MINOR KEYS

("The Well-Tempered Clavichord").

Edited and collated with all former editions of the work by

W. T. BEST.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 200 pp.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE DREAM

A SERENATA

WRITTEN BY

WILLIAM BARTHOLOMEW.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

SIR MICHAEL COSTA.

Octavo. Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S

SIX SONATAS

AND

THREE PRELUDES AND FUGUES.

Composed for the Organ.

Op. 65 and 37.

EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

In One Volume, cloth, 10s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S

CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.

PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARIONET, &c.

Sent Gratis and Post-free to any part of the World.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S

YELLOW CATALOGUE for 1879.

COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE USE OF THE TRADE, PROFESSION, AND SCHOOLS.

COMPRISING A

SELECTION OF UPWARDS OF 4,000 STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS, IS NOW READY.

Among the Composers of Pianoforte Music will be found the names of Beethoven, Bach, Bertini, Chopin, Clementi, Czerny, Cramer (John), Dussek, Handel, Haydn, Henselt, Hummel, Herz, Kalkbrenner, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Moscheles, Mozart, Scarlatti, Schubert, Schumann, Schulhoff, Thalberg, Weber, &c., &c. Among the Vocal—Bishop, Braham, Arne, Dibdin, Callcott, Shield, Horn, Purcell, Haydn, Moore, Mazzinghi, Handel, &c., &c. SENT GRATIS AND POST-FREE TO ANY PART OF THE WORLD. All applications for trade terms must contain card, circular, or reference.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

SYDNEY SMITH'S

FOUR NEW PIECES

ESPRIT DE CORPS

MARCHE MILITAIRE.

Price Four Shillings.

ZEFFIRETTA

MORCEAU DE SALON.

Price Four Shillings.

ZAUBERFLÖTE

FANTAISIE SUR L'OPÉRA DE MOZART.

Price Four Shillings.

MENDELSSOHN'S CONCERTO

IN D MINOR.

REMINISCENCE.

Price Four Shillings.

LONDON: ASHDOWN AND PARRY,
HANOVER SQUARE.

RICORDI,

265, REGENT STREET, W.

NEW ADDITIONS TO RICORDI'S CHEAP PUBLICATIONS.

		Net Prices. s. d.
PERGOLESI.
La Serva Padrona	Vocal score	2 0
CIMAROSA.
Il Matrimonio Segreto	„	4 0
DONIZETTI.
Anna Bolena	„	3 6
Linda di Chamounix	„	4 0
VERDI.
Requiem	„	4 0
CHERUBINI.
Requiem (for Men's Voices)	„	1 6
MERCADANTE.
Third Mass (for Men's Voices)	„	1 6
ROSSINI (posthumous works).
La Regata Veneziana—Three Canzonets	S. or T.	4 0
Ditto	MS. or B.	4 0
Polka Chinoise, for pianoforte		2 6
Ditto, pianoforte duet		3 0
Fanfare, for pianoforte		2 6
Ditto, pianoforte duet		3 0
Soirée Musicale		1 6
Eco di Napoli, containing 50 of the most popular Neapolitan Songs		3 0

Lists of every description gratis and post-free. All works produced in Italy, &c., promptly procured without extra charge.

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

Price 5s. net each Course.
To the Profession, 2s. 9d. each Course (2s. 6d. as Specimen Copy).

A. HENNES'S

NEW METHOD FOR THE PIANO

Translated and improved from the 25th German, and the 3rd French Edition, by

H. MANNHEIMER.

NOW READY:

COURSE I.—(Second, Revised Edition,) containing 50 pieces in the Treble.

COURSE II.—50 pieces, Treble and Bass, Accidentals, Marks of Expression, &c.

COURSE III.—50 pieces, representing the 12 Major Keys (theory of their foundation), progressing to their Dominant above, and the Sub-dominant below, Intervals, &c.

COURSE IV.—50 pieces, representing the 12 Minor Keys in the same manner.

COURSE V.—50 pieces and Preludes, representing all the Major and Minor Keys, succeeding each other according to the Circle of Fifths, Dominants, and Sub-dominants; the Ornaments; and Introduction to the Science of Harmony, to which is added a complete Index of the whole Work, and a copious Glossary of all Musical Terms in English, French, German, and Italian.

Every piece of music is accompanied by the most minute explanations how to play correctly, and numerous technical finger exercises and scale practices are interwoven in all the five Courses. Hennes's system is now acknowledged to be the most systematic and progressive of all Piano-tutors in existence. Celebrated musicians on the Continent, as well as in this country (Herr Reinecke, at Leipzig, MM. Gevaert, Samuel, Grégoire, at Brussels, F. E. Gladstone, Esq.), have preferred this method to all others for the musical education of their own children; and, thanks to the flattering testimonials of the most eminent musicians, and the strongest recommendations of the leading press, it has been adopted by thousands of teachers in this country.

A Pamphlet, containing a "Treatise on Musical Education," Opinions of the Press, &c., and the 24 Key Signatures (represented by the dial of a clock), are to be had (gratis) on application to

H. MANNHEIMER, Victoria Street, Maidenhead.

POLYEUCTE

OPERA IN FIVE ACTS

WRITTEN BY

JULES BARBIER & MICHEL CARRÉ.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

CH. GOUNOD.

	s.	d.
VOCAL SCORE ... ... Net	21	0
THE COMPLETE OPERA, ARRANGED FOR PIANO SOLO ... ... „	10	6

SEPARATE MOVEMENTS.

OVERTURE (Solo)	4	0
No. 6. CHORUS, "Que le myrte et la rose," arranged for One Voice (Mezzo-Soprano)	4	0
„ 7. CAVATINA, "O dieux! O puissances" (Baritone) ...	5	0
„ 8. INVOCATION À VESTA (Soprano)	2	6
„ 9. GRAND DUO, "Pauline! dieux!" (Soprano and Baritone)	8	0
„ 11. BARCAROLLE, "Nymphes attentives" (Tenor) ...	4	0
„ 15. CANTILÈNE, "Quoi c'est peu de perdre" (Baritone)	4	0
„ 20. STANCES, "Sources délicieuses" (Tenor)	4	0
„ 25. CREDO, "Je crois en un seul Dieu" (Tenor)	5	0

ARRANGEMENTS.

PIANO SOLO.

KETTEN, HENRY. Paraphrase	7	0
LACK, TH. Op. 32. Barcarolle	4	0
—— Op. 33. Divertissement sur le Ballet	6	0
MÉTRA, O. Valse	5	0
NEUSTEDT, CH. Op. 142. Fantaisie—Transcription ...	6	0
RUMMEL, J. Fantaisie	5	0

AIRS DE BALLET, arranged for PIANO.

LEMOINE, L.	Solo.		Duet.
No. 1. Le Dieu Pan	4	0	6	0
„ 2. Bellone	5	0	6	0
„ 3. Vénus	6	0	7	0
„ 4. Bacchus	5	0	6	0
„ 5. Bacchanale	6	0	7	6

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TECHNICAL VIOLIN SCHOOL

INTRODUCED INTO THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC AT LEIPZIG

BY

HENRY SCHRADIECK.

	s.	d.
PART I.
Exercises to increase the Firmness in the Different Positions ...	2	0
PART II.
Exercises of Double Stopping	4	0
PART III.
Exercises in the Different Modes of Bowing	5	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY

CAMILLE SAINT-SAËNS.

	s.	d.
Bénédiction nuptiale ... ... net	3	0
Elévation ou Communion ... ... „	2	3
Fantaisie ... ... „	3	9
Three Rhapsodies—No. 1. ... ... „	3	0
„ „ 2. ... ... „	3	0
„ „ 3. ... ... „	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ORGAN MUSIC

BY

GUSTAV MERKEL.

	s.	d.
OP. 122. TWO ANDANTES.
No. 1. A flat. No. 2. A minor ... ... each net	2	0
OP. 124. TWELVE FUGUES.
Book I. ... ... net	3	6
Book II. ... ... „	4	0
In single Numbers... ... ... each „	1	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUITABLE FOR PRESENTS.

Augener & Co.'s Quarto Editions.

NEW ORGAN VOLUMES (in Blue Paper Covers).	s.	d.
ANDRÉ, J.—Voluntaries for the Organ. Op. 65... ... net	3	0
BACH, J. S.—12 Preludes and Fugues. Edited by SCOTSON CLARK ... ... net	3	0
CLARK, SCOTSON.—First Steps in Organ-Playing ... „	5	0
—— 12 Choruses from Handel's Oratorios ... ... „	4	0
—— 12 Songs from Handel's Oratorios ... ... „	3	0
GLADSTONE, F. E.—The Organ Student's Guide ... „	4	0
—— Organ Music for Church Use ... ... „	3	0
PAUER, E.—March Album. A Collection of 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged by W. J. WESTBROOK ... ... net	4	0

NEW HARMONIUM VOLUMES (in Blue Paper Covers).
CLARK, SCOTSON.—15 Marches for Harmonium solo net	3	0
—— Voluntaries for Harmonium solo ... ... „	3	0
—— First Steps in Harmonium Playing ... ... „	4	0
LÖW, JOS.—Harmonium Album. A Collection of 100 Favourite Songs and Airs, &c., arranged in progressive order. For Harmonium solo ... ... net	3	0
PAUER, E.—March Album, containing 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged for Piano and Harmonium by Jos. Löw ... ... net	5	0

E. PAUER'S FAVOURITE COLLECTIONS OF CLASSICAL PIANOFORTE MUSIC (Quarto size).

PAUER, E.—Old English Composers for the Virginals and Harpsichord. (William Byrde, Dr. John Bull, Orlando Gibbons, Dr. John Blow, Henry Purcell, and Dr. Thomas Augustine Arne.) Revised and Edited by E. PAUER. With portrait of Purcell, &c. (205 pp.) Elegantly bound net	10	6
—— The Classic Companion. A Collection of easy and moderately difficult Pieces from the Works of the most Celebrated Composers of the 17th and 18th Centuries. (229 pp.) Elegantly bound ... ... net	10	6
—— The Family Gift Book. A Collection of Pianoforte Pieces, comprising Christmas Music, Pastorals, Hunting Songs, Love Songs, Soldiers' and Sailors' Songs, Patriotic Hymns, National Melodies, Dances of the Olden Time, National Dances and Modern Dances, many of them composed for this work. With Illustrations. (475 pp.) Elegantly bound ... ... net	21	0
BACH, J. S.—The Children's Bach. 36 Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (Solos and Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. PAUER. With Portrait and Biography. Blue cover ... ... net	3	0
HANDEL.—The Children's Handel. 36 Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (Solos and Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. PAUER. With Portrait and Biography. Blue cover ... ... net	3	0

London: AUGENER and Co., 86, Newgate Street; Foubert's Place; and 81, Regent Street, W.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY

DIETRICH BUXTEHUDE

(1635—1707).

EDITED BY

PHILIPP SPITTA.

Containing Preludes and Fugues, Toccatas, Canzonettas, Chorales, &c.

Two Volumes ... ... each, net 24s.
Or Twelve Books ... ... each, 6s. to 10s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price,

TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LEFÉBURE-WELY'S

OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORGAN MUSIC.

STONE, J. T., Classical Organist. A SELECTION of celebrated COMPOSITIONS from the works of HANDEL, MOZART, HAYDN, MENDELSSOHN, MEYERBEER, &c., arranged from the Orchestral Scores for the Organ with pedal obbligato, six volumes, oblong folio, £1 10s. (published at £3 12s.), or separately, at 5s. 6d. per volume. A list of the Contents sent on application.

London: S. WHITE, 38, Booksellers Row, Strand, W.C.

NEW GRAND MARCH, "CHRISTIAN, THE PILGRIM," for organ or piano. Arranged from Wilford Morgan's sacred Cantata, "Christian, the Pilgrim" (Fifth Edition), as played at Marlborough House, at the Alexandra and Crystal Palaces, and at the Promenade Concerts, with the greatest success. Post-free, 2s. net. Morgan and Co., 18, Surrey Street, W.C.

SCHOTT AND CO.'S
NEW CATALOGUES
OF

PIANOFORTE MUSIC	HARP MUSIC
VIOLIN ,,	CHAMBER MUSIC
TENOR (VIOLA) ,,	(Pianoforte Trios, Quartetts, &c.)
VIOLONCELLO ,,	ORCHESTRAL MUSIC
DOUBLE-BASS ,,	SACRED ,,
FLUTE ,,	MASSES ,,
CLARIONET ,,	ELEMENTARY VOCAL MUSIC
ORGAN ,,	FRENCH ROMANCES

HARMONIUM MUSIC.

AND OF THE WORKS OF

RICHARD WAGNER	ALEX. GUILMANT
CHARLES GOUNOD	CAMILLE SAINT-SAËNS

J. MASSENET.
ALSO THE MELODIES OF
J. FAURE.

May be had, post-free, on application to SCHOTT and Co., 159, Regent Street, London, W.

Just published.
RIENZI:
THE LAST OF THE TRIBUNES.
BY RICHARD WAGNER.

Only complete Vocal Score, German, Italian and English words (the latter by J. PITTMAN). 8vo.

Price, paper covers, net 5s.; paper boards, net 6s.; cloth, richly gilt, net 7s. 6d.

SCHOTT and Co., 159, Regent Street, London, W.

Just published.
SUITE
PRELUDE, MAZURKA, SCHERZO, AND MARCH FOR PIANOFORTE, COMPOSED BY
AGNES ZIMMERMANN.
Op. 22.

Price 10s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MARCH BY GOUNOD.
MARCHE SOLENNELLE
Composed for Full Orchestra
BY
CH. GOUNOD.

TRANSCRIPTION FOR PIANOFORTE	... ...	Solo	4s.
Do.	Do.	Duet	5s.
Do.	ORGAN		3s.
Do.	HARMONIUM and PIANOFORTE		5s.

Orchestral Parts, 6s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW AND CAREFULLY REVISED EDITIONS
OF
MENDELSSOHN'S
LIEDER OHNE WORTE

Octavo, 160 pp., paper covers	4s.	0d.
,, ,, cloth, gilt edges	6s.	0d.

CHEAP EDITION.

Octavo, 104 pp., paper covers	2s.	6d.
,, ,, cloth, gilt edges	4s.	6d.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION
CONTAINING BOOKS 7 and 8.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE PIANIST'S PRACTICAL GUIDE to THEORETICAL KNOWLEDGE and MANUAL EXECUTION. By F. WEBER, Resident Organist, German Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. Third edition, 4s. net. "A work eminently calculated to improve the method of teaching the piano."—Daily News.
London: J. B. CRAMER; NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; SCHOTT and Co.; STANLEY LUCAS and Co.

COMPOSITIONS
BY ARTHUR O'LEARY.

VOCAL.

	s.	d.
SIX SONGS ... ... each	2	6
No. 1. I dream of thee / No. 4. Spring.
,, 2. Ask me not / ,, 5. Silent evening.
,, 3. The return. / ,, 6. The west wind.
He roamed in the forest (sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling)	3	0
Under the lilac (sung by Miss Mary Davies)	4	0
For Rosabelle (sung by Mr. Hilton)	3	0
Listening (Mezzo-soprano)	4	0

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

Berceuse	3	0
L'Adieu (Transcription)	3	0
Fête rustique	3	0
L'Adieu du Conscrit	4	0
Conte Mauresque	3	0
Fleurs et Pleurs	3	0
Chant des Sirènes	4	0
Scène de Chasse	3	0
Pastorale	3	0
Schumann's Fröhlicher Landmann (Transcription)	3	0
Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer" (Transcription)	3	0
Hymn (Flotow's "Stradella") (Transcription)	3	0

NATIONAL AIRS (TRANSCRIBED) ... ... each	2	0
No. 1. Polish Anthem. / No. 5. Polish Air.
,, 2. Danish Air. / ,, 6. Austrian Hymn.
,, 3. Schleswig-Holstein Air. / ,, 7. Greek Air.
,, 4. Russian Hymn.
Wayside Sketches (in Four Numbers) ... ... each	3	0
The Black Knight (Romance)	3	0
Morceau de Concert (There's nae luck). (Performed by Madame Arabella Goddard)	4	0
Where the bee sucks (Transcription)	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE BY LISZT.
ROSE, SOFTLY BLOOMING
ROMANCE
BY L. SPOHR.
TRANSCRIBED FOR THE PIANOFORTE BY
FRANZ LISZT.
Price Three Shillings.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM ACCOMPANIMENTS.

To obviate the difficulty frequently experienced by Country Choral Societies, many of which are unable to procure the assistance of an orchestra for the performance of complete works, Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co. contemplate publishing an arrangement of the Orchestral Accompaniments of many popular works for Pianoforte and Harmonium.

The following are now ready:—

Sterndale Bennett's May Queen,
arranged by J. LEMMENS, folio, paper covers, price 7s. 6d.

Rossini's Stabat Mater,
arranged by J. LEMMENS, folio, paper covers, price 6s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE YOUNG PIANIST'S GUIDE
BY
HEINRICH WOLFAHRT.

Twelfth Edition, containing 206 Exercises. The English translation by ARTHUR O'LEARY.

Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 1s. 6d. each, post-free.

THE COLLEGE MARCH, for Organ or Pianoforte. "Very playable, and would be effective on the organ."—Musical Standard.

LA BELLE. Valse Facile. "A well-written waltz, both as to melody and harmony. We recommend it for teaching purposes, as it is calculated to refine and improve the taste."—Musical Standard.

E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., L. Mus., &c., Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

PICCOLINO

OPÉRA COMIQUE EN TROIS ACTES

DE

V. SARDOU ET CH. NUITTER

MUSIQUE DE

E. GUIRAUD.

	f. c.
PARTITION, PIANO ET CHANT, EN 8° ... ... net	15.0
„ PIANO SEUL, EN 8° ... ... „	10.0

Morceaux de chant detachés

AVEC ACCOMPAGNEMENT DE PIANO.

1. Cavatine de Marthe, 2 tons ... ... chaque	5.0
2. Couplets de Musaraigne, 2 tons ... ... „	5.0
3. Arioso de Tidmann	4.0
4. Cantabile de Marthe, 2 tons	4.0
5. Air de Frédéric	6.0
6. Duo, Eléna et Frédéric	7.50
7. Sérénade de Musaraigne, 2 tons ... ... chaque	3.0
8. Couplets—La Brune, la Blonde, 2 tons ... ... „	5.0
9. Sorrentine de Piccolino, 2 tons ... ... „	5.0
10. Couplets de la réception	5.0
11. Air de Musaraigne	6.0
12. Air de Piccolino—" Il était une bergère "	6.0
13. Duo, Eléna et Piccolino	7.50
14. Nocturne, Marthe et Frédéric	7.50
Le N° 9 en 2 tons, Sorrente avec paroles anglaises de Sidney M. Samuel	5.0

Arrangements pour le Piano.

Battmann (J. L.), Sorrentine—Transcription facile	5.0
Cramer (H.), Bouquet de Mélodies	7.50
Guiraud (E.), Carnaval, 2 mains	7.50
Guiraud (E.), Ouverture à 4 mains ... ... net	4.0
Neustedt (Ch.), Fantaisie—Transcription	6.0
—— Sorrentine—Improvisation	5.0
Vilbac (R. de), Piccolino, 2 suites à 4 mains ... chaque	10.0
Wolff (Ed.), Duo brillant à 4 mains	10.0

Musique de Danse.

Arban, Quadrille à 2 mains	5.0
—— „ 4 „	6.0
—— Polka	5.0
Deransart (E.), Quadrille à 2 mains	5.0
—— „ 4 „	6.0
—— Valse	6.0

Musique instrumentale.

Garibaldi Airs, pour violon seul...	6.0
„ „ „ flûte	6.0
„ „ „ cornet	6.0
Hermann (A.), Fantaisie, violon et piano	9.0

Musique d'Orchestre.

Guiraud (E.), Ouverture—Partition ... ... net	4.0
—— Ouverture—Parties ... ... „	10.0
—— Mélodrame—Partition ... ... „	1.0
—— „ Parties ... ... „	1.0
Arban, Quadrille ... ... „	2.0
—— Polka ... ... „	2.0
Deransart, Quadrille ... ... „	2.0
—— Valse ... ... „	2.0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO'S

ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION OF

OPERAS

Edited, Corrected according to the Original Scores, and Translated into English, by

NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price 2s. 6d. each; or in scarlet cloth, 4s.

	Paper covers.		Scarlet cloth.
AUBER.	s.	d.	s.	d.
FRA DIAVOLO. French and English words	2	6	4	0
MASANIELLO. French and English words	3	6	5	0
BEETHOVEN.
FIDELIO. German and English words..	2	6	4	0
BELLINI.
NORMA. Italian and English words ..	2	6	4	0
LA SONNAMBULA. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
I PURITANI. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
DONIZETTI.
LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
LUCREZIA BORGIA. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
FLOTOW.
MARTHA. German and English words	2	6	4	0
GLUCK.
IPHIGENIA IN AULIS. French and English words	3	0	5	0
IPHIGENIA IN TAURIS. French and English words	2	6	4	0
MEYERBEER.
L'ETOILE DU NORD. Italian and English words	5	0	7	6
MOZART.
DON GIOVANNI. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
LE NOZZE DI FIGARO. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
DIE ZAUBERFLŒTE. German and English words	2	6	4	0
IL SERAGLIO. German and English words	2	6	4	0
ROSSINI.
IL BARBIERE. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
GUILLAUME TELL. French and English words	5	0	7	6
VERDI.
IL TROVATORE. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
RIGOLETTO. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
LA TRAVIATA. Italian and English words	2	6	4	0
ERNANI. Italian and English words ..	2	6	4	0
WAGNER.
TANNHÄUSER. German and English words	3	6	5	0
LOHENGRIN. German and English words	3	6	5	0
FLYING DUTCHMAN. German and English words	3	6	5	0
WEBER.
OBERON. Italian and English words ..	2	6	4	0
DER FREISCHÜTZ. German and English words	2	6	4	0
PRECIOSA. } In the Press.
EURYANTHE. }

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION

OF THE

Oratorios, Cantatas, Masses, &c.

	s.	d.
ASTORGA.
Stabat Mater	1	0
ARMES.
Hezekiah	2	6
BACH.
God goeth up	1	0
BEETHOVEN.
Mass in C. Latin words only, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by Berthold Tours	1	0
Mount of Olives	1	0
Ruins of Athens	1	6
BENNETT.
May Queen	3	0
BRAHMS.
Song of Destiny	1	0
BRIDGE.
Mount Moriah	3	0
CHERUBINI.
Third Mass (Coronation)	1	0
COSTA.
The Dream	1	0
CROTCH.
Palestine	3	0
GADE.
Crusaders	2	0
Comala	2	0
Zion	1	6
Erl-King's Daughter	1	6
Spring's Message	0	8
GADSBY.
Alcestis	4	0
Lord of the Isles	4	0
GRAUN.
Passion of our Lord (Der Tod Jesu)	2	0
Te Deum	2	0
HANDEL.
Sixth Chandos Anthem	1	0
Semele	3	0
The Passion	3	0
Triumph of Time and Truth	3	0
Hercules	3	0
Athaliah	3	0
HAYDN.
1st Mass } Latin words only, and new Pianoforte Accompaniment by Berthold Tours	1	0
2nd Mass }	1	0
HUMMEL.
1st Mass } Latin words only, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by Berthold Tours	1	6
2nd Mass }	1	6
3rd Mass }	1	6
MEYERBEER.
Ninety-First Psalm { Latin words	1	0
Ninety-First Psalm { English words	1	0
MOZART.
Requiem. Latin words only, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by W. T. Best	1	0
PERGOLESI.
Stabat Mater	1	0
ROSSINI.
Moses in Egypt	6	0
SCHUBERT.
Song of Miriam	1	0
SCHUMANN.
New Year's Song	1	0
Advent Hymn—"In lowly guise"	1	0
STAINER.
Daughter of Jairus	1	6
VAN BREE.
St. Cecilia's Day	1	6
WEBER.
Jubilee Cantata	1	0
WESLEY.
O Lord, Thou art my God	1	0

The above may be had in Paper Boards, cloth backs, at 6d. each extra. Also in cloth, gilt edges, at 1s. 6d. or 2s. each extra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES

No.
	BARNBY'S "REBEKAH."
626.	Lo! day's golden glory	8d.
627.	Who shall be fleetest?	1½d.
628.	Fear or doubting	3d.
629.	Protect them, Almighty	6d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S "LAUDA SION."
630.	Praise Jehovah	4d.
631.	By His care	2d.
632.	Sing of judgment	2d.
633.	Ye who from His ways	3d.
634.	They that in much tribulation	2d.
635.	Save the people	6d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S "ATHALIE."
636.	Heaven and the earth display	8d.
637.	Ever blessed Child rejoice	3d.
638.	Lord, let us hear Thy voice	2d.
639.	Depart, ye sons of Aaron	2d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S "MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM."
640.	You spotted snakes	4d.
641.	Through the house	3d.
	WEBER'S MASS IN E FLAT.
642.	Kyrie—Merciful and gracious Lord	3d.
643.	Gloria—Glory be unto God	4d.
644.	Credo—Praise the Lord	4d.
645.	Agnus Dei and Dona nobis—Lord, we pray Thee	2d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S 95TH PSALM.
646.	For His is the sea (New Final Chorus)	4d.
	GADE'S "ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER."
647.	At eve, Sir Oluf reined up his steed	2d.
648.	The sun now mounts	1½d.
	GADE'S "ZION."
649.	Hear, O my flock	2d.
650.	The departure from Egypt / The Lord hath in Egypt	3d.
651.	The captivity in Babylon / But then His flock forsook	6d.
652.	The return—Prophecy of the new Jerusalem / Yet merciful and tender is the Lord	6d.
	GADE'S "CRUSADERS."
653.	Flame-like the sand-waste glows	2d.
654.	Crusader's song (Shine, holy sun)	4d.
655.	Father! from a distant land
656.	Silent, creeping so light	2d.
657.	The wave sweeps my breast (S.A.)	3d.
658.	The welcome sun	2d.
659.	Pilgrim's March	2d.
660.	His head let each Crusader raise	6d.
	J. S. BACH.
661.	Blessing, glory, and wisdom, and thanks	6d.
	HANDEL'S "HERCULES."
662.	Oh, filial piety	3d.
663.	Wanton god of am'rous fires	2d.
664.	Love and Hymen	2d.
665.	To him your gratitude	2d.
	BENNETT'S "MAY QUEEN."
666.	Wake with a smile	4d.
667.	With a laugh as we go round	4d.
668.	Hark! their notes	3d.
669.	Ill-fated boy, begone	3d.
	BEETHOVEN.
670.	A calm sea and a prosperous voyage	4d.
678.	Meek as thou livedst hast thou departed (Elegy)	2d.
	HANDEL'S "ALEXANDER BALUS."
671.	Ye happy nations round	2d.
	WEBER'S "JUBILEE CANTATA."
672.	Wreathe into garlands	3d.
	HAYDN'S SECOND MASS.
673.	Kyrie Eleison	3d.
674.	Gloria in excelsis	4d.
675.	Credo	6d.
676.	Sanctus and Benedictus	3d.
677.	Agnus Dei and Dona nobis	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS BY JOHN HULLAH, LL.D.,

Professor in Queen's College and in Bedford College, London.

WILHEM'S MANUAL of SINGING for the use of Teachers and Pupils. Parts I. and II. Price 2s. 6d. each; or together in cloth, 5s.

EXERCISES and FIGURES contained in Parts I. and II. of the Manual, for the use of Pupils. Books I. and II. Price 8d each.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Figures in Part I. of the Manual. Nos I. to VIII. in a Parcel. Price 6s.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Exercises in Part I. of the Manual. Nos. IX. to XL. in Four Parcels of Eight Nos. each. Price 6s. per parcel.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Figures in Part II. of the Manual. Nos. XLI. to LII. in a Parcel. Price 9s.

TIME and TUNE in the ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, a New Method of Teaching Vocal Music. Price 2s. 6d.

EXERCISES and FIGURES contained in "Time and Tune," for the use of Pupils. Price 1s. sewed in paper, or 1s. 2d. limp cloth. To be had also in two Parts, Price 6d. each sewed in paper, or 8d. each in limp cloth.

CHROMATIC SCALE with the Inflected Syllables used in "Time and Tune," on a Double Sheet of Extra Medium paper, price 1s. 6d.

CARD of the CHROMATIC SCALE, with the Inflected Syllables used in "Time and Tune," price 1d.

NOTATION, the Musical Alphabet, 6d.

RUDIMENTS of MUSICAL GRAMMAR. Price 3s.

GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. Royal 8vo. Two Parts, price 1s. 6d. each.

EXERCISES to GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. Royal 8vo, price 1s.

GRAMMAR of COUNTERPOINT, Part I. Price 2s. 6d.

HYMNS for the YOUNG, New Edition, 8d.

SCHOOL SONGS for Two and Three VOICES. Two Books, 6d. each.

INFANT SCHOOL SONGS. Price 6d.

OLD ENGLISH SONGS for SCHOOLS. Harmonised, 6d.

EXERCISES for the CULTIVATION of the VOICE. 2s. 6d.

London: LONGMANS and Co.

Now Ready, in 8vo, price 3s. 6d.,

PART V. OF

A DICTIONARY

OF

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

EDITED BY GEORGE GROVE, D.C.L.

(Ferrarese del Bene to Guitar.)

London: MACMILLAN and Co.

MUSIC PUPIL'S REGISTER.

By DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

(SPECIMEN COPY, TWELVE STAMPS.)

SECOND EDITION, NOW READY.

(Advertisements can be received for the THIRD Edition.)

"A capitally arranged and really useful little work."—Musical Standard.

"A valuable book; will be found of essential service to music teachers."—Musical World.

"Is alike useful and practical; a copy should be in the hands of every pupil."—Public Opinion.

Address, Secretary, South London Musical Training College, S. James's, Hatcham, S.E.

Now Ready. The 27th Year of Publication.

THE MUSICAL DIRECTORY, ANNUAL, AND ALMANACK for 1879.

CONTENTS:—Remarks on the Past Year; Obituary Notices: an Almanack specially for Musicians; Principal Musical Performances and Events of the Past Year, both in London and the Provinces; a List of New Patents and Inventions in Musical Instruments, &c.; New Copyright Music Published in 1878, &c., &c.; and an Alphabetical List of the Names and Addresses of all Professors of Music, Music-sellers, Instrument Makers, Dealers, &c., throughout the Kingdom.

Prices, in paper covers, 3s.; in crimson cloth, 4s. Also,

THE PROFESSIONAL POCKET BOOK: A Daily and Hourly Engagement Diary for 1879. Specially adapted for Musical and other Professors, and Teachers; under the immediate Direction of Sir Julius Benedict.

This work contains, in addition to the usual information in Almanacks and Pocket Books, spaces ruled and pointed for the entries of Lessons and Appointments for each hour in the day, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., throughout the year. Price 3s. roan, 6s. in russia.

RUDALL, CARTE and Co., 23, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Now ready, No. XVII., 76 columns, price 2d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. Order of your Bookseller. By post, 3d., of Reid and Nephew, Advertising Agents, 14, George Street, Mansion House. Trade supplied by Pitman.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - - E. PAUER.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. CUMMINGS.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - - - DR. STAINER.
5. SINGING (4s. Paper boards, 5s.) A. RANDEGGER.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - - - A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - - E. PAUER.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - - - - DR. STAINER.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - - DR. BRIDGE.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - - - - JAMES HIGGS.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - - - - - DR. STONE.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - - - - REV. J. TROUTBECK.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - - REV. T. HELMORE.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. PROUT.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - - - E. PAUER.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - - JOHN CURWEN.

IN PREPARATION.

4. THE HARMONIUM - - - KING HALL.
12. HISTORY OF MUSIC - - E. PAUER.
17. THE VIOLIN - - - BERTHOLD TOURS.
19. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON - - - - DR. BRIDGE.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN PAPER BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A

MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

Choir-Trainers and Schoolmasters

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight in a comparatively short time.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT.

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Also an APPENDIX, containing faults in action with remedies. Price 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. Hemstock, Diss, Norfolk.

NATURE'S SOLFEGGIO, or Singing Simplified. By ROBERT WHITE. Price 1s.
J. B. CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent Street, W.

Second Edition, now ready.

THE GROWTH and CULTIVATION of the VOICE in SINGING. By Madame ST. GERMAINE. Price 1s.
J. B. CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent Street, W.

TWO-PART SONGS, with PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT (for Schools and Classes).—"Monarch Winter," poetry by W. S. Passmore, 2d.; "The skylark," poetry by R. Y. Sturges, 2d.; "A schoolboy's song," poetry by Edward Lawrence, 2d.; "A spring welcome," poetry by Edward Lawrence, 2d. Music by STEPHEN S. STRATTON.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HANDEL'S ORATORIO

SEMELE

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised from that of the German Handel Society, by

EBENEZER PROUT.

Paper covers, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, MUS. DOC., M.A.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

In Sol-fa Notation, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR SCHOOLS AND SINGING CLASSES.

Now Ready, 15th Edition, price 1s. 6d.

SILCHER'S MELODIES for YOUTH, containing Sixty Songs for two, three, and four equal voices, composed by SILCHER, and adapted to English words for the use of Schools and Singing-Classes, by FRANCIS L. SOPER.

"One of the best publications of its kind."—Athenæum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.
SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., Stationers' Hall Court.

TRUTH AND EASE IN MUSIC. NO MORE SHARP OR FLAT KEYS FOR INSTRUMENTALIST OR VOCALIST.

Just published, price Sixpence, with illustrations, a new edition (1879) of

THE SEQUENTIAL SYSTEM OF MUSICAL NOTATION.

BY WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

"Its completeness and simplicity, when once understood, should recommend it to universal adoption."—Blackburn Standard.

London: E. W. ALLEN, 11, Ave Maria Lane.

Now ready.

FOURTH EDITION, REVISED AND CORRECTED,

A TREATISE ON HARMONY

AND THE

CLASSIFICATION OF CHORDS

WITH

QUESTIONS AND EXERCISES FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS

BY

JOHN STAINER,

Mus. Doc., M.A.

CLOTH, SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

Just published.

(186 pp.)

MUSICAL FORMS

BY

ERNST PAUER.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

PAPER BOARDS, 2s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

SEVENTH THOUSAND

REVISED AND ENLARGED

THE

RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC

BY

W. H. CUMMINGS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

PAPER BOARDS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIXTY-SECOND EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

Third edition, 2s. 6d. net.

COLLEGIATE VOCAL TUTOR.

Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

SECOND EDITION.

COLLEGIATE SOLFEGGI.

ARRANGED FOR

TWO AND THREE VOICES.

SPECIALLY ADAPTED FOR

HIGH SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS, PUBLIC SCHOOLS, & SINGING-CLASSES.

In Three Books, price 3s. each, net.

BOOKS I. AND II., DUETS; BOOK III., TRIOS.

COLLEGIATE ORGAN TUTOR.

EDITED BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

3s. 6d. net.

"Well adapted for making an excellent player."

"For pedal-playing, any difficulties surmounted in a short time."

"Contains the most pleasing arrangements for the organ we have seen."

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

COLLEGIATE PIANOFORTE TUTOR.

5s. (2s. 6d. net.)

FOR BEGINNERS.—"Not to be equalled."
" "Suited for every capacity."
" "Cannot fail to make a good player."
FOR TEACHERS.—"A great boon."
" "Once tried, always used."

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, &c.,

COMPOSED BY

R. L. DE PEARSALL.

SEE "COLLEGIATE SERIES" CATALOGUE.

Post-free.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper covers, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT-BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

JUST PUBLISHED.

BOOK 2.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SINGING MANUAL,

CONTAINING

50 FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS, CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

MOZART'S REQUIEM

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment arranged, by

W. T. BEST.

To which is now added a Preface, by WM. POLE, F.R.S., Mus. Doc., giving a brief historical notice of the work, and describing the evidence as to Mozart's part in the composition.

Paper covers, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

THE LAY OF THE BELL

BY

ANDREAS ROMBERG.

ONE SHILLING.

Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE LORD OF THE ISLES

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

(Founded on Sir Walter Scott's Poem),

BY

FRANK MURRAY.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

Octavo, Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SIX FOUR-PART SONGS

BY

SEYMOUR J. G. EGERTON.

Spring's approach	3d.
Wild rose	3d.
In the woods	3d.
The rose and the soul	1½d.
Adieu to the woods...	3d.
King Winter...	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PART-SONGS.

BERGER, F.

Echoes. "Still the Angel stars." S.A.T.B.	net 2d.

BLUMENTHAL, J.

Night. S.A.T.B.	4d.
Laughing song. S.A.T.B.	4d.
Compassion. S.A.T.B.	4d.
Spring. S.A.T.B.	4d.

CARNALL, A.

A wet sheet and a flowing sea. A.T.B.B.	4d.

HATTON, J. L.

Fairies' banquet. S. 2 MS.C.	net 4d.
Flowers are fading. S. 2 MS.C.	" 4d.
Sea Nymphs, The. S. 2 MS.C.	" 4d.
Afar on the rolling sea. S.C.T.B.	" 4d.
Little things. S.C.T.B.	" 4d.
Unchanged. S.C.T.B.	" 4d.
Word and the look, The. S.C.T.B.	" 4d.
Night music. S.C.T.B.	" 4d.

HOLLAND, C.

Steadily, steadily. Boat song. S.A.T.B.	net 6d.

OFFENBACH, J.

Good-night. Serenade ("Creole"). S.MS.A.T	net 6d.

PINSUTI, C.

Two Angel hands. A.T. 1st and 2nd B....	net 6d.

J. B. CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent Street, W.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD TOURS. In one volume, Cloth, gilt, price 5s.; or in two parts, in Paper covers, 2s. each; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d. each.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, without accompaniment. Price, in Paper covers, 1s.; in Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; or twelve numbers divided as follows, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 41.
1. In the woods ... ...
2. O fly with me ... ...
3. One night there came ...
4. Over the grave ... ...
5. May song ... ...
6. On the sea ... ...

Op. 48.
7. The first day of Spring ...
8. The primrose ... ...
9. The celebration of Spring
10. The lark's song ... ...
11. Morning Prayer (The deep repose of night) ...
12. Autumn song ... ...

Op. 59.
13. The woods ... ...
14. Early Spring ... ...
15. Departure (O hills, O vales)
16. The nightingale ... ...
17. The vale of rest ... ...
18. Hunting song ... ...

Op. 88.
19. For the New Year ...
20. The happy lover ...
21. The shepherd's song ...
22. The wood minstrels ...
23. The victors' return ...
24. The wandering minstrel...

Op. 100.
25. Remembrance ... ...
26. Praise of Spring ... ...
27. Spring song ... ...
28. In the forest ... ...

 A Tonic Sol-fa Edition of the above Songs (for S.A.T.B.) is in preparation.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, with ad lib. Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d; or twenty-one numbers, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 50.
29. Turkish drinking song.
30. The hunter's farewell.
31. Summer song.
32. On the water.
33. Love and wine.
34. Wanderer's song.

Op. 75.
35. The merry wayfarer.
36. Serenade.
37. Eastern drinking song.
38. Farewell meeting.

Op. 76.
39. Song of the worthy man.
40. The Rhine.
41. 'Tis the song whose spirit.
42. Students' parting song.

Op. 120.
43. A festal greeting.
44. Gipsy song.
45. Hunting song (Waken, lords).
46. Land of beauty.
47. The recompense.
48. Night song.
49. The foundation-day festival.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S ONLY COMPLETE AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS

With the German and W. BARTHOLOMEW'S Original English Words.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 5s. net. Octavo (German and English words), paper, 2s. net; cloth, gilt, 4s. net; or singly, 3s. each. The separate Numbers are sold at half-price.

No. 1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from Ruy Blas.

N.B.—The Quartett score to No. 13, 1s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

POPULAR FOUR-PART SONGS BY GABRIEL DAVIS.

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN ... ... 2d.
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE (14th Edition) ... 2d.
THE DISTANT SEA ... ... 2d.
TO THE WOODS ... ... 2d.
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC ... ... 2d.
THE HOUR OF REST ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

"ENGLAND'S GLORY"

PATRIOTIC PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Octavo, Threepence.

By WILLIAM J. YOUNG.

"Gaily through the greenwood." 8vo. 28th edition ... ... 2d.
"I love the merry springtime." 8vo. 20th edition ... ... 2d.
"Hail, merry Christmas." 8vo. 16th edition ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MANCHESTER GENTLEMEN'S GLEE CLUB'S PRIZE GLEES, 1878.

HUSHED IN DEATH.

A SERIOUS GLEE FOR S.A.T.B.

COMPOSED BY DR. H. HILES. PRICE SIXPENCE.

The original Edition for A.T.B.B. Price Sixpence.

HENCE, LOATHED MELANCHOLY!

A CHEERFUL GLEE FOR FIVE VOICES.

COMPOSED BY HENRY LAHEE. PRICE SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Sung by the London Glee and Madrigal Union.

A FRANKLYN'S DOGGE LEPED OVER A STYLE.

PART-SONG FOR MALE VOICES.

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.—Reduced Prices.

Choral Songs for School & Home.

FORTY-TWO ORIGINAL SONGS FOR ONE, TWO, OR FOUR VOICES.

COMPOSED BY ROBERT JACKSON.

Cloth, complete, 2s. 6d.; Parts I. and II., paper cover, 1s. each; Single Numbers, 1d.

From Concordia.

"This little book is designed for singing-classes in schools, and the simplicity, tunefulness, and attractiveness of the small compositions it contains eminently adapt it for such a purpose."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

HAIL TO THE CHIEF

Boat Song from Sir WALTER SCOTT'S "Lady of the Lake."

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EBENEZER PROUT.

Octavo, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHORUSES

FROM

SCHUBERT'S "ROSAMUNDE."

CHORUS OF SHEPHERDS ("Forth to the meadows") ... 3d.
HUNTING CHORUS ("How merry is life") ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 2s. net.

NEW SONG,

THE ZINGARA.

Written and composed by GABRIEL DAVIS.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

£330 FOR A SONG.—J. L. HATTON'S "A bird sang in a hawthorn tree" realised this sum at a recent sale of copyrights. Published in D and F. Price 4s. The profession can have one specimen copy, post-free, for six stamps, by sending card to the publisher.

London: J. A. MILLS, 60, Moorgate Street.

HERE'S TO HIS HEALTH IN A SONG. By J. M. BENTLEY. "Sung with great effect on festive or civic occasions." "The finest masonic song ever composed." Post-free, 2s. 18, St. Ann's Street, Manchester.

THE BEST SONGS for PENNY READINGS, &c., are THE WAGONER, by WRIGHTON and EDWD. OXENFORD, for Baritone or Bass; THE LIGHTHOUSE, by A. J. DYE, for Baritone or Bass. Sung by Brocolini. Either of above post-free for 2s. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, London, W.

No. 4, Just out.

SIMPSON'S FLUTE GEMS, easily and effectively arranged for Flute and Pianoforte, by BENJAMIN WELLS, A.R.A.M. No. 1. "Home, sweet home" and "Where the bee sucks." No. 2. "Auld Lang Syne" and "Blue Bells of Scotland." No. 3. "Last Rose of Summer" and "Harp that once." No. 4. "Ash Grove" and "Bells of Aberdovey." Post-free, 1s. 6d. each. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, London, W.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:—

No.		s.	d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper covers	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo	1	6
„	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type, Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK, containing 258 Tunes and 85 Chants.

No. 1.	Limp cloth, turned in		2s. 6d.
„ 2.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered		3s. 6d.
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 3.	Limp cloth, turned in		2s. od.
„ 4.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered		2s. 6d.

About 250,000 copies have already been sold.

Now Ready.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK (Second Series), containing 298 Tunes and 74 Chants.

No. 5.	Limp cloth		2s. 6d.
6.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered		3s. 6d.
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 7.	Limp cloth		2s. od.
„ 8.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered		2s. 6d.

First and Second Series Bound together.

No. 9.	Limp cloth		4s. od.
„ 10.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered		5s. od.
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa, cloth		3s. od.

Now Ready.

SMALL EDITION of the COMPLETE WORK.

715 Tunes and Chants, providing for nearly 200 Varieties of Metre.

No. 11. Cloth ... 3s. od.

Each Edition may be had in Superior Binding.

Communications and inquiries as to Copyrights, and also as to supplies of this work at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; and all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Now Ready.

THE LONDON TUNE-BOOK. A Companion for all Hymnals. Cloth, 3s.; red edges, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Enlarged Edition.

TUNES, NEW AND OLD; comprising all the Metres in the Wesleyan Hymn-Book. Also, Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON; and for the most part revised or re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc.; JOHN FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon.; and SAMUEL REAY, Mus. Bac., Oxon. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, and 80 & 81, Queen Street. Sold also at 66, Paternoster Row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 5s. TONIC SOL-FA EDITION: plain cloth, 2s.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 3s.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE BURNLEY TUNE-BOOK.—NOTICE.—An ADDENDA of nearly 500 Tunes, inclusive of all the old favourite and standard Tunes, will shortly be added, and every known metre will be provided for. MSS. received. Address, the Editor, Burnley.

Just published. Price 10s. 6d., cloth boards.

200 HYMN-TUNES, by ARTHUR WOLFE, Rector of Fornham All Saints', Bury St. Edmunds, and late Tutor of Clare College, Cambridge.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price (A) limp cloth, 1s. 4d.; (B) cloth boards, 1s. 6d.,

ALL SAINTS' PSALTER. Pointed by the Rev. C. A. STEVENS, M.A., Vicar of All Saints', Blackheath.

National Society's Depository, the Sanctuary, Westminster.

Reduced price to members and the clergy.

IN MEMORIAM.—A Collection of the Hymn-Tunes of the late JOHN ROBERTS, of Henllan. Price 2s. 6d. post-free. To be had from W. H. Roberts, Mansfield House, Seacombe.

"Some are remarkable for freshness and originality. Evidently the author of these tunes was gifted by nature with genuine talents for music."—The Musical Times.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH.—TE DEUM in F, Threepence. SOUTHWELL SCHOOL SONGS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE MORNING SERVICE. Set to music in the key of C, by EDWIN J. CROW, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist and Choirmaster of Ripon Cathedral. Octavo. One Shilling and sixpence. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; or direct from the Author.

EASY and EFFECTIVE TE DEUMS for Parish Choirs, by ALFRED J. DYE. In E flat, price 3d.; organ copy, 6d.; and in D, price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE

OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION

Set to Music in the Key of E Flat

BY

ALFRED J. EYRE,

Organist and Director of the Choir of St. Peter's, Vauxhall.

Price One Shilling.

The "BENEDICTUS QUI VENIT" and "AGNUS DEI" can be had separately, price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A MORNING SERVICE, Te Deum, Jubilate, and Kyrie. By the Rev. EDWARD YOUNG. Tenth edition, abbreviated for Parochial use. Organ and Choir Copies, 4d. each.

"Melodious, vocal, and nicely harmonised—that is, without pretence or straining at effect; and they declaim the words devoutly and emphatically."—Musical Times.

"Good points and tuneful passages."—Musical Standard.

"The intelligent, devoted, and devotional spirit in which every note seems to have been composed furnishes one of the best guarantees for excellence."—English Churchman.

"All competent criticism will be found in accordance with the verdict of a high professional authority as to 'abundant proof of imagination, poetical conception, and musical feeling.'"—Christian Observer.

"The strain is devotional, and harmonies full, solemn, and massive, ... He fairly claims to have dug a channel for the devout utterance of the words."—Bristol Times.

Also,

VENITE, Organ or Choir Copies, 4d.

CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR, Organ or Choir Copies, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE NICENE CREED.

THE NICENE CREED, principally from Ancient Sources, in Unison. With Organ Accompaniment. By Sir JOHN GOSS. 8vo, 3d.; Voice Part, 1d.

THE NICENE CREED, composed by MERBECKE. With Organ Accompaniment arranged by JOHN STAINER. Folio, 6d.; Unison copy, 1d.

THE NICENE CREED, composed by MERBECKE. With Organ Accompaniment arranged by JOSEPH BARNBY. 8vo, 1½d.

THE NICENE CREED, for Four Voices, or for Voices in Unison. With Organ Accompaniment. By JOHN STAINER. Folio, 6d.; without Accompaniment, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus.Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Thirteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper covers; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small Edition is in preparation.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

No. 1. Let your light so shine.	13. Charge them who are rich.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	14. God is not unrighteous.
3. Whatsoever ye would that men.	15. To do good.
4. Not every one that saith unto Me.	16. Whoso hath this world's goods.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
7. If we have sown.	19. He that hath pity upon the poor.
8. Do ye not know.	20. Blessed be the man.
9. He that soweth little.	21. Let your light so shine, Festal Setting.
10. Let him that is taught.
11. While we have time.
12. Godliness is great riches.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PAROCHIAL ANTHEMS, by T. MEE PATTISON.

O PRAISE THE LORD (Chorus, Duet for Two Trebles, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NULLA SILENTIUM.—Latin Hymn, in Vocal Score. 3d. By LOUISA F. ESSINGTON. C. Lonsdale, 26, Old Bond Street.

Just published.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES.

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. T. FIELD.

1. Let your light so shine.	11. While we have time.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	12. Godliness is great riches.
3. Whatsoever ye would.	13. Charge them who are rich.
4. Not every one.	14. God is not unrighteous.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	15. To do good.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	16. Whoso hath this world's good.
7. If we have sown.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
8. Do ye not know.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
9. He that soweth little.	19. He that hath pity.
10. Let him that is taught.	20. Blessed be the man.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Edition.

THE OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION, viz.: Kyrie, Creed, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in Excelsis. Set to music (chiefly in unison) by FREDERICK CAMBRIDGE. 8vo, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY SOUL TRULY WAITETH STILL UPON GOD. Anthem for Four Voices. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d.; octavo, 4d.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD. Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 2s. 6d.; octavo, 8d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM (New).—"O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS," W. H. WILSON. Solo, Quartett, and Chorus. (Time of performance, six minutes.) Suitable for Festival or Dedication Services. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready, 8vo, price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED. Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ANTHEM FOR LENT.

BOW DOWN THINE EAR, O LORD

Composed by J. J. SIMPSON,

FOR PAROCHIAL CHOIRS.

"Short, easy, and effective." 8vo. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC BY ALEX. S. COOPER.

BENEDICITE. Three different Settings. Second edition. Price 3d.
COMMUNION SERVICE. Equally adapted for singing in Unison or in Harmony. Fourth edition. Price 1s.
NICENE CREED. Ely Prize Setting. Fourth edition. Price 6d. Unison copy, 1d.
ATHANASIAN CREED, with Appropriate Chants. Price 3d.
COME UNTO ME. Short Full Anthem. Fourth edition. Price 3d.
SECOND SERIES OF UNISON CHANTS. With varied Accompaniments. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; WEEKES and Co.

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST'S

EASY CHURCH MUSIC.

Composed expressly for Parish Choirs.

Almighty God, give us grace	Anthem	2d.
Almighty and everlasting God	,,	2d.
And I will pray the Father	,,	2d.
God is gone up	,,	2d.
Hear my prayer	,,	2d.
He shall be great	,,	3d.
Like as Christ was raised up	,,	3d.
Thou visitest the earth	,,	3d.
The Offertory Sentences (complete)		4d.
Te Deum Laudamus, in G major		3d.
Morning Service, in C major		4d.
Communion Service, ditto		6d.
Evening Service, ditto		2d.
Complete Service, ditto		1s.
Ten Kyries and Glorias before and after Gospel		3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 73, Farleigh Road, Stoke Newington, N.

REDUCED PRICE.

Third edition enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper covers; 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS

SINGLE AND DOUBLE

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants, which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

FOR LENT.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST.

Set to Music by

G. F. HANDEL.

Octavo, paper covers, 3s. Paper boards, 3s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(ACCORDING TO S. MATTHEW.)

Set to Music by

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(ACCORDING TO S. JOHN.)

Set to Music by

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS.)

Set to Music by

J. HAYDN.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS.)

Set to Music by

CH. GOUNOD.

Octavo, paper covers, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(DER TOD JESU.)

Set to Music by

C. H. GRAUN.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR LENT.

Price 2d.

BENEDICITE

BY ARTHUR PAGE,

Nottingham.

May be had of the Composer.

BENEDICITE. By Haydn Keeton, Organist of Peterborough Cathedral. Price 2d. London: Novello, Ewer & Co.

FOR LENT.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING

MODERN COMPOSERS.

Octavo Size.

GEORGE C. MARTIN	4d.
W. T. BEST	3d.
J. BARNBY	1½d.
JOHN FOSTER	1½d.
MONTEM SMITH (two settings)	1½d.
J. TURLE (two settings)	1½d.
REV. C. A. WICKES (two settings)	1½d.
HENRY GADSBY	2d.
DR. STAINER, R. de Lacey, A. Gibbs, and F. Champneys	1½d.
DR. STAINER, W. Winn, and F. Walker	1½d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE MISERERE, &c.

As used in S. Paul's Cathedral at Special Lenten Services.

ARRANGED BY JOHN STAINER.

Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. BARNBY.

Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SANCTUS, IN A MAJOR

(Being the Chorus of Angels, Quartett, and Chorus of Israelites, from the Oratorio of "Judith"), by Dr. BRADFORD.

Price 4d.

Address, Secretary, South London Musical Training College, S. James's, Hatcham, S.E.

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS

(IN C)

BY

EATON FANING.

Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, 1878.

Octavo, 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

COMPOSITIONS by William Hope, Organist of Christ Church, Heaton Norris.

	s.	d.
Anthem, "Praised be the Lord" ... ... folio	1	6
Five Offertory Sentences	0	3

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Easy Anthems for School Sermons, "Remember now thy Creator" 2d.

Hymn Tunes, Chants, and Kyries (first series) ... ... 6d.

Manchester: Jones and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S

EASTER ANTHEM.

THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH. Short, easy, and effective. Octavo, 3d. "Mr. Lowe writes with the gravity and earnestness of a true composer for the Church. This little Anthem is well adapted to meet the wants of small choirs, and cannot fail of acceptance when looked at from the higher ground of religious edification. Moreover, it shows a thoroughly musicianly spirit, and that rare gift, the ars est celare artem."—Sunday Times.

"This Anthem amply fulfils the announcement on the title-page; it is 'short' and 'easy'—the subjects, moreover, being both melodious and well harmonised. The unexpected chord of B flat, after the lingering of the voices upon D, is a point worthy of attention; and the manner in which the harmonies flow towards the final close is well deserving of commendation. The Anthem will, we think, be found extremely useful."—Musical Times.

"Mr. Lowe has contributed to Church congregations and choral societies a 'short, easy, and full' Anthem, which is calculated to afford much satisfaction, and to be largely in request. The subject is treated in a truly devotional spirit, and with musicianly skill, and it is well harmonised."—News of the World.

"An excellent Anthem."—The Church Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICE

Set to music in the key of A, by

F. MENDELSSOHN BARTHOLDY.

Op. 69.

New Edition, edited by Dr. STAINER.

Octavo, One Shilling and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE

BACH CHOIR MAGAZINE

SELECT VOCAL PART-MUSIC OF DIFFERENT SCHOOLS.

Edited and marked for the use of the Bach Choir by

OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT.

Adoramus te. Motett	Palestrina / Vittoria	3d.
Jesu Dulcis. Motett
Presentation of Christ in the Temple. Motett, 6 voices	Eccard	6d.
Hodie Christus natus est. Christmas Motett, 2 choirs	Palestrina	6d.
Now is Christ risen. Choral-Motett, 5 voices	Michael Bach	3d.
Sanctus (Missa Papæ Marcelli)	Palestrina	6d.
Benedictus and Agnus Dei (Missa Papæ Marcelli) ...	Palestrina	6d.
Magnificat. 8 voices	Gabrieli	6d.
Now shall the grace. Double Chorus	J. S. Bach	8d.
Psalm xxiii. Solo Voices and Eight-part Chorus ...	L. Spohr	9d.
Adoramus te. Motett	Palestrina / Vittoria	4d.
O quam gloriosum. Motett
Sanctus...	J. S. Bach	6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

HARK! 'TIS THE BREEZE OF TWILIGHT CALLING. Duet. Soprano and Tenor, or Two Soprani, 4s. Also Solo, arranged as a Song for a Single Voice, in a lower key, 4s. Sold at half-price. Sung by Her Grace the Duchess of Newcastle, Mdlle. Titiens, Miss Banks, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Tom Höhler, and Mr. W. H. Cummings.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"There is a beautiful duet, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze,' which may be sung by young ladies' or boys' voices, and would be well worth introducing into our schools and colleges."—Dublin Review.

"The gem of the Oratorio—a duet for soprano and tenor, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze,' in which the voice parts are treated in canon."—Times.

"A charming duet, entitled, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' was enthusiastically encored."—Morning Advertiser.

"The most melodious and completely finished composition is the canon, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' and this was encored with well-bestowed enthusiasm."—Daily Telegraph.

"The really charming duet, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' produced a most spontaneous and enthusiastic encore."—Standard.

"A graceful duet in form of canon, 'Hark! 'tis the breeze of twilight calling,' one of the most charming pieces in the Oratorio, was unanimously encored."—London Review.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Organ Work, dedicated to W. T. Best, in oblong folio, with Pedal Obbligato.

GUSTAV HERMANN'S SIX ORIGINAL PIECES.

No. 1. Quasi duetto.
„ 2. Harvest March.
„ 3. The Pilgrim's Return (Fantasia).
No. 4. Dolce far niente (Pastorale).
„ 5. Concert March.
„ 6. Promenade Militaire (Fanfare).

These pieces are rapidly rising in favour with good Organists, and will be welcome to all who desire effective original works of moderate difficulty, uniting the resources of the modern with the purity of the old school. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each; the set, 6s., stamps.

London: EWALD and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

RIX'S NEW FLUTE MUSIC.—SIX ORIGINAL DUETS for FLUTE and PIANO, by this rising Composer, forming a most important contribution to the flautist's répertoire, are now ready, 2s. each, or 8s. the set, post-free.

London: EWALD and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS

FROM THE

GREAT MASTERS,

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN

With Pedal Obbligato by

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.
1. "Wedding March," by Mendelssohn.
2. March from "Tannhäuser," by Wagner.
3. March from "Scipio," also from Occasional Oratorio, both by Handel.
4. "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Prophète."
5. "The Dead March" in "Saul" and "See the conquering hero comes," both by Handel.
6. Andantino, from the 11th Grand Symphony by Haydn, and "Waft her, angels," from Handel's "Jephtha."
7. "As pants the hart," from Spohr's "Crucifixion," and "Where'er you walk," from Handel's "Semele."
8. "My heart ever faithful" (Mein gläubiges Herz frohlocket), by Bach.
9. Andantino from the 5th and Andante from the 4th Sonatas, by Pleyel.
10. "The Hero's March," by Mendelssohn.
11. "Quis est homo?" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
12. Air et Chœur, from "La Dame Blanche," by Boieldieu.
13. Grande Marche Héroïque in C, by Fr. Schubert.
14. Grande Marche Héroïque in D, by Fr. Schubert.
15. Overture, "Berenice," by Handel.
16. Overture, "Sosarmes," by Handel.
17. Handel's Overture, "Alcina."
18. Gavotte, from Handel's Overture, "Otho."
19. "La Carità," by Rossini.
20. "Angels ever bright and fair," and "Pious orgies," both by Handel.
21. "Ave Maria," by Franz Schubert.
22. Aria, by Antonio Lotti. Circa 1700.
23. "My soul thirsteth for God," Aria from Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm.
24. "Gloria in excelsis," from Weber's Mass in G.
25. "Fac ut portem," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
26. "Pietà, Signore," from the Oratorio "San Giovanni Battista," by Stradella.
27. Handel's Overture to "Julius Cæsar."
28. Serenade, by Franz Schubert.
29. Aria, by Cavaliere Gluck. 1765.
30. Aria, from "Alcina," by Handel.
31. Aria, from "Artaserse," by Leonardo Vinci. 1730.
32. Cantata, by Alessandro Scarlatti.
33. Aria, by Ch. Gluck. 1769.
34. Aria, by Domenico Cimarosa. 1784.
35. "Diedi il Coro," Aria by Handel.
36. Siciliana Long.
37. Andante.
38. Aria, by Padre Martini. 1763.

[Continuing.]

Price Two Shillings each.

Volume I., bound in cloth, containing 20 numbers of above, now ready.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row.

Price 5s., paper covers; or 7s. 6d., handsomely bound in scarlet cloth, gilt lettered, gilt bordered, and gilt edges.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST. New Edition, complete in One Volume. It contains 78 Voluntaries, all of which, except 4, were composed expressly for the work by nearly all the most eminent English musicians.

"Shows in an interesting manner the present state of musicianship in England."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FIVE INTRODUCTORY VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN. Composed by T. MEE PATTISON.

These Voluntaries, of medium difficulty, with Pedal Obbligato, will be found eminently useful for the introduction of Divine Service, both as regards character and length. Price 3s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY CHLORIS, MARK HOW GREEN THE GROVES. Quartett. The Poetry by ROBERT BURNS. The Music by JOHN BULMER. Octavo, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORATORIOS AND MASSES

ARRANGED FOR

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

	s.	d.
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	5	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	5	0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	2	6
MOZART'S SECOND MASS	3	0
MOZART'S SEVENTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S FIFTEENTH MASS (REQUIEM)	4	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready.

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

SONGS FOR SAILORS

WRITTEN BY

W. C. BENNETT,

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. L. HATTON.

ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO, CONTAINING

FORTY SONGS:

Trafalgar.
Would you be a sailor's wife?
A fisher-wife's song.
Nay, never cry, lass.
A kiss to take to sea.
Homeward bound.
The Nile.
The apparition.
The Dutchman's broom.
Take me, lass, for life.
The fine old English admiral.
Ring, happy bells.
The forsaken.
The sailor's dream.
To sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.
A thousand leagues away.
Strike, and strike hard.
Were I that gull.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.
Saturday night at sea.
Duncan at Camperdown.
Rum.
Rodney and De Grasse.
From sea.
A wife's song.
The winds, inconstant ever.
Old Benbow.
There's nothing like a smoke.
The seaboy's dream.
A song of the sea.
The wife for a British sailor.
We roam and rule the sea.
The homeward watch.
Off to sea.
A mother's song.
Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
A Christmas song.
Outward bound.
Herrings are in the bay.

With Illustrated Cover and Engraved Portrait of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

	s.	d.
A name in the sand	4	0
O mother dear, good night	2	6
O say not woman's love is bought	2	6
A wish	2	6
How shall I picture thee, ladye fair?	3	0
Solitude	4	0
Stars of the summer night	4	0
(Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves.)
The sea hath its pearls	3	0
To Blossoms	3	0
Tears of childhood	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
THREE SONGS, Op. 17. The Poetry by Christina Rossetti.
No. 1. The first spring-day	3	0
„ 2. When I am dead	3	0
„ 3. A birthday	3	0
The song of love and death. From Tennyson's "Idylls of the King"	3	0
In our boat. The poetry by Miss Muloch	4	0
While my lady sleepeth. Serenade. The words translated from the Spanish by J. G. Lockhart	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONG FOR THE NEW YEAR

COMPOSED BY

ROBERT SCHUMANN.

The English Version translated from the German of Friedrich Rückert by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.

Octavo, One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SPECIAL PRIZE GLEE.

"Humpty Dumpty" ... ... 6d.

"Jack and Jill" ... ... 4d.
"Yule" ... ... 4d.

Post-free of the Composer, ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Worcester.

In the Press, "Little Jack Horner."

HUMPTY DUMPTY AND JACK AND JILL,

BY

A. J. CALDICOTT.

These popular glees are now published in TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Price 1½d. each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

BEETHOVEN'S ELEGY

"MEEK, AS THOU LIVEDST, HAST THOU DEPARTED."

Octavo, 2d.

"A CALM SEA AND A PROSPEROUS VOYAGE."

CHORUS FOR FOUR VOICES.

Octavo, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RAMEAU'S GAVOTTE

TRANSCRIBED FOR THE PIANOFORTE

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

Three Shillings.

String Parts, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWO SETS OF

SIXTY VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED FOR

THE HARMONIUM

BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

Price One Shilling each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY

A CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES.

POETRY WRITTEN BY

ALFRED TENNYSON,

MUSIC COMPOSED BY

HENRY LAHEE.

Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE WATER-FAIRIES

A CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES.

Poetry written by EDWARD OXENFORD.

MUSIC COMPOSED BY

FRANZ ABT.

Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE

LIFE OF MOZART,

INCLUDING HIS CORRESPONDENCE,

BY

EDWARD HOLMES.

A new Edition, with Notes, by EBENEZER PROUT.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SCENES FROM

GOETHE'S FAUST

Composed for Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra, by

ROBERT SCHUMANN.

The Translation by Miss LOUISA VANCE. Paper covers, 3s.; scarlet cloth, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth ..	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper covers. 32mo	0	3
Canticles, 32mo	0	1
Ditto, 8vo	0	3
The Psalter, with Chants, Post Quarto, cloth ..	5	0

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post Quarto, paper covers	2	0
Ditto, cloth	3	0
Foolscap Quarto, paper covers	1	0
Ditto, cloth	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The Musical Times.

CASES

FOR BINDING THE NUMBERS FOR THE PAST YEAR,

VOLUME XIX.,

Are now ready, and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country.

Cloth, bevelled boards, handsome design.

PRICE 1s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

New and Enlarged Edition.

THE

WESTMINSTER ABBEY CHANT-BOOK.

EDITED BY

JAMES TURLE,

AND

J. F. BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Paper Cover, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.
Edited by Dr. STAINER.

CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING

BY THE

REV. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.,

PRIEST IN ORDINARY TO THE QUEEN, & MINOR CANON OF WESTMINSTER.

Price 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE

MORNING & EVENING SERVICE

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF A

BY

DR. WILLIAM CROFT

AND

DR. STEPHEN ELVEY

Edited by George C. Martin,
Sub-Organist, St. Paul's Cathedral.

Price Two Shillings; or, singly:—

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS	6d.
JUBILATE DEO	4d.
KYRIE ELEISON. NICENE CREED. SANCTUS... ...	6d.
MAGNIFICAT	4d.
NUNC DIMITTIS	3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.
JUST PUBLISHED.

MENDELSSOHN'S OVERTURES

In One Volume, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges.

Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 10.	Marriage of Camacho.	Op. 36.	St. Paul.
„ 21.	Midsummer Night's Dream.	„ 60.	Walpurgis Night.
„ 24.	Military Band.	„ 70.	Elijah.
„ 26.	Hebrides.	„ 74.	Athalie.
„ 27.	A Calm Sea.	„ 89.	Son and Stranger.
„ 32.	Melusine.	„ 95.	Ruy Blas.
		„ 101.	Trumpet.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.
JUST PUBLISHED.

MENDELSSOHN'S SYMPHONIES

In One Volume, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges.

Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 11. First Symphony.
„ 52. Second Symphony (Lobgesang).
„ 56. Third Symphony (Scotch).
„ 90. Fourth Symphony (Italian).
„ 107. Fifth Symphony (Reformation).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO'S TONIC SOL-FA SERIES,

TRANSLATED AND EDITED BY

W. G. McNAUGHT.

ANTHEMS, CHORUSES, PART-SONGS, &c.

Nos. 1 to 98 now ready.

		s.	d.
ATHALIE	Mendelssohn	1	0
CHRISTUS	Mendelssohn	0	6
CRUSADERS	Niels W. Gade	1	0
ELIJAH	Mendelssohn	1	6
ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER	Niels W. Gade	0	9
HEAR MY PRAYER	Mendelssohn	0	3
HYMN OF PRAISE (Lobgesang)	Mendelssohn	1	0
LAST JUDGMENT	Spohr	1	0
LAUDA SION ("Praise Jehovah")	Mendelssohn	0	9
LORD, HOW LONG WILT THOU FORGET ME (Psalm xiii)...	Mendelssohn	0	4
LORELEY	Mendelssohn	0	6
MAY QUEEN	Sir W. S. Bennett	1	0
SONG FOR THE NEW YEAR	Schumann	0	6

Complete lists sent free on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

A NEW WORK FOR THE HARMONIUM.

THE HARMONIUM BOOK

FOR THE CHURCH

A SELECTION OF

SOFT AND LOUD VOLUNTARIES,

CHANTS FOR THE CANTICLES, RESPONSES, GLORIAS,

KYRIES, SANCTUSES, OFFERTORY SENTENCES,

HYMN-TUNES, &c.

EXPRESSLY ARRANGED FOR THE HARMONIUM,

With full directions for the use of the stops, by

EDWARD F. RIMBAULT.

PRICE 5s.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

J. LEYBACH'S L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE

120 MORCEAUX FACILES POUR HARMONIUM OU ORGUE.

In two Vols., each 6s. net; or eight parts, each 2s. net.

"This work will be found very useful to the amateur organist."

NEW WORK FOR SINGING CLASSES.

CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

The present collection of Part-Songs is entirely new, being selected and adapted from the most striking and popular Choruses in the Favourite Foreign Operas. The Arrangement is purely Vocal, such Choruses only being chosen as can be sung without the aid of an Instrumental Accompaniment. The Words have been expressly written for the work, and the harmonies arranged in four parts, as likely to be most useful in small classes.

1.	Hymn of the Fisherman's Children	Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "Zampa."
2.	Fays and Elves (In mia fe)	From Flotow's "Marta."
3.	Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvezia non v' ha)	From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
4.	From Yonder Vale and Hill (D' immenso giubilo)	From Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."
5.	Here we rest (Qui la selva)	From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
6.	Onward to Battle (Squilli echeggi)	From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
7.	Rataplan (Rataplan)	From Donizetti's "La Figlia del Reggimento."
8.	The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche)	From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
9.	War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica)	From Bellini's "Norma."
10.	In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente)	From Donizetti's "La Figlia del Reggimento."
11.	Come to the Fair! (Accorete, giovinette)	From Flotow's "Marta."
12.	Friendship (Per te d' immenso giubilo)	From Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."
13.	Away, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen)	From Auber's "Masaniello."
14.	Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus)	From Gounod's "Faust."
15.	The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus)	From Weber's "Preciosa."
16.	See how lightly on the Blue Sea (Senti la danza invitaci)	From Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia."
17.	See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Motto)	" "
18.	On yonder Rocks reclining	From Auber's "Fra Diavolo."
19.	Happy and light	From Balfe's "Bohemian Girl."
20.	Come, come away (Ah! que de moins)	From Donizetti's "La Favorita."
21.	Hymen's torch (Il destin)	From Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots."
22.	Come on, Comrade (The Celebrated Chorus of Old Men)	From Gounod's "Faust."
23.	'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross)	" "
24.	O Balmy Night (Com' è gentil)	From Donizetti's "Don Pasquale."
25.	Haste o'er the hills (Introductory Chorus)	From Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell."
26.	Come, sing the Song (Opening Chorus)	From Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable."
27.	With fair Ceres (The March Chorus)	From Bellini's "Norma."
28.	The Tuneful Song of Robin's Horn (Tyrolese Chorus)	From Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell."
29.	The Chorus of Huntsmen	From Weber's "Der Freischuetz."
30.	Hark! the distant hills (Hunting Chorus)	From Flotow's "Marta."
31.	Hence! away with care	From Meyerbeer's "Gli Ugonotti."
32.	Hail to the Bride	From Wagner's "Lohengrin."
33.	Hark! music stealing! (subject from Overture)	From Rossini's "Semiramide."
34.	A bridal wreath we twined (Chorus of Bridesmaids)	From Weber's "Der Freischuetz."
35.	Behold, how brightly breaks the Morning! (The Barcarole)	From Auber's "Masaniello."
36.	From hill to hill resounding (subject from Overture)	From Auber's "Fra Diavolo."

Postage-free, 1½d. each; or Three for 3½d.

(To be continued.)

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co. at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row; and by Ditson and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Saturday, February 1, 1879.

CHAPPELL AND CO.,

SOLE AGENTS,

50, NEW BOND STREET.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S

IMPROVED

AMERICAN ORGANS.

COMBINING PIPES WITH REEDS.

The immense advantages these Instruments possess over the Organs hitherto Imported, have induced Messrs. CHAPPELL and CO. to undertake the Sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory.

THE

Clough & Warren's Organs

Were awarded the DIPLOMA of HONOUR, and the MEDAL of the HIGHEST MERIT, at the CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION, ranking them superior to all others in

QUALITY OF TONE,

FACILITIES OF MECHANICAL ARRANGEMENTS,

ELEGANCE OF DESIGN AND ORNAMENTATION,

SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S

TWENTY-FIVE GUINEA

"FAVORITE ORGAN."

COMPASS, FIVE OCTAVES.

TEN STOPS, FOUR SETS OF REEDS OF TWO AND A HALF OCTAVES EACH, KNEE SWELL.

Elegant Carved Canadian Walnut Case.

A Large Variety on View from 25 to 160 Guineas.

MESSRS. CHAPPELL AND CO.

Beg to announce that they have taken the Sole Agency for the

CHICKERING GRAND AND UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

A number of these most celebrated American Instruments are now on view, from 120 to 300 Guineas.

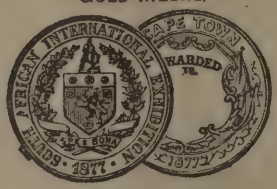
50, NEW BOND STREET.

CHALLEN AND SON'S
GOLD MEDAL PIANOS,
20, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

PRIZE MEDAL, LONDON, 1862.

FOR EXCELLENCE OF TOUCH AND TONE.

GOLD MEDAL.



SOUTH AFRICA, 1877.

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

FOR GOOD AND CHEAP PIANOS.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL PIANETTE
WITH CHECK ACTION, IN ELEGANT WALNUT OR ROSEWOOD CASE.

FROM 25 GUINEAS.

"The Pianettes manufactured by CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments."—Anton Rubinstein.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL SEMI-COTTAGE,
WITH CHECK REPEATER ACTION.

FROM 32 GUINEAS.

"I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing at a most moderate cost pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice as being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence.

"The Instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, at Paris, were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section."—John Stainer, M.A., Mus. Doc., one of the Jurors of the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL COTTAGE
TRICHORD THROUGHOUT; BRASS BRIDGE; CHECK REPEATER ACTION.

FROM 60 GUINEAS.

"CHALLEN & SON is a name synonymous with wonderful durability, great beauty of tone, and moderation in price. We know of not one single maker whose Pianos excel theirs in the qualities most desirable in a good and lasting Piano."—Cape Argus, May 7.

EXCELLENCE IS GUARANTEED, AND EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED TO BE OF THE HIGHEST CLASS WORKMANSHIP AND MATERIALS.

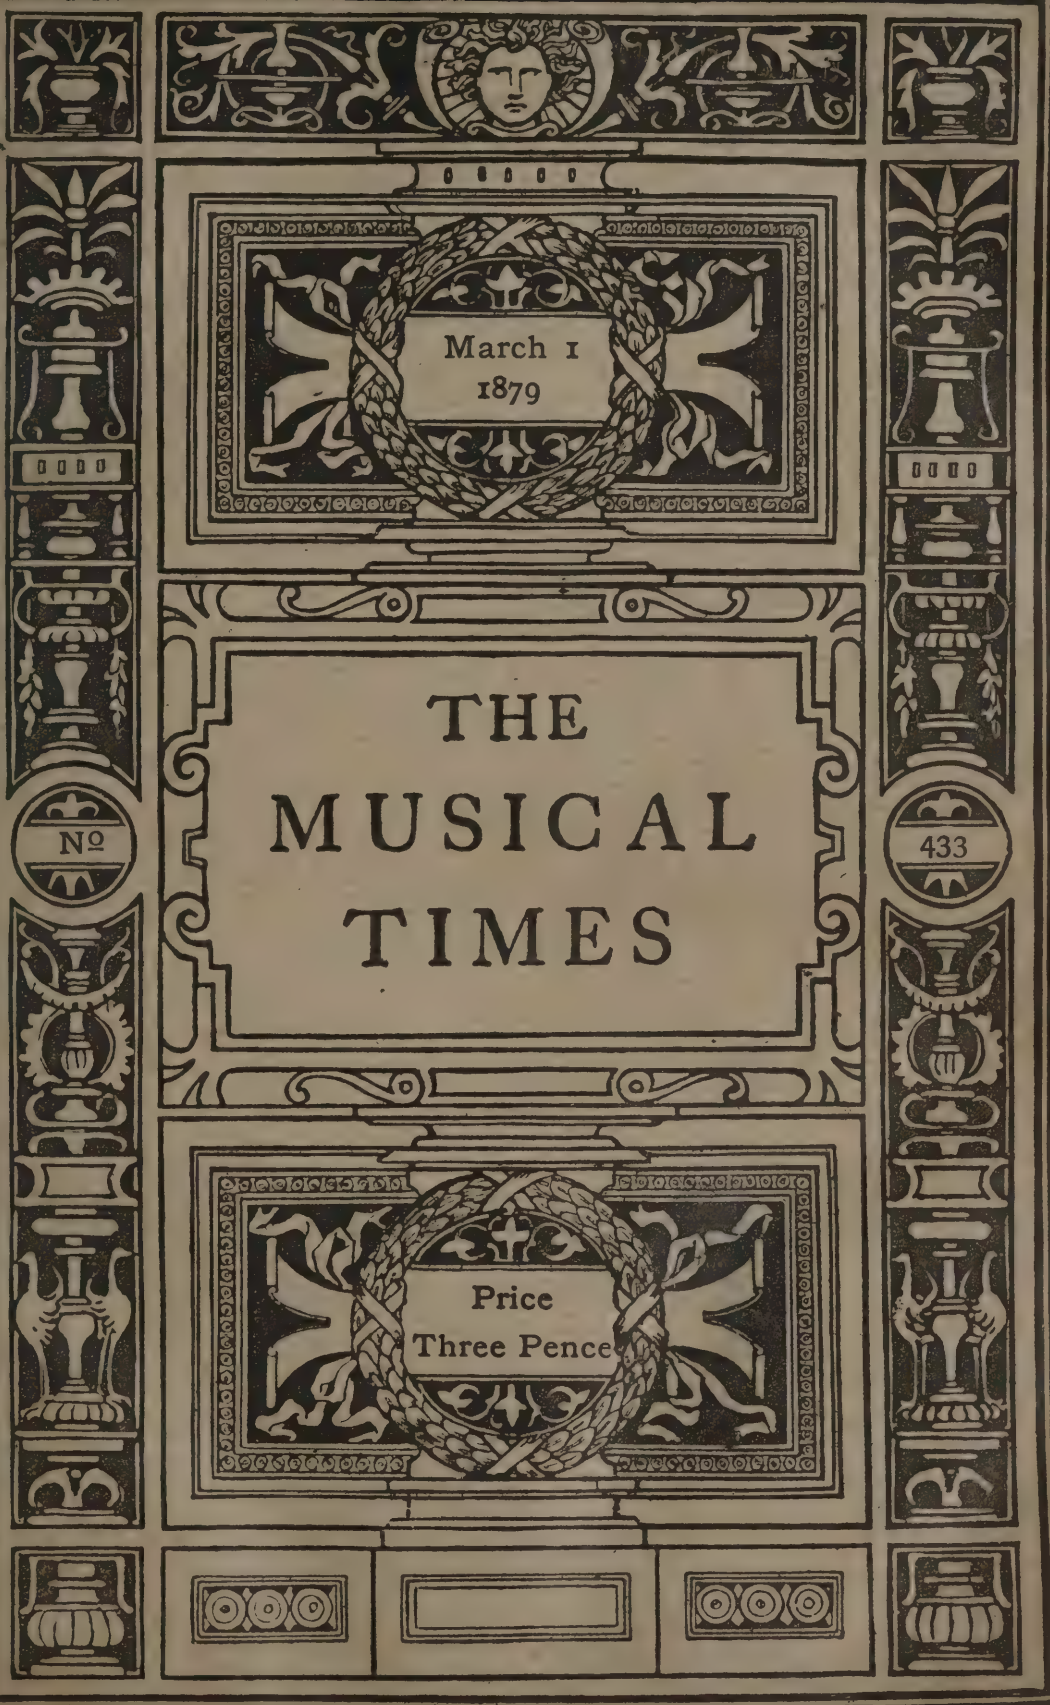
EBONISED AND GOLD PIANOS
Kept in Stock, of Superior Make and Elegant Designs.

May be obtained from all Musicsellers. Illustrated List forwarded free.

CHALLEN & SON, 20, OXFORD ST.
STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Saturday, February 1, 1879.



March 1
1879
THE MUSICAL
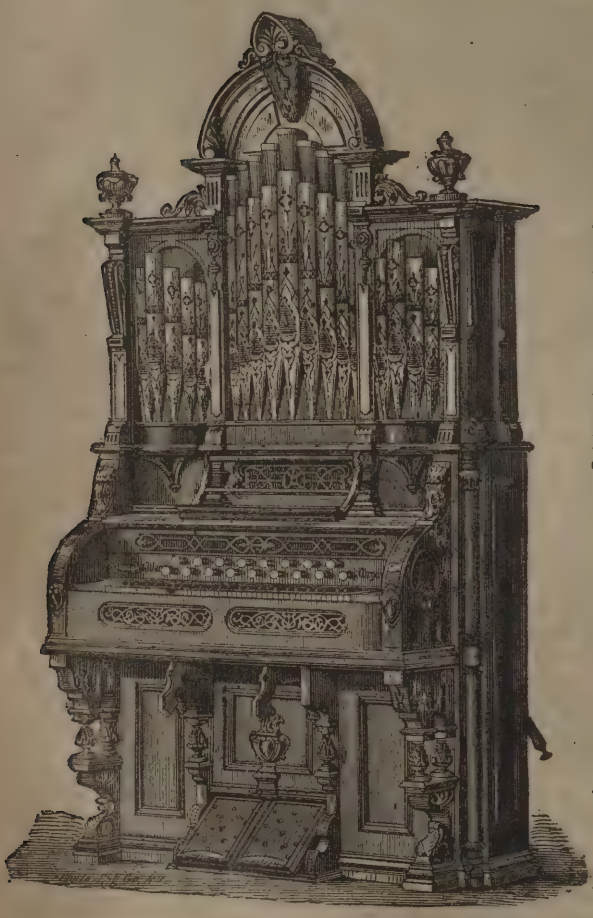
TIMES
No
433
Price
Three Pence

CHAPPELL AND CO.,

SOLE AGENTS,

50, NEW BOND STREET.



CLOUGH & WARREN'S

IMPROVED

AMERICAN ORGANS.

COMBINING PIPES WITH REEDS.

The immense advantages these Instruments possess over the Organs hitherto Imported, have induced Messrs. CHAPPELL and CO. to undertake the Sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory.

THE

Clough & Warren's Organs

Were awarded the DIPLOMA of HONOUR, and the MEDAL of the HIGHEST MERIT, at the CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION, ranking them superior to all others in

QUALITY OF TONE,

FACILITIES OF MECHANICAL ARRANGEMENTS,

ELEGANCE OF DESIGN AND ORNAMENTATION,

SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S

TWENTY-FIVE GUINEA

"FAVORITE ORGAN."

COMPASS, FIVE OCTAVES.

TEN STOPS, FOUR SETS OF REEDS OF TWO AND A HALF OCTAVES EACH, KNEE SWELL.

Elegant Carved Canadian Walnut Case.

A Large Variety on View from 25 to 160 Guineas.

MESSRS. CHAPPELL AND CO.

Beg to announce that they have taken the Sole Agency for the

CHICKERING GRAND AND UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

A number of these most celebrated American Instruments are now on view, from 120 to 300 Guineas.

50, NEW BOND STREET.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 433.—Vol. 20. MARCH 1, 1879. Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

CAUTION.—MUSICSELLERS and the TRADE generally are hereby cautioned against selling any copies of Mendelssohn's "LIEDER OHNE WORTE," containing the 7th and 8th Books, except those published by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., who are sole proprietors of these Books and of the other copyright works of Mendelssohn.

PETERBOROUGH CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—A TREBLE BOY WANTED. Must have a good voice and be able to read well. Board and education free. The choristers receive a classical education at the Cathedral Grammar School; Head Master, Rev. W. D. Sweeting. For further information, apply to Dr. Keeton, Minster Precincts, Peterborough.

CHORISTER BOY (Good Reader).—Youth with good TREBLE VOICE will be prepared for the Profession without premium, and receive small salary. Full Choral Services. Fine church and organ. Apply, Rev. Precentor Evans, 36, Alva Street, Edinburgh.

CHOIR BOYS, for Alston College, near Preston.—BOYS with voices can be received in the College on half terms. Sons of clergy preferred. Immediate application to Mr. Stedman, Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, W.

BOYS WANTED for a Church Choir in Kensington. Ages 9 to 12. Salary from £2 to £5 per year, according to ability. Apply, Organist, 163, Piccadilly, W.

CHORISTERS.—BOYS WANTED for the Choir of Christ Church, Southwark. Offered a free education at a Collegiate School. Also, a LEADING TREBLE at a liberal salary. Apply to A. Antoine, Organist, at the Church (near Blackfriars Bridge), Wednesdays or Saturdays, 6 to 7.30 p.m.

CITY CHURCH CHOIR.—There is a VACANCY for a SOPRANO VOICE in the choir of St. Alphege, London Wall. The duties comprise two services on Sunday, and a rehearsal on Thursday evening. Service full choral. Salary, £10 per annum. Candidates must be well up in church music, and be able to read fairly at sight. Address, with testimonials or references, Organist, care of R. A. Knight and Co., 3, Abchurch Lane, E.C.

SOPRANO wishes for a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a Church of England choir. Address, H. L., 32, East Street, W.C.

MAGDALEN COLLEGE, OXFORD.—There is a VACANCY in the Magdalen College Choir for a LAY CLERK. The voice required is ALTO. Stipend, £110 per annum. The examination of candidates will commence at 10 o'clock on Tuesday, March 25. For further information application may be made to the Organist, Magdalen College, Oxford.

ALTO WANTED for Surpliced Choir in Kensington. Two Sunday services and one week-day practice. Salary, 10 guineas. Apply, Organist, 163, Piccadilly, W.

ALTO and BASS VOICES WANTED for S. Augustine's Church, Queen's Gate, South Kensington. Address, Rev. R. R. Chope, 129, Gloucester Road.

TENOR and ALTO WANTED for Christ Church, Down Street, Piccadilly. Salary, £15. Two Sunday services. Friday rehearsals. Apply at the Church on Fridays, February 28 and March 7, at 8.45, to Mr. R. Stokoe.

WINCHESTER CATHEDRAL.—There will be a VACANCY for a LAY CLERK (TENOR) shortly after Easter. Candidates must be under 30 years of age, well versed in cathedral music, and able to read accurately at sight. Stipend, £100 per annum. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent by March 14, to the Rev. the Precentor, Winchester Cathedral.

SOUTHWELL COLLEGIATE CHURCH.—WANTED immediately a TENOR VOICE. Full Cathedral Service Morning and Evening. Salary, £60 per annum. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent to Rev. R. F. Smith, Vicars' Court, Southwell.

S. MARGARET'S CHURCH, Rood Lane, Fenchurch Street.—WANTED, a TENOR for the choir of this church. Good reader indispensable. Salary, £15 per annum. Apply to the Choirmaster, at the Church, on Friday evenings at 8.30 p.m.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM, Tenor, of St. Paul's Cathedral, having resigned his appointment as Organist and Choirmaster of St. Andrew's, Fulham, is open to accept a similar APPOINTMENT, or as SOLO TENOR in a good choir. Address, 4, Myrtle Villas, West Kensington, S.W., or to the Cathedral.

BASS and ALTO WANTED (Blackheath). Surpliced Choir. Organista, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., General Printers. Books, Magazines, Newspapers, Illustrated Catalogues, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Music Printers. Illustrated Titles, Engraving, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Colour Printers. Show Cards, Labels, Almanacs, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Typographical Music Printers. Hymnals, Books for Church Festivals, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Printers. Maps, Plans, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Music Engravers and Printers. Oratorios, Operas, Cantatas, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO. are prepared to forward estimates for the above or any other variety of printing. Works—69 & 70, Dean Street, Soho, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Publishers' and General Bookbinders. Estimates forwarded. Works—111 & 113, Southwark Street, S.E.

TENOR (£15) and BASS (£12), also a few volunteers WANTED for a church in the S.W. district. Surpliced choir. Two services on Sundays (full choral), one weekly rehearsal. Address, Organist, care of Mr. Stone, 22, Boundary Road, N.W.

WANTED, FIRST TENOR at a Catholic Church, N.W. district. Must read well, and be accustomed to the Latin. £20 per annum. W. H. Wall, 1, St. Paul's Crescent, Camden Square.

PORTSMOUTH DOCKYARD.—WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Salary £40 a year. Apply to Admiral Superintendent, Portsmouth Dockyard.

S. EDWARD'S SCHOOL, OXFORD.—WANTED after Easter, a resident ORGANIST and MUSIC MASTER. Must be a good Churchman. A Mus. Bac. preferred. Apply to the Warden.

WANTED, at Port Elizabeth, Cape of Good Hope, an ORGANIST, who can play the Viola in Quartetts. Field small, and occupied by good teachers. Position offered instead in a merchant's office. Salary to commence with £225 (both musical and mercantile engagements). Address testimonials, A 14, to the care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED to EXCHANGE Present APPOINTMENT, worth about £130 per annum, for an appointment in or near London. Not extreme High Church views. Good Organ. Salary, not less than £50. Address, R. A. M., Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT PUPIL REQUIRED with some knowledge of Organ. Thorough training for profession. Important Church, and fine organ by "Smetzler," 3 manuals, 41 stops, hydraulic engines, shortly being enlarged. Gentlemanly Youth with good TENOR VOICE would receive a salary. Address, G. E. Lake, Organist and Choirmaster of S. John's Episcopal Church, Edinburgh.

AS ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. A Gentleman offers his voluntary services. Anglican choral service preferred. W. E., 13, Coleman Street, E.C.

ORGANIST, &c., desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in London. G. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

ORGANIST, or DEPUTY, APPOINTMENT WANTED for a Clergyman's Son, where Cathedral Services are not held. Address, E. A. Kearney, 7, Lancaster Terrace, Leytonstone, Essex.

THE ORGANIST and RESIDENT MUSIC-MASTER of S. Edward's School, Oxford, desires an APPOINTMENT at Easter. Address as above.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of some years' experience, who has had great success in Choir-Training, will shortly be open to an ENGAGEMENT. The highest testimonials and references. A Choral Service and good Organ desired. Address, B., Organist, care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST requires RE-ENGAGEMENT in June. Address, Organist, Springfield Street, Chelmsford, Essex.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano).
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address, 150, Radnor Street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—C. Hallé, Esq., and E. Hecht, Esq.

MISS FANNY CHATFIELD (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, Lessons, &c., 11, St. Ann's Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano).
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS ADA MOORE (Soprano) and MISS MARIE MOORE (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 95, Bristol Street, Manchester; or Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

MISS JOHNSON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 134, Egerton Street, Oldham.

MRS. DAGLISH (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Newark, Notts. Reference, S. Reay, Esq., Mus. Bac., Newark, Notts.

MISS HELEN SWIFT (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, Forsyth Brothers, Cross Street, South King Street, Manchester.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 1, Arundel Villas, Weston Road, Handsworth, Birmingham.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, 42, St. George's Street, Cheltenham.

MISS ANNETTE IVANOVA (Soprano).
Pupil of Signor Lablache and Signor Odoardo Barri.
For Concerts, &c., "Brooklyn," Howard Road, South Norwood, S.E.

MISS EMILY LAING (Soprano).
For Concerts, Dinners, &c., address, 30, Albert Terrace, Albert Square, Clapham Road, S.W.

MISS ANNIE MARRIOTT (Principal Soprano).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 8, Coleherne Road, South Kensington.

MISS ROSA BAILEY (Mezzo-Soprano Vocalist).
Of the Bath, Clifton, and Bristol Concerts.
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, &c., 15, Brigstock Road, Bristol.

MISS PATTI HARGREAVES (Contralto).
21, Belle Vue Terrace, Victoria Street, St. John's Hill, Leeds.

MADAME PATTIE KEATE (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 66, Fentiman Road, S.W., or City Arms Hotel, Bristol.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, Dinners, &c., address, 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimore Square, S.E.

MISS KERSHAW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Clarksfield Terrace, Lees, Manchester.

MISS JEANIE ROSSE (Contralto).
Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby.
For Engagements and Lessons, address, 13, Kensington Crescent, W.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto).
Address, Sidney House, 257, Cambridge Road, E.

MISS JULIA DERBY (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 19, Herbert Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM YOUNG (Tenor).
For Concerts and Oratorios, address, 321, Monument Road, Birmingham. Repertoire includes "Messiah," "Elijah," "Creation," "Naaman," "Eli," "Lobgesang," "Moses in Egypt," "May Queen," "Ancient Mariner," "Bride of Dunkerron," &c., &c.

MR. H. PIERCEY (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, care of Truslove and O'Neill, 36, Union Passage, Birmingham.

MR. T. BUCKLAND (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Gibbet Street, Halifax.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
7, Park Place, Regent's Park.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
12, Berners Street, W.

MR. S. FORD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Mander Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Sig. Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. FRANK GÉRARD (Baritone).
Late of St. Mary Magdalene's Catholic Church and of the Dome Concerts, Brighton, is open to Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 10, Gold Street, Northampton.

MR. THOS. NETTLESHIP (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 44, Holland Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. THEODORE DISTIN (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Operas, &c., address, 96, Penrose Street, Sutherland Square, S.E. Pupils prepared for Concert or Stage.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 2, Hallfield Place, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. W. MORTON (Bass).
(Leeds Parish Church).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 3, St. Helen's Terrace, Hunslet, Leeds.

MR. RICKARD (Bass).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Signor Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, King Cross, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. CONRAD FORMES (Basso).
For Concerts and Oratorios, address, 172, St. Paul's Rd., Canonbury, N.

MR. JAMES BUDD (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 25, Stockwell Green, S.W.

FOR ORATORIO OR OTHER CONCERTS, &c.,
MADAME CROSS LAVERS,
Soprano;
Address, 7, Mornington Crescent, N.W.
MR. HENRY CROSS,
Bass.
Address, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W.; or 7, Mornington Crescent.

MISS MARGARET BUCKNALL, A.R.A.M.
(Pianiste).
For Concerts, address, Lawn House, 35, South Lambeth Road, S.W.

MR. W. F. ILLINGWORTH (Solo Pianist).
From the Conservatoire, Leipsic.
Address, 33, St. James's Road, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. J. SHARPE (Oboeist).
For Oratorios, &c., address, 235, Lidgett Hill, Pudsey, near Leeds.
N.B.—Bandmasters and others supplied with the New Model Oboe. Best Oboe Reeds, 2s. each. Staples recaned, 1s. each.

MISS DAMIAN, of the London Ballad Concerts, begs to announce that she is at liberty to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts, Oratorios, &c., in London or the provinces. Communications to be addressed to Mr. N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street.

MR. H. T. BYWATER (TENOR) is OPEN to ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIOS and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. Address, 36, St. Germain's Road, Forest Hill, London, S.E.; or 40, Darlington Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. BRIDSON (BARITONE).—Communications respecting ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts, Oratorios, &c., to be addressed to Mr. N. Vert, 52, New Bond Street, W.

DONALD W. KING, Professor of Singing and Musical Conductor, Cumberland Villa, Cavendish Road, Kilburn.

MR. C. STIEBLER COOK, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, five years Music and Choir Master at Uppingham School. For PIANO and HARMONY LESSONS, address, 17, Keppel St., Russell Square, W.C. Schools attended. Choirs conducted.

J. W. HINTON, M.A., Mus. D., continues to Orchestrate or Revise Compositions. Harmony or Counterpoint by post, if desired. Address, care of Messrs. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thorough-bass, and Modulation," "Hiles' Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., by post.

MR. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., L. Mus., T.C.L., PREPARES CANDIDATES for Musical Examinations; also gives lessons in Harmony, &c., by post. Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

DR. ALLISON instructed by post Candidates who passed Mus. Bac., Oxon, 1878; Mus. Bac., Cantab.; F.C.O. 1879) and T.C.L. (1879) examinations. 206, Marylebone Road, London(.

AN ORGANIST, of 20 years' experience, about to reside out of London, desires an ENGAGEMENT in one of the suburbs, with Choirmaster preferred. P., care of Stationers, 3 and 4, New Inn Yard, E.C.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY ASYLUM, near Gloucester.—WANTED, MALE ATTENDANTS, musicians preferred. Wages to commence at £24 per annum, with board, lodging, washing, and uniform. Applications, with testimonials, to be addressed to the Medical Superintendent at the Asylum.
BENJ. SHADGETT, Clerk to the Visitors.
February 21, 1879.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park. MUSIC SCHOOL: Head Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS to be competed for by pupils of not less than one year's standing in the Music School will be awarded by Professor Macfarren, of which due notice will be given in the papers.

FRANCIS J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

The half-term begins February 28.

A GENTLEMAN is desirous of giving LESSONS by post in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. References from present pupils if desired. Terms very moderate. Address, Magister, Musical Times Office, 1, Berners Street, London, W.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address, Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

WANTED to place a genteel Youth, capable of assisting with the Pianoforte Lessons, with a talented ORGANIST, who would take his services in teaching into consideration. Address, with full particulars and terms, which must be moderate, to Mr. Winter, St. Ives, Hunts.

MADAME BEATI, Professor of Singing, gives LESSONS in Croydon and the neighbourhood. Schools attended. For references and terms, apply to Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CAMBRIDGE "PRELIMINARY."
ACOUSTICS IN TWELVE LESSONS.
COUNTERPOINT IN TWELVE LESSONS.
HARMONY IN TWELVE LESSONS.
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Bac., Cantab., 18, St. Ann's Street, Manchester.

ORGAN PRACTICE or INSTRUCTION.—Three Manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by Lea's Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, which are strictly inclusive, on application at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Sole Agent for LEA'S HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. The cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy Street, Bedford Square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN PRACTICE, on a fine new instrument with 2 manuals, 16 stops, and full compass of bourdon pedals. Terms (strictly inclusive), one shilling per hour, at the Organ Studio, 15, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

ORGAN LESSONS or PRACTICE, 140, STRAND (opposite the Gaiety, and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W.), on fine two-manual C ORGANS (Hill and Son). Pedalling specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 140, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three-manual, new. Twenty stops, 799 speaking pipes. Terms, strictly inclusive, one shilling per hour. Inspection invited. Camberwell Studio, 1, Charles Street, Camberwell New Road.

MANAGER.—Advertiser is OPEN to ENGAGEMENT as above in a First-Class MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Knows the London and Foreign catalogues well, and the general routine of a good business. Could take entire charge in absence of principal. Would not object to travel for a good publishing firm. Has been on the road. First-class references. Terms moderate. Address, "Alba," Messrs. Novello, Ewer & Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for a Country Business, a Good PIANOFORTE TUNER. State age, salary required, references, and last situation. Address, X., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a Young Man, experienced in REPAIRS and a good TUNER. Address, stating age, &c., to W. Hickie, Country Music Warehouse, Reading, Berks. Enclose carte.

WANTED, by a Young Man, who can be well recommended, a SITUATION as TUNER and REPAIRER of PIANOFORTES, ORGANS, and HARMONIUMS, and would be willing to make himself useful as Salesman. Address, J. P. C., 38, Broad Street, Reading.

A TUNER, with knowledge of Harmoniums, seeks an ENGAGEMENT; good character for steadiness and ability. Address, Tuner, 7, Woodland View, Western Road, Cork.

WANTED by a Young Man (23) a SITUATION as JUNIOR TUNER. Can play and repair well. Address, G. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by a Young Man, a SITUATION as PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. Good knowledge of Harmoniums and Organs. Country preferred. First-class reference. Address, H. M., 113, Albany Street, London, W.

WANTED SITUATION by PIANOFORTE TUNER, REGULATOR, and REPAIRER. Address, Tuner, 6, Park Avenue, Oswestry.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the Music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED, APRIL, 1866.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION.

Mr. H. ASHTON (Alto).
Mr. FRED. H. COZENS (First Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN (Second Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. ALBERT HUBBARD (Bass).

ASSISTED BY Madame ASHTON
(Soprano).

For terms, either separately or collectively, address, Mr. H. Ashton, Secretary, Ivy House, Stamford Hill, London, N.

TUNER and COUNTER ASSISTANT.—A Young Man, respectably connected, four years in present employment as Assistant Tuner and Counterman, is desirous of obtaining another SITUATION in a large Music and Pianoforte Establishment. A moderate salary would be accepted. Address T. T. W., care of Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

ADVERTISER seeks an ENGAGEMENT in a Music Publisher's Warehouse. Musical ability, &c. Excellent references. H. D. Williams and Co., 55, Moorgate Street.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE. Old-established, with large Hiring and Tuning connection. Good opening for Teaching. Address, J. J. H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

12S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, post-free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord Street, Liverpool.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK. Some chemists and stationers for extra profit deceive you. Genuine label, "Daughter of late John Bond." Works: 75, Southgate Road, N. No heating required.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE HAIR RESTORER for the MILLION. In bottles at 6d., 1s., and 2s. It is nourishing, strengthening, and developing. Genuine label has the words, "Prepared by the daughter of the late John Bond, the great marking-ink maker." Trade mark, Crystal Palace.

THE "STANDARD"

AMERICAN ORGANS

MANUFACTURED BY

PELOUBET, PELTON, & CO.,

NEW YORK,

ARE CELEBRATED FOR THEIR

ORGAN-LIKE QUALITY OF TONE

AND

GENERAL GOOD WORKMANSHIP.

PRICES, TEN GUINEAS AND UPWARDS.

To be seen at the principal Pianoforte Saloons in the kingdom, or at the London Show-room,

32, WORSHIP STREET,

FINSBURY SQUARE.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878.

DEBAIN & CO.,

Fournisseurs (by Brevet) to Her Majesty,

41, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

(Late 357, OXFORD STREET).

HARMONIUMS

Simple and Percussive

(Debain, Inventor).

From 8 to 200 Guineas.

ORGANOPHONES

(Debain, Inventor),

From 40 to 200 Guineas.

PIANOS-MÉCANIQUES

(Debain, Inventor),

From 100 Guineas.

PIANOS

Seven Octaves, Trichord, Check Action, Plinth and Consoles, &c. (Suitable for Export),

From 31 to 180 Guineas.

MUSIC SEATS

(Metal Tube Frames, gilt with the best gold bronze).

Harmonium Chairs, 31s. 6d.; Piano Stools, "Ionic," without screw, 42s. Piano Stools, "Trépied," with screw, 63s.

Lists and Drawings on application.

DEBAIN & CO.,

41, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

J. STUTTAFORD, Representative.

MUSIC STRINGS—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

J. P. GUIVIER AND CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

ALL KINDS OF MUSIC STRINGS FOR ALL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Sole Depot for Signor Andrea Ruffini's (of Naples) Celebrated Strings for Soloists, manufactured by him on a system invented by Mons. J. B. Vuillaume, of Paris.

Sole Agent for Charles Albert's (of Philadelphia, U.S.) new Patent Improved Chin Rest; also his improved String Gauge.

25, SHERWOOD STREET, REGENT CIRCUS, PICCADILLY.

Price List free on application.

All kinds of strings covered in a superior manner on powerful machines made on the best principle with all modern improvements.

The only Gold Medal for Wind Instruments with Keys, in the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878, was unanimously awarded by the Jury to Messrs. P. Goumas & Co., for the fine quality of tone and finish of their Instruments.

SPECIAL MANUFACTORY OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR

Clarionets, Flutes, Piccolos, Oboes, Bassoons, Cor Anglais, Flageolets, and Saxophones.

P. GOUMAS & CO.

(Late Buffet, Crampon & Co.),

Established 1830.

Nine Prize Medals have been awarded to Goumas & Co. for general excellence and improvements in the Manufacture of Wind Instruments with Keys.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Wood Wind Instruments for Military Bands, Musical Instrument Makers to Her Majesty's Army and Navy, and to the Armies, Navies, and Conservatoires of France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Austria, Spain, America, &c.

Manufactory at Mantes (Seine et Oise), France. Paris: Passage du Grand Cerf, 18 et 20.

LONDON: 5, MADDOX STREET, REGENT STREET.

Price Lists sent free on application.

LONDON AGENTS,

MESSRS. MOUTRIE AND SON,

PIANOFORTE SALOON,

55, BAKER STREET, LONDON, W.

MR. J. HAMILTON begs to inform Organists, Organ Students, and others that the Pedals and Action for attachment to Pianofortes manufactured by him can be inspected and ordered at the above address.

A set of Straight Pedals, 30 notes (C to F), with action and printed instructions, "How to Attach," price £4 10s. Or Radiating and Concave Pedal Board, with action, price £5 10s.

Orders accompanied with Cheque or P.O. Order will receive immediate attention. Send for prices to the Profession and Trade.

Address, J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 12th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-instruction Books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price Lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell Road, Clerkenwell, London.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES.—150 by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Allison, &c., from 4 guineas upwards. HARMONIUMS (New), from £5, in Walnut or Mahogany cases. Largest stock of Pianos and Harmoniums in London at Kelly and Co.'s, 11, Charles Street, Middlesex Hospital. Trade supplied.

TO SELL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS of every description, also Libraries of Music, Music Plates and Copyrights, Stock-in-Trade, &c., SALE (devoted exclusively to this class of property) held every month. Single instruments inserted. Consignments received at any time. Puttick and Simpson, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C. [Established, 1794.]

A MONK'S ORGANS, warranted First Class, at moderate prices, from 50 guineas. 100-Guinea Organs, 2 CC manuals, 10 stops, 16-feet pedal pipes. 200 guineas, 2 manuals, 16 stops. 300 guineas, 3 manuals, 21 stops. 400 guineas, 3 manuals, 27 stops. 600 guineas, 3 manuals, 36 stops. Larger or smaller Organs built to any Specification. Old Organs rebuilt. Additions, Repairs, Tunings, &c. Specifications and Estimates sent free. Sussex Terrace, Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.
Organs on the three years' system.

MALEY, YOUNG & OLDKNOW,
ORGAN-BUILDERS,
KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

Organs rebuilt to suit any position, repaired, enlarged, tuned, and revoiced in any part of the kingdom, at very moderate charges.
Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first class.
Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of organs.
N.B.—New and second-hand organs for sale. Inspection invited.

BORD'S PIANOS.

These Celebrated Pianos on SALE or HIRE, and on the EASY PURCHASE SYSTEM
AT 15, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.
(Illustrated Lists Free.)

"A supreme and perfect harmony of Notes."
E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS and REED ORGANS. For tone, touch, articulation, and general excellence, are pronounced by the profession and public the best and cheapest extant. Prices, designs, &c., free, of E. & W. Snell. Works: King Street North, Camden Town, London, N.W. Trade supplied. The new Spécialité "Drawing-Room" Model, 24 guineas.

THE leading Continental House.—MILLEREAU'S BAND INSTRUMENTS. Highest class of excellence for Artists' Cornets, Raoux French Horns, Clarionets, cylind. Boehm Flutes, &c. Catalogues free. 66, Rue d'Angoulême, Paris.

ORGAN by Henry Willis, in Pitch Pine Case, FOR SALE, now in Trinity Congregational Church, Croydon. Two manuals, CC to G, and Pedals (30 notes). Five stops on the swell, 9 on the great, and good bourdon on the pedals, 3 couplers, and 3 composition pedals. The instrument is in perfect condition, and would be disposed of much below cost to make room for a larger one. For particulars and to view apply to Mr. Ingham, Moira House, Upper Addiscombe Road, Croydon.

FOR SALE, several small Second-hand ORGANS, suitable for small places of worship. Apply to Mr. J. Porritt, Organ Builder, Leicester.

A SMALL Chamber ORGAN for SALE. Six stops, pedals 27, gilt front, oak case. Price £45. Address, A. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE, a G ORGAN with 9 stops, 1 octave of pedals, 1 manual. To be sold in order to make way for a larger organ. Apply, The Vicar, Castle Hedingham, Essex.

ORGANS for SALE.—CHURCH ORGAN. Two manuals, CC swell, 6 stops in great, 5 in swell, 614 pipes, 2½ octaves, 16 feet pedals. £140. Useful CC CHANCEL ORGAN: One manual, 5 stops, 2 octaves pedals. £45. Large two manual AMERICAN ORGAN, fine tone, 15 stops, pedals. A bargain. £60. C. Smart, Tabernacle Square, Finsbury, E.C.

ORGANS, CHURCH or CHAMBER, New and Second-hand.—Several very superior Instruments of various sizes, by eminent Builders, for SALE or HIRE. Can be had on easy terms of purchase. Apply, E. Carder, East London Organ Works, 9, Burdett Road, Mile-End Road, London, E.

ORGAN-HARMONIUM, £34, two manuals, fine Organ-tone, dulciana stops, bourdon on full compass, pedals, two couplers: one manual with pedals, 2½ rows of reeds, £21. Manufactured for pedal practice by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham Road, London, N. Lists, with extracts of letters from Organists.

FOR SALE. — Three-manual HARMONIUM, built on organ principles. Twenty-seven stops all throughout, 15 sets of reeds, separate pedal, 30 notes, 3 sets of reeds, including one of 32 feet tone. Polished oak case; decorated pipe front. With or without hydraulic engine. Price very moderate. S. Collins, Musicseller, Bromley, Kent.

VERY handsome Walnut HARMONIUM, by Alexandre. Grand tone, full compass, 2 manuals, 22 stops, knee-swell, percussion action, handle to work bellows, all latest improvements. Quite equal to new. Cost £90. Price £45. Rev. Z., 12, Bonchurch Road, North Kensington, W.

VIOLONCELLO.—An excellent Instrument by Forster, with case and bow. Price £24. Address, R. W., 2, Bradford Terrace, Haulgh, Bolton.

A SPLENDID Cremona VIOLIN, in good condition, for SALE. For further particulars, &c., apply by letter to M. J., care of Mr. C. Johnson, 4, Creek Road, Deptford, London.

VIOLINS, &c., by Craske, some of them fifty years old, and equal to Straduarius and Guarnerius, except in name only. The whole of this great maker's instruments on SALE at Edward Crompton's, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester. Will be sent for trial on receipt of satisfactory reference.

A BARGAIN.—40 PIANOFORTE SOLOS by Kuhe, Macfarren, Callcott, Schubert, Godfrey, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Brinley Richards, Sydney Smith, Rubinstein, and others. Equal to new. Published at £5 18s; price 10s. 6d. A. Thistlewood, Hockley Hill, Birmingham.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS. — Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row.

AUTHORS' WORKS
CORRECTED, REVISED, AND PRINTED
WITH DESPATCH
On moderate Terms.
QUOTATIONS GIVEN ON RECEIPT OF MSS.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

NEW MUSIC PRINTING PROCESS.
Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.
50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.
PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,
8A, Red Lion Square, London, W.C.

TO COMPOSERS WISHING to PUBLISH.—Music Engraved, Printed, and Published in the very best style, at unusually low prices. Estimates free on receipt of MS. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, Regent Street, London, W.

REDUCED PRICE.

TOY INSTRUMENTS
FOR THE PERFORMANCE OF
TOY SYMPHONIES.

A COMPLETE SET OF INSTRUMENTS, CONSISTING OF

2 Whistles	Cuckoo.
2 Trumpets.	Rattle.
Cymbals.	Nightingale.
Triangle.	Drum.

Also the Music to Haydn's Symphony for Piano Solo and Toy Instruments; and Romberg's Symphony for Pianoforte Solo, Two Violins, Violoncello, and Toy Instruments.
PRICE COMPLETE, ONE GUINEA AND A HALF.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

The Musical Times.

CASES

FOR BINDING THE NUMBERS FOR THE PAST YEAR,

VOLUME XIX.,

Are now ready, and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country.

Cloth, bevelled boards, handsome design.

PRICE 1s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HANDEL'S ORATORIO
SEMELE
Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment revised from that of the German Handel Society, by
EBENEZER PROUT.
Paper covers, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ORPHEUS

(NEW SERIES)

A COLLECTION OF GLEES AND PART-SONGS FOR MALE VOICES.

Notwithstanding the popularity of the Orpheus in its former shape, it is believed that its issue in separate Voice Parts is scarcely in accordance with the present taste; it is therefore the intention of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co. to publish a New Series of this favourite Collection, in which every composition will appear in the popular Octavo form, in single numbers printed in Vocal Score, with a carefully revised Pianoforte Accompaniment. In many instances the translation of the words will also undergo revision.

The Orpheus will now consist exclusively of Part-Music for MEN'S VOICES.

The whole of the original Series, with a few unimportant exceptions, will be published in the new form, and new compositions by the best composers will be added from time to time, as well as a number of pieces which have become popular in other forms or in other Collections. The Part-Songs for Mixed Voices hitherto contained in the Series will in future appear in the "Part-Song Book."

The whole of the compositions by Mendelssohn, until now included in the Orpheus, are issued as a separate publication, forming a complete collection of his Part-Songs.

VOLUME I.—Cloth, gilt edges, 5/-.

1.	The long day closes	A. Sullivan	3d.
2.	The Beleaguered	A. Sullivan	4d.
3.	The Homeward Watch	H. Smart	2d.
4.	Come away, come away	Schäfer	2d.
5.	Onward roaming, never weary	Müller	2d.
6.	Hark! the merry drum	Krugh	4d.
7.	Vermeland	Swedish Melody	2d.
8.	Dear land of my fathers	Swedish Melody	2d.
9.	Still amid old Sweden's Youth	Dalecarlian Song	2d.
10.	A Franklyn's dogge	A. C. Mackenzie	6d.
11.	All things love thee	J. L. Hatton	3d.
12.	A Song of Winter	J. L. Hatton	3d.
13.	Going away	J. L. Hatton	4d.
14.	Sleep, my sweet	J. L. Hatton	3d.
15.	Spring, ye flow'rets	J. L. Hatton	2d.
16.	Summer eve	J. L. Hatton	3d.
17.	The sweet creature	J. L. Hatton	3d.
18.	To Julia	J. L. Hatton	3d.
19.	O thou whose beams (Ossian's Hymn)	Sir John Goss	6d.
20.	T'other day as I sat (Sycamore Shade)	Sir John Goss	6d.
21.	Hark! heard ye not	Sir John Goss	6d.
22.	The courtly bard (Kitty Fell)	Sir John Goss	6d.
23.	The chase	Ch. Gounod	6d.
24.	The night is cloudless and serene	Schubert	6d.
25.	Battle song	Schumann	4d.

VOLUME II.—Cloth, gilt edges, 5/-.

26.	Weighing anchor (Outward bound)	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
27.	I wish to tune my quivering lyre	T. F. Walmisley	4d.
28.	Cheerfulness	Ciro Pinsuti	6d.
29.	How dear to me the hour	Ciro Pinsuti	6d.
30.	Peace	J. Fredk. Bridge	6d.
31.	With thee, sweet hope	J. Fredk. Bridge	6d.
32.	Let maids be false, so wine be true	George C. Martin	4d.
33.	The Wreck of the Hesperus	Dr. H. Hiles	6d.
34.	Hushed in death	Dr. H. Hiles	6d.
35.	Evening	Henry Leslie	2d.
36.	Pibroch of Donuil Dhu	Henry Leslie	3d.
37.	Night winds that so gently flow	J. Baptiste Calkin	3d.
38.	Breathe soft, ye winds	J. Baptiste Calkin	3d.
39.	My lady is so wondrous fair	J. Baptiste Calkin	2d.
40.	Come, fill, my boys	J. Baptiste Calkin	4d.
41.	I lov'd a lass	Samuel Reay	3d.
42.	Love's good morrow	Samuel Reay	2d.
43.	Merrily rolls the mill stream on	Samuel Reay	4d.
44.	Now night her dusky mantle folds	Samuel Reay	4d.
45.	Bind my brows	J. Stainer	4d.
46.	Sleeping, why now sleeping (serenade)	Elizabeth Stirling	3d.
47.	Disdain returned	Elizabeth Stirling	4d.

VOLUME III.—Cloth, gilt edges, 5/-.

48.	Bright sword of liberty	C. M. von Weber	2d.
49.	To night	C. M. von Weber	2d.
50.	O'er moor and mountain	L. Spohr	2d.
51.	Come, boys, drink and merry be	H. Marschner	4d.
52.	Married and single	H. Werner	2d.
53.	The Sabbath call	C. Kreutzer	2d.
54.	Evening	L. de Call	2d.
55.	Softly, softly (Piano, piano)	Seyfried	3d.
56.	Banish, O maiden	O. Lorenz	4d.
57.	Lutzow's wild chase	Weber	2d.
58.	Soldier's Song	H. Werner	2d.
59.	Hark! above us	C. Kreutzer	2d.
60.	Lovely night	F. X. Chwatal	2d.
61.	The two Roses	H. Werner	2d.
62.	The Toper's Glee	Zelter	2d.
63.	Integer vitæ	Flemming	2d.
64.	The Three Huntsmen	C. Kreutzer	3d.
65.	Parting	F. Otto	3d.
66.	O most holy one		2d.
67.	He who trusts in ladies fair	Eisenhofer	3d.
68.	Spring's delights	Müller	4d.
69.	Absence	F. Schneider	2d.
70.	On fragrant myrtles	Müller	3d.
71.	O cruel maid	Kalliwoda	2d.
72.	Twine ye roses in your hair	Pohlentz	2d.
73.	The sun is gone	Bergt	2d.
74.	Ah! with me (Deh! con me)	Seyfried	3d.
75.	Dear maid	L. de Call	2d.
76.	I tell thee, boy	Grassini	4d.
77.	Soldiers' Chorus	H. Werner	2d.
78.	The Ladies	Reichardt	4d.
79.	The Mariner's Song	M. Haydn	2d.
80.	To Song	C. M. von Weber	2d.
81.	King Joy	H. Werner	3d.
82.	Calm eyes of beauty (Luci sereni)	Seyfried	2d.
83.	The miner's song	Annacker	3d.
84.	Wave high your hats	Baur	2d.
85.	Song of Harold Harfager	H. Werner	3d.

VOLUME IV.

86.	Dr. St. Paul	Zelter	3d.
87.	Oft when eve has rest bestowed	L. de Call	2d.
88.	The Twelve	G. W. Fink	3d.
89.	Lord, I pray Thee, set me free (Libera me, Domine)	Kalliwoda	2d.
90.	The Chapel	C. Kreutzer	3d.
91.	Every rustling tree	Kuhlau	2d.
92.	The Rifleman	F. Otto	2d.
93.	Pleasing pain	L. de Call	2d.
94.	Through woods and fields	C. Kreutzer	4d.
95.	The Cuckoo	L. Spohr	4d.
96.	Peace of mind	Steinacker	4d.
97.	Huntsman's joy	C. Kreutzer	3d.
98.	Maiden, listen	C. F. Adam	2d.
99.	Beauteous clouds	H. Werner	2d.
100.	Must I then part from thee (Parting)	F. Otto	2d.
101.	War Song	H. Werner	2d.
102.	Slumber sweetly, dearest	Eisenhofer	2d.
103.	The mariner's return	Hoesler	4d.
104.	Huntsman's Song	Pohlenz	4d.
105.	Spring-time	C. Kreutzer	3d.
106.	The Equinox	C. Kreutzer	2d.
107.	Hilarity	S. H. Dehn	2d.
108.	The Request	C. A. Bertelsmann	3d.
109.	Hope and fear	F. Otto	2d.
110.	Hail to the chief	F. Schubert	2d.
111.	The dying child	I. I. Viotta	2d.
112.	Soldier's love	Kücken	2d.
113.	Gondolier's Serenade	F. Schubert	4d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

FOR LENT.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST.

Set to Music by

G. F. HANDEL.

Octavo, paper covers, 3s. Paper boards, 3s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(ACCORDING TO S. MATTHEW.)

Set to Music by

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(ACCORDING TO S. JOHN.)

Set to Music by

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS.)

Set to Music by

J. HAYDN.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS.)

Set to Music by

CH. GOUNOD.

Octavo, paper covers, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD.

(DER TOD JESU.)

Set to Music by

C. H. GRAUN.

Octavo, paper covers, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING

MODERN COMPOSERS.

Octavo Size.

GEORGE C. MARTIN	4d.
W. T. BEST	3d.
J. BARNBY	1½d.
JOHN FOSTER	1½d.
MONTEM SMITH (two settings)	1½d.
J. TURLE (two settings)	1½d.
REV. C. A. WICKES (two settings)	1½d.
HENRY GADSBY	2d.
DR. STAINER, R. de Lacey, A. Gibbs, and F. Champneys	1½d.
DR. STAINER, W. Winn, and F. Walker	1½d.
H. B. C.	1½d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE MISERERE, &c.

As used in S. Paul's Cathedral at Special Lenten Services.

ARRANGED BY JOHN STAINER.

Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. BARNBY.

Price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW ANTHEM for LENT.—"O Lord my God." 8vo. By F. C. Hathaway. Price 2d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

	s.	d.
BARNBY, J.—AS WE HAVE BORNE THE IMAGE OF THE EARTHY	0	1½
ELVEY, Sir G. J., Mus. Doc.—CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD	0	1½
—— CHRIST BEING RAISED FROM THE DEAD	0	1½
GADSBY, HENRY.—HE IS RISEN	0	1½
GOSS, Sir JOHN.—CHRIST OUR PASSOVER	0	1½
—— IF WE BELIEVE THAT JESUS DIED	0	3
—— O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD	0	3
GOUNOD, CHARLES.—BLESSED IS HE WHO COMETH IN THE NAME OF THE LORD	0	1½
HOPKINS, J. L.—LIFT UP YOUR HEADS	0	1½
HOPKINS, E. J.—WHY SEEK YE THE LIVING AMONG THE DEAD?	0	1½
LAHEE, H.—NOW ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK	0	1½
LOWE, ALBERT.—THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH	0	3
NOVELLO, V.—THE EASTER HYMN	0	1½
—— THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH	0	1½
SULLIVAN, ARTHUR.—I WILL MENTION THE LOVING-KINDNESSES	0	6
STAINER, Dr.—THEY HAVE TAKEN AWAY MY LORD	0	1½
THORNE, E. H.—CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD	0	1½
—— THE LORD THAT BROUGHT US	0	3
TOURS, B.—GOD HATH APPOINTED A DAY	0	1½
TRIMNELL, THOS. TALLIS.—THE LORD IS KING (97th Psalm)	0	4
WESLEY, Dr. S. S.—O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD	0	4
—— BLESSED BE THE GOD AND FATHER	0	4

Most of the above can be had in folio vocal score and separate vocal parts.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NINE HYMNS WITH TUNES FOR EASTER,

SELECTED FROM

THE HYMNARY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

CHRIST THE LORD IS RISEN TO-DAY	Sir George Elvey.
FAR BE SORROW, TEARS, AND SIGHS	C. Steggall, Mus. D.
WELCOME, HAPPY MORNING	Arthur Sullivan.
COME, YE FAITHFUL, RAISE THE STRAIN	Ditto.
AT THE LAMB'S HIGH FEAST WE SING	German.
THE DAY OF RESURRECTION	Henry Smart.
JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY	Ch. Gounod.
Ditto Ditto	Old Melody.
O BLESSED TRINITY	Ditto.
SOON THE FIERY SUN ASCENDING	German.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S

EASTER ANTHEM.

THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH. Short, easy, full, and effective. Composed expressly for parish choirs. Octavo, 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Sacred Chorus for Eastertide

"NOW IS CHRIST RISEN FROM THE DEAD."

By D. PRIVET.

Reduced Price, 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

HE IS RISEN.—ANTHEM for EASTER. Duet, two trebles, and chorus. Composed by W. H. Holloway. 8vo, 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY EASTER ANTHEMS. By Thomas Smith.

FIFTH EDITION. Price 3d.

CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD.

Second Edition. Price 3d.

SING WE MERRILY UNTO GOD OUR STRENGTH.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W. Post-free from the Composer, 25, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

THE LORD IS RISEN INDEED! HALLELUJAH! Anthem for Easter. By Benjamin Congreve. Price 2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

NEW TERM.

Students can be received on MONDAY, MARCH 24, and following days for the undermentioned Classes and Lectures:—Harmony, Professor Gordon Saunders, Mus. D.; Counterpoint, Canon, and Fugue, Professor Edwin M. Lott; Form in Musical Composition, Edward Silas; Orchestration, Henry Smart; Musical History, The Warden; Harmony Class (Ladies), Humphrey J. Stark, Mus. B.; Organ, W. S. Hoyte; Pianoforte, Bradbury Turner, Mus. B.; Harmonium, King Hall; Solo Singing, J. C. Beuthin; Violin, L. Szczepanowski; Violoncello, W. Pettit; Flute, J. Radcliff; Harp, J. Cheshire, Sight and Class-Singing, W. J. Westbrook, Mus. D.; Choir Management, B. Agutter, Mus. B.; String Quartett Practice, under the direction of the Professors.

The STUDENT'S MUSICAL EVENINGS will be continued on alternate Tuesdays, as before.

For a Syllabus of Classes and other particulars, apply to the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, Weymouth Street. W

REEVES' MUSICAL DIRECTORY FOR 1879.

Will be issued in a few days. Price 2s., and 2s. 6d. cloth.

Established 1862: Enlarged 1875.

THE MUSICAL STANDARD.

Every Friday. Price Threepence.

Arrangements for a series of Articles by able Contributors have now been made. The following may be mentioned—C. K. Salaman, E. J. Hopkins, Dr. Stainer, John Crowdy, F. Sawyer, &c.

Just ready, No. 4 (in good bold types).

ENGLISH ORGAN MUSIC.

Nos. 1 to 4 now ready, price 3s. each net, or subscription 21s. a year. List of Contents, see the Musical Standard, March 1, or on application.

UNIFORM SERIES OF MUSICAL WORKS.

FREDERIC CHOPIN, HIS LIFE AND LETTERS. By Moritz Karasowski. 2 vols., with portrait, 12s. 6d. March 10.
ROBERT SCHUMANN'S LIFE AND LETTERS. 8s. 6d.
ELLA'S MUSICAL SKETCHES ABROAD and at HOME. 8s. 6d.
MUSIC AND MUSICIANS. By Schumann. 8s. 6d.
LETTERS ON MUSIC TO A LADY. By Ehlert. 4s.
LIFE OF MENDELSSOHN. By Lampadius. 2nd Edition. 5s.
LIFE OF CHOPIN. By Franz Liszt. 6s.
HISTORY OF MUSIC to the Present Time. By Dr. Ritter. 7s. 6d.
LIFE OF CHERUBINI. By E. Bellasis. 6s.
LETTERS OF DISTINGUISHED MUSICIANS. 6s. 6d.

W. Reeves, Musical Directory Office, Fleet Street, London.

TO COMPOSERS.—MUSIC ENGRAVED and PRINTED in the best style and at the most reasonable charges. Estimates free on receipt of MS. A trial solicited. Competition defied.

W. Reeves, Musical Directory Office, Fleet Street, London.

HELMHOLTZ ON TONE AND SCIENTIFIC LECTURES.

In one thick volume, 8vo, price 36s., cloth.

ON the SENSATIONS of TONE as a Physiological Basis for the Theory of Music. By Professor H. L. F. Helmholtz, M.D. Translated by A. J. Ellis, F.R.S.

HELMHOLTZ'S LECTURES on SCIENTIFIC SUBJECTS, translated by E. Atkinson, Ph.D., F.C.S., with Introduction by Professor Tyndall. 8vo. Woodcuts. 12s. 6d.

London: Longmans & Co.

Just published.

THE LORD OF THE ISLES

A Dramatic Cantata

(Founded on Sir Walter Scott's Poem),

BY

FRANK MURRAY.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

Octavo, Four Shillings.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

Edited by Dr. Stainer.

CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING

BY THE

REV. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.,

PRIEST IN ORDINARY TO THE QUEEN, & MINOR CANON OF WESTMINSTER.

Price 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(Published on the First of each Month)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

Edited by Dr. STAINER.

198 pp. Demy 4to.

SINGING

BY

ALBERTO RANDEGGER,

PROFESSOR OF SINGING AT THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

Paper Boards, 5s.

PREFACE.

On inquiring into the causes of the generally admitted and deplored fact that the art of singing has for a long time past shown signs of deterioration, the following questions suggest themselves :—

Are good voices less numerous now than in former years?

Is there any dearth of scientific and practical treatises on the production and training of the voice?

Is there any lack of competent teachers?

I answer that there is no scarcity either of good voices, of excellent printed methods, or of thoroughly capable teachers.

Nevertheless, a highly cultivated and artistic singer is nowadays but rarely found.

What is the cause of this?

I affirm that the principal cause is found in a disposition to curtail the labour and lessen the time which perfected study absolutely demands.

While instrumental performers take it as a matter of course that they must laboriously practise for years in order to gain a complete command over the mechanical difficulties of their respective instruments, would-be singers seldom realise the fact that they must endure a training at least as long, careful, and patient in order that the human voice may be used with skill, judgment, and artistic effect.

To attain this result it is necessary that both professor and student should make up their minds to begin at the beginning, and thoroughly to master each of the difficulties which successively present themselves in a systematic course of study.

The simple, fundamental principles of the only true art of emitting and fixing the voice in singing are most difficult both to teach and to acquire; but they are vitally important, because to neglect them at the outset is necessarily to impair the beauty, purity, and resonance of the vocal tones.

These primary rules I shall endeavour to explain in concise and intelligible language, purposely avoiding the use of diagrams and of technical expressions which would require special scientific knowledge on the part of the reader, and be, moreover, incompatible with the modest aims and proportions of a primer.

All who are competent to teach the art of producing the voice must necessarily have an exact knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the vocal organs; but such knowledge is not indispensable to the vocalist. To those who may desire to study the scientific side of the subject more profoundly, I recommend a careful perusal of the "Anatomical Description of the Vocal Organs," by Dr. Louis Mandl, of Paris, a translation of which, by his courteous permission, will be found in the Appendix.

Here my object is simply to lay down a clearly defined system of practice, such as will help to overcome the mechanical difficulties of voice-production and management.

I shall address the student in the plain and practical style which long experience has taught me to adopt with my pupils, and I trust that the title of this little book will be sufficient to absolve me from the need of offering an apology for the simplicity of its language.

At the same time it must be distinctly understood that no written theories on singing can presume to take the place of oral tuition.

ALBERTO RANDEGGER.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
MARCH 1, 1879.

THE EMPLOYMENT OF THE ORGAN IN THE ORCHESTRA, ESPECIALLY AS ILLUSTRATED BY MENDELSSOHN.

By Ebenezer Prout, B.A.

There are few of the problems which present themselves to the composer for the modern orchestra which are more difficult to solve satisfactorily than the really effective combination of the organ with other instruments. In the days of Handel and Bach the task was a much simpler one, because the orchestra was comparatively in its infancy. In the scores of Handel's oratorios, for example, the instruments used in at least nineteen movements out of twenty are only the strings, with perhaps the oboes doubling the violins in unison. In the choruses the oboes have a somewhat more independent part; but the orchestration as a rule is simplicity itself. Here the addition of the organ presented no difficulty. All that was required was that the instrument should double the voice parts in the choruses; the accompaniments being generally in the unison or octave, there would be no fear of confusion. As a matter of fact, we know this to have been Handel's practice. By a fortunate chance the conducting score of "Saul" has been preserved, containing full directions, in the composer's own writing, for the treatment of the organ; and all these indications are faithfully reprinted in the German Handel Society's edition of the oratorio. This edition has upset previous theories as to Handel's system. It was generally believed that in the many songs which are accompanied either with a figured bass, or with violins in unison and basses, the harmonies were filled up on the organ. It appears, however, from the score, that the plan actually adopted was quite different. It would occupy an entire article to go in detail through the various numbers of "Saul;" but it may be said generally that the organ is used in one of three ways. It is either treated as a solo instrument, as in the third movement of the overture, or the close of the chorus "Mourn, Israel, mourn;" or it plays with the voices in the choruses; or the bass (marked "tasto solo," and sometimes "tasto solo e l'ottava bassa") is employed to strengthen the orchestral basses. In not one single song throughout the work is the organ employed to fill up the harmony. The score shows us clearly that this duty was assigned to the harpsichord ("cembalo"). With Handel the chief use of the organ was to reinforce the power of the chorus. It is probable (though of this we have no direct proof) that in the anthems and other church music, the organ may have been used in the accompaniment of solos; but with regard to concert music, the testimony of the score of "Saul" is decisive.

With Bach the method of procedure is quite different. While Handel wrote for large masses of voices and instruments, his great contemporary had but a small force at his disposal—some eighteen instruments, all told, and a chorus of not more than three or four voices to each part. This we know from a letter written by himself to the Town Council of Leipzig relating to the musical arrangements. Unlike Handel, who reserves his organ for massive effects, Bach uses it throughout, alike for solos and choruses, for piano and forte passages. The proof of this is found in the separate orchestral parts of many of the Church Cantatas, copied by the composer himself, in which we find the organ part transposed a whole tone (the pitch of the organ being at that time different from that of the orchestra), and carefully figured from the first bar to the last. It is inconceivable that Bach should have taken the trouble to copy out and transpose in full a part not intended to be used: he would certainly have marked bars' rests (as with other instruments) if the organ were intended to be silent.

In accordance with the custom of their day, neither Bach nor Handel wrote out the organ-part fully in their scores, excepting in the comparatively rare cases in which there was an important obbligato for the instrument. At other times they contented themselves with a figured bass, which naturally left a considerable amount of freedom to the player, both as to the position and the fulness of his chords. The same plan was adopted by other composers as late as the commencement of the present century. In the Masses of Mozart and Haydn the organ part is hardly ever written out fully; the only instance I have met with being in the "Et incarnatus" of Haydn's Fourth Mass. Here the organ is treated as a solo instrument; its part is written on two staves, and, curiously enough, "Flautino" is given as an indication for registering. This would certainly seem to mean either a 4-feet or a 2-feet flute stop; but as the part is already written high, it is almost inconceivable that Haydn meant the sound to be an octave above the notes given, the effect of which would be most inappropriate in this place. It is probable that the term is used loosely to mean a small or delicate flute-stop; and that Haydn's intention would be best realised by playing the passages on a 4-feet stopped flute an octave lower than written, thus giving the real sounds presented in the score. It is worthy of notice that as soon as the organ ceases to be obbligato—at the "Crucifixus" in the same movement—the usual method of writing merely a figured bass is resumed.

In all Haydn's and Mozart's Masses the organ is used nearly throughout, whether in solo or chorus passages. Beethoven seems to have been the first of modern composers to perceive the special effects which might be obtained by the judicious reserve of the instrument. The organ parts of his two Masses are full of interest. In the Mass in C he has adhered to the time-honoured custom of writing merely a figured bass part; but in his Second Mass (in D) he has written out the organ part in full—probably the earliest occasion on which this has been done. An analysis of the organ part of the "Kyrie" of the Mass in C will indicate with sufficient clearness Beethoven's method of treating the instrument. The references will be to Novello's new octavo edition, which is probably in the hands of most of our readers, and which is chosen in preference to a movement of the Mass in D, as being better known. Though the organ part, as just mentioned, is merely figured, the composer's indications of what he requires are so full and clear, that it is impossible to make any important mistake as to his intentions.

The first phrase commences without the organ, which enters on the chord of E major (at the 9th bar) with striking effect. It is here only used for three bars, and is silent during the following symphony. At the entry of the bass solo (vocal score, p. 2, bar 2) the organ plays with the bass voice; and at the forte for chorus, four bars later, it is used in full chords, ceasing again at the piano (same page, line 2, bar 2). One would have naturally expected to find the organ again at the fine burst of the chorus in E major, "Christe eleison" (p. 3, bar 1); but Beethoven has merely indicated "Tasto solo," i.e., the bass only of the harmony is to be played, without any chords. In the following solo passages the organ is silent; but it enters in full chords at the "Eleison Christe" (p. 3, line 2, bar 2), being taken off again at the piano (line 3, bar 1, of same page). The repetition of the whole passage, which immediately follows, is treated in precisely the same way. From the end of the first line of p. 4 the organ is silent till the second bar of p. 5, when it enters on the chord of F major, playing with the voices till the end of the line. At the return of the first subject, it is used as at the commencement of the movement, entering for three bars only (p. 5, line 3, bars 3 to 5). It is silent, as before, during the solo passage, but reinforces the chorus on its re-entry (p. 6, line 2, last bar), continuing till the bottom of the same page. From this point to the end it is only employed ("Tasto solo") to reinforce the basses for seven bars (p. 7, line 1, bar 5, to line 2, bar 5), and it is not used at all for the close of the movement.

This analysis shows us clearly Beethoven's method of treating the "king of instruments." With his unerring insight into all the resources of the orchestra, he perceived that it was a waste of force to use the organ, as was usually done, continuously throughout a whole movement. He doubtless felt also, that the organ tone, if constantly employed, would obscure the orchestral tints, and give too great uniformity of colouring to the music. He therefore reserves it for passages in which he requires special fulness and a massive tone in his forte, or softness and richness in the piano. The same general principles might be illustrated by an examination of the organ part of the Mass in D, in which there is only one point on which a remark is needed. At the end of the prelude introducing the "Benedictus," will be found a soft pedal note for the organ combined with the orchestra, which seems like an anticipation of some of Mendelssohn's organ effects, to be presently noticed.

Of all modern composers Mendelssohn has unquestionably been the one who has made the most skilful use of the organ in the orchestra. Himself one of the greatest performers on the instrument that has appeared during the present century, he knew, as few others, how to combine the resources of the organ with the tones of other instruments; and from this point of view the study of his scores is invaluable to the student of orchestration. His general system is similar to that which, we have already seen, was adopted by Beethoven, but he surpasses his predecessor in his production of special effects.

Four of Mendelssohn's scores contain a fully written-out organ part. These are "St. Paul," "Elijah," the "Lobgesang," and the 98th Psalm. Besides this, the employment of the organ is indicated in the 42nd and 95th Psalms; but here we find simply "Col organo" and "Senza organo." It should be added that in the case of "St. Paul" and "Elijah," the organ part is not to be found in the original editions published by Simrock, but only in the new and complete edition of Mendelssohn's works issued by Breitkopf and Härtel. The probable explanation is that the organ part to these oratorios (which was first published separately) was not fully written out until after the scores were engraved. As I do not know the exact date of either publication this is, of course, a mere conjecture.

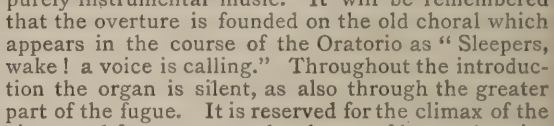
Of the four scores named, that of "St. Paul" is unquestionably the most instructive and interesting as regards the treatment of the organ; and next to this, that of the "Lobgesang." In "Elijah" and the 98th Psalm, the instrument is on the whole employed in a somewhat more conventional manner; though in both these works occasional points worthy of note may be met with. I now propose to analyse in some little detail the organ part of "St. Paul."

One of the first points that will strike a musician who examines the organ parts which Mendelssohn has written is the comparative thinness of the chords, even in fortissimo passages. It is seldom we meet with full chords for both hands, while it is not at all uncommon to find chords in four, or even in only three parts written in "close position" in the fortes. The probable explanation of this is that Mendelssohn calculated on powerful 16-feet manual stops, such as were, when he wrote, far more common in German organs than in English. In many places, as we shall presently see, he expressly directs the use of the "doubles;" and every organist knows that when these are drawn a much thinner disposition of the harmonies is required than would be effective without them. It is worthy of remark that in Mendelssohn's latest score—"Elijah"—the organ part is, as a rule, much fuller than in his earlier works.

A noticeable feature of Mendelssohn's organ parts is the purity of the writing from a harmonic point of view. Whether in three, four, or five parts, the composer has been just as careful in his progressions as if he had been writing a harmony exercise. As the organ is mostly employed for obtaining fulness of effect, even purists would probably have hardly raised an objection had there been a certain amount of license in the treatment of the instrument; and nothing is more characteristic of the composer, and more in keeping with the uniform artistic finish down to the smallest details which marks all his works, than the fact that one might hunt in vain through all his organ parts for a passage to which the strictest theorist could take exception.

As a general rule, no indications for registering are given in any of the scores now under notice beyond an occasional direction for the employment of 16-feet stops. In "Elijah" and the 98th Psalm not even these are to be met with. In "St. Paul" we shall see in two passages a precise tone-colour prescribed; and in this work more than in any other Mendelssohn appears to have taken especial care in marking the nuances (p, mf, f, &c.) for every passage. It is for this, among other reasons, that the organ part of "St. Paul" is the most instructive for analysis.

In going through the work it will be best to give the references to Novello's new octavo edition, in order that our readers may be able to follow the composer's ideas without difficulty. The importance given to the organ is to be seen at once from the fact that Mendelssohn has introduced it in the overture, this being the only instance of its employment by him in purely instrumental music. It will be remembered that the overture is founded on the old choral which appears in the course of the Oratorio as "Sleepers, wake! a voice is calling." Throughout the introduction the organ is silent, as also through the greater part of the fugue. It is reserved for the climax of the piece, and first enters at the change of key to A major (vocal score, p. 7, line 2), where the choral is given out by the whole mass of wind instruments, with florid semiquaver passages for violins and violas in octaves. The harmony is filled up on the organ, the first bars of the organ part being as follows:—



After one bar's rest, it enters again for three bars, now in a close four-part chord without pedals. Its next appearance is when the following line of the choral is introduced (third crotchet of the last bar of page 7). At the commencement of the florid figure for violoncellos (p. 8, bar 4), the organ ceases again; and it is not reintroduced till the very end of the overture (p. 8, last line), where it plays in unison with the other instruments, giving a massive and imposing tone to the close of the piece.

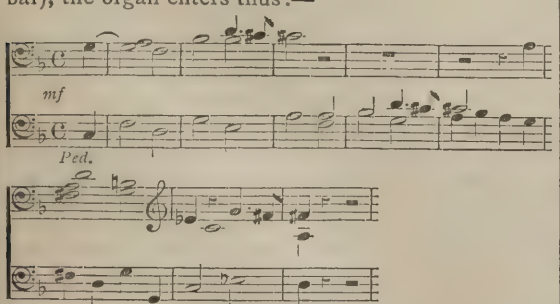
The opening chorus furnishes a remarkable example of Mendelssohn's reserve in the use of the organ. It is probable that at least nine composers out of ten would have introduced the instrument at the first entry of the voices to the words "Lord, Thou alone art God." Our author, however, contents himself here with the ordinary full orchestra (without trombones), and the organ is never heard till after the fugato on "The heathen furiously rage." The chorus suddenly subsides to a piano for the text, "Now, behold, lest our foes prevail" (vocal score, p. 15), and here the organ enters in four- and five-part harmony, accompanying and filling up the chords of the voices. How much more impressive and effective is this entry than would have been the case had the organ been used in the first part of the chorus! At the passage, "And grant to Thy servants" (p. 16, line 1), the organ is silent again for four bars. When the basses take up the subject, the organ pedals reinforce the instrumental bass (p. 16, line 2, bar 2) until the forte (last bar but one of same page), where the instrument is employed in full chords. From this point it plays forte with the voices (though not always the exact voice parts) till the first bar of line 2 on p. 18 (vocal score). After this it is silent, curiously enough, till the last three bars of the chorus. One would have certainly expected it at the phrase, "O grant to Thy servants" (p. 19, line 2, bar 1), but Mendelssohn, as has just been said, reserves it for the final cadence, introducing it only for the $\frac{6}{4}$ chord at "they may preach Thy word."

In the following choral, "To God on high," the organ, piano, plays with the voices throughout, the style of accompaniment here closely resembling that which Bach gives to the many chorals introduced in his Church Cantatas. The next entry of the organ is in the little duettino for the two false witnesses, "We verily have heard." This is accompanied by violas, two violoncellos, and double-basses, and the organ pedals play with the last-named instruments throughout. At the resumption of the narrative, "And they stirred up the people," the organ is silent.

The organ part of the chorus, "Now this man," is so short and so characteristic that it is worth quoting. The whole of the first section of the chorus is without organ; at the passage for tenors and basses, "He hath said, and our ears have heard," a peculiar accompaniment of bassoons, four horns, violoncellos, and double-basses, furnishes the only support to the voices; but at the words, "And change all the customs which Moses delivered us" (p. 27, line 3, first bar), the organ enters thus:—



My readers will at once see the effect of this organ part; its employment is probably intended to give a sacred character to the music suggested by the mention of the great lawgiver and the divine law. From this point the organ is silent till the end of the chorus, excepting that a holding pedal note reinforces the dominant pedal near the close (p. 29, last line).

The next employment of the organ may possibly have been suggested by Beethoven in the Mass in D, in the prelude to the Benedictus, already referred to. In the song, "Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets," at the first entry of the double-basses (p. 39, bar 2), the organ pedal only, pp, plays with the basses for the first five bars with a lovely effect that will be remembered by those who have been fortunate enough to hear the work with Mendelssohn's own organ part, which, I regret to say, is not always used. In the chorus, "Stone him to death," there is no organ; but in the choral, "To thee, O Lord," the organ, as in the previous choral, plays with the voices. From this point the instrument is silent for several numbers, and it is not heard again till we reach the chorus, "Rise! up! arise!" (p. 65).

The organ part of this grand piece is so interesting that it deserves a much fuller analysis than is possible to be given in this article. Moreover, to make it completely intelligible, it would be needful to quote the greater part of it; for much depends at times on the position of the chords. After the first two bars for basses and drums only, the organ pedal on its lowest D is introduced and sustained for fifteen bars, till the commencement of the ascending scale passage for the basses. Mendelssohn has here expressly marked "with 32-feet," this being the only instance in all his scores of such an indication. From the end of the pedal point just named the organ is silent for the rest of the symphony. At the entry of the voices, Mendelssohn, with an effect to which he was very partial, and of which many other examples may be found in his scores, reserves his organ for the end of his phrase. After the lead of the tenors, the whole chorus answers, "Rise! up! arise! rise, and shine," accompanied by the full orchestra. At the word "shine" (p. 66, line 1, bar 5) the full power of the organ is introduced with massive chords for both hands. Part of the force of this passage is necessarily lost in the English version of the words. The German is "Mache dich auf, werde Licht," the organ entering on the last word, just as in the chorus, "The night is departing," in the "Lobgesang," it is introduced at "The armour of light." In the present piece the effect is repeated after the lead of the sopranos at the sudden modulation into B major (p. 66, line 3, bar 5). At the fifth bar of the next page the organ ceases till the second bar of p. 68, where it re-enters, and continues, with the exception of two bars (the fourth and fifth of line 2, same page), till the commencement of the fugue, "Behold, now, total darkness." The first part of this fugue has no organ; Mendelssohn carefully reserving it for a special effect. We find it again at p. 71, line 3, bar 3, where doubles are indicated, and its entry gives weight to the cadence in G:—

In the following stretto there is again no organ, the use of which might have obscured the clearness of the entries of the voices; but towards the close of the fugue it reappears (p. 73, bar 2, line 2, to the third bar of the next page), its treatment being similar to that in the passage just quoted. At the fifth and seventh bars of p. 74 two emphatic $\frac{6}{5}$ chords on B, full in both hands, give point to the enunciation of the word "darkness" by the voices. From this point there is no organ till the coda (p. 76, first bar), where we meet with the fullest direction for registering yet given. On the chord of D the organ enters again with full chords, the composer marking in his score "Volles Werk ohne Mixtur," i.e., "Full organ without mixtures." From this point to the end of the chorus the organ is used throughout, generally in full harmony, but in a few bars, which we have not space to name, the pedals only. The whole organ part of this chorus is full of instruction, and may be strongly recommended to the student for analysis.

The following choral, "Sleepers, wake!" is the only one in the Oratorio in which the organ is not employed, doubtless because it is so much more fully scored than any of the other chorals that the composer felt the accompaniment to be quite sufficiently heavy. It may be remarked that Mendelssohn never wastes his organ, if the expression may be allowed; he never brings it in without some definite object. We next meet with it in the chorus, "The Lord He is good," in which it has only a few bars to play, but these are important. Its first entry is for four bars only (mf, with 16-feet) at the words, "For His word shall not decay" (p. 92, line 1, bar 4, to line 2, bar 1). After this it is brought in again for the dominant pedal (p. 93, bar 3), continuing (excepting the first two bars of line 3) till the fourth bar of p. 94. The close of the chorus has no organ.

The treatment of the organ in the next number in which it is met with, the chorus "O great is the depth," is somewhat peculiar. Mendelssohn has throughout confined it to reinforcing the entry of the principal subject. In the opening of the chorus, accompanied only by the strings and organ, the latter (mf, with 16-feet) has mostly four and five-part harmony. At "How deep and unerring" (p. 98, last line) the organ ceases till the return of the first subject (p. 100, third bar from the end), when it is re-introduced, but now forte instead of mf. Throughout the whole of the fugue, "Sing His glory for evermore," Mendelssohn, with remarkable self-denial, holds the organ in reserve, though there are some passages, especially the pedal point on p. 104, and much that follows it, in which we should certainly have expected the instrument to be used. It is not till the "moderato come 1mo," on the last page that the full organ is combined with the full orchestra, giving all possible power to the final enunciation of the opening theme of the chorus.

Hardly less unusual is Mendelssohn's treatment of the organ in the next number—the chorus, "The nations are now the Lord's." In the introduction the instrument is characteristically employed twice with a single chord, ff, for the word "Lord's" (p. 107, line 2, first and last bars). From the second bar of the next page the organ in sustained harmonies supports the voices till the passage, "They are His Christ's" (p. 109, bar 2); but from this point it is silent altogether. I have never been able to satisfy myself as to the reason why Mendelssohn did not use the organ in any part of the following fugue. In similar places both in this work and others he employs it freely; and, though he doubtless had some object in suppressing it here, it is not easy to see what his motive was. In the next chorus, "How lovely are the messengers," the organ pedal only is used to strengthen the bass in the forte passage (p. 128, line 2, bar 1, to p. 129, bar 2), and for holding G of the last five bars.

The two choruses of the Jews which come next in the Oratorio, "Thus saith the Lord" and "Is this he?" have no organ part. It is worthy of notice that in this Oratorio Mendelssohn seems to treat the organ as especially suited for the music of the Christian Church. With the exception of one passage, already referred to, in the chorus, "Now, this man ceaseth not," we nowhere find the instrument used in any of the choruses of the Jews or heathens. It is not in "The gods themselves as mortals have descended," nor "O be gracious, ye immortals," nor "This is Jehovah's temple." Similarly in "Elijah" it is not used for the choruses of the Priests of Baal. May this possibly have been the reason of its non-employment in the fugue above mentioned, "For all the Gentiles come before thee"? The suggestion is perhaps rather far-fetched; but the explanation is not impossible that, as the Gentiles and not the Christian Church are referred to, Mendelssohn refrained from introducing the organ in that connection. At the choral, "O Thou, the true and only light," which follows the chorus, "Is this he?" we find the organ playing with the voices in the second verse, "Illumine those who blindly roam," and in the last three bars sustaining the pedal B flat.

Passing over the following recitative and duet, which contain no organ, we come to the recitative, "And there was a man at Lystra," in which the instrument is used in a peculiar, it may be added a unique, manner. It is here treated as a component part of the orchestra, and combined with the strings in the accompaniment. In the first phrases of the recitative the strings alone support the voice, but at the words, "Stand upright upon thy feet" (p. 149, line 3, bar 3), the organ, piano, but in full chords, is added to the strings, entering again at the words, "And praised God." In the pianoforte score, the accompaniment gives the string parts only; by adding to it the organ part, which is here quoted in full, the reader will easily see the complete effect of the passage.

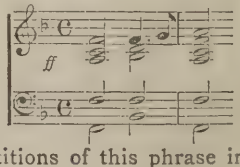
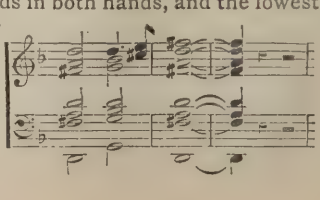
The next introduction of the organ is hardly less characteristic. It occurs in the recitative, "Now, when the Apostles heard the same." The first part of this movement is accompanied by strings only, but after the words, "As saith the Prophet" (p. 159, line 2, bar 4), not only are oboes, bassoons, and horns added, but a very powerful organ part, marked (as in a passage previously noticed) "Full organ without mixtures."



On the repetitions of this phrase in A minor and C major, the organ is treated in precisely the same way; but on its last recurrence in D major (p. 159, last line, bars 1 to 3), when trumpets and drums are added to the score, a still fuller organ part is given, with chords in both hands, and the lowest notes of the pedals:—



It may fairly be said that of such organ effects as these Mendelssohn was certainly the inventor.

In the following air, "For know ye not that ye are His temple?" the organ pedals, pp, play with the double-basses for the first eighteen bars, after which the instrument is silent till the second movement, "But our God abideth in heaven." The organ pedals again enter here for the first nine bars. The following twelve bars have no organ part, but the pedals are re-introduced toward the close of the solo (p. 162, line 4, last bar), and in the last two bars of the same page the full harmony, pp, is taken by the organ, in unison with the strings. In the following chorus the organ is not employed till the commencement of the dominant pedal (p. 168, first bar), when it has full harmony, forte, mostly in four parts. From this point it is used to the end of the movement, excepting in one short passage (p. 169, line 2, bar 4, to p. 170, line 1, bar 4).

There is but little more to notice in the remainder of the Oratorio. In the short quartett and chorus, "Far be it from thy path," the organ in sustained harmonies enters with the chorus (p. 181, line 3, bar 1), the part being in general remarkably thin—sometimes having only two or three notes. There is no organ at the forte passage (p. 182, line 2, bar 1), but it reappears at the close of the phrase (same line, bar 5, third crotchet), and is continued till the end of the passage for the alto voices, when it abruptly ceases.

In the final chorus will be seen, at the commencement, another instance of Mendelssohn's habit, already referred to, of introducing his organ to emphasise certain notes in the middle of a phrase. Here we find two full chords for the words, "All them," with which the instrument enters, after which it continues for the next four bars. It is then reserved throughout the following passages of imitation, coming in, as before, with a crash at "All them" (p. 189, line 3, bar 3). In the following passage, "The Lord careth for us," the organ (mf, with 16-feet), is used in sustained harmony till the forte (p. 191, line 1, bar 3), when it ceases for four bars, the full power being introduced for the final "Bless thou the Lord," which leads into the fugue. The first part of the fugue has no organ; but it is effectively introduced in holding chords at the lead of the basses in F sharp minor (p. 195, line 2, bar 4), and at the repetition of the phrase which immediately follows for tenor and soprano. From the last bar of p. 196, line 2, the organ is used continuously till the end of p. 197. It is then taken off for seven bars, reappearing at the tonic pedal (p. 198, line 2, bar 3) and continuing till the end of the chorus.

My analysis has extended to much greater length than I anticipated in commencing it. I have necessarily been very technical; I fear also very dry, except, perhaps, to students of instrumentation. My apology must be that my aim has been a practical one—to show how one of the greatest masters of orchestration treated the instrument. Few, comparatively, will be likely to have the new edition of "St. Paul" in their libraries; but so many will have the octavo vocal score to which the references have been given, that I trust it will be possible to all to form at least an approximate idea of the method which Mendelssohn has adopted. At the same time it must be understood that only an outline has been given. Much depends, not merely upon the disposition of the harmonies for the organ, but upon the various ways in which they are combined with the orchestral instruments; and this could only be fully shown by quoting the entire score, which is obviously impracticable. Some assistance may, nevertheless, be given to the student even from such a sketch as that here attempted; and it is with this hope that this article has been written.

THE LITERATURE OF NATIONAL MUSIC.

By Carl Engel.

(Concluded from page 72.)

Various Sources.

Some interesting information concerning the music of uncivilised nations or tribes is occasionally to be found in books of travel. It is, however, a laborious task for the inquiring musician to pick out the information from those books; he may peruse a comprehensive journal without meeting with a single statement of use for his purpose; or, should he find one which appears to him instructive, there is every probability that it is expressed in words so vague and indistinct as to be useless. Nay, among the published journals of English travellers there are not a few in which the musical performances of foreign nations, if they are alluded to at all, are almost sure to be spoken of disparagingly, and perhaps with an apology for noticing a subject so insignificant. Most travellers are too little acquainted with music to be able to discern what is noteworthy; besides, mere travelling does not make any one a keen observer. A well-prepared person, in walking for half an hour in his garden, may discover more interesting facts than a rambler during a half-year's walk in a distant land. The statements relating to the music of foreign nations given by travellers who possess but slight musical knowledge, ought generally to be received with caution. These informants are apt to employ technical terms and expressions supposed by them to be artistic, which are often incorrect and misleading. Nay, sometimes they express just the contrary of what they intend to say. For instance, the natives of a country are stated to have sung in "pleasant harmony," when it is evident that they had sung an air in unison. A performance is said to have been "very harmonious," when the music pleased our informant; did it appear rather sad to him, he records that it was in a minor key; and if there was something peculiar in the performance which he cannot explain, he terms it "a wild cadence." A stringed instrument having a neck is almost sure to be called "a sort of guitar;" and if it happens to be mounted with four strings, we have perhaps an allusion to the Greek tetrachord, with a quotation from Burney's "History of Music." A wind-instrument with finger-holes is "a flute," no matter whether it is constructed with a single reed in the mouth-hole, like the clarionet, with a double reed, like the hautboy, or with a plug, like the flageolet. A wooden harmonicon, like the marimba or balafo of the negroes, is "a piano;" and when we are told that a native minstrel executed with admirable skill his plaintive national tunes on "a mouth-organ," we are left in uncertainty as to whether the instrument was a Jew's harp, or a pandean pipe, like the Hebrew ugab. However, it is hardly necessary to show that most of the musical information offered in English books of travel is useless, since the student has probably ascertained this already from experience.

Neither is it surprising that the published journals of missionaries should generally be unsatisfactory for useful musical information, considering how imperfectly the mind of many of these writers has been cultivated for observation, discernment, and application. It was very different with the Jesuit missionaries during the eighteenth century. Their scientific attainments enabled them to investigate and describe accurately the usages, sentiments, and accomplishments of the nations which they visited. The result has been that some of their communications are still highly appreciated, and justly so.

On the other hand, the musical student owes a debt of gratitude to modern travellers for having brought over to England specimens of musical instruments from different remote parts of the world. He has it thus in his power to examine minutely many of the curious contrivances which he finds alluded to in books of travel, and of the real construction of which it would be impossible for him to form an idea from those books. Many of the musical instruments brought to Europe are deposited in public museums or in private collections. With those which are constructed with sonorous slabs of wood or metal, with wind-instruments having finger-holes, and with wind-instruments constructed of a number of tubes, as is the case with the pandean pipe, the musician has generally no difficulty in ascertaining the series of tones producible on the instruments. This is also in some degree possible with stringed instruments provided with frets; however, the frets, which usually consist of cords wound round the neck, are liable to become disarranged in the course of time, and not much reliance can therefore be placed on the positions of the frets of most of the stringed instruments brought from distant countries, and often roughly handled. As regards the manner of playing the instruments, and their combination in musical performances, the student has of course to consult the statements of witnesses.

Among the various sources for information on the music of uncivilised and semi-civilised nations, we must not leave unnoticed the periodical publications of Geographical and Anthropological Societies; and especially certain English works treating on the social life, manners and customs, legends, and fairy-tales of some particular foreign nation. I have already had occasion in the present survey to draw attention to these noteworthy sources; a few books of the kind, concerning extra-European nations, may however be pointed out here by way of example, to guide the inquirer on the right track.

"The Chinese as they are: their moral, social, and literary character; a new analysis of the language, with succinct views of their principal arts and sciences;" by G. Tradescant Lay (London, 1841; 8vo), contains a chapter on the music of the Chinese, with illustrations of instruments. A dissertation on the same subject, by the same author, has been published in "The Chinese Repository" (Canton, 1840), p. 38.

"A Narrative of a Mission sent by the Governor-General of India to the Court of Ava" (London, 1858; 4to), contains much information respecting the music and musical instruments of the Burmese.

"Zeitschrift der deutschen morgenländischen Gesellschaft" (Leipzig, 1851; vol. v.), contains an account of the music of the Armenians, by Petermann.

"Polynesian Mythology and Ancient Traditional History of the New Zealand Race," by Sir George Grey (London, 1855; 8vo), contains an essay on the native songs of New Zealand, by J. A. Davies.

"Polynesian Researches," by William Ellis (London, 1829; 8vo, two vols.), contains an account of the music and musical instruments of the South Sea Islanders.

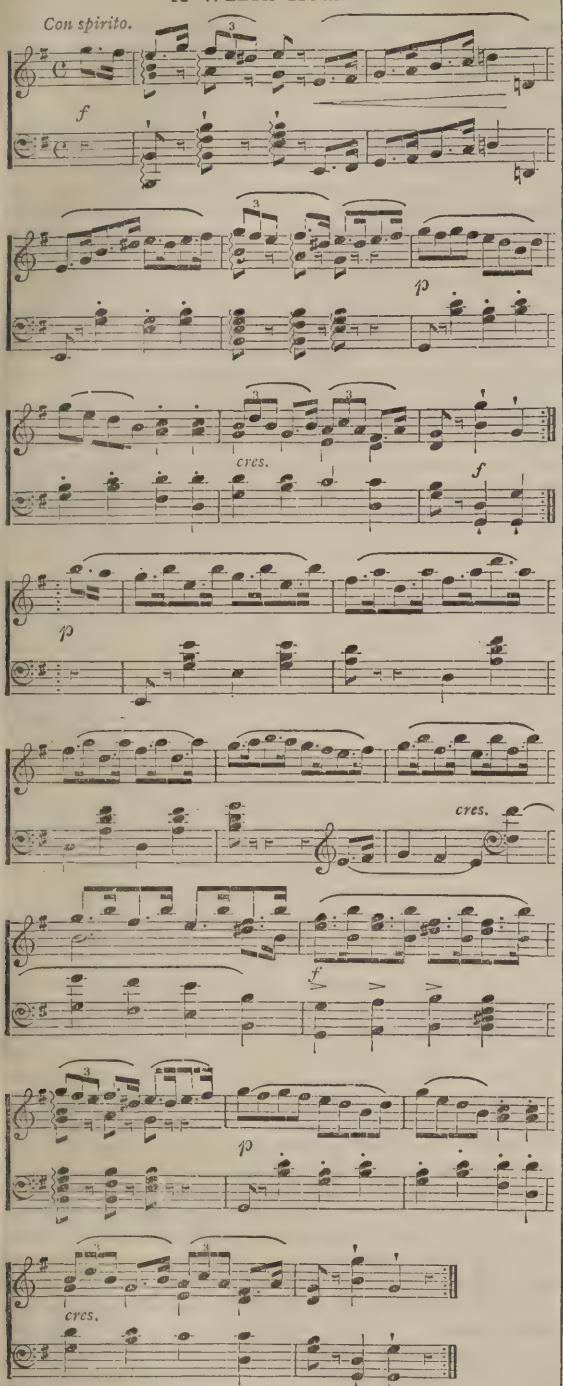
"An Account of the Natives of the Tonga Islands, in the South Pacific Ocean; compiled and arranged from the extensive communications of Mr. William Mariner, several years resident in those islands;" by John Martin (London, 1817; 8vo, two vols.). This interesting work, of which a second edition, "with an original Grammar and Vocabulary of their Language," appeared in 1818, contains much information respecting the songs and dances of the Tonga Islanders, with tunes in notation.

Likewise, in the musical journals, of which almost every European country possesses some periodical publications, interesting communications relating to national music are occasionally to be met with. Especially the Allgemeine Musikalische Zeitung, which was founded in the year 1798 by F. J. Rochlitz, edited from 1827 to 1841 by G. W. Fink, and subsequently by other distinguished musical savants (Leipzig: Breitkopf und Härtel; 4to), ought to be consulted; and this the student may accomplish with all the greater facility since a compiled index of the contents of the voluminous publication has been issued.

Now, in glancing over the numerous titles of collections of songs with their tunes, and of treatises, given in the present survey, the student will probably surmise that the subject has been so fully investigated as to be nearly exhausted. But a little further consideration must soon convince him that this is far from being the case. True, some important progress has been made during the last fifty years; the most valuable books mentioned in our survey have, with a few exceptions, been published in the present century. However, only a few countries have hitherto been carefully explored; the great majority remain even now to the musical inquirer a sealed book. Nay, even in countries where so many searches have been made that it might be thought no stone had been left unturned, unexpected finds to a considerable amount are not unfrequently brought to light. To note an instance of recent occurrence. There are, as we have seen, numerous published collections of Scotch national songs. Many of the editors of these collections did not gather the airs of the songs from oral communication, but merely copied them, or at least the greater number of them, from previous books. We meet therefore with certain favourite tunes over and over again in many books. Nevertheless the number of different tunes is very great; we could hardly expect to find it still considerably increased by new searches among the country people. However, a recent publication, entitled "Traditional Ballad Airs, procured in the Counties of Aberdeen, Banff, and Moray," edited by W. Christie (Edinburgh: Edmonston and Douglas), suggests that even in Scotland an efficient and discerning musical antiquarian would find his pursuit rewarded by new acquisitions.

In Wales, at all events in the northern district of the principality, which Edward Jones ransacked already nearly a hundred years ago, a search after old national tunes may appear even less likely to yield an interesting result than in other parts of the British Islands. Still, also here, I cannot help thinking valuable additions to the Welsh airs which have been published might be obtained. In support of this opinion I shall insert here a Welsh dance-tune which I heard played, about ten years ago, by an old blind harper in Llangollen. He called it "Dixon's Hornpipe," and played it, at my request for old Welsh tunes, with some others which were well-known ones. The originality and boldness of modulation which characterise the tune induced me to commit it at once to paper. Having it afterwards again played by the old blind minstrel, I was enabled to render as faithfully as possible not only the melody but likewise the peculiar treatment of the harmonious accompaniment. To me this spirited tune appears as fine as any of the finest Welsh tunes in popular favour; but, as I may in this case perhaps be a biassed judge, I would rather leave it to the reader to form his own opinion. I do not fear his judgment, provided he does not pronounce it before he has fully imbibed the characteristics of the music. This he will best achieve by playing it as it is marked, "con spirito:"—

A Welsh Hornpipe.



If a foreigner, during a night's stay in a much-frequented Welsh town, can pick up a Welsh tune which has never been printed, how much more easy must it be for a native musician, who is familiar with the language and usages of the people! It is with an especial object that I submit this remark to the consideration of English musicians. Pianoforte teachers, organists, and other musical professors living in the provincial towns, must often have excellent opportunities of collecting airs from the lips of the peasantry. All that is required is that they take real interest in the pursuit, not engaging in it as a troublesome business, but as a labour of love. In Cornwall it would probably be possible to collect in a short time a number of tunes which are not to be found in any book. Indications of their existence are not wanting. For instance, Cyrus Redding, in his "Illustrated Itinerary of the County of Cornwall" (London, 1842), gives a notation of an old air, called Fadé, which the Cornish people sing on May-day, and which is also used by them as a dance-tune. In Northumberland, and in other northern districts of England, probably tunes somewhat resembling those of the south of Scotland, might be obtained. It certainly appears singular that the English musicians should have neglected to investigate the national songs of the different provinces of their country, while much has been done by collectors in almost every other European country. True, many of the intelligent musicians in England are foreigners, who cannot be expected to occupy themselves with collecting the songs of the English peasantry; neither would they be well qualified for the task, however much they might be inclined to give their attention to it. But surely there are English musicians in London and in the large provincial towns who might achieve good results if they would spend their autumnal holidays in some rural district of the country, associate with the villagers, and listen to their songs. What change can be more desirable for a professional man, who during the greater part of his engagements moves in the fashionable circles of society, and is compelled to inhale the impure air of the concert-room—what can be more beneficial to him than an occasional abode among the peasantry in a village, where the pure and invigorating air, and the beautiful scenery, invite to rambles in the fields and woods, and chase away those morbid feelings and crazy notions which very likely have taken possession of the drawing-room musician?

About a century ago there were still, in many European countries, minstrels, or bards, who preserved traditionally the poetry and music of the people. This class of musicians is now gradually becoming extinct, and with it some of the old national musical instruments. In Esthonia, for instance, the last minstrel who perambulated from village to village to play to the peasants their old tunes on the kantele, the old national musical instrument of the Finns, died in the year 1812, and the kantele was, so to say, buried with him. In the Ukraine, which, as regards national tunes, is perhaps the most fertile district of Russia, the last popular minstrel of renown, who played upon the bandura, a stringed instrument of the lute kind which is now seldom heard in the Ukraine, was still alive some years ago, an old man devoid of sight, whose name was Ostap Veresai. Like most of the old minstrels or bards, he was a living depository of old national songs. His fame spread so far throughout the Ukraine that a biographical notice of him, written by A. A. Rusof, has recently been published in Kief. The book in which it is printed is entitled "Kobzar Ostap Veresai," and contains, besides the biographical notice, an article on the songs and musical performances of Ostap Veresai, written by N. V. Lisenko; and a number of his musical effusions given in notation. In Little Russia, the minstrel and singer is called kobzar or bandurista, from his accompanying his voice on the kobza or bandura.

From such men it would have been comparatively easy to obtain collections of national airs; but this opportunity has generally been lost, because, at the time when the minstrels flourished, but little value was placed upon such relics by educated listeners, who alone were able to commit the music to notation.

At the present day, it seems, musical lecturers will in some respects take the place of these minstrels. However, in order really to promote this interesting branch of the musical art, a more thorough preparation is required than appears to have been thought necessary by most of our lecturers. They might take example from the useful scientific lectures given by scholars who have fully mastered the subject which they discuss. Granted that some gossip on national music, interspersed with some singing of popular airs, and wound up with a stirring appeal to the patriotism of the audience, may prove a pleasant evening entertainment, even for unmusical people, it can be of no real use for the art. Some sentimental talk about the lofty mountains and glorious old castles of the country which shall never crumble into dust may heighten the effect of the musical performances, and the emphatic exclamation that "Britons never shall be slaves" is likely to be applauded with enthusiasm, perhaps most vociferously by those of the audience who are the greatest slaves to their prejudices and passions. Of course not all our musical lectures exhibit so low a taste; praiseworthy exceptions could be cited. Howbeit, as lectures on national music are seldom printed, it would scarcely be worth while to dwell on this subject of musical literature, were it not that the idea of instructing the people by entertaining lectures is excellent and deserving of every encouragement.

A common defect in discourses on national music is that certain peculiarities which are observed in the music of a nation are represented as appertaining exclusively to that nation, and as constituting the characteristic features of the music of that particular nation, whereas in reality they are traceable in the music of various nations.

In short, musicians who intend to discourse upon this subject would do well to study it earnestly, and to extend their investigation to the music of different countries, instead of confining it to the music of the country on which they propose to instruct others. The present essay may be of assistance to them inasmuch as it points out the various sources of information. I am aware that it is but an imperfect attempt; my consolation must be that there will come other students who will carry it on to greater perfection than, with the limited means at present available, it has been in my power to attain.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS, SKETCHED BY THEMSELVES.

By Joseph Bennett.

No. V.—SCHUMANN.

(Continued from page 75.)

Last month I followed Schumann's musico-literary career, by the light of his letters, as far as the year 1838, when he removed the Neue Zeitschrift to Vienna. The reasons for and incidents of that removal now demand attention, and happily no shadow of obscurity rests upon either, for the master, at that time more in love than ever, was in the habit of pouring out all his soul to his correspondents. Writing to his sister-in-law on the prospect of marriage at the end of 1837, he said: "The old man won't let Clara leave him yet, he's too fond of her. And he is really in the right, for he thinks we ought to earn more money first, so that we may live comfortably." Putting this remark with some passages in a letter to Fischhof, we are able to see very clearly that considerations of affection rather than artistic ambition prompted him to remove to the city of the Kaisers. He was content with Leipzig, but eagerly became "a stranger and a sojourner" elsewhere for the sake of his love. The passages worth note in the communication to Fischhof, then resident in Vienna, are the following: "Don't be frightened if in two months from now somebody knocks at your door—my ghost, my very self; still more if he tells you that he shall probably settle in Vienna next year and for ever. I tell you all this in the strictest confidence and with the request that you will not breathe it to any one, from Leipzig especially. The motives which bring me to Vienna are of a friendly nature, certain circumstances render it necessary for me to fix my residence in a larger city than Leipzig. I'll tell you more which I may not trust to paper. . . . Thus I close, more agitated than ever, and with a most grateful heart. Assist me: the happiness of my life depends upon it. I am no longer alone. All this is for your eye only." But the eagerness and haste of the ardent lover could not sweep away the tedious formalities imposed by a paternal government, and Schumann had to transact business with various Imperial and Royal officials before his little art-journal could appear in the dominions of Apostolic Majesty. About the mode of procedure Schumann knew nothing, and therefore wrote to Fischhof: "I should like to present my petition to publish my journal in Vienna as soon as possible, so that the first number of the next volume may be sent thence by the middle of December. Being entirely ignorant of the rules and forms by which such a petition should be shaped, I beg you graciously to help a poor musician who never before had anything to do with officials and censors. . . . Perhaps you can have one (petition) drawn up for me from the outlines written on the other side. . . . Do you know whether the authorities will require an account of my early life, my circumstances (in the best of order), &c., and whether it should be forwarded with the petition?" If any reader be curious to know what Schumann's idea of a petition was like, here it is: "The undersigned, a Saxon by birth, living in Leipzig, musician, editor and owner of the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, desires to change his residence from Leipzig to Vienna, on account of his love for music (should he not have said Clara?) as well as of his business relations. The journal, which has never touched upon any save musical subjects, has been licensed and widely read by the highest officials in the Monarchy ever since its establishment (1834). He now seeks permission to publish it in Vienna from the 1st of January, 1839, or from the tenth volume. He is ready to produce all the necessary testimony to his former circumstances. Business prevents him from visiting Vienna until the middle of October, he therefore presents his petition in writing and begs it may be favourably considered. All this with due respect." Referring to the above document, Schumann said, "I can write music better than petitions, eh?" and it is impossible not to agree with him. Fischhof answered as to the formalities in a manner easily deduced from Schumann's query in reply: "Will it be possible to arrange with the censor in eight weeks?" No; it was hardly possible, since so many precautions were exacted by that official. "I followed your friendly advice," wrote the lover-editor, "in regard to recommendations from the authorities here at once. I obtained the usual police testimonials, and a special recommendation from the magistrate. The Austrian consul, who will soon hear from Vienna that I propose to come there, is an intimate (musical) friend of Mendelssohn, who promises to introduce me to him in a few days. I should prefer to bring ready money rather than letters of credit. Wouldn't a thousand thalers be enough? If not, I can bring securities from the magistrate for a larger sum." In the same letter Schumann touched again upon the motive for all this eagerness: "What you do now for me is not for my temporary gratification, but for my life-long happiness. You write of mysterious hints; but when we meet all shall be made clear. Trust in my affection."

In September, 1838, though the Vienna publication was not arranged, nor the censor satisfied that the Neue Zeitschrift was unlikely to dissolve the Austrian empire, and its editor to cheat his creditors, Schumann removed to the Imperial city, whence a month later he addressed a lively letter to his relatives. Small progress had then been made, and the Imperial city did not appear to be bathed in rose-water: "My plans have as yet advanced but little. The city is so large that one needs double time for everything. . . . You would hardly believe how many petty factions and coteries there are here; to get a firm foothold one must have a great deal of the snake about him, which I don't think I have. . . . If I cannot remain here, my firm purpose is to go to Paris or London. I will not return to Leipzig; but I will be discreet; don't fear that I will act too hastily. . . . To tell you a secret, I shouldn't like to live here long, and alone. Serious men and Saxons are seldom wanted or understood here. But the fine surroundings make amends for that. Yesterday I went to the churchyard where Beethoven and Schubert lie buried. Think what I found on Beethoven's tombstone—a pen! and a steel one, too! It was a good omen; I shall preserve it as sacred." Schumann found something else that made amends in Vienna—a change to good cooking from the peculiar culinary efforts of North Germany, and he enjoyed it:—"I never imagined such delicious cooking!" he exclaimed in the letter just quoted; and again, "The cooking is superb." So were the cigars, which he spoke of as a "great comfort." Two months later, the master liked Vienna still less, and wrote to his sister-in-law: "Believe me, Theresa, if it depended on me alone, I would return to Leipzig to-morrow. Leipzig is not so small a place as I thought. They prate and gossip here as much as in Zwickau. . . . I am also doubtful whether the famous Viennese good nature is anything more than an empty smiling face. . . . In vain do I look for musicians; that is, musicians who not only can play passably well upon one or two instruments, but who are cultivated men and understand Shakespeare and Jean Paul. Well, the step is taken, and it had to be taken. The journal will plainly lose ground if I have to publish it here. I'm very sorry. But if I can only get my wife I shall forget all the trouble and the sleepless nights she has cost me. I could tell you much about my fine acquaintance . . . that I often feel very well, but much oftener melancholy enough to shoot myself, and that the Novello bride (Clara Novello) is with one of my dearest friends, which is exceedingly pleasant for me." There are no more published letters from Vienna. In April, 1839, the master, his object unattained, finally left that city (carrying with him the MS. of Schubert's great Symphony) and returned to Leipzig, where he again settled down, and began to force Herr Wieck's consent to his marriage with Clara by means of a process at law.

I must now ask the reader to go back to the early part of 1838, in order that Schumann may be seen making another and a different effort to worthily win his bride. Looking at the high position Fraulein Wieck had reached, and comparing it with his own, the master bethought him that something should be done towards equality, even if it were merely the winning of those academic honours which Handel, whom love never weakened, so vigorously repulsed. Such is the transforming power of the master passion that we can hardly recognise a great artist in the following communication from Schumann to his sister-in-law: "Now comes an important matter in which I desire your aid and advice. Clara has won quite high rank by her fine performance of chamber-music. I too am honourably known, though not in equal degree. . . . You know Hartenstein (a Leipzig University professor) well, and must write either to him or to Ida (his wife) as follows: That I (you can give my name or not, as you like and think fit) am betrothed to a certain maiden by the consent of her parents, and that they would be much pleased by a 'Dr.' before my name, which would speed me on my way. Now, I should like to learn, through Hartenstein's goodness, if many formalities would be requisite to obtain a degree from the Philosophic Faculty. I could not spare much time, being pressed by various professional duties. He would then tell you what steps must first be taken. I desire merely a title, and should then leave Leipzig. But there's no great hurry. If I only knew his opinion I would apply in person for further information. Finally, ask if the Leipzig University ever gives the title of Doctor of Music. Earnestly entreat him or Ida to preserve the strictest secrecy, as it is to be a surprise. You women can do anything. Whisper to Ida that she can thus serve an old acquaintance." Nothing resulted from this pulling of women's apron-strings, but Schumann held fast by his craving for the "Dr." and in January, 1840 he tried what could be done to satisfy it at Jena, where he had a friend in Herr Keferstein. To Keferstein the master wrote:—"And now one private prayer: I know no one more kind or better informed than you, to whom I may apply. But promise me most honoured friend, that you will tell no third party. . . . Clara's illustrious position as an artist often makes me think how petty mine is, and, although she is not ambitious, and loves me simply as a man and a musician, still I think it would please her could I attain higher rank, in a municipal sense of the word. Permit me to ask: is it difficult to become a Doctor in Jena? Should I have to pass an examination, and in what? To whom should I apply? Would not my position as editor of a paper (which has been established for seven years), my position as a composer, and my constant effort after truth assist me to obtain this title? Tell me your candid opinion, and grant my request to observe strict silence on the matter." Keferstein appears to have answered favourably, and to have intimated that something would need to be done to win in a formal way the proposed honour. Schumann replied, "I know but little Latin; but feel fully capable of a good German disquisition," and suggested one on Shakespeare's relations with music. He preferred, however, to receive the Doctorate as a reward for earlier efforts: "I take the liberty of sending you, for this purpose, a series of essays by me and of others on me, such as I have been able to collect easily. I also enclose a few diplomas, and will send later, if required, a certificate of good character from the authorities, as well as the curriculum vitæ, and the customary fees of which you spoke. Will you go to the Dean once more, and say a good word for me; perhaps tell him of my position in the musical world, and, for it is no longer a secret, my relation to Clara . . . and that the title would be of great service to me just now, when the public talk so much and so confusedly about us. In a word, to conclude, I wish not only that people should say I have become so and so, but a reason must be given in the diploma. I heard that an eminent divine of this place was recently given a degree in your city in a similar way, merely by paying the fees. Is this so? And now comes the question—In case I win the diploma by an essay or otherwise, would it make me a Doctor of Music? I should, of course, prefer it. Give me, if you please, some information as to the manner in which the diploma, however gained, would be drawn up." Perhaps this is the sole instance in academical record, where a candidate for honours partly bases his claim on the fact that success would gratify his fiancée. The position, it must be confessed, is the reverse of dignified, and excusable only on the ground that when a man is in love he will do the most silly things, with a beautiful unconsciousness of their real character. Schumann's curriculum vitæ, referred to above, is not a particularly interesting document, though drawn up by his own hand. It relates in the baldest style the chief events of his life, and makes naïve reference to such high distinctions as the honorary membership of the Rotterdam Association for the Promotion of Music, the German National Club of Stuttgart, &c. &c. But it sufficed for its purpose, and on February 22, 1840, the authorities of Jena University admitted Robert Schumann to the Faculty of Philosophy, announcing the same in a diploma full of high-sounding Latinity. The recipient was as pleased as a child with a new toy, and wrote to Keferstein: "Everything conspired to fill my cup of joy. The eulogy was so glorious that I never can thank you enough for it. It has given me and my friends the deepest satisfaction. The first thing I did was, of course, to send a copy to my maiden in the North, who is still a perfect child, and will jump for joy at the idea of being a doctor's bride. She will write and thank you herself. . . . Let me again thank you for your intercession, trouble, and speed. Friendship has wings too, as I now learn, and hope you will trust to mine if you ever wish to try them." So ended one of the most curious, if not one of the most noble episodes, in the life of this master.

Four years after his marriage Schumann, who had laboriously edited the Neue Zeitschrift through twenty volumes, tired of that work, and determined to abandon it. Passages in his letters show that the Vienna fiasco had a very depressing influence upon him as a journalist, and dissipated all his enthusiasm. Thus he wrote soon after leaving the Austrian capital: "On the whole I am very happy in my sphere of action, but if I could only get rid of the journal, live only for music, not have to think of the many trifles to which an editor must attend, I should indeed be at peace with myself and all the world. Perhaps this may yet come to pass." In 1840 he said to Keferstein: "I can only make the journal a secondary consideration, fondly as I may cherish it. Every man is bound to cultivate his highest gifts." Time went on; the master's indifference to his old task became more pronounced, and in 1844, immediately consequent upon an attack of illness, he surrendered his post to Oswald Lorenz. At this point the master's connection with musical literature may be said to have ceased, and he devoted himself entirely to composition, varied by two or three brief excursions into the world of executive art, for which he soon found himself unfitted.

In 1844, Schumann removed from Leipzig to Dresden, where, three years later, he succeeded Ferdinand Hiller as Conductor of the Liedertafel, with the duties of which post he combined, in 1848, those of director of a newly instituted Chorus Club. He was busy consequently through the year of revolutions, and seems, for once, to have thoroughly enjoyed public work. "We often think of you," he wrote to Hiller, "especially in the Liedertafel, which gives me great pleasure, and urges me to action. . . . The Chorus Club, too, is waking up." And again: "My strength increases with my work. I see it clearly, and if I can't keep myself perfectly well, still it's not so bad as a close inspection of trifles led me to suppose." Yet again: "The Liedertafel has done much to restore my consciousness of directive ability, which, in my nervous hypochondria, I thought was gone." And finally, with a great change as to the Liedertafel: "My Chorus Club gives me the greatest delight; I can have all my favourite music performed there at will; I have given up the Männerchor. I found too little musical ambition, and felt I was not suited to the post; they were all such fine folk." In 1850, Schumann's constitutional aversion for public duties was the real cause why he hesitated to settle in Düsseldorf at the invitation of Hiller, who desired, on leaving for Cologne, to instal him as his successor. It is easy to see an anxiety to avoid compliance in every line of the letter Schumann wrote in reply: "Your offer is very attractive, but there are some objections to it. In both respects I think it would be well to compare notes before accepting the situation. I particularly remember Mendelssohn's opinion of the musicians there, which was not favourable. Rietz too discussed it with me when you went from here to Dresden, and said that he could not imagine why you took the place. I didn't tell you at the time for fear of discouraging you. Dear Hiller, tell me the plain truth. Of course, I can't expect much culture in an orchestra, and I am prepared to meet common musicians; but not rude or malicious ones." Then follows a table of ten questions about the office, its duties, &c. Among these are: "Is living as dear there as here? Could not the contract be so worded that I could break it if anything better offered? Can furnished lodgings be found? Can my wife find any sphere for action?" A second letter followed, in which Schumann raised the objection already noticed about a conspicuous lunatic asylum; and after it a third informed Hiller that as hope existed of his obtaining a place in Dresden, the Düsseldorf question must wait. Eventually Schumann removed to the Lower Rhenish city, and took the post of municipal Director and Conductor of the Subscription Concerts. But it soon appeared that he was no more fitted for such a position than for the work of professor at the Leipzig Conservatoire, which he once attempted for a short time. Quickly, therefore, the ill-assorted union was dissolved, and Schumann finally disappeared from public life.

The composer's published letters, written later than 1850, are almost exclusively devoted to subjects connected with the exercise of his art, and belong to the next branch of this investigation. Here, then, we have done with Schumann as regarded in other than his special capacity as a creative musician, and it may be that the reader, calling to mind how little of what the world deems honour was bestowed upon him, concludes that he was a soured and disappointed man. But the idea is wholly at variance with the master's own words in a letter to Franz Brendel. True, Schumann's life was not a blaze of glory; he was never the idol of society nor the fêted of princes, but he could honestly and in the spirit of a philosopher say of himself that which may fitly as well as pleasantly close this chapter: "I don't understand the want of recognition from which I'm said to suffer. The opposite is more true. Your journal gives many proofs of it. Then, I have proofs which, though prosaic, are very convincing, such as the publishers' eagerness to buy my works and the high value they set on them. I don't like to talk of such things, but I may as well tell you in confidence how, for example, the 'Album of Youth' has found a better market than almost any recent work; I have this from the publisher himself, and the same is true of many of my songs. And what composer is there all of whose works spread with equal rapidity? How excellent Mendelssohn's Variations in D minor are! yet I think they are not a quarter as well known as his 'Songs without Words.' What composer is admired by all? What sacro sanctitas of a work is acknowledged by all, even the greatest? Indeed I have laboured, tooth and nail, for twenty years, regardless of praise or blame, to earn the name of a true servant of art, striving for the highest prize. And, as I said, I am quite satisfied with the recognition hitherto bestowed on me in abundance." (To be continued.)

A PLEA FOR THE FLUTE.

By Henry C. Lunn.

It is perhaps abstractedly as absurd to perform chamber-music in the concert-room as to perform concert-room music in the chamber; but as the art progresses, the desire to hear the finest works becomes so general that the original intention of the composer is often set aside, and thus it happens that the magnitude of a composition frequently bears but little proportion to the size of the room in which it is played. To diminish a work to suit the requirements of a drawing-room, and to magnify another to suit those of a concert-room, are therefore consequences which must inevitably arise; but as the former method is one usually pursued for private performances, which do not challenge criticism, and the latter is a direct violation of the expressed design of the author placed before a jury of the public for judgment, the effects upon the art are obviously widely different. As music is brought more and more into our homes there can be little doubt that the line which separates works composed for a large hall from those written for a moderately sized room will be more strictly observed; and as such a result must be in the highest degree beneficial to the progress of a healthy taste, every encouragement should be given to the formation of those domestic concerts which, whilst they help to spread a knowledge of the best music, tend at the same time to bind families more firmly together, and to promote intellectual social intercourse. Now that the pianoforte has ceased to be the sole representative of music in our houses, we may reasonably hope that most of the members of a family will, at a suitable age, consider what instrument he or she would like to play in the usual drawing-room performances. That the violin has been taken up in earnest by ladies is a proof how thoroughly the silly notion that either sex possessed the exclusive right of playing upon certain instruments has passed away; and we have now, therefore, a freer choice in our family music, since the uprooting of such old-world prejudices has enabled us so materially to multiply our family instruments. When, having the ground thus cleared before us, we venture to enter an earnest plea for the flute, it will perhaps be considered appropriate to show how much this instrument was prized in ancient times, how often it has been written for by our best modern composers, and how thoroughly in our chamber-music it has now fallen into disuse. That in Greece the flute held the first rank may be gathered from all the musical histories of the time; and we may also say—in proof that male performers were by no means the only eminent ones—that the beautiful Lamia, who conferred such extraordinary benefits upon the Athenians that they dedicated to her a temple under the name of Venus Lamia, was a justly celebrated performer upon the flute; that the Grecian Tibicinæ, or female flute-players, are often mentioned; and that in Persia the use of the flute with ladies appears to have been very general, especially amongst the musicians in the service of Darius. Wonderful effects are said to have been produced by the Greek flute-players. Plutarch, for instance, relates that Antigenidas, by his performance on the flute of the Harmatian Air at a banquet, transported Alexander to such a degree that he seized his arms, and was on the point of attacking his guests; and at the Olympic Games this instrument held an important place in the musical contests, the chariot-race, too, being always accompanied by the flute. True it is that power appeared to be more highly esteemed than beauty of tone; for we are told that the exertions used in blowing the flute and trumpet were so great that, for the preservation of their cheeks, the players were obliged to wear a capistrum, or muzzle; and we also read that an eminent trumpeter dedicated a statue to Apollo, in gratitude for that deity's preservation of his cheeks and blood-vessels while, with his utmost force, he proclaimed the Olympic Games. There is no doubt that flute-à-bec is a term for a flute that was blown at the upper end, like a clarionet—bec signifying the beak of a bird; and it may be, as we have seen confidently stated, that the word flute is derived from fluta, a lamprey, or small Sicilian eel, which has seven holes on each side; but it is not our desire to trace minutely either the etymology or the history of the instrument. Certain it is that, although its improvement has been latterly very rapid, it was in an exceedingly imperfect state even when many of our greatest composers so thoroughly appreciated its power of expression and sweetness of tone as to give it a prominent position in some of their works. Let it be remembered that when John Sebastian Bach visited Frederick the Great (who was himself a skilful flautist), the king gave him a subject to extemporise upon; and that upon his return he worked this up into his "Musikalisches Opfer," one of the movements in which is a Trio for flute, violin, and bass. There is also by the same composer a Trio in G, for two flutes and violoncello. Then we must also name the excellent Sonatas of Kuhlau for flute and pianoforte, the due rendering of which will tax the powers of even advanced performers upon both instruments. We have scarcely room to exhaust the list of original compositions in which the flute takes an important part, but may mention a beautiful Trio by Dussek, for pianoforte, flute, and violoncello; Sonatas by Moscheles, Reissiger, Hummel, Ferdinand Ries, F. Schneider, and also several quartetts and quintetts for flute in combination with stringed instruments, all of which are well worthy the attention not only of amateurs but of professors. Within the last thirty years the flute has advanced to an extraordinary degree of perfection; and there can be little doubt that had it been equally available before that time, not only the composers we have named, but many others, would have left us innumerable works especially written to develop the capabilities of the instrument. The taste for a higher class of music is now so rapidly spreading that we care not to dwell upon the showy solos for the flute—in which the various "effects," such as double-tongueing, are amply provided for—but we do hope that our drawing-room amateurs who wish to cultivate the art as an intellectual study rather than as a superficial accomplishment, will do their utmost to place this instrument in its true position by reviving some of the many works we have drawn attention to; and we can assure them that if they consult the best catalogues they may constantly add to their répertoire. It is no part of our object to cast a slur upon the claims of other instruments which are now so ably handled by amateurs; but we believe that the fact of this particular one being so much neglected in the present day arises in a great measure from the prevailing idea that but little good music is written for it. If, therefore, the foregoing remarks should at all help to dispel this notion, we shall have the satisfaction of feeling that our "plea for the flute" has not been quite in vain.

Dr. von Bülow has been writing to a German paper from England some things about England, which display his usual good taste and amiability. As far as we know, nobody invited this virtuoso to come amongst us; but he did come, and, having constituted himself a guest, proceeded to sneer at his hosts. A few examples of his politeness will suffice. Finding himself at Sheffield under a canopy of smoke, he bethought him of Sterndale Bennett, and wrote, "It is said that the English Toledo or Solingen can boast of knowing the sun only from hearsay. In this report I always believed I could find an explanation of the style of composition affected (sic) by the late Sir W. S. Bennett, who first beheld the darkness of the world amid the ocean of the smoke-clouds at Sheffield, and whose want of colour is as remarkable as his correct drawing, which latter obtained for him, as we know, the surname of the miniature Mendelssohn." This was graceful about a dead artist in the place of his birth, but Dr. von Bülow is above all ordinary considerations. Engaged to play at the Liverpool Philharmonic, he sent a transcript of the programme to Germany, with the sneer, "The ostrich-like stomach of the English public is worthy of all respect, is it not?" Next he girded at Sir Julius Benedict's "urbanity," laughed at the orchestra as containing "tolerably heterogeneous elements" and a "disturbing contingent of Falstaffian recruits;" while the rehearsals, he declared, were conducted in a "liquoring-up kind of way." Whether all this and much like it be true or untrue is beside the question. It is hardly for Dr. von Bülow, who comes here to pick up English money, to say it. This is not the first time he has lampooned us, nor probably will it be the last. He will no doubt perform another journey "in a fog," as he calls it, and write more letters to his friend Herr Senff. Contemplating this, he need not be afraid of popular retribution. Englishmen are used to ridicule, and they know that he laughs best who laughs last.

It was once remarked by an acute traveller, on entering a city, that he was convinced a very large amount of intemperance must be prevalent there, in consequence of the number of "Temperance Hotels." Is it not fair, then (on the same principle) when we see on the title-pages of some few "comic songs" that they can be "sung in a drawing-room," to infer that the majority of them are utterly unsuited to that locality? Constantly have we in these columns commented upon the kind of entertainment at the Music-halls in the metropolis—the real home of the effusions not "recommended" for the drawing-room—and now we are glad to see that the attention of the Home Secretary has been called to the matter. We are by no means advocates for undue restrictions upon places of public resort; but why it is that every drama performed at our theatres should be previously carefully inspected and passed by a regular officer appointed for the purpose, whilst at other licensed establishments the most offensive productions are offered and advertised as powerful attractions, we are at a loss to comprehend. True it is that the name "Music-hall" sufficiently shows that music is to be heard by those who enter; but if the character of the compositions in the programme is to be left entirely to the taste of those who provide them, surely there can be no reason why they should apply annually for permission to open their doors. A recent visit to some of these halls has thoroughly convinced us that, apart from the excessive vulgarity of the so-called "comic" songs, they are, as a rule, destitute of wit, humour, and even common sense; and, not to dwell upon the nature of the other "amusements"—pictorial representations of which are plentifully displayed throughout London—there can be little doubt that when the threatened official investigation really does take place, it will be amply proved that the licence allowed by the magistrates to the proprietors is a mere trifle compared with the licence they allow themselves.

An instance is within our recollection of the Squire of a village who, hearing that some difference had arisen between the governess in his family and the cook, on the subject being referred to him, at once decided that the former must be discharged, as it was easy enough, he said, to get an efficient governess, but a very difficult matter to get a good cook. Unfortunately experience proves that this feeling is too general; those who have received a special education which renders them mentally superior to their employers, being often engaged at salaries far below what would be even proffered to a menial who merely administers to the physical wants. Perhaps no more glaring cases can be cited of the remuneration being utterly inadequate to the services rendered than in the musical department of a church. Many rich persons willingly pay large sums to butlers, stewards, or gamekeepers attached to their establishment; but let them once get a voice at the vestry meetings, and we may be certain that they will propose terms for those employed in the service of the Church which are a positive insult to artists who have expended a large amount of time and money in fitting themselves for the office. We have often quoted advertisements setting forth the salaries offered to organists; let the following, clipped from a provincial paper, show what members of the choir have to expect:—

WANTED, for the Choir of —— Chapel, a Treble Singer; salary, £10 per annum: a Contralto Singer; salary, £4 per annum: a Bass Singer; salary, £4 per annum: a Tenor Singer; salary, £3 per annum. Applications, endorsed "For Choir" to be addressed, &c., &c.

It is just possible—as we have seen hinted in some similar announcements—that those who are elected to these vacant posts may be permitted to eke out these terms by making themselves "generally useful"—perhaps in sweeping out the church, or any other light duty of the kind—but this is, perhaps wisely, kept back as a surprise to the fortunate candidates.

The "Foreign Notes" in our last number include the following two items of intelligence: "M. Massenet has, at the request of the Italian publishing firm, Ricordi, undertaken to write a grand Italian Opera entitled 'Erodiade,' the libretto of which is from the pen of Signor Zanardini."—"A comic Opera, written for the music-publisher, Sonzogno, by the Maestro Usiglio, will be performed during the present season at Madrid." Judging from this information, and also from a few facts within our own knowledge, we may reasonably conclude that the future of continental operatic music is principally in the hands of music-publishers; and it behoves all, therefore, who wish well to the lyrical drama to consider whether this state of things is beneficial or otherwise to its healthy progress. If the fact were proved that the best music is that which sells best, the vendor of course would be the very person we should select to stimulate a composer to action; but unfortunately—as far at least as operatic music is concerned—the very reverse is the truth, many an inferior work being forced upon, and retaining possession of, the stage because one or two catching songs yield a good profit to the publisher. The detrimental effect of this upon true art it seems almost unnecessary to point out; for not only are weak operas thus made to assume a factitious importance, but composers of worth who are too independent to seek the favour of publishers have but small chance of appealing to an impartial audience, and are therefore content to write unimportant works, or gain a precarious income by teaching the compositions of their successful rivals. It is much to be hoped that some earnest and energetic operatic lessees may boldly challenge this method of providing their stage with novelties, for we should be sorry to think that, as a rule, lyrical works are henceforth to be judged solely by their market value.

In following the printed libretto during the performance of an Opera a short time since, we were astonished to find the chequered fortunes of the heroine mixed up in some extraordinary manner with "Mappin's Shilling Razors;" and it was not until a couple of pages were turned over that we discovered a full advertisement of these enterprising cutlers sewn up in the body of the book which had been purchased of the boxkeeper. Time was when these announcements appeared only in newspapers, and in circulars addressed to, and left at, our houses; but now we are getting fully accustomed to find them before our eyes even when we would fain give ourselves up to silent meditation. Advertisements of everything we can possibly want stare us in the face when we enter a railway carriage or a Hansom cab—nay, even if we take a walk, we find that some man whose wares are not to be equalled for "cheapness and durability" tells us so in jet black letters on the very pavement upon which we are treading. All this, however, habit makes us bear with equanimity; but surely we ought to be permitted the full enjoyment of an Opera without being reminded where we should buy our cutlery. If some protest be not entered against this practice, it is possible that eventually the boxes at the Opera may be hung round with advertisements, and that the person who shows us to our seat may increase the value of his place by soliciting our custom for the various tradesmen who employ him. It can scarcely be said that we are much exaggerating this evil when we assert that, only recently, in perusing the programme at a concert, we were suddenly arrested by an advertisement telling us the best house for purchasing "Nursery-biscuits."

The story which credited Herr Franz with the discovery of 150 Violin Sonatas by Sebastian Bach turns out to be altogether untrue. We must congratulate its concoctor upon the success of his very impudent hoax, since by obtaining circulation for the fable in a number of very serious, not to say heavy German newspapers, he managed to invest it with an authority which even sceptical minds dared not wholly ignore. No doubt the circumstances were improbable; but then, as the French say, it is the unexpected which always arrives, and we ourselves, though taking care to characterise the tale as "extraordinary," felt that nothing connected with it gave us the right of absolute rejection. We regret for Herr Franz's sake, and in the interests of music, that the story was not true. We are sorry also that Herr Franz should have been so pestered with letters that, in his own words, "the postman never left the house;" and we are sorry still more that the ingenious inventor of the hoax cannot be discovered to receive the reward he deserves. But, on the other hand, a worthy class of men stands acquitted of dense ignorance and unconscious Vandalism. The literary world remembers with bitterness that it was a clergyman who pulled down Shakespeare's New Place at Stratford-on-Avon to avoid being worried by visitors, and at one time it seemed likely that the world of music would cherish an everlasting grudge against German gardeners. Happily the official at Schloss Witzthun, if such a man and such a house exist, proves to be as innocent of tying up fruit trees with Bach's MSS. as he doubtless is of knowledge concerning the lost books of Livy.

MR. KUHE'S BRIGHTON FESTIVAL.

(By Our Special Correspondent.)

Mr. Kuhe might well have excused himself from holding a Musical Festival this year. Times are bad all round, and Brighton is suffering to an unwonted extent from lack of such visitors as resort to the "Queen of watering places" in February. But the entrepreneur holds that his duty is not to shirk foul weather so long as it alternates with fair. He sticks to his post, therefore; and in spite of bad times and an empty town the annual series of performances took place, beginning on the 11th and ending on the 22nd ult.

The nature of the engagements entered into by Mr. Kuhe will appear in the course of my remarks, and need not be set forth now. Let me state, however, that the chorus was again the body of amateurs specially organised for these Festivals, and trained by Mr. Alfred King, M.B. A year ago this choir made its first appearance with only moderate results, and it is still far from the excellence manifested by the Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society, which it has superseded. But Rome was not built in a day; neither can a good chorus be summoned by a wave of the hand. It has to grow, like an oak tree; and that at Brighton, I am glad to observe, is growing fairly well, with a promise of fruit at an early day. The band, once more led by Mr. Carrodus, vice M. Sainton, was composed of the usual materials, a sample of which may be gathered from the names of Lazarus, Harper, White, Chipp, Watson, Radcliff, Doyle, and Hughes. So far, then, Mr. Kuhe was well equipped for his venture, and deserved success not less than in former years. As for its programme, that will be gradually unfolded as I proceed.

At the opening Concert, the date of which has been already given, Handel's "Judas Maccabeus" was performed with a strong cast of soloists, to wit:—Mrs. Osgood, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. Respecting the work itself I have, of course, nothing to say here. Comment upon music so well known would not only be superfluous but a little impertinent. Let me, however, give Mr. Kuhe praise for selecting it, even though he had to abandon the "Messiah" in order to find room. "Judas" is a noble specimen of the master's dramatic music, and may be trusted to sustain his name at a time when "sensationalism" is more than ever the rage. The performance left a good deal to desire as regards ensemble. With reference to its shortcomings I may venture to suggest that Mr. Kuhe should engage a properly qualified conductor for his Oratorios. Upon that functionary a very great deal depends, and it cannot be expected that Mr. Kuhe himself, wanting experience as he does, should meet the exigencies of such a position. The Oratorio, it is certain, would have had a far better rendering under a conductor accustomed to deal with masses of executants and able to control them. But the soloists made large amends for deficiencies out of their own department. Mrs. Osgood, for instance, sang with great acceptance, and deserved admiration as much in the cantabile of "Wise men flattering," as in the bravura of "From mighty kings." Miss Elton, always useful, gave her one air with genuine taste and expression, besides doing good service in the duets. Mr. Lloyd sang superbly throughout, evoking the heartiest applause; and Mr. Lewis Thomas, in the difficult airs of his part, showed that the traditions of genuine Handelian singing are not yet forgotten. There was a large but by no means full attendance under the chromatic dome of the old royal riding school.

The second Concert, which took place the following afternoon (the 12th ult.), attracted an audience certainly more select than numerous, but a good audience all the same, because appreciative of the high-class works performed. Orchestral music constituted the bulk of the programme, and Mr. Kuhe showed wisdom in engaging Mr. Manns of the Crystal Palace as conductor. Under the experienced bâton of that gentleman all was certain to go well, and the result bore out pre-formed conviction. I may pass lightly by the familiar selections—Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, Berlioz's arrangement of Weber's "Invitation," and the "Rienzi" Overture—in order to earlier reach two novelties of interest, namely, a pianoforte Concerto in C (MS.), by Mr. William Shakespeare, and a concert Overture in A by Mr. Thomas Wingham. Who Mr. Shakespeare is everybody knows by virtue of his position as a tenor vocalist of high and graceful attainments. But the public may not be so generally acquainted with the fact that his earlier ambition was directed towards the work of a composer, and that the very Concerto now in question was originally written while its author's name stood on the books of the Royal Academy of Music as a student. For what reason Mr. Shakespeare abandoned his first love it boots not to inquire, but if the revision and production of his Concerto signify a return to creative art, all who know his ability will be glad. We have not so many promising young composers amongst us that we can afford to spare even one. The work now under notice begins with an Allegro Moderato in C major, common time, the solo entering with the leading subject after two bars of tonic unison from the orchestra :—

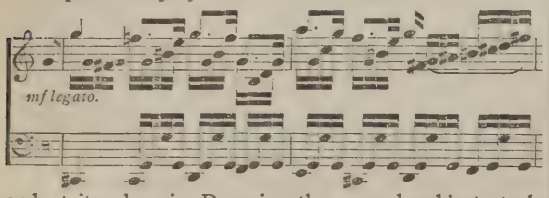
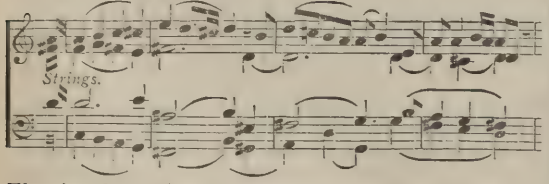
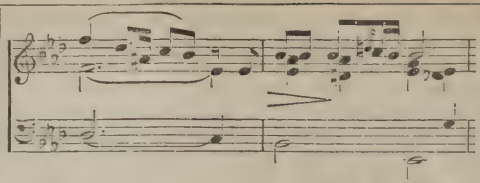
The passage quoted furnishes substantially all the material till the pianoforte enters upon, strictly speaking, its first solo. In the course of this an episodical theme is heard, accompanied only by horns on the dominant :—



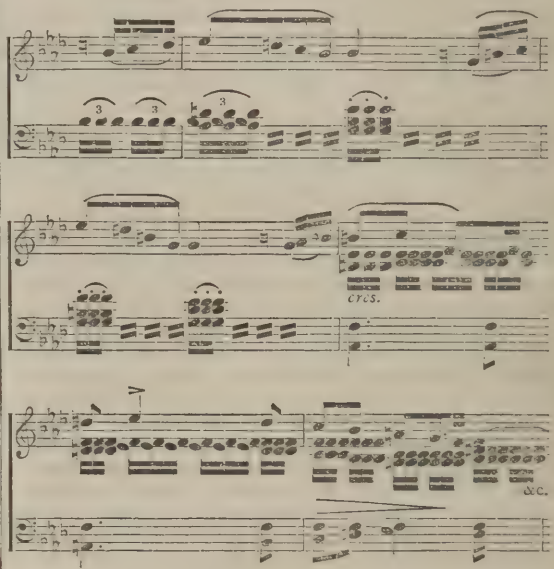
and at its close in D major the second subject steals calmly in from the strings :—



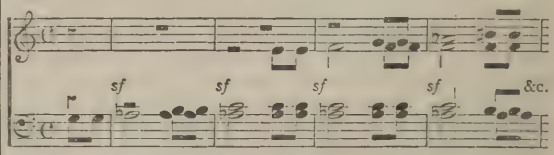
The pianoforte takes up this theme alone, and brings it to a full close in its proper key (G). We then have the second solo (the second subject being well to the fore in the orchestra), followed by the orthodox Tutti, and out of the materials thus displayed, together with some comparatively unimportant episodes, the entire movement is constructed. An obvious reflection upon it is that the themes are too similar in character for needful contrast; but, on the other hand, they are worked with judgment and skill; the scoring is tasteful, and the solo passages all that an executant can wish. The second movement, Larghetto cantabile, A flat major, common time, opens with a charming strain for the pianoforte only :—



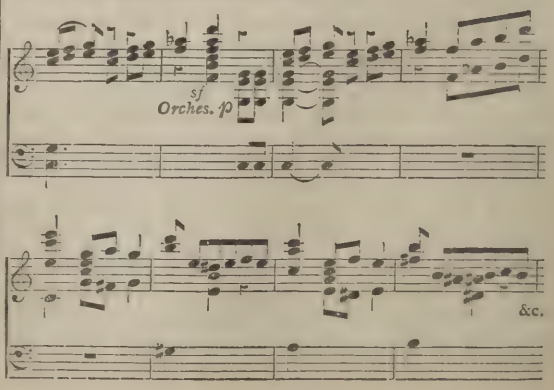
At this half-close the strings coquettishly take the further development of the melody upon themselves, but only for two bars; the solo then resuming, and bringing it to an end in the dominant key. After due repetition and development of well-contrasting episodes, a second subject, once more in close accord with the first, is introduced, the pianoforte again being the announcer :—



Further quotations need not be made from this movement. Enough that the subjects are treated in strict form and very graceful style, and that it is impossible to listen to the music without admiration alike for its fancy and musicianship. As regards the melodies, the examples given speak clearly enough. The Finale is an Allegro Scherzando, in C major, three-four time. Its orchestral exordium arrests attention :—

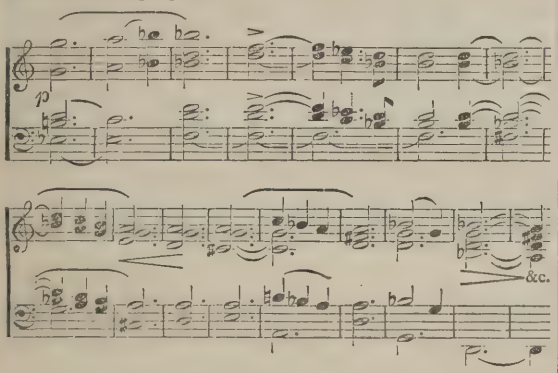


which the leading theme sustains :—



In this movement episodical subjects play an important part, and in the course of its first solo the pianoforte has the subjoined:—

This matter having been developed, the solo instrument, for which Mr. Shakespeare writes lovingly, announces the second theme proper:—



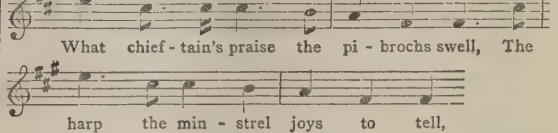
which is afterwards subjected to graceful treatment, and followed by more episodical passages. The lead up to the réprise is most interesting, as, indeed, is the whole retrospect, at the close of which and a cadence a brilliant Coda ends the work. Looking back upon the entire Concerto, I must characterise it as remarkable for grace and refinement, but as somewhat wanting in the strength given by a symphonic employment of the orchestra and highly contrasted subjects. It serves, however, to revive interest in Mr. Shakespeare as a composer, and to determine towards him in the musical world an expectant attitude. The performance of the Concerto was generally good, Miss Kuhe playing the solo with much taste and fluency, though not unaffected by natural nervousness. At its close both composer and executant were called to receive merited applause.

The second novelty, Mr. Wingham's Overture, has an avowed "poetic basis," and rests upon the following lines of Tennyson:—

> Love took up the glass of time and turned it in his glowing hands,
> Every moment, lightly shaken, ran itself in golden sands.

This it must be confessed is, for a foundation, slightly indefinite, but presumably Mr. Wingham's music seeks to illustrate the happiness which love can diffuse through life. Whether it does this well or ill I am not, after one hearing, in a position to say. Indeed, lest I should unwittingly do the composer a wrong, I had better suspend judgment altogether upon this Overture. The work is peculiar in character, and one must dissipate a sense of strangeness before a calm estimate can be arrived at. At present it seems to me that the Overture is either very beautiful or very much the reverse. In the former case its beauty is uncommon, but anyhow Mr. Wingham has boldly striven after originality, and earned the credit due to one who is not satisfied to plod along a beaten track. The Overture will, no doubt, soon be heard in London, and then an opportunity will be afforded of coming to a conclusion with adequate connaissance de cause. The vocalists at this concert were Miss Carlotta Elliott, a young mezzo-soprano, whose intelligence and boldness are somewhat in excess of her technical skill, and Mr. W. Shakespeare, who sang with his customary elegance of styl

The third Concert (February 13) introduced the third novelty of the Festival—Mr. Henry Gadsby's dramatic Cantata "The Lord of the Isles." Mr. Gadsby, I hardly need say, has long occupied the position of a rising man. In music for the church, as well as for the concert-room, he has won success, while with particular reference to this Cantata, his incidental music to "Alcestis" warranted considerable expectations. The "Lord of the Isles" was therefore awaited with interest and some measure of confidence. Unfortunately Mr. Gadsby was weighted in composing the music by the nature of the libretto, which Mr. Frank Murray adapted from Scott's poem, interpolating here and there verses of his own. Mr. Murray seems to have been guided as to plan by Mrs. Macfarren's adaptation of the "Lady of the Lake," just as Mr. Gadsby appears to have been in the same respect influenced by Professor Macfarren's method of dealing with it. I cannot altogether approve of either. Scott's lines, the lyrical portions excepted, are in no sense lines for music, and long extracts from them must be a burden upon instead of a help to a composer, while the profuse employment of choral recitative necessarily has a heavy and monotonous effect. The incidents in the poem chosen by Mr. Murray are, first, the interrupted bridal in Artornish Castle, which is treated with great fulness; the gathering of the clans to support Bruce, the interview of the Scottish hero and Isabel at the Convent of St. Bride, the storming of his ancestral castle, the transfer of Roland's love from Isabel to Edith, and the union—at the outset interrupted—of the Lord of the Isles and the Maid of Lorn. These events have obviously been chosen less for their logical connection than for their variety and adaptedness to musical treatment, a course easy to excuse because any missing link in the chain of the story can at once be supplied from the knowledge every moderately educated person must have of Scott's poem. As regards the music it is clear that Mr. Gadsby aimed at simplicity before all, and hence neither the vocal nor orchestral parts lie beyond the range of ordinary powers. The composer's object seems to have been the production of a popular work rather than a contribution to that which is artistically exalted, and in all likelihood results will prove him to have scored a success. In the "Lord of the Isles" we have a Cantata eminently fit for the use of small Choral Societies, since it lies within their means and cannot fail to please a majority of the public to whom they appeal. It follows, of course, that we must not regard the work as a test of Mr. Gadsby's highest powers. These he has not chosen to put forth. The work begins with a somewhat extended overture in D, having two movements, Andante maestoso and Allegretto, preceded by five bars of Largo. As usual the prelude anticipates some of the leading themes in the body of the work, which are treated in a very simple and unpretending fashion, without elaboration of any kind. The melodies, however, are pleasant enough to be allowed to speak for themselves. A setting in A of Scott's lyric, "Wake, Maid of Lorn," forms the opening Chorus, and contains just enough of Scottish tune to secure "local colour."



For the rest it is, generally speaking, plainly harmonised melody, but full of appropriate spirit. No. 3 is a Recitative and Air, in D, for Edith (soprano), "Tears, bitter tears upon my bridal morn." Here the prevailing character of simplicity is fully sustained, both by the theme—and the accompaniment of syncopated chords. The song has an episode in the relative minor, more passionate but not more difficult. Following this comes a festive Chorus in G, "Fill high the goblet," in which there are some points of imitation, and also of contrast worth notice. It leads, without a break, to Lord Ronald's solo (tenor), "Fill me with wine, bright, foaming, red"—a solo having a fittingly vigorous melody, the flow of which, however, is hampered by a somewhat heavy accompaniment. At its close the Chorus is resumed with great spirit till reference is made to the two strangers who have joined the feast, and the number ends with Recitatives that carry on the story till Allaster calls upon the minstrels to test the identity of the new-comers by singing "The Brooch of Lorn." The legend (No. 5) is set for male voices in four parts, with a liberal allowance of unison, and a refrain for mixed voices, the key, like that of the Overture and Edith's Air, being D major. A good point appears in the lead up to the second refrain—the orchestra simply sustains the full chord in each bar:—

Unis. bis.
bis.
Farth-est fled its form-er Lord, Let him fly from coast to coast,
Left his men to brand and cord. Dogg'd by Comyn's vengeful ghost.

No. 6 is a purely dramatic scene, setting forth the quarrel of Allaster and Bruce, and carrying on the action up to the intercession of Isabel, Edith, and Lord Ronald. Here some vigorous passages stand out, and the entrance of the Abbot, as well as his stately greeting, is decidedly impressive. The intercession just referred to constitutes No. 7—a quartett in B flat, for Edith, Isabel (contralto), Ronald and Allaster (bass). It is smoothly written, and was received with great favour, having to be repeated. But the composer has not reflected in his music the agitation of the actors, the three peace-makers singing precisely as though they had no moving interest whatever in the situation. Allaster's part is more to the purpose, and may be pronounced dramatically true. No. 8, a brief solo for the Abbot, serves only to introduce No. 9, a song (once more D major) for Bruce—"O holy man, a penitent behold." The rhythm of this air—approaches dangerously near monotony, but is saved by a change to Allegro maestoso:—

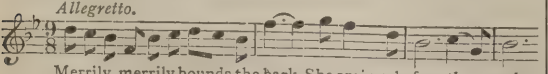
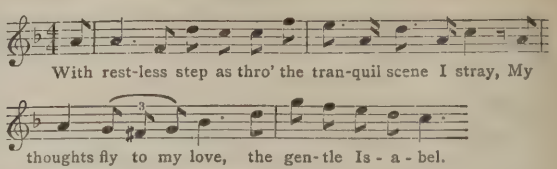
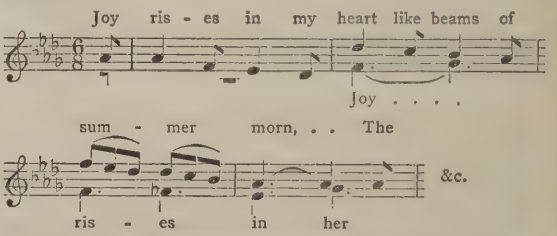
Hence to the end the song is vigorous and telling. No. 10, a Chorus, with solos for the Abbot, calls for no particular remark; but No. 11, in which the Chorus describes the departure of the Abbot, the flight of Edith, the rage of Lorn, and the break-up of the bridal party, though studiously simple and full of unison passages, is by no means wanting in dramatic force. The next number consists of a duet (A major) for Ronald and Bruce (baritone), couched in the "Suona la tromba" vein, and having little to distinguish it from a hundred other bursts of musical patriotism. Nevertheless, it gives the tenor and baritone a chance of "bringing down the house," and will be not the least popular piece in the work. The scene in Artornish Castle ends here, and next we have a description of the gathering of the clans to Bruce's standard. This is limited to one Chorus, in B flat—"Merrily, merrily bounds the bark," but that one is, perhaps, the most melodious and pleasing of all. The opening theme, heard in the Overture, will speak for the rest:—



The Chorus is of some length, and contains several episodes, but will scarcely be found too much extended, as the pleasant first melody recurs now and then to quicken attention. We next pass to Bruce's encampment at Brodick, only to hear Ronald sing his love for Isabel in an air (F major), "With restless step, as through this tranquil scene," which changes presently to another burst of patriotism. The love theme is graceful:—



Again the scene changes, this time to the Convent of St. Bride, and a short Chorus (No, 15) for female voices describes the appearance and devotion of Isabel, who in No. 16 sings a hymn (A flat), "Hear, holy Virgin." Too long has female interest been absent from the Cantata, and it now makes itself gratefully felt. Mr. Gadsby, however, has not improved the opportunity to its utmost limit, and the effect of this prayer must largely depend upon the singer. The next number is devoted to a Duet in which Bruce tries to shake his sister's resolve to adopt a religious life. From this to a Chorus (No. 18) descriptive of Bruce's assault upon his ancestral castle is a great change, and one for the better, since here the composer has put forth all his strength. The treatment of the sailing of the vessels (introducing the theme of the "Gathering" Chorus) and the appearance of the light is exceedingly vigorous; while between it and the hurly-burly of conflict the composer has effectively interposed an expressive setting for voices only of the lines beginning "Many to heav'n a prayer address'd." From this we again revert to the quiet convent, where in a Duet (D flat), "Oh! holy peace," Isabel assures Edith of Ronald's growing love. The character of the ensemble may be gathered from its opening bars:—



The penultimate number is a short Choral Recitative, which disposes of the dramatis personæ, and the whole ends with a resumption of the Bridal Chorus, "Wake, maid of Lorn," which opened the Cantata. If it be objected that the work thus begins in one key and ends in another, Mr. Gadsby can point to the example of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul."

The performance of the "Lord of the Isles," under the composer's careful direction, was generally good, all engaged entering into the spirit of their work. In the absence of Miss Anna Williams, the part of Edith was taken by Miss Adela Vernon; Madame Cummings sang the music of Isabel; Mr. McGuckin, who laboured under severe indisposition, that of Lord Ronald; Mr. Bernard Lane that of Allaster; Mr. Ludwig that of Bruce; and Mr. Thurley Beale that of the Abbot. Several numbers were encored, and at the close Mr. Gadsby was twice recalled amid general applause. There can be no doubt that the Cantata was a frank success with its first audience. Rossini's "Stabat Mater," upon which no remark need be made, closed the concert.

The first week of the Festival ended with a performance of Sir Michael Costa's "Eli," conducted by the composer, the solos sustained by Miss Robertson, Madame Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Lewis Thomas, and Mr. Santley—an exceptionally strong cast, though a stronger soprano might have easily improved it. Sir Michael was warmly received, and it will be taken for granted that his work "went" well, all, but especially the soloists, who are never so painstaking as when singing Costa's music under Costa's eyes, doing their very best. I need not enter into details upon so familiar a theme. Enough that success was gained "all along the line," and the "Eli" day became one to mark in the Festival calendar with a red letter.

Having regard to the length of this notice I must be satisfied to barely mention the second week's doings. The Concert of the 17th was miscellaneous, and included a Suite for orchestra by Mr. Lindsay Sloper which must soon command attention in London. On the following day took place a second entertainment of the same character; the novelty being an Overture, "Hero and Leander," by Mr. Walter Macfarren, which is likewise certain to be heard in town. On the 20th "Elijah" was performed; on the 21st a concert, announced as Mr. Kuhe's benefit concert, took place; and on the 22nd the Festival ended with Haydn's "Creation," concerning which the Brighton public would assuredly say, "Finis coronat opus."

CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

The success of Wagner's "Rienzi" on the opening night, Monday, January 27, would have fully warranted Mr. Carl Rosa in running it for some time; but Guiraud's "Piccolino" had been promised for the following Wednesday, and accordingly on that evening it was produced. Whatever may be thought abstractedly of the merits of this work, there can be little doubt that for the stage of Her Majesty's Theatre it is utterly unsuited. The story is certainly pleasing, and in these "sensational" days any attempt to place a quiet and unpretending little drama before us should be encouraged; but the effect of "Piccolino" depends so much upon that piquant and refined style of acting which seems almost peculiar to the French stage that we were by no means astonished to find the audience—in spite of some very good singing and highly appropriate scenery—fairly wearied before the Opera was half over. The fact is that light dialogue delivered heavily and without point is even more fatiguing to listen to than continuous recitative; and until, therefore, we can procure a really good English libretto, or have vocalists who know how to speak the translated words of a foreign one, it would be well, we think, to call in the aid of music throughout an opera, if only as a convenient disguise. So exhaustive was our review upon "Piccolino" in last month's Musical Times that we are absolved from the necessity of entering into a detailed notice of the work; but we may say that very much of the instrumental colouring is thoroughly artistic, and adds materially to the attraction of the vocal pieces. True, M. Guiraud evidences a decided leaning towards the Wagner school in his scoring; but this tendency is only occasionally shown, and does not easily fit in with the essentially French style which seems natural with the composer. The size of the building may certainly have had something to do with the cold manner in which much of the music was received; but few even of the most meritorious pieces appeared at all to arouse the audience. The lively and dramatic Trio of the three students, the comic Serenade—the voices accompanying in imitation of a guitar—and a pleasing little song for the heroine were the only numbers redemanded. We must speak in the very highest terms of the singing of Miss Julia Gaylord, who is fast attaining a foremost rank on the operatic stage. In the finale of the first act, as Marthe, the song already alluded to, sung in the character of the image-boy Piccolino, and the pathetic solo in the studio, the pure quality of her voice and perfect intonation in every portion of the register were thoroughly appreciated, even by an unusually apathetic audience. Miss Georgina Burns also gave the music of Elena with good effect; and the character of the Pastor's Wife was well represented by Miss. E. Collins. Mr. F. C. Packard was fairly efficient as Frederic Auvray, although evidently suffering from a cold, and Messrs. Charles Lyall, L. Crotty, and Snazelle, were amusing as the three travelling students, Mr. Lyall especially entering thoroughly into the humour of the part, and giving a specimen of his well-known powers as a draughtsman by drawing a portrait of himself in the studio scene. The characters of the Pastor and the Duke were doubled by Mr. D. Newton, who, although delivering his somewhat lengthy speeches rather ponderously, was sufficiently impressive in the first part and dignified in the second. The choruses were well sung throughout, and Mr. Carl Rosa conducted with his usual care and intelligence.

Mr. Henry Hersee's English adaptation of Bizet's "Carmen" seemed to please the audience so thoroughly as to disarm any criticism upon the manner in which he has performed his task. It may suffice to say that the dialogue went smoothly on, and that as a rule the versification offended not. It would be absurd to compare Madame Dolaro as a vocalist either with Miss Hauk or Madame Trebelli; but as an actress she is sprightly and not too demonstrative for the part of the Gipsy, although it is evident that she can scarcely hope to assume the position of a prima donna on the lyric stage. Miss Gaylord was again excellent in the small part of Micaela; Signor Leli (an Englishman by birth, evidently ashamed of his country) has an agreeable voice, and sang with intelligence, if not with much power, as the hero; and Mr. Walter Bolton, as Escamillo, completely secured the good opinion of the audience, winning an enthusiastic encore for the Bull-fighter's song. This Opera has been one of the principal attractions of the season; but an English version of "Les Huguenots," with Madame Vanzini as Valentine and Mr. Maas as Raoul, besides well-worn works, such as "The Bohemian Girl," "Maritana," "Faust," &c., have drawn good houses; and Mr. Carl Rosa may fairly congratulate himself upon the result of his enterprise. The season was advertised to conclude on the 1st instant, but it is now announced that it will be continued some weeks longer.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

The Saturday Concerts at the Crystal Palace were resumed, after the usual Christmas interval, on the 8th ult. On this occasion a selection from a manuscript Opera by Mr. Frederick Corder formed the novelty of the afternoon. The opera is entitled "Morte d'Arthur;" and the fragment presented was an incidental Masque called "The Triumph of Spring." Mr. Corder is the last-elected Mendelssohn scholar, and has just returned to this country on the expiration of his scholarship and the completion of his studies abroad. As capacity for composition is the chief consideration in election to the Mendelssohn scholarship, especial interest attached to the first hearing of Mr. Corder's music. The Masque brought forward comprises four movements, the first three of which are orchestral, while the finale is for a Quartett and Chorus. Of the instrumental portions of the work we can speak in high praise; they show individuality, fancy, and knowledge, and are charmingly scored for the orchestra. The final movement, however, is so badly written for the voices, in fact so utterly unvocal, that a good performance would have been hardly possible even to a much better choir than that of the Crystal Palace. By his injudicious treatment of the voices Mr. Corder ruined the effect of his own music, for while the instrumental numbers had been heartily appreciated and warmly applauded, the finale fell absolutely flat, and the close of the work was received almost in dead silence. Mr. Corder has such undoubted ability that we hope he will, for his own sake, take to heart the lesson he received on this occasion, and when he next writes for voices will show some consideration for the capabilities of average performers. On the present occasion he had handicapped his own work far too heavily to give it a fair chance. At the same concert Mdlle. Janotha gave a magnificent rendering of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. We can give her no higher praise than to say that her performance of this fine work was worthy of Madame Schumann herself. The remainder of the concert included Beethoven's Symphony in B flat, a remarkably fine performance; Mendelssohn's Hymn (Op. 96) for Contralto Solo, and Chorus; the March and Chorus from "Tannhäuser;" and vocal music by Mr. Edward Lloyd.

The Concert on the 15th brought forward Schubert's great Symphony in C, a work which it may be said can be heard in perfection only at the Crystal Palace, and which has probably never been better given than on this occasion. Madame Arabella Goddard played Bennett's Concerto in F minor, and Mrs. Osgood and Mr. Shakespeare were the vocalists. Three Slavonian Dances by Anton Dvorák, a composer new to this country, concluded the concert. These interesting little pieces are somewhat similar in their style to Brahms's Hungarian Dances, the national characteristics being strongly prominent. They are excellently orchestrated, and produced a favourable impression.

On the 22nd Herr Joachim brought forward for the first time in this country Brahms's new manuscript violin Concerto in D, composed expressly for him, and first produced at the Gewandhaus concerts, Leipzig, last New Year's day. The work is like all its author's compositions highly original, and deeply thoughtful; it requires indeed several hearings before its beauties can be fully appreciated. So far as can be judged from a single performance, the first and second movements are the best; the finale strikes us as less interesting. The solo part is of enormous difficulty, and none but players of the calibre of Herr Joachim could do justice to the work. Of the great violinist's playing it is almost needless to speak. Whatever Herr Joachim does is the ne plus ultra of perfection; and his rendering of the Concerto was no exception. Svendsen's "Rhapsodie Norvégienne" (No. 3), was an interesting novelty at this concert. The work, as its name implies, is founded on Norwegian national airs, which are not only interesting in themselves but admirably treated by the composer. The other instrumental pieces at this concert were Schumann's Symphony in B flat, and Beethoven's third "Leonora" Overture, which were superbly played by the orchestra. The vocalists were Mr. Santley and Miss Annie Marriott. The young lady, who is a pupil of the National Training School for Music, made her first appearance at the Crystal Palace on this occasion, and was bold enough to choose for her début Mendelssohn's great Scena "Infelice." The result, however, fully justified the venture. Miss Marriott has a pure soprano voice of great power, she phrases well, and sings with great taste and considerable dramatic feeling. Her success was such as is not often seen on a first appearance, and she was most enthusiastically recalled at the close of a very fine performance. She will, we believe, undoubtedly take a high place in her profession.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

The performance of Beethoven's "Mount of Olives" and Mozart's "Requiem" on the 7th ult., attracted a large audience. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Osgood (who sang in place of Miss Anna Williams, indisposed), Mr. Shakespeare and Mr. Bridson, the same singers, with the addition of Miss Julia Elton, being associated in Mozart's work. The choruses were most effectively given throughout the evening; and the soloists acquitted themselves extremely well, although it was apparent that Mrs. Osgood's voice was severely taxed by the strain upon the high notes in the "Mount of Olives." Sir Michael Costa, as usual, conducted, and Mr. Willing presided at the organ.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

In pursuance of the strictly conservative programme shadowed forth at the commencement of the present eighth season of the Concerts of this Society, Mendelssohn's Oratorio "St. Paul" was performed on the 13th ult., under the experienced leadership of Mr. Barnby. The existing familiarity with this noble work on the part of all amateurs renders it superfluous here to dwell again upon its special characteristics. Indeed, like the same composer's "Elijah," his "St. Paul" has long since become so completely identified with our national musical life, that it is with feelings of utter astonishment we meet with the disparaging remarks occurring now and then in French musical journals regarding the two works which we justly consider of standard excellence. The performance we now speak of was on the whole a very satisfactory one, most of the choruses having been very effectively rendered by the fine choir, many of whose members probably could have dispensed with the aid of their printed parts. The solo vocalists were Miss C. Penna, Miss De Fonblanque, Messrs. Shakespeare, E. Bell, E. Wharton, and Herr Henschel, the first-named lady and Mr. Shakespeare having replaced Mrs. Osgood and Mr. Vernon Rigby respectively, who were prevented by indisposition from making their appearance. The hall was well filled, and presented an unwonted aspect through being illuminated on this occasion for the first time by electric light, an experiment which appeared to be perfectly successful. The performance of the "Messiah" was announced by this Society for the 26th ult., being Ash Wednesday.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The first Concert of the season, on the 6th ult., included an interesting "Suite" in D, of Bach, one of a set of three found amongst his manuscripts after the composer's death. In this work the Gavotte, Bourrée, and Gigue (foreshadowing the several movements of the modern Symphony) are exquisitely melodious, the instrumentation too, although quiet and unpretending, sounding positively refreshing to ears accustomed to the overwhelming orchestral effects of certain recent compositions. A feature in the programme was the refined and artistic interpretation of Hummel's Pianoforte Concerto in A flat by Madame Arabella Goddard, who, apart from any praise worthily earned by her faultless mechanism, deserves the thanks of all the lovers of pure and unsensational music for her resuscitation of this charming composition. Beethoven's Symphony in B flat, and the Overtures, "Meeresstille" (Mendelssohn) and "Anacreon" (Cherubini), were the orchestral works, the vocalist being Madame Patey, whose singing of Gluck's "Che faro," and Macfarren's "Lay of the imprisoned huntsman," from "The Lady of the Lake," elicited warm and well deserved applause. At the second concert, on the 20th ult., Herr Joachim gave a superb rendering of Spohr's Concerto in D minor, and received quite an ovation from a really appreciative audience. Sir W. S. Bennett's Symphony in G minor and Beethoven's Symphony in F, No. 8, were well played, an encore being insisted upon for the well-known "Allegretto Scherzando," from the last-named work; and the Overtures were Berlioz's clever and characteristic "Carnaval Romain," and Weber's "Preciosa." Madame Edith Wynne was not heard at her best in the two songs selected for her; she seemed indisposed, and scarcely able, therefore, to do herself justice. Mr. W. G. Cusins conducted both the concerts under notice, and was warmly applauded on entering the orchestra.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

In order to complete our records of these excellent, and in some respects unique, performances, we have still to refer to the programme of the Concert which took place on January 27, and on which occasion Beethoven's String Quartett in E flat (Op. 74), the same composer's well-known Trio with variations on the air "Ich bin der Schneider Kakadu," Mendelssohn's Variations Sérieuses in D minor (Op. 54) for pianoforte solo, and Chopin's only Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello, were presented to the audience. They are, all of them, works with which the frequenters of these concerts have long since become familiar, and the mere mention of the names of Mdlle. Janotha, Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, as the executive artists, will be a sufficient indication of the worthy interpretation of these masterpieces on the occasion in question. Mdlle. Redeker's three vocal soli were admirably supported by the pianoforte accompaniment of Sir Julius Benedict, whose reappearance after his recent illness was made the occasion of much sympathetic applause. Mr. Charles Hallé was the pianist on the previous Saturday afternoon performance.

At the opening Concert of the past month (the 3rd ult.) the chamber-music consisted of Haydn's String Quartett in F major (Op. 77), and Beethoven's Trio in G major (Op. 1), for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, the executive artists being Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. L. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti in the former, and Mdlle. Janotha, associated with the first and last-named virtuosos, in the latter instance. Mdlle. Janotha also greatly added to the interest of the programme by playing, for the first time at these concerts, a selection from Schumann's charming pianoforte sketches (as they may well be termed) comprised under the title of "Die Davidsbündler" (Op. 6). Those acquainted with the literary writings of the fanciful composer will be familiar with this unique David's "Bund," or league, "which was more than a secret society, since it existed only in the head of its founder." It consisted, in fact, in some imaginary personages of a typical character made use of by name in the discussion of various art-matters in the journal of which Schumann was the editor. Their avowed mission was to slay the musical Philistines of the period, and it is to their deeds the eighteen numbers forming Op. 6 are supposed to refer. The musical value of these miniature tone-pictures, emanating from an early date in the composer's creative activity, is of course unequal, but they reflect much of his distinctive individuality, the peculiar poetic charm of which was admirably revealed in the interpretation given by Mdlle. Janotha. The audience signified their appreciation by long-continued applause, and we trust that before long the entire series of "Die Davidsbündler" will be introduced to a body of amateurs always ready to welcome the interpretation of the various phases of artistic development of their composer. Madame Norman-Néruda's fine quality of tone and graceful style were displayed to special advantage in her solo performance of a Ciacconna in G minor by Vitali, the pianoforte accompaniment being played by Mr. Zerbini. Mr. Barton McGuckin sang with much expression (and this time without unduly forcing his voice) an air from Handel's "Sosarme," and a song by Gounod.

The reappearance this season of Herr Joachim as the leading violinist was, as usual, a prominent feature of the second Concert of last month, which took place on the 10th. The great and earnest artist was, it is needless to say, received with every mark of public favour, and these demonstrations were, if possible, multiplied after his splendid solo-performance of the adagio from Viotti's twenty-second Concerto in A minor, accompanied on the pianoforte by Sir Julius Benedict. An "encore" being of course persisted in, Herr Joachim had to appear again on the platform "unaccompanied" (the task of the accompanist, though requiring exceptional skill, being proverbially a thankless one), and satisfied the eager demands of his audience by giving a prelude from a Sonata by Bach, adding greatly thereby to the enjoyment also of that small portion of his listeners which considers "encores" an abuse, and would sympathise with an artist refusing to submit to their tyranny. Mdlle. Krebs played with much refinement Schubert's pianoforte Sonata in C minor, No. 8, a work full of grandeur and pathos, performed for the second time at these concerts, and evidently much appreciated. The concert commenced with a capital rendering of Mendelssohn's beautiful Quartett in D major (Op. 44), a favourite with the composer himself, and concluded with Haydn's Quartett in G major (Op. 64), the executants in both cases being MM. Joachim, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, the mention of whose names will suffice to indicate the unapproachable manner in which these sterling works were interpreted. Herr Henschel, another great favourite with the audience, was the vocalist on this occasion, and contributed with legitimate effect an Air, preceded by a Recitative, from Handel's "Siroe," and Schubert's song "An die Leyer," the latter resulting in the inevitable "encore."

Herr Joachim was again the leading violinist, and Mdlle. Krebs the pianist, at the third Monday evening of last month (February 17), when the Concert opened with a capital performance (the twelfth at this institution) of Schubert's Quartett in D minor (Op. 161), one of the most broadly developed of the composer's works. Mdlle. Krebs had selected three harpsichord sonatas by Domenico Scarlatti for her solo performance, which was much applauded, as, indeed, the frequenters of these concerts never fail to signify their appreciation of any similarly interesting revival. The lady was afterwards associated with MM. Joachim and Piatti in the excellent rendering of Spohr's Trio in E minor, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, which on this occasion was heard for the first time, the two other similar works of that composer having been previously introduced at the Popular Concerts. Like these, the Trio now under notice is modelled on the classical types of this species of chamber-music with which Spohr was so thoroughly acquainted, being likewise full of original beauty and individual characteristics, among which the composer's predilection for chromatic modulation, bordering on mannerism, is, however, equally apparent. Beethoven's Sonata in G major (Op. 30), for pianoforte and violin, admirably played by Mdlle. Krebs and Herr Joachim, completed the programme of the evening. Mr. Cummings, who was to have introduced for the first time Purcell's "Knotting Song," was, to the regret of many of the audience, prevented by indisposition from appearing, and was replaced by Mr. Thorndike, who sang with good effect an Air by Buononcini, and two songs by Jensen, the well-known composer of songs, whose death has just been announced in the German papers.

The last Concert of the past month took place on the 24th, when the following works obtained a hearing, viz.:—Cherubini's string Quartett in E flat; Beethoven's Trio in C minor (Op. 9.), for violin, viola, and violoncello; a Scherzo in D minor, for pianoforte, by Clara Schumann; Handel's Air, with variations, known as "The harmonious blacksmith;" and Nos. 1, 3, 4, and 11, of the "Pensées Fugitives," by Heller and Ernst, for violin and pianoforte. The executive artists were Mdlle. Janotha, MM. Joachim, Ries, Straus, and Piatti. Mdlle. Kling was the vocalist, and Mr. Zerbini officiated as Conductor.

MADAME VIARD-LOUIS'S CONCERTS.

Whether it be that the popularity so quickly and deservedly gained by these Concerts, through the variety of important works produced and the sterling excellence of the performances generally, has led to an over-anxiety on the part of the management in presenting both multa and multum to the audience, certain it is that the programme of the fourth concert of the second series, which took place on the 18th ult., suffered somewhat from an embarras de richesses. An Overture by Cherubini, two Concertos for pianoforte and violin respectively, viz., Mozart's in D minor, and Mendelssohn's in E minor, Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony and two vocal soli would in themselves have constituted a sufficiently complete and, with such performers, a most enjoyable programme. But in addition to these numbers three novelties were included in the evening's proceedings; to wit, a Gavotte for strings, written by the Conductor, Mr. Weist Hill, the "Hungarian ballet music" from the opera "The Renegade," by Baron Bódog Orczy, and an Overture entitled "Twelfth Night," from the pen of Mr. F. Davenport. The two last-mentioned compositions having been placed at the end of the programme, the impression produced by their performance is unfortunately associated in our mind with the movements of a considerable portion of the audience taking their departure from the hall—a condition scarcely favourable to the appreciation of works listened to for the first time. We have done, however, finding fault with what was, after all, an error on the right side, and we are bound to add that, notwithstanding the lengthy programme, the splendid orchestra acquitted itself of its arduous task without for a moment exhibiting the least sign of mental or physical fatigue. The hall presented a crowded aspect, one of the chief attractions having doubtless been the appearance on this occasion of Herr Joachim, the unrivalled interpreter of classical violin music, and who almost surpassed himself in the exquisite rendering of Mendelssohn's only Concerto for the instrument in question, which elicited the most enthusiastic applause. Cherubini's spirited Overture to the opera "Anacreon," in which the influence of the earlier works of Boieldieu is apparent, was played with that verve and precision characteristic of the performances of this orchestra under its able conductor. It is always with special satisfaction we notice the occurrence on our concert programmes of the name of the composer of "Medea," than whom few could be found whose works are more worthy of a general revival. The special qualities of the orchestral body were equally manifest in Beethoven's grand symphonic tone-picture descriptive of rural life. Mozart's pianoforte Concerto was played, "by general desire," for the second time this season by the concert-giver with the added cadenza written by Professor Macfarren, of which we have already spoken on the previous occasion. Madame Viard-Louis, it need scarcely be added, was warmly applauded after every movement. Two vocal soli were contributed by Miss Emma Beasley—the scena "Softly sighs" from "Der Freischütz" (described as "a song" in the programme), and Schubert's Lied entitled "Hedge Roses," in the altogether not very happy translation of Goethe's "Heidenröslein." Mr. Weist Hill's Gavotte for stringed orchestra is a very graceful composition, faithfully reflecting, in a somewhat modernised form, the quaint character of the old dance-movement. Its performance pleased so much that it had to be repeated. In speaking of Baron Orczy's "Ballet Music," we must again refer to the unfavourable circumstances under which the performance took place.

The operatic fragments given on this occasion consisted of a march, a lento movement, termed "Lassu," and the "Csàrdas," a Hungarian national dance. Of these, the last-mentioned appears to us most adapted to the appreciation of those unacquainted with the eccentricities of this specifically national music, and it certainly provoked the most genuine applause. There can be scarcely a doubt, however, that in spite of much skill in orchestration manifested by the composer, and of the occasional introduction of some charming solo obbligato passages, the score of the work is overcrowded to an extent scarcely justifying its performance in the concert-room. In the predominating simultaneous employment of every available orchestral instrument the characteristic national element is not unfrequently lost sight of, and one is almost reminded of the malicious bon môt attributed to Rossini, in reference to another composition, "Si c'était de la musique, ce serait horrible." We are bound to add, however, in justice to Baron Orczy, that the beauties of the music against which the witticism of the composer of "Guillaume Tell" was directed have long since become universally acknowledged. Still, we cannot but think it a mistake to detach the "ballet music" from the stage surroundings which it demands, and with which alone its undoubted merits can, in our opinion, be duly appreciated. The concert concluded with the first performance of Mr. Davenport's Overture above alluded to, which was well received, and will, we trust, be accorded another hearing under more favourable conditions.

At the usual half-yearly examinations of Trinity College, London, the total number of entries in all subjects was 122, of which number 77 were successful. Six candidates obtained the highest diploma of Licentiate in Music, and 12 passed for the Associateship. Certificates were also granted to 10 "Students in Music," and to 49 successful candidates in the following special subjects: harmony, counterpoint, instrumentation, general musical knowledge, pianoforte, organ, flute, and solo singing. The following have been admitted to the licentiateship:—C. Francis Lloyd, Mus. B., Oxon., North Shields; Walter H. Palmer, Weston-super-Mare; E. Burritt Lane, Trinity College; W. F. Austin, London; F. R. Greenish, Haverfordwest; and Joseph Selby, Nottingham. The presentation of diplomas and higher certificates awarded at the examinations, was made by the Warden, the Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, on the 11th ult. The exercise written by Mr. E. Burritt Lane, of Trinity College, for the diploma of Licentiate in Music, was performed and conducted by the composer; the choruses were sung by the choral class recently formed under Dr. Westbrook's direction, including several boys from the choir of St. Andrew's, Tavistock-place, and the accompaniments were played by a string band, led by the violin professor, M. Szczepanowski, assisted by Mr. H. J. Stark at the College organ. The performance of another Licentiate exercise (to which the first place in the competition has been awarded by Sir Herbert Oakeley), written by Mr. Walter H. Palmer, of Weston-super-Mare, had to be postponed for want of time. The usual "Students' Evening" afterwards took place, the chief items in the programme being Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C major, admirably played by Miss Kenny, accompanied by the band, and conducted by Dr. Westbrook; Bach's Gavotte in D, for violin alone, by M. Szczepanowski; Goss's Anthem, "O Saviour of the world," by the choir; and songs by Master Dunster and Mr. Stevens.

Mr. Franz Rummel, whose name has often appeared in our "Foreign Notes," appears to have created a genuine sensation as a pianist in New York, his performances at the "Philharmonic Society," and also at the "Symphony Society of New York," having elicited the warmest eulogium from the leading American critics. Speaking of his rendering of Edvard Grieg's Concerto (Op. 16), the New York Herald says:—

> Beyond question, Mr. Rummel is one of the finest artists visiting this country that have interpreted the works of the great composers. His touch, expression, and technique fairly took the house by storm. His recall was the signal for uproarious applause.

His interpretation of Liszt's Concerto in E flat (No. 1), however, seems to have increased the effect produced on the first occasion. Of this performance the Evening Post says:—

> Herr Franz Rummel called forth the only genuine enthusiasm of the evening by his wonderful playing of Liszt's Concerto in E flat. He is a pianist whose chief characteristic is comprehensiveness; he unites phenomenal power and fire with the most beautiful delicacy. He compels attention from the beginning, and this attention is rapidly changed to admiration. After the first burst of power it seems as if the capacity of the man and the instrument must be exhausted. Quite the contrary is the case. The pianissimo playing of Herr Rummel is so clear, rounded, and perfect in its way that the admiration of the audience is sustained. The fire of the last crescendo carried the listeners away in a storm of enthusiasm such as the staid Philharmonic audiences seldom give vent to. After being recalled several times he played one of Chopin's best-known Nocturnes deliciously. It was a complete contrast in everything with the Liszt Concerto, and about as finished. Herr Rummel is yet a young man, and with his superb grasp of not only the piano but of the music that he attempts there is no telling to what heights he may attain before many years.

The Daily Tribune is equally enthusiastic, but we quote only a portion of the notice:—

> His playing of the Grieg Concerto a week ago was admirable, but in Liszt's splendid composition he was even better. His pure and brilliant technique was wonderfully displayed in the octave passages, trills, and other test places with which the work abounds; his conception of the piece was clear and beautiful; and the fire and freedom of his interpretation, especially in the finale, produced a genuine excitement both in the audience and in the band.

A letter which recently appeared in the Newcastle Daily Journal protests against the plan of permitting a branch of Trinity College, London, to prepare candidates, by lectures, for musical honours at Newcastle or Durham, whilst Durham University has itself the power of granting degrees. This communication immediately called forth another, which, as the subject has more than local interest, we print without curtailment:—

> Sir,—As a graduate in arts and music of the University of Durham, I am naturally interested in the letter on musical education which appears in your paper of to-day. About fifteen years ago, and seven years after graduating as B.A., I applied to the University in reference to my trying for the Mus. Bac. degree, and Dr. Dykes informed me that there was no regularly constituted musical curriculum. In consequence of this, I had some correspondence with Sir F. Ouseley and Dr. Stainer, and (although I have of late years graduated in music at Durham) I should at that time have gone in for a musical degree at Oxford had I seen my way to incur the necessary expense. I know of two Durham men (no doubt there are many more) who are graduating in music at other Universities because there is no musical course open to them in their own University. It seems to me that it would be a strange thing if it were necessary for an infant institution like Trinity College, London, to supply musical instruction to Durham University within its own walls, for the Science College of Newcastle is of course an integral part of the University of Durham.—I am, &c.,
>
> William Statham, B.A., Mus. Doc., Dunelm.
>
> Ellesmere Port, Chester, January 22, 1879.

The twenty-ninth Annual Report of the Committee of Management of the Choir Benevolent Fund announces that a more profitable investment for the larger portion of its funds has been secured by the purchase of some ground-rents, which will yield nearly four per cent. in place of the three per cent. hitherto received. The increasing influence of the Society, referred to in the last Report, is proved by the circumstance of eight new members having been elected; and several candidates, it is said, are now applying for admission. The Committee again impress upon the members the necessity of urging the claims of the Society upon the governing bodies of their respective cathedrals; and in doing so point to the fact that the Dean and Chapter of Worcester have, in addition to their annual grant, kindly given permission for an annual offertory to be collected in the cathedral. Considering the large number of cathedral choristers in England it is sincerely to be hoped that the benevolent objects of this excellent institution may be still more strengthened, not only by a large accession of members from these bodies, but by increased support from those who are deeply interested in the choral service.

Mendelssohn's "Athalie" was given by the Grosvenor Choral Society at the Grosvenor Hall, on Wednesday, the 12th ult., with full band and chorus, the illustrative verses being read by the Rev. Canon Fleming, the President of the Society. The solos were sung by Madame Worrell-Duval, Miss Nellie Dakin, and Miss A. G. Lawrence Eliot. The second part of the concert included Beethoven's Choral Fantasia and several part-songs. A new song, "Bonnie May" (sung by Miss Nellie Dakin), and a Trio, "Would you know my Celia's charms?" both by J. H. Maunder, were encored. At the eighty-fourth monthly Concert, on the 21st ult., Romberg's "Lay of the bell" was performed with full band and chorus, the solo vocalists being Miss Josephine Pulham, Mr. Arthur Weston, Mr. W. Lloyd, and Mr. T. Nettleship. Mendelssohn's "Rondo Brillant" (Op. 22), for pianoforte and orchestra (pianoforte, Miss Pulham), and Wieniawski's Second Polonaise in A major, for violin, by Mr. Frank Augarde, were also included in the programme. Mr. J. G. Callcott conducted on both occasions.

The fifth annual entertainment by the Violin Class, under the direction of Mr. W. Fitzhenry, took place at the Birkbeck Institution on the 22nd ult. Miss Alice Parry, Miss Martha Harries, Mr. Stedman, and Mr. Thurley Beale were the vocalists, and their efforts were decidedly appreciated by the audience, who were liberal in their applause and insisted on several encores. A humorous part-song "A Franklyn's dogge leped over a style," and a glee "Peace," very well sung by Messrs. P. Hawkins, Bryant, Freeman, H. Hawkins, and Skeen, were also well received, the first being encored. Herr Polonaski and Mr. T. E. Gatehouse (solo violin), and Miss J. Gatehouse and Mr. S. Jarvis (pianoforte), were very successful, and the two selections played by members of the Violin Class, a Trio in three movements by Dancla, and an arrangement of English airs by E. Salzmann, were enthusiastically applauded. Two excellent readings by Mr. Charles Rendle agreeably varied the programme. Mr. J. C. Dunster and Mr. S. Jarvis were the accompanists.

On Tuesday, the 11th ult., a Musical Service, consisting of anthems, songs, and organ solos, was given at St. Mary's Church, Haggerston, under the direction of Mr. C. J. Frost, the organist. The choir of the church gave an effective rendering of Smart's Magnificat in F, Goss's "In Christ dwelleth," Kent's "Blessed be Thou, Lord God," and Croft's "God is gone up;" the latter work deserving especial praise for the attack by each part of the successive leads, the precision of which was admirable. Two vocal Solos, "If with all your hearts" and Sullivan's "I will arise" were most carefully given by a tenor of the choir. The organ pieces played by Mr. Frost included Dr. Macfarren's Variations on the Choral "Windsor," E. H. Turpin's "Postlude alla Marcia," J. H. Wallis's March in F, W. T. Best's March in D, J. Baptiste Calkin's Allegretto in B minor, and Mendelssohn's Andante in D minor, all of which were well played, the latter piece especially deserving high commendation.

On Monday evening, the 17th ult., a selection from Handel's Oratorio the "Messiah" was performed at Archbishop Tenison's Grammar School, Leicester Square, by the scholars (sixty in number) assisted by friends. The choir, numbering over 100, was conducted by Mr. Humphrey J. Stark, Mus. Bac., in a most efficient manner. Mr. Adams, the organist of St. Martin's, presided at the pianoforte and accompanied the solos throughout with much taste. Good service was also rendered at the American organ by Mr. R. Tyler. The solos, which were taken by Miss Marian Williams, Madame Alice Barnett, Mr. Arthur Thomas, and Mr. F. A. Bridge, were admirably sung, and the choruses were loudly and deservedly applauded. The concert was throughout a success, and Mr. Tyler, who, since the serious illness of the valued music-master, Mr. Wm. Dawson, has been responsible for the boys' training, deserves the highest commendation for the accurate and refined singing of his pupils.

The announcement of the death of Mr. John Parry, which occurred on the 20th ult., will be received with universal regret, for his exceptional talent had secured for him so wide a reputation that even those who never had the good fortune to be present at his performances, which at one time gave such life to our concert season, must have heard of his extraordinary powers. He had for some years retired from public life; but the writer of this notice has only recently listened to one or two of his artistic musical recitations in private, and can confidently assert that he had lost none of that marvellous faculty which, although often imitated, has never been equalled. In social as well as musical circles his loss will long be keenly felt; for he was not only an inborn and conscientious artist, but a genial and accomplished gentleman.

On Monday evening, the 3rd ult., the North London Philharmonic Society gave their second Invitation Concert of the season at the Athenæum, Camden Road, N. The programme included six part-songs, the first movement of Schubert's B flat trio and a violin solo by Mr. A. Truslove. Miss C. Rawlins in her song "Olivia," Mr. Atherton Latta in Leslie's "Speed on my bark," Miss Amy Dicksee in "The clang of the wooden shoon" and Mr. J. F. Probert in "The Message" were all very successful, and the part-songs "Humpty Dumpty" by Caldicott and "Love wakes and weeps," by Callcott, were tastefully sung. Mr. A. A. Yeatman, accompanist to the Society, performed Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso." Mr. Henry J. B. Dart conducted as usual.

A portion of the Oratorio, "The Visions of St. John the Divine," written for the degree of Doctor in Music by Mr. Frederick Iliffe, was performed in the Sheldonian Theatre on Friday, the 7th ult. Sir F. Ouseley was present, and there was a very large audience. The solo vocalists were Miss Ada Moore, Mrs. Hubert Blake, Mr. Anstice, and Mr. Phillipps. The choir, numbering over seventy voices, consisted of the Oxford Orpheus Society and several gentlemen connected with the University. The work contains some excellent part-writing, and its rendering reflected the highest credit upon all concerned. At the conclusion of the performance the composer was warmly applauded.

The Lewisham Orchestral Society gave its second Members' Concert of its third season on Saturday evening, the 22nd ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Warwick Jordan. The orchestra numbered some thirty proficient members, and rendered Romberg's Symphony in E flat, and Overtures by Kalliwoda, Suppé, Cherubini, and Herman, also Mendelssohn's "Pilgrim's March," with good effect and attention to detail. Two members of the Society supplied the vocal portion, namely, Mr. W. Webster, jun., who gave "The tar's farewell" and "The Vicar of Bray;" and Madame Anna Jewell, who sang Mozart's "Deh vieni non tardar" and Gounod's "Ave Maria," both with orchestral accompaniments.

At the 121st monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union at the Pimlico Rooms on the 21st ult., Aspa's "Gipsies" was performed, the solo parts being taken by Miss Spear, Mrs. Le May, Mr. C. Small and Mr. R. F. Roberts. A solo by Mr. F. Waugh on Messrs. Kirkman's melo-piano was listened to with great attention and encored. Miss C. Lockwood played a Rondo by Weber in good style and Miss Florence Wydford, Miss Bessie Spear and Messrs. Smalls and Roberts were well received. The choir, under the direction of Mr. T. Garside, sang four part-songs with much effect, two being encored.

The second Evening Concert, under the direction of Mr. Faulkner Leigh, at the Northfield Hall, Highgate, took place on Thursday evening, the 13th ult., at which Sir Julius Benedict acted as conductor and solo pianist. We need hardly say that Sir Julius was enthusiastically received in his solo "Erin," and in answer to an encore gave "Where the bee sucks." Mr. Leigh was encored in his two songs, "La Donna è mobile" and "The Death of Nelson;" and Miss Annie Sinclair and Signor Broccolini were both well received, as were also Madame Liebe's solos on the violin.

Mr. Thomas Nettleship gave an Evening Concert at the Horns, Kennington, on Tuesday, January 28. The artists were Madame Worrell-Duval, Miss Matilda Roby, Miss Agnes Ross, Mdlle. Hélène Arnim, Miss Catherine Brama, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. A. Lawrence Fryer, Mr. J. H. Maunder, Mr. Thomas Nettleship, Mr. Henry Baker, and Mr. R. Hilton. A Solo on the Concertina was contributed by Mr. T. F. Williams, and Messrs. J. G. Callcott and J. H. Maunder presided at the pianoforte. The concert was a decided success.

An excellent Concert was given at the Birkbeck Institution on January 29, by Mr. Stedman, who was assisted by Miss Jose Sherrington, Miss Hélène Greiffenhagen, Madame Jenny Pratt, Mr. Egbert Roberts, Mr. Thurley Beale, and M. Victor Buziau, with Messrs. Henry Parker and W. H. Eayres as accompanists. An interesting miscellaneous programme was most successfully rendered and received with great enthusiasm by a crowded audience.

Mr. Alfred Phillips gave his first Ballad Concert in the Town Hall, Kilburn, on the 10th ult. The vocalists were Miss Mary Davies, Miss Alice Parry, Madame Antoinette Sterling, Mr. Robert Poole, and Mr. Edward Lloyd. Miss C. H. Britton, a young pianist, made her first appearance, and was well received. Miss Rose Nickolls contributed two Violin Solos. Mr. A. H. Thouless and Mr. Alfred Phillips accompanied.

The movement for the establishment of a School of Music at Brixton is meeting with extensive and influential support. With the view of making known the project to the principal residents of the neighbourhood, a series of Chamber Concerts will be given, the first of which took place on January 29, and was largely attended and highly successful. Mr. Augustus Zimmermann is the Hon. Director of the School.

A Concert was given on Tuesday, the 11th ult., by the Lavender Hill Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. F. J. Dugard, in aid of the Organ Fund of the Church of the Ascension. The first part consisted of Howell's Cantata, "The Song of the Months," and the second was miscellaneous.

At the weekly rehearsal on Wednesday the 5th ult. Mr. Sell, Choirmaster of St. Michael and All Angels, Hackney, was presented by the choir-boys with a very handsome bâton, mounted in silver, accompanied by a letter signed by all the subscribers expressing their gratitude and affection.

An Evening Concert was given on Monday, the 17th ult., at St. Luke's Hall, Hackney, by Mr. Edwin Potter, Organist of St. Luke's Church. Artists: Miss Springbett and Madame Arnold Potter; Messrs. Lloyd, Locksley, and Alfred Speer. The hall was well filled.

The Anniversary Festival of the Royal Society of Musicians will take place at Willis's Rooms on Tuesday the 18th inst., under the presidency of the Right Hon. the Earl of Aberdeen. The musical arrangements will be on the usual extensive scale.

Mr. W. T. Best gave an Organ Recital in the City Temple, Holborn Viaduct, on Thursday the 6th ult., to a very large audience. Mrs. Georgina Weldon was the vocalist.

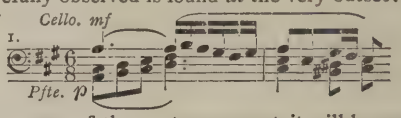
Miss Zimmermann will play the Mazurka and Scherzo from her recently published Suite at her forthcoming Recitals at Cheltenham (5th inst.), Rugby (13th), and Oxford (18th).

REVIEWS.

Sonate, A-dur, für Pianoforte und Violoncello. Componirt von C. Villiers Stanford (Op. 9). [Berlin: Bote and Bock. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Every effort on the part of our young and rising composers to produce a really artistic thing should meet with a sympathetic reception without reference to its measure of success or non-success. This may be taken as a safe rule, and not only safe but imperative if we would, at a time when the "storm and stress" of life are great, encourage an advance towards a higher aim than a profitable market. For ourselves, therefore, and, without presumption, for our readers, we welcome this Sonata, because it is a Sonata, and before looking at a single bar. Mr. Villiers Stanford does not here come forward in a new character. Though a young man, he has long been favourably known for devotion to the highest forms of art, and for cultured tastes which an exceptionally favourable position at Cambridge, as Conductor of the University Choral Society, has enabled him both to evince and gratify. But he deserves special commendation in the present instance because he has done his best to provide good music for a combination of instruments which composers, great and small, have strangely neglected. Signor Piatti, there is good reason to believe, regards himself as a very ill-used man. With skill equal to anything, and an instrument which for gracefulness and beauty has no superior, he is confined to a repertory so limited that, in desperation, he is sometimes driven to filch from the repertory of the violin. Mr. Stanford here sets an example certain to be approved by the eminent violoncellist, as chief of his order, and to which, mayhap, he will give practical encouragement.

Premising that the Sonata is full of details important to observe but impossible to set forth within limits that admit only of a reference to outlines, we have to note, first, that the work opens with an Andante con moto, in A major, $\frac{6}{8}$-time, of twenty bars' length. The one feature to be here carefully observed is found at the very outset:—



In the course of the next movement it will be seen that the short cello phrase assumes an importance hardly anticipated from its original position and character. The first part of the following Allegro is as concise in its way as the corresponding part in Beethoven's "C minor," being satisfied merely to unfold the thematic material of the movement as a whole. Its principal subject is at once heard, beginning with a point of imitation:—

The contrast between the first and second sections of this motif should be noted as affording good promise of subsequent variety. After due development, we find a second subject in the phrase from the Andante con moto given above, which enters on the dominant of the orthodox key (E major), and in $\frac{3}{4}$ time. This leads at once to the peroration and repeat. The composer is careful throughout the work to develop episodical melodies from germs found in his main themes, and here he evolves two such from the leading section of his first subject. One is in common time:— the other in triple time:—

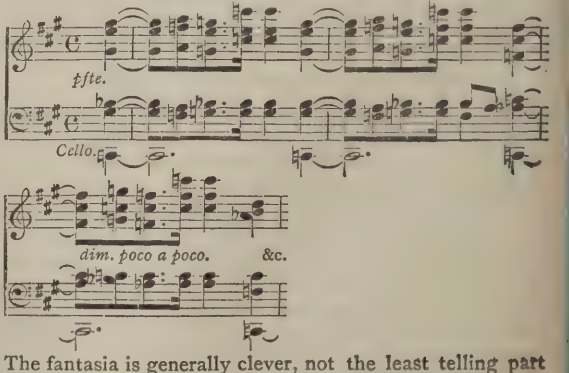
The "free fantasia" at the opening of the second part begins well with some pleasing and effective treatment of the second subject, passing in due course to the first, out of which grows an important and noteworthy episode:—



The fantasia is generally clever, not the least telling part of it being the lead up to the réprise. Here it should be observed that Mr. Stanford begins his retrospect not with The Spring's free Sunshine falleth.

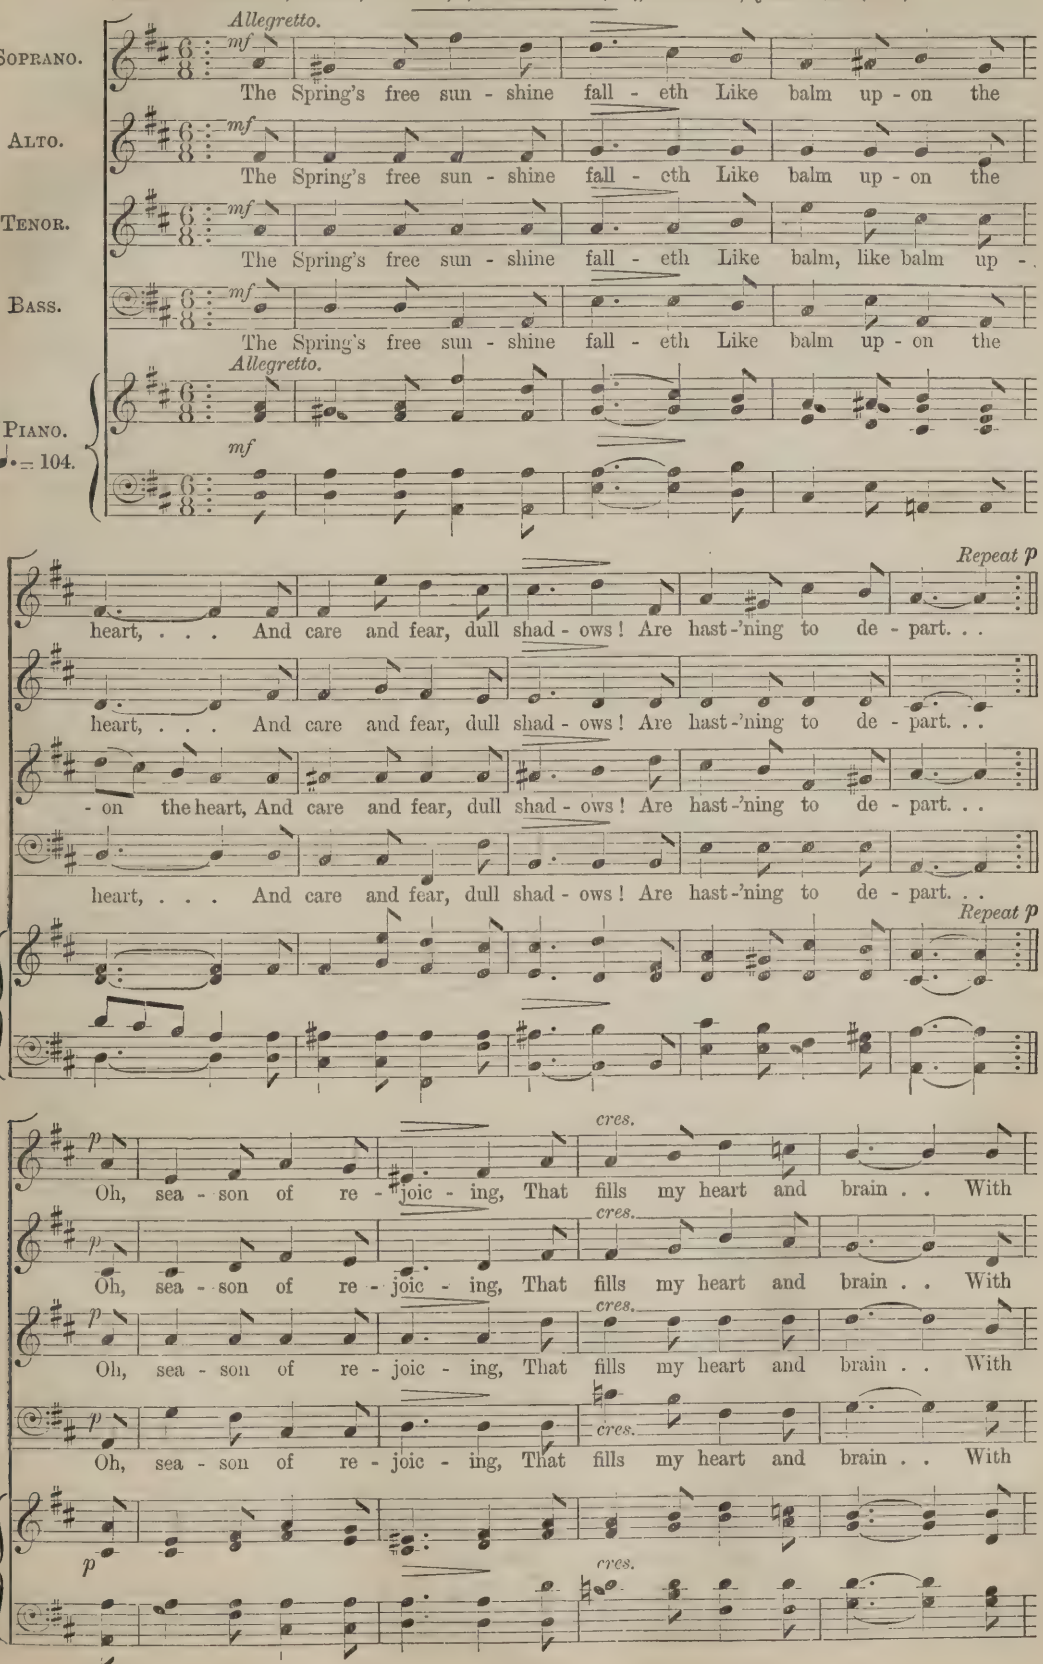
A FOUR-PART SONG.

SAMUEL REAY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER, AND CO, 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)



Allegretto.
SOPRANO.
mf
The Spring's free sun - shine fall - eth Like balm up - on the ALTO.
The Spring's free sun - shine fall - eth Like balm up - on the TENOR.
The Spring's free sun - shine fall - eth Like balm, like balm up -
BASS.
The Spring's free sun - shine fall - eth Like balm up - on the Allegretto.
PIANO.
mf
♩. = 104.
Repeat p
heart, . . . And care and fear, dull shad - ows! Are hast-'ning to de - part. . .
heart, . . . And care and fear, dull shad - ows! Are hast-'ning to de - part. . .
- on the heart, And care and fear, dull shad - ows! Are hast-'ning to de - part. . .
heart, . . . And care and fear, dull shad - ows! Are hast-'ning to de - part. . .
Repeat p
p
cres.
Oh, sea - son of re - joic - ing, That fills my heart and brain . . With Oh, sea - son of re - joic - ing, That fills my heart and brain . . With Oh, sea - son of re - joic - ing, That fills my heart and brain . . With Oh, sea - son of re - joic - ing, That fills my heart and brain . . With mf dim. mf vi - sions such as nev - er Me-thought should come a - gain, me-thought should mf dim. p

vi - sions such as nev - er Me-thought should come a - gain, should mf dim. p
vi - sions such as nev - er Me-thought should come a - gain, should mf dim. p
vi - sions such as nev - er Me-thought should come a - gain, should mf dim. p p mf nev - er come a - gain, should come a - - gain, me-thought should come a - gain, should nev - er come a - gain,
cres.
come a - gain, should nev - er, nev - er come a - gain,
p nev - er, nev - er come a - - gain,
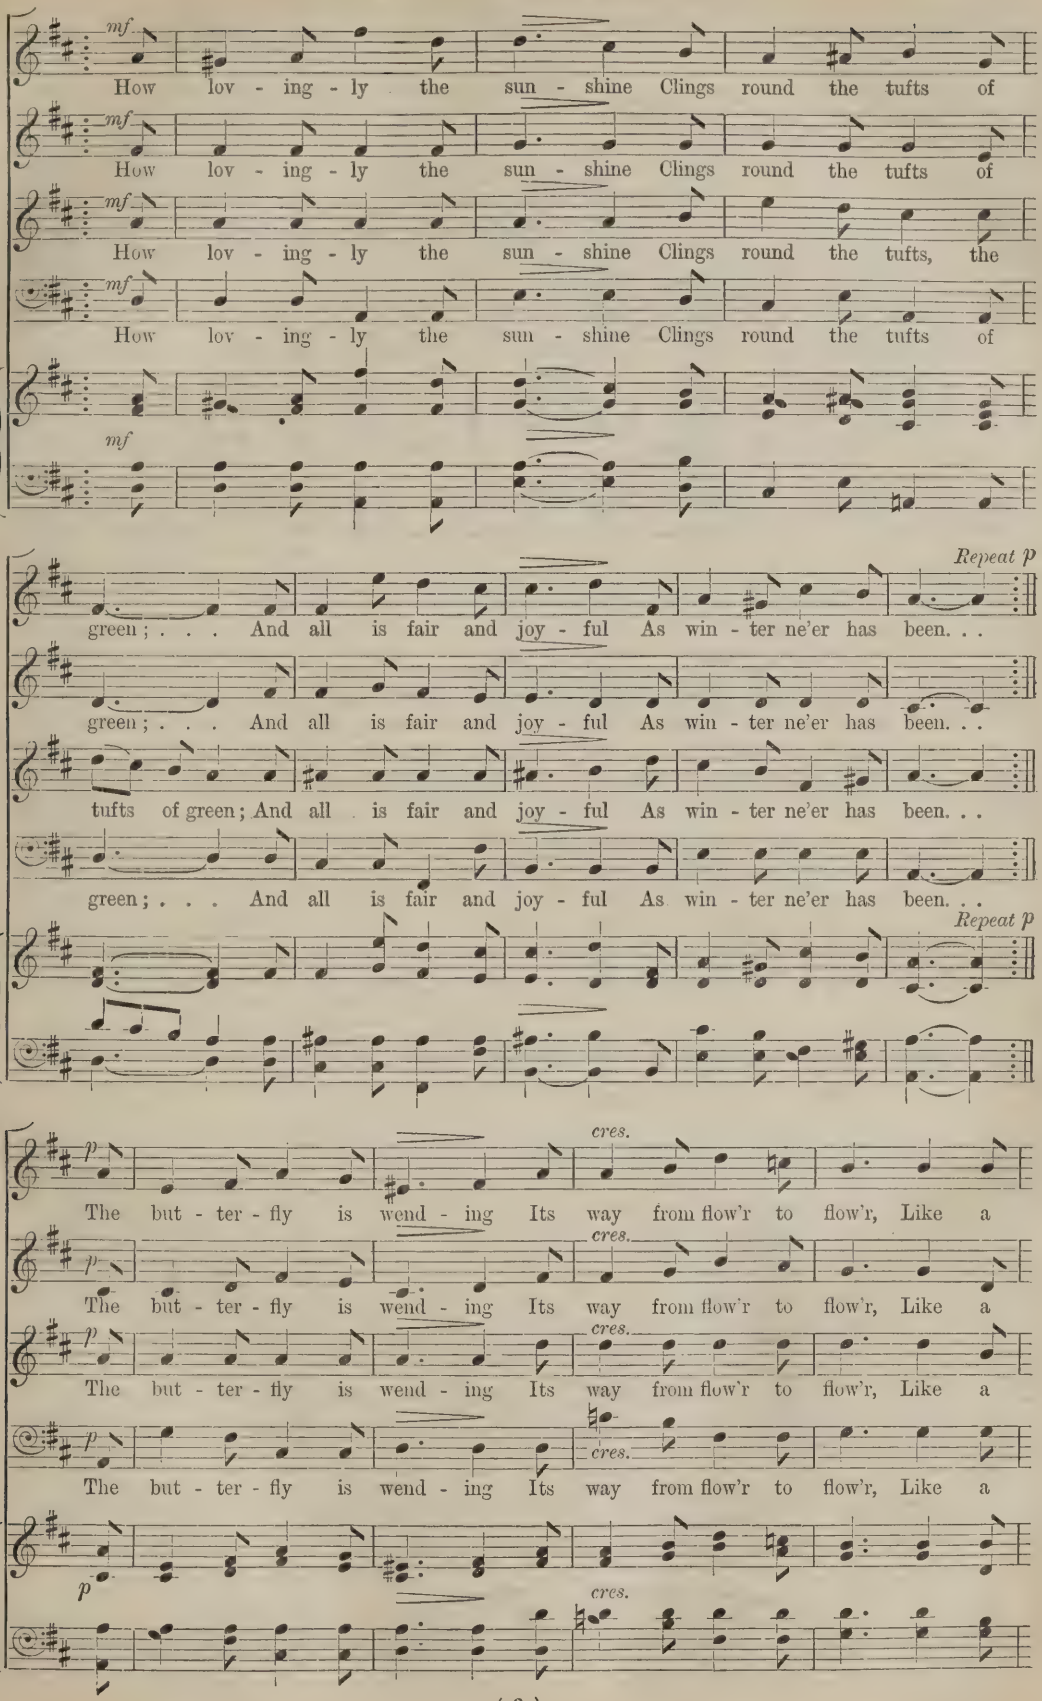
mf
mf cres.
nev - er come a - gain, should nev - er come a - - gain. . .
mf cres.
nev - er come a - gain, should nev - er come a - - gain. . .
mf cres.
nev - er come a - gain, should nev - er come a - - gain. . .
mf cres.
nev - er come a - gain, should nev - er come a - - gain. . .
cres.



mf
How lov - ing - ly the sun - shine Clings round the tufts of How lov - ing - ly the sun - shine Clings round the tufts of How lov - ing - ly the sun - shine Clings round the tufts, the How lov - ing - ly the sun - shine Clings round the tufts of Repeat p
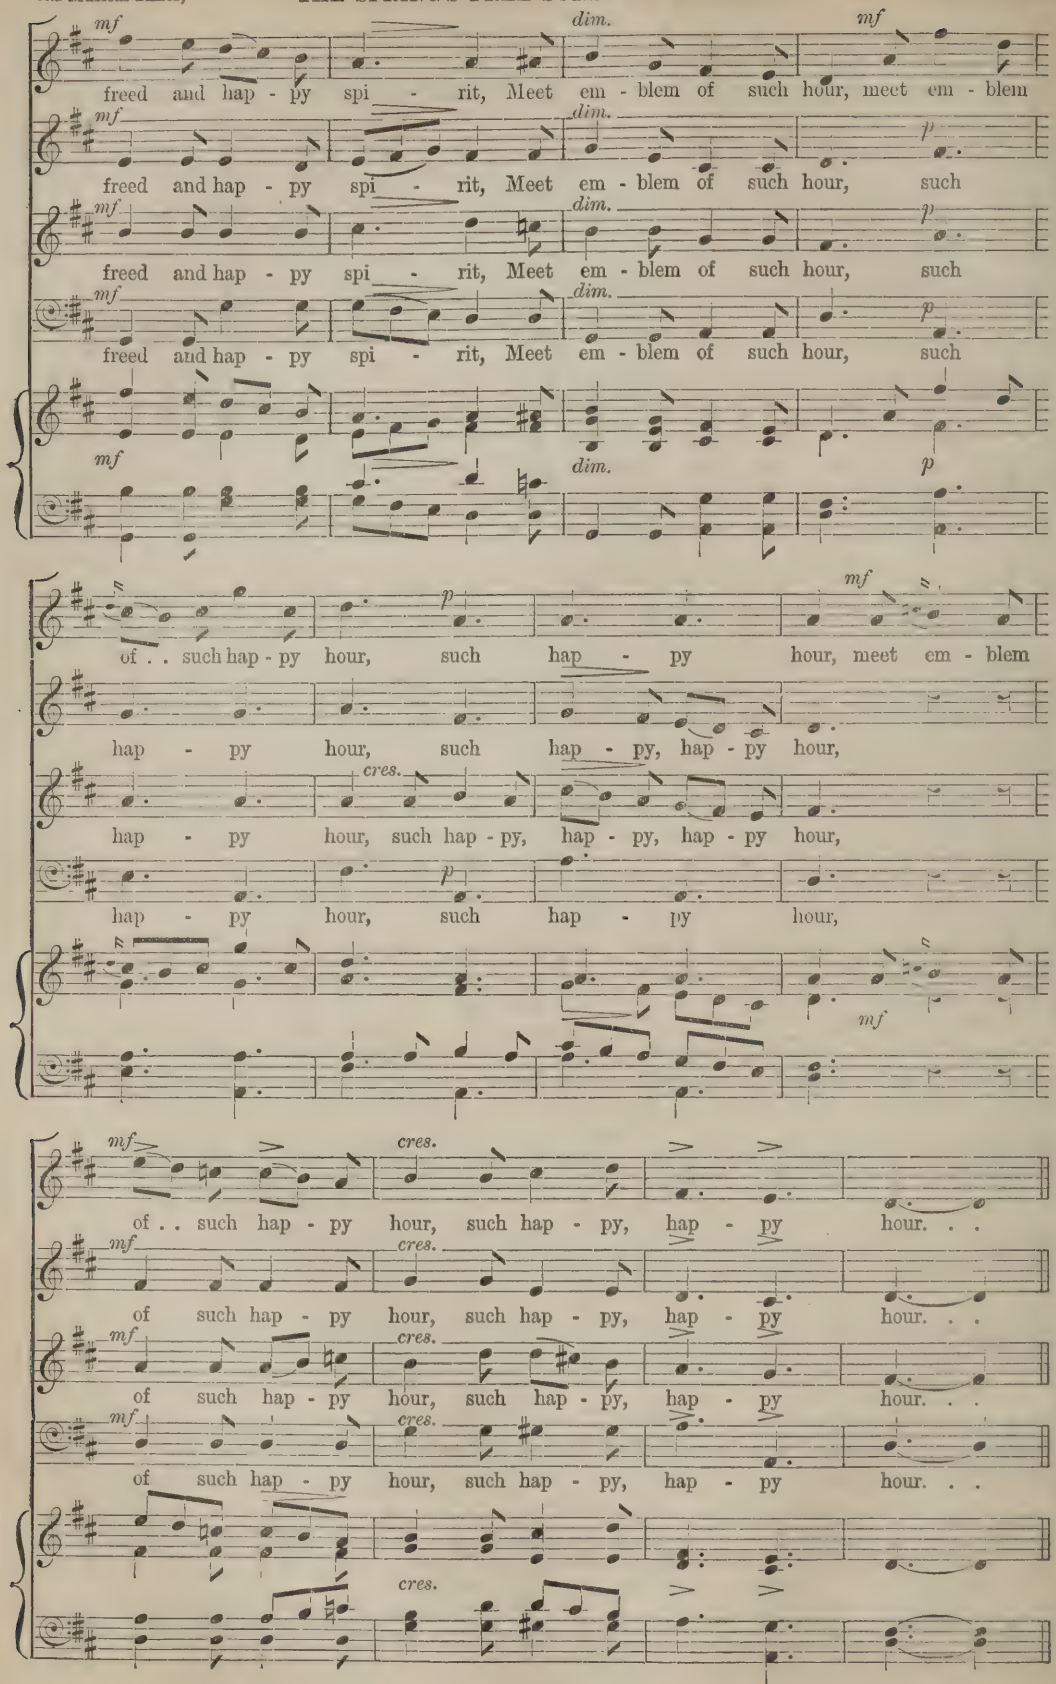
green; . . . And all is fair and joy - ful As win - ter ne'er has been. . .
green; . . . And all is fair and joy - ful As win - ter ne'er has been. . .
tufts of green; And all is fair and joy - ful As win - ter ne'er has been. . .
green; . . . And all is fair and joy - ful As win - ter ne'er has been. . .
Repeat p
p
cres.
The but - ter - fly is wend - ing Its way from flow'r to flow'r, Like a
The but - ter - fly is wend - ing Its way from flow'r to flow'r, Like a
The but - ter - fly is wend - ing Its way from flow'r to flow'r, Like a
The but - ter - fly is wend - ing Its way from flow'r to flow'r, Like a



mf
dim.
mf
freed and hap - py spi - rit, Meet em - blem of such hour, meet em - blem freed and hap - py spi - rit, Meet em - blem of such hour, such freed and hap - py spi - rit, Meet em - blem of such hour, such freed and hap - py spi - rit, Meet em - blem of such hour, such
p
of . . such hap - py hour, such hap - py hour, meet em - blem hap - py hour, such hap - py, hap - py hour,
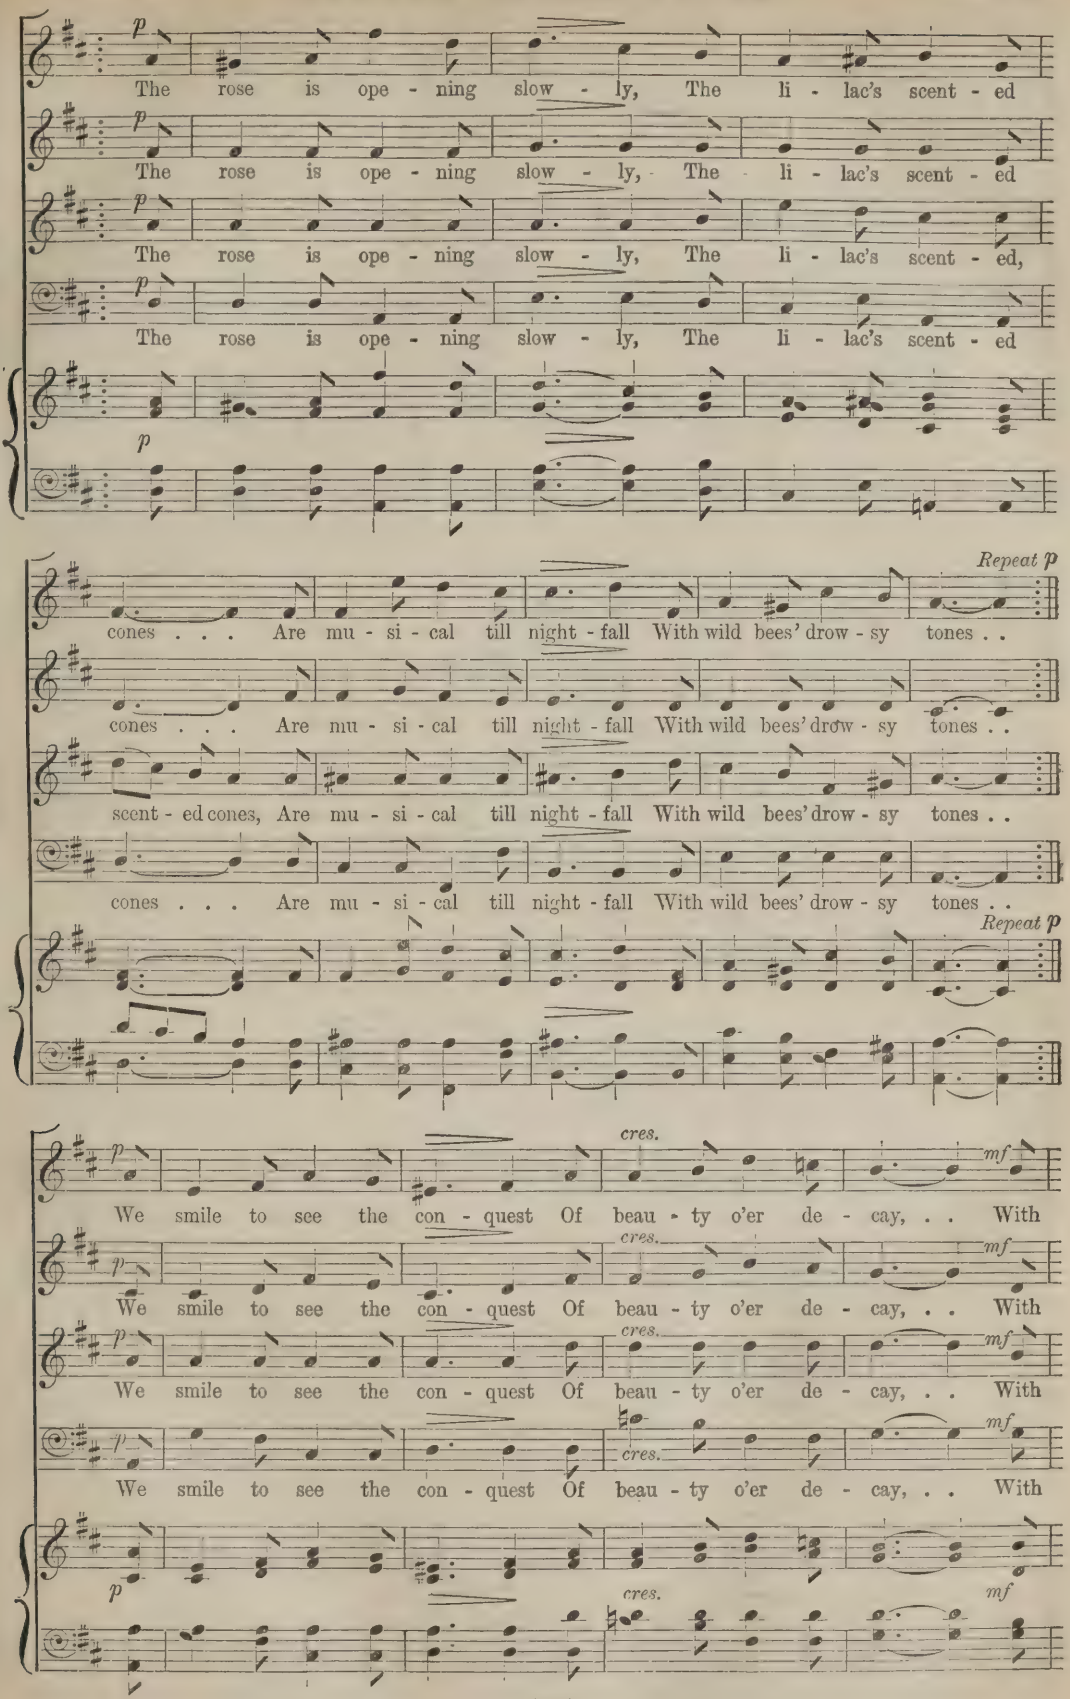
cres.
hap - py hour, such hap - py, hap - py, hap - py hour,
hap - py hour, such hap - py hour,
of . . such hap - py hour, such hap - py, hap - py hour. . .
of such hap - py hour, such hap - py, hap - py hour. . .
of such hap - py hour, such hap - py, hap - py hour. . .
of such hap - py hour, such hap - py, hap - py hour. . .



p
The rose is ope - ning slow - ly, The li - lac's scent - ed
The rose is ope - ning slow - ly, The li - lac's scent - ed
The rose is ope - ning slow - ly, The li - lac's scent - ed,
The rose is ope - ning slow - ly, The li - lac's scent - ed
Repeat p
cones . . . Are mu - si - cal till night - fall With wild bees' drow - sy tones . .
cones . . . Are mu - si - cal till night - fall With wild bees' drow - sy tones . .
scent - ed cones, Are mu - si - cal till night - fall With wild bees' drow - sy tones . .
cones . . . Are mu - si - cal till night - fall With wild bees' drow - sy tones . .
Repeat p
cres.
mf
We smile to see the con - quest Of beau - ty o'er de - cay, . . With
We smile to see the con - quest Of beau - ty o'er de - cay, . . With
We smile to see the con - quest Of beau - ty o'er de - cay, . . With We smile to see the con - quest Of beau - ty o'er de - cay, . . With mf

dim.
p mer - ry lark up - soar - ing, We greet the dawn - ing day, we greet, we mer - ry lark up - soar - ing, We greet the dawn - ing day, the mer - ry lark up - soar - ing, We greet the dawn - ing day, the mer - ry lark up - soar - ing, We greet the dawn - ing day, the mf
dim.
p
mf greet the dawn-ing day, the dawn - ing day, we greet, we dawn - ing day, we greet the dawn - ing day,
cres.
dawn - ing day, we greet, we greet the dawn - ing day, dawn - ing day, the dawn - ing day,
mf
cres.
f ritard.
greet the dawn - ing day, we greet the dawn - ing day.
mf
cres.
f
greet the dawn - ing day, we greet the dawn - ing day.
mf
cres.
f
greet the dawn - ing day, we greet the dawn - ing day.
mf
cres.
f
greet the dawn - ing day, we greet the dawn - ing day.
mf
cres.
f ritard.

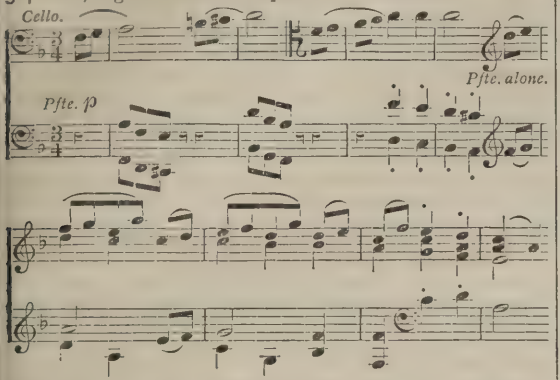
A Folio Edition of this Part-Song is published by Novello, Ewer and Co., price 1s.; vocal parts, 3d. each.

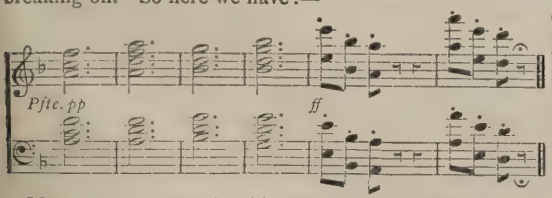
the first, but with the second section of the leading theme, the innovation being justified by success. The Coda of the movement is of considerable importance in the general plan, and quite as interesting as the matter preceding. It is impossible not to admire the spirit of this Allegro, wherein nothing gratifies a mere love of display, but everything is subordinated to artistic design.

The second movement, an Allegretto vivace in D minor 3-4 time, begins in the true spirit of a Scherzo:—



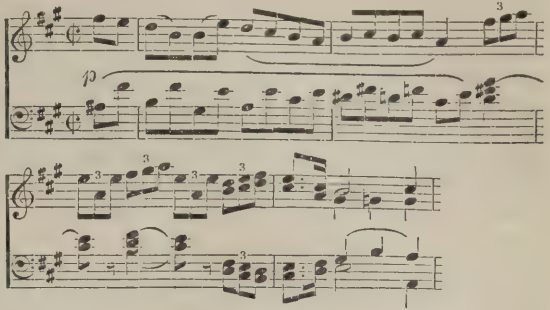
With this theme the composer briskly deals for some time, showing plenty of developing power, and then he gives us a charming and graceful second subject in the relative major by way of contrast:—

This theme the pianoforte answers with another of kindred genius, after which the composer, having unfolded all his subjects, proceeds to treat them secundum artem. In his manner of doing this there is nothing obscure. The music is fresh, frank, and pleasing, while showing the attainments of a scholar, and we are bound to give the movement our hearty approval. By the way we observe in the closing bars a reflection of Beethoven's humour. The great master was fond of making believe to repeat his themes, and then, as in the Scherzo of the Seventh Symphony, suddenly breaking off. So here we have:—



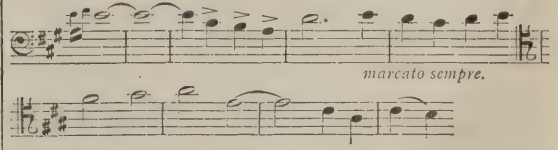
Mr. Stanford precedes his final Allegro with a Molto Adagio in A minor, fifty-one bars long. This is a movement of grave import, in choral style. The first two phrases will give a clear idea of its character:—

The object of its introduction is evident without looking further, since between the lightness of the Allegretto vivace and that of the finale something of a more serious character was obviously needed. But another reason soon appears. As for the finale itself, a promising start is made by the pianoforte:—

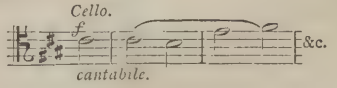


After development, this is followed by a second theme, given to the cello:—

which next repeats the melody of the choral accompanied by the pianoforte, with crotchet triplets for the right hand. Then the treatment of the second subject, interrupted by the appearance of the choral, is resumed with enhanced effect. As the movement proceeds it becomes more impassioned, especially in the pianoforte part; while now and then a strain of religious fervour is heard from the cello, as here, on a dominant pedal:—



and here again:—



Later the stress of the music relaxes, but only to gather strength for a Presto Coda, with which it and the work come to a fitting end.

After what has been said, our opinion of the "Sonate" as a whole need not be stated in so many words. But, at the risk of superfluousness, let us add that the work is a more than creditable addition to high-class English music, and an honour to its composer.

Verzeichniss des Musikalien-Verlages von Breitkopf und Härtel in Leipzig. Vollständig bis Ende 1877, nebst Nachtrag bis Ende 1878.

We have much pleasure in drawing the attention of our readers to the above catalogue of the publications of the eminent Leipzig firm, which may be called a model of its kind, fulfilling as it does all the exacting demands which modern requirements can make upon the class of literature to which it belongs. It is complete in itself, perfectly lucid in its arrangements, while the general "get-up" of the elaborate volume leaves nothing to be desired. On some 650 pages the vast number of musical works, separate editions, &c., issued by the firm in question are enumerated, first "systematisch," i.e., in a classified order, then alphabetically, according to the names of the respective composers, while in a final division a detailed index is furnished of the contents of those monumental volumes, of the publication of which Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel may be justly proud, viz.: the complete and critically revised editions of the works of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Mozart, and Palestrina. Hence, the above carefully compiled "Verzeichniss" will be equally useful to the music-buying public as a catalogue, and to the professional musician as a book of reference.

Novello's Music Primers. Edited by Dr. Stainer.
Church Choir Training, by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Those who imagine that by purchasing a book of this kind they can discover how to organise and train a choir without labour and anxiety will be deservedly disappointed. There is no trickery in the art—hard work, patience, and tact are its necessary conditions, and if two choirmasters could be found, one of whom with small theoretical knowledge took infinite pains, while the other overflowing with theoretical knowledge was deficient in strength of purpose, the former would achieve success, the latter would fail. But it is a matter of experience that many of those who are most laborious are often least methodical, and it is to such persons as these that Mr. Troutbeck's little book will be very useful. The work may be described as a series of essays on the formation, training, and music to be selected for the use of parochial and cathedral choirs. The advice given is essentially practical and sound, and though many will regret that an author evidently so well to the front with his subject should have not said more, all will admit that nothing has been said which is wide of the mark, and all that has been brought forward is pointedly put. We purposely avoid quotations, because the order of the thoughts expressed is so continuous that it would be unfair to select scraps, but we confidently recommend those who are interested in this most important subject to find out what is the method and experience of one who has, like Mr. Troutbeck, seen active service in the sphere of thought and work on which he so ably writes.

The School Round-Book: a Collection of One Hundred Rounds, Catches, and Canons. The words edited by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe, M.A.; the music edited by J. Stainer, Mus. Doc., M.A. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The publication of a new and revised edition of this admirable little book will be heartily welcomed by all engaged in the work of teaching part-singing, who from past experience are cognisant of the fact that there is no vocal exercise so admirably adapted to form sight-singers, and to give confidence in part-singing, as the practice of rounds and catches. Our forefathers have commonly been credited with a skill in sight-singing which the majority of vocalists of the present day can by no means venture to claim, and hardly dare aspire to. The facility acquired by singers of past generations may possibly have been the result of their constant and persistent habit of "trouling rounds and catches," a habit which has now almost become extinct. In the days when catches and rounds stood high in public estimation, the state and tone of society, both high and low, was very different from that which now happily prevails. Then no entertainment pleased the public if it were not highly seasoned with indecent situations and indecent wit. One has only to glance over the pages of poets and authors to wonder how princes and people could care to hear or read such words. Composers, men of the age, were of course no better and no worse than their fellows, and so they allied their melodious strains to the dross which gradually, as a healthier mind and better taste prevailed, dragged their efforts into a proper and well-merited oblivion. Learned musicians from time to time have regretted that such an unworthy alliance of voice and verse should cause the banishment of so much clever and charming music. The late Vincent Novello seems to have been the first to suggest that by writing new and appropriate words some of the finest specimens of the old catches and rounds might again be favourably introduced to public notice; and his suggestion was at length adopted by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe, who, in conjunction with the late Dr. Rimbault, produced a volume which should find a place in every good musical library. This admirable work, containing 377 compositions, was, however, scarcely adapted for school or class use, and therefore did not fulfil all that could be desired: that want is now supplied by the book under review, where we find rounds, catches, and canons, with settings to healthful and frequently poetical lines, the majority of them having been written or selected by Mr. Metcalfe. Some few are to be found in the larger work of Metcalfe and Rimbault, but no less than seventy-six appear only in the "School Round-Book." The music is chiefly that of the old masters, Purcell, Arne, Hayes. Boyce, and others, but includes some very capital modern specimens. Five of these latter are compositions of the editor, Dr. Stainer. One of them, a round to the beautiful lines by Rowe, "As on a summer's day," is written for eight voices or choirs, and would tax the skill of accomplished part-singers. The majority are, however, of a much simpler construction. The third round, "Be you to others kind," here printed in $\frac{3}{2}$ time, was composed by John Jenkins in $\frac{4}{4}$ time, to the words, "A boat, unto the ferry," and has been considerably altered, not perhaps with advantage. The time-signature of "Come, buy my cherries," should be $\frac{4}{4}$ for the sake of uniformity. Rounds 13 and 15 have a similar metronome time; the time signatures should therefore agree. In Round 57 the last word of the second line should be lie not die. Some of the compositions have very judiciously been transposed, and in certain instances an occasional bad progression has been set right by the musical editor. We can most confidently recommend this book to all engaged and interested in the spread of social harmony, who will find here a mine of improving and useful amusement, as well as a supply of wholesome part-music both grave and gay, which, needing no instrumental accompaniment, is admirably fitted for use in schools and also in the home circle. The book is of a very convenient size and form, and is of course printed in the ordinary staff notation, but an edition in the Tonic Sol-fa notation is also published.

The Water-Fairies. A Cantata for Female Voices. The words by Edward Oxenford. The music composed by Franz Abt. [Novello, Ewer & Co.]

The melodious character of the vocal works of Franz Abt has always ensured him a hearty welcome amongst amateurs; and the thoroughly musicianlike treatment of his merest trifles equally commends him to the attention of those who are more conversant with what may be termed the "severer" forms of art. A Cantata, therefore, from this composer, especially written for female voices, and adapted throughout to the requirements of well-trained drawing-room singers, should excite pleasurable sensations; for although detached songs, duets, trios, and choral pieces of unquestionable merit are always ready to the hand, there can be no doubt that when all these are combined in a continuous work, and especially when they are composed to such poetical and refined words as Mr. Oxenford has supplied for the "Water-Fairies," their interest to the listeners is materially enhanced. After a delicate, and appropriately fairy-like introduction for the pianoforte—ending upon the dominant harmony—a simple and tuneful Chorus, "The day is softly breaking," steals in with much effect. This is succeeded by a Recitative and Air, "This day is sweet to fairies all," the snatches of chorus in which are extremely graceful. The following Duet, "Yonder lies the shining bower," flows on uninterruptedly as a two-part song, the varied character of the accompaniment, however, giving much life to the piece. This is succeeded by a Choral Recitative, a Chorus, "'Neath the shining waters"—with a charmingly characteristic accompaniment—and (after a second Choral Recitative) by a Ballad with Chorus, "A Queen in days long pass'd away," which at once arrests our attention as one of the most characteristic numbers in the work. Commencing in D minor, and proceeding afterwards to the tonic major, the Chorus is introduced with admirable effect, especially where it leads back to the minor, on the words, "Alas! 'twas but a dream!" The Trio, "The day is o'er," which ends the Cantata (preceded by a brief Recitative), derives much of its effect from the triplet accompaniment, the cessation of which, on the phrase "A sweet farewell to ye!" may be cited as an excellent point. All the Choruses are written in three parts—two soprani and alto—and as they never exceed a moderate compass in either direction, they will require only fresh voices and an average knowledge of music to ensure effect. The accompaniments, too, although in parts demanding a light touch and a sympathetic player, are quite within the reach of even juvenile performers; and with all these attractive qualities we may safely predict that the "Water-Fairies" will attain high rank amongst the few works composed solely for female voices, and available for "home concerts."

Suite: Prelude, Mazurka, Scherzo, and March, for Pianoforte. Composed by Agnes Zimmermann. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

NOT only by her original pieces, but by her many arrangements from the works of the great masters, Miss Zimmermann has so thoroughly shown her sympathy with the classical forms of the art, that a "Suite" for pianoforte alone might naturally be expected from her pen, especially encouraged, as she might reasonably be, by the success of her previous composition of the same character for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello. It must be remembered, too, that in selecting a title used by the best writers of a past age, it is by no means necessary to do more than adhere to the model they have bequeathed to us; for a modern "Suite" may reflect modern musical feeling, even as Beethoven strictly adhered to the name "Sonata" whilst giving forth his ripest and most recondite musical thoughts. C minor is the key chosen by Miss Zimmermann for the central point around which her several movements are grouped; and a Prelude—which sounds, as it should do, like the extempore effusion of a cultivated artist—appropriately introduces a Mazurka in E flat, the leading theme of which, rendered doubly attractive by a persistent figure in the bass, is thoroughly in the spirit of the old dance; the Trio, in G♯ minor (enharmonically, of course, the sub-dominant minor), being in excellent contrast with the principal subject. The Scherzo, in G minor and major, is light and fanciful in the extreme, the passages of imitation adding much life to the movement, and the legato melody, in the major key, giving just that repose which seems necessary before the re-entry of the original theme. The March, in C minor, is sufficiently vigorous to justify its title, and is indeed an excellent specimen of writing throughout; the Trio, in G major, having a tranquil subject which fits in most appropriately with the design of the movement, the vigorous termination of which brings this clever "Suite" to an end with admirable effect. We sincerely hope that Miss Zimmermann's labours in the cause of healthy art will be amply acknowledged by the performance and circulation of this piece amongst the higher class of pianists, for which, both by its classical character and its executive difficulties, it is especially designed.

The Emigrant's Song. Four-part Song. Words by Campbell.

Cavalry Song. Part-song for mixed voices. Words by Sydney Dobell.

Dreams. Song. Written by Frederick Langridge. Composed by C. A. Macirone. [Hutchings and Romer.]

As a composer of the modern part-song Miss Macirone has already made a name which will always ensure her a welcome; and these two contributions from her pen—both written for mixed voices—will no doubt speedily find a place in the répertoire of our fast-increasing Choral Societies. Of the two we prefer the "Emigrant's Song," the bold subject of which is admirably suited to the words. Two or three excellent points are made by the entry of the voices—in imitation; and the harmonies throughout are unexceptionable. The "Cavalry Song" has a martial theme sufficiently appropriate to the character of the verses: yet in the harmonies there are some harsh effects to which we cannot reconcile ourselves; as, for example, in the fifth bar, where the D♯ (although undoubtedly a passing-note) leaves off and recommences on the chord of E major, to which the third is only added on its repetition. In the third bar of page 2 the quavers C D in the accompaniment are evidently a misprint for C B; but these should be altered. There is, however, some capital writing in this song, the words of which have been well studied by the composer. Mr. Langridge's verses are thoughtfully set by Miss Macirone; but "Dreams" is by no means a song appealing to "gushing" vocalists. Commencing "dreamily" with a simple theme in D minor, well harmonised, the change to the tonic major, with the arpeggio accompaniment, is an extremely happy point; and throughout the song the varied feeling of the poetry is faithfully reflected in the music. The long-sustained F on page 3, with the changing harmonies, is most effective; and at the conclusion the dying-off of the leading phrase upon the fifth of the tonic harmony is in true sympathy with the words.

Episodes. 1, Prelude; 2, Resolution; 3, Vesper Hymn; 4, Romance; 5, Never more; 6, Victory; 7, Sunny Morn; 8, Intermezzo; 9, Fare ye well. By Frederick Westlake. [Stanley Lucas, Weber & Co.]

THE titles of these little Sketches will sufficiently indicate their character; but it is a real pleasure to say that, apart from their excessive appropriateness, they are instinct with true poetical feeling, and reflective of an artistic power which leads us to hope that their composer will some day produce works of higher importance. We can imagine that the "Vesper Hymn," "Romance," and "Sunny Morn" may be the most popular of the group of pieces; but, charming as they undoubtedly are, to the musical listener, "Resolution," "Never more," and "Fare ye well" will appeal perhaps even more powerfully. The delicacy and refinement which characterise these compositions are by no means their sole recommendation; for they are all extremely melodious; and although brief, as carefully finished and complete in design as pieces of far greater pretension. Pianists will encounter but small executive difficulties in the performance of Mr. Westlake's "Episodes;" but the perception of their meaning is not to be grasped by mere "passage players;" and to the comparatively few, therefore, who have cultivated their mind to the utterance of a composer's thoughts through their fingers, we alone commend these unpretentious musical miniatures.

The Major and Minor Scales: Octaves, Sixths, and Thirds (or Tenths). With the fingering so marked that they may be easily and quickly learned. By Alfred Whittingham. [W. Reeves.]

THE position of the third finger in scale practice is undoubtedly of the utmost importance; but whether the principle of writing the note upon which this finger falls larger than the rest (a plan adopted throughout Mr. Whittingham's little book) is a good one we cannot but think open to serious question. We here see too, after the commencement of each scale, only the third finger marked; and as young pupils never think, there can be little doubt that in the very first scale down will go the third finger upon F. The author will of course tell us that the master will explain the principles which are very tersely elucidated in the preface; but young people can only play what they see before them; and when they see no finger placed over a note they will put down any one they please, until the teacher, worn out with endeavouring to force a theory upon a child who can only take in facts, will, in self-defence, mark the fingering in pencil throughout the scales. Practical teachers will no doubt agree with us in this opinion; but every credit is due to Mr. Whittingham for his laudable endeavour to convert a juvenile pianist's daily drudgery into a pleasing study.

Six Four-part Songs. Composed by Fanny Hensel (née Mendelssohn). [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THESE songs, by Mendelssohn's sister, are already known to most lovers of part-music; but their publication in "Novello's Part-Song Book" will no doubt even more widely extend their popularity. Gifted with a rare talent for composition, an accomplished executive artist, and with a highly refined and cultivated mind, Fanny Hensel would have perhaps made even a greater name for herself had her talent not been partially eclipsed by the world-wide reputation of her brother. The exquisite melodiousness of the part-songs now before us, the beauty of the harmonies, and the thoroughly musicianlike treatment of the voice-parts, must charm all hearers; and Choral Societies will consult their interest by helping their audiences to a due appreciation of their merits, the care and judgment necessary for their performance being now so general amongst amateur musical Associations as to have become rather the rule than the exception.

If in a year. Song.
Autumn leaves. Song.
Words and Music by Eliza P. Freake.
[Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.]

Both these compositions are worthy of commendation, for they show poetical feeling and musical instinct; and if, as honest reviewers, we call attention to some technical objections in the treatment of the pianoforte part, we feel convinced that the composer will thank us for our kindly counsel. The first, "If in a year," is extremely vocal and melodious, and the flowing triplet accompaniment in good keeping with the voice-part; but in the second bar of the "Agitato," in G minor, the chord upon C can only belong to Dominant harmony, and assuredly the bass must not rise to the key-note triad. "Autumn leaves" has a pathetic subject in E minor, with an effective transition to the tonic major, and on the whole so well accompanied that we start when we find the triad of A minor rising in octaves to a $\frac{6}{4}$ on B, between the eighth and ninth bars on page 2. These and some few other minor defects in two really meritorious songs could be easily remedied.

The cloud and the flower. Song. Written by Robert Reece. Composed by Berthold Tours. [J. Bath.]

This is truly a song for voice and pianoforte, a sympathetic player indeed being as necessary to secure the eloquent expression of the composer's thoughts as a sympathetic singer. The symphony, lingering on the harmony of the diminished seventh in C minor, happily introduces the voice-part with a quiet accompaniment until, on the words, "Yet silent crept the dial-hand," we have an ascending chromatic progression in the bass which is extremely effective. The change to the tonic major (in which key the song concludes), and the introduction and sudden cessation of the arpeggio accompaniment, are also extremely happy points, and prove beyond doubt that the composer works with the mind of a poet as well as with the hand of an artist. We cordially commend this song to the attention of professional as well as amateur vocalists.

The Organist's Quarterly Journal of Original Compositions. Part XLI. Edited by William Spark, Mus. Doc.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This publication was projected at a time when original organ music was a scarcity in England, and the popularity which the work has had, and still enjoys, is a proof that the zeal and energy of the editor have been fully recognised by his brother organists. That the pieces contained in this work are anything like equal in artistic value is of course not to be expected; but the contributions by Merkel, G. A. Macfarren, Smart, Reinecke, Grædener, Silas, Ouseley, Hiller, and many others equally deserving of mention, far more than make up for those which are not up to our standard. The current number is an excellent one. It contains an interesting overture by Merkel and an effective Fantasia by C. J. Frost, besides shorter pieces by Dr. Hiles, Dr. Naylor, and R. I. Monkton.

A Sailor's Song. Words by Julia Goddard. Music by Otto Schweizer. [Paterson and Sons.]

There is good musical feeling shown throughout this song, the words of which, though somewhat conventional, have by no means tempted the composer to set them in a conventional manner. The bold subject at the commencement, expressive of the sailing of the ship, is happily repeated in the tonic minor on the words, "Blue eyes are weeping;" and although perhaps the modulations are a little too frequent for the nature of the subject, the voice is sufficiently respected in the harmonies. A singer who can command his voice from the low B flat to the upper F may make this "Sailor's Song" extremely effective.

Presto alla Tarantella; for the Pianoforte. By Alfred R. Gaul. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

We scarcely know why Mr. Gaul should call his piece a "Presto alla Tarantella" instead of a "Tarantella," nor why, being in rapid $\frac{6}{8}$ time, he should say that it is to be "played as if written in $\frac{2}{4}$. Apart from these considerations, however, he has composed a vivacious and attractive little trifle, the monotony of which may be forgiven if considered merely as a dance. The changes of key are effective; and the harmonies always appropriate and unforced. A flowing style and nimble finger will be necessary to give due effect to the composition; but to those who possess both these qualifications it may with confidence be recommended.

Petite Polka Chinoise. Par Gioachino Rossini.
[Ricordi.]

Pianoforte players should possess themselves of this little musical joke, thrown off no doubt by the maestro without a thought of its ever being published. There is but little in it, yet enough to show that it is an artist's trifle; and, as such, worthy of a place in an artist's portfolio. The subject, in B minor, is light and pleasing, some of the harmonies, however, being, we hope, exclusively "Chinese."

FOREIGN NOTES.

M. Halanzier's tendered resignation of his post of Director of the Grand-Opéra has been for the last few weeks the leading topic of conversation in Paris musical circles. The reason assigned for this step is the want of activity displayed on the part of the Ministry of Fine Arts in affording the necessary guarantees for the support of the national establishment, in consequence of which some of the most valued members of the company have declined to renew their contracts. Curiously enough, the crisis in the administration of the Opera almost coincided with the resignation of the President of the Republic, and the consequent reconstruction of the Cabinet; and while M Bardoux, the former Minister of Fine Arts, appeared anxious to retain the services of M. Halanzier, his successors, MM. Jules Ferry and Turquet, have not as yet made any fresh overtures to the Director. Whatever the ultimate resolution may be, it seems certain, however, that M. Halanzier will remain at the head of the institution until the expiration of his present engagement in October next. The nomination, on the other hand, of M. Hérold as Prefect of the Seine is hailed with much satisfaction in artistic quarters. The new prefect is the son of the composer of "Zampa," and the active interest which, in his capacity of senator, he has already exhibited in art matters will, it is expected, be most beneficially exercised in his more extended sphere.

The Marquis d'Ivry's Opera, "Les Amants de Vérone," which had been, since its first performance some few months ago, the pièce de résistance at the Théâtre-Lyrique, has after the recent definite closing of this establishment been transferred to another lyrical stage, the Gaîté, where it is being performed during four evenings of the week, M. Capoul and Mdlle. Ambre sustaining the principal parts. At the Grand-Opéra a revival of "Der Freischütz" is spoken of as highly successful. Weber's most popular operatic work is given with the recitatives added by Berlioz, and the leading characters are represented by Mdlles. Krauss and Daram, MM. Vergnet, Gailhard, and Caron. A new Opera, entitled "Le Roi Barde," has just been completed by M. Léon Gastinel. The libretto of the work, which is described as "an important one," is founded upon some remarkable facts concerning English history of the tenth century. The first performance of M. Saint-Saëns' new Opera, "Etienne Marcel," took place at the Grand-Théâtre at Lyons last month, in the presence of a select audience, including many leading musicians from the capital, it being altogether unusual for the work of an eminent French composer to be first brought out by a provincial town. The Opera was received with every mark of success, and will, no doubt, soon be introduced to Parisian audiences.

Mr. Arthur Sullivan's "In Memoriam" Overture was recently performed by the Paris Société des Concerts du Conservatoire, when the work of our gifted countryman met with the entire appreciation of the audience. The fact is the more noteworthy, since this is the first instance of a work of a living Englishman having been produced by this national institution.

The grand organ forming part of the late International Exhibition has been transferred to the chapel of the Dominicans in the Faubourg Saint-Honoré, where it was inaugurated last month by an appropriate ceremony, during which the fine instrument was played by MM. Gigout and Guilmant. It has been constructed by M. J. Merklin.

Two Festival Concerts are still announced to take place at the Hippodrome, in addition to the four already held this season, one of which is to be devoted entirely to works by M. Gounod. The undertaking, which has proved so successful, will certainly be revived in the coming autumn.

At the initiative of the Société des Compositeurs de Musique, a commemorative tablet has been placed, on the occasion of the recent anniversary of the birth of Louis Joseph Ferdinand Hérold, at the house in the Rue d'Argout, where the composer of "Zampa" was born on the 28th of January, 1791.

The Neue Zeitschrift für Musik brings the following welcome news: "A newly-discovered composition by Beethoven, viz., a Cantata for mixed chorus and orchestra, at present in the possession of the well-known Viennese amateur Dr. Standhartner, who found it amongst the papers of the widow of Haslinger, the publisher, is to be performed at the forthcoming concert in celebration of the silver wedding of their Austrian Majesties by the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde. The work dates from the best period of the great master, and there is reason to believe that it was written about the same time as the Cantata 'Der glorreiche Augenblick,' namely, during the meeting of the Congress at Vienna. Another acquisition was made by Capellmeister Kremser, who lately discovered with the Artaria family a hitherto unknown 'Rondo' for soprano and orchestra, composed to Italian words by Beethoven." The Cantata, we should add, is doubtless the work mentioned in Thayer's catalogue of Beethoven's works, under No. 188, as existing in manuscript only and in the possession of Haslinger, commencing with the words "Ihr weisen Gründer glücklicher Stauten." In any case, the world of musicians will be delighted to hear that the works abovementioned have been rescued from the oblivion to which they have been so long consigned.

Herr Wagner's Tetralogy, "Der Ring des Nibelungen," is to be performed in its entirety at the Victoria Theatre of Berlin in May next, by the personnel of the Leipzig Stadt-Theater, and with the assistance of the excellent orchestra led by Herr Bilse.

A French translation, in an abridged form, of Herr Wagner's poetry to his music-drama "Parsifal" is about to be published at Paris. The author is M. de Brayer.

The performance at Hanover of Hector Berlioz's Opera "Benvenuto Cellini," which took place on the 2nd ult., under the direction of Dr. Hans von Bülow, has resulted in a complete success. The work of the deceased composer, whose music is now so much in the ascendant with Parisian concert-goers, was almost hissed off the stage on the occasion of its first performance in the French capital. In consequence of the appreciation accorded to the Opera at Hanover, Herren von Bülow and von Bronsart (the Director of the Opera) intend, it is said, to mount the same composer's "Béatrice et Bénédict" for the coming winter season, when the greater part of the dialogue in the drama will be replaced by recitatives, to be written by Dr. von Bülow, the zealous champion of the French maëstro in Germany, Berlioz having rendered a similar service to "Der Freischütz" in its adaptation for the French lyrical stage.

The Leipzig Signale states that Dr. von Bülow, having given several concerts lately in aid of the Bayreuth fund, is about to hand the handsome sum of 10,000 marks to Herr Richard Wagner as the net proceeds of his exertions in the cause of the poet-composer of the "Nibelungen Ring."

An interesting lecture was recently delivered at Bonn by Dr. Ludwig Nohl, its object being to give a brief outline of the life and artistic importance of Beethoven. The speaker's discourse was diversified at intervals by the appropriate performance of works by the great composer, among which may be mentioned the Funeral March from the "Eroica," the Leonore Overture (No. 3), and the Allegretto from the Eighth Symphony.

The third volume of Thayer's "Life of Beethoven" has just issued from the German press.

M. Camille Saint-Saëns, the eminent French pianist and talented composer, is just now engaged upon a concert tournée throughout the German Empire.

A romantic opera entitled "Die Nebenbuhler," by Wilhelm Freudenberg, has been received with "tumultuous" applause on its first performance a few weeks ago at Wiesbaden. We also hear from Stuttgart of the successful debût of an opera by Gottfried Linder "Konrad von Schwaben," the libretto of which has been written by the Grand Duchess Wera, the young widow of Prince Eugene of Wurtemberg.

At St. Petersburg Verdi's "Aïda" has been performed at the National opera-house in Russian with great success. On the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the Conservatoire of the Russian capital, a splendid performance is said to have taken place of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," with the co-operation of the eminent German baritone, Herr Hill.

Signor Verdi is stated to have completed a new opera, which is to be brought out first on the Italian stage, after which the composer intends personally to conduct its performance at the Austrian capital. The Paris Grand Opera has likewise applied for permission to produce the new music-drama of the composer of "Aïda."

The celebrated contra-bassist, Bottesini, is also the author of an Opera entitled "Ero e Leandro," which has just been successfully brought out at Turin, under the direction of the maëstro Pedrotti.

M. Massenet's Opera, "Le Roi de Lahore," has met with an enthusiastic reception at its recent first performance at the Theatre "La Scala" of Milan.

Signor Pinsuti has, we are informed, been nominated an officer of the order of the Crown of Italy by King Humbert.

A weekly music journal, the first of the kind ever published in Brazil, has just been founded at Rio de Janeiro, under the title of Revista Musical.

One of the most gifted followers in the footsteps of Robert Schumann, the well-known composer of songs and pianoforte pieces, Adolf Jensen, died recently at the age of forty-two at Baden-Baden.

At Paris died, at the age of sixty-six, Clairville (whose true name was Nicolaïe), one of the most fertile writers of comediettas, and author of the libretto to "La Fille de Madame Angot."

The death is announced in French journals of Alphonse Varney, a composer of merit and author of the celebrated song "Mourir pour la Patrie," which was so much in vogue with French patriots in 1848.

We have also to record the death at Naples of Giovanni Mori, the eminent violinist and professor at the Conservatorio of that town.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Concert Populaire (January 26): Symphony in D major (Beethoven); Orchestral fragment from "Orphée" (Gluck); "L'Arlésienne" (Bizet); Serenade, (Haydn); Violin Solo (Sivori); Overture, "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn). Châtelet-Concert (February 2): "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (February 2): Symphony, "Roman" (Mendelssohn); Overture, "Coriolanus" (Beethoven); Rêverie for Strings (Dunkler); "Rhapsodie Norvégienne" (Svendsen); Air from Ballet, "Dardanus" (Rameau); Violin Concerto, B minor (Paganini); Polonaise from "Struensee" (Meyerbeer). Concert du Conservatoire (February 9): Symphony, A major (Mendelssohn); "The Ruins of Athens" (Beethoven); Overture, "In Memoriam" (Sullivan); "Hallelujah," from "Messiah" (Handel). Concert Populaire (February 9): Symphony, D major (Mozart); Fragments from "Manfred" (Schumann); Pianoforte Concerto, E minor (Chopin); Air from Suite in B minor (Bach); "Mouvement Perpétuel" (Paganini), executed by all the first violins of the orchestra; Overture, "Leonore" (Beethoven). Festival Concert at the Hippodrome (February 11): Overture, "Patrie" (Bizet); Chorus from "Les Djinns" (Fauré); "Le Déluge," poëme biblique for chorus and orchestra (Saint-Saëns); Overture "La Chasse du jeune Henri" (Méhul); "Les Poëmes de la Mer," chorus and orchestra (Weckerlin); Fragments from Opera "Feu" (Guiraud); Danse macabre (Saint-Saëns); Fragments from "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Concert Populaire (February 16): Symphony, C minor (Beethoven); Allegretto from Symphony-Cantata (Mendelssohn); Fragments from "La Damnation de Faust" (Berlioz); "Mouvement Perpétuel" (Paganini); Fragments from "Etienne Marcel" (Saint-Saëns); Overture, "Guillaume Tell" (Rossini).

Leipzig. — Euterpe Concert (January 21): Overture, "Braut von Messina" (Schumann); Pianoforte Concerto, E minor (Chopin); Symphony, G major (Dräseke); Fragments from "Ruins of Athens" (Beethoven). Gewandhaus Concert (January 23): Overture, "Coriolanus" (Beethoven); Air from "Acis and Galatea" (Handel); Violin Concerto (Schumann); Arioso, Gavotte, and Scherzo for Violoncello (Reinecke); Symphonie dramatique (Rubinstein). Conservatorium Concert (January 24): Violin Sonata (Mendelssohn); Concerto for Violoncello (Schröder); "Phantasiestücke" (Schumann); Variations for two pianofortes (Gouvy); Prelude and Fugue, A minor (Bach); Pianoforte Concerto, D minor (Bach). Conservatorium Concert—"Mozart Anniversary" (January 27): Quartett, C major; Fantasia and Fugue, C major; Clarionet Quintett, Air from "Magic Flute," and "Recordare" from "Requiem" (Mozart). Gewandhaus Concert—"Mendelssohn Commemoration" (February 6): Music to "Midsummer Night's Dream;" Overture, "Athalie;" Pianoforte Concerto, G minor, Vocal Soli (Mendelssohn). Conservatorium Concert (January 31): String Quartett, A minor (Schubert); Song, "Hirt auf dem Felsen," with clarionet (Schubert); Trio (Jadassohn). Euterpe Concert (February 11); Overture, "Michael Angelo" (Gade); Violin Concerto, D minor (Spohr); Violin Solos (Bach, Raff); Symphony, B flat major (Beethoven). Gewandhaus Concert (February 13): Overture, "Euryanthe" (Weber); Violin Concerto (Bruch); Polonaise (Vieuxtemps); Symphony, No. 1 (Reinecke); Overture, "Zauberflöte" (Mozart).

Berlin.—Concert of the Symphoniecapelle (January 30): Overture, "Faust," and Huldigungsmarsch (Wagner); Symphony, D major (Beethoven); Sinfonie Triomphale (Ulrich); Introduction to "Abenceragen" (Cherubini). Bilse Concert (February 5): Overture, "Melusine" (Mendelssohn); Overture, "Leonore" (Beethoven); Part 2 from "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz); Three Movements from Ninth Symphony (Beethoven); Slavonic Dances (Dworzak). Concert of the Symphoniecapelle (February 5): Overtures, "Fidelio" and "Leonore" (Beethoven); Symphony (Albert Becker); Serenade, D minor (Volkmann). Concert of the Singakademie (February 14): "Judas Maccabæus" (Handel).

New York.—Concert of the Symphony Society (February 1): Symphony, A minor, No. 2 (Saint-Saëns); Violin Concerto (Beethoven); Overture, "Euryanthe" (Weber); Serenade, No. 3, D minor, for strings (Volkmann); Chaconne (Bach); Les Préludes, Symphonic Poem (Liszt); Soloist, Herr A. Wilhelmj.

CORRESPONDENCE.

NOTATION OF THE GERMAN SIXTH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—The note appended to my letter of last month seems to show that I expressed myself therein with some obscurity. May I crave space in your next number for making my meaning clearer?

I am, in the first place, unable to perceive the impropriety of changing a note which is in the chord to one which is not in the chord. This is, I believe, the very essence of chromatic alteration; and if the fifth may be sharpened in the tonic harmony, I suppose the fourth may be sharpened in the chord known as the French sixth. Whether the chord thus modified be a proper substitute in certain cases for the German sixth is another question. I am inclined to think that it is, and I am sure that I have seen it so, and more than once. To arrive at the same or an equivalent result by two distinct roads is no new thing. The supertonic seventh, for example, with sharpened third becomes practically a dominant seventh, whether real or spurious seems a very unimportant question.

With the etymology of words I am, as a musician, but slightly concerned. Only I could wish that such well-known terms as "major" and "minor" might be allowed to retain their natural meaning of "greater" and "less," which is surely not done if the lesser of the two fourths be called "major." Certainly every one has the right to define his own words; and by defining "furlong" as "league" we might assert, not untruly, that a mile is less than a furlong. Only I think this use of the words would produce some practical confusion.

I may say, in conclusion, that I fail to clearly apprehend what is intended by the expression "etymology of chords." If it be asserted that it is in all cases necessary to have a decided opinion about the root of any given chord, then I must needs confess to a very decided opinion to the contrary. Two, three, or more different roots are often assigned to the same harmony by different theorists; and as no demonstration (to any one who knows the real meaning of that misused word) is in the nature of things possible in such cases, I prefer, with Richter and others, to consider the so-called "science of harmony" as nothing more than a classification of chords. One system may be better—that is to say, more simple and consistent—than another. But to claim finality for any system is to fetter the composer, or rather to attempt to fetter him, for no composer worthy of the name ever consented to be so bound.

I am, &c.,

Dover, February 8, 1879. C. W.

[As our correspondent agrees with Richter that the science of harmony is a "classification of chords," we can scarcely understand why he opposes our own attempt to classify them. We willingly, however, print his letter, especially as he believes that in his communication last month he but imperfectly expressed his opinion.—Ed. Musical Times.]

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Allow me to suggest a simple experiment which will at once decide whether one should write A♭, D♯, C, F♯ (as your correspondent "C. W." contends in your last number), or A♭, E♭, C, F♯.

On a piano—or, still better, on a harmonium—tune the following chords purely, so that they give no beats:—

The fifths must be made a little sharper, but the major thirds much flatter, than in the ordinary equal temperament.

Now play these chords—and they are found very smooth and pleasant.

Again, play these chords—and the effect of A♭, D♯, is found to be violently harsh and painful. The reason is evident. D♯ is not the perfect fifth of A♭, but is too flat (in this case) by more than two-fifths of an equal temperament semitone; and the third harmonic of A♭ beats violently with the D♯.

Those who would write A♭, D♯, must therefore face this dilemma: 1. If these notes are tuned as a fifth ($\frac{3}{2}$) or as a twelfth ($\frac{3}{11}$) such a notation as A♭, D♯, is against all musical usage; 2. If they are not tuned as a fifth no ear can bear to listen to them.

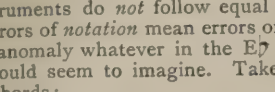
Of course in the ordinary equal temperament there is but one sound for E♭ and D♯; and if music were composed for tempered instruments only, to write A♭, D♯, might not cause much harm. But unaccompanied singers and players on bowed instruments do not follow equal temperament, and to them errors of notation mean errors of pitch.

There is no anomaly whatever in the E♭ rising to E♮, as "C. W." would seem to imagine. Take, for example, the following chords:—



Those who wish for further information on these matters are referred to Ellis's Primer, "Basis of Music" (Hodgson); or to Bosanquet's "Elementary Treatise on Music Intervals and Temperament" (Macmillan).

I am, sir, yours faithfully,
J. L.

THE SIGNATURE OF THE MINOR KEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I am glad to find that others besides myself think a more distinctive signature for the minor keys desirable; and I shall be glad if my letter, kindly published by you in your December number, serves to reawaken attention to the subject, although I was not aware when I wrote it that any music in a minor key had been published, except with the ordinary signature.

I hope that Dr. Gilbert may make another and more successful attempt, but I cannot quite agree with "C. W.," for it appears to me that the necessity for a change is to show, not the correlation of the two modes, but their independence of each other; for as the one is used to express ideas that the other would fail to interpret, so I think it would be well that the eye should be able to recognise by a glance at the signature the characteristic harmonies of the minor as distinguished from those of the major.

The large amount of music now in print with the old signature is a great and weighty obstacle in the way of change; and should any alteration ever be made, both signatures must for a time be taught, but greater difficulties than this have been overcome.

Yours truly,
February 13, 1879. J. F.

MUSICAL EDUCATION IN SCHOOLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In the capacity of a music-master in a private school, allow me to make a few remarks on an article which appeared in your last month's issue. I have read everything that has been written on this subject in your paper, and I feel convinced that those who have written do not fully know with what they have to contend in order to bring about the much-desired "cultivation of a higher class music in schools." The fault does not lie altogether in the teachers, or, if it does, it is due to the parents of pupils that it is so. The parent expects his son to learn a few "flashy" pieces, and is not at all particular about the way those pieces are performed, provided there be plenty of loud pedal work in it and abundant "action." This sort of music being always found to pay best, is of course always taught.

I think it is entirely the fault of the parents of pupils that music-masters who are totally unqualified to teach are enabled to do so, for, were parents to insist on better music being taught to their sons, and require better teaching, then these bad teachers would be put "out of the field."

The suggestion in the article I spoke of, that principals of schools should not take music-masters who have not had a thoroughly sound musical education, could not be carried out, for there are so few, if any, schools where it is practicable to keep a master for music only; and those who have been educated to teach several other subjects cannot have had the opportunity of acquiring a sound knowledge of music.

Hoping you will have space for these remarks, which I write with the object of directing attention to the real cause of the evil,

I am, sir, yours &c.,
Bridlington, Yorkshire. S. Martin von Gübb.
February 10, 1879.

[If the writer of the above letter have really read "everything that has been written" in the Musical Times about musical education in schools, he should know that over and over again we have said that teachers trade on the ignorance of parents. We never, however, address ourselves to the principals of schools who do not "keep a master for music only," for such persons really deserve to be "put out of the field" more than the bad teachers themselves.—Ed. Musical Times.]

ACCOMPANIMENTS TO ORATORIOS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—The publication of a series of piano and harmonium accompaniments to oratorios, cantatas, &c., by the firm of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., leads me to hope that the time is past when I shall be condemned to hear the accompaniment of an oratorio played with the piano and harmonium, both taking the same part.

The admirable arrangement of the "Stabat Mater" for the above-mentioned instruments has set me thinking that something might be done to arrange and publish this and other works with organ accompaniment, and so supply another long-felt want.

I have at different times heard performances of oratorios and parts of oratorios in which the organ was the only instrument used, and seldom have they been satisfactory.

Take the "Messiah" for instance. The half-piano, half-organ arrangements of this which we possess (with their accompaniment following the melody of the songs, &c., and their confused octave-marks to the bass) ought now to be done away with and a better state of things instituted.

Of course, the edition with piano accompaniment edited by W. T. Best is everything that can be desired, but as this cannot be used upon the organ without considerable alteration, an arrangement including Mozart's additional accompaniments suitable for a two or three-manual organ with a limited number of pedal stops would be a great boon to organists, who frequently have selections from this oratorio to play in the church service.

Mr. Smart, by his arrangements of Handel's Choruses has shown himself well qualified to undertake such a task, not to mention Mr. Best, Dr. Stainer, and others.

Similar editions of "Elijah," "St. Paul," &c., would no doubt command a good sale.

I hope Messrs. Novello will further deserve the thanks of musicians by carrying out these suggestions, and that it will lead to an alteration in accompanying on the king of instruments.—I remain yours truly, February 20, 1879. E. Byron.

"THE ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Dr. Stainer, in his courteous notice of my letter, has mistaken the point of my criticism. I ventured to question, not our author's analysis, nor yet his "order of sequence," but the ground on which he justified his analysis. Assuming form, character, and idea to be the constituent elements of a work of art, the question remains, What is the ground of the assumption? Our author's answer to this question, quoted in my letter, I held to be incorrect and misleading, and I endeavoured to show why by stating what I believe to be the true one. On this point we are both synthetic, because we both desire to explain facts by reference to principles. Our difference lies in the principle, not in the method.

I am, sir, faithfully yours,
A Lover of Music.

February 10, 1879.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

S. M.—Consult a professional teacher.

Ignoramus.—In the Chant referred to three sharps are printed by mistake instead of two at the signature. With regard to the second question, our correspondent is quite correct in believing that musical compositions almost invariably end on the key-note. The instance quoted from Schumann's "Kinderscenen" is one of the few exceptions which proves the rule. The conclusion, on the sub-dominant harmony, has an effect of incompleteness suggestive of the child falling asleep. Another number in the same work, "Bittendes Kind," ends upon the chord of the dominant seventh; but the following piece—representing the happiness of the child at its request being granted—is in the same key, and concludes upon the tonic harmony.

A Reader.—We should advise our correspondent to study harmony, so that he may be enabled to analyse the pieces he plays.

A Regular Subscriber.—Braham was a Tenor.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Bampton, Devon.—The members of the Musical Society gave their first Concert for the season of 1878-9 on Friday the 7th ult., under the direction of Mr. J. Wood, of Taunton, who conducted. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from the Messiah, and the second of songs and glees. The solos were well sung by Mrs. Berkeley, Miss Periam, Miss Melhuish, Mr. Melhuish, and Mr. Francis, and the rendering of the choruses was highly satisfactory. The accompaniments were played by a string quartett and flute (Mr. Wood taking the first violin part), and Mrs. Row presided at the pianoforte.

Banff.—On Friday evening the 7th ult., the Banff Musical Association gave a private Concert in the County Hall. The first part consisted of Carl Reinecke's "The Little Rosebud," composed for solo and chorus of female voices with piano accompaniment. The connecting words of the story were read throughout by Mr. Scott Moncrieff, and the solos were sung by Miss M. Gordon, Miss B. Duncan, Mrs. Barclay, Miss Coutts, and Miss T. Dickson. The work was well rendered. The second part was miscellaneous. Mr. Hoffmann conducted.

Barton-under-Needwood.—The Barton Choral Society gave its first Concert on the 13th ult. at the Central Hall. The first part opened with Weber's "Jubilee Cantata," which was given with much precision and expression, and reflected great credit on the Conductor, Mr. Inglis Bervon, Organist of the Parish Church, Stafford. The solos were well sung by Miss Earle, Miss Prouse, Mr. Finlay, and Mr. Dunbar. The second part was miscellaneous. The hall was filled with a large and fashionable audience.

Belfast.—The Philharmonic Society's third Concert of the season took place on the 4th ult. in the large Ulster Hall, Sir Robert Stewart conducting with his usual ability. It was entirely a members' concert, all the solos, vocal and instrumental, being executed by local amateurs, excepting Sir Robert's organ solo. The vocalists acquitted themselves in a praiseworthy manner, especially the lady member who gave "When in the dark midnight" (Lachner), and the execution of Mendelssohn's "Capriccio Brillante," Op. 22, by a gentleman, was most meritorious. The programme included Mendelssohn's 43rd Psalm, Motett for female voices, "O Lord Thou hast searched me out," and Cantata, male voices, "To the sons of art," Gounod's 137th psalm, Quartett "God is a spirit" ("Woman of Samaria"), Sir S. Bennett, and part songs.——A Farewell Complimentary Concert was given to Mr. Walter Newport, on Friday evening the 14th ult., in the Great Hall of the Working Men's Institute. There was a large choir, and a number of ladies and gentlemen assisted by rendering songs and duets. Mrs. W. A. Kamcke delighted the audience with some brilliant pianoforte solos.——Herr Werner's first Concert took place in St. Mary's Hall on the 20th ult. Madame Schroeder, Miss N. O'Rorke, Messrs F. O'Rorke, J. F. Ennis, H. O'Rorke, and W. J. Moore were the vocalists, and were all well received, several encores being awarded. Mr. Edgar Haines as solo violinist, and Herr Werner as solo pianist, were much appreciated, and the band of the 104th Fusiliers contributed materially to the success of the concert. The proceeds were devoted to a local charity.

Birmingham.—The third Subscription Concert of the Messrs. Harrison took place in the Town Hall on Thursday, January 30. The artists were Madame Pappenheim, Mdlle. Alwina Valleria, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Signori Runcio and Monari-Rocca, Herr Behrens, and Mr. Frederick King. Mr. Sims Reeves was announced, but a notice was issued prior to the concert, stating that he would be unable to appear. The programme consisted of well-known operatic morceaux and popular songs, which were all excellently rendered. Mr. King, a Birmingham student at the National Training School for Music, made a capital début, and promises to attain high rank as a vocalist. He was encored in both his songs, "The Sea King" (Dr. Heap) and "Hybrias, the Cretan" (Elliott). M. Musin charmed the audience by his marvellous execution on the violin, and Signor Li Calsi gave the various accompaniments in masterly style. There was, as usual, an overflowing and brilliant audience.——The Festival Choral Society brought its nineteenth season to a close on Thursday, the 20th ult., with a Concert of more than usual interest, the programme comprising the motett, "I wrestle and pray," so long attributed to Sebastian Bach, but, according to modern authorities, the composition of Johann Christoph Bach, of Armstadt. The work was well rendered, with fine tone, and warmly applauded. The most interesting part, however, was Spohr's Fall of Babylon, a composition not only heard in the town for the first time, but a work which even many experienced choral and orchestral forces would shrink from on account of the enormous difficulties the writing presents. But, nevertheless, The Fall of Babylon is a magnificent example of the genius of Dr. Spohr, and the manner in which the plot has been worked out imparts to it an intensely dramatic interest. The words of the Oratorio, originally written in English, were translated into German for the purpose of being set to music by Dr. Spohr, whose approbation the poem fortunately obtained. The German translator in most of the pieces having altered the original metre, the present libretto is of necessity conformed to his version, and even the metrical errors are in some instances unavoidably retained. Of the original little more remains, in fact, than the sense and scheme. But the construction is nevertheless admirable, and the development of the story natural and complete, furnishing a convincing proof that in committing the task to Mr. Edward Taylor (Gresham Professor of Music) a better choice of authorship could not have been made. The principal vocalists, Mrs. Osgood, Mrs. Mudie Bolingbroke, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr Hilton, were highly efficient in the arduous solos with which the work abounds. The Trio, "Loud proclaim the great salvation," by the three last-named singers, was one of the features of the Oratorio, and elicited warm and well deserved applause. Considering the difficulties of the work, the Choral Society ought to be congratulated on the performance. Artistically, it was one of the greatest successes since the last Festival, and the musical public are under heavy obligations to the Committee and to the Conductor, Mr. Stockley, for the treat afforded. The singing of the choir was, on the whole, superb, and this is due to the indefatigable training of Mr. Stockley, who has taken the liveliest interest in the production. The band also was excellent in the accompaniments, and Mr. Stimpson rendered valuable assistance at the organ.

Bolton.—A tea party and Musical and Literary Entertainment took place in the Victoria Wesleyan School on Saturday the 8th ult. The vocalists were Miss Edwards, Miss Stewart, Mr. H. Taylor, and Mr. J. B. Lee; and the instrumentalists Mr. Parkinson (violin), Mr. Scholes (violoncello), Mr. Wover and J. J. Waller (cornets), all of whom were highly successful. Miss Mitchell presided at the piano, and accompanied in a most efficient manner. A glee party gave several glees with much precision. Mr. J. B. Lee conducted.

Bradford.—Mr. S. Midgley gave his second Concert of Chamber Music in the Church Institute, on Friday, January 31, assisted by Herr Straus (violin) and Herr Grossé (clarionet). The programme comprised Beethoven's Sonata for piano and violin, Op. 30, No. 2, a Sonata for piano and violin in D minor, by Miss Agnes Zimmermann (a scholarly and charming work); a set of three Romances for violin by Schumann; clarionet pieces by Herr Grossé (including Weber's fine Duo Concertante, Op. 48), and pianoforte solos by Mr. Midgley, who also took part in the duets with Herren Straus and Grossé.

Brechin.—On Tuesday evening, the 11th ult., the Amateur Musical Society gave its first Concert for the season in the Mechanics' Hall. Mr. C. J. Smith, of Perth, conducted with his acknowledged tact and ability, and was ably assisted by Mrs. Hempel and Miss Steele, also from Perth, as accompanists. The choir attacked the work allotted them with an energy and precision which bespoke much careful training and practice. The first part of the programme, with the exception of two part songs, consisted of selections from the Messiah. The recititative and air "Comfort ye my people" and "Every valley" were well sung by a gentleman with a pure tenor voice, and a lady amateur from Dundee, the possessor of a rich contralto voice, rendered the air "He was despised" with great pathos and purity of tone. The airs "How beautiful are the feet" and "I know that my Redeemer liveth" were undertaken by Miss Houston, of the High School. The second part of the concert comprised two Trios for violin, pianoforte, and harmonium, admirably given by the ladies from Perth and Mr. Smith, a short but beautiful Nocturne by Field, well played by the Conductor on the violin, and songs and part-songs.

Bristol.—On Monday, the 3rd. ult., the series of Monday Popular Concerts, inaugurated by Mr. George Riseley were resumed at the Colston Hall, and for the first time Mr. Riseley introduced a full choir in conjunction with his orchestra. The choir contained about 220 voices, and made a fairly satisfactory impression. The programme opened with Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, the principal vocalists being Miss Ellen Horne and Mr. E. T. Morgan, of Bristol Cathedral. Miss Marie Gane took the second soprano part in the duet, "I waited for the Lord." The second part of the programme included "Rise up, arise!" and "Sleepers wake" from Mendelssohn's St. Paul, and the fine double chorus for male voices from the same composer's Œdipus at Colonos, "Thou comest here to the land." The band also performed the overture Son and Stranger and "Cornelius March." Mr. A. N. Waite led the band, and Mr. George Riseley conducted.——On Thursday, the 6th ult., a public meeting of the Bristol Musical Festival Society was held at the Grand Jury Room, Guildhall, under the presidency of the Mayor, when the Chairman of the Executive Society (Mr. William Smith) reported that the Committee had resolved to hold the next Festival Meeting at the usual time, viz., in October next, and that arrangements had already been made with Mr. Charles Hallé for the instrumental portion being supplied by his band, and the following vocalists were amongst those engaged—Madame Albani, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. The action of the Committee was unanimously approved, and at the same meeting it was resolved that the number of guarantors should be increased from 300 to 400 gentlemen.——Another Saturday Popular Concert was given on the 8th ult. at the new Broadmead Rooms, when the small band, led by Mr. J. O. Brooke played, amongst other things, the overture to The Barber of Seville. Mr. Louis Waite performed a solo on the violoncello, and Miss Meredith was the vocalist. Mr. Alfred Whitaker conducted.——On Monday, the 10th ult., Miss Farler gave her annual Concert at the Colston Hall, when she was assisted by the following artists from Her Majesty's Opera, London: Madame Eugenie Pappenheim, Mdlle. Alwina Valleria, Madame Trebelli, Signor Runcio, Signor Rocca, and Herr Behrens. The sister of the concert-giver gave a couple of pianoforte solos, and two violin solos were contributed by Monsieur Musin, the celebrated Belgian violinist. The concert, which was conducted by Mr. F. H. Cowen, was a great success.——At the Monday Popular Concert on the 17th ult., the programme included Haydn's Grand Symphony, No. 5, in C major, the overtures, Die Zauberflöte (Mozart) and La Cenerentola (Rossini), and a "Swedish Peasant's Wedding March" by Soderman; also, for the first time in England, a "Triumph Marsch" by Anton Wallerstein, and a "Chaconne, in F" by Handel. Mr. Thomas was the vocalist; Mr. A. W. Waite, Leader of the band, and Mr. George Riseley, the Conductor.——On Thursday, the 20th ult., the annual Ladies' or open night of the Orpheus Glee Society was held in the Victoria Rooms. The programme was made up of an excellent selection of old and modern glees of the best class; but there were few novelties, with the exception of a trifle by the Rev. C. E. Hey, the Precentor of the Cathedral of this city. The choir was in excellent trim, and sang in a perfect manner, under the conductorship of Mr. George Riseley.

Chiswick.—The Bedford Park Musical Society gave its first Concert at the Turnham Green Vestry Hall on Thursday evening, the 20th ult., in aid of the building fund of the proposed church of S. Michael and All Angels. The first part of the programme consisted of Cowen's "Rose Maiden," which was performed with accuracy, and much attention to marks of expression. The second part consisted of a miscellaneous selection. In both parts the soprano and contralto solos were sustained by lady members of the Society, and other solos for tenor and bass were rendered by Messrs. Kenningham and Musgrave respectively. All the soloists and two of the choruses were encored. The hall was well filled with a fashionable audience.

Clifton.—On Wednesday, January 29, Mrs. Viner Pomeroy gave her third Classical Chamber Concert in the Victoria Rooms, when an excellent programme was provided. The performers were Herr Ludwig Straus (first violin), Mr. J. O. Brooke (second violin), Mr. W. H. Hann (viola), Mr. J. Pomeroy (violoncello), and Mrs. Viner Pomeroy (piano).——On Tuesday the 11th ult. a Lecture was given in the Victoria Rooms, under the auspices of the Clifton branch of the English Church Union, by Mr. W. H. Monk, Professor of Vocal Music at King's College, London, on "Church Music." The lecturer spoke of church music and its cultivation thirty years ago, and traced the change that had taken place since then, referring to the causes of the change, and the encouragement given to the formation of choirs, and he also spoke of the material of church music and the principles to be kept in view in its cultivation. Some assistance was given to the lecturer by illustrations sung by members of various churches in Clifton and Bristol. Mr. C. Bucknall, Mus. Bac., Oxon, presided at the organ.——On Wednesday the 12th ult. a Pianoforte Recital was given in the Victoria Rooms by a local professor, Mr. Frederick Huxtable. The programme included compositions by Bach, Mendelssohn, Weber, Chopin, Rubinstein, and Scarlatti, besides a few pieces of a popular kind. The clever manipulation and grace with which they were performed proved the musicianly skill of Mr. Huxtable, who was much applauded.——On Wednesday the 19th ult. the fourth and last of Mrs. Viner Pomeroy's excellent Classical Chamber Concerts for the season was given in the Victoria Rooms, when a large audience was present. The performers were Mr. Henry Holmes (first violin), Mr. J. O. Brooke (second violin), Mr. W. H. Hann (viola), Mr. J. Pomeroy (violoncello), and Mrs. Viner Pomeroy (pianoforte). The programme included Fanny Hensel's Trio in D minor, Op. 11, for piano, violin, and violoncello; Haydn's string quartett in B flat, No. 4, Op. 76; a violin solo, by Spohr "Salmstücker" in E flat, No. 5 Op. 145, well played by Mr. Holmes; and Beethoven's quartett in E flat. Op. 16, for piano, violin, and violoncello.

Cork.—On January 28, Dr. J. C. Marks, Organist of the Cathedral, gave a benefit Concert at the Opera House, which was crowded to its utmost limits. The first part of the programme consisted of a selection from Dr. Marks's Oratorio Gideon, which was rendered by a band and chorus of about 200 performers, the soli portions being sustained by Miss Lucy Ashton Hackett, Mrs. Bayley, Mr. R. Keatinge, Mr. J. H. Scott, Mr. E. Hackett, and Mr. J. Sullivan. The second part of the programme contained a miscellaneous selection. Mr. R. Coghlan led the orchestra, and Dr. Marks conducted.——On the 5th ult., the second Concert of the Cork Orchestral Union for the present season was given at the Assembly Rooms, South Mall. The orchestral portion of the programme included the Overtures to Les Deux Aveugles de Tolède (Mehul), Le Puits d'amour (Balfe), the Symphony in E flat of Andreas Romberg, the Entr'Actes from Schubert's Rosamunde, and a new March for military band and orchestra, the composition of Mr. W. Ringrose Atkins, the Conductor of the Society. An interesting feature in the programme was Beethoven's Quintett for pianoforte (Mr. Arthur Hill), oboe (Mr. Frankham), clarionet (Mr. Cooker), bassoon (Mr. Bishop), and horn (Mr. McClelland). The vocal music included several excellent solos and concerted pieces, well rendered by Mrs. Macnab, Mrs. Hogan, Mr. W. Harvey, and Mr. Shea. The Cork Orchestral Union is doing good work in encouraging a taste for such high-class music as is to be found in its programmes. The band numbers forty-five executants, with Mr. R. D. Howard as principal violin, Mr. W. Ringrose Atkins being the Conductor.

Curdworth, Birmingham.—The members of the Curdworth Choir, assisted by some friends, gave a Concert on Friday, the 14th ult. The Rev. Dr. Jones conducted. Miss Taylor's fine voice was fully appreciated, and the new song, "Shine gentle moon," composed by the Conductor, and sung by the Rev. J. T. Penrose, was most favourably received.

Devizes.—The members of the Amateur Vocal Society gave an "Open Rehearsal" in the Town Hall on Monday evening, the 3rd ult. The programme was well chosen, affording good scope for the voices of the ladies, and some instrumental music was also an attractive feature of the evening. Mr. Clarke, Organist of St. John's Church, presided at the harmonium and conducted.

Dudley.—On the 18th ult. a miscellaneous Concert was given in the Public Hall by the Dudley Vocal Union. The principal vocalists were Miss E. Bailey (of Birmingham), and Miss Lloyd. Violin, Mr. James Hale, pianoforte, Mr. W. H. Ashton. A selection of unaccompanied part-songs was admirably rendered by the full choir, and several leading members contributed bass and tenor solos with good effect. Mr. B. Barlow conducted.

Dunoon.—The Dunoon Musical Association gave an excellent rendering of Handel's Messiah on the 18th ult. The choir consisted of about forty-five voices, under the leadership of Mr. A. Galloway; the solo vocalists were Mrs. Smith, soprano; Miss Cochrane, contralto; Mr. M'Pherson, tenor; and Mr. Currie, bass. Mr. P. Scott presided at the organ-harmonium, and Miss Parker at the pianoforte. The Burgh Hall was crowded in every part. Mrs. Smith sang the parts allotted to her with her usual sweetness of tone and distinct pronunciation. Miss Annie Cochrane made a good impression in "He was despised." Mr. M'Pherson sang the tenor parts with care and cultivated taste, and Mr. Currie in "Why do the nations" was highly appreciated.

Edinburgh.—Mr. Waddel's Choir performed for the second time Max Bruch's Odysseus on Monday, the 3rd ult., in the Freemason's Hall, which was filled by a highly appreciative audience. The choral numbers were sung with finish and delicacy, especially the "Siren" and "Storm" scenes. The title-rôle was ably filled by Mr. Millar Craig, the other solo parts being very satisfactorily rendered by various members of the choir. The accompaniments were efficiently supplied by Mr. Tom Craig on the piano, Mr. Lingard on the harmonium, and a quintett of strings, including Messrs Daly and Carl Drechsler Hamilton. Great credit is due to Mr. Waddel, the Conductor.——According to the custom inaugurated of late years by Sir Herbert Oakeley, what has come to be regarded as the Edinburgh Musical Festival, began on Thursday evening, the 13th ult., with the Reid Concert, followed by two other concerts of an equally high class, on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon. Mr. Charles Hallé, with his celebrated orchestra from Manchester, were engaged, with Madame Néruda and Herr Straus as solo violinists, and the vocalists were Miss Emma Thursby (soprano), and Mdlle. Amalie Kling (contralto). Mr. Hallé, besides conducting, performed as solo pianist. The programmes for all the concerts were of a high-class character, and included works by Beethoven, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Wagner, &c., all of which were well rendered. In an artistic sense, however, we question the principle of giving only the instrumental movements of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. It is true, as Professor Oakeley says in the book-programme, that "half a loaf is better than no bread;" but, considering what excellent "bread" was freely distributed to the audience, there could be no occasion to touch this particular "loaf."

Farnham.—An evening Concert was given in the Corn Exchange on the 20th ult. by the British Glee Union and Concert Party, under the direction of Mr. Prenton, in aid of the Congregational Church Organ Fund, which was in every respect a great success. Among the pieces deserving especial mention were the songs and ballads of Mdlle. De Levante, R.A.M., Mr. Sexton, and Mr. Prenton, all of which were encored, as was also the duet, "When the wind blows in from the sea," by Mdlle. De Levante and Mr. Prenton. The glees were particularly well rendered. Songs were also sung by Mr. Mori and Mr. Frank Brough, who accompanied, and during the evening played several pianoforte solos.

Glastonbury.—On Thursday evening the 13th ult. a Concert was given at the Assembly Rooms, by Messrs. Mills, Gawthorp, A. H. Taylor, and J. N. Hewsley, of the Wells Cathedral Choir, assisted by Madame Lily Lowe. The numbered reserved seats were well filled by the elite of the town and neighbourhood. The programme was well selected, and the audience, though a critical one, loudly demonstrated their appreciation of the respective merits of the artists. "Auld Robin Gray" and "Love was once a little boy" by Madame Lowe, were unanimously redemanded.

Haddington, N.B.—On Tuesday evening, the 11th ult., the members of the Vocal Union gave their first Concert of the season in the Assembly Rooms. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from Handel's Messiah, and the second part of part-songs, choruses, &c. The solos in the first part were most efficiently sung by Miss Ferme, Miss Shields, Mr. Burns, and Mr. Whyte, the last named artist being encored in "Why do the nations." The choruses were rendered with great precision and power, "For unto us a child is born," and "Worthy is the Lamb" being especially noticeable. The soloists in the second part were the same as above, with the addition of Mrs. Pinck and Miss Paul, who were well received. The part-songs included "Fairy Song," by A. Zimmermann, "Bishop's "Tramp Chorus" and "Oh, by Rivers," and some of Mendelssohn's part-songs. Mr. Osborne W. Pinck conducted.

Halifax.—On Wednesday January 29, a very successful entertainment was given in the Mechanics' Hall, in aid of the funds for relieving the distressed in the town. The promoters were Dr. Roberts (Organist and director of the choir at the Parish Church), and Messrs. Storey and Learoyd. Solos were sung by Messrs. Verney Binns and D. Sutton Shepley, and the other members of the Parish Church choir gave some excellent part-songs. Several ladies also contributed solos, among whom were the Misses Ackroyd, Guy, and Empsall. Dr. Roberts was the pianist and Conductor. The sum of £40 19s. 8d. was handed over to the mayor.

Halton.—A classical Chamber Concert was given on Tuesday evening, the 4th ult., in the Wesleyan School-room, by the Haddock family, assisted by Mr. W. Booth, of Leeds. The programme included vocal and instrumental solos, vocal duets, and instrumental trios and quartetts. The soprano vocalist, Miss Pauline Haddock, a pupil of Madame Rudersdorff, possesses a highly cultivated voice, which she uses with the utmost taste. She sang three songs, all of which were enthusiastically encored. The most effective, perhaps, was "Star of my night," composed expressly for her by Mr. W. Booth. Mr. Charles Haddock gave two songs, in which he displayed a baritone voice of very pleasing quality. Mr. Edgar Haddock played two violin solos, which were heartily redemanded. An attractive item of the concert was a violoncello solo, charmingly played by Mr. G. P. Haddock. The programme contained four string quartetts, which were performed by Mr. Edgar Haddock (first violin), Mr. Charles Haddock (second violin), Mr. Fred. Haddock (viola), and Mr. G. P. Haddock (violoncello). All were selected from the works of the best composers, and were rendered with a skill and taste that left nothing to be desired. Mr. W. Booth gave valuable assistance in the pianoforte accompaniments, and also played a Valse-Caprice of his own composition with great brilliancy of execution.

High Wycombe.—On Tuesday the 18th ult. Mr. E. Minshall, Organist of the City Temple, &c., gave an Organ Recital in Union Chapel. Miss Holmden sang several songs, and the choir contributed some effective choruses.

Ingestre.—By the kind permission of the Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury, an Amateur Concert was given in Ingestre Hall in aid of the Girls' Friendly Society. Mendelssohn's Lauda Sion was performed with full chorus and orchestra. The solo parts were taken by Mrs. Gordon, Miss Birch, Mr. C. Wedgwood, and the Rev. C. Gordon The Cantata was received with much enthusiasm, every point being well rendered under the conductorship of Mr. Inglis Bervon, Organist of the Parish Church, Stafford. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous. The glees were well sung, and Mr. Inglis Bervon deserves great praise for his careful training of the choir. The magnificent hall was crowded with a most fashionable audience.

Lee.—A very successful Concert was given in the Large Public Hall on Monday the 17th ult., in aid of the St. Mildred's Church Building Fund. Herr Schuberth gave two violoncello solos—"Ave Maria" (Schubert), and "Cavatina" (Raff)—with great effect; and two pianoforte duets were brilliantly executed by the Misses Colnett. Miss Andrews received an encore for "The beating of my own heart;" as did Miss King for her rendering of "When the tide comes in" (Barnby). Messrs. B. W. Yaldwyn, A. C. Latter, Penon, Large, and Davey were much applauded, the first two receiving encores, Barnby's part-song "Sweet and low," sung as a quartett, terminated the concert.

Leek.—On Monday evening, the 3rd ult., the new organ, recently erected in the Mount Pleasant Wesleyan Chapel by Messrs. Stringer and Co., of Shelton, at a cost of about £700, was opened by Mr. Best, Organist of St. George's Hall, Liverpool. There was a good attendance, the gallery being crowded by a critical and fashionable audience. The programme selected by Mr. Best contained ten pieces, three of which were of his own composition. All these works were excellently played, Bach's Fantasia and Fugue in G minor, and the performer's "Trumpet Fugue," being particularly worthy of notice. The instrument does great credit to the builders, especially taking into consideration the small space that has been allotted to them. The whole of the metal pipes are composed of "spotted metal," and it is understood that the organ contains many improvements in mechanism, originated by the builders.

Leyburn.—The Wensleydale Musical Society gave its first Concert of the season in the Town Hall on Wednesday the 5th ult. Mr. Leggatt conducted, and the skill and energy he has given to the training of the choir was repaid by a very careful rendering of the music. The work performed was Gade's Erl King's Daughter. The principal vocalists were Miss Ray, Miss Carina Clelland, and Mr. Thornton Wood, the parts of the Erl maidens being sustained by members of the choir. Valuable assistance was given by Mrs. Adams and the Hon. A. L. Orde Powlett in the accompaniments. The second part of the concert was of a high character, the violin solos of Herr Franke being enthusiastically received. Mr. J. Fuller Maitland in a Nocturne and Valse (Chopin) displayed extraordinary execution. Schumann's "Gipsy Life" and Benedict's "Wreath" were ably sung by the choir.

Longton, Staffordshire.—The recently-established Choral Society in this town gave its first performance of a complete classical work in the Town Hall on Friday evening, January 31. The work selected was the Creation. The principal singers were Miss Tomlinson, Mr. Verney Binns, and Mr. Rickard. The band consisted of a number of local amateurs, assisted by professionals from Birmingham and Manchester. Mr. E. H. Bloor was the Conductor, and the orchestra was led by Mr. James Harvey. The performance was a complete success. The solos, duets, and trios were well rendered, and the accompaniments were played to perfection. The choruses were sung with a steadiness, firmness, and due regard to expression, which reflected the greatest credit on both Conductor and singers.

Macclesfield.—On Tuesday evening, January 28, the new organ, erected by Mr. J. Cole, of Manchester, in Parsonage Street Unitarian Church, was opened, when Mr. G. F. Grundy (of Manchester) and Mr. C. Shuttleworth (Organist of King Edward Street Unitarian Chapel) played a variety of select organ music. The instrument is the gift of the mayor, Mr. C. Brocklehurst.

Manchester.—Dr. Horton Allison gave a Pianoforte Recital in the new Town Hall on Tuesday evening, January 28. The programme included Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," Bach's Gavotte and Musette in G, Schubert's Second Impromptu, Chopin's Grande Valse in A flat, Bennett's "The Lake," Wollenhaupt's Scherzo, an Improvisation, Tarantella, and a Canon and Fugue by Dr. Allison, three of Mendelssohn's Lieder ohne Worte, and Liszt's "Grand Concert Paraphrase" on the principal subjects in Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream music, which was encored. The Recital was given in aid of the Manchester and Salford Provident Society's Special Relief Fund. There was a large audience.

New York.—The third of the Chickering Hall Symphony Concerts, which took place on January 25, under the direction of Mr. Carberg, was a decided success. The programme included the Ruy Blas Overture (Mendelssohn); Selection, Siegfried (Wagner); Aria (Mozart), sung by Mr. J. K. Barton; and the Symphony in B flat (Beethoven). The solo pianist was Mr. Richard Hoffman, who brought forward Ignaz Brüll's Concerto (Op. 10), the admirable performance of which was listened to with marked attention, and most warmly applauded. Being recalled, Mr. Hoffman gave Schumann's Novelletten, No. 1.

Ockley.—On Monday evening, the 3rd ult., Mr. Charles G. Sadler, Organist of the parish church, gave his third annual Concert in the school-room, assisted by several amateurs and the choir of St. Margaret's. The programme was well selected and much appreciated by the crowded audience. Mr. Sadler conducted.

Poole, Dorset.—On Tuesday, the 4th ult., Miss Ada Blanchard, R.A.M., a native of Poole, gave her second evening Concert in the Assembly Room, assisted by Mrs. Irene Ware, R.A.M., soprano; Mrs. Mudie-Bolingbroke, R.A.M., contralto; Mr. W. H. Beckett, bass; and Mr. Myles Birket Foster, R.A.M., pianist and Conductor. Mrs. Irene Ware, for her rendering of her songs "Olivia" and "Love was once a little boy," was warmly encored. "The old, old story" and "The Storm," by Mrs. Mudie-Bolingbroke, were so executed as to elicit most deserving applause, and the encore, "Nobil Signor," was excellently sung. Mr. W. H. Beckett delighted the audience with his singing of "My Queen," "The Yeoman's Wedding Song," and "The Tar's Farewell." Miss Blanchard was very successful in her performance of Mayer's "La Fontaine," Paradies's Sonata in A, Bach's Prelude and Fugue in B flat, Heller's "Aubade," and in two piano duets with Mr. Foster.

Rochester.—A highly interesting miscellaneous programme, chiefly classical, was performed at the Choral Society's Concert on the 6th ult. The services of Messrs. Carrodus, Louis Ries, Zerbini, Piatti, and Mdlle. Marie Krebs had been secured, and it is hardly necessary to say that the chamber music received full justice at the hands of the favourite artists from the Monday Popular Concerts. The solo vocalist was Miss Clara Samuell, whose agreeable voice and style met with the warm appreciation of the audience. The choir of the Society sang the ever-popular part-songs "O hush thee, my babie" and "The dawn of day," under the direction of the Rev. W. H. Nutter. At the next Concert Mendelssohn's St. Paul will be performed.

Stoke-upon-Trent.—A Concert was given on Tuesday evening, January 28, at the Town Hall, by Mr. Dilworth, which was highly satisfactory. The artists were Madame Eugenie Pappenheim, Mdlle. Alwina Valleria, Signor Runcio, Signor Rocca, Herr Behrens, M. Musin (violin), Dr. Swinnerton Heap (solo pianoforte), and Signor Li Calsi (conductor and accompanist). The programme consisted chiefly of well-known selections from operas, with several popular English songs. Madame Pappenheim delighted the audience with her mellow, rich voice. She gave the scena from Der Freischutz—"Softly sighs"—with great effect, and in the second part, "O Santissima Vergine," and "Let me dream again," the latter of which was vociferously encored. Mdlle. Valleria sang with her usual good taste, and her pure and clear soprano voice was much admired. Signor Monari-Rocca was heard to much advantage in two Swedish songs, "The Stream," and "Peter the Shepherd," and being encored gave "Simon the Cellarer," to the great delight of the audience. M. Musin and Dr. Swinnerton Heap were also highly appreciated.

Ulverston.—A very successful performance of the Messiah was given in the Parish Church, on January 28, by the members of the Ulverston Choral Society. The principal singers were Miss Emma Beasley, Miss Wakefield (an amateur), Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. Cecil Tovey. The very efficient orchestra comprised the members of the Lancaster Orchestral Society, supplemented by some of Mr. Charles Hallé's band; and the magnificent organ was presided over by Dr. Marks, Organist of Armagh Cathedral. The Oratorio formed part of a special service, the prayers being read by the Rev. F. G. McNally, and the lesson by the vicar (Rev. C. W. Bardsley, M.A.). The choruses were very creditably rendered, under the able conductorship of Mr. Edward Brown, Mus. Bac., Oxon. The singing of Mr. Hollins was exceptionally good, the purity of tone and intelligent conception of his part being strikingly exemplified, more especially in his pathetic delivery of the Passion music. Miss Wakefield also sang with great effect the solos allotted to the contralto.

Wedmore.—An evening Concert was given in the Assembly Rooms on Wednesday the 12th ult., by Messrs. J. N. Hemsley, A. H. Taylor, J. Gawthrop, and R. Mills, of the Wells Cathedral Choir, assisted by Madame Lily Lowe. All the artists acquitted themselves admirably, and were enthusiastically applauded. The trio, "The Hawthorn in the glade," (Bennett), and a charming selection of quartetts, all of which were beautifully rendered, were features in the programme. Mr. J. N. Hemsley ably presided at the pianoforte.

Wellington, New Zealand.—Mendelssohn's Elijah was given by the members of the Choral Society, for the first time in this city, on December 23. The band and chorus numbered respectively twenty-four and seventy-two, the former including several efficient amateurs, led by Mr. Isherwood. Considering the great difficulties of the work its first presentation here must be pronounced a decided success, many of the more dramatic numbers being sung and played with admirable spirit. The Society fortunately possesses a baritone singer of rare excellence, and the central figure of the Oratorio was therefore more than usually well represented. The whole was produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Parker, Organist and Choirmaster to the Anglican Cathedral here.

Weybridge.—A successful Concert was given at the Institute, on the 4th ult., by Mr. H. P. G. Brooke, Organist and Choirmaster of St. James's, and the members of his Choral Society (men and boys) with a small but very efficient band. The work performed was Mr. John Farmer's Oratorio, Christ and His soldiers, which was well rendered throughout, the excellent singing of the choir boys reflecting the greatest credit on their instructor, Mr. Brooke. Mr. W. J. Hutchings presided at the pianoforte, Mr. J. Cornish at the harmonium, and Mr. Brooke conducted.

Windsor.—The first Concert of this season, in connection with the Windsor and Eton Choral Society took place in the Town Hall on Tuesday, the 18th ult. Handel's Alexander's Feast occupied the first part of the programme. The principal vocalists were Madame Alice Barth, Mr. H. Kempton, and Mr. T. Ogilwy. Madame Barth was especially applauded for her rendering of the air, "Happy pair!" Mr. Ogilwy was very effective in the various recitatives that fell to his share, and for the air, "With ravish'd ears;" and Mr. T. Kempton was especially good in the recitative and air, "Revenge, Timotheus cries." All the choruses were rendered with good effect, the most prominent in general excellence being "The listening crowds" and "Break his bands of sleep asunder." The second part was miscellaneous. In the absence of Sir George Elvey, who, by his recent bereavement, was prevented from attending, Mr. S. Smith ably filled the office of Conductor. Mr. J. S. Liddle, Mus. Bac., was the leader of the band. Mr. G. J. Huntley presided at the harmonium, and Mr. Rawlings played the trumpet obbligatos.

Wirksworth. — The Wirksworth Choral Society gave its first Concert this season on the 13th ult., when the Messiah was selected for performance. The choir, which is not a large one, numbering from fifty to sixty, was very efficient. The principal vocalists were Madame Nicholson (of Sheffield), Miss Louisa Day, Mr. Everard Scott, and Mr. Field Baldwin (of Derby). Madame Nicholson received encores for two of her solos, and Mr. Baldwin for "Why do the nations." Mr. Baines presided at the piano, Mr. E. Birch at the organ, and Mr. N. M. Day conducted.

Wolverhampton.—The second Concert for the present season of the Festival Choral Society was given on the 7th ult., in the Agricultural Hall, before a numerous audience. The programme consisted entirely of sacred music, the first portion comprising Haydn's Creation, and the latter half of the evening was devoted to Beethoven's Mass in C. The principal vocalists were Miss Mary Davies (soprano), Signor Fabrini (tenor), and Mr. Thurley Beale (bass), and the band and chorus numbered about 200. The choruses were given in a manner which evinced careful and intelligent study and thorough rehearsal on the part of the members of the Society. The instrumental music was particularly noteworthy. In Beethoven's Mass the principals were the same as in the former work, with the addition of Miss J. E. Kenney, a member of the Society, who was very efficient in the contralto part. Mr. Stockley conducted the concert with his accustomed skill.

Worcester.—At the third and last of Mr. Spark's series of high-class Concerts for the season, held in the Music Hall on January 31, a well selected programme was excellently rendered. The artists were Madame Pappenheim, Mdlle. Valleria, Madame Trebelli, Signori Runcio and Rocca, and Herr Behrens, vocalists, and M. Musin (violin). Signor Li Calsi presided at the pianoforte. The concert was a great success.

York.—The members of the Musical Society gave a performance of Handel's Oratorio Israel in Egypt in the Festival Concert Room, on the 5th ult., with the co-operation of Mr. Burton. The soloists engaged were Miss Henrietta Tomlinson (soprano), Mrs. Armitage (contralto), and Mr. Verney Binns (tenor). The choruses were, as a rule, splendidly given. The "Hailstone" chorus, "I will sing unto the Lord," and "Sing ye to the Lord," being especially fine. ——A Concert was given on the 19th ult. by Mr. Sutcliffe in the Festival Concert Room, which was filled in every part. The artists were Madame Pappenheim, Mdlle. Alwina Valleria, Madame Trebelli, Signors Runcio and Rocca, Herr Behrens, M. Musin, the talented Belgian violinist, and Mr. F. H. Cowen, pianist, all members of Mr. Mapleson's company. The programme embraced several choice excerpts from the best operas, which were rendered in such a manner as to draw forth the warmest commendations.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. F. J. Liddle, to St. Mary's Abbey Church, Nuneaton.—Mr. W. Monk Gould, Organist and Choirmaster to S. Michael and All Angels', Portsmouth.—Mr. Edwin W. Harwood, Organist and Choirmaster to the Church of the British Embassy, Paris.—Mr. Arthur H. Hadfield, to St. James's Church, Sheffield.—Mr. J. Tomlinson, Organist and Choirmaster, Parish Church, Batley.—Mr. Chas. C. Larner, Organist and Director of the Choir, Caledonian Church of Scotland, Holloway.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. John W. Jones (Tenor) and Mr. George E. Matz (Bass), to Guy's Hospital, London Bridge.—Mr. Robert B. McGuckin (principal Alto) to Carlisle Cathedral.—Mr. E. Rumney Smith, Director of the Choir, to the Church of St. Patrick, Cromwell Road, Kensington, W.

OBITUARY.

On January 27, at Bury St. Edmunds, Catherine, daughter of O. Stimpson, Mus. Bac., Oxon., aged 18.

On the 1st ult., at 40, Belsize Square, N.W., in his 63rd year, Charles Edwin Flavell, of No. 26, North Audley Street, W., and formerly of Birmingham.

On the 20th ult., at Pembroke Lodge, East Molesey, John Parry, late of Combe Lodge, Surbiton, aged 69.

ANTHEM FOR EASTER-TIDE.

AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST

Chorus from the "Daughter of Jairus"

By JOHN STAINER.

Price 6d.

The Tenor Solo, "My hope is in the Everlasting," will precede the Chorus for use on Easter Eve and at other times.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE LATE DR. ELVEY'S PSALTER.

THE PSALTER;

OR, CANTICLES AND PSALMS OF DAVID.

Pointed for Chanting on a New Principle, with Explanations and Directions.

BY THE LATE

STEPHEN ELVEY, Mus. Doc.,

Organist of New and St. John's Colleges, and Organist and Choragus to the University of Oxford.

EIGHTH EDITION. Demy 8vo, cloth, 5s.

ALSO,

A CHEAPER EDITION

(the Eleventh).

With a Memorandum on the Pointing of the "GLORIA PATRI," by Sir G. J. ELVEY. Fcap. 8vo, cloth limp, 2s. 6d.

THE CANTICLES SEPARATELY

(Sixteenth Edition). Fcap. 8vo, 6d.

The Psalter is used at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and at many Cathedrals.

"There can be no doubt but that we owe most of what is good in the chanting of to-day to the (seven years) labour and care bestowed on the first edition of this work issued in 1856."—Musical Standard, September 25, 1875.

"Taken as a whole, Dr. Elvey's work has not been surpassed. . . . We believe that educated musicians generally—with a sense of the importance of this part of worship—if they must chant from such a pointed Psalter, would prefer Dr. Elvey's conscientious framework to any other we know."—The Orchestra, January, 1878.

Oxford and London: JAMES PARKER and CO.

THE PSALTER AND CANTICLES

POINTED AND SET TO ACCOMPANYING

CHANTS, ANCIENT AND MODERN,

By the Rev. SIR H. W. BAKER, Bart., and

WILLIAM HENRY MONK,

Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, London.

The Cheap Edition, with Vocal Score (Gregorians in unison), is now ready; size, double post 16mo.

Limp cloth, cut flush, and lettered ... ... 2s. 0d.
Cloth boards, turned in, and lettered ... ... 2s. 6d.
Cloth boards, turned in, gilt lettered, red edges ... 3s. 0d.

A large Imperial 8vo Edition, with accompanying harmonies for the Gregorian Tones, is in the Press.

The distinctive object aimed at is to unite under the same pointing two forms of chant hitherto considered incompatible—the Ancient and the Modern, the Gregorian and the Anglican—and to introduce a new form of Chant, which is commended with confidence for the use of Parish Choirs.

The work includes about 50 varieties of the Gregorian Chants, some from sources not easily accessible; and about 390 chants of the Anglican form, of which 100 are more or less well known, the remainder having been composed expressly for this work by musicians of distinction, including most of our Cathedral Organists.

Canticles only, 6*d*., 9*d*., and 1*s*.

Tonic Sol-fa and Plain Song Editions will be published as soon as possible.

London: W. Clowes and Sons, 13, Charing Cross, S.W.

MR. JOHN M. HAYDEN (Tenor).

(Professor of Singing, &c., to the Salisbury Training College.)

For Oratorios, &c., address, the Cathedral, or 40, New Street, Salisbury

MR. J. ROMNEY PEARSONE (Bass).

For Oratorios, &c., address, Rushall, near Walsall; or 122, Derby Road, Bootle, Liverpool.

SCHUBERT SOCIETY.—President, Sir Julius Benedict; Founder and Director, Herr Schuberth.—Thirteenth Season, 1879. Prospectus now ready. The Society's Concerts and Soirées afford excellent opportunities for rising artists to make their début and for composers to have their works introduced. Full particulars on application to H. G. Hopper, Hon. Sec., 244, Regent Street, W.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W.

Monday, March 3, 1879. A Paper by Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., on "The early Italian and Spanish Treatises on Counterpoint and Harmony." Chair taken at 4.30; Paper read at 5 o'clock.

9, Torrington Square, W.C. JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

MENDELSSOHN.—Pianoforte Works. Vol. V. 8vo, paper covers, 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, 6s.

TROUTBECK, REV. J.—Church-Choir Training (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers). Paper covers, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.

LEO, L.—Dixit Dominus. For Double Chorus, Solos, and Orchestra. Edited from the Autograph in the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge, by C. Villiers Stanford. Paper covers, 1s. 6d.; paper boards, 2s.; cloth, 3s.

SCHUBERT, F.—Song of Miriam. Chorus parts, 2s.

H. B. C. Benedicite omnia Opera. Post 8vo, 1½d.

HAWORTH, FRANKLIN.—Benediction Service, No. 1. O Salutaris, Litany of the B.V.M., Tantum ergo. 2s.

PRIOR, GEORGE, Mus. Bac., Oxon.—A Service for the Holy Communion, chiefly Gregorian. Demy 8vo, 1s.

SELBY, B. LUARD.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A. 8vo, 6d.

STATHAM, F. R.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat, for Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 4d.

ANDREWS, ALPHEUS.—"Blessed Lord, who hast caused." Collect. 8vo, 3d.

DUGARD, F. J.—The Seven Words of our Lord on the Cross. Post 8vo, 2d.

HATHAWAY, F. C.—"O Lord my God." Anthem. 8vo, 2d.

OAKELEY, SIR HERBERT.—"Come unto Me." Anthem (Op. 14, No. 5). 1s.

—— "Now unto the King Eternal." Anthem (Op. 14, No. 6). 1s.

WAREING, HERBERT W.—"O ye that love the Lord." Anthem. 8vo, 3d.

NICHOLS, WALTER H.—Three Hymns for Good Friday. Written by Rev. J. Russell, M.A. 8vo, 4d.

BANISTER, HENRY C. — "Summer Days" (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices, No. 63). 3d.

CATTY, C. S.—Sleigh Song. Chorus, with Solos for S. A. and B. 8vo, 6d.

DAVIS, GABRIEL.—"Dame Wiggins of Lee." Humorous Part-Song. 8vo, 2d.

FIELD, J. T.—"The Angels' Whisper." Part-song. 8vo, 3d.

NOVELLO'S TONIC SOL-FA SERIES.
No. 98. Hushed in Death. Henry Hiles. 1½d.
99. Hence, loathed Melancholy. Henry Lahee. 2d.

PRENDERGAST, A. H. D.—"Phillis dyes her tresses black." Part-Song A.T.B.B. 8vo, 3d.

SELBY, B. LUARD.—"A Song of the Four Seasons" (Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices, No. 62). 3d.

THE ORPHEUS (New Series).—For List, see page 126.

THE SCHOOL ROUND-BOOK. Words edited by the Rev. J. Powell Metcalfe, M.A. Music edited by J. Stainer, Mus. Doc., M.A. Translated into Tonic Sol-fa Notation by W. G. McNaught. 8vo, 6d.

CORDER, F.—Three Songs. "Rosamond's Epitaph;" "On the Water;" "Prayer." 2s.

TAYLOR, T.—The Steersman's Song. Words written by T. Moore. 1s. 6d.

T. P. M. Six Songs. 8vo, 3s.

O'LEARY, A.—The Diatonic and Chromatic Scales for the use of Pianoforte Students, 3s.; the Diatonic Scales only, 1s. 6d.

MARTI, HUGUES.—Feuillet d'Album, pour Piano. 1s. 6d.

JORDAN, C. WARWICK.—Three Allegrettos for the Organ. No. 1. 2s.

LÉFEBURE-WELY.—Original Compositions for the Organ. Reduced price, 2s. 6d.

Now ready, No. XVIII., 76 columns, price 2d. (blue wrapper).

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. Letters to J. F. Reid and Nephew, 14, George Street, Mansion House, E.C. Trade supplied by Pitman.

 During this month a specimen copy will be sent free on receipt of post-card.

MADAME NITA GUZMAN (Soprano) begs to announce that she is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Miscellaneous Concerts, Oratorios, &c. For terms, address, H. G. Hopper, Hon. Sec., Schubert Society, 244, Regent Street, W.

ALTO WANTED for All Saints, Blackheath. Stipend, £16. LEADING BOYS also WANTED. Stipend according to merit. Address, Mr. W. Anscombe, 83, Dunlace Road, Clapton, E.

AN ALTO, also a TENOR is REQUIRED, for S. John's, Wilton Road, Pimlico. Duties, two Services on Sunday and a weekly Rehearsal. Salary, £20. Apply by letter, to the Choirmaster, Mr. W. S. Hoyte, 68, Boundary Road, St. John's Wood.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, of great experience, desires ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Highest recommendations. Address W. W. N., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

MR. MARTIN BRADLEY, F.C.O., late Organist of the Priory Church, Leominster, is open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT at a Parish Church. Address, Little London, Chichester.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman is open to accept the above in or near London. First-class references. Address, Organ, 43, Hurley Road, Kennington, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for a Private Chapel in Scotland. Full English Choral Service. Surpliced choir. No objection to an amateur if perfectly competent. Address, stating full particulars, and what other work would be desired. T. H., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., Berners St., W.

NON-RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED. No premium. Tuition would be given in return for assistance in teaching. If a good organist a salary of £20 or £30 per annum might be had. M. B. F. C. O., care of Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

A LADY, Pupil of Mr. John Francis Barnett, and experienced in Teaching, is open to an ENGAGEMENT as TEACHER of the PIANOFORTE in a School or Family. Private lessons at her own or pupil's residences. Testimonials and references if required. Address, K. D., Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

A PUPIL of Professor Dr. Kullak, Professor of Pianoforte, Singing, French, and German languages, wishes a SITUATION. Can take Organist's duties. Apply to C. D., Kingston Villa, Callands Road, Bournemouth.

A TUNER (Broadwood) desires an ENGAGEMENT for three or four days a week; good references. Address, R. A. G., 77, Westmorland Street, Pimlico.

A RELIABLE TUNER and REGULATOR (formerly at the finishing-bench) is open to partial or occasional employment in or near London. Outdoor or indoor. A. M. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a Good Practical TUNER. One who is a good pianist preferred. Address, with reference, to J. S. Watson, Music Warehouse, Southport.

WANTED, a SITUATION, Home or Abroad, as ASSISTANT or SALESMAN. Address, Alpha, Kirkheaton, Huddersfield.

A WELL-EDUCATED Young Man, aged 20, of good address, is desirous of entering a music establishment as ASSISTANT. Can assist at book-keeping and good musician. Can play the pianoforte, organ, violin, and harmonium. Address, H. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

TUNING CONNEXION REQUIRED or WORKING PARTNERSHIP. Address, E. Stimmer, care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO the MUSIC TRADES.—Form of Three Years' HIRING AGREEMENT by the Solicitor-General, for the protection of the trade under the Bills of Sale Act, together with all the trade, professional and musical news of the month, in the LONDON AND PROVINCIAL MUSIC TRADES REVIEW for February 15. The only recognised organ of the trade in England. Post-free, monthly, 5d.; annually, 5s. Ernest and Co., Racquet Court, E.C.

CC ORGAN for SALE. A bargain. Thirty-one stops, 3 manuals, and pedals. Can be finished by Easter. Apply to T. S. Jones, Organ Builder, 25, Pentonville Road, N.

VIOLONCELLO (Forster). Excellent condition and tone. Address, Arco, 330, Camberwell New Road, S.E.

MUSIC MADE EASY.—The Chromatic Stave or Key-board method of Notation abolishes sharps and flats, makes remote keys easy to read, shows the true measure of all intervals, and indicates the proper keys to be played on the Piano, Organ, or Harmonium. An explanation sent to any address on receipt of stamped envelope. Address, Mr. J. Dyson, Albert Road, Farnworth, Bolton. A collection of pieces shortly to be published in this method.

Just published.

A POSTHUMOUS COMPOSITION for the Pianoforte, entitled "BARCAROLE," by G. Rossini. Edited and fingered by J. W. Lawson. Price 4s. Sold at half-price.
D'Alcorn and Co., 25, Poland Street, W., London.

PICCOLINO

OPÉRA COMIQUE EN TROIS ACTES

DE

V. SARDOU ET CH. NUITTER

MUSIQUE DE

E. GUIRAUD.

	f. c.
PARTITION, PIANO ET CHANT, EN 8° ... ... net	15.0
„ PIANO SEUL, EN 8° ... ... „	10.0

Morceaux de chant detachés

AVEC ACCOMPAGNEMENT DE PIANO.

1.	Cavatine de Marthe, 2 tons ... ... chaque	5.0
2.	Couplets de Musaraigne, 2 tons ... ... „	5.0
3.	Arioso de Tidmann	4.0
4.	Cantabile de Marthe, 2 tons	4.0
5.	Air de Frédéric	6.0
6.	Duo, Eléna et Frédéric	7.50
7.	Sérénade de Musaraigne, 2 tons ... ... chaque	3.0
8.	Couplets—La Brune, la Blonde, 2 tons ... ... „	5.0
9.	Sorrentine de Piccolino, 2 tons ... ... „	5.0
10.	Couplets de la réception	5.0
11.	Air de Musaraigne	6.0
12.	Air de Piccolino—" Il était une bergère"	6.0
13.	Duo, Eléna et Piccolino	7.50
14.	Nocturne, Marthe et Frédéric	7.50
Le N° 9 en 2 tons, Sorrente avec paroles anglaises de Sidney M. Samuel		5.0

Arrangements pour le Piano.

Battmann (J. L.), Sorrentine—Transcription facile	5.0
Cramer (H.), Bouquet de Mélodies	7.50
Guiraud (E.), Carnaval, 2 mains	7.50
Guiraud (E.), Ouverture à 4 mains ... ... net	4.0
Neustedt (Ch.), Fantaisie—Transcription	6.0
—— Sorrentine—Improvisation	5.0
Vilbac (R. de), Piccolino, 2 suites à 4 mains ... chaque	10.0
Wolff (Ed.), Duo brillant à 4 mains	10.0

Musique de Danse.

Arban, Quadrille à 2 mains	5.0
—— „ 4 „	6.0
—— Polka	5.0
Deransart (E.), Quadrille à 2 mains	5.0
—— „ 4 „	6.0
—— Valse	6.0

Musique instrumentale.

Garibaldi Airs, pour violon seul...	6.0
„ „ „ flûte	6.0
„ „ „ cornet	6.0
Hermann (A.), Fantaisie, violon et piano	9.0

Musique d'Orchestre.

Guiraud (E.), Ouverture—Partition ... ... net	4.0
—— Ouverture—Parties ... ... „	10.0
—— Mélodrame—Partition ... ... „	1.0
—— „ Parties ... ... „	1.0
Arban, Quadrille ... ... „	2.0
—— Polka ... ... „	2.0
Deransart, Quadrille ... ... „	2.0
—— Valse ... ... „	2.0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S

CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.

PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARIONET, &c.

Sent Gratis and Post-free to any part of the World.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S

YELLOW CATALOGUE for 1879.

COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE USE OF THE TRADE, PROFESSION, AND SCHOOLS.

COMPRISING A

SELECTION OF UPWARDS OF 4,000 STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS, IS NOW READY.

Among the Composers of Pianoforte Music will be found the names of Beethoven, Bach, Bertini, Chopin, Clementi, Czerny, Cramer (John), Dussek, Handel, Haydn, Henselt, Hummel, Herz, Kalkbrenner, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Moscheles, Mozart, Scarlatti, Schubert, Schumann, Schulhoff, Thalberg, Weber, &c., &c. Among the Vocal—Bishop, Braham, Arne, Dibdin, Callcott, Shield, Horn, Purcell, Haydn, Moore, Mazzinghi, Handel, &c., &c. SENT GRATIS AND POST-FREE TO ANY PART OF THE WORLD. All applications for trade terms must contain card, circular, or reference.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

SYDNEY SMITH'S

FOUR NEW PIECES

ESPRIT DE CORPS

MARCHE MILITAIRE.

Price Four Shillings.

ZEFFIRETTA

MORCEAU DE SALON.

Price Four Shillings.

ZAUBERFLÖTE

FANTAISIE SUR L'OPÉRA DE MOZART.

Price Four Shillings.

MENDELSSOHN'S CONCERTO

IN D MINOR.

REMINISCENCE.

Price Four Shillings.

LONDON: ASHDOWN AND PARRY,
HANOVER SQUARE.

READY, THIS DAY,

NEW POPULAR CANTATA

THE WRECK OF THE ARGOSY.

By W. H. BIRCH,

Composer of "The Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest," "Eveleen," &c.

The scene is a sea-shore on the coast of Cornwall. The action lies among the villagers, sailors, pirates, &c., all of whom sing in chorus. The principal characters are Lellie Marston (Mezzo-Soprano), daughter of the host of the village inn; Will Sharp (Tenor), the coastguard; Harry Stanchion (Tenor), a sailor in love with Lellie Marston; and Ralph Harman (Bass), a pirate, rival to Harry Stanchion. The Music is vocal and melodious, and is throughout essentially dramatic. The Cantata will be welcomed by Choral Societies in search of taking and effective work easy of execution and sure to please. Mr. Birch has long been known as a composer, and his latest effort will be received with interest. The Cantata is scored for an orchestra, and orchestral parts may be had on hire.

Pianoforte Score, Three Shillings; postage, 2½d.
Tonic Sol-fa Vocal Score, 8d.
London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

ANTHEMS.

G. A. MACFARREN.

Price 4½d.—BLESSED ARE THE POOR IN SPIRIT.
„ 4½d.—GREAT AND MARVELLOUS.
„ 4½d.—REMEMBER, O LORD.
„ 4½d.—LORD, WHEN SAW WE THEE.
„ 4½d.—PRAISED BE THE LORD.
„ 6d. —THE LAW OF THE LORD IS PERFECT.

HENRY SMART.

„ 4½d.—UNTO HIM THAT LOVED US.
„ 3d. —NOW UNTO HIM THAT IS ABLE.
„ 3d. —WHAT ARE THESE WHICH ARE ARRAYED.

HENRY LAHEE.

3d. —AND THEY BROUGHT YOUNG CHILDREN.
London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

THE TONIC SOL-FA METHOD.

Professor Helmholtz, of Berlin, in a letter to Mr. Curwen, says: "During my researches in acoustics I came from theoretical reasons to the conviction that this was the natural way of learning music, but I did not know that it had been carried out in England with so beautiful results."

MR. CURWEN'S LATEST WORK.

MUSICAL THEORY.

Book I.—"THE COMMON SCALE AND TIME." 4d.
„ II.—"THE MINOR MODE AND TRANSITION." 4d.
„ III.—"MUSICAL FORM." 1s. 4d.
„ IV.—"EXPRESSION." 4d.
„ V.—"HARMONY" (in the Press).

All the musical examples are printed in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations.

In reviewing Book III. ("Musical Form"), the Orchestra says: "Leaving the symbols, we can only stop to allude to the symmetrical and systematic arrangement of the subjects discussed in the book; to the excellent way in which essential principles and facts are prominently put forward; and to the interesting comments and elucidations which supplement the main definitions."

The School Guardian (organ of the National Society) says: "All who have any interest in music should read this book on Musical Form, whether they like the Tonic system or not. Many of the explanations are extremely good, and full of interest even for musicians of the older school."

THE TEACHER'S MANUAL

OF THE ART OF TEACHING IN GENERAL, AND ESPECIALLY AS APPLIED TO MUSIC.

By JOHN CURWEN.

In the last Education Blue-Book the following testimony is borne to this book by J. R. Jolly, Esq., Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools: "As giving excellent material for this right teaching of music, I cannot speak too highly of 'The Teacher's Manual of the Tonic Sol-fa Method,' by John Curwen, which is full, not only of admirable suggestions on music, but on the general principles of teaching, and should be in the hands of all teachers, whatever musical system they know, and of all interested in the improvement of education."

Price Five Shillings.
London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

POPULAR CANTATAS.

COUNTRY LIFE.

By E. F. RIMBAULT, LL.D. 2s. 6d.

This Cantata was found among Dr. Rimbault's MSS. at his decease, and is now published by arrangement with his family. The words are selected from various English poets, and describe the scenes of rustic work and play from May to October. The music is easy, and full of life and spirit; it includes Rustic Dance and Chorus, Harvest Home, several Ballads, &c.

THE BUILDING OF THE SHIP.

By HENRY LAHEE. 6s., folio size; or separate voice parts, 1s. each.

Longfellow's poem has been here set in the form of a Cantata. The various Songs, Duets, Trios, and Choruses aptly illustrate the poet's words, and the accompaniment is for the pianoforte and harmonium combined, thus obtaining something of an orchestral effect. Orchestral parts may be had on hire.

THE PICNIC.

By J. R. THOMAS. 1s.

The celebrated American song-writer has here produced a short Cantata, the music of which brims over with spirit, elegance, and vivacity. The music is easy and effective; the Solos are all for Ladies' Voices. Specially to be noticed is the gay and often brilliant pianoforte part, which sets off the vocal part. There are twelve movements of many kinds, and the Cantata occupies three-quarters of an hour in performance.

ESTHER, the BEAUTIFUL QUEEN.

By BRADBURY. 2s. 6d.

This Cantata includes Solos, Duets, Quartetts, and Choruses, all of a simple, yet pure and melodious character. The aim of the composer has been to make it accessible to as many singers as possible; hence it is constantly being used as a first attempt at connected work by choirs in all parts of the country. The chain of the narrative is maintained, when necessary, by the reading of verses from the Bible.

DANIEL.

By ROOT and BRADBURY. 2s. 6d.

A Cantata founded on Scripture story, in the style of the preceding. It is in three parts, with Solos, Choruses, &c. The two best-known caterers of people's music in the United States have produced the work, which includes a wonderful variety of musical contrivance and form. The narrative presents an ever-moving panorama of scenes and events, as well as an absorbing human interest.

THE PILGRIM FATHERS.

By ROOT. 2s.

Another easy Cantata, upon the model of "Esther" and "Daniel," and in two parts. The story, one of the most touching in all history —of the band of our countrymen who sought in the Mayflower an escape from persecution, and founded a New England, is here told with variety and effect. All the changing emotions of the pilgrims; their sufferings, farewell, voyage, landing, encounters with Indians, and final settlement, are recounted in every variety of musical form.

THE HAYMAKERS.

By ROOT. 4s.

An easy Cantata in forty-two movements, founded upon scenes and incidents connected with the farmhouse, the hayfield, and haymaking. There are Solos for the farmer, his two daughters, two assistants, the dairymaid, together with Trios, Quartetts, Quintetts, Semi-choruses, and Full Choruses.

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST.

By ROOT. 2s. 6d.

A successor of "Esther" and the rest; the latest of Mr. Root's Cantatas. There are twenty-eight movements, including all sorts of musical forms. As in "Esther," the chain of the story is held together by the reading of the intervening narrative from Scripture. The various actors in the Bible story are impersonated in song.

The Blessing of the Children.

By LAHEE. 1s.

The story of the blessing of the children by Christ, told in verse by George Bennett, the music by Henry Lahee. The recitation of ancient prophecies to Gregorian tones opens the work. Afterwards the disciples, the mothers, the children, and the chorus of bystanders severally take part. The treatment is dramatic, and the music scholarly.

THE FLOWER QUEEN.

By ROOT. 2s. 6d.

For Ladies' Voices only. The plot is as follows:—The flowers meet in a secluded dell in the forest to choose their queen. A person discontented with the world seeks in the same place retirement from its cares and disappointments. The flowers tell of love and duty, and the Recluse, moved by their spirit, resolves to return again to a life of usefulness and duty.

 Tonic Sol-fa Editions of all these Cantatas may be had.
London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

RICORDI,

265, REGENT STREET, W.

NEW ADDITIONS TO RICORDI'S CHEAP PUBLICATIONS.

		Net Prices. s.	d.
PERGOLESI.
La Serva Padrona	Vocal score	2	0
CIMAROSA.
Il Matrimonio Segreto	„	4	0
DONIZETTI.
Anna Bolena	„	3	6
Linda di Chamounix	„	4	0
VERDI.
Requiem	„	4	0
CHERUBINI.
Requiem (for Men's Voices)	„	1	6
MERCADANTE.
Third Mass (for Men's Voices)	„	1	6
ROSSINI (posthumous works).
La Regata Veneziana—Three Canzonets	S. or T.	4	0
Ditto	MS. or B.	4	0
Polka Chinoise, for pianoforte		2	6
Ditto, pianoforte duet		3	0
Fanfare, for pianoforte		2	6
Ditto, pianoforte duet		3	0
Soirée Musicale		1	6
Eco di Napoli, containing 50 of the most popular Neapolitan Songs		3	0

Lists of every description gratis and post-free. All works produced in Italy, &c., promptly procured without extra charge.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS

IMPORTED BY

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

	s.	d.
BEHR, F.—Les songes dorées. Waltz for Piano. Op. 409 ...	4	0
—— L'Amaranthe. Polka for Piano. Op. 410	3	0
BRONSART, H. VON.—Ballade for Piano. Op. 5	6	0
FORSTER, A.—Six Sonatinas for Piano. Op. 42. Book I., 7s.; II.	9	0
GADE, N. W.—Octett. Op. 17. Arranged as Piano duet ...	14	0
GIESE, TH.—In stiller Nacht. Serenade for Piano. Op. 271	3	0
—— Frühlingsbluthen. Idylle for Piano. Op. 273	3	0
—— Treue Liebe. Gavotte for Piano. Op. 274	2	0
HAMERICK, A.—Nordische. Suite arranged as Piano duet. Op. 22...	8	0
HUBER, H.—Sonate for Piano and Violin. Op. 42	12	0
KIRCHNER, TH.—Four Elegies for Piano. Op. 37	6	0
The same, singly ... ... each	2	0
—— Twelve Studies for Piano. Op. 38. In four books ... „	5	0
KRUG, D.—Les Trois Amis. Small Fantasias on favourite operas for three performers on one Piano (six hands). Op. 349, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6 ... ... each	3	0
No. 5	5	0
LASSEN, E.—Grande Polonaise for Orchestra. Op. 63—
Full score	10	0
Orchestral parts	20	0
Piano solo	5	0
Piano duet	7	0
—— Die Linde am Ettersberg. Op. 64. Vocal score	5	0
—— Five Songs with Piano. Op. 65	7	0
LOW, J.—Das Echo am See. Piece for Piano. Op. 345 ...	2	0
—— Ein Tag der Wonne. Piece for Piano. Op. 347	2	0
—— Romanze for Piano. Op. 348	2	0
LULLY.—Gavotte for Orchestra. Arranged by R. Kleinmichel—
Full score	2	0
Orchestral parts	5	0
Piano solo	1	0
Piano duet	2	0
Piano and Violin	2	0
Piano and Violoncello	2	0
LYSBERG, CH.—Reflets intimes for Piano. Op. 145	3	0
MATTHISON-HAUSEN, G.—Three Pieces for Piano. Op. 10	4	0
—— Novelette for Piano and Violoncello. Op. 12	7	0
PARRY, C. H. H.—Trio, E minor, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello	18	0
REINECKE, C.—Six Sonatinas for Piano	5	0
RIES, F.—Quintett in C minor. Op. 28. Score	10	0
„ Parts	16	0
STANFORD, C. VILLIERS.—Sonate in A major, for Piano and Violoncello. Op. 9	13	0
VOGEL, M.—Two easy Sonatinas for Piano. Op. 35 ... each	4	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - - E. Pauer.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. Cummings.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - - - Dr. Stainer.
5. SINGING (4s. Paper boards, 5s.) A. Randegger.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - - - A. J. Ellis, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - - E. Pauer.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - - - - Dr. Stainer.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - - Dr. Bridge.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - - - - James Higgs.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - - - - - Dr. Stone.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - - - - Rev. J. Troutbeck.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - - Rev. T. Helmore.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. Prout.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - - - E. Pauer.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - - John Curwen.

IN PREPARATION.

4. THE HARMONIUM - - - King Hall.
12. HISTORY OF MUSIC - - E. Pauer.
17. THE VIOLIN - - - Berthold Tours.
19. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON - - - - Dr. Bridge.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN PAPER BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SIXTY-THIRD EDITION.
PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.
A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.
FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.
FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.
London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

Collegiate Series Publications.

Vocal Tutor (2s. 6d. net). Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

Solfeggi. Arranged as Duets and Trios, specially adapted for High Schools for Girls and Singing Classes. Books I. and II.

Pianoforte Tutor. 58 pages. 2s. 6d. net.

Organ Tutor. By F. Archer. 3s. 6d. net.

Part-Songs, Madrigals, Anthems. By R. L. DE PEARSALL, Dr. WESLEY, &c. See "Collegiate Series" Catalogue. 110 numbers now ready. From Twopence each.

Consecutive 5ths and 8ves. Essay by R. L. DE PEARSALL. 2s. net.
To be continued.

LONDON:
Weekes & Co., 16, Hanover St., W.

A COLLECTION OF
SACRED MUSIC FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS.
EDITED BY
JAMES TILLEARD.
One Shilling.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION OF
SECULAR MUSIC FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS.
EDITED BY
JAMES TILLEARD.
One Shilling.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY
A CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES
POETRY WRITTEN BY ALFRED TENNYSON
MUSIC COMPOSED BY HENRY LAHEE.
Price 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE WATER-FAIRIES
A CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES
Poetry written by EDWARD OXENFORD
MUSIC COMPOSED BY
FRANZ ABT.
Price 2s. 6d.
LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

JUST PUBLISHED.
BOOK 2.
COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SINGING MANUAL,
CONTAINING
50 FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS, CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.
PRICE ONE SHILLING.
A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.
London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

THE
LIFE OF MOZART,
INCLUDING HIS CORRESPONDENCE,
BY EDWARD HOLMES.
A new Edition, with Notes, by EBENEZER PROUT.
Cloth, Five Shillings.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now Ready, in 8vo, price 3s. 6d.,
PART V. OF
A DICTIONARY OF MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.
EDITED BY GEORGE GROVE, D.C.L.
(Ferrarese del Bene to Guitar.)
London: MACMILLAN and Co.

POLYEUCTE
OPERA IN FIVE ACTS
WRITTEN BY
JULES BARBIER & MICHEL CARRÉ.
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
CH. GOUNOD.

	s.	d.
VOCAL SCORE ... ... Net	21	0
THE COMPLETE OPERA, ARRANGED FOR PIANO SOLO ... ... „	10	6

SEPARATE MOVEMENTS.

OVERTURE (Solo)	4	0
No. 6. CHORUS, "Que le myrte et la rose," arranged for One Voice (Mezzo-Soprano)	4	0
„ 7. CAVATINA, "O dieux! O puissances" (Baritone) ...	5	0
„ 8. INVOCATION À VESTA (Soprano)	2	6
„ 9. GRAND DUO, "Pauline! dieux!" (Soprano and Baritone)	8	0
„ 11. BARCAROLE, "Nymphes attentives" (Tenor) ...	4	0
„ 15. CANTILÈNE, "Quoi c'est peu de perdre" (Baritone)	4	0
„ 20. STANCES, "Sources délicieuses" (Tenor)	4	0
„ 25. CREDO, "Je crois en un seul Dieu" (Tenor)	5	0

ARRANGEMENTS.
PIANO SOLO.

KETTEN, HENRY. Paraphrase	7	0
LACK, TH. Op. 32. Barcarole	4	0
— Op. 33. Divertissement sur le Ballet	6	0
MÉTRA, O. Valse	5	0
NEUSTEDT, CH. Op. 142. Fantaisie—Transcription ...	6	0
RUMMEL, J. Fantaisie	5	0

AIRS DE BALLET, arranged for PIANO.

	Solo.	Duet.
LEMOINE, L.
No. 1. Le Dieu Pan	4 0	6 0
„ 2. Bellone	5 0	6 0
„ 3. Vénus	6 0	7 0
„ 4. Bacchus	5 0	6 0
„ 5. Bacchanale	6 0	7 6

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A

MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

Choir-Trainers and Schoolmasters

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight in a comparatively short time.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT.

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Also an APPENDIX, containing faults in action with remedies. Price 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. Hemstock, Diss, Norfolk.

THE RUDIMENTS of MUSICAL THEORY.

By LOUISA CORRIE.

London: LAMBORN COCK, 63, New Bond Street, W.

THEORY of MUSIC.

A FIRST BOOK (7th Edition),

A SECOND BOOK,

A THIRD BOOK,

By LOUISA GIBSON,

Author of "The Class Singers' A B C." 6d. Highly recommended by Dr. Macfarren and the leading musicians of Great Britain.

London: WEEKES & Co.; NOVELLO, EWER & Co.; WHITTAKER & Co.

THE PIANIST'S PRACTICAL GUIDE to THEORETICAL KNOWLEDGE and MANUAL EXECUTION. By F. WEBER, Resident Organist, German Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. Third edition, 4s. net. "A work eminently calculated to improve the method of teaching the piano."—Daily News.

London: J. B. CRAMER; NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; SCHOTT and Co.; STANLEY LUCAS and Co.

ORATORIOS AND MASSES

ARRANGED FOR

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

	s.	d.
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	5	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	5	0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	2	6
MOZART'S SECOND MASS	3	0
MOZART'S SEVENTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S FIFTEENTH MASS (REQUIEM)	4	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, Mus. Doc., M.A.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

In Sol-fa Notation, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR SCHOOLS AND SINGING CLASSES.

Now Ready, 15th Edition, price 1s. 6d.

SILCHER'S MELODIES for YOUTH, containing Sixty Songs for two, three, and four equal voices, composed by SILCHER, and adapted to English words for the use of Schools and Singing-Classes, by FRANCIS L. SOPER.

"One of the best publications of its kind."—Athenæum.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., Stationers' Hall Court.

TRUTH AND EASE IN MUSIC. NO MORE SHARP OR FLAT KEYS FOR INSTRUMENTALIST OR VOCALIST.

Just published, price Sixpence, with illustrations, a new edition (1879) of

THE SEQUENTIAL SYSTEM OF MUSICAL NOTATION.

By WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

"Its completeness and simplicity, when once understood, should recommend it to universal adoption."—Blackburn Standard.

London: E. W. ALLEN, 11, Ave Maria Lane.

Now ready.

FOURTH EDITION, REVISED AND CORRECTED,

A TREATISE ON HARMONY

AND THE

CLASSIFICATION OF CHORDS

WITH

QUESTIONS AND EXERCISES FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS

BY

JOHN STAINER,

Mus. Doc., M.A.

CLOTH, SEVEN SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

(186 pp.)

MUSICAL FORMS

BY

ERNST PAUER.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.

PAPER BOARDS, 2s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

EDITED BY DR. STAINER.

SEVENTH THOUSAND

REVISED AND ENLARGED

THE

RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC

BY

W. H. CUMMINGS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

PAPER BOARDS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS BY JOHN HULLAH, LL.D.,

Professor in Queen's College and in Bedford College, London.

WILHEM'S MANUAL of SINGING for the use of Teachers and Pupils. Parts I. and II. Price 2s. 6d. each; or together in cloth, 5s.

EXERCISES and FIGURES contained in Parts I. and II. of the Manual, for the use of Pupils. Books I. and II. Price 8d each.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Figures in Part I. of the Manual. Nos I. to VIII. in a Parcel. Price 6s.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Exercises in Part I. of the Manual. Nos. IX. to XL. in Four Parcels of Eight Nos. each. Price 6s. per parcel.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Figures in Part II. of the Manual. Nos. XLI. to LII. in a Parcel. Price 9s.

TIME and TUNE in the ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, a New Method of Teaching Vocal Music. Price 2s. 6d.

EXERCISES and FIGURES contained in "Time and Tune," for the use of Pupils. Price 1s. sewed in paper, or 1s. 2d. limp cloth. To be had also in two Parts, Price 6d. each sewed in paper, or 8d. each in limp cloth.

CHROMATIC SCALE with the Inflected Syllables used in "Time and Tune," on a Double Sheet of Extra Medium paper, price 1s. 6d.

CARD of the CHROMATIC SCALE, with the Inflected Syllables used in "Time and Tune," price 1d.

NOTATION, the Musical Alphabet, 6d.

RUDIMENTS of MUSICAL GRAMMAR. Price 3s.

GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. Royal 8vo. Two Parts, price 1s. 6d. each.

EXERCISES to GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. Royal 8vo, price 1s.

GRAMMAR of COUNTERPOINT, Part I. Price 2s. 6d.

HYMNS for the YOUNG, New Edition, 8d.

SCHOOL SONGS for Two and Three VOICES. Two Books, 6d. each.

INFANT SCHOOL SONGS. Price 6d.

OLD ENGLISH SONGS for SCHOOLS. Harmonised, 6d.

EXERCISES for the CULTIVATION of the VOICE. 2s. 6d.

London: Longmans and Co.

COMPOSITIONS

BY ARTHUR O'LEARY.

VOCAL.

	s.	d.
SIX SONGS ... ... each	2	6
No. 1. I dream of thee | No. 4. Spring.
„ 2. Ask me not | „ 5. Silent evening.
„ 3. The return. | „ 6. The west wind.
He roamed in the forest (sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling)	3	0
Under the lilac (sung by Miss Mary Davies)	4	0
For Rosabelle (sung by Mr. Hilton)	3	0
Listening (Mezzo-soprano)	4	0

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

Berceuse	3	0
L'Adieu (Transcription)	3	0
Fête rustique	3	0
L'Adieu du Conscrit	4	0
Conte Mauresque	3	0
Fleurs et Pleurs	3	0
Chant des Sirènes	4	0
Scène de Chasse	3	0
Pastorale	3	0
Schumann's Fröhlicher Landmann (Transcription)	3	0
Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer" (Transcription)	3	0
Hymn (Flotow's "Stradella") (Transcription)	3	0
NATIONAL AIRS (TRANSCRIBED) ... ... each	2	0
No. 1. Polish Anthem. | No. 5. Polish Air.
„ 2. Danish Air. | „ 6. Austrian Hymn.
„ 3. Schleswig-Holstein Air. | „ 7. Greek Air.
„ 4. Russian Hymn.
Wayside Sketches (in Four Numbers) ... ... each	3	0
The Black Knight (Romance)	3	0
Morceau de Concert (There's nae luck). (Performed by Madame Arabella Goddard)	4	0
Where the bee sucks (Transcription)	3	0
The Diatonic and Chromatic Scales	6	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

FINE CABINET PORTRAITS of the following CELEBRATED COMPOSERS, One Shilling each:—

LORTZING.	SPOHR.	ABT.
HUMMEL.	MARSCHNER.	GLINKA.

Also, uniform with the above:—

PAGANINI. | MOZART'S SISTER. | A. V. HUMBOLDT.

Large Photo Portrait Groups, containing upwards of Eighty Portraits of Musical Celebrities, with key, from 3s.

Full length Steel Engraved Portraits, large size,

MOZART and BEETHOVEN,

12s. 6d.

To be had of all Musicsellers and Booksellers. Ask for complete list of Bruckmann's publications, or it will be sent on receipt of address.

London: H. Rothe, 11, King Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

SUITABLE FOR PRESENTS.

Augener & Co.'s Quarto Editions.

NEW ORGAN VOLUMES (in Blue Paper Covers).

	s.	d.
ANDRÉ, J.—Voluntaries for the Organ. Op. 65... ... net	3	0
BACH, J. S.—12 Preludes and Fugues. Edited by Scotson Clark ... ... net	3	0
CLARK, SCOTSON.—15 Marches (Marche aux Flambeaux, &c., &c.) Oblong ... ... net	4	0
—— 12 Choruses from Handel's Oratorios ... ... „	4	0
—— 12 Songs from Handel's Oratorios ... ... „	3	0
—— First Steps in Organ-Playing ... ... „	5	0
GLADSTONE, F. E.—The Organ Student's Guide ... „	4	0
—— Organ Music for Church Use ... ... „	3	0
PAUER, E.—March Album. A Collection of 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged by W. J. Westbrook ... ... net	4	0
RINCK, CH. H.—Organ Music. Selected, Edited, and Adapted to English Instruments, by F. E. Gladstone ... ... net	3	0

NEW HARMONIUM VOLUMES (in Blue Paper Covers).

CLARK, SCOTSON.—15 Marches for Harmonium solo (Marche aux Flambeaux, &c., &c.) ... ... net	3	0
—— Voluntaries for Harmonium solo ... ... „	3	0
—— First Steps in Harmonium Playing ... ... „	4	0
LÖW, JOS.—Harmonium Album. A Collection of 100 Favourite Songs and Airs, &c., arranged in progressive order. For Harmonium solo ... ... net	3	0
PAUER, E.—March Album, containing 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged for Piano and Harmonium by Jos. Löw ... ... net	5	0

E. PAUER'S FAVOURITE COLLECTIONS OF CLASSICAL PIANOFORTE MUSIC (Quarto size).

PAUER, E.—Old English Composers for the Virginals and Harpsichord. (William Byrde, Dr. John Bull, Orlando Gibbons, Dr. John Blow, Henry Purcell, and Dr. Thomas Augustine Arne.) Revised and Edited by E. Pauer. With portrait of Purcell, &c. (205 pp.) Elegantly bound net	10	6
—— Sunday Music. A Collection of Short Pieces, extracted from the Sacred, Vocal, and Instrumental Works of the most celebrated Composers. Selected, arranged for the Pianoforte, and Revised. With illustration, &c., &c. (170 pp.) In blue paper cover ... ... net	7	6
—— The same, elegantly bound ... ... „	10	6
—— The Classic Companion. A Collection of easy and moderately difficult Pieces from the Works of the most Celebrated Composers of the 17th and 18th Centuries. (229 pp.) Elegantly bound ... ... net	10	6
—— The Family Gift Book. A Collection of Pianoforte Pieces, comprising Christmas Music, Pastorals, Hunting Songs, Love Songs, Soldiers' and Sailors' Songs, Patriotic Hymns, National Melodies, Dances of the Olden Time, National Dances and Modern Dances, many of them composed for this work. With Illustrations. (475 pp.) Elegantly bound ... ... net	21	0
BACH, J. S.—The Children's Bach. 36 Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (Solos and Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. Pauer. With Portrait and Biography. Blue cover ... ... net	3	0
HANDEL.—The Children's Handel. 36 Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (Solos and Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. Pauer. With Portrait and Biography. Blue cover ... ... net	3	0

London: Augener and Co., 86, Newgate Street; Foubert's Place; and 81, Regent Street, W.

Price 1s. 6d. each, post-free.

THE COLLEGE MARCH, for Organ or Pianoforte. "Very playable, and would be effective on the organ."—Musical Standard.

LA BELLE. Valse Facile. "A well-written waltz, both as to melody and harmony. We recommend it for teaching purposes, as it is calculated to refine and improve the taste."—Musical Standard.

E. W. Taylor, Mus. B., L. Mus., &c., Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

ORGAN MUSIC.

STONE, J. T., Classical Organist. A SELECTION of celebrated COMPOSITIONS from the works of Handel, Mozart, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, &c., arranged from the Orchestral Scores for the Organ with pedal obbligato, six volumes, oblong folio, £1 10s. (published at £3 12s.), or separately, at 5s. 6d. per volume. A list of the Contents sent on application.

London: S. White, 38, Booksellers Row, Strand, W.C.

TO ORGANISTS.—New, Melodious, and Effective Voluntary for Easter and other Festivals, GRAND FESTIVAL MARCH for the ORGAN, By Ernest C. Winchester. 1s. 6d. net.

London: F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster Row, E.C.

NEW GRAND MARCH, "CHRISTIAN, THE PILGRIM," for organ or piano from Wilford Morgan's sacred Cantata, "Christian, the Pilgrim" (Fifth Edition), as played at Marlborough House, at the Alexandra and Crystal Palaces, and at the Brighton Festival, with the greatest success. Post-free, 2s. net. Morgan and Co., 18, Surrey Street, W.C.

THE

BACH CHOIR MAGAZINE

Select Vocal Part-Music of Different Schools.

Edited and marked for the use of the Bach Choir by

OTTO GOLDSCHMIDT.

Adoramus te. Motett	Palestrina	3d.
Jesu Dulcis. Motett	Vittoria
Presentation of Christ in the Temple. Motett, 6 voices	Eccard	6d.
Hodie Christus natus est. Christmas Motett, 2 choirs	Palestrina	6d.
Now is Christ risen. Choral-Motett, 5 voices	Michael Bach	3d.
Sanctus (Missa Papæ Marcelli)	Palestrina	6d.
Benedictus and Agnus Dei (Missa Papæ Marcelli)	Palestrina	6d.
Magnificat. 8 voices	Gabrieli	6d.
Now shall the grace. Double Chorus	J. S. Bach	8d.
Psalm xxiii. Solo Voices and Eight-part Chorus	L. Spohr	9d.
Adoramus te. Motett	Palestrina	4d.
O quam gloriosum. Motett	Vittoria
Sanctus	J. S. Bach	6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY

CAMILLE SAINT-SAËNS.

	s.	d.
Bénédiction nuptiale ... net	3	0
Elévation ou Communion ... „	2	3
Fantaisie ... „	3	9
Three Rhapsodies—No. 1. ... „	3	0
„ „ 2. ... „	3	0
„ „ 3. ... „	3	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW ORGAN MUSIC

BY

GUSTAV MERKEL.

OP. 122. TWO ANDANTES.

		s.	d.
No. 1. A flat. No. 2. A minor ...	each net	2	0

OP. 124. TWELVE FUGUES.

		s.	d.
Book I. ... net		3	6
Book II. ... „		4	0
In single Numbers ... each		1	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY

DIETRICH BUXTEHUDE

(1635—1707).

EDITED BY

PHILIPP SPITTA.

Containing Preludes and Fugues, Toccatas, Canzonettas, Chorales, &c.

Two Volumes ... each, net 24s.
Or Twelve Books ... each, 6s. to 10s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Reduced Price,

TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LEFÉBURE-WELY'S

OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN.

Or singly:—

1. Offertoire in B flat	1s. 0d.	4. Offertoire in G		1s.	9d.
2. „ F	1s. 6d.	5. „ A		1s.	0d.
3. „ C	1s. 0d.	6. „ E		1s.	6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SONATAS FOR THE ORGAN

BY

JOS. RHEINBERGER.

No. 1.	Op. 27.	C minor	4s.
„ 2.	„ 65.	A flat major	5s.
„ 3.	„ 88.	G major	5s.
„ 4.	„ 98.	A minor	6s.
„ 5.	„ 111.	F sharp major	6s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

COMPOSITIONS

BY OLIVER KING.

Berceuse, Méditation, et Valse	5s.
Legende	3s.
Impromptu-Caprice	3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS

FROM THE

GREAT MASTERS,

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN

With Pedal Obbligato by

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.

1. "Wedding March," by Mendelssohn.
2. March from "Tannhäuser," by Wagner.
3. March from "Scipio," also from Occasional Oratorio, both by Handel.
4. "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Prophète."
5. "The Dead March" in "Saul" and "See the conquering hero comes," both by Handel.
6. Andantino, from the 11th Grand Symphony by Haydn, and "Waft her, angels," from Handel's "Jephtha."
7. "As pants the hart," from Spohr's "Crucifixion," and "Where'er you walk," from Handel's "Semele."
8. "My heart ever faithful" (Mein gläubiges Herz frohlocket), by Bach.
9. Andantino from the 5th and Andante from the 4th Sonatas, by Pleyel.
10. "The Hero's March," by Mendelssohn.
11. "Quis est homo?" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
12. Air et Chœur, from "La Dame Blanche," by Boieldieu.
13. Grande Marche Héroïque in C, by Fr. Schubert.
14. Grande Marche Héroïque in D, by Fr. Schubert.
15. Overture, "Berenice," by Handel.
16. Overture, "Sosarmes," by Handel.
17. Handel's Overture, "Alcina."
18. Gavotte, from Handel's Overture, "Otho."
19. "La Carità," by Rossini.
20. "Angels ever bright and fair," and "Pious orgies," both by Handel.
21. "Ave Maria," by Franz Schubert.
22. Aria, by Antonio Lotti. Circa 1700.
23. "My soul thirsteth for God," Aria from Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm.
24. "Gloria in excelsis," from Weber's Mass in G.
25. "Fac ut portem," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
26. "Pietà, Signore," from the Oratorio "San Giovanni Battista," by Stradella.
27. Handel's Overture to "Julius Cæsar."
28. Serenade, by Franz Schubert.
29. Aria, by Cavaliere Gluck. 1765.
30. Aria, from "Alcina," by Handel.
31. Aria, from "Artaserse," by Leonardo Vinci. 1730.
32. Cantata, by Alessandro Scarlatti.
33. Aria, by Ch. Gluck. 1769.
34. Aria, by Domenico Cimarosa. 1784.
35. "Diedi il Coro," Aria by Handel.
36. Siciliana Long.
37. Andante.
38. Aria, by Padre Martini. 1763.

[Continuing.]

Price Two Shillings each.

Volume I., bound in cloth, containing 20 numbers of above, now ready.

London: B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row.

Price 5s., paper covers; or 7s. 6d., handsomely bound in scarlet cloth, gilt lettered, gilt bordered, and gilt edges.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST. New Edition, complete in One Volume. It contains 78 Voluntaries, all of which, except 4, were composed expressly for the work by nearly all the most eminent English musicians.

"Shows in an interesting manner the present state of musicianship in England."—Musical Times.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FIVE INTRODUCTORY VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN. Composed by T. Mee Pattison.

These Voluntaries, of medium difficulty, with Pedal Obbligato, will be found eminently useful for the introduction of Divine Service, both as regards character and length. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW AND CAREFULLY REVISED EDITIONS

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

LIEDER OHNE WORTE

Octavo, 160 pp., paper covers	4s.	0d.
„ „ cloth, gilt edges	6s.	0d.

CHEAP EDITION.

Octavo, 104 pp., paper covers	2s.	6d.
„ „ cloth, gilt edges	4s.	6d.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION

CONTAINING Books 7 and 8.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.		s.	d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper covers	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo ...	1	6
„	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK, containing 258 Tunes and 85 Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 1.	Limp cloth, turned in	2	6
„ 2.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3	6
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 3.	Limp cloth, turned in	2	0
„ 4.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2	6

About 250,000 copies have already been sold.

Now Ready.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK (Second Series) containing 298 Tunes and 74 Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 5.	Limp cloth	2	6
„ 6.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3	6
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 7.	Limp cloth	2	0
„ 8.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2	6
	FIRST AND SECOND SERIES BOUND TOGETHER.
No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
„ 10.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	5	0
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa, cloth	3	0

Now Ready.

SMALL EDITION OF THE COMPLETE WORK.

715 Tunes and Chants, providing for nearly 200 Varieties of Metre.

No. 11. Cloth 3 0

Each Edition may be had in Superior Binding.

Communications and inquiries as to Copyrights, and also as to supplies of this work at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; and all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Now Ready.

THE LONDON TUNE-BOOK. A Companion for all Hymnals. Cloth, 3s.; red edges, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Enlarged Edition.

TUNES, NEW AND OLD; comprising all the Metres in the Wesleyan Hymn-Book. Also, Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON; and for the most part revised or re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc.; JOHN FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon.; and SAMUEL REAY, Mus. Bac., Oxon. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, and 80 & 81, Queen Street. Sold also at 66, Paternoster Row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 5s. TONIC SOL-FA EDITION: plain cloth, 2s.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 3s.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in C), by EATON FANING. Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, 1878.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE BURNLEY TUNE-BOOK.—NOTICE.—An ADDENDA of nearly 500 Tunes, inclusive of all the old favourite and standard Tunes, will shortly be added, and every known metre will be provided for. MSS. received. Address, the Editor, Burnley.

Price (A) limp cloth, 1s. 4d.; (B) cloth boards, 1s. 6d.,

ALL SAINTS' PSALTER. Pointed by the Rev. C. A. STEVENS, M.A., Vicar of All Saints', Blackheath.

National Society's Depository, the Sanctuary, Westminster.

Reduced price to members and the clergy.

A MANUAL of CHURCH MUSIC, containing Two Chant Services for Te Deum, Benedicite Omnia Opera, 50 new Single and Double Chants in related keys (with 20 pages of ruled paper), and 12 kyries, by A. HARVEY, Principal of Handel College, Southampton. Cloth, red edges. Price 1s. 6d., post free. "This New Manual will be generally welcome to the Choir Library."—Hereford Times, Jan. 11th, 1879.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH.—TE DEUM in F, Threepence. SOUTHWELL SCHOOL SONGS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE MORNING SERVICE. Set to music in the key of C, by EDWIN J. CROW, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist and Choirmaster of Ripon Cathedral. Octavo. One Shilling and sixpence. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; or direct from the Author.

EASY and EFFECTIVE TE DEUMS for Parish Choirs, by ALFRED J. DYE. In E flat, price 3d.; organ copy, 6d.; and in D, price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in E flat. By ARTHUR E. DYER, Mus. Bac. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT & NUNC DIMITTIS,

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF A

BY

B. LUARD SELBY.

Octavo, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE

OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION

Set to Music in the Key of E Flat

BY

ALFRED J. EYRE,

Price One Shilling.

The "BENEDICTUS QUI VENIT" and "AGNUS DEI" can be had separately, price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

MISSA SERAPHICA. The Office of Holy Communion (complete). Set to original music by ARTHUR H. BROWN. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE NICENE CREED. 8vo, score ... 3d.

Twelve Kyries	6d.
Eleven Offertory Sentences	4d.
Anthem—"The Lord is my Shepherd"	4d.
Anthem—"Let not your heart be troubled" (arrangement) ...	4d.
Tunes, set to popular Hymns, and Chants. Books 1 and 2, each	4d.

By CHARLES SWAIN, Stockport.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE NICENE CREED.

THE NICENE CREED, principally from Ancient Sources, in Unison. With Organ Accompaniment. By Sir JOHN GOSS. 8vo, 3d.; Voice Part, 1d.

THE NICENE CREED, composed by MERBECKE. With Organ Accompaniment arranged by JOHN STAINER. Folio, 6d.; Unison copy, 1d.

THE NICENE CREED, composed by MERBECKE. With Organ Accompaniment arranged by JOSEPH BARNBY. 8vo, 1½d.

THE NICENE CREED, for Four Voices, or for Voices in Unison. With Organ Accompaniment. By JOHN STAINER. Folio, 6d.; without Accompaniment, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper covers, 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Fourteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper covers; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small Edition is in preparation.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

No. 1. Let your light so shine.	13. Charge them who are rich.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	14. God is not unrighteous.
3. Whatsoever ye would that men.	15. To do good.
4. Not every one that saith unto Me.	16. Whoso hath this world's goods.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
7. If we have sown.	19. He that hath pity upon the poor.
8. Do ye not know.	20. Blessed be the man.
9. He that soweth little.	21. Let your light so shine. Festal Setting.
10. Let him that is taught in the word.
11. While we have time.
12. Godliness is great riches.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PAROCHIAL ANTHEMS, by T. MEE PATTISON.

O PRAISE THE LORD (Chorus, Duet for Two Trebles, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NULLA SILENTIUM.—Latin Hymn, in Vocal Score. 3d. By LOUISA F. ESSINGTON. C. Lonsdale, 26, Old Bond Street.

Just published.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES.

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. T. FIELD.

1. Let your light so shine.	11. While we have time.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	12. Godliness is great riches.
3. Whatsoever ye would.	13. Charge them who are rich.
4. Not every one.	14. God is not unrighteous.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	15. To do good.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	16. Whoso hath this world's good.
7. If we have sown.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
8. Do ye not know.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
9. He that soweth little.	19. He that hath pity.
10. Let him that is taught.	20. Blessed be the man.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Edition.

THE OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION, viz.: Kyrie, Creed, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in Excelsis. Set to music (chiefly in unison) by FREDERICK CAMBRIDGE. 8vo, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY SOUL TRULY WAITETH STILL UPON GOD. Anthem for Four Voices. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d.; octavo, 4d.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD. Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 2s. 6d.; octavo, 8d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM (New).—"O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS," W. H. WILSON. Solo, Quartett, and Chorus. (Time of performance, six minutes.) Suitable for Festival or Dedication Services. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 2d.

CHRIST OUR PASSOVER. Easy ANTHEM for EASTER. By JAMES VAUGHAN. Composer of "Why seek ye the living among the dead," "Te Deum in D," &c.

London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster Row.

Just published, price 3d. "Easy and Effective."

ANTHEM, "GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH." Composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by FRANK BATES, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Baldred's Episcopal Church, North Berwick, N.B. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 6, Quality Street, North Berwick, N.B.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready, 8vo, price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED. Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ANTHEM FOR LENT.

BOW DOWN THINE EAR, O LORD

Composed by J. J. SIMPSON,

FOR PAROCHIAL CHOIRS.

"Short, easy, and effective." 8vo. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST'S

EASY CHURCH MUSIC.

Composed expressly for Parish Choirs.

Almighty God, give us grace	Anthem	2d.
Almighty and everlasting God	,,	2d.
And I will pray the Father	,,	2d.
God is gone up	,,	2d.
Hear my prayer	,,	2d.
He shall be great	,,	3d.
Like as Christ was raised up	,,	3d.
Thou visitest the earth	,,	3d.
The Offertory Sentences (complete)		4d.
Te Deum Laudamus, in G major		3d.
Morning Service, in C major		4d.
Communion Service, ditto		6d.
Evening Service, ditto		2d.
Complete Service, ditto		1s.
Ten Kyries and Glorias before and after Gospel		3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 73, Farleigh Road, Stoke Newington, N.

Now Ready. Small 4to, price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal Parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE

CANTICLES AND HYMNS

OF THE CHURCH,

POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS, SINGLE AND DOUBLE,

TOGETHER WITH

RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS,

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

NOVELLO'S

PARISH CHOIR-BOOK,

A COLLECTION OF MUSIC FOR THE SERVICE OF THE CHURCH,

By MODERN COMPOSERS.

Published under the Patronage of the Ely Diocesan Church Music Society.

No.			Price
5.	ALLEN, G. B., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
14.	ARMES, Dr. P., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
16.	ARNOLD, Dr. G. B., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
3.	BARNBY, J., in D (Unison)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
4.	BARNBY, J., in B flat (Do.)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
	Voice part only, octavo post, 1½d.
35.	BARRETT, E. R., in E flat	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
18.	BEST, W. T., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
9.	CALKIN, J. B., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
30.	CHIPP, Dr. E. T., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
12.	CLARKE, J. H., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
26.	DYKES, Rev. J. B., M.A., Mus. Doc., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
31.	ELLIOTT, J. W., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
36.	GADSBY, H., in E flat	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
6.	GARRETT, Dr. G. M., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
10.	HAKING, R., in C (Chant form)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
22.	HERBERT, E., Mus. Bac., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
15.	HOPKINS, J. L., Mus. Bac., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
29.	IRONS, H. S., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
	Voice part only, octavo post, 1½d.
27.	LITTLETON, A. H., in E flat	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
17.	MACFARREN, WALTER, in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
8.	MACFARREN, G. A., in G (Uni.)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
7.	MONK, Dr. E. G., in A (Unison)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
13.	MONK, W. H., in A	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
34.	MORLEY, THOMAS, in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
25.	NUNN, I. H., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
11.	OUSELEY, Rev. Sir F., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
33.	REAY, SAMUEL, in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
28.	REDHEAD, R., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
32.	SMART, HENRY, in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
19.	STAINER, Dr. J., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
1.	STEGGALL, Dr. C., in A	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
24.	STEPHENS, C. E., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
21.	STEWART, Sir R. P., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
2.	SULLIVAN, A. S., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
20.	THORNE, E. H., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
23.	TILLEARD, JAMES, in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
37.	WOODWARD, Rev. H. H., in E flat	Te Deum laudamus	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CONGREGATIONAL PSALMIST.—Edited by HENRY ALLON, D.D., and H. J. GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc. Providing Tunes, Chants, and Anthems, by the best Composers, Ancient and Modern. More than a Quarter of a Million of the various editions have been sold. List on application.

CHURCH ANTHEMS, &c. Edited by HENRY ALLON, D.D. Containing One Hundred and Fifteen Anthems for Congregational Use. Crown 8vo, cloth, 3s.; crown 8vo, roan, 3s. 6d.; Cheap Edition, limp cloth, 1s. 4d.; stiff cloth, 1s. 8d.

"Dr. Allon has done so much to promote an intelligent use of sacred music in Divine worship that we gladly call attention to his last, and as we think, most wise effort in the same direction. Having issued in the 'Congregational Psalmist' a valuable series of hymn tunes, chants, kyries, &c., he has now published in a little pocket volume a collection of anthems intended for the use of the congregation, and not simply for the choir. The pieces, as a rule, require, in singing, a degree of musical culture somewhat greater than that required by chorales and chants, but they are, on the whole, within the reach of persons possessing a practical acquaintance with the art of sight-singing."—The Choir.

London: HODDER and STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster Row.

MILES BENNETT'S SACRED SONGS (for Contralto or Mezzo-Soprano Voices).

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. (Words from Psalm xxiii.)	3s.
GRATITUDE. (Words from Psalm cxvi.)	4s.
I WAITED PATIENTLY FOR THE LORD. (Words from Psalm xl.)	4s.
CONSOLATION	3s.

"Good sacred songs are certainly rarely to be met with; but we are able confidently to recommend each of the above to every true musician."—Church Bells.

"Mr. Bennett has given a sacred character to his music in excellent sympathy with the words he has selected; and we cannot too much commend the musician-like manner in which the whole of the accompaniments are written."—Musical Times.

"The accompaniment is no less interesting than the voice part, and the combined result is very superior to the so-called sacred songs of Miss Lindsay and others of the same school."—Liverpool Daily Courier.

Sent post-free for half-price in stamps.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
THREE SONGS, Op. 17. The Poetry by Christina Rossetti.
No. 1. The first spring-day	3	0
„ 2. When I am dead	3	0
„ 3. A birthday	3	0
The song of love and death. From Tennyson's "Idylls of the King"	3	0
In our boat. The poetry by Miss Muloch	4	0
While my lady sleepeth. Serenade. The words translated from the Spanish by J. G. Lockhart	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper covers. 32mo	0	3
Canticles, 32mo	0	1
Ditto, 8vo	0	3
The Psalter, with Chants, Post Quarto, cloth	5	0

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post Quarto, paper covers	2	0
Ditto, cloth	3	0
Foolscap Quarto, paper covers	1	0
Ditto, cloth	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION.

THE CHORUSES

OF THE

Oratorios, Cantatas, &c.

In Vocal Score, without Accompaniment, especially for the use of CHORAL SOCIETIES.

	s.	d.
BACH'S PASSION (St. Matthew)	1	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	0	8
„ JUDAS MACCABÆUS	0	8
„ SAMSON	0	8
„ HERCULES	1	0
HAYDN'S CREATION	0	8
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	1	6
„ ST. PAUL	1	0
„ HYMN OF PRAISE	0	6
BENNETT'S MAY QUEEN	1	0
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER	0	6
MACFARREN'S MAY DAY	0	8

(To be continued.)

ALL THE ABOVE WORKS MAY BE HAD IN PAPER BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

BOSTON, NEW YORK, AND PHILADELPHIA: DITSON AND CO.

MENDELSSOHN'S

SIX SONATAS

AND

THREE PRELUDES AND FUGUES

Composed for the Organ.

Op. 65 and 37.

EDITED BY W. T. BEST.

In One Volume, cloth, 10s. 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE

MORNING & EVENING SERVICE

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF A

BY

DR. WILLIAM CROFT

AND

DR. STEPHEN ELVEY

Edited by George C. Martin,
Sub-Organist, St. Paul's Cathedral.

Price Two Shillings; or, singly:—

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS	6d.
JUBILATE DEO	4d.
KYRIE ELEISON. NICENE CREED. SANCTUS	6d.
MAGNIFICAT	4d.
NUNC DIMITTIS	3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.
JUST PUBLISHED.

MENDELSSOHN'S OVERTURES

In One Volume, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges.

Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 10.	Marriage of Camacho.	Op. 36.	St. Paul.
„ 21.	Midsummer Night's Dream.	„ 60.	Walpurgis Night.
		„ 70.	Elijah.
„ 24.	Military Band.	„ 74.	Athalie.
„ 26.	Hebrides.	„ 89.	Son and Stranger.
„ 27.	A Calm Sea.	„ 95.	Ruy Blas.
„ 32.	Melusine.	„ 101.	Trumpet.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.
JUST PUBLISHED.

MENDELSSOHN'S SYMPHONIES

In One Volume, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges.

Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 11.	First Symphony.
„ 52.	Second Symphony (Lobgesang).
„ 56.	Third Symphony (Scotch).
„ 90.	Fourth Symphony (Italian).
„ 107.	Fifth Symphony (Reformation).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO'S

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES,

TRANSLATED AND EDITED BY

W. G. McNAUGHT.

ANTHEMS, CHORUSES, PART-SONGS, &c.

Nos. 1 to 98 now ready.

		s.	d.
ATHALIE	Mendelssohn	1	0
CHRISTUS	Mendelssohn	0	6
CRUSADERS	Niels W. Gade	1	0
ELIJAH	Mendelssohn	1	6
ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER	Niels W. Gade	0	9
HEAR MY PRAYER	Mendelssohn	0	3
HYMN OF PRAISE (Lobgesang)	Mendelssohn	1	0
LAST JUDGMENT	Spohr	1	0
LAUDA SION (" Praise Jehovah ")	Mendelssohn	0	9
LORD, HOW LONG WILT THOU FORGET ME (Psalm xiii)	Mendelssohn	0	4
LORELEY	Mendelssohn	0	6
MAY QUEEN	Sir W. S. Bennett	1	0
SONG FOR THE NEW YEAR	Schumann	0	6

Complete lists sent free on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S CATALOGUE of NEW MUSIC, gratis and post-free, of Pianoforte Music (new issue).

Green Catalogue (for Teachers).
Vocal Catalogue (new issue).
Part Music (Vocal).
Violin Music.
Flute Music.
Organ Music.
Dance Music.
Latest Novelties.
Violoncello Music.

JOY BELLS. New Song. Written by AGNES M. LIMPUS. Music by HENRY F. LIMPUS. 3s.; post-free at half-price.

AY OR NO? New Song. Music composed by F. H. COWEN, in D and F. 4s., post-free 24 stamps each. "One of the prettiest barcaroles we have seen for a long time; it is a light and graceful expression of perfect happiness."—Vide the Orchestra.

STEERING. New Song. Composed by F. H. COWEN, in E flat and D. 4s., post-free 24 stamps each. "A good song, with pleasing melody, on the approved model, which seems likely to be all-enduring."—Vide the Orchestra.

MY QUEEN OF HEARTS. New Song. Written and adapted by COTSFORD DICK. 3s.; post-free at half-price.

MY WORLD. New Song. Written by C. J. ROWE. Music by J. V. ROBERTS, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 3s. Also, by the same Composer, "I'm thinking of the past." Words by L. M. THORNTON. 3s.; both free by post at half-price.

UNFORGOTTEN DAYS. New Song. Written by EDWARD OXENFORD. Music by J. L. ROECKEL. 3s. Also, by the same Author and Composer, "So far away." 3s.; both free by post at half-price.

SOFT STAR OF THE WEST. Song. Written by Mrs. HEMANS. The music composed by CIRO PINSUTI. 3s.; post-free at half-price in stamps. "The melody of this song being especially adapted to be sung in unison by a number of voices, it is particularly recommended for schools of every class where vocal music is practised."—Ciro Pinsuti.

FAIR INEZ. New Song. By Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). In G and A, 4s. each; post-free at half-price.

ERE THE ROSES CEASE TO BLOOM. New Song. Written by M. MARK LEMON. Music by ODOARDO BARRI. 3s.; post-free at half-price.

PART-SONGS in the Old Notation, as also in the Tonic Sol-fa Notation, containing many copyright themes. A list of the series post-free on application to Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington Street.

GEORGE FREDERICK WEST'S QUESTIONS on the THEORY of MUSIC. 22nd Edition. 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d. "Thousands of music teachers will hail this little catechism with joy, because it will materially lighten the labour of teaching."—Vide Weekly Times.

EARLY FLOW'RETS.—Popular Copyright Melodies, arranged and fingered in the most familiar style for the Pianoforte, by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. 25 Numbers, 1s. each; post-free at half-price.

HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANOFORTE. 1218th Edition. 4s.; free for 28 stamps. It is unapproached by anything of the kind that has hitherto been produced."—Oriental Circular. Appendix to ditto, by GEORGE FREDERICK WEST, 5s. London: Robert Cocks and Co., Publishers to Her most Gracious Majesty The Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, New Burlington Street. Order everywhere.

POPULAR FOUR-PART SONGS BY GABRIEL DAVIS.

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN ... ... 2d.
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE (14th Edition) ... 2d.
THE DISTANT SEA ... ... 2d.
TO THE WOODS ... ... 2d.
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC ... ... 2d.
THE HOUR OF REST ... ... 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 2d.,

DAME WIGGINS OF LEE

HUMOROUS PART-SONG.

COMPOSED BY

GABRIEL DAVIS.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.—Reduced Prices.

Choral Songs for School & Home.

FORTY-TWO ORIGINAL SONGS
FOR ONE, TWO, OR FOUR VOICES.

COMPOSED BY ROBERT JACKSON.

Cloth, complete, 2s. 6d.; Parts I. and II., paper cover, 1s. each; Single Numbers, 1d.

From Concordia.

"This little book is designed for singing-classes in schools, and the simplicity, tunefulness, and attractiveness of the small compositions it contains eminently adapt it for such a purpose."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD TOURS. In one volume, Cloth, gilt, price 5s.; or in two parts, in Paper covers, 2s. each; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d. each.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, without accompaniment. Price, in Paper covers, 1s.; in Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; or twelve numbers divided as follows, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 41.
1. In the woods ... ...
2. O fly with me ... ...
3. One night there came ...
4. Over the grave ... ...
5. May song ... ...
6. On the sea ... ...

Op. 48.
7. The first day of Spring ...
8. The primrose ... ...
9. The celebration of Spring
10. The lark's song ... ...
11. Morning Prayer (The deep repose of night) ...
12. Autumn song ... ...

Op. 59.
13. The woods ... ...
14. Early Spring ... ...
15. Departure (O hills, O vales)
16. The nightingale ... ...
17. The vale of rest ... ...
18. Hunting song ... ...

Op. 88.
19. For the New Year ...
20. The happy lover ... ...
21. The shepherd's song ...
22. The wood minstrels ...
23. The victors' return ...
24. The wandering minstrel...

Op. 100.
25. Remembrance ... ...
26. Praise of Spring ... ...
27. Spring song ... ...
28. In the forest ... ...

* A Tonic Sol-fa Edition of the above Songs (for S.A.T.B.) is in preparation.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, with ad lib. Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d; or twenty-one numbers, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 50.
29. Turkish drinking song.
30. The hunter's farewell.
31. Summer song.
32. On the water.
33. Love and wine.
34. Wanderer's song.

Op. 75.
35. The merry wayfarer.
36. Serenade.
37. Eastern drinking song.
38. Farewell meeting.

Op. 76.
39. Song of the worthy man.
40. The Rhine.
41. 'Tis the song whose spirit.
42. Students' parting song.

Op. 120.
43. A festal greeting.
44. Gipsy song.
45. Hunting song (Waken, lords).
46. Land of beauty.
47. The recompense.
48. Night song.
49. The foundation-day festival.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Novello, Ewer and Co.'s only Complete and Uniform Edition of MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the Original Words. Octavo, One Shilling; or cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English Words. Octavo. Paper covers, 2s.; cloth, gilt edges, 4s.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the Original Words. Folio Edition, complete, 2s. 6d.; or singly, 1s. 6d. each, net.

1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from Ruy Blas.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The only complete Edition.

MENDELSSOHN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS. Complete in Five Vols. Octavo, paper cover, 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, 6s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MENDELSSOHN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS. Vol. V. Octavo. Paper cover, 4s.; cloth gilt, 6s.

CONTENTS.

Three Preludes. Op. 104 A.
" Studies. Op. 104 B.
Sonata. Op. 105.
" Op. 106.
Album Blatt. Op. 117.
Capriccio. Op. 118.
Perpetuum Mobile. Op. 119.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

"SWALLOW SONG," from Tennyson's Princess; also "SPRING-EVENING" (Frühlingsabend), and "THE SUNNY SOUTH" (Sehnsucht); with English and German words. Composed by Sir HERBERT OAKELEY for Edinburgh Orchestral Festival, 1879. Price respectively 4s., 3s., and 4s. Forsyth Brothers, 172A, Regent Circus, London; and South King Street, Manchester.

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

SONGS FOR SAILORS

WRITTEN BY

W. C. BENNETT,

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. L. HATTON.

ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO, CONTAINING

FORTY SONGS:

Trafalgar.
Would you be a sailor's wife?
A fisher-wife's song.
Nay, never cry, lass.
A kiss to take to sea.
Homeward bound.
The Nile.
The apparition.
The Dutchman's broom.
Take me, lass, for life.
The fine old English admiral.
Ring, happy bells.
The forsaken.
The sailor's dream.
To sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.
A thousand leagues away.
Strike, and strike hard.
Were I that gull.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.
Saturday night at sea.
Duncan at Camperdown.
Rum.
Rodney and De Grasse.
From sea.
A wife's song.
The winds, inconstant ever.
Old Benbow.
There's nothing like a smoke.
The seaboy's dream.
A song of the sea.
The wife for a British sailor.
We roam and rule the sea.
The homeward watch.
Off to sea.
A mother's song.
Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
A Christmas song.
Outward bound.
Herrings are in the bay.

With Illustrated Cover and Engraved Portrait of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

	s.	d.
A name in the sand	4	0
O mother dear, good night	2	6
O say not woman's love is bought	2	6
A wish	2	6
How shall I picture thee, ladye fair?	3	0
Solitude	4	0
Stars of the summer night	4	0

(Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves.)

The sea hath its pearls	3	0
To Blossoms	3	0
Tears of childhood	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THREE SONGS.

"ROSAMOND'S EPITAPH;" "ON THE WATER;" "PRAYER."

COMPOSED BY

FREDERICK CORDER.

Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOURTEEN SONGS

SET TO

POEMS OF ROBERT BURNS,

BY ROBERT FRANZ.

EDITED AND ADAPTED BY NATALIA MACFARREN.

Paper covers, 2s. 6d.

CONTENTS.

Twa sweet e'en.
My bonny Mary.
Oh! wert thou in the frozen blast.
My heart is sair.
The Highland lassie.
The lovely lass of Inverness.
Phillis the fair.
Ye banks and braes.
Altho' my bed were in yon moor.
Thou hast left me ever, Jamie.
How can my heart be glad.
So far away.
My love is like a red, red rose.
My heart's in the Highlands.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

"TO A SLEEPING CHILD."

8vo. 2d.

New Part-Song by WILLIAM J. YOUNG,

Composer of Popular Part-Songs.

I love the merry spring-time	20th Edition	2d.
Gaily through the greenwood	29th "	2d.
The coming of spring	3rd "	3d.
England's glory	3rd "	3d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow	7th "	3d.
Fairy revels	9th "	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY CHLORIS, MARK HOW GREEN THE GROVES. Quartett. The Poetry by ROBERT BURNS. The Music by JOHN BULMER. Octavo, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW SONG. "WINTER." Music by E. BUNNETT, Mus. Doc. Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 2s. net.

NEW SONG,

THE ZINGARA.

Written and composed by GABRIEL DAVIS.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SIX FOUR-PART SONGS

BY

SEYMOUR J. G. EGERTON.

Spring's approach	3d.
Wild rose	3d.
In the woods	3d.
The rose and the soul	1½d.
Adieu to the woods	3d.
King Winter	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SPECIAL PRIZE GLEE.

"Humpty Dumpty" ... 6d.

"Jack and Jill" ... 4d.
"Yule" ... 4d.

Post-free of the Composer, ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Worcester.

In the Press, "Little Jack Horner."

HUMPTY DUMPTY AND JACK AND JILL,

BY

A. J. CALDICOTT.

These popular glees are now published in TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Price 1½d. each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

BEETHOVEN'S ELEGY

"MEEK, AS THOU LIVEDST, HAST THOU DEPARTED."

Octavo, 2d.

"A CALM SEA AND A PROSPEROUS VOYAGE."

CHORUS FOR FOUR VOICES.

Octavo, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RAMEAU'S GAVOTTE

TRANSCRIBED FOR THE PIANOFORTE

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

Three Shillings.

String Parts, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWO SETS OF

SIXTY VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED FOR

THE HARMONIUM

BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

Price One Shilling each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published. Price 10s. 6d.

SUITE

PRELUDE, MAZURKA, SCHERZO, AND MARCH FOR PIANOFORTE,

COMPOSED BY

AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

Op. 22.

Or singly:—

No. 1. Prelude ... ... 3s. | No. 3. Scherzo ... ... 4s.
„ 2. Mazurka ... ... 3s. | „ 4. March ... ... 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

AIR by Mozart's Son. Arranged for Pianoforte by C. A. CASPAR. Excellent reviews of this charming little composition have appeared in the principal newspapers. Price 3s.; post-free 18 stamps.

Birmingham: H. BERESFORD, 206, Bristol Street.

TECHNICAL VIOLIN SCHOOL

INTRODUCED INTO THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC AT LEIPZIG

BY

HENRY SCHRADIECK.

PART I. s. d.
Exercises to increase the Firmness in the Different Positions ... 7 0

PART II.
Exercises of Double Stopping 4 0

PART III.
Exercises in the Different Modes of Bowing 5 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MARCH BY GOUNOD.

MARCHE SOLENNELLE

Composed for Full Orchestra

BY

CH. GOUNOD.

TRANSCRIPTION FOR PIANOFORTE ... ... Solo 4s.
Do. Do. ... ... Duet 5s.
Do. ORGAN ... ... 3s.
Do. HARMONIUM and PIANOFORTE 5s.

Orchestral Parts, 6s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE BY LISZT.

ROSE, SOFTLY BLOOMING

ROMANCE

BY L. SPOHR.

TRANSCRIBED FOR THE PIANOFORTE BY

FRANZ LISZT.

Price Three Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM ACCOMPANIMENTS.

To obviate the difficulty frequently experienced by Country Choral Societies, many of which are unable to procure the assistance of an orchestra for the performance of complete works, Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co. contemplate publishing an arrangement of the Orchestral Accompaniments of many popular works for Pianoforte and Harmonium.

The following are now ready:—

Sterndale Bennett's May Queen,

arranged by J. LEMMENS, folio, paper covers, price 7s. 6d.

Rossini's Stabat Mater,

arranged by J. LEMMENS, folio, paper covers, price 6s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EDITION, EDITED BY HENRY LESLIE.

SWEET HONEY-SUCKING BEES

MADRIGAL FOR FIVE VOICES

BY JOHN WILBYE.

Octavo, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE YOUNG PIANIST'S GUIDE

BY

HEINRICH WOLFAHRT.

Twelfth Edition, containing 206 Exercises. The English translation by ARTHUR O'LEARY.

Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MOZART'S REQUIEM.

Will be Published immediately.

THE STORY OF MOZART'S REQUIEM

Carefully compiled from the best and most authentic Sources,

BY WM. POLE, F.R.S., MUS. DOC.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

This immortal work, independently of its value as a musical composition, has great interest on account of its very remarkable history. The mysterious commission given for it, the supernatural impression made by this on Mozart, his composition of the work under such pathetic circumstances, partly on his deathbed, the difficulties as to its publication, the fierce controversy as to its authorship, which for fourteen years engaged the attention of some of the most learned men and profound musicians of Europe, the extraordinary disappearance and long concealment of the manuscripts, their ultimate discovery, the difficult and perplexing questions as to their genuineness, the strange revelations gradually made as to the secret history of the various transactions, and the doubts which, after all possible information has been obtained, still hang over the authorship of some parts of the work; all these things, spread over seventy or eighty years, form a story of unparalleled interest in the annals of music.

The object of the present essay is to tell this story, which is hitherto but little known in England; and it will form, it is hoped, an appropriate companion to the various editions of the "Requiem," published by Messrs. Novello and Co.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

MOZART'S REQUIEM

Edited, and the Pianoforte Accompaniment arranged, by

W. T. BEST.

To which is now added a Preface, by WM. POLE, F.R.S., Mus. Doc., giving a brief historical notice of the work, and describing the evidence as to Mozart's part in the composition.

Paper covers, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

THE LAY OF THE BELL

BY

ANDREAS ROMBERG.

ONE SHILLING.

Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PRICE SIX SHILLINGS.

J. S. BACH'S

FORTY-EIGHT PRELUDES & FUGUES

IN ALL THE MAJOR AND MINOR KEYS

("The Well-Tempered Clavichord").

Edited and collated with all former editions of the work by

W. T. BEST.

Complete in One Volume, folio, 200 pp.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION

OF THE

Oratorios, Cantatas, Masses, &c.

	s.	d.
ASTORGA.
Stabat Mater	1	0
ARMES.
Hezekiah	2	6
BACH.
God goeth up	1	0
BEETHOVEN.
Mass in C. Latin words only, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by Berthold Tours	1	0
Mount of Olives	1	0
Ruins of Athens	1	6
BENNETT.
May Queen	3	0
BRAHMS.
Song of Destiny	1	0
BRIDGE.
Mount Moriah	3	0
CHERUBINI.
Third Mass (Coronation)	1	0
COSTA.
The Dream	1	0
CROTCH.
Palestine	3	0
GADE.
Crusaders	2	0
Comala	2	0
Zion	1	6
Erl-King's Daughter	1	6
Spring's Message	0	8
GADSBY.
Alcestis	4	0
Lord of the Isles	4	0
GRAUN.
Passion of our Lord (Der Tod Jesu)	2	0
Te Deum	2	0
HANDEL.
Sixth Chandos Anthem	1	0
Semele	3	0
The Passion	3	0
Triumph of Time and Truth	3	0
Hercules	3	0
Athaliah	3	0
HAYDN.
1st Mass, 2nd Mass } Latin words only, and new Pianoforte Accompaniment by Berthold Tours	1	0
	1	0
HUMMEL.
1st Mass, 2nd Mass, 3rd Mass } Latin words only, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by Berthold Tours	1	6
	1	6
	1	6
MEYERBEER.
Ninety-First Psalm { Latin words	1	0
Ninety-First Psalm { English words	1	0
MOZART.
Requiem. Latin words only, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by W. T. Best	1	0
PERGOLESI.
Stabat Mater	1	0
ROSSINI.
Moses in Egypt	6	0
SCHUBERT.
Song of Miriam	1	0
SCHUMANN.
New Year's Song	1	0
Advent Hymn—"In lowly guise"	1	0
STAINER.
Daughter of Jairus	1	6
VAN BREE.
St. Cecilia's Day	1	6
WEBER.
Jubilee Cantata	1	0
WESLEY.
O Lord, Thou art my God	1	0

The above may be had in Paper Boards, cloth backs, at 6d. each extra. Also in cloth, gilt edges, at 1s. 6d. or 2s. each extra.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Boston, New York, and Philadelphia: Ditson and Co.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES

No.
	BARNBY'S "REBEKAH."
626.	Lo! day's golden glory	8d.
627.	Who shall be fleetest?	1½d.
628.	Fear or doubting	3d.
629.	Protect them, Almighty	6d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S "LAUDA SION."
630.	Praise Jehovah	4d.
631.	By His care	2d.
632.	Sing of judgment	2d.
633.	Ye who from His ways	3d.
634.	They that in much tribulation	2d.
635.	Save the people	6d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S "ATHALIE."
636.	Heaven and the earth display	8d.
637.	Ever blessed child rejoice	3d.
638.	Lord, let us hear Thy voice	2d.
639.	Depart, ye sons of Aaron	2d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S "MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM."
640.	You spotted snakes	4d.
641.	Through the house	3d.
	WEBER'S MASS IN E FLAT.
642.	Kyrie—Merciful and gracious Lord	3d.
643.	Gloria—Glory be unto God	4d.
644.	Credo—Praise the Lord	4d.
645.	Agnus Dei and Dona nobis—Lord, we pray Thee	2d.
	MENDELSSOHN'S 95TH PSALM.
646.	For His is the sea (New Final Chorus)	4d.
	GADE'S "ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER."
647.	At eve, Sir Oluf reined up his steed	2d.
648.	The sun now mounts	1½d.
	GADE'S "ZION."
649.	Hear, O my flock	2d.
650.	The departure from Egypt / The Lord hath in Egypt	3d.
651.	The captivity in Babylon / But then His flock forsook	6d.
652.	The return—Prophecy of the new Jerusalem / Yet merciful and tender is the Lord	6d.
	GADE'S "CRUSADERS."
653.	Flame-like the sand-waste glows	2d.
654.	Crusader's song (Shine, holy sun)	4d.
655.	Father! from a distant land
656.	Silent, creeping so light	2d.
657.	The wave sweeps my breast (S.A.)	3d.
658.	The welcome sun	2d.
659.	Pilgrim's March	2d.
660.	His head let each Crusader raise	6d.
	J. S. BACH.
661.	Blessing, glory, and wisdom, and thanks	6d.
	HANDEL'S "HERCULES."
662.	Oh, filial piety	3d.
663.	Wanton god of am'rous fires	2d.
664.	Love and Hymen	2d.
665.	To him your gratitude	2d.
	BENNETT'S "MAY QUEEN."
666.	Wake with a smile	4d.
667.	With a laugh as we go round	4d.
668.	Hark! their notes	3d.
669.	Ill-fated boy, begone	3d.
	BEETHOVEN.
670.	A calm sea and a prosperous voyage	4d.
678.	Meek as thou livedst hast thou departed (Elegy)	2d.
	HANDEL'S "ALEXANDER BALUS."
671.	Ye happy nations round	2d.
	WEBER'S "JUBILEE CANTATA."
672.	Wreathe into garlands	3d.
	HAYDN'S SECOND MASS.
673.	Kyrie Eleison	3d.
674.	Gloria in excelsis	4d.
675.	Credo	6d.
676.	Sanctus and Benedictus	3d.
677.	Agnus Dei and Dona nobis	3d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Boston, New York, and Philadelphia; Ditson and Co.

THE KNABE
AMERICAN PIANOFORTE.

HIGHEST AWARD OVER ALL OTHER AMERICAN PIANOFORTES AT THE PHILADELPHIA (CENTENNIAL) EXHIBITION.

The Knabe Pianofortes have been used with enormous success at S. James's Hall this season.

THE PUBLIC AND PRESS ARE UNANIMOUSLY AGREED AS TO THE

EXCELLENCE, GREAT POWER, RICHNESS, and SINGING QUALITY OF TONE, as well as an EXCELLENT TOUCH,

WHICH THESE CELEBRATED INSTRUMENTS POSSESS.

TESTIMONIALS.

Testimonial from Sir JULIUS BENEDICT.

The Grand Concert Pianoforte by W. Knabe & Co., which I had the pleasure of trying myself, and which I also heard performed upon, combines, in my opinion, an admirable quality of tone, equally adapted to the display of power or to expression, with a most excellent, easy, and yet elastic touch.

The solidity and finish of the workmanship of this splendid Instrument is beyond all praise, and, taken altogether, I consider it one of the most perfect pianofortes I ever met with, and whose success, whether in a large concert-hall or in a private drawing-room, does not admit of the slightest doubt, and will become as universal as well-deserved. Julius Benedict.

London, Nov. 27th, 1878.

Testimonial from BRINLEY RICHARDS.

The Grand Pianos by Messrs. Knabe & Co. are remarkable both for touch and tone, while the ingenious addition of a Third or Sustaining Pedal enables the performer to produce effects of a very novel and interesting character. Brinley Richards.

London, Nov. 4th, 1878.

From L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

After having played on the Pianos of Messrs. Wm. Knabe & Co., it is impossible not to bear testimony to their qualities, which have acquired for them the eminent reputation which they enjoy. The Pianos of their manufacture, on which I have played, are exceedingly remarkable for their qualities of tone. The bass is powerful without harshness, and the upper notes sweet, clear, and harmoniously mellow (crystalline), and I do not hesitate to express, in regard to these instruments, my entire satisfaction, and to declare that they are equal, if not superior, to the best manufactured in Europe or America by the most celebrated makers. L. M. Gottschalk.

From SYDNEY SMITH.

I have tried the American Grand Pianofortes by W. Knabe & Co., of Baltimore, exhibited by Messrs. Metzler & Co., of Great Marlborough Street, and find they possess the essential attributes which constitute a fine Instrument, viz., good quality, and great volume of tone and excellent touch. Sydney Smith.

London, Nov. 28, 1878.

From Herr WILHELM GANZ.

I have lately examined the Grand Pianofortes manufactured by Messrs. William Knabe & Co., of Baltimore and New York, and it gives me great pleasure in certifying that these instruments are in every respect most perfect in tone and touch. By the additional Third or Sustaining Pedal the player is enabled to produce the most striking harmonical effects, and it thus offers a great advantage over instruments which have only the ordinary Two Pedals.

Their outward appearance is most elegant, and I am sure they require only to be known in order to become popular in this country.

Dec. 4, 1878. Wilhelm Ganz.

From S. THALBERG.

Messrs. Wm. Knabe & Co.

Gentlemen,—I have great pleasure in certifying that I have tried your Pianos, and find them equal, if not superior, to any in this country. Among the great qualities which distinguish them is the evenness of tone, the easy and agreeable touch and volume of tone. Wishing you all the success which you so highly deserve, I am, Sirs, yours very truly, ... S. Thalberg.

CATALOGUES POST-FREE.

London: METZLER & CO., 37, Great Marlborough Street, W.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row; and by Ditson and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Saturday, March 1, 1879.

ARTHUR ALLISON & CO.

Pianoforte, Harmonium, and American Organ

MANUFACTURERS,

LATE OF 110, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W.,

40, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.

Steam Factories—APOLLO WORKS, LEIGHTON ROAD, & CHARLTON KING'S ROAD,

KENTISH TOWN, LONDON, N.W.

EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED.

BOUDOIR PIANETTES, with Patent Check Action, from	30	Guineas
PICCOLO PIANOS	32	,,
COTTAGES AND GRAND OBLIQUES	35	,,
HARMONIUMS	8	,,
AMERICAN ORGANS	14	,,
ONE-, TWO-, & THREE-MANUAL & PEDAL HARMONIUMS	30	,,

Sole London Agents for DAWES' PATENT MELODY ORGANS, as supplied to HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and H.R.H. the PRINCESS LOUISE.

"The Melody Organ is the only perfect reed-instrument for accompaniment, and possesses a tone of an extraordinary quality."

Illustrated Price Lists to be had of all Musicsellers.

H. BROOKS & CO.'S

STEAM PIANOFORTE ACTION MANUFACTORIES,

31 TO 36, CUMBERLAND MARKET, REGENT'S PARK;

138, Hampstead Road; Lyme Street, Camden Town; and Bartholomew Road, London, N.W.

PATENT RISING MUSIC-STOOL

(THE "HALLÉ").

THIS Stool is an improvement beyond all others, and has been recommended by Professors and the Music Trade generally. Its mechanical appliance is simple, noiseless, and durable; enables the sitter of any age to raise or lower the elevation with one hand, without quitting the seat, and from its extreme steadiness and comfort for Pianoforte players is testified by Charles Hallé, Esq., to be "the most useful stool for public and private use," and is used by him in his public performances. The patronage thus given has greatly increased the demand, and justified a revision in its original charge. It can now be obtained at a considerable reduction in Walnut, Rosewood, or Mahogany, covered in any coloured Leather, Satin, Velvet, or other fancy material.

Price Lists and Illustrations free on application to us or to any Musicseller, through whom these Stools and other articles of Music Furniture can be obtained.

Black and Gold Stools and Canterburies in great variety.

HONOURABLE MENTION, 1862.

CHALLEN AND SON'S
GOLD MEDAL PIANOS,
20, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

PRIZE MEDAL, LONDON, 1862.

FOR EXCELLENCE OF TOUCH AND TONE.

GOLD MEDAL.

SOUTH AFRICA, 1877.

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

FOR GOOD AND CHEAP PIANOS.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL PIANETTE
WITH CHECK ACTION, IN ELEGANT WALNUT OR ROSEWOOD CASE.
FROM 25 GUINEAS.

"The Pianettes manufactured by CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments."—Anton Rubinstein.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL SEMI-COTTAGE,
WITH CHECK REPEATER ACTION.
FROM 32 GUINEAS.

"I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing at a most moderate cost pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice as being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence.

"The Instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, at Paris, were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section."—John Stainer, M.A., Mus. Doc., one of the Jurors of the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL COTTAGE
TRICHORD THROUGHOUT; BRASS BRIDGE; CHECK REPEATER ACTION.
FROM 60 GUINEAS.

"CHALLEN & SON is a name synonymous with wonderful durability, great beauty of tone, and moderation in price. We know of not one single maker whose Pianos excel theirs in the qualities most desirable in a good and lasting Piano."—Cape Argus, May 7.

EXCELLENCE IS GUARANTEED, AND EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED TO BE OF THE HIGHEST CLASS WORKMANSHIP AND MATERIALS.

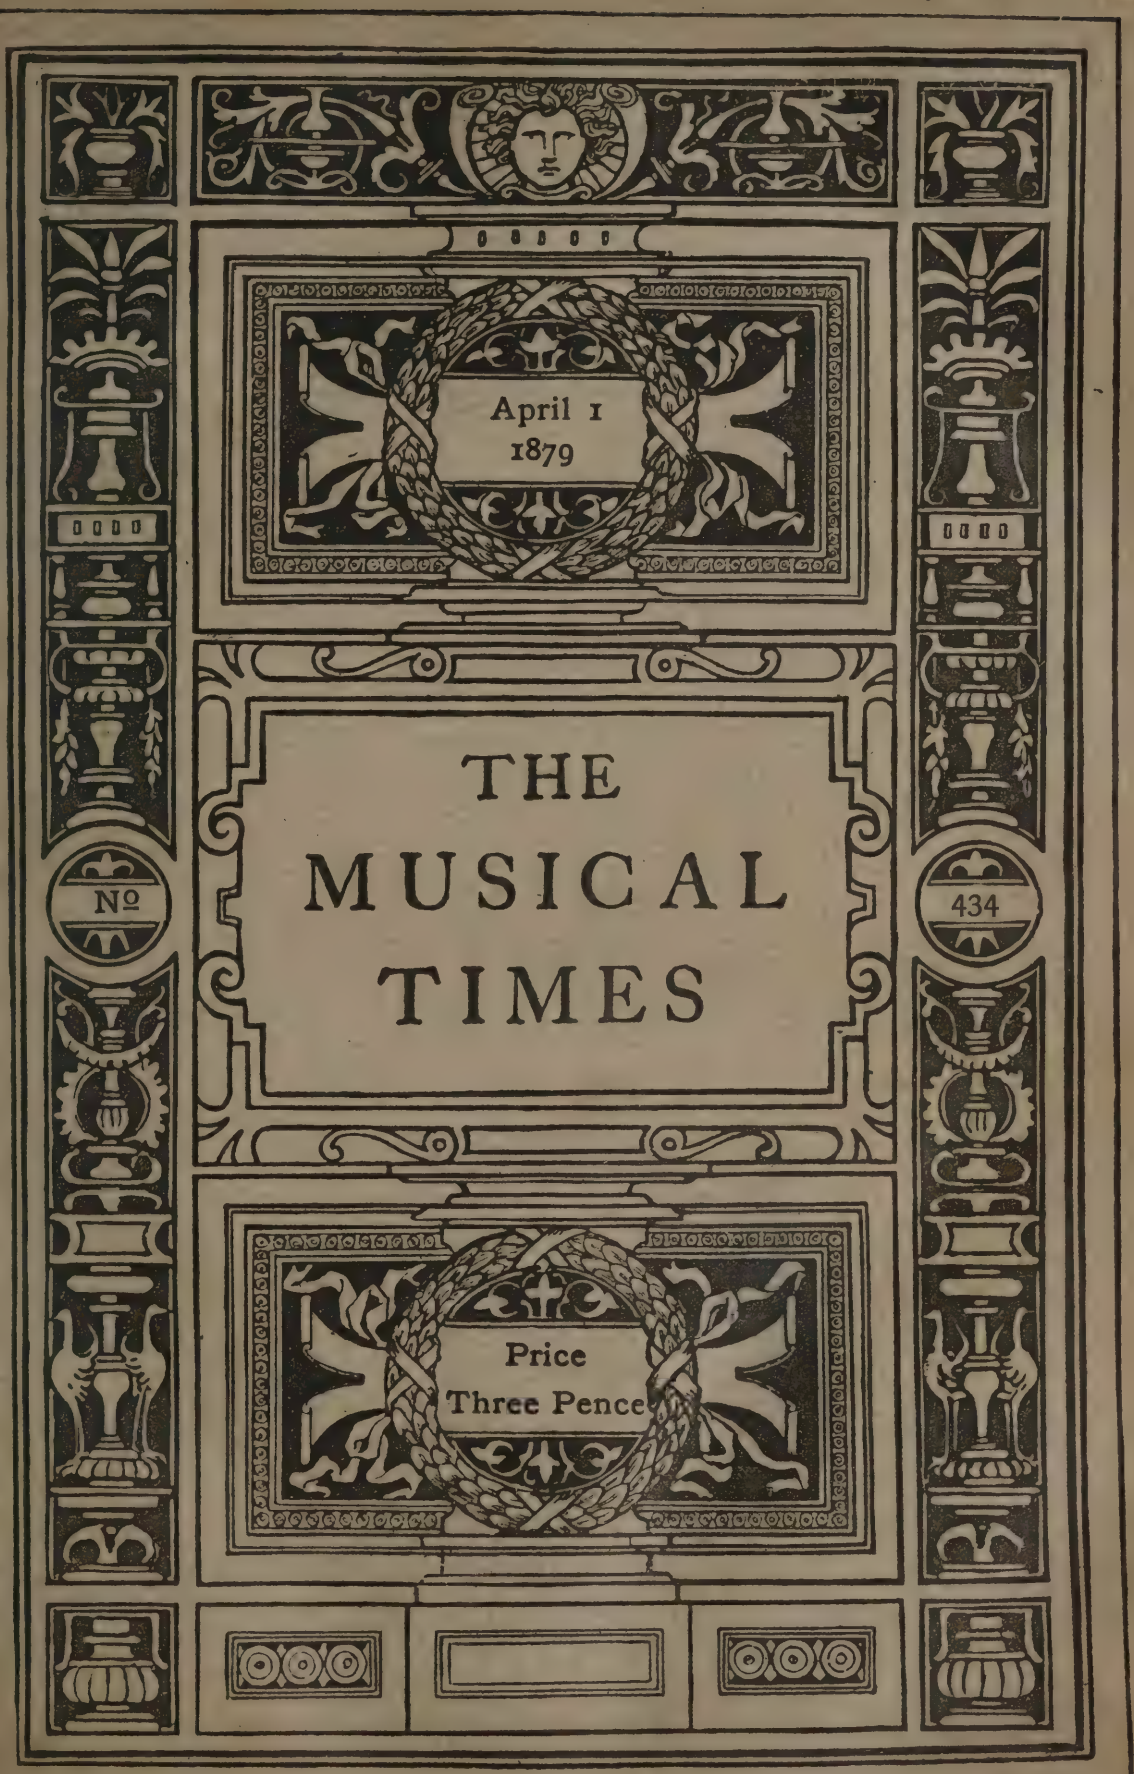
EBONISED AND GOLD PIANOS
Kept in Stock, of Superior Make and Elegant Designs.

May be obtained from all Musicsellers. Illustrated List forwarded free.

CHALLEN & SON, 20, OXFORD ST.
STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co. at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Saturday, March 1, 1879.



April 1
1879
THE MUSICAL
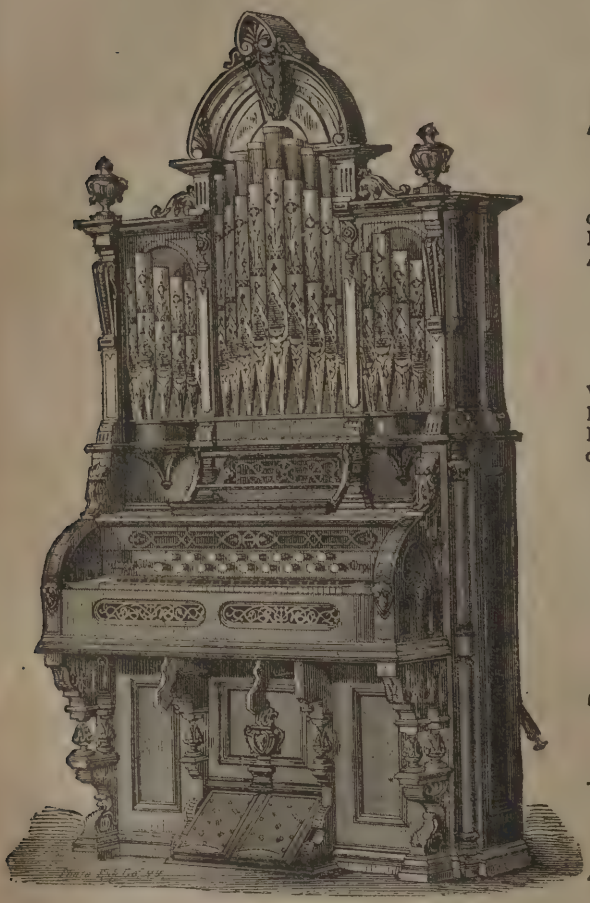
TIMES
No
434
Price
Three Pence

CHAPPELL AND CO.,

SOLE AGENTS,

50, NEW BOND STREET.



CLOUGH & WARREN'S

IMPROVED

AMERICAN ORGANS.

COMBINING PIPES WITH REEDS.

The immense advantages these Instruments possess over the Organs hitherto Imported, have induced Messrs. CHAPPELL and CO. to undertake the Sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory.

THE

Clough & Warren's Organs

Were awarded the DIPLOMA of HONOUR, and the MEDAL of the HIGHEST MERIT, at the CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION, ranking them superior to all others in

QUALITY OF TONE,

FACILITIES OF MECHANICAL ARRANGEMENTS,

ELEGANCE OF DESIGN AND ORNAMENTATION,

SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S

TWENTY-FIVE GUINEA

"FAVORITE ORGAN."

COMPASS, FIVE OCTAVES.

TEN STOPS, FOUR SETS OF REEDS OF TWO AND A HALF OCTAVES EACH, KNEE SWELL.

Elegant Carved Canadian Walnut Case.

A Large Variety on View from 25 to 160 Guineas.

MESSRS. CHAPPELL AND CO.

Beg to announce that they have taken the Sole Agency for the

CHICKERING GRAND AND UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

A number of these most celebrated American Instruments are now on view, from 120 to 300 Guineas.

50, NEW BOND STREET.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 434.—Vol. 20. APRIL 1, 1879. Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. President, H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh, K.G. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. On Good Friday, at seven o'clock, Handel's MESSIAH. Artists, Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Bernard Lane, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. Organist, Dr. Stainer. Prices, 7s. 6d., 5s., 4s., 3s., and 1s.

ORCHESTRAL FESTIVAL CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL, May 5, 7, 8, and 12.

HERR HANS RICHTER (of Vienna), Conductor. Leader, Herr Hermann Franke.

ORCHESTRAL FESTIVAL CONCERTS.—Orchestra 110 Performers.

UNDER the PATRONAGE of H.R.H. Prince LEOPOLD, H.S.H. the Duke of Teck, his Excellency Count Karolyi.

ORCHESTRAL FESTIVAL CONCERTS.—Full particulars will be announced, giving names of artists and programme. Subscription tickets are now ready, and may be had of Mr. Mitchell, 33, Old Bond Street; Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond Street; Messrs. Stanley Lucas and Weber, 84, New Bond Street; at the usual Agents; and at Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall.

MUSICAL ARTISTS' SOCIETY.—The FOURTEENTH PERFORMANCE of new Compositions will take place at the Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, Hanover Square, on SATURDAY EVENING, April 26th, at 8 o'clock. Pianoforte Sonata, G. A. Macfarren; String Quartetts, by W. H. Holmes and J. Lea Summers; Cavatina Violoncello, C. Trew; Vocal Music, by J. Gower, Mus. Bac., G. Gear, H. C. Banister, Alice Mary Smith, Emily Lawrence, Oliviera Prescott, Gertrude Hine, Duncan Hume, and Dr. Longhurst. Executants: Miss Agnes Zimmermann, Miss Mary Davies, Messrs. George Wheeldon, George Gough, F. Ralph, Palmer, R. Blagrove, W. Pettit, J. Gower, Thompson, and the Choir. Applications for membership to be made to E. H. Thorne, Hon. Sec., 13, Neville Terrace, Onslow Gardens, S.W., who will also be happy to receive the names of ladies and gentlemen willing to assist in the Choir.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. MONDAY, April 7, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by CECIL G. SAUNDERS, Esq., "On the Construction of Buildings in relation to Sound." JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.
9, Torrington Square, W.C.

THE CAVENDISH ROOMS, Mortimer Street, Cavendish Square. EDWARD HUMPHREY, Lessee. This elegant suite of Rooms may be ENGAGED for Concerts, Lectures, Entertainments, Exhibition of Works of Art, &c. Small rooms for Studios, Class-rooms, Offices, &c., upon application to the Secretary.

ETON COLLEGE CHAPEL.—WANTED a Good SOLO TREBLE. He would receive a free education and from £20 to £30 a-year, according to his proficiency. Apply by letter to the Precentor, Eton College, Windsor.

A LADY SOPRANO WANTED, to lead Congregational Singing. Must be a good reader, and possess a powerful voice. Two services on Sunday and one on Tuesday evening. Salary, £10. Apply, by letter, to J. P. H., 80, Barnsbury Road, N.

SOPRANO WANTED (Principal), in the Choir of South Place Chapel, South Place, Finsbury. Sunday morning service only. Salary, £16. Apply by letter, stating qualifications, to G. H., 20, Smithfield, E.C.

CHESTER CATHEDRAL.—Lay Clerkship (ALTO VOICE) vacant in the Cathedral choir. Stipend, £75, with several perquisites, particulars of which will be furnished on application. Candidates, who must be under 30 years of age, and well versed in Cathedral music, should forward testimonials to the Rev. The Precentor, Abbey Court, Chester.

ST. GEORGE'S, HANOVER SQUARE.—ALTO, TENOR, and BASS VOICES are REQUIRED for the Choir of this Church. Stipend from £10 to £15 per annum. Two services on Sundays, Christmas Day, and Good Friday. One weekly practice. Must be Communicants. There are also VACANCIES for TREBLE VOICES. Youths from 10 to 12 years of age, with good voices, will, in addition to their choir instruction, receive a small stipend. Apply, by letter (at first), W. Pinney, Mus. Bac., St. George's Vestry, Mill Street, W.

ALTO WANTED, for Christ Church, Lee Park S.E. Full choral service. Surpliced choir. J. T. Field, 3, Essex Villas, High Road, Lee, S.E.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., General Printers. Books, Magazines, Newspapers, Illustrated Catalogues, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Music Printers. Illustrated Titles, Engraving, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Colour Printers. Show Cards, Labels, Almanacs, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Typographical Music Printers. Hymnals, Books for Church Festivals, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Printers. Maps, Plans, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Music Engravers and Printers. Oratorios, Operas, Cantatas, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO. are prepared to forward estimates for the above or any other variety of printing. Works—69 & 70, Dean Street, Soho, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Publishers' and General Bookbinders. Estimates forwarded. Works—111 & 113, Southwark Street, S.E.

CAUTION.—MUSICSELLERS and the TRADE generally are hereby cautioned against selling any copies of Mendelssohn's "LIEDER OHNE WORTE," containing the 7th and 8th Books, except those published by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., who are sole proprietors of these Books and of the other copyright works of Mendelssohn.

ALTO WANTED, for West-end Church. Stipend, £10. Address, A. O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ALTO and TENOR WANTED for Church Choir, for Sunday morning and evening, and one week-day practice, with Christmas Day, &c. Salary, £10 a year. Also volunteer ALTO, TENOR, and BASS. Rev. R. H. C. Bradley, 1A, Russell Square, W.C.

ALTO and TENOR (Amateur) WANTED, to join an established Glee Club. Free membership of club to gentlemen with good voices, and who are fair readers. Apply, Secretary, care of Goodwin and Tabb, Music Publishers, 71, Great Queen Street, W.C.

ALTO AND BASS WANTED for the Choir of S. Stephen's, South Kensington. Stipend, £15 each. Full choral services. Surpliced choir. Address, Mr. Albert Lowe, 111, Abingdon Road, Kensington, W.

ALL SAINTS', Margaret Street.—There is a VACANCY in the choir of this church for a TENOR. Good reader indispensable. Salary, £25. Duties: two services on Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas Day, also a weekly rehearsal on Saturday, from 6 to 7 p.m. 10s. 6d. allowed for each extra day's services. Apply, by letter, to Mr. W. S. Hoyte, 68, Boundary Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

TENOR REQUIRED for St. Stephen's, Westminster. Salary, £20. Rehearsal, Sunday, 10 a.m. Full choral service Sunday morning and evening. Must be a good reader. Apply, with testimonials, to Mr. H. Baker, Choirmaster, 32, Vincent Square, S.W.

FIRST TENOR.—WANTED for a BAND of HAND BELL RINGERS. Chiefly evening engagements. A Gentleman with FIRST TENOR or ALTO VOICE. Must be total abstainer. Address, by letter, H. B. R., care of Mr. A. Southey, 146, Fenchurch Street, E.C.

BARITONE WANTED, able to sing Anglican Chants and "Hymns Ancient and Modern," in unison, well and correctly. Two Sunday Services and Wednesday practice. £10. Apply any Wednesday at 8, All Saints. Gordon Square, W.C.

WANTED, a BASS. Apply at St. Mary-at-Hill Church, Eastcheap, on Sunday after Service. Paid Choir Cathedral service.

CITY CHURCH CHOIR.—There is a VACANCY for a BASS VOICE in the Choir of St. Alphege, London Wall. The duties comprise two services on Sunday, and a rehearsal on Thursday evening. Service full Choral. Salary £10 per annum. Candidates must be well up in Church Music, and be able to read fairly at sight. Address, with testimonials or references, Organist, care of R. A. Knight and Co., 3, Abchurch Lane, E.C.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS FANNY CHATFIELD (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, Lessons, &c., 11, St. Ann's Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano).
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano).
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address, 150, Radnor Street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—C. Hallé, Esq., and E. Hecht, Esq.

MRS. DAGLISH (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Newark, Notts. Reference, S. Reay, Esq., Mus. Bac., Newark, Notts.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 1, Arundel Villas, Weston Road, Handsworth, Birmingham.

MISS JOHNSON (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 134, Egerton Street, Oldham.

MISS ANNIE MARRIOTT (Principal Soprano).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 8, Coleherne Road, South Kensington.

MISS ANNETTE IVANOVA (Soprano).
Pupil of Signor Lablache and Signor Odoardo Barri.
For Concerts, &c., removed to 29, Bedford Road, Clapham, S.W.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, Dinners, &c., address, 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimore Square, S.E.

MISS KERSHAW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Clarksfield Terrace, Lees, Manchester.

MISS PATTI HARGREAVES (Contralto).
21, Belle Vue Terrace, Victoria Street, St. John's Hill, Leeds.

MADAME ARNOLD POTTER (Contralto).
Address, Sidney House, 257, Cambridge Road, E.

MR. H. PIERCEY (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, care of Truslove and O'Neill, 36, Union Passage, Birmingham.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
7, Park Place, Regent's Park.

MR. WILLIAM YOUNG (Tenor).
For Concerts and Oratorios, address, 321, Monument Road, Birmingham. Repertoire includes "Messiah," "Elijah," "Creation," "Naaman," "Eli," "Lobgesang," "Moses in Egypt," "May Queen," "Ancient Mariner," "Bride of Dunkerron," &c., &c.

MR. S. FORD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Mander Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Sig. Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
12, Berners Street, W.

MR. THEODORE DISTIN (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Operas, &c., address, 96, Penrose Street, Sutherland Square, S.E. Pupils prepared for Concert or Stage.

MR. THOS. NETTLESHIP (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 44, Holland Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. W. MORTON (Bass).
(Leeds Parish Church).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 3, St. Helen's Terrace, Hunslet, Leeds.

MR. RICKARD (Bass).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Signor Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, King Cross, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 2, Hallfield Place, Bradford, Yorkshire.

MR. JAMES BUDD (Bass).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 25, Stockwell Green, S.W.

HENRY POPE (Bass).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 16, Holtham Road, Abbey Road, N.W.

FOR ORATORIO OR OTHER CONCERTS, &c.,
MADAME CROSS LAVERS,
Soprano;
Address, 7, Mornington Crescent, N.W.
MR. HENRY CROSS,
Bass.
Address, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W.; or 7, Mornington Crescent.

WILLIAM MILLER (Organist).
S. Giles, Cripplegate, E.C., and 124, Richmond Road, Dalston, E.

MR. W. F. ILLINGWORTH (Solo Pianist).
From the Conservatoire, Leipsic.
Address, 33, St. James's Road, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MISS FLORENCE HEMMINGS (Violoncellist).
Pupil of Herr Daubert.
22, Fawcett Street, Redcliffe Gardens, South Kensington.

MR. ALFRED J. EYRE begs to intimate to his pupils and friends that he has REMOVED to 41, Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, W.

MISS MARGARET BUCKNALL, A.R.A.M., Pianiste. For Concerts, address, Lawn House, 35, South Lambeth Road, S.W.

MR. J. G. CALLCOTT (Accompanist to Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir; Organist of St. Stephen's Church, Westminster; Conductor of the Grosvenor Choral Society, &c.) has REMOVED from Mortlake, S.W., to 30, Netherwood Road, West Kensington Park, W.

MR. ALBERT HUBBARD (Bass) has REMOVED to 32, Brocklehurst Street, Hatcham Park, S.E.

MR. H. T. BYWATER (TENOR) is OPEN to ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIOS and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. Address, 36, St. Germain's Road, Forest Hill, London, S.E.; or 40, Darlington Street, Wolverhampton.

DONALD W. KING, Professor of Singing and Musical Conductor, Cumberland Villa, Cavendish Road, Kilburn.

MR. C. STIEBLER COOK, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, five years Music and Choir Master at Uppingham School. For PIANO and HARMONY LESSONS, address, 17, Keppel St., Russell Square, W.C. Schools attended. Choirs conducted.

J. W. HINTON, M.A., Mus. D., continues to Orchestrate or Revise Compositions. Harmony or Counterpoint by post, if desired. Address, care of Messrs. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thorough-bass, and Modulation," "Hiles' Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., by post.

MR. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., L. Mus., T.C.L., PREPARES CANDIDATES for Musical Examinations; also gives lessons in Harmony, &c., by post. Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS.—CANDIDATES TRAINED for Examinations, either personally or by correspondence. Dr. A. S. Holloway, 51, St. Paul's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

TO COMPOSERS.—Dr. HOLLOWAY continues to Revise and Arrange every description of Music for Publication. Students prepared for the profession or for examinations. If residing at a distance, lessons can be had by post. Faults pointed out, and every information given to the young aspirant. Dr. Holloway, 51, St. Paul's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

LESSONS in PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM, SINGING, and COMPOSITION. Dr. Arthur S. Holloway, 51, St. Paul's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

SINGING AT SIGHT.—For LESSONS in this acquirement (so necessary for Members of Choirs, &c.) apply to Dr. Arthur S. Holloway, 51, St. Paul's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

DR. ALLISON instructed by post Candidates who passed Mus. Bac., Oxon. (1878); Mus. Bac., Cantab.; F.C.O. (1879) and T.C.L. (1879) examinations. 206, Marylebone Road, London.

MR. J. H. LEWIS, Organist, Parish Church, West Hartlepool, requires a young gentleman as RESIDENT PUPIL. Thorough training for the profession (three-manual organ). Please address, Scarboro' Street, West Hartlepool.

ARTICLED PUPIL.—Mr. W. de M. Sergison, Organist and Director of the Choir of S. Peter's Church, Eaton Square, S.W., requires a gentlemanly Youth as above, who would have great advantages for study.

PIANOFORTE TAUGHT, by a Lady, L.A.M., at pupils' or own residence. Schools attended. Terms moderate. Mrs. Pritchard, 35, Crowndale Road, Camden Town.

THEORY of MUSIC, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT thoroughly acquired in Twenty-six Lessons for £1 1s. Commencing May 2nd. Address, T., 38, Red Lion Square, W.C.

MADAME BEATI, Professor of Singing, gives LESSONS in Croydon and the neighbourhood. Schools attended. For references and terms, apply to Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address, Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park. MUSIC SCHOOL: Head Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS to be competed for by pupils of not less than one year's standing in the Music School will be awarded by Professor Macfarren, of which due notice will be given in the papers.
FRANCIS J. HOLLAND, Chairman.
Trinity term begins Friday, May 2.

A GENTLEMAN is desirous of giving LESSONS by post in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. References from present pupils if desired. Terms very moderate. Address, Magister, Musical Times Office, 1, Berners Street, London, W.

WANTED to place a genteel Youth, capable of assisting with the Pianoforte Lessons, with a talented ORGANIST, who would take his services in teaching into consideration. Address, with full particulars and terms, which must be moderate, to Mr. Winter, St. Ives, Hunts.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals, 20 stops. Terms, strictly inclusive, One Shilling per hour; 24, One Guinea. Camberwell Studio, 1, Charles Street, Camberwell New Road.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

ORGAN LESSONS.—The Organist of a City Church has VACANCIES for TWO PUPILS. Large three-manual organ. Address, Organist, 12, Freegrove Road, Camden Road, N.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—A Gentleman will be happy to give his services in the Choir or at the Organ occasionally or periodically, in exchange for the use of a good instrument for practice. Templar, Messrs. Barnard and Co., 11, Red Lion Passage, Holborn, W.C.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—A City Organist offers PRACTICE and INSTRUCTION on a two-manual C organ, in return for occasional assistance as DEPUTY. Choral services and surpliced and paid choir. Address, M. O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE or INSTRUCTION.—Three Manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by Lea's Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, which are strictly inclusive, on application at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.
Sole Agent for LEA'S HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. The cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy Street, Bedford Square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

ORGAN LESSONS or PRACTICE, 140, STRAND (opposite the Gaiety, and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W.), on fine two-manual C ORGANS (Hill and Son). Pedalling specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 140, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

WESTMINSTER CHORAL UNION.—The services of this well-known choir, numbering 150 SELECTED VOICES, may be secured for high class Concerts, Church Festivals, &c., in London, or the immediate neighbourhood. The Choir holds high testimonials from J. F. Barnett, Esq., Alfred Cellier, Esq., Arthur Sullivan, Esq., and other eminent musicians. Any choral work can be produced after three or four rehearsals. For further particulars, address the Hon. Sec., E. Griffiths, Esq., 1, Court Road, Lower Norwood, S.E.

BASS seeks RE-ENGAGEMENT in Church or Chapel Choir. Good voice and reader. Would take morning service only. Address, A. P., 89, Queen's Road, Dalston, E.

A TENOR will give SERVICES and assist with Boys in return for Organ lessons. Address, Leonards, 35, Charlotte Street, Portland Place.

BIRMINGHAM and HEREFORD MUSICAL FESTIVALS, 1879.—A Cambridge B.A., accustomed to the business, wishes to be engaged as REPORTER to a NEWSPAPER for the above Festivals. Address, Image, Messrs. Harrison and Harrison, Colmore Row, Birmingham.

ORGANIST for a COLONY.—The Vestry of St. Mary's Church, Port Elizabeth (Algoa Bay), Cape of Good Hope, desire the SERVICES of a GENTLEMAN, by Easter, if possible, as ORGANIST. Salary, £75, with use of organ for pupils. First-class passage by mail steamer defrayed. The population is about 8,000, principally English, and one capable of teaching music and singing could depend upon a considerable practice. Resolutions of Vestry and copy of letter as to requirements can be seen at Messrs. Pratt and Sons, 24, Tavistock Street, Strand. Candidates must produce certificates of efficiency from a Cathedral Organist. Applications to be addressed to the Bishop's Commissary, Rev. A. Wood, D.C.L., South Reston Rectory, Louth, England.

WANTED, an ORGANIST, for Holy Trinity Church, South Shields. Salary, £50. An excellent opening for a gentleman wanting pupils. Apply to the Vicar, Rev. John Coulson.

REQUIRED an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for Ospringe Church. A steady communicant. Salary, 30 guineas per annum. Applications from ladies might be entertained. Address, Rev. W. N. Griffin, Ospringe Vicarage, Faversham.

ORGANIST WANTED in a large Midland town. Must be a gentleman of ability, and experienced in Choir Management. Stipend £80. A good field for tuition. Address, with copies of one or two testimonials, Rector, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST WANTED, at Easter, for a Church in a populous district, 35 miles from London. New Organ by Gray and Davison, 370, Euston Road, to whose care applications may be sent, addressed A. Z.

ORGANIST WANTED, about the middle of May, for S. George's School Chapel, Brampton, Huntingdon. Salary, £50 per annum, with furnished lodgings. Two services Sundays and Holydays, two on week-days, and four choir practices. Gregorian and Anglican music, chiefly the latter. High class. Good two-manual organ. Teaching arrangements to be made with the Head Master. Some knowledge of band instruments desirable. Address, Lay Precentor, as above.

WANTED, a CHOIRMASTER and MUSICAL TEACHER in a PUBLIC SCHOOL. For particulars apply to the Head Master, Leamington College. No original testimonials to be sent.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—Two Gentlemen, who have for some years worked together as above, having a thorough practical knowledge of Church Music and Choir Training, offer their joint services for a Church where their unwearied exertions in preparing and conducting the musical portion of the services would be appreciated. Good modern organ and fair choral material indispensable. Highest testimonials from clergy and professors. Inclusive salary to be arranged. Address, Cantor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST.—Advertiser desires an ENGAGEMENT, or would Deputise. Good reference. Address, Q. H., Leggatt's Library, Newland Terrace, Kensington.

TO CLERGYMEN.—ORGANISTS.—A Gentleman desires an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST. Excellent testimonials. Organist, Florence House, Prince of Wales Road, N.W

DEPUTY.—A Young Gentleman is desirous of undertaking Sunday Afternoon and occasional Week-day Evening Services, in exchange for practice. Address, B. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE ORGANIST of the Parish Church, Monmouth, is resigning present appointment. Open to similar ENGAGEMENT.

A YOUNG LADY desires an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST. Good references. Address, E. S. Denshanger, Stony Stratford, Bucks.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to RE-ENGAGEMENT in London. Address, G. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of some years' experience will shortly be open to an ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Good testimonials and references. Address, H. Y. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, with good testimonials, desires an APPOINTMENT, Address, A. B., 208, Victoria Road, Aston, Birmingham.

ASSISTANT ORGANIST.—A Gentleman, acquainted with Anglican and Gregorian music, is desirous of acting in the above capacity in return for practice and occasional lessons. S.W. or S.E. district. Address, A. B., Messrs. Cockayne and Co., 195, Walworth Road, S.E.

ORGANIST (VOLUNTARY).—A Professional Gentleman of several years' experience would give SERVICES. Dissenting place of worship preferred, and good instrument. Address, M. N., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman with Good Voice, and who takes a great interest in the work, desires above post. Highest references. Address Decani, 21, Featherstone Buildings, W.C.

A GOOD PIANIST wishes to practise with a VIOLINIST or other instrumentalist. No remuneration. Address, J., Checkley's Library, 116, Camden Road, N.W.

VIOLINIST (Experienced) wants ENGAGEMENT in England or abroad, where there is opening for Private Tuition on Violin, and in Singing. Moderate salary. Excellent testimonials given. Address, R. D. R., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

COUNTRY TUNER WANTED.—Other Tuners kept. Liberal wages for a skilful, industrious, and sober man, Address, Alpha, care of Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, PIANOFORTE TUNER. Must thoroughly understand his business in all its details, and character bear strict investigation. State salary, age, &c. Pianist who understands Quadrille business preferred. R. W. Aldridge, Pianoforte Warehouse, London Street, Southport.

WANTED, a TUNER and REPAIRER. State wages required. Send references and carte to Frank Attwells, Music Warehouse, Reading

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—WANTED a First-class PIANOFORTE TUNER for the country. Liberal wages. Address, Z., Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a respectable Young Man of good appearance and manners, as IN-DOOR TUNER. He would occasionally be required to try over instruments, therefore should play sufficiently well for that purpose; he should be a good Tuner, as his time would be principally occupied in that capacity. Also Wanted, a Young Man, of good address and respectability, as ASSISTANT in the SHEET MUSIC DEPARTMENT. Should have a good knowledge of the trade. Address, with full particulars, age, reference, salary, &c., to Pigott and Co., Grafton Street, Dublin.

TUNING CONNECTION REQUIRED, or WORKING PARTNERSHIP. Address, E. S., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SITUATION WANTED by a practical PIANOFORTE TUNER, REPAIRER, &c. Address, Tuner, 18, Gloucester Street, W.C.

A YOUNG Man, age 21, desires a SITUATION in a Warehouse or otherwise, as JUNIOR TUNER. Very energetic. Moderate salary. Indoors or out. Address, C., care of G. C. Bedwell, Pianoforte Depôt, Cambridge.

WANTED, a SITUATION as REGULATOR and REPAIRER. Good reference. J. A., 28, Borough Street, Brighton.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTS SITUATION. Town or country. Knows Harmoniums and American Organs. Repairs a little. "Experience," Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

A RELIABLE TUNER and REGULATOR (formerly at the finishing-bench) is open to partial or occasional employment in or near London. Outdoor or indoor. A. M. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED by an experienced TUNER, a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Can repair. Excellent testimonials. Address, G. C. F., 15, Orts Road, Reading, Berks.

ABROAD.—PIANOFORTE TUNER, &c., desires ENGAGEMENT in the COLONIES. At present engaged in a well-known West-end firm. Address, T. N., 25, Chalcott Crescent, Regent's Park.

WANTED, by a thoroughly steady and respectable Young Man (married), a SITUATION as TUNER, &c. Four years with present employer. Good references. Address, M. J., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A TUNER seeks an ENGAGEMENT. First-class references. Respectable and steady. Knowledge of Harmoniums, &c. Address, Frank, 226, Wavertree Road, Wavertree, Liverpool.

WANTED, by a Young Man (21), a SITUATION as TUNER and REPAIRER of HARMONIUMS and PIANOS. Address, A. B. C., Mr. Thompson, Atkinson Court, Lowerhead Row, Leeds.

TUNER.—RE-ENGAGEMENT by a Married Man, as TUNER and REPAIRER of PIANOS and HARMONIUMS, &c. Must be permanent. Address, G. S. W., 11, Langham Terrace, Elphinstone Road, Hastings.

MUSIC WAREHOUSE.—RE-ENGAGEMENT required by a Young Lady (in London or Suburbs) in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Thorough knowledge of the Music Trade. Good book-keeper. Address, Alpha, care of Mr. Joseph Williams, 24, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE, home or abroad. Can show off Pianofortes and Harmoniums. Good book-keeper. Alpha, Kirkheaton, Huddersfield.

A YOUNG Lady requires an ENGAGEMENT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Six years' experience and good references. Address, J. M., 14, Castle Street, Leicester.

MUSICSELLERS, TEACHERS, and TUNERS can add several pounds weekly to their incomes by a splendid agency. Send addressed envelope for terms to T. Bedford, 188, Tooley Street, London.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC TRADES.—Mr. F. LUCAS has had placed in his hands for DISPOSAL some good businesses in the above trade. A PARTNER also REQUIRED in a profitable concern, where £3,000 to £4,000 extra capital is required. For particulars, apply to the above-named, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the Music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED, APRIL, 1866.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION.

Mr. H. ASHTON (Alto).
Mr. FRED. H. COZENS (First Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN (Second Tenor and Pianist).
Mr. ALBERT HUBBARD (Bass).

ASSISTED BY

Madame ASHTON (Soprano).

For terms, either separately or collectively, address, Mr. H. Ashton, Secretary, Ivy House, Stamford Hill, London, N.

MUSIC TRADE.—The GOODWILL, STOCK, and COPYRIGHTS of an old-established Publishing Firm to be SOLD, owing to the death of a Partner. About £1,000 required, part can stand over for a time. Apply, H., F. Lucas, 28, Great Marlborough Street, W.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE, on account of the death of the Junior Partner. Established 38 years. Stock to be taken at a valuation. A large stock of Sheet Music; about 100 Pianofortes and Harmoniums. Address, G. Walker, 125, Oxford Street, Manchester.

THE leading Continental House.—MILLEREAU'S BAND INSTRUMENTS. Highest class of excellence for Artists' Cornets, Raoux French Horns, Clarionets, cylind. Boehm Flutes, &c. Catalogues free. 66, Rue d'Angoulême, Paris.

12S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, post-free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord Street, Liverpool.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK. Some chemists and stationers for extra profit deceive you. Genuine label, "Daughter of late John Bond." Works: 75, Southgate Road, N. No heating required.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE HAIR RESTORER for the MILLION. In bottles at 6d., 1s., and 2s. It is nourishing, strengthening, and developing. Genuine label has the words, "Prepared by the daughter of the late John Bond, the great marking-ink maker." Trade mark, Crystal Palace.

THE "STANDARD"

AMERICAN ORGANS

MANUFACTURED BY

PELOUBET, PELTON, & CO.,

NEW YORK.

MAXIMUM QUALITY.

MINIMUM PRICE.

PRICES, TEN GUINEAS AND UPWARDS.

Class 6. Seven Stops, 5 Octave Compass, 2 Full Sets Reeds, with Knee-swell, in handsome case, TWENTY GUINEAS.

Detailed Price-list on application to—

32, WORSHIP STREET,

FINSBURY SQUARE.

GOLD MEDAL, PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878.

DEBAIN & CO.,

Fournisseurs (by Brevet) to Her Majesty,

41, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

(Late 357, OXFORD STREET).

HARMONIUMS

Simple and Percussive

(Debain, Inventor).

From 8 to 200 Guineas.

ORGANOPHONES

(Debain, Inventor),

From 40 to 200 Guineas.

PIANOS-MÉCANIQUES

(Debain, Inventor),

From 100 Guineas.

PIANOS

Seven Octaves, Trichord, Check Action, Plinth and Consoles, &c. (Suitable for Export),

From 31 to 180 Guineas.

MUSIC SEATS

(Metal Tube Frames, gilt with the best gold bronze).

Harmonium Chairs, 31s. 6d.; Piano Stools, "Ionic," without screw, 42s. Piano Stools, "Trépied," with screw, 63s.

. Lists and Drawings on application.

DEBAIN & CO.,

41, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

J. STUTTAFORD, Representative.

MUSIC STRINGS—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

J. P. GUIVIER AND CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

ALL KINDS OF MUSIC STRINGS FOR ALL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Sole Depot for Signor Andrea Ruffini's (of Naples) Celebrated Strings for Soloists, manufactured by him on a system invented by Mons. J. B. Vuillaume, of Paris.

Sole Agent for Charles Albert's (of Philadelphia, U.S.) new Patent Improved Chin Rest; also his improved String Gauge.

25, SHERWOOD STREET, REGENT CIRCUS, PICCADILLY.

Price List free on application.

All kinds of strings covered in a superior manner on powerful machines made on the best principle with all modern improvements.

The only Gold Medal for Wind Instruments with Keys, in the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878, was unanimously awarded by the Jury to Messrs. P. Goumas & Co., for the fine quality of tone and finish of their Instruments.

SPECIAL MANUFACTORY OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR

Clarionets, Flutes, Piccolos, Oboes, Bassoons, Cor Anglais, Flageolets, and Saxophones.

P. GOUMAS & CO.

(Late Buffet, Crampon & Co.),

Established 1830.

Nine Prize Medals have been awarded to Goumas & Co. for general excellence and improvements in the Manufacture of Wind Instruments with Keys.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Wood Wind Instruments for Military Bands, Musical Instrument Makers to Her Majesty's Army and Navy, and to the Armies, Navies, and Conservatoires of France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Austria, Spain, America, &c.

Manufactory at Mantes (Seine et Oise), France. Paris: Passage du Grand Cerf, 18 et 20.

LONDON: 5, MADDOX STREET, REGENT STREET.

Price Lists sent free on application.

LONDON AGENTS,

MESSRS. MOUTRIE AND SON,

PIANOFORTE SALOON,

55, BAKER STREET, LONDON, W.

MR. J. HAMILTON begs to inform Organists, Organ Students, and others that the Pedals and Action for attachment to Pianofortes manufactured by him can be inspected and ordered at the above address.

A set of Straight Pedals, 30 notes (C to F), with action and printed instructions, "How to Attach," price £4 10s. Or Radiating and Concave Pedal Board, with action, price £5 10s.

Orders accompanied with Cheque or P.O. Order will receive immediate attention. Send for prices to the Profession and Trade.

Address, J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 12th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-instruction Books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price Lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell Road, Clerkenwell, London.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES.—150 by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Allison, &c., from 4 guineas upwards. HARMONIUMS (New), from £5, in Walnut or Mahogany cases. Largest stock of Pianos and Harmoniums in London at Kelly and Co.'s, 11, Charles Street, Middlesex Hospital. Trade supplied.

TO SELL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS of every description, also Libraries of Music, Music Plates and Copyrights, Stock-in-Trade, &c., SALE (devoted exclusively to this class of property) held every month. Single instruments inserted. Consignments received at any time. Puttick and Simpson, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C. [Established, 1794.]

BORD'S PIANOS.

These Celebrated Pianos on SALE or HIRE, and on the EASY PURCHASE SYSTEM
AT
15, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.
(Illustrated Lists Free.)

MALEY, YOUNG & OLDKNOW,
ORGAN-BUILDERS,
KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

Organs rebuilt to suit any position, repaired, enlarged, tuned, and revoiced in any part of the kingdom, at very moderate charges.
Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first class.
Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of organs.
N.B.—New and second-hand organs for sale. Inspection invited.

THE "ORIGINAL" OCARINA.

GUARANTEED PERFECT IN TUNE.

"The tone bears a striking resemblance to the vox humana stop of a large organ."—Musical Times.

These Instruments are of the BEST QUALITY now in the market, and are EXACTLY SIMILAR to OTHERS SOLD AT HIGHER PRICES for some time past.

RETAIL PRICES, INCLUDING SCALE AND BOX.

Nos.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	1s.	1s. 3d.	1s. 6d.	1s. 9d.	2s.	2s. 3d.	2s. 6d.

Nos. 5 and 7 are tuned to accompany the Pianoforte.

WHOLESALE AGENTS:
BARNETT SAMUEL AND SONS,
32, WORSHIP STREET, LONDON.

A MONK'S ORGANS, warranted First Class, at moderate prices, from 50 guineas. 100-Guinea Organs, 2 CC manuals, 10 stops, 16-feet pedal pipes. 200 guineas, 2 manuals, 16 stops. 300 guineas, 3 manuals, 21 stops. 400 guineas, 3 manuals, 27 stops. 600 guineas, 3 manuals, 36 stops. Larger or smaller Organs built to any Specification. Old Organs rebuilt. Additions, Repairs, Tunings, &c. Specifications and Estimates sent free. Sussex Terrace, Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.
Organs on the three years' system.

ORGANS for SALE or HIRE.—8 stop Organ with 16 feet pedal pipes (rebuilt); 3 stop Organ, swell and pedals; 2 stop Organ; all in good condition, taken in exchange, to be sold cheap. A. Monk, Sussex Terrace, Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.

W. D. CUBITT (Twenty years Manager to S. A. Chappell), MAKER and IMPORTER of BAND INSTRUMENTS to H.M. ARMY, NAVY, &c., is prepared to supply Instruments on the latest models, made expressly for Militia, Volunteer, Factory, School-Bands, &c., at greatly reduced prices. Price list and terms on application to W. D. Cubitt and Son, 3, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

THE LATEST NOVELTY.—AMERICAN PORTABLE MUSIC STANDS.—Ingenuity, simplicity, strength, portability, economy, elegance, and practical utility. Contractors to the Army, Navy, Public Schools, and Musical Societies of England, France, and America. Descriptive circulars. Address, J. F. Walters, Hall of Commerce, 316, Oxford Street, London.

"A supreme and perfect harmony of Notes."
E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS and REED ORGANS. For tone, touch, articulation, and general excellence, are pronounced by the profession and public the best and cheapest extant. Prices, designs, &c., free, of E. & W. Snell. Works: King Street North, Camden Town, London, N.W. Trade supplied. The new Spécialité "Drawing-Room" Model, 24 guineas.

ORGAN by Henry Willis, in Pitch Pine Case, FOR SALE, now in Trinity Congregational Church, Croydon. Two manuals, CC to G, and Pedals (30 notes). Five stops on the swell, 9 on the great, and good bourdon on the pedals, 3 couplers, and 3 composition pedals. The instrument is in perfect condition, and would be disposed of much below cost to make room for a larger one. For particulars and to view apply to Mr. Ingham, Moira House, Upper Addiscombe Road, Croydon.

FOR SALE, several small Second-hand ORGANS, suitable for small places of worship. Apply to Mr. J. Porritt, Organ Builder, Leicester.

A SMALL Chamber ORGAN for SALE. Six stops, pedals 27, gilt front, oak case. Price £45. Address, A. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN WANTED.—A Second-hand TEMPORARY INSTRUMENT, for large stone Church now approaching completion. Reply, giving specification and quoting price, erected on floor of Church, to E. W. Crawley, Choirmaster, S. Margaret's Church, Ilkley.

ORGANS for SALE.—CHURCH ORGAN. Two manuals, CC swell, 6 stops in great, 5 in swell, 614 pipes, 2½ octaves of 16 feet pedals. £140. Useful CHANCEL ORGAN: One manual, 5 stops, 2 octaves of pedals. £45. CHANCEL ORGAN: 4 stops. £15. Large two-manual AMERICAN ORGAN; decided bargain; 15 stops, pedals. £60. C. Smart, Tabernacle Square, Finsbury, E.C.

ORGAN for SALE (a bargain). Two CC manuals, 19 stops, and full pedal organ. Height, 10 ft. 10 in.; width, 11 ft.; depth, 6 ft. 2 in. Address, A. B., care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SUPERIOR toned ORGAN for SALE, suitable for a Church or Chapel. Two complete manuals and separate pedal pipes. Compass CC to F. Price very moderate. Particulars on application to Mr. Statham, Bedford.

TWO-MANUAL CHAMBER ORGAN, by Walker, for SALE. Seventeen stops. Handsome carved oak case, with decorated front pipes. Price 200 guineas. Half the amount may remain, on approved security, for twelve months. Apply to Mr. Orchard, Salisbury.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £35. Two manuals, fine organ tone, dulciana stops. Bourdon on full-compass pedals; walnut case. One manual with pedals, 2½ rows of reeds. £21. Manufactured for organ practice by W. J. Robertson, 107, Tottenham Road, London, N. Lists, with extracts of letters from Organists.

ORGAN PIPES.—Oboe tenor, C to G, 44 pipes, voiced, £3 18s. W. Day, 23, Balcorne Street, Well Street, South Hackney.

ORGAN PEDAL PIANOFORTE, in good condition; 2½ octaves of pedals, greatly improved attachment (not Hamilton's). First-rate chance for organ student. Owner giving up organ. L. Bradshaw, Queen Street, Kettering, Northampton.

TO ORGANISTS.—An Organist leaving England wishes to SELL his PEDALIER (Pleyel). In very good condition, having been used only three years. Cost £24, would take £12 12s. Address, H. D. 172, Golborne Road, Notting Hill.

VIOLINS, &c., by Craske, some of them fifty years old, and equal to Straduarius and Guarnerius, except in name only. The whole of this great maker's instruments on SALE at Edward Crompton's, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester. Will be sent for trial on receipt of satisfactory reference.

VIOLIN, &c., for SALE. A genuine Cremona, a reputed Grancerio, a Banks' Violoncello, a Double Bass, a pair of Kettle Drums. Apply, with stamped envelope, to Wm. Williamson, Stamp Office, Wellingboro'.

BANKS' CELLO for SALE, in good condition. Price £15. Apply to Banks, 55, High Street, Winchester.

NICHOLAS AMATI VIOLONCELLO for SALE. Price 180 guineas. For particulars, address, Nicholas, 1, Mitre Court, Wood Street, Cheapside, London.

FOR SALE.—BRASS CHOIR STANDS, Communion Cloth Monogram, two Chairs, and a Lectern. All in good order. Apply to Mr. W. Humphries, 32, Sackville Street.

QUARTERLY SALE OF MUSICAL PROPERTY.
MESSRS. KELLY and CO. beg to announce they will Sell by Auction, at their Great Rooms, 11, Charles-street, Berners-street, London, on Wednesday, April 9th, 1879, commencing at 12.30 prompt, about 150 PIANOFORTES, by Collard, Broadwood, Kirkman, Cramer, Allison, Erard, Ziegler, Niedermayer, Darney, Rolfe, &c., &c.; Organs and Harmoniums, &c., by Alexandre, Cramer, Hermann, Christophe, &c.; Harps, by Erard and other makers, Violins, Flutes, Flutinas, Pianoforte Hammers, Levers, Butts, Keys, Legs, Screws, Ivories, Silk, Paintings, Umbrellas, Sheet Music, Music Stools, &c., being unredeemed pledges from London and provincial pawnbrokers, also surplus stocks from several dealers. Most of the lots will be sold principally without reserve. Catalogues ready. The goods may be viewed the day prior and morning of sale.

NEW MUSIC PRINTING PROCESS.
Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.
50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.
PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,
8A, Red Lion Square, London, W.C.

W. MARRIOTT & SONS,
MUSIC PUBLISHERS,
296, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.
Universal Music Warehouse.
Authors' Works Engraved, Printed, and Published in the best style at the most moderate charges. Estimates on application.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS. — Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms highly advantageous.
London: B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row.

AUTHORS' WORKS
CORRECTED, REVISED, AND PRINTED WITH DESPATCH
On moderate Terms.
QUOTATIONS GIVEN ON RECEIPT OF MSS.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

TO COMPOSERS.
MUSIC PRINTED AND PUBLISHED IN THE BEST STYLE
At unusually low prices.
ESTIMATES FREE ON RECEIPT OF MSS.
SIMPSON & Co., 33, ARGYLL STREET, LONDON, W.

TO MUSIC TEACHERS, SCHOOLS, &c.—Selected parcels of best MUSIC for teaching sent, on Sale or Return, on most advantageous terms. Reference requested. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, W.

PIANOFORTE DUETS for DISPOSAL, cheap. List on application. A. Thistlewood, Hockley Hill, Birmingham.

18S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, by Sydney Smith, Macfarren, Godfrey, and others. Clean copies. Post-free for 1s. 6d. Miss Nellie Newman, The Elms, Furnace Lane, Lozells, Birmingham.

£330 FOR A SONG.—J. L. Hatton's "A bird sang in a hawthorn tree" realised this sum at a recent sale of copyrights. Published in D and F. Price 4s. The profession can have one specimen copy, by sending six stamps to the publisher.
London: J. A. Mills, 60, Moorgate Street.

ANTHEM FOR EASTER-TIDE.
AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST
Chorus from the "Daughter of Jairus"
By JOHN STAINER.
Price 6d.
The Tenor Solo, "My hope is in the Everlasting," will precede the Chorus for use on Easter Eve and at other times.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASTER CAROL.
COME, SEE THE PLACE WHERE JESUS LAY. Hymns A and M, 139, 3d.; The Offertory Sentences from the Gospels, 6d.; by the Rev. Vyvyan Popham.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now Ready. Price One Penny.
NEW ANTHEM FOR EASTER.
CHRIST OUR PASSOVER.
Composed by Charles Joseph Frost.
This is a setting which may be sung in place of the Venite, or as an Anthem proper. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NINE HYMNS WITH TUNES FOR EASTER,
SELECTED FROM
THE HYMNARY.
PRICE ONE PENNY.

CHRIST THE LORD IS RISEN TO-DAY	Sir George Elvey.
FAR BE SORROW, TEARS, AND SIGHS	C. Steggall, Mus. D.
WELCOME, HAPPY MORNING	Arthur Sullivan.
COME, YE FAITHFUL, RAISE THE STRAIN	Ditto.
AT THE LAMB'S HIGH FEAST WE SING	German.
THE DAY OF RESURRECTION	Henry Smart.
JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY ...	Ch. Gounod.
Ditto Ditto ...	Old Melody.
O BLESSED TRINITY	Ditto.
SOON THE FIERY SUN ASCENDING ...	German.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S
EASTER ANTHEM.
THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH. Short, easy, full, and effective. Composed expressly for parish choirs. Octavo, 3d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

	s.	d.
BARNBY, J.—AS WE HAVE BORNE THE IMAGE OF THE EARTHY	0	1½
COOKE, S. C.—THIS IS THE DAY	3
ELVEY, Sir G. J., Mus. Doc.—CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD	0	1½
—— CHRIST BEING RAISED FROM THE DEAD ...	0	1½
GADSBY, HENRY.—HE IS RISEN	0	1½
GOSS, Sir JOHN.—CHRIST OUR PASSOVER	0	1½
—— IF WE BELIEVE THAT JESUS DIED	0	3
—— O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD	0	3
GOUNOD, CHARLES. — BLESSED IS HE WHO COMETH IN THE NAME OF THE LORD	0	1½
HOPKINS, J. L.—LIFT UP YOUR HEADS	0	1½
HOPKINS, E. J.—WHY SEEK YE THE LIVING AMONG THE DEAD?	0	1½
LAHEE, H.—NOW ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK	0	1½
LOWE, ALBERT.—THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH ...	0	3
NAYLOR, J.—IF YE THEN BE RISEN...	3
NOVELLO, V.—THE EASTER HYMN	0	1½
—— THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH	0	1½
SMART, H.—THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH	1	½
SULLIVAN, ARTHUR.—I WILL MENTION THE LOVING-KINDNESSES	0	6
STAINER, Dr. — THEY HAVE TAKEN AWAY MY LORD...	0	1½
THORNE, E. H.—CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD...	0	1½
—— THE LORD THAT BROUGHT US	0	3
TOURS, B.—GOD HATH APPOINTED A DAY	0	1½
TRIMNELL, THOS. TALLIS.—THE LORD IS KING (97th Psalm)	0	4
WESLEY, Dr. S. S.—O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD	0	4
—— BLESSED BE THE GOD AND FATHER	0	4

Most of the above can be had in folio vocal score and separate vocal parts.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASY EASTER ANTHEMS. By Thomas Smith.
FIFTH EDITION. Price 3d.
CHRIST IS RISEN FROM THE DEAD.
Second Edition. Price 3d.
SING WE MERRILY UNTO GOD OUR STRENGTH.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W. Post-free from the Composer, 25, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

THE LORD IS RISEN INDEED! HALLELUJAH! Anthem for Easter. By Benjamin Congreve. Price 2d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FIVE CHORUSES
FOR FEMALE VOICES
COMPOSED BY FRANZ SCHUBERT.
Price One Shilling, or singly:—

Coronach	3d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	4d.
God in nature	4d.
Serenade	4d.
Glory to the Lord Almighty	3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.
THE TRANSIENT AND THE ETERNAL
AN ODE
COMPOSED BY
ANDREAS ROMBERG.
Price One Shilling.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.
THE LORD OF THE ISLES.
A Dramatic Cantata (founded on Sir Walter Scott's Poem) by Frank Murray.
The Music Composed by HENRY GADSBY.
Octavo, Four Shillings. Chorus parts, 1s. each. Orchestral parts, in manuscript, may be had on hire.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

DESCRIPTION OF AN UNUSUALLY GRAND AND VARIED

CHAMBER ORGAN

Now for SALE, owing to the recent death of the Proprietor, containing 2 Manuals, Pedals, 23 Stops, and 920 Pipes.

The Instrument was built by Nicholson of Worcester, regardless of cost, the wish of the owner being to have the most perfect Instrument that could possibly be made.

For some years past it has been under the care of Messrs. Hill & Sons, of London, and every modification that skill could suggest to further perfect it has been introduced. It is impossible within the limits of an advertisement to describe the minute care which has been devoted to every detail; but, as instances:—The wooden pipes, down to the 16 feet (Violone), are made of the finest pine, selected from thousands of planks, without a Knot or Flaw. The action is noiseless, being most carefully made and adjusted, and leathered throughout. The swell shutters turn upon steel centres bushed with lead.

The case (Gothic) is a masterpiece of cabinet work, handsomely carved, of the finest Spanish mahogany. The whole, including panels, carvings, and mouldings, is solid, and made from the same log, which was specially selected and seasoned for the purpose; and it is most highly polished in the best possible manner.

The front has an arrangement of ornamental gilt pipes, and the draw stops of the swell organ are of solid ivory, while the rest are of ebony inlaid with ivory. Both the stops and the manuals are protected, when not in use, by handsome moulded plate-glass covers.

It is believed to be unique as a Chamber Organ, containing as it does 24-feet work. The peculiar construction of the case permits of these unusually powerful stops being introduced. The whole Organ, including the pedal pipes, is enclosed in a Swell Box, the Swell Organ being enclosed in an inner Swell Box. There are consequently two Swell Pedals, which can be used either separately or in conjunction, thus combining the most extreme softness with most exquisite crescendo effects.

Although the Instrument can be blown by hand, it is fitted with a New Automatic Hydraulic Engine, which is most admirably adjusted, and made of incorrodible metal, and contains improvements which the Proprietor spent the last year of his life in perfecting; so that it is now considered to be the most perfect hydraulic blowing apparatus yet made.

There is also a very handsome Music Cabinet of the same style and wood as the case.

SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS.

GREAT ORGAN.

[Within a General Swell.]

	Feet		Notes
1. Open Diapason	8	Metal (GG to G)	61
2. Stopped Diapason Bass 3. Stopped Diapason Treble	8	Wood (GG to G)	61
4. Viol di Gamba	8	Metal (Tenor C to G)	44
5. Dulciana	8	Metal (Tenor C to G)	44
6. Principal	4	Metal (GG to G)	61
7. Flute	4	Wood (GG to G)	61
			332

SWELL ORGAN.

[Within a Swell Box (Tenor C to G).]

	Feet		Notes
1. Double Dulciana	16	Wood and Metal	44
2. Open Diapason	8	Metal	44
3. Gamba	8	Metal	44
4. Claribella and Stopped Diapason	8	Wood	44
5. Principal	4	Metal	44
6. Flageolet	4	Wood	44
7. Piccolo	2	Wood	44
8. Doublette	1	Metal	44
9. Cornopean	8	Metal	44
10. Oboe	8	Metal	44
11. Cremona	8	Metal	44
			484

[The keys of the Swell Organ are of the same compass as the Great Organ, 61 notes; the Bass being borrowed from Pedal Organ (GG to B). Bourdon, 24 feet; Violone, 12 feet; and Bassoon, 12 feet.]

PEDAL ORGAN.

CCC to C. 25 Notes.

1. Bourdon	16ft. tone	Wood	30
2. Violone	16ft.	Wood	37
3. Violone octave	8ft.	Wood
4. Double Bassoon	16ft.	Metal	37
5. Bassoon	8ft.	Metal
				104

Total number of Pipes—920.

Nearly all the metal pipes are of the best spotted metal.

Couplers.

Swell to Great.
Great to Pedals.
Great to Swell (Bass).

Composition Pedals.

3 to Great Organ.
3 to Swell Organ (which latter act also on the Pedal Organ).

Dimensions:—Height, 11 feet; width, 7 feet; depth, 13 feet 6 inches.

The mahogany case is only 4 feet deep enclosing the part shown in the drawing-room, the rest of the Organ being built outside the room.

The instrument can be seen and tried by appointment in London. Letters to be addressed to Dr. Alder Smith, Christ's Hospital, E.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
APRIL 1, 1879.

ON BEETHOVEN AND HIS "MISSA SOLEMNIS."

By Fr. Niecks.

Beethoven towers, as a tone-poet, above all the composers who have lived before and after him. There have been artists of superior constructive powers, and of greater specifically musical genius; but in height, depth, and width of mental and emotional compass Beethoven stands a giant amongst pigmies. Even such men as Bach and Mozart do not reach his height, fathom his depth, and cover his width. With Bach thought is as yet too much fettered by form, and his spiritual nature, beautiful as it is in its religious faith and fervour, its loving, lovable humility, its good-natured joyousness, and homely humour, lacks the Promethean boldness, the rapturous exaltation, the strong passion, and the humour that smiles with a bruised heart, which distinguish Beethoven. And Mozart, the amor ac deliciae generis humani, might he not have uttered the words put by Robert Browning into the mouth of Andrea del Sarto?—

> I can do with my pencil what I know
> What I see, what at bottom of my heart
> I wish for, if I ever wish so deep—
> Do easily, too—when I say, perfectly,
> I do not boast, perhaps * * *
> * * * * * *
> No sketches first, no studies, that's long past:
> I do what many dream of all their lives > —Dream? strive to do, and agonise to do,
> And fail in doing.

Indeed, with Mozart's art, too, "all is silver-grey, placid and perfect;" and had he lived to know the full-grown Beethoven, thoughts might have arisen within him similar to those of Andrea del Sarto:—

> The worse!
> I know both what I want and what might gain:
> And yet how profitless to know, to sigh
> "Had I been two, another and myself,
> Our head would have o'erlooked the world!"
> * * * * * *
> Well, I can fancy how he did it all,
> Pouring his soul, with kings and popes to see,
> Reaching, that heaven might so replenish him,
> Above and through his art—for it gives way.

Whilst thus extolling the personality of the youngest of the three composers, I tacitly admit, of course, that Bach and Mozart possessed excellencies unattained and unattainable by Beethoven. Also, in saying that Mozart might have used the words of Andrea del Sarto, I must not be understood to hold these men up as parallel natures. Indeed, the discovery and pointing out of resemblances, although often pleasing as plays of fancy, and sometimes useful as illustrations of one or a few qualities of the subjects compared, are on the whole of subordinate and doubtful advantage. For instance, it has become the custom to couple the names of Beethoven and Michael Angelo, of Mozart and Raphael together. Do you think our perception of their genius has thereby gained much in clearness? To be sure, we recognise in Mozart, as in Raphael, loveliness of outline, tenderness of feeling—in one word, an irresistible persuasive beauty; and in Beethoven, as in Michael Angelo, a severe, imposing grandeur, a strength that seems superhuman, and the expression of an individuality free from all narrowness and littleness. But these resemblances are only superficial, and leave the kernel untouched. Differences tell us much more; they are generally the characteristic points. One difference in the cases of Raphael and Mozart, of Beethoven and Michael Angelo, is already expressed by the fact of their not practising the same art. That it is a radical difference will be evident at least to all those who have reflected on the aims and capabilities of the respective arts, and are not believers in Johnson's definition of genius, as "a greater general capacity accidentally determined to a particular direction." As, however, we are here not concerned with the wider question implied in a comparison between art and art, we will now return to the main road, and confine ourselves to individuals of the same kind—to musicians.

Mozart's mental and artistic constitution, then, manifested itself by an easy and abundant production; and that of Beethoven by a "pouring" of his soul, an ardent "reaching," a striving at times agonising, but never ending in failure. "The insight and stretch" of the latter were "out of" the former; whilst the silver-grey tints, the placidity, and the peculiar perfection of the former were "out of" the latter. Indeed, it could not be otherwise; these individual qualities are incompatibilities.

If as musicians we may disagree as to who was the greater of the two, as men we must award the palm to Beethoven—to him who aimed higher and strove more nobly. It is the spiritual contents that give a work of art real and lasting value. The works of Mozart exemplify this. His dramatic works, if we except his youthful attempts and the uninspired "La Clemenza di Tito," are as fresh and as vigorous now as when they were first performed. The same may be said of some of his symphonies and works of chamber-music, of those parts of the "Requiem" that are his, and also, with certain reservations, of a few of his concertos, &c. But the greater number of his works had but a short-lived existence, which cannot be attributed to bad workmanship. And this brings us face to face with the popular belief—which is but a prejudice—that musical works are more subject to the rule and fate of fashion than literary ones.

The cause of the inferiority of music in regard to the number of surviving works of past ages must be sought in the greater youth of the musical art. A survey of the index of any history of literature will, however, show that the old books that are not sleeping their last sleep on the dusty shelves of libraries, undisturbed except by curious students, are comparatively few. When literature had produced its Dante, music was still in its childhood, and had, as it were, scarcely left off making mud-pies; when the world was dazzled with the splendour of the renaissance of architecture, sculpture, and painting, music was at school drudging away at its grammar, or breaking its head over the solution of mathematical problems and logical subtleties with which it delighted to puzzle its friends, giving only here and there signs of having something to say worth saying, if it only knew how to say it. Even Palestrina's art—so much extolled, justly from an historical, perhaps also from an ecclesiastical, point of view, but rather admirable for its negative qualities (looking backward to what music had been) than for its positive ones (looking forward to what it ought to be or might be)—has very little in common with our art. It does not yet transcend the emotional capabilities of architecture. The proportions of tones and tone-combinations produce an impression of repose and grandeur, but the power of expressing the subtle and strong, the simple and complex, the more intimate and definite feelings, which our modern music possesses, and which insures to it such a high position among its sister-arts, is foreign to, and unsuspected by, the earlier one, in which matter had still the ascendency over mind.

At what time did music come of age? This is a difficult question which I will not attempt to answer here. But when that event took place, music had still to forget much it had learned in the schools, acquire much by experience and self-observation, and sow its wild oats besides, before it attained the age of wise discretion, and with it independent thoughts and natural manners. Having at last reached this point, it became the equal of the sister-arts, and thenceforth the same claims might be made on it as on them; and I think it was able to satisfy all those that were just. Indeed, from the time that music is something more than a more or less pleasing combination of melodic lines and harmonic masses it produces as many immortal works as the other arts. It has been said of modes of speech that "those which owe their prevalence to modish folly die away;" of manners, "that such as depend upon standing relations and general passions are coextended with the race of man—but those modifications of life and peculiarities of practice which are the progeny of error and perverseness, or at best of some accidental influence or transient persuasion, must perish with their parents;" of philosophy, that time effaces the fictions of opinions, and confirms the determination of nature; and of art, we may say that, if it plays only with the vapid fancies and hollow forms of individuals, nationalities, and ages, it will be as changeful as the fashions of dress and furniture, and like them in after-time valuable and interesting only to the collector of curiosities and to the antiquarian. The examples are many and various, the principle is one and the same: only the spirit liveth, all else must die. And here again the pre-eminence of Beethoven shows itself. Is there any other composer of whom, fifty years after his death, so many works have retained all their vigour and freshness? I venture to answer, no. And this is so because they are fuller of weighty thought and freer from the taints and frivolities of fashions and formulas than those of any other composer. This is the point I was making for. I hope the reader has not found the roundabout way in which I have led him too tiresome and too tedious.

Hitherto I have spoken only of Beethoven's predecessors, although I have already indicated that none of his successors equalled him in force of genius. As little as it can be said that Beethoven superseded Bach, Handel, Haydn, Gluck, and Mozart, as little can it be said that he forestalled Mendelssohn, Schumann, Wagner, Liszt, Chopin and others, who all have more or less contributed to the enrichment of the musical treasury. Nevertheless, with all these rivals, some of them formidable ones, he stands there on his high pedestal unshaken, and as we look up to him in wonder and awe, his colossal dimensions seem to be rather increasing than diminishing.

The "Missa solemnis" occupies almost as unique a position among Beethoven's works as the composer among his brother artists. He himself calls it, in a letter to Ries, his greatest work; in the prospectus by which he invited subscribers it is described as his greatest and most successful work; and upon it he never ceased to look with particular satisfaction and pride. This Opus 123 seems to me the culminating pinnacle of that grand edifice which he erected with a life's labour, and cemented with his heart's blood. With reference to the Credo, Beethoven wrote on the cover of the MS. "from the heart it has come, to the heart it shall penetrate." This gives us a glimpse of how he regarded the work. We are still further enlightened by the manner in which he produced it. Alessandro Scarlatti is said to have set the Mass two hundred times to music, and the musical savant Glareanus relates of the composer Obrecht, that in the course of a single night he could write with ease a whole Mass that would excite the admiration of the connoisseurs. Beethoven, on the other hand, composed only two Masses, and worked at the one now under discussion for more than three years—from 1818 till the beginning of 1822—although, as he intended it for the installation of his pupil, the Archduke Rudolph, as Archbishop of Olmütz, which took place on March 20, 1820, a stimulus was not wanting to urge him on. And he not only took time but also much trouble. Whilst working at it, his whole being seemed to assume another form, says Schindler. "I never saw Beethoven in a similar state of absolute detachment from the terrestrial world." What a sight it must have been when, wild, dishevelled, faint with toil and twenty-four hours' fasting, he came suddenly out of his room where he had shut himself in, and had been heard singing, shouting, and stamping, whilst composing the "Et vitam venturi" of the Mass! The godlike in the man, the memory of the divine idea dawning on the night of his human forgetfulness, was struggling to free itself from the dross under which it lay buried. Handel is a grand, broad-viewed, popular preacher; Bach a subtle, warm-hearted exponent of the word; Mozart a worldly curate, not without true piety, but accommodating; Mendelssohn a sincere, sweet-tongued teacher of a religion of sentiment, pure although not deep; but Beethoven a sublime seer and mystic.

In the opening bars of the "Missa," we enter, as it were, from the grand majestic portal into a wide and lofty cathedral. And there what impressive lessons do we learn, what unspeakable revelations do we receive from this "God-intoxicated" man! Now he fills our soul with awe, now with thankfulness, now with pity, now with contrition, now with rapture. The heavens open, and that infinite love which is the uniting bond of the immensity is revealed to us. If there is a language of mysticism, that language is music. Jacob Böhme and Swedenborg would have succeeded better in interpreting their meaning if they could have called the musical language to their aid. Of what avail can be the language of reasoning when you overstep the sphere of reasoning and enter the world beyond? To Beethoven the words of the Mass are no more than sign-posts that show him the way to regions undreamt of. Some people see only the posts and no writing on them; others see the writing and cannot read it; others again see and read, but have not earnestness, strength, or courage enough to follow out the direction—they sit down and rest beside the posts, or dispute about the spelling of the writing on them. Not so Beethoven. He advances boldly, indefatigably, searchingly, always in that ascending direction indicated, up into a purer atmosphere, out of the region of controversy. His church music is catholic in the fullest sense of the word, it is free from all admixture of sectarianism: it is Christianity in its purity. Whoever is a true man, be he a Christian, Jew, or Mahometan, can worship with Beethoven.

I look upon the "Missa solemnis" as a supplement to the "Choral Symphony" (although this was completed later)—as a higher solution of the problem of existence. In the Symphony the doubts, struggles, and sufferings of the individual are merged in the joy of love and universal brotherhood: in the Mass the import of what is there felt as a blind impulse is revealed in the fulness of its truth—the pride of self is resolved into humility at the sight of the immensity of the all-embracing unity. "I felt as if I were a worm, and had ceased to be a man." This was the answer of the musical conductor Albrecht when, on returning to St. Petersburg from Germany, where he had heard the "Missa solemnis," he was asked what he thought of it.

Emerson says that "the world still wants its poet-priest, a reconciler, who shall not trifle with Shakespeare the player, nor grope in graves with Swedenborg the mourner." But, I ask, has not the world such a poet-priest, such a reconciler, in Beethoven? Some may hesitate to answer the question in the affirmative, remembering, on the one hand, the words Emerson adds, "who shall see, speak, and act with equal inspiration;" and, on the other hand, the faults and oddities of Beethoven, which take up so (as I think, unproportionately) large a space in his biographies. As, however, the whole life of Beethoven exhibits a uniform nobleness of aim, honesty of purpose, love of truth, depth of religion, self-devotion to duty, as even his very failings are virtues distorted by the influences of early misfortunes and bodily disease, there is nothing that disproves, and there are his works, those revelations of beauty and truth, that prove his faithful discharge of the office of "poet-priest," of "reconciler."

These general remarks ought to be supplemented by particular ones, and perhaps I may be permitted to give an analysis of the work another day. To those who are not acquainted with the "Missa solemnis," my assertions, unsupported by reference to chapter and verse, will no doubt appear rather high-pitched; but I am confident that those who have had the privilege of being present at a performance of it will stand by me. The most extraordinary work of so extraordinary a man as Beethoven cannot be discussed in the same key as an examination Cantata.

HARMONY MODES.

By Joseph Green.

In the last two or three numbers of The Musical Times there have appeared letters from correspondents on what they choose to describe as the "Notation of the German Sixth." Theorists and musicians will have glanced at those letters with a certain awe and sense of weariness, and outsiders may have wondered what possible difference it could make whether we employ an E flat or a D sharp. The difference, however, is one of the vexed points in musical theory; it is like the two A A in the scale or the "big big D" and the lesser one. Since the establishment of what we are pleased to call the "new tonality," each succeeding generation of theorists, musicians, and correspondents has had its say on certain obvious difficulties in that system—difficulties we are content to put out of sight by three practical devices: equal temperament, the fixed doh, and one method of transposition. Every little contribution to the science of acoustics, from Sauveur to Helmholtz, draws out a fresh line of skirmishers, who, from some fancied new standpoint, take their shots at the battered targets. We are now more than two centuries removed from the birth of Sauveur, and nearly seventeen years from the date of the first edition of the "Tonempfindungen," and as far as can be seen the old targets are as staunch as ever. All that Helmholtz has done for us in proving that harmony and quality of sound are the same thing in kind, is enabling us to scientifically define certain intervals which mathematicians formerly classified according to ratio, and musicians by their effect; the latter often falling into the error of estimating a consonance by its sweetness or æsthetical value. Even a theorist and philosopher of the last generation, Virués y Spinola, considered the "minor third" to be the only true consonance, and we have scarcely survived notions somewhat similar in regard to the major third. In theory books of quite recent date, we are also left in a little doubt as to whether, in the major diatonic scale, there is any dissonance beyond the "second" and its inversion.

In technical theory, which is much more than a thing of "beats" and "upper partials," musicians are quite right in classifying as dissonant only those intervals that imperatively require resolution. It is not a question of degree of dissonance. One second requires resolution as much as another, although the difference in degree of dissonance is enormous. An octave or fifth out of tune, the worst dissonance we have, cannot be resolved; it is simply adjusted. Augmented fifths and seconds in passing to sixths and thirds are called progressions rather than resolutions. These distinctions without differences are necessary in technical phraseology, because as soon as we get out of our acoustical "primer" into music—or motion—the main point is not the exact intonation of the separate interval, but to what scale does it belong—and where is it to go? In other words, at the very commencement of the question the scale asserts its pre-eminence. On that account we are still limited in "pure harmony" to the triad, and have to complete the tetrads with added sounds, which are not necessarily harmony intervals.

To use a very ancient expression, "the harmonies of the scale" are to some extent pre-arranged by science and arithmetic. Without those invaluable aids we should have no bearings. The ratios of the tetrachordal basis of a scale may yet be considered as the first fact in music. A triad standing alone is barely a musical fact, unless we name its fundamental, either tonic or dominant. A triad is like an abstract sound; and it is an imperfect representation of an abstract complex sound.

Changing the tetrachordal basis of a system of scales is like changing the barrel of an organ. We thus reset a whole system of three, five, seven, fifteen, or even forty-eight scales. If we take the commonly-received basis, we get all the harmony intervals required except one, the maximum second, 8 : 7, by inversion the seventh, 7 : 4. We can employ the tetrachord 8 : 7, 9 : 8, 28 : 27 accidentally, as it appears it was employed by Archytas more than five centuries before Ptolemy. There is a certain difference between the theory of tuning instruments and technical theory. The inventor of a system of temperament for keyed instruments has to provide for all keys and all systems, whilst the musician has seldom to think of more than a sub-system represented by a few scales, and on that account his arithmetic is more simple.

Reverting to Helmholtz, were we conscientiously to construct a musical system according to his explanations of timbre, we should require a separate theory not only for each family of instruments but for each octave in even one instrument.* Any such complication would be manifestly impracticable. We therefore have to adhere to the old octave system of intervals, and treat a fifteenth as an octave, a tenth as a third, a ninth as a second, an eleventh as a fourth, and so on; the difference being in the timbre, or effect of the distribution of the sounds. A ninth may perhaps not differ very much more from a second than a twenty-third does from a ninth. Something depends upon the octave from which we start, and a great deal upon the quality of the instrument.

* J. G. Schicht, who was born in the middle of last century, and who by the way claims to have been the first to teach systematically the method of counting chords from a fundamental to the 13th—regrets, in a treatise published about seventy years ago, that it should remain so great a "problem" how to determine the effects of different distributions of intervals. That problem has been solved; and no doubt many are working at the results for the purposes of musical theory. The discovery, however, will chiefly assist us in the poetry of sensation and orchestral colouring. So long as counterpoint continues to be nine-tenths of the musical art, we are not likely to spoil our canonic imitations for the sake of a smoother interval. The chief practical points in the question musicians long since discovered for themselves.

In addition to what novelties and assistance we can extract from Helmholtz in regard to harmony, we have at the present day, in this country, to be thankful for a better system of instruction in regard to the scale and its contents. For that advantage we are chiefly indebted to the life-long labours of Mr. Curwen. The necessity of teaching music as well as teaching to play upon an instrument has at least been made more apparent by the newer notation, whatever disadvantages it may possess in other respects compared with the ordinary system. It is curious that one of the correspondents to whom allusion has been made seems to have overlooked the principle of the "movable doh." The mistake he makes has been committed by many who pass for great theorists, but whose minds are wedded to the system of the "fixed doh." The correspondent objects to a statement of his adversary that the progression from E♭ to E♯ "is anomalous." To prove that there is "no anomaly whatever" in passing from a flat to a natural, he gives amongst others an example of an augmented fifth—soh, se—in the triad of A♭. If his triad had been that of A♭♭ the progression would have been theoretically the same—a natural to a sharp; the same sharp as often employed in harmony, that is, on the dominant, being the very d♯ in question; that note and its inversion being the only true chromatics in the key major and minor. The 4♯ (fe), generally treated as another chromatic, represents what after Greek methods may be called a diezeugtic semitone rather than a chromatic, and the difference is of some theoretical importance.

The "anomaly" referred to is not in the flat rising to a natural, for that progression must necessarily occur in the change of any one chord from minor to major. To put the question shortly, the anomaly consists in making diminished intervals rise and augmented intervals fall.* If we take one position of the "German sixth," 6♭, 1, 3♭, 4♯, there is nothing particularly offensive in its resolution on the tonic major triad; but if we take 6♭, 4♯, 1, 3♭ with the same resolution, the diminished seventh 4♯—3♭ would indicate to the ears and intelligence of most people that the 3♭ should either remain stationary, as the characteristic of a chord distinctly in the minor system, or it should be supplanted by the d♯, the old augmented sixth of the subdominant, the root of a minor triad. It sometimes occurs as the sharpened supertonic, the root of a diminished triad, and the same thing practically as the sharpened subdominant in the "German sixth," and theoretically the same in the old system of "adjacent triads" with what were called "chromatics of the scale."

Even Dr. Day will tell us that smoothness of effect is not the main point, and that we cannot take the series of harmonics as a model in harmony because we should have in that case to employ the chords only in one position. Had Dr. Day lived a little later, he would have known better what he meant, by comparing his notions with the modern theory of timbre. Moreover, the notation of chords is a question of modulation or progression; not merely the building up of abstract combinations, which is very well for the acoustician; but the musician who thinks for himself and knows his own wants would despise it. Dr. Day and his eloquent patron Dr. Macfarren, by eliminating the d♯ from the system, defeat in one respect their main object, which was to separate the ancient diatonic system from the modern chromatic. They have no arithmetical chromatic in their system. The f♯, as it has already been said, is not a chromatic semitone; and the d♭ they call a chromatic for the reason we all use generally—that it is not in the received major and minor scales—is a diatonic semitone, the inversion of the leading note of the major scale. In no strict sense can the D flat be called a chromatic. It is an essential in the old Dorian mode, the functional or authentic mi mode inverted. The La mode I would take as the positional or Greek plagal form of the scale. If the latter form, ending as it does in descending, with a whole tone, giving a perfect melodic cadence, has been found more useful to the musician ancient and modern, and if in modern music its harmonies blend better with the normal major system, those considerations have nothing to do with the theory of the question. That the harmonies of the two systems should be required to blend is the great point. When Dr. Stainer announces in his "Treatise on Harmony" that a few chords "consist of a combination of thirds taken from two allied scales"*—when Dr. Macfarren takes the augmented fifth C, G♯ and transposes it into E♭, and treats the E♭ as a minor thirteenth of the dominant of C, and the 5♯ of E♭ as the leading note in what Hauptmann and most others since his time call the minor-major scale of C♯—those gentlemen, I think unconsciously, disclose the trend of modern theory; a trend that to a certain extent is retrograde; a common phenomenon, as Mr. Herbert Spencer would tell us, in the process of evolution.

In an endeavour to contribute something towards what appears to me to be an unmistakable tendency at the present time, I propose to take what is commonly called the Greek scale of 15 sounds, with the addition of the Guidonian Gamma, and also the B♭ from the synemmenon tetrachord. Beginning on the gamma—a necessity foreseen probably by the mediæval writers in approaching our normal major system—the series of sounds is not a scale but a system, from which the various scales, octaves, or modes are derived; and they of course vary in ratio as we ascend in the tetrachordal systems G—C—F—B♭, and according as we commence on the dominant or the tonic. That, so far, is the current theory of scale formation.

As for the Greek nomenclature employed, it is of no practical importance. It suffices that it is not a haphazard nomenclature, and that in one respect—the Mixolydian mode—the system arrives by independent methods at a singular correspondence with what seem to be the notions of Westphal, who says that unless the Mixolydian mode is major—that is, having the first third major—"the whole thing is unintelligible." How useless it is for any one to affect historical accuracy on this subject, we can understand by consulting literally the three most recent commentators, and observing their differences after all that had previously been written. Helmholtz says that there is no instance of the Mixolydian mode in plain chant.† Gevaert says there is, and

* In cases of difficulty or from negligence a composer may write B, D, F, A♭, resolving on C, E, A♯; or C, E, G♯, followed by C, E, G♮, but surely no one would teach such progressions. It must be observed that to speak of the notation of the German sixth as a question between the D♯ and E♭ is altogether a mistake. Unless we employ the E♭ it is not a "German sixth" at all.

* I am afraid that the capital mistake we have all made in our time, from Rameau onwards, is limiting ourselves, for very good reasons as far as they went, to certain fundamentals—the tonic (not possible in a dissonant chord, as in virtue of the dissonance it loses its "tonicity"), the dominant and subdominant, or the supertonic of the KEY. Richter is practically nearer the truth: but there is not an atom of theory in his book; nor is there in scarcely any German technical work. The Germans are famous musicians, but not equally good theorists. The best, perhaps, are the Belgians, the French and Italians. At all events they teach much the same things, with less verbosity and amplification. Dr. Marx employs, I think, over a thousand pages. His "theory" is simply that of Reicha, who puts it in two or three pages of letter-press.

† The evident difficulty in the Mixolydian mode, one of the latest introduced into the Greek system, is in the fact that wherever we take it its characteristic is the augmented tetrachord or tritone. Thus in all other octaves in a sub-system we get by fourths (and with the B♭) gives an undeniable example of it from the Roman antiphonal. Mr. Chappell wants to know what difference there is between the Mixolydian as generally given and the Hypo Dorian (fourth below E), both having the same finals? He may well ask the question. If it is not an affair of ratio as well as of final—that is, of the setting of the system to some form of tetrachordal basis—the nomenclature of the Greek scales like that of the church modes is incomprehensible. What might be observed from the point of view taken in this paper could only be made a little clearer by complicated diagrams and tedious explanations. By way of suggestion, it may be said that if we take the major scale as Lydian, thus, we get a Lydian tone (scale of transposition) and a Lydian mode, and a Dorian octave in power;* that is beginning on the dominant. The Dorian in position is the plagal form of the scale beginning on the subdominant (A—A), or, as the Greeks called it, the proslambanomenos. Hence it appears to me incorrect in any adaptation of Greek methods to the modern harmony system to call the octave A♮—A the Hypo Dorian, although it is so given in the more ancient forms of the Pythagorean system, and may be employed if our theories as well as practice are founded on equal temperament. In the same way, using invariably a series of fourths to show the tetrachordal systems, instead of fifths, the Hyper Dorian A—A differs from the positional Dorian in the D♮ which is 10 : 9, as must naturally occur by a corresponding method employed in modern theory as we ascend in the Greek system towards the Hyperboleon tetrachord. What in relation to the normal diapason C is Hyper Dorian is, of course, Dorian (octave A—A with B♭) in F; and the positional Dorian is D. If, as is very probable, the church modes were originally set to F, and have been gradually transposed to C, the nomenclature of Glareanus in regard to the Dorian mode is after all not so far wrong. Mr. Chappell and many commentators give the Dorian in our system as A. Musicians as a rule work in position—that is from the tonic, not from the dominant, and possibly the ancient musicians also came to treat the plagal or positional form of the old Dorian mode as the normal scale.

We will now consider the practical points of the question in their relation to modern harmony, which day by day our technical theorists, whilst talking about "harmonics," treat more and more as a matter of vertical scales of thirds.

Following very closely certain well-known ancient methods, let us divide the vertical scale into conjunct tetrads, the nominal root of each tetrad being the dominant of an octave mode, and take in the major system FOUR forms of scale—a major, mixo, chromatic and mixo-chromatic; and in the minor, or inverted system, EIGHT forms—functional minor, fl. mr. mixo, f. m. chromatic, f. m. mixo-chromatic, and positional minor, p. m. mixo, p. m. chromatic and p. m. mixo-chromatic; and in the minor-major system FIVE forms—functional minor-major, positional minor major, p. m. mixo, p. m. chromatic, and p. m. mixo-chromatic.

These seventeen forms may appear formidable, if not ridiculous to some people; but in point of fact with supernumerary modes there are twenty-one forms, a number which corresponds with the notes of the modern enharmonic scale, and with the number of signs to which Perne—an exceedingly clever Frenchman—reduced the Greek semeiography.

Theorists who understand the question, and know the complications induced by the mixture of the major minor and chromatic systems—not to speak of the enharmonic—will quite comprehend how easily we can multiply forms of scales. The minor major form is what Gevaert calls the neo-chromatic Greek mode; a chromatic form of the Dorian, either as a question of shift, as B, D♯, F, A, or of inversion and interval progression,* as B♮, D♭, F, A♭, functional minor-major; or B♮, D, F, A♭, positional minor major. This subject of the neo-chromatic or minor-major mode formed the staple of a desultory conversation at the last meeting of the "Musical Association," when Sir Frederick Gore Ouseley read a paper on the "Italian and Spanish Theorists of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries." Producing the book from a collection of valuable old treatises on the table, he showed us that Vanneo in 1533 was the first to introduce the 7♯ in the notation of the minor scale.

Not to trouble the reader more than necessary, I will give the commoner forms of the tetrads of the scales just enumerated, and irrespective of ratios.

	Lydian.	Mixo-Lydian.	Dorian.	Phrygian.
Major	5	7	2	4	6	1	3	Major system.
Mixo	5	7	2	4♯	6	1	3
Chromatic ...	5	7	2♯	4	6	1	3
Mixo-Chromatic	5	7	2♯	4♯	6	1	3

	Lydian.	Mixo-Lydian.	Dorian.	Phrygian.
Functional ...	5	7♭	2♭	4	6♭	1	3♭	Inverted or minor system.
Positional ...	5	7♭	2	4	6♭	1	3♭
Functional minor-major	5	7♮	2♭	4	6♭	1	3♭
Positional minor-major	5	7♮	2	4	6♭	1	3♭
Positional mixo	5	7♭	2	4♯	6♭	1	3♭
Positional mixo-chromatic	5	7♭	2♯	4♯	6♭	1	2♯

By way of illustration let us take the concluding bars of Bach's well-known chorus in the "Passion music" (St. Matthew). The modern musician, with his ordinary notions of two modes, major and minor, could not define even the homophonic scale in which the example is written.

(To be continued.)

a series of what we call dominants and tonics. But in the Mixolydian mode, if the nominal dominant is F the final is B♮. Transposing the octave F—F (I take to be the Mixolydian octave) by interval progression we get a scale of G with the F♯, but commencing on the normal tonic. The scale B—B, usually given as Mixolydian, is obtained from F by transposition, by shift, or by dislocation, and is plagal or positional, and as such I would employ it in harmony. By a systematic elimination from the general series it differs from the Hypo Dorian octave in ratio. In the system suggested, only the two normal modes, Lydian and Dorian, are taken in power or as authentic scales. The Mixolydian and Phrygian—an equal difficulty in the modern system—are taken in position; that is to say, the Phrygian final D is treated as a dominant, the mode differing from the Hypolydian scale of transposition (G) in ratio.

* A French writer, Alix Tiron, says broadly that our major diatonic scale is Dorian. The reasons he gives are not very scholastic, but we see what he means; it is a major octave in the Dorian system.

* Explained in The Musical Times of April, 1878, in an article headed "A Lost Clue in Harmony."

THE GREAT COMPOSERS, SKETCHED BY THEMSELVES.

By Joseph Bennett.

No. V.—SCHUMANN.

(Concluded from page 139.)

A closing article on the letters of this composer may well be devoted to such expressions as are found in them of the writer's opinion of artistic men and things. We do not, it is true, look to these documents as the sole, or even as the chief source of information upon Schumann's views. His numerous contributions to the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, ranging as they do over the whole domain of art, very clearly reveal the inner mind of the master. Nevertheless, the ideas set forth here and there in his private letters should not be despised. I must even insist that they should be specially valued, for the simple reason—a reason best appreciated by those most familiar with journalistic experiences—that a man, be he ever so conscientious, does not in all cases open his whole soul to public inspection. Reservations, without the smallest raison d'être in private correspondence, will often be made when writing for the press, and made independent, in a measure, of the writer's volition. Goethe, therefore, might have gone a step farther than when he said, "Letters are among the most important memorials which any man can leave," and declared that, as regards his inner life, they are by a long way more important than any other.

A very interesting feature in Schumann's private observations is the estimate he gives of some among his contemporaries. The master seems to have been wholly free from professional jealousy. That he was thin-skinned as regards criticism plenty of evidence goes to prove. Like a good many much smaller people, he resented attacks upon his music, though made without personal animus, and was as ready as Beethoven to hit back when those whom the Viennese master called "Leipzig oxen," prodded at him with their horns. But Schumann could see at once, and heartily laud, the merits of a rival. Himself striving gallantly to win the public ear, he did not hesitate, in his capacity both as journalist and correspondent, to pay the frankest homage to the gifted men who ran beside him towards the same goal. This is a precious feature in his character, and one which, perhaps, more than any other, places us in sympathy with him, since it assures us of an inborn nobility which better commands respect than any number of "stars and garters." Let me proceed to give some instances of Schumann's frank and open-hearted appreciation.

Mendelssohn, as everybody knows, was one of the gods of Schumann's idolatry, and whenever the shy, retiring master refers to his brilliant and much-courted contemporary, he does so in almost hyperbolical terms. Writing to his sister-in-law, he says: "I look up to Mendelssohn as to some lofty mountain. He is a true divinity, and you ought to know him." To Carl Koszmaly, he observes: "I surely think Mendelssohn will return to Leipzig this winter. Dear friend, he is the best musician the world now has. Don't you think so? An extraordinary man, or, as Santini said at Rome, a monstrum sine vitio." In another place he says: "No day passes in which he does not utter at least two ideas worthy to be engraven on gold;" while in another, writing to Keferstein, the master apologises for his friend: "You are right about the Berlin man; he was very saucy. Still, if you knew his music, you'd judge him more mildly. He is one of the most dauntless geniuses I ever knew." With reference to the last extract, though the object of it is not expressly defined, there can hardly be a doubt of identity. Only one "Berlin man" answered at that time to Schumann's description; and we all very well know that Mendelssohn could, on occasion, assert himself with exceptional spirit. It may appear strange that Schumann should so ardently worship a composer between whom and himself, as respects thought and expression, lay a gulf both deep and wide. But the proverb "like loves like" has by no means a universal application. It is more often the case that men, and women too, love that which is the complement of themselves—that, in other words, which united to themselves makes up a perfect nature. The weak and gentle cling to the strong and bold; the ardent and passionate have an affinity for the calm and reserved; and in this case the deeply subjective Schumann, who loved best to commune with himself in silence and solitude, saw his complement in the man who floated through the atmosphere of art like a beautiful butterfly, after which everybody felt inclined to run with a net. Chopin, whose talent Schumann early recognised and proclaimed, was another favourite of the master. "It is touching to see him at the piano," he wrote to Heinrich Dorn. "You would love him dearly." Of Bennett he said: "Then there is a young Englishman, William Bennett, in daily intercourse with us, thoroughly English, a splendid musician, and a poetic and beautiful spirit." Concerning Wagner (à propos to "Tannhäuser") we read: "I wish you could hear Wagner's 'Tannhäuser.' It is deep, original, and a hundred times better than his earlier operas, although there's much trivial music in it. On the whole, a great thing might be made of it on the stage; and I know he has plenty of courage. I consider the execution and instrumentation remarkable—incomparably finer than anything he ever did. He has another libretto ready, 'Lohengrin.'" Towards younger men than himself Schumann extended the same warm sympathy and admiration for meritorious qualities. Concerning a now well known pianist and artistic gladiator he wrote to Brendel: "Young Mr. von Bülow asks for a couple of lines to you, which I gladly give; for he is a very good pianist, and also a cultivated man who improves on closer acquaintance. I beg you will receive him kindly." From this it appears that even in 1849, Dr. von Bülow resembled the modest violet, the greatest charm of which is only discoverable by putting the nose close to it. Of Ritter the master said, in the same fatherly way: "I think I've helped young Ritter's progress. His nature is decidedly musical, though as yet undeveloped. I don't know whether he'll do something great or vanish without a trace. He needs incessant guidance." Gade was another of Schumann's charges, and the self-appointed guardian would often slip in a word for the Danish musician. "I liked your article on public taste very much," he wrote to Brendel, "and also the arrangement of my symphony, only I was sorry Gade was forgotten." But the charm of this feature of our master's character appears at its fullest in some letters addressed to Carl Reinecke, the present head of the Leipzig Conservatory. The first of these may be quoted as much for its opinions as for its amiability. It appears that, in 1846, when Reinecke was, of course, a very young man, he sent a selection of his compositions to Schumann, whereupon the elder musician answered: "I lacked time to send you a letter yesterday, so write a few lines to-day. I read your compositions with great interest and liked much in them—the rare cleverness and noble aims revealed in them. But you must not deceive yourself into thinking that you can produce anything perfectly new, or avoid the frequent repetition of recollections and prefigurations. At your youthful age all creation must needs be mere reproduction; just as the ore must undergo many cleansing processes before it becomes pure metal. The best culture for an individual melodious mind is to write a great deal for the voice, for an independent chorus, and above all to conceive and shape mentally as far as possible. Look forward with joy to your future, but do not forget the pianist. Skilful execution is a great thing when it is the means of representing truly artistic work." I need hardly stop to point out the true philosophy of Schumann's remarks.

that in youth, as a rule, "all creation must needs be mere reproduction." The fact is exemplified on all hands and in every art, but particularly in the art of of music, and by its greatest professors. Young Mozart reproduced Haydn; young Beethoven reproduced Mozart; and young Mendelssohn—to cite no others among a crowd—reproduced Bach in modern dress. So it will always be, and youthful composers, with any power in them at all, can afford to despise the reproach of imitativeness, or pass it lightly by with "Qui vivra, verra." Schumann appears to have taken very kindly to Reinecke, and their correspondence became intimate, partly on account of the Leipzig musician arranging for the pianoforte some of the master's works. In one of his half-professional, half-friendly communications Schumann made a few very interesting remarks with regard to his well-known "Album for Young People," which he had then (1848) just written. Beginning with a reference to some earlier works taken in hand by Reinecke, the composer said: "Accept many thanks for the trouble and labour bestowed upon these elder children of mine. The younger, too—born the day before yesterday—plead for your sympathy. Really one always loves the youngest best; but these are peculiarly dear to my heart, and truly belong to family life. The first thing in the Album was written for our eldest child's birthday; and in this way one after another was called forth. It seemed as if I were beginning my life as a composer anew, and you'll see traces of the old humour. They're decidedly different from the 'Kinderscenen.' Those are retrospective glances by a parent and for grown folks; while the Christmas Album contains foreshadowings, presentiments and peeps into futurity for the young. But why tell you all this?—you who dive so deeply and sympathetically into my music. You will understand the meaning of these little things better than any one else, and get on their right side."

Many observations of like special interest, and many, the interest of which is general, are scattered through Schumann's letters to his friends. For example, addressing Herr Van Bruyck at Vienna, he said: "I should prefer speaking with you of the musical works of which you wrote me—writing is always so clumsy. Accustom yourself—supposing you have been otherwise accustomed—to think out music freely in your mind, without the aid of a piano. In this way only will the mental fountains flow, and gush with ever-increasing clearness and purity. You must write, as I said, but little. The most important thing is for the musician to refine his inner ear." Further citations might be made, but no more are needed to prove the kindness and quick appreciation with which Schumann regarded contemporary musicians. Eager for his own advancement, he never refused to help the progress of others, and it is impossible to contemplate him in this light without admiration and respect.

I have just said that Schumann was eager for his own advancement, and must now remark that, though constitutionally indisposed to thrust himself in person before the public, he took good care that his works should not suffer for want of "pushing." Writing to Fischhof as early as 1834, he said, "Art cannot exist without encouragement. A Mozart or a Raphael would have been mere tillers of the soil on the favourite solitary island in a peaceful sea." On another occasion he remarked to Dorn, "Sometimes a man imagines he can do without the world; but I rather agree with Jean Paul when he says, 'Air and admiration are the only things which a man can and must unceasingly swallow.'" Later in life, after marriage, he became absolutely prosaic, saying to Koszmaly, "Once I was indifferent whether people cared for me or not, but when a man has a wife and children it's another affair. Then he has to think of the future—wants to see the fruits of his labours; not the artistic but the matter of fact fruits, which can be brought and increased only by fame." The practical outcome of these sentiments was a sharp eye for opportunities to gain a favourable review. No chance of the kind was lost, and some of the master's endeavours to turn chances to account were both ingenious and amusing. On one occasion Schumann tried to enlist on his behalf the pen of Moscheles, using, for that purpose, expressions fully interesting enough to quote. He said: "More than a month ago I sent you, through your father-in-law, the sonata which you heard Clara Wieck play. Since I consider myself a link in the great chain, it should be briefly introduced to the readers of my journal. An auto-criticism has nought in its favour, and is quite as difficult as thankless. So wont you send me your opinion of the work in as few words as possible, and permit me to publish it with your name? The sonata does not bear my name, but those of 'Florestan and Eusebius' as authors; so that they alone appeal to you. I should then introduce your words as follows: 'On account of the fraternity of authors, the editors felt obliged to seek the opinion of a third party in regard to this sonata, Professor Moscheles being kind enough to send us the following lines.' Should you, my dear sir, have any open or secret reasons for refusing my request, I should, of course, withdraw it at once; but if you have none, and consider the composition worthy that high form of art in which it is clothed, and, on account of the aspiration by which I am sure it is marked deserving commendation, you may believe me deeply grateful. Your words would have great influence in increasing the circulation of the Journal, which would much delight Mr. Kistner, the publisher. This is the prosaic side of the matter. But did you know how I hope to reach the topmost branches of the tree of heaven, and how I seem to hear in my lonely hours songs from above, which I shall yet reveal to my beloved fellow-men, you could not refuse me the encouraging words essential to every artist." Schumann wrote to Dorn in the same strain: "I don't know whether it is proper to have anything about myself in my own paper. It depends a great deal upon how it is done. People must know that I have the best reasons for saying nothing on such a subject, &c. But I trust to your judgment and insight." Again, to Keferstein, concerning a rival journalist and critic, Fink, whose policy was to let Schumann severely alone: "I hope to be able to show you some of my songs soon; Breitkopf and Härtel have just published a number. It is too contemptible of Fink never to have mentioned a single one of my compositions for nine years, although they have always made such an impression that it was almost impossible to overlook them. It does not trouble me for my own sake but on account of their influence, which I know to be that of the music of the future." The feeling here expressed is most naïvely uttered in the course of a subsequent letter, which actually suggests to the recipient where the writer might be most effectively praised. Thus the passage runs: "Your article is a new proof of your friendly feeling. Some things in it, particularly in regard to myself, seem to me (don't take it amiss) too enthusiastic. If the article bore the signature of its kind author (which I could not expect of you in your situation) I should have no scruples. But the public are rather suspicious of anonymous enthusiasm, and imagine there's some good friend in the case; and if this is so, for you are a dear and valued friend, the public require the name, that they may be able to trust and believe. However that may be, your sympathy gladdens my heart. I hope my future works may at least not lessen it. If you wished to bestow public praise upon Clara and me the Frankfort Journal would be a good place. Still, I fear the editors take too little interest in strangers. Try them, dear friend. If they won't take your article, I would propose the Evening Journal, or, still better, the Journal of Elegance. I am, to tell the truth, too proud to wish to influence Fink through Härtel, especially as I hate any quickening of public opinion by the artist himself. Any one who is really meritorious will succeed. Do not think I am deaf to solid, skilful criticism, but an artist should not trust to himself for it."

In 1842, Schumann and his wife contemplating a visit to Vienna, the master begged his friend Koszmaly to do the needful puff preliminary.—"This brings me" wrote Schumann "to a petition. We (my wife and I) made an excursion a short time ago to Bohemia, and among other places, to Königswart, where Prince Metternich was. He received us most graciously and promised his protection in a very friendly manner if we should visit Vienna. This quite pleased me. Now, I should like the people there to know somewhat of my compositions, and should especially like my first symphony performed, and perhaps one other. The Viennese are ignorant people, and, on the whole, don't know much which goes on outside their own city. However, they are well known in the musical world, and a favourable reception there would be most advantageous to me. Will you not introduce me and my symphonies by an article in Schmidt's paper? In that case I will send you the piano score à quatremains, and, if you wish, the whole score. The review must be published by October, because, if we go, we must start in November. Write me a friendly 'Yes' if possible, and let me thank you in advance for it." On other occasions Schumann, who deserves all the credit due to perseverance, said, still addressing Koszmaly: "With some timidity I inclose a parcel of my old compositions. You will easily perceive how immature and incomplete they are. They are mostly reflections of my agitated youth: the man and musician in me strove for simultaneous expression. It is so even now that I have learned to command my music and myself better. . . . Now don't call me vain if I send you these old things, which I outgrew long ago, and thankfully accept your kind offer to say a word or two about them. I always despised an artist who sent his trash fresh from the press to all the editors as fast as the post could carry it. . . . My works, I think, give food for reflection; and it will be easy for you to write a couple of columns on them. As Härtel published most of them he would be much gratified by a brief notice in your journal. As these early works are to be brought before the public, perhaps it will be well to state that none but the first four have been alluded to in any paper for ten years. I think it would do to write your article independently, and not in the usual style of reviews; but do as you like, dear friend. When you have waded through this first heap I'll send you, if you wish, a second (my lyric period) and perhaps the symphonies and my last chamber music." Concerning such a man as Schumann, and in connection with such music as that referred to above, it would perhaps, be wrong to use the word "bore." Nevertheless, one would much like to know what Koszmaly thought of his correspondent at the time.

Schumann's letters contain but few remarks upon the great composers of previous generations. In fact there are only two instances in which opinions with regard to them are frankly stated. One of these has reference to Palestrina. Addressing Franz Bendel the master said: "I owe you many thanks for the music you sent me, especially Palestrina's. It often sounds like the music of the spheres, and then what art! I think he's the greatest musical genius Italy ever produced." On another occasion, Schumann, addressing Keferstein, discussed Bach at some length: "I have often—dare I confess it?—doubted if you took the same interest in the efforts of the junior portion of the musical world that I once remarked. A remark recently made by you in a Stuttgart paper confirms my suspicion. You said 'From Bach and Kuhnau we first learn the source of Haydn and Mozart's music, but not where the new generation get theirs.' Such, at least, was the idea. But I don't quite agree with you. Mozart and Haydn knew Bach but partially, on single sides, and it is by no means clear how a mere intimate knowledge of him would have affected their productions. But the deep combinations, poetry and humour of the new school of music draws its inspiration largely from Bach. Mendelssohn, Bennett, Chopin, Hiller, and all the romanticists (I mean the Germans) approach Bach much more nearly than Mozart; for they all are thoroughly acquainted with him. I myself bow daily before this lofty spirit, aspiring to purify and strengthen myself through him. Then Kuhnau, honourable and delightful as he may be, should not be ranked with Bach. Even had Kuhnau written the 'Well-tempered Clavichord', he would be but the hundredth part of Bach. In my estimation Bach is incomparable, incommensurable." With these words of truth and soberness I close my extracts from Schumann's most valuable and interesting letters.

As to the man whom our investigation has revealed in the light emanating from himself, there can be no need to say much. He has appeared to us in many phases, in various bodily and mental states, and under all manner of conditions with regard to extraneous things. But he has never lost our sympathy and admiration. Even his littlenesses had their origin in amiability of nature or greatness of purpose, while his peculiarities of constitution, taken together with their reflection in his music, show that art demands for its completeness painful service as well as joyous devoirs. There are birds who sing best in the sunshine, and there are others who must be blinded in order that out of darkness may come their noblest carollings.

CLASSICAL MUSIC.

By Charles K. Salaman.

Classical Music is an expression in common use. Its just signification is, however, not as commonly understood. It will be my endeavour to ascertain, and if possible establish, its correct meaning. The ordinary reply to the enquiry,—"What is classical music?" although, to some extent, true, is nevertheless an extremely vague and limited one,—insufficient and unsatisfactory. It is said to be music of a certain standard of excellence composed by the great masters, among whom are specially named, Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Weber, Spohr, and Mendelssohn. It is affirmed to be music moulded in the form of the modern Sonata—a form which would comprise Sonatas for single instruments, and for one or more instruments in concert; Concertos for solo instruments accompanied by the orchestra,—a form which would also include the modern Overture and the orchestral Symphony.

As in the world of literature there are literary-classics—a classic being understood to signify an author of the highest rank—so, in the realms of music, there are, in an analogous position, music-classics. It must not be inferred, however, that all music composed by a music-classic must needs be classical; neither does it necessarily follow that every musician who composes classical music may be entitled to take rank as a classic.

How then shall classical music be defined? Speaking in comprehensive terms it may be defined as music composed upon certain established scientific principles, universally recognised by cultured judges of music as true; music, moreover, of great excellence, displaying a high order of musical talent, if not of elevated genius, and originality of musical thought; rich in musical ideas, logically treated, and developed with masterly skill;—music, in fine, which fulfils the conditions that are deemed essential to constitute it of superlative excellence.

Unlike literature, music has no classics of antiquity. Albeit the eldest of the sister arts, music, in its practical results, is the youngest. Leaping over many ages, the sixteenth century must be reached ere a musician qualified as a music-classic, and music which may be justly denominated classical, can be met with. Even at that comparatively late period is found much crude musical erudition devoid of grace and beauty, learned theoretical contrivance, in canon and fugue, with little or no embellishment of melody or modulation to impart to it the warmth of life and the charm of sympathy.

It is a fact in musical history that music passed from Flanders to Italy, and there took root. Italy, which had long been famous for her priceless treasures in poetry, architecture, sculpture, and painting, welcomed music as her youngest daughter. She was soon patronised and encouraged by the Church, which had already given countenance and support to her elder sisters. Music-composers arose and flourished, and consecrated their genius to religion. Palestrina, Croce, Carissimi, Stradella, Scarlatti, Cesti, Marcello, Leo, Durante, Clari, and other illustrious masters of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, inspired by the sublimity of their sacred themes, sanctified music, and elevated her to the pinnacle of glory. Italy became the recognised Academy of Music for the entire world, and her musicians were the acknowledged teachers of the "Divine Art." Their sacred works may be justly regarded as the massive pillars of that beautiful and classic temple—the Musical Parthenon of Italy—to which all aspirants for high distinction in music turned for instruction and inspiration.

When music was summoned to the assistance of the drama, in the form of Opera, hardly any appreciable difference was perceptible between music composed for the Church and that designed for the stage. The rules for the composition of music for opera, as laid down by the early great musicians of Italy, were stringent, and they were inflexibly maintained by all subsequent composers of Italian opera, whether natives of Italy or of foreign countries; such, for example, as Hasse, Handel, Paer, Simone Mayer, and Meyerbeer—in his earliest dramatic works. Being composed after a high standard of merit insisted upon by the then greatest music-classics of that age, their music was generally accepted as classical.

England, in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, could also proudly boast of her music-classics, and of her classical music designed for the service of the Church. The grand simplicity of the Protestant Cathedral Service inspired Tallis, Byrde, Gibbons, Purcell, and other great English musicians to consecrate their musical genius also to religion; and thus England possesses a repertory of ecclesiastical music of transcendent beauty by native composers, which, for sublimity and classic purity in construction and vocal harmony, is unsurpassed, perhaps unequalled, by the Church-music of any other country. Then the great Madrigal composers of England and Italy claim admittance to the inner circle of music-classics, and their productions claim to be entitled classical. In the category of music so called, must also be admitted the Suites de Pièces, precursors of the early Sonata, composed by Sebastian Bach, Handel, Frescobaldi, Rameau, Martini, Couperin, Muffat, Corelli, Geminiani, Tartini, and others for the harpsichord, organ, and violin, introducing ancient dance measures invented in Spain, France, Germany, and England which gave place subsequently to music shaped in another manner, such, for instance, as the early Sonata, by Domenico Scarlatti, William Friedemann Bach, Emanuel Bach, Pescetti, Galuppi, Paradies, and other musicians who flourished in the beginning and middle of the eighteenth century. These after a time were superannuated, so to speak; and again, another form of instrumental music devised and richly endowed by Haydn, Clementi, Mozart, Dussek, Steibelt, John Field, Woelfl, Cramer, Beethoven, Hummel, and Moscheles, bearing the classic impress, was accepted as a model for all classical instrumental music. Although Beethoven adopted this form, and used it with more or less variety as the outline of all his Concertos and orchestral Symphonies, he modified it to some extent in many of his pianoforte Sonatas. It is unnecessary to particularise works now so familiar.

About the year 1820, or earlier, a style of instrumental music was introduced by celebrated pianists and other instrumentalists for the purpose of exhibiting their own extraordinary and special executive powers. Fantasias, Capriccios, and endless airs with brilliant bravura variations, then astonished and delighted musical audiences for a long period extending to nearly, or quite, thirty years. The music of Moscheles, Henri Herz, Carl Czerny, Pixis, Mayer, Hummel, and countless imitators, reigned for many years in the ascendant, and very little else could obtain a hearing. Although well composed this music did not bear the genuine classic stamp, and after it had served its purpose it gradually went out of fashion and was laid aside to give place to other forms of solo instrumental music which possessed no stronger right to classic rank.

The "Songs without Words," introduced by Mendelssohn nearly fifty years since, were at first received with scant favour, and it is said that it was with difficulty a publisher was found to print them in England. True musicians perceived at once their classic character, and Mendelssohn was soon imitated with more or less success. These lovely movements effected a remarkable revolution in the public taste for pianoforte music, and accustomed audiences to hear short pieces of a few minutes' duration. This was a great and beneficial change after the protracted compositions to which they had so long been doomed to listen. Having assigned to the celebrated "Lieder ohne Worte" the title classical, it will perhaps be asked under what category may be justly placed the shorter pianoforte pieces of John Field, Thalberg, Henselt, Chopin, Ferdinand Hiller, Schumann, Bennett, Stephen Heller, Silas, and Rubinstein, consisting of single movements, respectively entitled Rondos, Nocturnes, Ballades, Romances, Reveries, Scherzos, Toccatas, Airs Variès, Saltarellos, Tarantellas, and short pieces composed in the manner of the old dance measures of the seventeenth and early part of the eighteenth centuries, which may or may not in every instance fulfil the conditions of classical music?

It may be replied that the music of these delightful composers is of a mixed character—partly romantic and partly classical; inasmuch as the most part of their contributions to the vast repertory of pianoforte music is composed with masterly skill, and rich fancy, displaying the erudition and genius of cultured musicians and the technical knowledge of accomplished Virtuosi.

The foregoing views may possibly surprise many, who, from not having given to this subject a due amount of consideration, have hitherto entertained an imperfect apprehension of its correct limits. They will scarcely have conceived the wideness of its range even before the extensive area of vocal music is entered. In this vast space will be found, as in orchestral and solo instrumental music, frequent modifications in design and treatment—every new form being impressed with the classic hall-mark. Comparing, for instance, operas by Pergolesi, Alessandro Scarlatti, Leonardo Leo, Buononcini, Handel, and Porpora, with those by Purcell, Cimarosa, Gallupi, Sacchini, Paisiello, Zingarelli, Gluck, Piccini, Mozart, Beethoven, Weber, Bishop, Rossini, Meyerbeer, Bellini, John Barnett, Verdi, Macfarren, Wallace, Wagner, and Gounod, it will be observed how diverse and marked have been the various modifications in the forms and musical treatment of classic-operatic music at different stages of the art's progress.

If this fact be admitted, who shall decide that the "Alceste," "Orfeo," and two "Iphigenias" of Gluck; the "Don Giovanni," "Idomeneo," "Le Nozze de Figaro," and "Zauberflöte" of Mozart; the "Matrimonio Segreto" of Cimarosa; the "Agnese" of Paer; the "Fidelio" of Beethoven; the "Freischütz" of Weber; the "Jessonda" of Spohr are classical operas: and that the "Semiramide" and "Guillaume Tell" of Rossini; the "Dinorah" and "Les Huguenots" of Meyerbeer; the "Faust" of Gounod; the "Lohengrin" and "Tannhäuser" of Wagner; the "Mountain Sylph" and "Fair Rosamond" of John Barnett; the "Lurline" and "Amber Witch" of Wallace; and the "Helvellyn" and "Robin Hood" of Macfarren are not classical. Composed in various styles, at various periods, according to the idiosyncracy of their respective authors, they equally bear the classic stamp although they may be unequal in excellence.

Upon what principle shall it be determined that the Overtures to "Don Giovanni" and "Figaro," to "Der Freischütz" and "Oberon," to "Ruy Blas" and the "Midsummer Night's Dream," are classical? and that the Overtures to "Guillaume Tell" and the "Siege of Corinth," the Overtures to "Lurline," to "Helvellyn," and "St. John the Baptist" are not classical? Upon every true principle of musical criticism it is beyond argument that they are all classical.

The chamber vocal music of Schubert, Thalberg, Fesca, Schumann, Molique, Sterndale Bennett, Macfarren, Rubinstein, Bishop and Gounod may justly assert its right to classical rank. Another style of vocal music must be also considered as entitled to similar distinction. This is the Glee, rendered famous by the learned, harmonious, and graceful compositions of classic vocal harmonists such as Dr. Callcott, William Horsley, Attwood, Samuel Webbe, Beale, Goss, Spofforth, Bishop, and other famed musicians, whose names cannot fail to occur to the reader.

The question is persistently asked, "Is Richard Wagner, the reputed head of the so-called Advanced German School of Music, the composer of the 'Music of the Future,' a music-classic?" Music-critics in their reply widely differ in opinion. From some he receives praise amounting to adulation; from others he receives *dis*praise bordering upon abuse. A man who has the temerity to think differently from his fellows, and courageously expresses his opinions, must expect to be blamed by his contemporaries. Bold innovators upon established canons in art naturally meet with opposition not less bold. If by a genius we understand one who conceives and carries out new ideas, Wagner is undeniably entitled to that designation. He throws aside with scorn the accepted classic forms of the musical drama, and constructs and arranges his materials after his own fashion in obstinate defiance of precedent. He appears in the two-fold capacity of poet and composer. The legendary subjects he selects for his dramas being of national interest appeal to the national instinct. His operas are grandly imagined and are sumptuously placed upon the stage, and being full to repletion of superb theatrical effects they enforce admiration irrespective of the music. The long continued musica parlante unrelieved, as in the old form of opera, by completed songs and concerted vocal pieces, produces a sensation of painful weariness despite the lovely snatches of tuneful melody, the rich, but too frequently introduced eccentric and discordant harmonic combinations, and the great magnificence of the instrumentation, which are leading features of the special characteristics of Wagner's dramatic style. But still the enquiry, "Is Wagner classical?" To this I would reply, according to the generally accepted conditions of classical music, No! But that seeing how often, in the course of time, musical taste has changed; how music distrusted at one period has been welcomed at another; knowing that it is contrary to nature and experience that art should remain always the same; and believing that the resources of music have not yet been fully unfolded, that in fact they are inexhaustible, it is impossible to imagine that our successors will think precisely as we do with regard to musical composition. I am quite prepared to believe, when I reflect upon the chequered course of musical history, that Richard Wagner may possibly be the pioneer of another style of composition which will attract hereafter more general admiration, and that a future generation of musicians may insist upon enrolling his name among the already acknowledged music-classics. We are accustomed to certain forms of composition, the invention of great masters of a past age, which have been accepted as classical models by their successors. But as superlatively fine music was composed before these forms were known, who will assert that they will be enduring, and the only classic forms in which the music of the future will be moulded? This is a question of classical or non-classical music, not one of ugliness or beauty. I repeat what I have stated as my opinion on a former occasion, that the taste for musical ugliness is rapidly on the increase among a certain section of German musicians, who appear to discover not only sublimity, but grace and beauty in ugliness, which, doubtless, is a taste to which it is possible to become habituated by education and time.

From what I have already remarked with reference to classical music, it must be evident that there can be no fixed, unalterable standard as regards form in music to qualify it for classical distinction, because, in accordance with a law of Nature which insists upon perpetual change in all created things, some musical forms accepted at one period as classical give place hereafter to other classical forms.

Taking, then, into consideration this almost limitless view of classical music, embracing as it does so large an interval of time, such various nationalities, such variety in forms and styles, it must be conceded that the meaning hitherto assigned to the term is much too narrow, and inexpressive of its scope and extent.

Before concluding, I would endeavour to dispel some errors which I hold to be alike unjust and injurious, but which are too often obstinately maintained. It is undoubtedly a fallacy to imagine that Germany or Italy, or any other country possesses a monopoly in the term classical music; that it is an expression which properly attaches only to the music of a particular period, a particular country, or to the celebrated names of a few eminent composers. It is no less a common error to suppose that music cannot deserve the title classical, which is of modern growth, and moreover, the production of native musicians of Great Britain and Ireland. It must be understood to be within the range of possibility that a great musical genius may arise in this country bearing the not uncommon appellation "William Smith," who shall compose music as truly entitled to be called classical as any music written by Mozart or Beethoven. It cannot be too often repeated that classical music is of no special period, form, style, composer, or nation. It must be borne in mind, nevertheless, that to entitle music to be deemed classical it must possess its unmistakable characteristics, and bear a clearly defined, intelligible, classic stamp.

It might be well if those who have hitherto used the expression "Classical music," without having a distinct notion of its true significance, were to substitute for it the terms "Standard works of the music-classics," or "The compositions of the great masters." These comprehensive expressions, which might include the classic works of any, or of all countries, styles, and periods, would be at least understood.

Those who would discover classic beauty in music, who would seek for musical excellence irrespective of its source, must eschew alike predilection and prejudice. They must not turn from the classical musical productions of this country, because, forsooth, pandering to the common or vulgar taste of a large portion of the public the music-market may be glutted with numberless specimens of musical mediocrity, manufactured to supply an extensive unhealthy demand for music of a particular class which is intended only for a wide circulation, and for immediate sale; and thrust into public notice by advertisements, "royalties," and other adventitious means. Good music, like good wine and modest merit, must be sought for. Much excellent music will thus be discovered which may have long lain hidden from public attention; not on account of any deficiency of merit, but for want of favourable opportunities of becoming known. How many musical flowers are born to blush unseen and waste their sweetness on the desert air!

A conspicuous instance of unmerited neglect has lately been brought prominently to notice by the generous and spirited efforts of Madame Jenny Viard-Louis. Twice at her now famous concerts has been performed by her magnificent band of instrumentalists, under the able direction of Mr. Weist Hill, an orchestral Symphony by the late young, and now deeply lamented German composer, Hermann Goetz, which has been unanimously pronounced to be not only a work of genius, but one of the finest orchestral Symphonies of recent times. How sad to contemplate this young and neglected musical genius yearning in vain to hear his work executed, and pining for opportunities to exhibit still farther his matured powers in the composition of other great works, which might have given him the right to a niche in the Vallhalla of the Muses as one of the music-classics of Germany!

MUNICIPAL ABOLITION OF SACRED MUSIC.

The tendency of History to repeat itself has just been curiously exemplified in Paris. Although near upon a century has passed since the event took place, and the effect of distance has toned down its grotesque horror, none of us can forget that the French, in the height of their first revolutionary madness, not only abolished Christianity, and deposed the Almighty, but formally decreed His non-existence. They turned their backs on the Everlasting Goodness, and worshipped Reason as typified by a prostitute. True, the outward and visible expression of this insanity did not last long. Napoleon succeeded to power, and his keen intellect saw that the religious element in humanity could not be ignored even as an engine of statecraft. At a nod from him, therefore, back came the Christian cultus, and France had once more a God. The lesson taught was easy, and should have sunk deep into the national mind; but this appears not to have been the case. Nothing has been learned of common sense in matters pertaining to religion by the most energetic spirits of France, and it is only for want of opportunity that they do not revive the heathen zeal of the Convention, and write over the gates of Père la Chaise, "Death is but an eternal sleep." We do not go for proof to the reign of the Commune, but rather to one of the most recent acts of the Municipal Council of Paris. That Council, as everybody knows, faithfully reflects the political mind of the capital. Elected by universal suffrage, it is as "red" as its electors, and loses no opportunity of expressing sentiments which, logically carried out, would overturn the present constitution of society. Rarely, however, does the Council get a chance of showing its contempt for religion, but the zest with which the opportunity is seized when it does come, and even when it can only be got at in a roundabout way, will appear from the extraordinary circumstance to which we now ask attention. The Municipality have long had the laudable habit of encouraging musical composers and societies, by offering prizes for competition, and it appears that, a little while ago, the whole matter of these concours was handed over to a Committee with a view to improvement. Having duly considered the subject, the Committee reported, through one of their number, M. Levraud, who, with reference to sacred music, made the following remarkable observations:—

Votre commission, messieurs, pense que l'art religieux a fait son temps. Il a atteint une grandeur incomparable avec les S. Bach, les Haendel, les Haydn, parce que ces hommes de génie ont su exprimer et traduire des passions humaines tout en mettant en scène des êtres imaginaires. Plus l'etendue des connaissances humaines se développé, plus cet art est incompatible, parce qu'il exprime, avec l'esprit scientifique et de libre pensée qui caractérise notre époque; le Conseil Municipal de Paris ne saurait l'encourager, et nous vous proposons en conséquence, d'exclure du concours la musique religieuse sous toutes ses formes. Nous n'entendons pas seulement par musique réligieuse la musique d'église proprement dite, c'est-à-dire toute composition musicale écrite sur des paroles faisant partie du domaine de la liturgie, mais aussi l'oratorio, que l'ancienne commission, loin d'exclure du concours, offrait au contraire comme modèle à suivre aux concurrents.

We have given these astounding words in the original for the sake of historic accuracy, and now, for the benefit of such among our readers as are not acquainted with French, we supply the equivalent English:—

Your Committee, gentlemen, think that religious art has had its day. It reached the height of grandeur with S. Bach, Handel, and Haydn, because those men of genius knew how to express and convey human passions while dealing with imaginary beings. The more the extent of human knowledge increases, the more this art is incompatible, on account of what it expresses, with the scientific spirit and free thought of our age; the Municipal Council of Paris ought not to encourage it, and we propose to you, therefore, to exclude from competition religious music in all its forms. We understand by religious music, not only church music, properly so called, that is to say, every musical composition having words that belong to the domain of liturgy, but also the Oratorio, which the old commission far from excluding, held up as a model for competitors to follow.

So, then, there is an end in Paris of religious music, as far as the Municipality can bring it about. M.

Bourgault-Ducoudray may, at present, go on writing, "Symphonies Religieuses," and M. Lamoureaux and M. Pasdeloup may, at present, organise performances of Handel, but Paris in her collective capacity repudiates the art to which they are devoted as incompatible with the scientific knowledge and free thought—save the mark—of this enlightened age. It would, of course, be folly for the earnest musicians of France to argue with M. Levraud's Committee, and perhaps they have really little to fear from the spirit which dictated such blundering and unphilosophical tactics. M. Levraud and his fellows hate religion, and they assail it by conspiring against one of its forms—let us add one of its glories. "O fools and blind." They should rather abolish the religious sentiment from human breasts. Exhaust the fountain, and the bed of the stream will soon be dry. But this not even the Municipality of Paris can do, though they be silly enough to try their best and worst. "Vain effort!" exclaims M. Léon Escudier in L'Art Musical. "For even if religion should disappear from the earth, it will remain in the soul of the artist, living, strong, and with all its poetry." There is something inexpressibly humiliating in the fact that the representatives of the capital of a great nation should, in our day, commit such an act of folly. Mrs. Partington's hope of success in her single-handed struggle with the Atlantic was confidence itself compared with that which M. Levraud and his colleagues are entitled to entertain. But even if there were a prospect of success, what means have the Council adopted to secure it? In the name of scientific research and free thought they propose to limit the operations and curtail the liberty of the composer. "In this new cultus," writes an indignant French journalist, "Free Thought begins, according to custom, by restraining freedom and forbids composers to write religious music. Thank you, thank you, Free Thought?" But revolutionary logic is generally one-sided, and in this case it seems to be purblind, for, if the idea of the Commission be carried out to the bitter end, it will have consequences hardly discerned now, perhaps, by its advocates. Abolish religious music and what becomes of scores of popular operas? As L'Art Musical points out, "La Favorita" will then be impossible, while "Robert," "Les Huguenots," "Le Prophête," "Moïse," "Polyeucte," and a host of others will lose some of their finest numbers. The Parisians have not yet understood this, and we doubt if even the Municipality would make such a sacrifice to the "scientific spirit and free thought that characterise our age."

It may be asked, What does M. Levraud's Committee propose to put in the place of religious music? The previous Committee, it appears, recommended that subjects bearing upon current events should be prohibited to composers, and the restriction was undoubtedly a wise one. But M. Levraud would abolish it altogether and give music liberty to sing the praises of petroleum. He says: "Should an author and composer who take Spartacus as the subject of their common work be excluded on the pretext that they encourage Socialism? or, again, should they be shut out if they illustrate the taking of the Bastile on the plea that they countenance insurrection? Let us have done with these chimerical fears and give all possible latitude to the inspiration of the poet and musician"—all possible latitude, that is, short of writing a Hymn, a Mass, or an Oratorio. Truly, the whole matter is very melancholy. These "conscript fathers" of Paris would doubtless talk indignantly of religious intolerance. But their own is far greater. Christianity, save in a few local manifestations, has never warred against art. It adopted the music and the architecture of the faiths it superseded; and sang in Grecian "modes" in Grecian temples. Only in the closing years of the nineteenth century do men who claim to represent "the spirit of the age" decry the noblest forms of art because they are connected with a creed.

It seems strange that for the resuscitation of operas sung in the language of the country we should be indebted to a foreigner. Mr. Carl Rosa, however, may rest assured that his efforts in the cause he has at heart are thoroughly appreciated; but it would be worth while, whilst acknowledging the gratification we feel at the excellent performances he has given us, not to ignore the fact that from a calm hearing of the English Opera of the past we may learn a very useful lesson as to the construction of the English Opera of the future. Wagner has assuredly preached to us words of wisdom respecting the absolute necessity of poetry being one of the important elements of a great Opera; and although we may not agree with him in all the rules he lays down for the composition of a lyrical work which shall be worthy of the name, no person can follow the music and words of many of the so-called English Operas revived by Mr. Carl Rosa without feeling that both author and composer were suited only for the time in which they wrote. Certainly the music of the "Bohemian Girl," for example, is not of a very high class; but we must recollect that this is the kind of poetry upon which Mr. Balfe exercised his talents:—

Gipsy Queen. Down on thy knees the gem restore,
E'en in thy shame amaz'd;
Or long years of sin shall deplore
The storm which thou hast rais'd.

Then Devilshoof, who has stolen the "gem," says aside:—

It best might be the prize to restore,
Much as I seem amaz'd
Or hereafter I may deplore
The storm which I have rais'd.

And when the Queen, after compelling him to give back the property, says:—

'Tis the wisest thing thy miscreant heart can do.

The robber threateningly replies:—

Who from my grasp such prize could wring,
The doing it may rue.

We sincerely hope that English Operatic art in times to come may not be modelled upon such works as we have called attention to; but whilst gauging the real value of the once popular "Bohemian Girl," let us at least freely admit that the composer Balfe was in every respect equal, if not superior, to the poet Bunn.

Thomas Renson, a "professional singer," who made his appearance at a police court a few weeks ago charged with assaulting a constable who requested him to "move on," by desire of the inhabitants of the streets through which he exercised his vocation, will have time to reflect during his two months in prison that in his address to the magistrate he boldly accused the British public of indifference to the art instead of to the artist. "For the last six months," he said, "I have been singing about town some of the finest songs in the English language. I have sung for two hours at a time before the mansions of the rich and noble, and then perhaps they have given me twopence. There must be something wrong," he continued, warming with his subject, "when a man like me, who is capable of giving expression to the music of the best composers should have his feelings agonised as mine have been by the coldness and contempt of the world. In the best streets and squares of London I have sung before the highest of the land as many as a hundred songs for eighteenpence; but the people have no ear; the taste for music has degenerated, and I am the victim." Now there are very many persons with an exalted opinion of their own vocal powers who cannot command any terms at all for their services; and what proof have we, therefore, that Mr. Renson, in receiving eighteenpence for a hundred songs, was not paid as much as—or perhaps even more than—he deserved? Besides it must be recollected that on the occasion referred to he was asked by his audience to walk off; and without entering into the question whether this was or was not a sign that "the people have no ear," he should have quietly pocketed the affront and retired with becoming dignity. But although he said that he had "nothing to complain of individually" with respect to the policeman who interfered with him, he knocked him down twice, and then, with assistance, was conveyed to the station-house in a cab; so that he appeared resolved to add another "victim" to the lowered musical taste of the day.

It might reasonably be imagined that those persons who advertise to teach the various branches of music in an incredibly short space of time would be too glad to put their real names; for, apart from thus proving that they have a positive status in the profession, it would show that they are not afraid boldly to throw down the gauntlet and defy those artists who still maintain the theory that to build up the musical mind, as well as the fingers or voice, requires long and arduous teaching on the part of a Professor, and long and arduous study on the part of a pupil. And yet, strange to say, a perusal of some announcements of this kind lately, convinces us that in nine cases out of ten the initials only of these gifted individuals are given. "O P," for instance ensures "rapid and brilliant execution in half the time ordinarily employed," or "Q R" in a few easy lessons "trains the voice" and enables any lady to "sing difficult music." It is doubtless very agreeable to be able to arrive at perfection in an art with so little trouble; but is it fair that the method adopted should be kept so profound a secret, and that such valuable teachers should only be known by detached letters of the alphabet? The names both of the Professors and their pupils who have produced great results before the world by employing the "ordinary time" for study are tolerably familiar to us all; let then those who can produce the same effects by different means come forth from their hiding-places and give us the benefit of their experience. They have no more right to throw a slur upon others, under shelter of the anonymous, than has the lady who, recently in her zeal for providing for one of her late servants, casts a stigma upon a hard-working race of men by advertising that she is anxious to recommend an "exceptionally honest coachman."

We know nothing whatever of the merits or demerits of the several musical executants who have made a name in the United States; but, judging from the plain speaking upon artists and writers on art constantly met with in American journals we cannot but think that a musician endowed by nature with the sensitive feelings of Mr. Whistler would have no easy time of it on the other side of the Atlantic. We have often quoted some of the paragraphs from papers which have been forwarded to us from America in proof of our assertion that it is not often the custom to qualify either praise or dispraise so as to make the first less fulsome or the second less galling; and we only return to the subject because when we see in a journal now before us that one person is termed "Beer-garden Tommy," and another the "Champion Billingsgate musical critic of this age," it seems that the custom of "plain speaking" we have alluded to is likely to become too plain to be pleasant, even to non-fastidious readers. In an address to concert-givers, too (in the same paper), who have neglected to send tickets it is said "now, inasmuch as one may have very nimble fingers and a mellifluous throat, and yet be an egregious idiot, we here, (by way of a gentle hint) venture to remind all such artists that we have never asked for their money as advertisers or subscribers (and very few of them have ever offered it); but for them to expect us to pay for tickets to their concerts in addition to our contribution of the time neccessary to attend them, and puff them afterwards, is just a little more than unreasonable—it is both impertinent and preposterous;" and this is clenched by the assertion "'them's' our sentiments," so that there can be little doubt that the editor's resolution on this matter must be accepted as final.

The process of hatching canards has lately been carried on in musical circles with much perseverance and success. First came a report that Madame Adelina Patti had injured her knee and would probably be compelled to lose the limb. No sooner was that safely disposed of than the discovery, by Robert Franz, of Bach's 150 violin sonatas started into life, and flew through Europe, meeting everywhere with more or less unquestioning acceptance. In due time came a contradiction from Franz himself, and everybody said to his neighbour, "I told you so." After this, one might have supposed that the public would be slow to put faith in rumour. But credulity prevails as much as ever, if we may judge by the readiness with which certain reports about Herr Joseph Joachim have passed current. It is going the round of the press and society—we even saw it in some real or pretended correspondence from Berlin—that the eminent Hungarian artist, having sustained a serious pecuniary loss, intends to take up his residence in this country, where a "lucrative post" is open to him. Without a doubt we should all welcome Herr Joachim, as a resident amongst us, but, in common parlance, the news is "too good to be true." Indeed, we have the highest possible authority for stating that it has not the smallest foundation in fact. Herr Joachim has not lost a considerable sum of money; a "lucrative post" has not been offered him in England, and he has no intention to quit Berlin. Thus disposing of the matter, we may wonder who invents these mischievous and often painful reports. That they are so readily credited is not, perhaps, astonishing at a time when journalism seems to be degenerating into the mere retailing of gossip.

CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

As we anticipated, Wagner's "Rienzi" and Bizet's "Carmen" have been the principal attractions at this establishment; although, from some cause beyond our power to divine, one—and only one—hearing has been given to Ignaz Brüll's "Golden Cross," about the merits of which, on its production in this country, we took the liberty of differing in opinion from the criticisms of most of the continental journals, and many of the English ones. One event, however, which gave some little variety to the general cast of the well-known operas performed, was the first appearance on any stage of Miss Mulholland as the Gipsy Queen in the "Bohemian Girl." This young lady has already made a favourable impression as a concert vocalist; and if we may judge both from her singing and acting in the somewhat unimportant character which she modestly chose for her operatic début, her success on the stage depends very much upon her power of turning the gifts she undoubtedly possesses to the best advantage. With a pleasing and well-trained voice, and an aptitude for seizing upon the salient points of the part she assumes, there is every hope that experience and study may eventually place her in a high position; and we confidently anticipate that next season she may more firmly cement that good feeling which she at once established between herself and the audience. Her reception was everything that could be desired, and at the end of the second act she was enthusiastically recalled. As the closing night of the season was prolonged until the 22nd ult., there is every reason to believe that the success of the series of performances has even exceeded Mr. Carl Rosa's expectations.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

The Concert of the 1st ult. was noteworthy for the first appearance at the Crystal Palace of Herr Xaver Scharwenka, the composer and pianist, who performed his own Concerto in B flat minor. Herr Scharwenka was born at Samter, in the province of Posen, in 1850, and studied music under Theodore Kullak, at Berlin. His published compositions, which are numerous, are almost entirely for the piano. The Concerto which he performed on this occasion at the Crystal Palace is the same which was played last year at these concerts by Mr. Dannreuther. It is a work of great beauty, and of more than average originality. The second movement—a somewhat elaborate scherzo—is especially charming. As a pianist, Herr Scharwenka obtained perhaps even more success than as a composer. His work is very showy, and in parts extremely difficult; but it was played not merely with a perfect technical mastery of the instrument, but with an amount of taste and feeling that proved the performer to be an artist of the highest rank. In a number of short solos played later in the afternoon, the pianist was no less happy; a "Staccato Etude" of his own composition was not only interesting as music but a very remarkable display of executive skill. The greater part of this afternoon's concert was occupied with a performance of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," the solo parts of which were given by Miss Robertson, Madame Louise Mills, and Mr. Barton McGuckin.

The novelty at the concert on the 8th was the production of Mr. C. Villiers Stanford's Symphony in B flat. This work gained the second of the two prizes offered about three years since at the Alexandra Palace, when the first prize was carried off by Mr. F. W. Davenport. We are by no means disposed to rank the present among Mr. Stanford's most successful efforts; indeed we consider both his "Forty-sixth Psalm" and his "Festival Overture," written for Gloucester, far superior to it. That the work shows the hand of a trained musician need hardly be said; but the ideas are in parts too trivial for symphonic treatment; and there is a tendency to diffuseness which impairs the effect that the work might otherwise produce. The finale we consider the most successful movement; and it is only fair to Mr. Stanford to say that the orchestra is throughout treated skilfully, and sometimes with great felicity. At the same concert Mdlle. Krebs played Schubert's great Fantasia in C, in Liszt's effective arrangement for piano and orchestra, giving also with marked success Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso." The other instrumental pieces of the afternoon were the Overtures to "Der Freischütz" and "William Tell." Miss Thursby and Herr Henschel were the vocalists.

A very fine rendering of the "Eroica" Symphony opened the concert of the 15th, which contained more than one feature of great interest. Foremost among these was the first appearance at these concerts of a young pianist, Miss Helen Hopekirk, who has lately completed her studies at the Leipzig Conservatorium. She came forward on this occasion with Saint-Saëns's Concerto in G minor (No. 2). The work, though clever and well adapted to display the performer, is not particularly interesting as music; but of Miss Hopekirk's playing we can speak in the highest terms. Her execution is very clear, and highly finished, and she plays with an amount of fire and spirit, never, however, carried to exaggeration, which prove her to be a true artist. One could not but feel that she played from the heart, and not merely from the fingers. Her success was the more creditable to her as she played at very short notice in the place of Mr. Hartvigson, who had been announced, but was prevented by illness from appearing. Another novelty at this concert was a very clever and well-scored Overture, by Mr. C. Hubert H. Parry, entitled "Guillem de Cabestanh, Troubadour." The vocal music was contributed by Madame Sophie Löwe, and Herr Henschel, and Liszt's brilliant "Hungarian Storm March" concluded the concert.

Brahms's second Symphony (in D major) was repeated by special desire at the concert on the 22nd. As the work has been already noticed in some detail in these columns, it is needless to say more than that further acquaintance increases our enjoyment and appreciation of the music, the slow movement especially gaining in clearness by re-hearing. The performance of the Symphony was magnificent, worthy alike of Mr. Manns and his orchestra. Herr Joachim, who is playing as finely as ever this season, performed Beethoven's violin Concerto in his usual unapproachable style, and also gave his own Nocturne for violin with small orchestra. The vocalists were Miss Helen Arnim and Mr. Edward Lloyd, and the concert ended with the Overture to "Masaniello."

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

A special Concert in honour of the recent Royal marriage was given on the 13th ult., with a miscellaneous programme of a festive and appropriate character. The proceedings of the evening were inaugurated by a fine performance of Handel's noble Te Deum, written in commemoration of the victory of Dettingen, a fact which sufficiently accounts for the martial colouring given to the instrumentation and the general demonstrative yet dignified character of the work. The solo portions were rendered with true devotional feeling by Madame Patey, Mr. Cummings, and Herr Henschel, the Te Deum occupying the entire first part of the concert. The additional accompaniments by Mendelssohn were used. The second part commenced with Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," which by virtue of its popularity and the spirited interpretation given by the orchestra had, as a matter of course, to be repeated. Gluck's air "Che faró senza Euridice" from "Orfèo"—one of the few fragments from the great operatic reformer's works which have found their way into modern concert-rooms—was sung with great expression by Madame Patey, and elicited general applause. It was followed by the wedding chorus from "Lohengrin" in which the fresh voices and careful training of the choir were particularly conspicuous, the universal demand for an encore being the inevitable result. Next came two vocal solos, viz: the facetious air from "Der Freischütz," "Kommt ein schlanker Bursch gegangen," ("If a youth should meet a maiden," in the English version), given with scarcely sufficient characterisation by Miss A. Williams, and "Salve dimora," from Gounod's "Faust," sung in his usual refined style by Mr. Cummings. The duet "Honour, riches, marriage blessing," from the "Tempest" music by Mr. Arthur Sullivan, was effectively rendered by Misses Anna Williams and A. Sinclair; Herr Henschel concluding the number of detached solo performances with a fine rendering of the declamatory song, "Blick ich umher," from Wagner's "Tannhäuser." Not the least interesting portion of the programme which then followed was a selection from the second part of Mr. Barnby's "Sacred Idyll," entitled "Rebekah," including those numbers most appropriate to the present occasion. We have already at the time of the first performance of the work (at one of the "Oratorio Concerts" in 1870) dwelt upon the manifold beauties presented by Mr. Barnby's Cantata, its melodiousness, rich harmonisation, and general musicianlike workmanship, and the present fragmentary production scarcely calls for an additional analysis. The extracts given on the occasion we speak of have, however, served to again draw the attention of amateurs to the existence of this clever composition, and to raise the desire for a speedy repetition of the entire work, under which condition alone its merits can be fully appreciated. The warm-coloured, and gracefully melodious tenor air, "The soft southern breeze plays around me," was sung with excellent taste by Mr. Cummings, and the "Bride's March" which succeeded it elicited a well-merited encore, which, however, was not responded to. The remaining extracts given were the recitative, "Behold, my Lord," well declaimed by Mr. Stanley Smith, the recitative and duet, "Oh, flower of the verdant lea," in the rendering of which Miss A. Williams was associated with Mr. Cummings, and the final chorus, with its broad fugal elaboration, "Protect them, Almighty, for ever." The concert concluded with the March and Chorus from "Tannhäuser." Mr. Barnby was as usual the Conductor, Dr. Stainer presiding at the organ. There was a very numerous audience.

At the Concert given on Thursday the 27th ult. Handel's "Judas Maccabæus" was performed in the Royal Albert Hall for the first time by this Society. We congratulate the institution upon a valuable addition to its repertory. Of all Handel's Oratorios, the "Messiah" of course excepted, "Judas" is perhaps the one which is destined longest to retain the hold upon public favour it now enjoys. Patriotism and self-sacrifice pro aris et focis are happily as eternal as the causes that demand their exercise, and we cannot know when they may be demanded of ourselves. "Judas Maccabæus" therefore touches every lover of his country very nearly, and when we add to this fact the glorious character of the music, and its profound expressiveness, whether in joy or sorrow, despair or triumph, we see ample cause for unfading vitality. The performance of the Oratorio, on this occasion, was marked by a very special feature, namely, the addition to the score, under Mr. Barnby's supervision, of parts for a military band. Considerable controversy is likely to arise out of this. On the one hand, it will be urged that the step is an outrageous violation of the principle which guards the integrity of our masterpieces. On the other, it will be contended that the gain of effect is sufficient warrant and justification. We, for our own part, must decline to discuss the principle here and now, for the reason that most people have made up their minds with regard to it, and that the conscience of the age seems to approve the practice, at any rate, of "touching up the masters." Our business lies with results, and, granting that Handel may be re-scored, there is no impropriety in adding warlike instruments to his warlike Oratorio, especially in such a place as the Albert Hall. That the old master himself would have done so, we have not the smallest doubt, nor are we disinclined to believe that, if particulars with regard to the performances of the Oratorio under his direction were available, it would be found that the employment of a large number of trumpets and other instruments of military music was resorted to in those numbers, such as "Sound an alarm" and "We come, we come," which are of an especially martial character. But whatever may be said about this newest of innovations, no dispute will arise as to the fact that Mr. Barnby took the best possible steps to carry it out well by engaging the band of the Coldstream Guards. Those excellent performers upon excellent instruments were certain to do their work with taste and skill, and this assurance, let us say with emphasis, they fully justified. As to the result there can be no question that the martial numbers of the Oratorio came out with singular brilliancy, clearness, and effect. We must not be understood to approve of every detail in the new scoring, but that it had been judiciously done we are prepared to assert. The military instruments were employed only when their use was strictly appropriate, and as a rule they were not so crowded in as to hide everything else from observation. We hardly need point out where they were most conspicuous and effective. In the first part the choruses "We come, we come," and "Lead on, lead on," were given with the most stirring results; but, of course, the "sensation" of the evening was made in "Sound an alarm," which Mr. Lloyd sang with splendid energy and power. The entry of the military band, and their performance throughout the answering chorus, sent quite a thrill through the audience. The general performance deserves to be spoken of in terms of praise. Among the soloists, Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, and Mr. Lloyd fully sustained their high repute, and won the customary tribute of applause. Miss Annie Sinclair and Mr. Kenningham did good service in subordinate parts; but, on the other hand, Signor Brocolini was not in good voice, and some of his music had to be omitted. The choruses were all admirably rendered. As though delighted to have a new theme, Mr. Barnby's excellent amateurs put themselves on their mettle, with the result of giving us a performance of the choral numbers such as is not often heard. The orchestra was, as usual, efficient, and Mr. Barnby conducted with great care and success.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

The first Concert of the past month (the 3rd ult.), brought as its opening number, Mozart's beautiful Quintett in G minor, the sixth of the nine similar works for stringed instruments which the fertile master produced, and the most truly "classical" of the number. There are two kinds of classical works in musical art; those which have established a model of a particular art-form beyond which there has been no appreciable advance, and which have consequently been, for the greater part, shelved in the annals of art-history; and those which, while marking a particular epoch in the development of the art, contain in themselves the germs of a new period of progress. The influence of the latter class of works, as the example of Bach shows, need not necessarily be immediately apparent. Some day, perchance, Mozart's classical masterpieces will be placed in the former category. But that time is not yet, and meanwhile, not even the most uncompromising disciple of the modern schools can fail to be influenced by the charm of harmonious development, and suggestive depth of thought, revealed in the Quintett referred to. This work is, of course, one of the "oldest inhabitants" in the favour of the frequenters of these concerts, being performed for the twenty-third time on this occasion, and it was worthily rendered by MM. Joachim, Ries, Zerbini, Burnett, and Piatti. Schumann's twelve variations on a seemingly unproductive theme entitled "Etudes Symphoniques," which have furnished the composer with an opportunity of displaying his remarkable resources in the production of harmonic and rhythmical effects, received a very conscientious and effective rendering at the hands of Miss Agnes Zimmermann, who also, in conjunction with Herr Joachim, gave a very fine reading of Schubert's Fantasia in C major (Op. 159), for pianoforte and violin. Haydn's Trio in E flat major, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, brought the concert to a conclusion; the executants being Miss Agnes Zimmermann, Herr Joachim, and Signor Piatti. Herr Henschel, who was the vocalist of the evening, repeated the airs from Handel's "Agrippina" ("Vieni o cara"), and "Almira" ("Mi da speranza"), which he had introduced during last season, besides singing with much effect Beethoven's "Busslied." Sir Julius Benedict was the Conductor.

An interesting feature in the programme of the second Concert of the past month (10th ult.) was the first performance here of Schumann's Violin Fantasia (Op 131), consisting of two movements, a moderato and vivace respectively. From being scarcely known in this country some fifteen years ago, except to a few connoisseurs, the works of Robert Schumann have—thanks in a great measure to the efforts of this institution—rapidly grown in favour with amateurs, by whom the unique individuality of their composer is now almost universally appreciated in its distinctly typical significance. Every amateur now knows perfectly well what is implied by the word "Schumannish." In the Fantasia at present under notice the special characteristics which have impressed this individuality on our minds are, however, perceptible only in a very modified degree. It was composed expressly for the eminent violinist, who was also its interpreter on the present occasion, viz., Herr Joachim, and pertains to Schumann's last period, when his creative activity was already unfavourably influenced by an approaching painful malady. Thus the Fantasia is a somewhat hazy and incoherent work, while presenting enormous difficulties to the executant—a fact which afforded an opportunity to Herr Joachim for the display of his splendid and never-erring technique. Mdlle. Krebs played the pianoforte accompaniment, arranged by the composer from the orchestral score in order to facilitate the performance in the concert-room. How far the composition in question is removed from the master's best style was indeed illustrated by the performance the same evening of his String Quartett in A minor (Op. 41), wherein the poetic warmth of the composer and his conscious energy in the elaboration of his design form conspicuous elements. The Quartett was admirably given by MM. Joachim, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, as was also, at the conclusion of the evening, Haydn's String Quartett in D minor (Op. 76). Mdlle. Krebs materially contributed to the enjoyment of the evening by the masterly execution of Bach's Prelude and Fugue "à la Tarentella," which was enthusiastically redemanded, and elicited as an addition to the numbers of the programme, a most brilliant performance by the lady, of one of Mendelssohn's "Characteristic pieces." Miss Orridge was the vocalist and gave the airs "Che farò senza Euridice," from Gluck's opera "Orfèo," and Gounod's "Quando a te lieta," in the rendering of which she displayed her fine mezzo-soprano voice to good advantage, Gluck's air demanding, however, far more declamatory animation than the singer bestowed upon it. Signor Piatti played the violoncello obbligato part to Gounod's air in his accustomed masterly manner. Mr. Zerbini conducted.

At the third concert of the month (17th ult.), Haydn's bright Quartett in G major (Op. 17) was played as the opening number, MM. Joachim, Ries, Straus, and Piatti being the executants. Beethoven's not too frequently heard Trio in E flat (Op. 3) for violin, viola, and violoncello, was the other composition for a combination of stringed instruments produced on this occasion, and was, it is needless to add, admirably interpreted by MM. Joachim, Straus, and Piatti. In association with Miss Agnes Zimmermann Herr Joachim played three of the "Hungarian Dances" (generally reserved for this more advanced period of the season), arranged by the great violinist for his instrument from the original, written for pianoforte alone, by J. Brahms. The performance of the two artists created, as usual, the greatest enthusiasm, one of the "Dances" having to be repeated. The only instrumental solo was by Miss Zimmermann, who played, with much brilliancy and refinement, a Presto, Pastorale, and Gigue by Scarlatti. Mdlle. Redeker created quite a furore with her singing of Schubert's well-known "Wanderer," in which her powerful and sympathetic voice and fine declamation combined to produce an artistic effect of a high order. It was, of course, encored, as were the two other songs by the same composer, viz., "Kreuzzug" and "Ungeduld," which the lady gave in the second part of the concert, and the last mentioned of which she repeated. Sir Julius Benedict accompanied the vocal music.

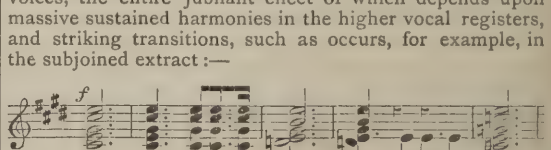
On the succeeding Monday evening (24th ult.) the programme consisted of the following works, viz: Quintett C major, Op 29, for two violins, viola and violoncello, (Haydn), Barcarole, F sharp major, Op 60, for pianoforte alone, (Chopin), "Serbisches Liederspiel" for one or more voices with pianoforte accompaniment (G. Henschel), Trio, E major, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (Mozart). The executive artists in the Quintett were MM. Joachim, Ries, Straus, Zerbini, and Piatti. Mdlle. Janotha was the pianist, and was associated with MM. Joachim and Piatti in the performance of the Trio, the lady also playing the accompaniments to Herr Henschel's "Liederspiel" (performed for the first time in this country), the vocalists in which were Mdlles. Friedländer, and Redeker, Mr. Shakespeare, and Herr Henschel.

We must reserve our notice of the last Concert of the past month (31st ult.), until our next number.

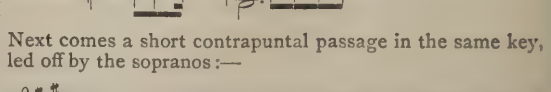
MR. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.

A new season was begun by this choir on Thursday, Feb. 27, in a very auspicious manner. It was all along a matter of assurance that some public notice would be taken of the success achieved in Paris last autumn, when the choir carried off the only Grand Prize for which they could compete. Mr. Leslie met this anticipation well by giving what he styled an "International Concert," and taking measures, not only to celebrate his own triumph, but also to acknowledge the courtesy extended to him and his singers across the Channel. For this purpose he included in the programme a variety of works by representative French composers; obtained the personal help of M. Bourgault-Ducoudray, by whom the test piece used at the Paris Competition was written; secured the patronage of the Prince of Wales, as head of the British Commission; persuaded Mr. Arthur Sullivan, as British Commissioner for music, to take part in the concert, and generally left no stone unturned to make the thing a complete celebration of a noteworthy event. These exertions were rewarded by success. The public attended in large numbers, much enthusiasm prevailed, and the occasion was made use of to express in a variety of ways the esteem in which Englishmen now hold the people who were once regarded as their natural enemies.

Besides several compositions, by M. Gounod, and others, upon which we need not dwell, the programme contained the complete work from which the test piece above referred to was taken. This formed the chief feature of the concert, and the raison d'être of M. Bourgault-Ducoudray's appearance as conductor of the choir. The esteemed French musician calls his work a "Symphonie Religieuse," but why he does so is not very clear. Attempts have been made to find a parallel between the character of the five movements into which it is divided, and those (four not five, save in such exceptional cases as Schumann's No. 3) of an orchestral Symphony. Fut the success of these efforts has not proved remarkable, while, for our own part, we can only imagine that the title of the Motett humours a national fondness for striking and high-sounding names. On this, however, we will not dwell. The thought underlying Shakespeare's "What's in a name?" is neither philosophical nor true, but in the particular case before us, one may fittingly argue that "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." The five movements, all written, be it remarked, for mixed voices without accompaniment, are respectively entitled "Gratulatio," "Passio," "Vivus resurgit Christus," "Desiderium Cœli," and "Gloria." Here, then, we have considerable variety of theme, extending from joyous ascription of praise to mournful contemplation of the Redeemer's sufferings and human wickedness. M. Bourgault-Ducoudray approached all in a becoming spirit, much to the surprise, perhaps, of some among his English audience. Our insular prejudices, based on imperfect knowledge, are not yet wholly dissipated, and among them is a notion that French composers must always be flippant and superficial, dealing, for choice, with secular rather than sacred subjects, and treating the latter more with a view to popular applause than artistic expression. This idea, wrong generally, is specially at fault as regards M. Bourgault-Ducoudray, who is before all a serious musician. In proof we need only mention that he it was who first introduced to a Parisian audience Handel's "Passion," "Alexander's Feast," and "Acis and Galatea," which fact alone entitles him to the respect and admiration of every English amateur. We repeat that the great topics embraced in the "Symphonie Réligieuse" are illustrated in a reverent and exalted fashion. The composer, while making free use of modern liberty in regard to modulation and harmonic progressions generally, while indulging, also a fondness for picturesque effects, has based his work upon recognised and orthodox models. He well knows the Motetts of the old Italian masters, the stately grandeur of which often appears reflected in the work, along with not a little of their contrapuntal skill. There are some points in the "Gratulatio" quite worthy of careful notice, but the "Passio," by its depth of feeling and the sombre majesty of its well knit though daring harmonies, arrests far more attention, which is well sustained throughout the "Vivus resurgit Christus." This movement was the piece used at the International competition, and we therefore look to find in it considerable difficulty, nor are we disappointed. It begins with an Allegro moderato in E major, for five voices, the entire jubilant effect of which depends upon massive sustained harmonies in the higher vocal registers, and striking transitions, such as occurs, for example, in the subjoined extract:—



Next comes a short contrapuntal passage in the same key, led off by the sopranos:—



Ending on the dominant, this leads to an Allegro vivo in E minor, which also begins contrapuntally, the basses introducing the theme—

M. Bourgault-Ducoudray closely follows his text, never abusing it for musical purposes, and the subject just quoted is treated but briefly, giving way to a Moderato, followed by a Largo on the words "Si fruamur æterna pace," &c., throughout which grave and simple harmonies come with a solemn effect. The closing section is a Larghetto, "Anima me adores Jesum," strictly contrapuntal throughout, though not wanting in appropriate expression. Altogether the movement was well worthy of the honour done to it in Paris, and of the excellent amateurs who made use of it to win a victory for their country. The fourth movement, "Desiderium cœli," is marred by the bouche fermée device to which, let us hope, English music-lovers will never reconcile themselves. Here the composer seeks to give the effect of distant celestial music, but the result can hardly be described as heavenly, and the idea is unworthy of the work. The "Gloria," a short jubilant movement, soon removes the impression made by the bouches fermées, and ends the Motett with fitting dignity and power. We regret our inability to give details of more than the "Vivus resurgit." The work as a whole is not yet engraved, but will soon be published, without, let us hope, the "celestial" episode.

Though the music tried the choir severely, a good performance was given, and every movement elicited applause, while the composer, who conducted with ability, was greeted in the warmest manner. Later in the evening Mendelssohn's "Judge me, O God"—the choir's show piece in Paris—was splendidly sung, together with a variety of part-songs, madrigals, &c., under Mr. Leslie's direction.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

At the third Concert, on the 6th ult., Brahms's new violin Concerto was the principal feature, a second hearing of which confirms our impression that the work gradually deteriorates as it advances, the first movement, although discursive and vague in character, being by far the best. Herr Joachim's superb playing, however, lifts the composition into a prominence which an inferior executant could scarcely hope to gain for it; and the applause with which it was greeted was certainly due at least equally to the performer and the composer. Haydn's Symphony in E flat (No. 8), Mozart's "Jupiter Symphony," and Mendelssohn's Overture to "Ruy Blas," were the orchestral pieces; the vocalist being Miss Thursby, who gave Gluck's Aria, "Ciel possente," with good dramatic effect. Brahms's violin Concerto was repeated at the fourth Concert, on the 20th ult., and was again most cordially received. Mdlle. Janotha's rendering of Beethoven's pianoforte Concerto in G major created a genuine enthusiasm, not only the technical qualifications displayed, but the intellectual conception of the composition, recalling most vividly Mendelssohn's interpretation of the same work at a Philharmonic Concert at the Hanover Square Rooms. Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony scarcely displayed the powers of the orchestra to the best advantage, but its many beauties were thoroughly appreciated, and the applause at the conclusion was warm and unanimous. Mrs. Osgood's choice of songs was hardly a happy one, but her reception showed that the majority of the audience were scarcely of our opinion. At both the concerts under notice Mr. W. G. Cusins was the Conductor.

MR. WALTER BACHE'S CONCERT.

Mr. Bache is so well known as a disciple of the modern German school that his concert is annually looked forward to with much interest; for there is but little chance of hearing any of the representative orchestral works of the "music of the future" save when an artist sacrifices himself, in a pecuniary point of view, for the sake of the cause. Such an artist is Mr. Bache; and at his concert, on the 27th February, we had Liszt's "Mazeppa" and Hans von Bülow's Symphonic Ballad, "The Minstrel's Curse," with an orchestra containing, in the stringed department, 32 violins, 12 violas, 12 violoncellos, and 10 double basses, under the able direction of Mr. Manns. The orchestral adaptation by Liszt of his own "Rhapsodie Hongroise," for the pianoforte, and Gluck's Overture to his "Iphigénie en Aulide," with Wagner's excellent Coda, were also included in the programme. Mr. Bache performed with much success Beethoven's pianoforte Concerto in G, and also some minor pieces, receiving warm and well-deserved applause. The concert was in every respect highly successful, the orchestral works being rendered, as may be imagined, with exceptionally fine effect.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

The third Subscription Concert of the season was given at the Shoreditch Town Hall on the 10th ult., the principal works in the selection being Dr. Bridge's Oratorio, "Mount Moriah" (which occupied the first part of the programme), Mendelssohn's "Walpurgis Night," and Schubert's Unfinished Symphony in B minor. Considering that Dr. Bridge's Oratorio is modelled upon what may be termed the "severe" plan adopted by Bach, the incidents of the narrative being assigned to a soprano, the more credit is due to the composer for sustaining the interest of the audience, and eliciting for many of the numbers applause as genuine as it was enthusiastic. Undoubtedly the best writing in the work is to be found in the choral portions, all the choruses indeed displaying an intimate knowledge of the resources of counterpoint; and though no elaborately wrought fugue is attempted, those which do occur are musicianlike and effective. A choral, too, may be cited as an excellent specimen of eight-part writing, although here and there a passing harmony sounds somewhat harsh. An unaccompanied quartett, "Oh, tarry thou," and an air for soprano, "The eyes of the Lord," were two of the pieces which received warm and well-deserved marks of approbation, and would probably have been re-demanded had not the rule forbidding encores—a reform most judiciously enforced since Mr. Prout's appointment as Conductor of the Society—limited the applause within reasonable bounds. The principal vocalists, Miss Mary Davies, Miss Gertrude Bradwyn, Mr. Harper Kearton and Mr. Thurley Beale, were highly efficient, the recitatives of the Narrator (Miss Davies), especially, being delivered with much intelligence, the impressive sentences of the Angel (Miss Bradwyn) losing none of their importance by the careful rendering of the singer, and a genuine effect being created by Messrs. Kearton and Thurley Beale in the dramatic duet, "O Lord, our God." Dr. Bridge, who conducted his own work, received quite an ovation on his retirement from the orchestra, and certainly must have been both surprised and delighted at the marvellously correct and intelligent manner in which the whole of his choruses were rendered. Schubert's charming two movements, forming all that he left us of his Symphony in B minor, received every justice from the orchestra, and their cordial reception by the audience sufficiently proved that the experiment of performing Symphonies at these concerts has been thoroughly successful. The choral members of the Society attacked the fine dramatic choruses of Mendelssohn's Cantata as if they thoroughly enjoyed it, the picturesque chorus of Guards and People, "Come with torches brightly flashing" (although taken at a hazardously fast pace), being given with a steadiness and precision worthy of the highest praise: indeed the whole of the choral singing showed the result of good and careful training on the part of the Conductor, and of the utmost intelligence and care on the part of the choristers. The solos were given with much effect by Miss Gertrude Bradwyn, Messrs. Harper Kearton and Thurley Beale, and the small but well-balanced orchestra was everything that could be desired. Mr. Prout conducted with his accustomed efficiency the whole of the second part of the concert.

HAMPSTEAD CHORAL SOCIETY.

The first Concert of this Society—but recently formed, under the direction of Mr. Willem Coenen—took place at the new Vestry Hall, Haverstock Hill, on the 21st ult.

The power of the choral body was most successfully tested in the rendering of Schubert's Cantata, "The Song of Miriam," and Weber's "Jubilee Cantata," the careful preparation of which was also amply evidenced by the unity of feeling in all the varied dramatic portions of these works, and the thorough understanding which seemed to exist between the Conductor and the choir. Much delicacy and precision were likewise observable in the execution of some part-songs, one of which, "The Boat," by Schumann (accompanied by horn, Mr. Catchpole, and flute, Mr. Young), produced such an effect as to elicit an enthusiastic encore, the incidental solo part in this composition being charmingly rendered by Miss Jessie Jones. In Schubert's work the principal singers were Miss Jessie Jones and Miss C. Squire, and in the "Jubilee Cantata" Miss Jessie Jones, Miss Jessie M. Clark, Mrs. Adelheid Hecht, Miss Gertrude Hine, Mr. A. Smith, and Mr. T. J. Grylls. Miss Amy Gill appeared in the double capacity of pianist and vocalist, accompanying both the choral pieces mentioned with much ability, and singing, with true artistic expression, Gounod's song, "The Worker," for which a unanimous encore was awarded her. Miss Jessie Jones also gave, with excellent effect, Mendelssohn's "Zuleika," Herr Henschel sang three songs of Schubert's, creating such a genuine sensation as to be compelled to add another, known as "Ach wenn so doch immer so bliebe," by Rubinstein, to the list; and Mr. Willem Coenen, besides occupying with much skill and judgment the arduous post of Conductor, played two pianoforte solos—his own "Twilight"—a charming Andante—and a transcription by Liszt of one of Paganini's Studies, a piece of enormous difficulty—both of which were received with enthusiastic and well-deserved applause. Judging from its inaugural concert, we confidently predict a brilliant future for this young and energetic Society.

LONDON MUSICAL SOCIETY.

A Society with the above title, and under highly influential patronage, has just been started, the conductorship of which has been placed in the able hands of Mr. Barnby. The object of the Society, as appears from the prospectus, is the production of works of acknowledged excellence and of every school of nationality, which have never obtained a hearing, or are but little known in England. The first meeting took place on Monday, the 10th ult., at the South Kensington Museum, when Handel's Sixth Chandos Anthem, Hiller's "Song of Victory," Max Bruch's "Schön Ellen," and Hermann Goetz's 137th Psalm were put in rehearsal. A number of distinguished amateurs have already become members of this Society; and there can be little doubt that if the principles laid down in the prospectus be rigidly carried out, it will most effectually supply a real want in this country, and thoroughly deserve the support and patronage of all who desire that works of recognised worth, which have long lain dormant, shall be resuscitated, and that others which have for some time enjoyed a continental reputation shall obtain an equal amount of appreciation in England. The honorary Secretaries to the Society are Messrs. Heathcote Long (33, St. George's Road, S.W.), and Alfred H. Littleton (1, Berners Street, W.)

The letter from Dr. Statham on the subject of the Trinity College branch at Newcastle, which we extracted from a local paper in our last number, elicited the following reply in the next issue of the same paper:—

Sir,—My attention has been called to the letter of your correspondent "H. T." on the subject of the Trinity College (London) branch in Newcastle. I am glad that he has raised the question as to the probable action of the University of Durham in respect of musical degrees. "H. T." asks, "Why not give facilities for taking not only the Mus. Bac., but Mus. Doc. at Durham? I would answer, That is just what we propose to do. Ever since the foundation of the University, the musical degrees which it has the power to confer have only been given either by diploma or ad eundem; that is, in all cases without examination. The fact is, as one of the university authorities explained to our Warden some years ago, the extensive machinery required for the complete musical faculty and curriculum would involve too great an outlay in proportion with the probable result. Trinity College, London, on the other hand, possesses the whole of the machinery ready made, and well seasoned by seven years' active working. It places the advantages of an established system at the disposal of the north of England. If Durham University should wish to follow the wise precedent she has herself established in the recognition of external theological schools as preliminary stepping-stones to her own arts degrees, she may hereafter be led to consider whether it would not be equally to her advantage to recognise and utilise the work of Trinity College, London, in respect of musical degrees. These could be well administered by a professor of the highest standing and ability such as Dr. Armes, the Cathedral organist; and would attract not only the musical students of the immediate district but also many further north. As to the permission to use a room or rooms in the College of Physical Science, that is a privilege which the Mayor of Newcastle himself kindly undertook to ask for; and in his respect I cannot but admire his foresight and thorough grasp of the situation. He can see how greatly it will contribute to the efficiency of a future musical faculty at Durham to have allied with it a young, strong, and healthy organisation, which is a sworn foe to any kind of retrogression or stagnation, and has already won its spurs in the Metropolis and other large cities. In conclusion, I can only thank "H. T." for giving me this opportunity of throwing light upon a point which must have suggested itself to others as well as himself.

Yours, &c.,

FREDERIC CLARK, Organising Secretary.

Trinity College, London, Jan. 23, 1879.

The prospectus of Her Majesty's Theatre for the forthcoming season proves that Mr. Mapleson has readily seized upon the first opportunity of strengthenng his list of principal female vocalists; for, in addition to the engagement of Mesdames Etelka Gerster, Marie Roze, Vanzini, Trebelli, Mdlles. Hauk, Kellogg, Salla, Tremelli, and many other favourites at this establishment; he announces that Madame Christine Nilsson will reappear, after an absence of two years. In the male department we have the names of Signori Fancelli, Campanini, Runcio, Candidus, Brignoli, Leli, Del Puente, Galassi, Foli, Rota, Roveri, Ordinas, M. Thierry, Herr Behrens, &c.; and the following artists will appear for the first time in this country: Mdlle. Marie Vanzandt, Mdlle. Stelzer, Mdlle. Cristofani, Mdlle. Libia Drog, Mdlle. Lido, Signor Tecchi and Signor G. Vazelli—Signor Masini and Mr. Carleton joining the company at this establishment for the first time. The most interesting announcement is the production of Gluck's "Armida," for we can scarcely suppose that Verdi's "Aïda" or the same composer's "La Forza del destino" will now excite much enthusiasm, either with the subscribers or the general public. An Opera entirely unknown here is, however, promised—Boito's "Mefistofele"—which comes to us with an Italian reputation, and we trust may prove a success. Donizetti's "Linda di Chamouni," Rossini's "La Gazza Ladra," and Wagner's "Rienzi" are also to be given for the first time at this theatre. Sir Michael Costa retains his post as Conductor; and we may presume, therefore, that both band and chorus will be efficient as usual. The season is advertised to commence on the 26th inst.

Mr. Ernest Gye has issued a prospectus of the forthcoming season of the Royal Italian Opera, which is—as all prospectuses should be—a simple catalogue of the artists engaged, and the works which will probably be performed. We miss with much regret the name of Madame Albani from the list of vocalists; but Madame Adelina Patti, Mdlle. Thalberg, and Madame Scalchi will re-appear; Madame Alwina Valleria, whose excellent services have been so thoroughly appreciated at Her Majesty's Theatre, being also engaged, for the first time at this establishment. Signori Nicolini, Gayarre, and M. Capoul return to us, and Signori Graziani, Cotogni, and M. Maurel are included amongst the baritones. The new comers are Mdlle. Emma Turolla, Mdlle. Schau, Mdlle. Pasqua, Mdlle. Ameris, and Mdlle. Rosine Bloch; Signori Sylva, Nouvelli, Igenis Corsi, MM. Lassalle and Gailhard, Signori Silvestri and Vidal. Four works are mentioned, "two at least" of which, it is said, will be produced. These are M. Massenet's "Roi de Lahore," the Marquis d'Ivry's "Les Amants de Vérone," Signor Paladilhe's "Suzanne," and Herold's "Le Pré aux Clercs." Why these operas are selected, or why others are not selected, is a secret known only to the lessee. If, for instance, Gounod's "Polyeucte" could have been included in the list we are certain that it would have been cordially welcomed by the subscribers. The Conductors will be, as before, Signori Bevignani and Vianesi, Mr. Carrodus being principal violin; and Mr. Pittman retains his position as organist. The season is announced to commence on the 8th inst.

The Hereford Musical Festival, which commences on the 9th September, will be conducted as on former occasions, except that the performances will be preceded by a short prayer, as at Worcester last year. The principal vocalists already engaged are Miss Anna Williams, Miss

To Daffodils.

PART-SONG FOR FOUR VOICES.

Poetry by Herrick. Music by J. Barnby.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Allegretto con moto.

Soprano. mf

Fair daf - fo - dils, we weep to see You haste a - way so soon; As

Alto. mf

Fair daf - fo - dils, we weep to see You haste a - way so soon; As

Tenor. mf

We weep to see You haste a - way so soon; As Bass. mf

We weep to see You haste a - way so soon;

Allegretto con moto.

Piano. (ad lib.) ♩ = 138. mf

cres - cen - do. dim.

yet the ear - ly ris - ing, ris - ing sun, as yet the ear - ly ris - ing sun Has not at -

cres cen do. dim.

yet the ear - ly ris - ing sun, . . . as yet the ris - ing sun Has cres cen do. dim.

yet, . . as yet the ear - ly ris - ing sun, the ear - ly ris - ing sun Has not at -

cres cen do. dim.

As yet the ear - ly ris - ing sun Has not at - tain'd, at - cres - cen - do. p dim.

mf p

- tain'd, at - tain'd his noon. . . Stay, . . stay . . un - til the hast-'ning

mf p

not at - tain'd his noon. . . Stay, . . stay . . un - til the hast-'ning

mf p

- tain'd, at - tain'd his noon. . . Stay, . . stay . . un - til the hast-'ning

mf p

- tain'd his noon. . . Stay, . . stay . . un - til the hast-'ning

♩. = 96.

mf p

day Has run, . . . has run but to the ev - en - song, And day, . . un - til the hast - 'ning day . . Has run to ev - en - song, And day, . . un - til the hast - 'ning day . . Has run to ev - en - song, And day, . . un - til the hast - 'ning day . . Has run to ev - en - song, And hav - ing pray'd to - ge - ther, We will go with you a - long, we will hav - ing pray'd to - ge - ther, We will go with you a - hav - ing pray'd to - ge - ther, We will go with you a - long, we will hav - ing pray'd to - ge - ther, We will go with you a - go with you a - long, we will go with you . . . a - long. . .
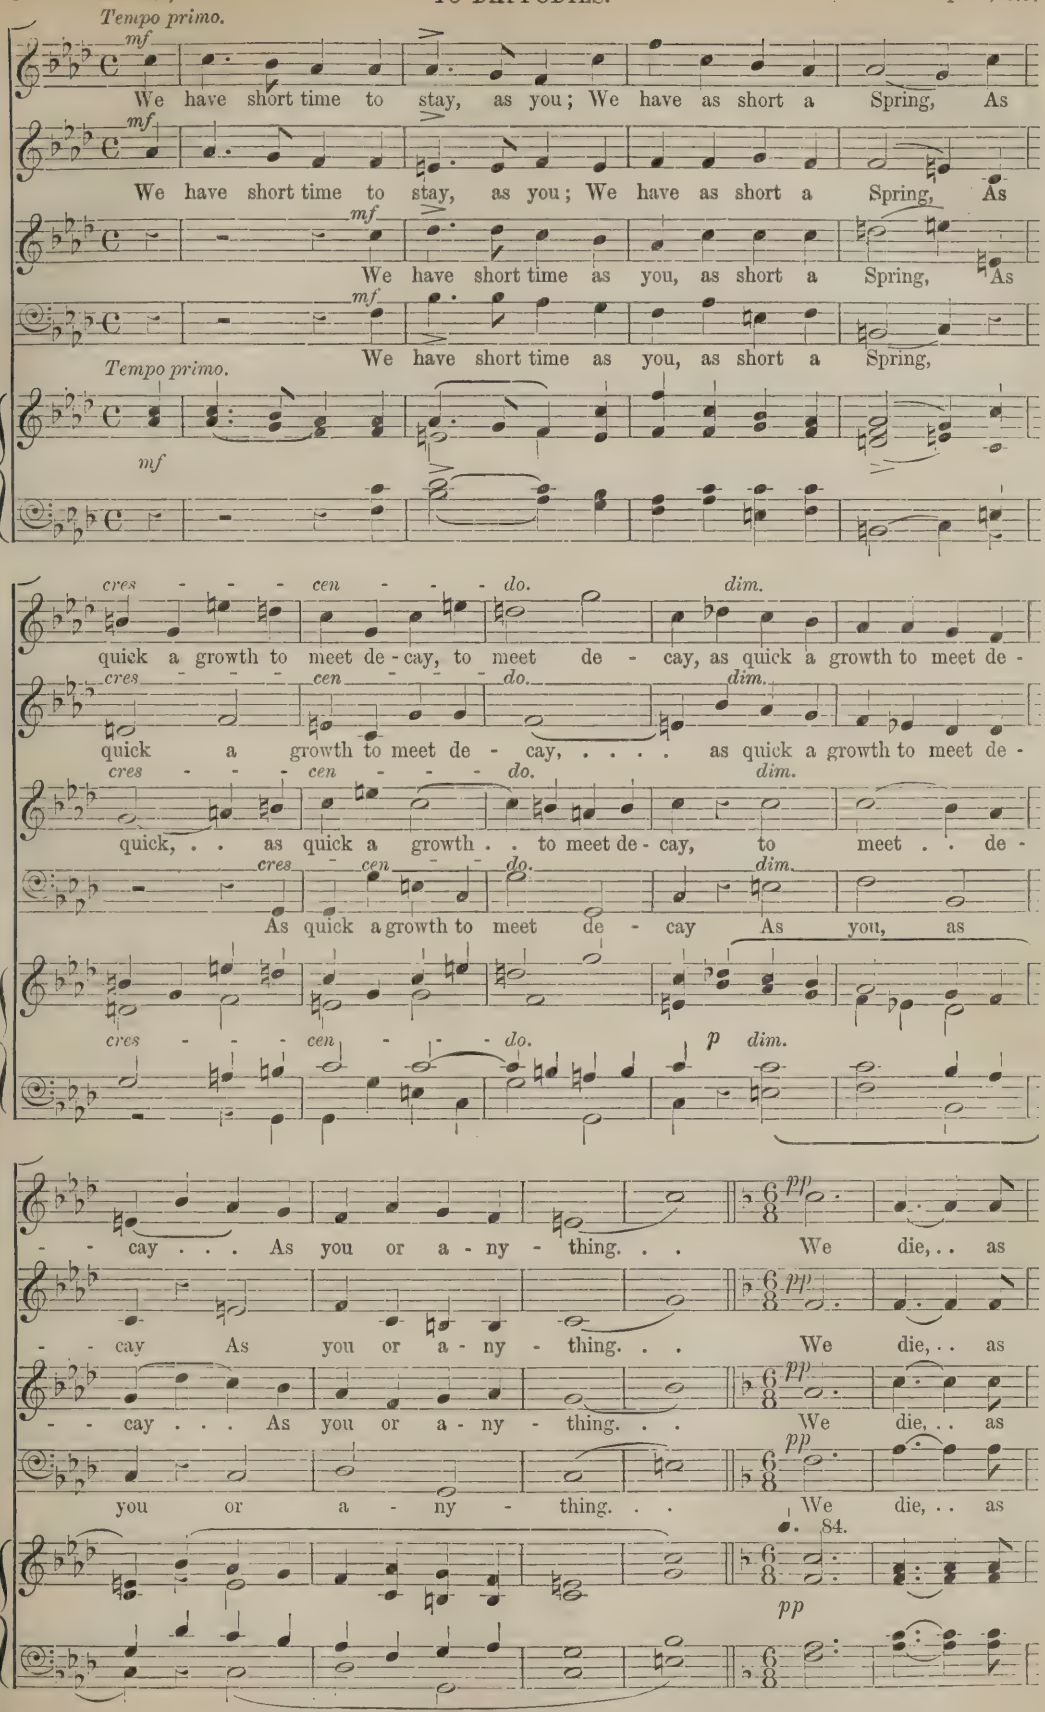
- long, a - long, we will go with you, with you a - long. . .
go with you a - long, we will go with you, with you a - long. . .
- long, a - long, we will go with you . . . a - long. . .



Tempo primo.
mf
We have short time to stay, as you; We have as short a Spring, As
We have short time to stay, as you; We have as short a Spring, As We have short time as you, as short a Spring, As We have short time as you, as short a Spring, Tempo primo.
mf
cres - - - cen - - - do. dim.
quick a growth to meet de - cay, to meet de - cay, as quick a growth to meet de - quick a growth to meet de - cay, ... as quick a growth to meet de - quick, . . as quick a growth . . to meet de - cay, to meet . . de - As quick a growth to meet de - cay As you, as p dim.
- - cay . . . As you or a - ny - thing. . . We die, . . as
- - cay As you or a - ny - thing. . . We die, . . as
- - cay . . . As you or a - ny - thing. . . We die, . . as you or a - ny - thing. . . We die, . . as 84. pp

cres. mf
your hours do, And dry a - way, . . . a-way Like to the summer's rain, Or cres. mf your hours do, . . . And dry, and dry a - way . . . . . Like to summer's rain, Or cres. mf
your hours do, . . . And dry a - - way . . . . . Like to summer's rain, Or cres. mf your hours do, . . . And dry, and dry a - way . . . Like sum - mer's rain, Or cres. mf
as . . . the pearls of morn - ing dew, Ne'er to be found a - gain, ne'er as . . . the pearls of morn - ing dew, Ne'er to be found a - as the pearls of morn - ing dew, Ne'er to be found a - gain, . . . a - as the pearls of morn - ing dew, Ne'er to be dim. pp
to be found a - gain, ne'er to be found . . . . a - gain.
dim. pp
- gain, a - - gain, ne'er to be found, be found a - gain.
dim. pp
to be found a - gain, ne'er to be found, be found a - gain.
dim. pp
found a - - gain, ne'er to be found . . . . a - gain.
dim. pp

A Folio Edition of this Part-Song is published by Novello, Ewer and Co., price 1s.

de Fonblanque, Madame Patey, Messrs. Cummings, Barton McGuckin, Santley, and Thurley Beale; Mr. Weist Hill will be the leader of the band, Mr. Done will preside at the organ during the morning performances, and Mr. Lloyd will be the pianist and organist at the evening oratorios in the Cathedral. On Tuesday, the opening day, "Elijah" will be performed. Wednesday, Purcell's "Te Deum" in D, the second part of Bach's Christmas Oratorio, overture to "Esther," Spohr's "How lovely are Thy dwellings," Mozart's "Pignus Futuræ," and Handel's "Zadock the Priest." On Wednesday evening, in the Cathedral, Rossini's "Stabat Mater" and Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer" will be given; on Thursday morning selections from Sullivan's "Light of the world" and Haydn's "Imperial Mass," and Friday morning will be devoted to the "Messiah." There will be miscellaneous concerts in the Shire Hall on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and on Friday evening a Chamber Concert. An organ will be erected for the occasion by Brindley and Foster, of Sheffield. The organist of the Cathedral, Mr. Langdon Colborne, Mus. Bac., Cantab., will be Conductor, for the first time since his appointment.

On Tuesday evening, February 25, Mrs. Julian Marshall gave a Concert of chamber music at the Vestry Hall, Hampstead, the programme of which included Beethoven's arrangement of his Septett for piano, clarionet, and violoncello, solos for the violin by Schumann and Bach, and for the violoncello by Lulli and Geminiani, a Concertino by Weber for the clarionet, and the finale of the Kreutzer Sonata. The executants were Mrs. Marshall, who presided at the piano, Mr. Henry Holmes (violin), Signor Pezze (violoncello), and Miss Frances Thomas (clarionet). Three movements of a Trio for piano, violin, and violoncello by Mrs. Marshall, played for the first time at this concert, produced a highly favourable impression, the last movement especially displaying some excellent writing. Miss Jessie Jones sang two of Mrs. Marshall's songs, and joined Mr. Julian Marshall in a Duetto di Camera by Handel. Mr. Marshall was heard to great advantage in his very spirited rendering of "Revenge, Timotheus cries," and in Schumann's "Die beiden Grenadiere." The concert was highly successful.

Under the title of Denmark Hill Concerts, a second series of four performances of a highly interesting character have taken place at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road. The concerts were rendered especially attractive by the appearance of Mdlle. Janotha, and, for the second occasion, of Herr Joachim. The programme consisted of Mozart's Quartett in D minor, No. 2 (MM. Joachim, L. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti); Solos, violin, a, Adagio, from 9th Concerto (Spohr); b, Sarabande and Tambourin (Leclair), magnificently interpreted by the famous violinist, who, responding to most enthusiastic applause, introduced Barcarole (Spohr); Solo, pianoforte, Impromptu, in F sharp major, Valse, A flat (Chopin), Mdlle. Janotha; Schumann's Quartett, in E flat, Op, 47 (Mdlle. Janotha, MM. Joachim, Zerbini, and Piatti). The vocal soli were finely given by Mr. Hanson. It is to be hoped that the originators of these concerts will be encouraged, by the undeniable success which they have met with, to give another series of such enjoyable musical evenings.

A Series of so-called "Orchestral Festival Concerts," under the conductorship of Herr Hans Richter (of Vienna), announced to be given next month at St. James's Hall, although evidently under Wagnerian influence, will include many works of other composers, three of Beethoven's Symphonies being comprised in the selection, and also compositions of modern German writers, Brahms being, as would appear by the programmes forwarded to us, especially favoured. The band will number 110 performers, Herr Hermann Franke being the leader. The singers advertised are, Frau Schuch-Proska, Fraulein Augusta Redeker, Herr Jaeger and Herr Henschel; and the pianists for the Chamber Concert, Herr Xaver Scharwenka and Herr Alfred Grünfeld. There are to be four concerts, the first of which will take place on the 5th May. An undertaking of so much importance and so perfectly organised should appeal most powerfully to the many patrons of high-class music in this country.

The Concert given at the Mansion House by pupils of the Royal Academy of Music on the 3rd ult. was well attended and highly successful. The choral music was sung with much effect by the well-trained choir; and vocal solos were most efficiently given by Miss Aylward, Miss Clara Samuell, and Mrs. Mudie Bolingbroke, two trios being also rendered with decided success: the first, "Night's ling'ring shades," by Miss Ada Patterson, Miss Gilbert, and Miss E. Thomas; and the second, "O nume benefico," by Miss M. L. Jones, Mr. Robert George, and Mr. Gordon Gooch. Special praise must be awarded to Mr. Whitehouse (violoncello), Master J. Payne (violin), and Mr. Charles E. Catchpole (horn), their solos being admirably performed; and the result of the excellent pianoforte teaching in the Institution was evidenced by the playing of Miss Alice Barton, Miss Nancy Evans, Miss Alice Heathcote, Messrs. Charlton T. Speer and Morton, all of whom were warmly applauded. The concert was ably conducted by Mr. Walter Macfarren.

A new combination of the pianoforte and harmonium has lately been brought under our notice. The inventor and patentee is Mr. Robinson, of Swansea, who must certainly be congratulated upon the exercise of considerable ingenuity. Both instruments are contained in a case differing but little in size and shape from an ordinary cottage pianoforte; both are played by means of the same keyboard, and can be used in combination or separately as desired, the means of disconnection being simple and instantaneous in action. The most important feature consists, however, in the power to apply the harmonium to the upper half of the manual and the pianoforte to the lower, or vice versâ, so that a melody played on the one instrument can be accompanied on the other. No doubt, the "Orchestral Pianoforte"—of which, by the way, Messrs. H. A. Ivory and Co. are manufacturers—will be still further improved; but even as it is it will be welcomed in many homes.

The competition for the Mendelssohn Scholarship was held on Wednesday, February 26, when nineteen candidates, including several advanced students from the Royal Academy of Music and other schools, presented themselves. The full honours of the Scholarship were for the first time won by a young lady, Miss Maude Valérie White, a student at the Royal Academy of Music; Master Frank Nicholson Abernethy proximi accessit. The latter is less than 15 years of age. The Scholarship, the value of which is at least £80 per annum, is conferred with the intention of enabling the scholar either to finish his (or her) education at a foreign Conservatoire, or to attain that object at home with increased facilities, at the choice of the Committee. Mr. Arthur Sullivan was the first Mendelssohn Scholar; the last but one was Mr. Shakespeare; and Mr. F. Corder—a composition by whom was recently performed at the Crystal Palace—was the last.

The first concert of the Grove House Choral Society (consisting of employés of Messrs. Spencer, Turner, and Boldero) took place in the dining hall of the establishment in Lisson Grove, on Friday, February 28. The various part-songs and choruses were sung remarkably well, especially when it is taken into consideration that the Society has only been formed about three months. The programme was varied with several songs and duets by members of the Society, encores being awarded to Miss Denning. Two violin solos were introduced during the evening by Miss Adelina Dinelli, who, although only eleven years of age, played with a taste and correctness hardly to be expected in one so young; her brother also played some of the accompaniments in a very efficient manner. The concert was a decided success. Mr. Coburn was the Conductor.

An Organ Recital of classical music was given by Mr. Albert E. Bishop, Organist of St. Mary Abchurch, City, on Wednesday evening, the 19th ult., at Dr. Allon's Chapel, Upper Street, Islington, Besides a judiciously varied selection from the great masters, Mr. Bishop included in his programme two morceaux of his own. The most noteworthy portion of the Recital was the performance of two important compositions of Merkel, whose high class organ music is attracting considerable attention in Germany, although almost entirely new to an English audience.

Amongst the lighter pieces, the delicate and graceful "Prayer" of Guilmant must be given high rank. The vocalist was Mr. Bridson, who, during the evening, sang "O God, have mercy" (St. Paul), and "The Lord worketh wonders" (Judas), in excellent style. Mr. Bishop's clever performance was highly appreciated by a large audience.

The St. George's Glee Union, gave its 122nd Monthly Concert, at the Pimlico Rooms, on Friday, the 7th ult. The first part of the programme comprised Mendelssohn's Motett, "Hear my prayer," and Spohr's "God Thou art great." Miss Hardy, Miss Coyte Turner, and Messrs. Arthur Thomas, and R. E. Harvey being the soloists. Sir Sterndale Bennett's "Woman of Samaria," occupied the second part; the choruses, "Therefore with joy shall ye draw water," "Therefore they shall come and sing," and "Abide with me," were well sung. Miss Bessie Spear, Miss Coyte Turner, Mr. George Carter, and Mr. E. J. Bell were the soloists, and were warmly received by a very appreciative audience, the unaccompanied Quartett, "God is a Spirit," being unanimously encored. Mr. G. F. Smith, jun., R.A.M., presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. F. R. Kinkee at the harmonium. Messrs. Garside and Monday conducted.

The American Portable Music Stand, a specimen of which has been forwarded to us, is likely, we think, to obtain very general patronage. It consists of two parts, the desk and the stand proper. The stand proper comprehends a tube containing a telescoping rod, checked by a thumb-screw, supported upon a tripod, regulated by an arrangement like an umbrella, by which the legs are held in position. The circumference of the base can be varied by simply moving the slide up and down the tube. It is also constructed so that two desks or one may be used at pleasure. For military bands, orchestras and drawing-rooms, this stand, which is to be seen at the "Hall of Commerce," 316, Oxford Street, will be equally valuable; and certainly its portability is by no means one of its least recommendations.

The 141st anniversary Festival of the Royal Society of Musicians was celebrated on the 18th ult. at Willis's Rooms, under the presidency of the Earl of Dunmore, who, in advocating the claims of the Charity, alluded to the aid it had received in its early days from the most celebrated artists of the time, including Handel, and mentioned the important fact that during the past year upwards of £3,000 had been expended in supporting those who had no longer the power of supporting themselves. The artists who assisted at the Festival were Mrs. Osgood, Miss Enriquez, Miss M. Cronin (pianoforte), Madame Thérèse Liebe (violin), and the London Vocal Union, conducted by Mr. F. Walker, Mr. Ebenezer Prout accompanying the vocal music. The subscriptions amounted to about £600.

The City division of the London Vocal Union performed Mozart's "Twelfth Service" at the Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars on Monday the 3rd ult., accompanied by a full band. The choruses were all well given, and received with considerable applause. Mr. Seymour sang the tenor solo in "Et incarnatus," and Mr. Kelliher played the flute solo in the "Benedictus" exceedingly well. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous. Solos were given by Miss Maud Cameron, Mr. Brady, Mr. Pope, Master Moon and Miss Louise Twiddy. The choir gave "Awake, Eolian Lyre," and Barnby's "Sweet and low;" the latter with such attention to expression as to receive an encore. Miss Rosa Henman accompanied with her usual care and ability, and Mr. George Wells conducted.

The Examiners at the Cambridge University on the 13th and 14th ult. for the degree of Mus. Doc., were Professor Macfarren, Dr. Joachim, and Dr. Stainer. The accepted candidates are: Mr. J. M. Bentley (Downing), S. Corbett (St. John's), and F. E. Gladstone (St. John's) who received the degree on the 20th, when Mr. J. Pattinson (unattached student) was admitted to the degree of Mus. Bac. The next preliminary examination for Mus. Bac. will be on the 29th and 30th of May, when candidates of more than thirty years of age will be exempted from the literary test, this being the last occasion of their being exempt. Candidates, of whatever age, must give notice of their intention to present themselves, to the Professor of Music, at least a month before the date of examination.

The Old Change Musical Society, consisting of the employés of Messrs. Leaf and Co., gave its first Concert at No. 30, Little Britain, on Tuesday evening, the 7th ult., which, considering the Society was only formed last autumn, was a decided success. The Orpheus glees, "Integer vitæ," "The two roses," and "The three chafers," were all well sung, and "To all you ladies" was vociferously redemanded. The Conductor was Mr. George Wells. The Operetta, "Cox and Box," was afterwards performed by Messrs. Aldridge, Lloyd, and Foreman, and elicited warm and well deserved applause. Messrs. Batchelor and Findon officiated at the piano, the former playing Ascher's "Alice" very creditably.

The Grosvenor Choral Society commenced the eighth year of its existence with a performance of Rossini's "Stabat Mater," and a selection of sacred music, on Friday, the 21st ult., in the Grosvenor Hall. The selection included the "Gloria" from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," Mendelssohn's "I waited for the Lord," and Haydn's "The Heavens are telling." The solo vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Madame Poole, Mr. Kenningham, and Mr. Henry Baker, all of whom were very successful, particularly in the unaccompanied quartett "Quando corpus." The choral singing was especially good. Mr. S. Dean Grimson led the band, and Mr. J. H. Maunder presided at the harmonium. Mr. J. G. Callcott conducted.

Mr. C. J. Frost read a well considered and excellent paper "On the management of volunteer choirs" at the College of Organists on the 4th ult., Mr. E. H. Turpin was the chairman. A good audience, including several clergymen, listened with much interest to Mr. Frost's paper. In addition to the chairman, the Rev. R. H. Hawkes, the Rev. H. Taylor, Mr. G. Carr, and Mr. James Higgs addressed the meeting, which was closed by the usual vote of thanks to both lecturer and chairman. It was announced that a small specimen of Messrs. Herbert and Beale's one manual solo organ could now be inspected at the College by giving due notice to the authorities.

Miss Cooper, Associate of the Philharmonic Society, and Organist of Christ Church, Hampstead, is now recovering from a serious illness, and has been presented with a valuable testimonial from the Rev. E. H. Bickersteth, the vicar, his churchwardens, and other members of his congregation, in the form of a handsomely bound Bible and Prayer-book, and a purse containing forty guineas, in "recognition of the fidelity, diligence, and skill with which she has for so many years discharged the important duties of organist in that church; and as a small expression of their true sympathy with her under her late severe affliction."

Mr. Lockwood Harradine gave his Annual Concert at the South Place Institute, Finsbury, on the 26th February, when he was assisted by Madame Thaddeus Wells, Miss Coyte Turner, Miss Annie Wade, Miss Maude Clinton, Miss Rose Davis, Messrs. Dudley Thomas, H. Horscroft, Henrich Lichold, E. Harradine, Elliott Becket, and Signor Fabio Campana (who accompanied his own compositions). The accompanists were Messrs. Sidney Hill, Alfred Cox, and Arthur Miller. The part-singing was undertaken by the Milton Glee Union, and the whole was under the direction of Mr. William Miller.

An excellent performance of Signor Randegger's Cantata "Fridolin" was given by the Brixton Choral Society on the 24th ult., before a large audience. Unfortunately, the composer was too ill to preside at the pianoforte, as he had intended; but his place was ably supplied by Mr. J. Harrison, Mr. C. J. Frost being the organist. The principal vocalists were Madame Worrell, Messrs. J. T. Hutchinson, Gerard Coventry and Cecil Tovey, all of whom were highly successful. The choruses were most efficiently sung, "The Hunting Chorus" being unanimously redemanded. The Conductor was, as usual, Mr. William Lemare.

A full Choral Service took place at St. Thomas's Church, Portman Square, on Thursday evening, the 20th ult., when the greater part of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was performed by a choir of upwards of 100 voices, under the conductorship of Mr. Edmund Rogers, Organist of the church. The solo parts were sung by Miss Adela Vernon, Miss Palmer and Messrs. Trelawny Cobham, Frederic Penna, and Langman. Mr. E. H. Birch, Mus. Bac., Oxon., presided at the organ.

The works decided upon for the approaching Bristol Musical Festival are Handel's "Samson" and the "Messiah," Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and "Walpurgis Night," Mozart's "Requiem," Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, and Rossini's "Stabat Mater." Engagements are pending with Madame Albani, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. The members of the choir, numbering 320, are already actively engaged in preparation, two rehearsals taking place every week.

A musical performance by the pupils of the London Society for Teaching the Blind to Read was given at the Institution, Upper Avenue Road, Regent's Park, on the 21st ult., the Rev. Henry Geary, M.A., in the chair. The selection, which was excellently chosen for the display of the executants, was rendered in a highly satisfactory manner, and reflected the utmost credit upon the Instructor to the schools, Mr. Edwin Barnes, who conducted the concert with his accustomed ability.

Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson and Hodge announce that they will sell by auction at their house Wellington Street, Strand, a choice collection of portraits illustrative of Music and the Drama, commencing on the 31st ult., and continuing the three following days. These portraits, the property of a well-known amateur, include many very rare specimens—some having a facsimile signature; and there can be no doubt that the sale will attract a large number of artists and amateurs.

The Islington Choral Society gave Root's sacred Cantata, the "Pilgrim Fathers," at the Primitive Methodist Chapel, New North Road, Islington, on Monday, the 10th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Golden (Elder's Daughter), Miss Toynbee (Sister of the Captain), Miss Carpenter (Daughter), Mr. A. Fincham (Captain), Mr. Sparks (Elder), Mr. Butt (Elder's Son), and Mr. Bird (Indian). Conductor, Mr. George Randal; Organist, Mr. W. H. Whitmore.

It may be that those among contemporary composers who tolerate and even advocate, meddling with the works of dead men will change their minds when the fashion spreads to the works of the living. There is danger of this, for, in view of the production of "H.M.S. Pinafore" at the Standard Theatre, New York, a young Hungarian musician, Mr. Vogrech, was engaged to "furnish new orchestration!"

Some distinguished lady amateurs have instituted afternoons, for the practice of vocal music, in South Kensington, under the musical direction of Mrs. Arthur O'Leary. Reinecke's "Schweewittchen" was rehearsed at the first meeting, which took place on Wednesday, the 5th ult., at Emperor's Gate.

At the close of the rehearsal on Tuesday, the 4th ult., Mr. Walter Lough, Choirmaster of S. John's, Wilton Road, Pimlico, was presented by the choir-boys with a handsomely fitted inkstand and also a bâton, the donors at the same time expressing their appreciation of his ability and kindness during the last five years.

A Musical Society has been formed in Chigwell the meetings being held in the school-room at Oakhurst, the Rev. W. Linton Wilson's School. Mr. Brownlow Baker is musical director, and Mr. Wilson secretary. Locke's music to "Macbeth" and a selection of glees will at present occupy the main attention of this Society.

The Saturday Popular Organ Recitals at the Bow and Bromley Institute will be continued to the end of April. During the past month the organists have included Mr. W. S. Hoyte, Dr. Spark, Dr. Bunnett, Mr. Mann, and Mr. W. Rea.

There have been Special Services in Hampstead Parish Church every Friday during Lent, consisting of selections from the second part of Handel's "Messiah" and "The Passion," by Heinrich Schütz (16th Century), conducted by the Organist, Mr. James Shaw.

At the weekly practice on Friday, the 7th ult., Mr. George Randal, Conductor of the Islington Choral Society, was presented by the members and friends with a very handsome bâton, mounted in silver; also three volumes of modern part-songs.

The Concerts of the Bach Choir, under the direction of Herr Otto Goldschmidt, are announced to commence on the 3rd inst. with a performance of Bach's Mass in B minor.

We understand that H.R.H. the Princess of Wales has accepted the dedication of a Motett by Herr L. Samson, entitled "Incline Thine ear to my crying."

REVIEWS.

The Works of G. F. Handel. Printed for the German Handel Society. Eighteenth Year. [Leipzig.] [London: Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The magnificent edition of the complete works of Handel, which for nearly twenty years has been in the course of publication by the German Handel Society, is now gradually approaching completion. At the present rate of progress it will probably be at least eight years before all the works are issued, as there are nearly thirty still unpublished. Most of the more familiar and best known have already appeared; and each succeeding year's issue, therefore, brings to the knowledge of musicians some work of the old master which was in all probability unknown to them. This is especially the case with regard to the operas. Out of thirty-six which are in existence—three of the earliest being lost apparently beyond recovery—only four had been hitherto published in a complete form; and while it cannot be maintained that as a whole Handel's operas are at all worthy of comparison with his oratorios, many of them, nevertheless, contain much which is well worthy of being rescued from oblivion.

The works given by the Society in their eighteenth year's issue are the Italian Oratorio "La Resurrezione," the Serenata "Parnasso in Festa," and the two operas "Siroe" and "Tolomeo." Of these the first-named had been already published towards the end of the last century in Arnold's edition of Handel, which (as many of our readers will be aware) was never completed; the other three are now printed for the first time.

"La Resurrezione" has but little in common with the later Oratorios of the great master; in form and in style it more nearly resembles his Italian operas. There are but two choruses—both short ones—in the entire work, one at the end of each part; the interest of the work lies in the songs. Among these may be noted the fine bass air, "O voi dell' Erebo," which some of our readers may remember to have heard at one of the Handel Festivals some years ago; the beautiful soprano songs, "Ferma l'ali," and "Risorga il mondo," and others which might be named. An interesting feature of the work is the orchestration, in which we already see Handel trying experiments in instrumental combination. For instance, the song "D' amor fù consiglio" (afterwards introduced into "Alexander Balus" as "Fair virtue shall charm me"), is here accompanied by four violins, violas, and basses; "Ferma l'ali" is scored for two flutes, violins con sordini, a viola da gamba, basses, and harpsichord; "Così la tortorella" has one flute, a viola da gamba, a teorba, and the whole of the strings in unison and octaves; and "Per me già di morire" is accompanied by a solo violin, a viola da gamba, all the flutes and one oboe with a mute in unison (a very curious combination), and the whole mass of strings, with separate parts for violoncello and double bass. It is hardly needful to add that in "La Resurrezione," as indeed in all Handel's works, we find much written in the taste of a bygone day; but the work contains many points of considerable interest to the student.

"Parnasso in Festa," which was written for the wedding festivities of Princess Anne of England with the Prince of Orange, is for the most part a pasticcio. Of thirty-one numbers which it contains, twenty-three are taken, sometimes with slight alteration, from "Athaliah," and most of the rest were used subsequently for the English version of the "Triumph of Time and Truth." A noticeable point in this work is the skill with which Handel adapted the Italian words to his music. On this subject Dr. Burney in his "History of Music" says, "The Italian words are adjusted to the music with such intelligence and attention to the accent and expression, that if we were not acquainted with the new and particular occasion on which 'Parnasso' was prepared, it would be difficult to discover whether the music was originally composed for that serenata or for 'Athaliah.'"

In nothing has the musical taste of our public undergone more change since the time of Handel than in the direction of opera. The revival of even the finest of Handel's Italian operas on the stage at the present day is impossible. Even if a large audience were attracted by curiosity, it may seriously be doubted whether half-a-dozen people would sit through the performance. Handel's operas consist almost entirely of a series of songs, connected by interminable recitatives. Occasionally we meet with a duet, and still more rarely with a trio or quartett, while there is usually a short chorus at the end of the last act; but of concerted music, such, for example, as we find it in the modern opera finale, there is not a trace. The singers come on, sing their songs, mostly with a long da capo, and go off again. Neither "Siroe" nor "Tolomeo" ranks among the best of Handel's operas. Both contain beautiful things,—such for instance, as the "Non vi piacque" in the former, and the "Voi, dolce aurette" in the latter; but the greater part of the music is of only historical interest; and a detailed analysis of the works would be both dry and useless. It is well that the whole of Handel's music should be published; and these operas are therefore welcome, but rather for the sake of the completeness of the edition than for their intrinsic merit.

Three Songs: "Rosamond's Epitaph;" "On the Water;" "Prayer." Composed by Frederick Corder.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Evidence is not wanting of the fact that a serious and lofty spirit animates, as a rule, our young English composers. At no former time, perhaps, have the prospects of native music looked brighter than now. It may be that among the aspirants who have made themselves known within the last few years there is neither a Beethoven nor a Mendelssohn, but all the same have we reason to be content with the outlook. Our young musicians are working in the right spirit—that is to say as artists, and not so much for profit as for honour. True they cannot live on honour, but it is also true that "man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things that he hath," and everyone, but especially every artist desiring to be worthy of the name, should recognise that his highest aim lies beyond and above himself. In nothing, perhaps, is the serious purpose of our rising composers more manifest than in the care they bestow upon comparative trifles, and we have now before us three songs by Mr. Frederick Corder, late Mendelssohn Scholar, in which this feature is very striking. Mr. Corder's name, we need hardly say, has been a good deal before the public of late. We have heard his music at Madame Viard-Louis' concerts, as well as at those of the Crystal Palace, and although the opinions of connoisseurs respecting it have not been unanimous, the very fact that opinions were freely expressed showed that the composer had made his mark. It cannot be rash to say that we shall hear more of Mr. Corder in the future. He has ability, spirit, and ambition, and those who desire the welfare of native talent should try to find him opportunity. Meanwhile, let us look at these three songs, which, it may be well to point out, are published together and not in a separate form. Regarding all of them one assertion holds good; which is that the composer never intended to produce merely a harmonised melody. The ordinary form of English song has thus been departed from, but the removal is in the direction of higher ground. Taken in its place we have nothing to say against the mere tune-song. It has a necessary existence, and is a power in the land. But a long way above it, regarded from an artistic point of view, lies the song in which voice and accompaniment work together towards full lyrical expression, on almost co-ordinate terms. Such is the song of Schubert and Schumann, of Franz and Rubinstein, and such is the song of Mr. Frederick Corder as here exemplified. Of the three, it may be that the first, "Rosamond's Epitaph," will gain a majority of suffrages. The words, by Dr. W. C. Bennett, are in their author's best and most lyrical vein, and Mr. Corder has set them very tenderly, without resort to common-place themes on the one hand, or to originality at the expense of beauty on the other. Judiciously heightened by the pianoforte part, the expression of the song is all that can be desired and no connoisseur will refuse the admiration due to a refined piece of workmanship. The same characteristics are displayed, though after a different fashion, in "On the Water." Here the pianoforte is much more independent of the voice and may almost be said to be a song itself. Indeed, the fact is tolerably clear that Mr. Corder rather subordinated the voice to the instrument than the instrument to the voice, and his vocal theme has not, consequently, the grace and finish observable in "Rosamond's Epitaph." But the complete effect is good, and we cannot but be conscious of more than ordinary thoughtfulness and skill. "Prayer" is, as to its words, a translation by Mr. Corder of some verses by Arnim, and, as to its music, having regard to what public taste demands, the least acceptable song of the three. Rigidly faithful to the text and intensely serious, it wants relief; but this is rather the result of the composer's choice of a poem than a musical misjudgment. Taken altogether the songs are well worth notice, not only for what they promise, but for what they are. We may add that the first and second are suitable for a soprano or tenor, the third for a contralto.

Novello's Part-Song Book (Second Series). Nos. 352 to 356. How I love the festive boy; Autumn; When spring begems the dewy scene; The day of love; The stars are with the voyager. Composed by A. C. Mackenzie.

Nos. 382 to 385. Uncertain light; Confidence; The dream; The boat. Composed by Robert Schumann.

Orpheus (New Series). No. 10. A Franklyn's dogge leped over a style. Composed by A. C. Mackenzie.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Mr. Mackenzie is well sustaining the repute of English talent in the department of unaccompanied vocal music. He writes with ease and grace, and with considerable power of natural expression; all of which qualities are agreeably conspicuous in his contributions to "Novello's Part-Song Book." No. 355 is a particular example, though it lies open to the charge of repeating unimportant words, such as "resembling," for reasons purely musical, since no others can be found. But this apart, the setting of Moore's verses must be pronounced a decided success, and one all the more valuable because gained by legitimate art. No. 352, the words of which are also by the Irish poet, is another happy display of Mr. Mackenzie's taste. It reflects without the smallest effort the joyous spirit of the lines, and a most piquant effect is produced by a sudden change from 6-8 to 2-4 time, on the words "Tripping wild the dance of joy," the new rhythm enduring for three bars only. Something of genius lies in this little touch, and we must commend also the appropriate treatment of the words "Age is on his temples hung," &c., as well as the manner of the return to the original buoyant theme. No. 353, "Autumn," is of a more sober cast, and calls for deeper feeling. But the composer proves equal to its demands, and gives us a work marked by real power—the power, that is, of heightening the sentiment of the text. Let us add, as something per contra, that Mr. Mackenzie shows a tendency to overdo the device of connecting his ensemble phrases by means of two or three notes for a single voice. In any one composition this does not appear as a fault, but a glance at several shows that the composer is in danger of falling into a not very elegant mannerism, from which we take this opportunity of warning him. No. 354, "When spring begems the dewy scene" is rather more artificially constructed than its companions, but, nevertheless, has features of obvious merit. We note, for example, the really effective return to the original theme on page 3, and the simple, unforced descriptiveness of the quasi pastorale, "How sweet to mark the pouting vine." No. 356, "The stars are with the voyager," gives less occasion for remark, presenting nothing indeed of a distinctive character, and only confirming the opinion suggested by all its companions that in Mr. Mackenzie we have a man qualified to adorn a peculiarly English sphere of artistic labour, for so we call the writing of part-songs, notwithstanding that this German form has superseded our native glee.

The four works by Schumann (Nos. 382-385) hardly require notice, so sure is the name of the composer to bring them under the immediate observation of amateurs. But a few words of description may not be uncalled for. No. 382, "Uncertain light," is written for a double chorus, in a bold and massive style. The words, admirably translated,—as are those of the companion pieces, save one, by the Rev. J. Troutbeck—are somewhat transcendental, but, on that account, they probably made a stronger appeal than usual to the composer, who has treated them in a very effective, though not especially original manner. No 383, "Confidence," is also for a double choir, and, as compared with its predecessor, much more characteristic of Schumann. It is simple, nevertheless, and eminently worthy the attention of amateur societies who wish to increase their repertory. The subject of No. 384, "The dream," is both weird and vague,—qualities which Schumann has successfully avoided in his music. No. 385, "The boat," claims the attention due to a work of more importance. Written for four voices, with soli for soprano voice, flute, and horn, its construction is peculiar and extremely interesting. As the boat glides down a stream, first a hunter with his horn, then a resting traveller with his flute, and then a maiden with her voice join the music, producing an effect as fresh and original as it is charming. We commend this piece in the strongest terms as one certain to be received with enthusiasm.

In the one number from the "Orpheus" now before us we come upon Mr. Mackenzie again, and see him in merry mood. It can hardly be necessary to tell our readers what a jeu d'esprit is Mr. Barham's story of the Franklyn's Dogge. Its delightful inconsequence, leading nowhere with such minute attention to orthographical correctness by the way, is intensely droll, and calls for no ordinary power of humorous expression in the man who would set it to music. Mr. Mackenzie has not failed to meet its demands, and we regard the setting of the spelling exercise in each verse as equally funny with the words. Clearly the English sense of humour, so skilfully shown in our old catches and rounds, has not died out of the land.

Musical Theory: by John Curwen. Book III. Musical Form. [Tonic Sol-fa Agency.]

Whatever may be said for or against the merits of the Tonic Sol-fa movement—either as providing us with a permanent rational notation, or as merely a stepping-stone to the one now in use—there can be no question that it has led a large number of people to think much more truthfully upon music than they formerly did. The abolition of the "ladder system" certainly upsets many of our pre-conceived notions; but there is something in seeing what we hear—that the intervals of the scale are unvarying—and having once fairly got into the right road, it is not at all likely that we shall go back again. But Mr. Curwen, who avowedly inherits his system from Miss Glover, of Norwich, has also earned our thanks by circulating works not only to teach singing, but to teach music; and we are certain that the original founder of this method would be delighted could she see the practical results of her proposed reform. The book now before us is the last of three on "Musical Theory," and treats especially of "Form," an element in musical composition which it seems somewhat important we should keep before us in the present day. It is truly said, at the commencement of this work, that form consists in "the putting together of musical material—rhythmic, melodic, and harmonic—so as to produce in the mind a feeling that each part of the tone-picture belongs to the other parts and to the whole," what is aptly termed "incongruity" being illustrated by stringing together a number of familiar musical phrases good in themselves, but having no relation with each other. The remarks upon Sections, Phrases, Periods, Strains and Movements are extremely lucid; and much information may be gained by the student from a careful observation of the manner in which the various specimens given are built up. Respecting the essentials of "Musical Form," it is said that, no doubt, "the artist tried this plan and then the other, until he found something satisfactory both to himself and those about him. When he had found this, he naturally repeated it; and those who followed him imitated him. He had created a 'successful form.' There is no 'law of the Medes and Persians' about it, but only the law which any good piece of art necessarily lays down for all future artists. They are bound to study it, and analyse it, and improve upon it as much as possible. Any one is at liberty to invent a new Musical Form. Musical Forms may, like fashions, 'come in' and 'go out' again. But those which have most of artistic truth and beauty in them will be welcome to all ages—will be lasting Musical Forms." Let us hope that the study of the works of all the great masters—not only in music, but in other arts—will prove to us that the general principles here laid down cannot be set aside with impunity, and the conscientious musical critics of the day may then be credited with the desire, not to enter a crusade against the construction of new forms, but against the abolition of all forms whatever. There are some terms used in this book which we think scarcely good for a student—for example, a sequence occurring in the air "O thou that tellest" is called a "contralto sequence," and the theme in divided octaves in Mozart's "Rondo alla Turca" (from his pianoforte Sonata in A major) is said to be with "doubled rhythm"—but, as a rule, wherever musical words are used in a different sense to their ordinary signification, the fact is fully stated, and reasons given for the alteration. Again, however, we must call attention to a matter which we feel cannot but impede the progress of this notation, at least with musicians: we mean the principle of regarding the minor as growing out, not of the tonic, but of the relative, major scale. We know that this has often been mentioned before; but when we see the first movement of Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 49, No. 1—which is as much in the key of G as the last movement—headed thus, "Key of B♭. Lah is G," there can be no doubt that thoroughly false notions must be engendered in the mind of a pupil upon the subject; for if, as in the Tune "Cannons" (also in the key of G minor), he is to believe that it "begins and ends in key B♭, minor mode," what is he to think when he sees old music printed "in the key of G with the lesser third?" Surely this is a subject worthy the consideration of earnest Tonic Sol-faists; and that some little doubt on the matter may already have been felt, even by the originator of the movement, seems shadowed forth by the following observation at page 88: "It should, however, be mentioned that instrumental writers, like Beethoven, and even some modern vocal writers, regard the major and minor 'of the same Tonic' as the same key, and beginning a piece in one, they sometimes end it in the other." Unquestionably so, and the sooner this is acknowledged by all musicians the better; for certainly Beethoven would have been somewhat astonished had he been told that his Symphony in C minor is "in the key of E♭, minor mode." At the conclusion of the book we have some questions on the method of parsing complete Forms, with reference to the paragraphs where all the points necessary for the purpose of analysing a composition are explained. The pronunciation of some Italian words, too, is tolerably well given; but we cannot believe that "Scherzo" can be represented by the letters "Skertzoa."

Sehnsucht (The Sunny South), with German and English words.

Frühlingsabend (Spring Evening), with German and English words.

Swallow Song. From "The Princess," by Alfred Tennyson.

Composed by Herbert S. Oakeley.
[Forsyth Brothers.]

The original text of the first two of these songs, by Geibel, is translated by the composer, who has thoroughly caught the spirit, both in the words and music, of the German poet. We are glad, however, to find that Professor Oakeley has set the German, and not the English, verses, printing the translation in small letters underneath. The theme of "Sehnsucht," at first lightly accompanied, colours the words with much fidelity; and although the transition from E to C major comes somewhat abruptly upon the ear, when we are fairly in the key, both melody and harmony (presuming that the last quaver in the right-hand group, bar 17, page 5, should be E instead of D) flow on together in loving company. The almost unceasing semiquaver accompaniment in the second song gives it a thoroughly German character, the pianist indeed having an equal share with the vocalist in the effect of the composition. Although undoubtedly the work of a skilled and refined musician, this song is somewhat more conventional than that already noticed. A Recitative is written to the song from "The Princess"—only intended to be sung when it is preceded by "Tears, idle tears," (also composed by Professor Oakeley)—and certainly this introduces the "Swallow Song" with good effect. There is much dramatic power shown in this piece, the varied shades of feeling being most sympathetically expressed in the music, which is throughout of a very high order. The legato bass, with the broken phrases of accompaniment for the right hand materially heighten the passionate portions of the song, which is certainly the best of the three under notice. A German translation of the poetry has been ably supplied by Fräulein von Valois; but certainly we should recommend that Tennyson's glowing words be adhered to wherever practicable.

Dixit Dominus. For Double Chorus, Solos, and Orchestra, in C major. Composed by Leonardo Leo. Edited from the autograph in the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge, by C. Villiers Stanford. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The fine opening chorus of this Psalm has previously been published by Messrs. Novello, both in the folio and octavo form; but the entire work now appears for the first time in this country; and, as far as we know, no other complete edition is in existence. The orchestration is for two oboes, two horns and strings, a very excellent transcription of which for the pianoforte has been made by the editor for the octavo edition now before us. The vigour with which the double choruses are written will surprise those who have but an imperfect knowledge of this composer; and a Quintett, "Dominus a dextris,"—in the score of which two oboes are added to the strings—contains many vocal passages extremely brilliant and effective. Mr. Villiers Stanford has added some metronome marks which represent to him the times intended for the several movements by the composer; but he modestly says that he does so "without any intention of interfering with the different tastes and opinions of different conductors." He has also corrected some evidently wrong notes; but always informs us as to how they stand in the autograph score.

Lead, kindly Light. Sacred Song, for Contralto. The words by Dr. J. H. Newman; set to music by C. Swinnerton Heap, Mus. Doc. Cantab.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The smooth and placid character of Dr. Heap's music cannot but recommend it to vocalists who seek not after sensational points in compositions of a truly devotional nature; yet we, who calmly listen and think but of the song in relation to art, remain unmoved by its effect, even when the notes are breathed by the purest contralto voice, and their expression is regulated by the highest musical feeling. Something, then, must be wanting more than skilled workmanship can supply—more than a musician of the undoubted talent of Dr. Heap has thrown into his task—to enchain our attention and awaken that truly religious fervour which music, more than any other art, can evoke. The task of the reviewer is indeed a hard one when, with a song before him so tenderly voiced and so carefully harmonised, he feels it his duty to speak these truths; but compositions of this character are so rapidly multiplying—especially by earnest and even clever amateurs—that it is fully time to erect a higher standard; and it is artists like Dr. Heap that we hope to enlist as pioneers in the good cause. Let us, however, in justice to the composer of this song, award unqualified praise to the harmonies and accompaniments, which in many places give much interest to the somewhat conventional vocal theme, more especially from the part marked "a piacere" to the conclusion.

Eight Songs for Three Female Voices; with pianoforte accompaniment. By Ferdinand Hiller (Op. 176). English translation by Julia Goddard.
[Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.]

The simple and melodious character of this set of three-part songs should recommend them to professional as well as amateur vocalists. It is perhaps scarcely fair to judge them in their English translations, for well as the meaning of the words has been preserved, and carefully as the musical accent has been considered, it is absolutely impossible faithfully to reflect the original feeling of the composer—but three competent singers who can pronounce the German words as they should be pronounced in music are not always available; and it is certainly better to hear these graceful compositions sung to an English translation than not to hear them at all. We are inclined to give the preference to No. 2, "Expectation," No. 4, "When the bells are all ringing" (a really charming song), No. 6, "Cuckoo Song," and No. 8, "Play on." But we cordially invite the attention of all music-lovers to the entire collection of little gems; for there are merits in each which will amply repay study. Few difficulties will be encountered in the pianoforte part, but a refined and sympathetic touch is absolutely necessary for the due effect of the music. Germans, as a rule, think as much of the instrument as of the voice, even in their least pretentious vocal pieces; and it may be expected that so accomplished an artist as Ferdinand Hiller will at least do something more than allow his pianist merely to support the voices.

True Love (Treue Liebe). Song. The words translated from the German of E. Ferraud by Natalia Macfarren. The music composed by Willem Coenen.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The figure commenced in the symphony of this song is so happily preserved throughout the accompaniment of a large portion of the voice part as to lend additional interest to a melody in itself most attractive. A beautiful point, too, is where, after a prolonged pedal on the dominant of E minor, a sudden burst occurs in the tonic major, on the words, "Oh love, have I lost thee?" the effect of which is materially heightened by a passionate triplet accompaniment. The return to the original key and theme is well managed; and a good contrast is obtained by the long holding chords to the placid melody, most sympathetically expressive of the words, with which the song concludes. We cordially invite the attention of those in search of vocal pieces essentially melodious and original in character to this composition; and can assure them that, though unpretentious, as all really good songs are, it is the finished work of a refined and accomplished artist.

Mendelssohn's Original Compositions for Pianoforte Solo. Complete Edition in Five Volumes. Vol. V.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The publication of the whole of Mendelssohn's compositions for pianoforte solo in an octavo edition, complete in five volumes, will do much towards popularising these works, and enable many to make a valuable addition to their musical library at a small cost. The fifth volume, just issued, contains Three Preludes, Three Studies, Two Sonatas, Album Blatt, Capriccio, and Perpetuum Mobile. Most of these pieces are comparatively little known; but there can be little doubt that they will now shortly make their way; for although of course unequal in merit, they are all instinct with that charming individuality which stamps even the most trifling sketches of their composer. The Album Blatt, in E minor and major, is a perfect gem, and thoroughly worthy of being ranked with the best of the "Lieder ohne Worte."

The Morning and Evening Service, together with the Office of Holy Communion, set to music in the key of D. Certain portions of the Office of Holy Communion, intended for Supplemental Use with other Services. By Charles E. Miller. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This service will require the resources of a large and well-trained choir to perform it with effect. We can scarcely say whether Mr. Miller sometimes purposely breaks well-known rules of harmony or not, but certain it is that the judgment of an experienced master would save him not only from occasional errors of correct taste, but may suggest to him in many cases that he has most certainly and of course most inadvertently transcribed phrases which, though excellent in themselves, are considered the special characteristics of other musicians. We must not be misunderstood, however: notwithstanding the above criticism, there is most undoubtedly much to be admired in this service, especially in the "Gloria in Excelsis," which contains excellent points.

Daylight and Moonlight. Song. Words by Longfellow. Music by H. Campbell Pope. [Weekes and Co.]

We do not select this song for notice from a formidable pile of "new music" because there is anything startlingly original either in its melody or treatment, but simply because what is attempted is well carried out. Excepting the mistake of accenting words which should be unemphatic, in the first two bars the theme is throughout sympathetic with the poetry; and the harmonies are graceful, appropriate, and carefully written. A different accentuation of the opening line would of course involve the necessity of composing the song in another rhythm; and we, therefore, only mention the matter in order to caution the composer (who may probably again come before us) against the common practice of writing a melody without due consideration of the words to which it is wedded.

Pilot Joe. Baritone Song. Words by J. P. Douglas. Music by Louis Diehl. [Enoch and Sons.]

As we presume that the copy of this song forwarded to us is the "simplified edition"—a line being drawn under these words on the title-page—we of course cannot say what difficulties may be laid out for the pianist in the more complicated version; but in the shape now before us "Pilot Joe" may be conscientiously recommended as a bold and stirring composition, well worthy the attention of baritone singers. The opening theme, in G minor, is melodious and admirably adapted to the words—the lingering of the voice on the minor supertonic, before the change to the major, being an excellent point—and, whatever may be the case in the "original edition," the accompaniment, although full of character, never interrupts the flow of the vocal part.

O Mistress mine. Part-song. Words by Shakespeare. Music composed by Herbert W. Wareing. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This song, expressly intended for unaccompanied choral singing, is a very good specimen of the composer's talent for part-writing. We scarcely like the alteration of accent by changing from three to four rhythm in the second line of the poetry, but in every other respect we have nothing but praise, both for the melody and harmony of the composition. The voice parts flow easily throughout, and a good effect is gained by interrupting the expected close in F sharp minor in the sixth bar of page 3. The Part-song is appropriately dedicated to Mr. W. C. Stockley, of Birmingham.

Allegretto Quasi Andante, by C. Warwick Jordan, Mus. Bac. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Original music for the organ is now not a scarcity, and the piece under notice is an effective composition of very moderate difficulty. It commences with an interesting subject in F major, which is then treated in the relative minor; after this, the second subject is heard in the key of the dominant; the movement then proceeds in the ordinary sonata form.

Fourteen Offertory Sentences. Set to music by Sydney R. Coles. [Weekes and Co.]

This music does not call for special remark; at the same time it is good, fairly interesting, and though it does not express the sentiment of the text with any degree of vividness, yet it never offends the rules of good taste, and is tolerably melodious. It is, moreover, suitable for choirs where more elaborate settings would be impracticable.

Psalms and Hymns from Holy Scripture. For Chanting. [Hodder and Stoughton.]

No doubt this book will be extremely useful to those for whom it is intended—Nonconformists, we presume. The pointing is simplicity itself, and the passages have been selected with great care and judgment. A good and large collection of the words of anthems is also appended.

O how amiable are Thy dwellings. Anthem for Solo and Chorus. By W. H. Wilson. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

There is much we like in this anthem. It is vocal and melodious, and might with careful singing become very effective. We wish, however, Mr. Wilson had omitted what we consider the weak parts of the composition—viz., pages 4 and 6.

FOREIGN NOTES.

We have been favoured by Professor Jähns, of Berlin, author of the elaborate and unique work entitled "C. M. von Weber in seinen Werken," with the following interesting communication: "Several German and foreign music-journals have made the announcement that 'Capellmeister Káldy of Pesth has forwarded to Prof. Jähns, the biographer of Carl Maria von Weber, some hitherto unknown portions from 'Der Freischütz.' Prof. Jähns on his part has, in a letter to Káldy, confirmed the fact that the most complete score of 'Freischütz' is in the possession of the National Theatre of Pesth, having been sent there by Weber himself, according to his own diary, on the 10th of December, 1821.' While reserving for a future occasion a more minute criticism of this entirely misleading statement, I must confine myself now to the following observations. The score in the possession of the Hungarian National Theatre, besides showing copious and important omissions, contains in two places of the finale of the third act ten and twelve bars respectively, of which the former are undoubtedly not Weber's; while in the latter instance his authorship is extremely doubtful, being merely a makeshift in order to dispense, if necessary, with the part of the hermit. It is needless to add that such doubtful additions and anonymous makeshifts cannot be said to complete an already defective score. Weber, it is true, did on December 10th, 1821, forward a score of 'Freischütz' to Pesth; but that cannot have been the one now in possession of the Hungarian National Theatre, which was only opened in the year 1838. The German Theatre at Pesth, on the other hand, was founded already in 1812, and to this only Weber could have forwarded his score. This establishment, however, ceased to exist in 1866, as far as its character of "Stadt-Theater" was concerned, when the entire operatic library, being the property of the town, was disposed of by auction, and since that time the score forwarded by Weber in 1821 has disappeared. In any case, however, the original score, in Weber's own handwriting, of 'Der Freischütz,' which was presented by the widow of the master to the Royal Library of Berlin, should be our guidance in the matter. It is thus scarcely necessary on my part to give the distinct assurance that it has never entered my mind to pronounce the copy held by the Pesth Theatre as being the most complete score extant, nor need I have the slightest hesitation in making this statement, since Capellmeister Káldy has, in a letter just to hand, expressed his entire concurrence with my views on the subject. In conclusion, I will remark that the score-editions of 'Freischütz,' published by Schlesinger and Peters respectively, agree in every respect with the original of the Royal Library at Berlin, all German pianoforte arrangements of the score being likewise free of any omissions."

We may add that we had ourselves noticed in some foreign journals the paragraph, the authenticity of which Professor Jähns now refutes, but thinking it to require confirmation we refrained from reproducing it in these columns.

Rubinstein's Opera "Feramors," was successfully produced on the 4th ult., at the Royal Opera-house at Berlin, the principal rôles being sustained by Herr Niemann and Madame Mallinger; in consequence, however, of the latter having refused to sing certain portions of her part, the composer abstained from personally conducting his work. Among the passages objected to by the lady was a scene in which the singer is intended to accompany her vocal efforts by a dance.

Wagner's Nibelungen Tetralogy is gradually establishing a firm hold upon the répertoires of the more important operatic stages of Germany, notwithstanding the great scenic and mechanical difficulties which an adequate representation of the gigantic work presents. At the Imperial Opera-house of Vienna, the fourth drama, "Götterdämmerung," and with it the entire series, has now been placed on the stage, and the number of applications for seats is so great that it is proposed to continue the performances of the work until June, a new contract having been entered into with the tenor, Herr Jäger, whose representation of the part of Siegfried is much admired. At Cologne, "Rheingold" has been most successfully mounted, and will be followed by the remaining portions of the Tetralogy. At Weimar, the first performance of "Walküre" was made the occasion for special demonstrations of enthusiasm on the part of the public, and the work continues to attract crowded audiences. We have already mentioned in these columns the representations of other German establishments of the "Ring," and, with these facts before us, there can be no question as to the rapidly growing popularity of Herr Wagner's reformatory ideas among his compatriots. In order to complete our résumé of the subject, we should mention that the performance of a parody on the Tetralogy, entitled "Der Ring dernie-gelungen" (The ring which never fitted) has recently been prohibited at Munich on grounds of public morality.

M. Camille Saint-Saëns is just now engaged upon a most successful concert-tournée in Germany, where his talents as composer and pianist are much appreciated. Both at Leipzig, where he interpreted, at one of the Gewandhaus concerts, several compositions by Beethoven only, and at Hanover, the reception accorded to the eminent French artist has been most flattering.

A monument is to be erected at Leipzig in memory of Mendelssohn, the subscriptions for which amount at present to 18,000 marks.

M. Turquet, the associate of M. Jules Ferry in the present Ministry of Fine Arts at Paris, has addressed a letter to the Government inspectors of theatres in France in which he solicits their co-operation in his projected regeneration of the moral status of the stage, adding in conclusion: "Already for too many years art has served no other purpose but that to amuse, and from being amusing it has descended to corrupting. It is our desire that dramatic art should aim at the realisation of a higher and more manly ideal in order to render it worthy of the name of a school. The art for which we strive is that which elevates, not that which degrades; the art-work we revere is that which brings health not that which corrupts. . . . Let us grant to politics all the liberty compatible with public security, and let us reserve the severity of the law for the suppression of licentious couplets and immoral plays." We shall follow with sincere interest the progress of stage-regeneration "by order of the Government" thus proposed by the French Under Secretary of Fine Arts.

Two new Operettas have recently been brought out at the Opéra-Comique, of Paris, with some success, viz.:—"La Zingarella," by M. Joseph O'Kelly, and "Le Pain bis," by M. Théodore Dubois. At the Bouffes-Parisiens, a new comic Opera, by M. Hervé, entitled "La Marquise des Rues," is likewise much applauded by Parisian audiences.

A discussion as to the real authorship of the famous Serenade in Rossini's "Il Barbiere," which originated in a letter by M. Louis Viardot, recently published by Le Ménestrel, has just been decided in favour of Manuel Garcia, the celebrated tenor. M. de Castrone-Marchesi, through the medium of the Gazetta Musicale, of Milan, recalls a conversation he had some fifteen years ago with Rossini, and in the course of which the maestro, referring to the history of the first representation of the Opera at Rome, related how Garcia, enraged by the unsympathetic attitude of the audience, broke several strings of the guitar with which he accompanied his delivery of the Serenade in question, "an old composition of his which he valued greatly, and which had been embodied in the Opera in order to please him."

A series of grand Concerts will be inaugurated during the present month, at the Prince Alphonse Theatre, at Madrid, under the direction of M. H. Rivière. The interest taken in matters musical, in the Spanish capital, and other cities of the kingdom, is apparently on the increase. We read in the Revue et Gazette Musicale, that by order of King Alphonse XII., the French diapason normal has just been adopted by all artistic establishments and schools of music subsidised by the State, with a view to the establishment of a uniform musical pitch throughout Spain. The new Opera, by Maestro Usiglio, entited, "Le Donne Curiose," has met with great success at the Madrid Opera. A new music journal, La Opera, is likewise being published in the Spanish capital.

The Società Musicale Romana has recently given a successful performance of Sir Julius Benedict's Cantata, "St. Cecilia."

The Leipzig Signale records the fact that Signor Bonamici's new Opera "Cleopatra," lately brought out at the Teatro alla Fenice at Venice, has achieved but a partial success, the composer having been summoned to appear before the curtain "only fifteen times."

The first Roumanian National Opera was performed in February last at Bucharest. It is entitled "Verful eu dor" (The Aspired Summit), the libretto being from the pen of the Princess of Roumania, to which the Court pianist Skibinski has written the music.

The death is announced, at Vienna, of the once much-admired tenor, Karl Beck. His career had been a checkered one. It was he who, in the zenith of his popularity, "created" the part of "Lohengrin," on the occasion of the first performance of the work at Weimar which the disinterested zeal of Liszt had made possible. Some quarter of a century ago Beck retired from the stage and became the proprietor of a coffee-house at Prague, which was much frequented by musicians, singers, and journalists. Adverse circumstances, however, induced the whilom tenor to relinquish this occupation also, and during the last years of his life he had been in the employment of a Viennese confectioner, he having been apprenticed in early life to a sugar-baker. A strange curriculum vitæ this, certainly!

At Dresden died, on the 14th of February last, Carl Krägen, an earnest artist and excellent teacher of pianoforte playing, whose professional activity is associated with the eminent names of Micksch and Friedrich Wieck.

At Paris died, at the age of fifty-five, Jean Joseph Debillemont, composer of numerous operettas and songs, and orchestral conductor at the Thèâtre Porte-Saint-Martin.

We have also to record the death of Paul Bernard, the talented composer of pianoforte-music and able contributor to the leading French music-journals. He was one of the most gifted pupils of Halévy.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Conservatoire Concert (February 23): Music to "Manfred" (Schumann); Violin Concerto (Mendelssohn); Chorus from "Jugement Dernier" (Weckerlin); Symphony, C minor (Beethoven). Concert Populaire (February 23): Overture, "La Chasse du Jeune Henri" (Méhul); Symphony, C major (Beethoven); Fragments from "Roman d'Arlequin" (Massenet); Carnaval (E. Guiraud). Concert Populaire (March 2): Overture, "Athalie" (Mendelssohn); Symphonie Fantastique (Berlioz); Rondo Capriccioso for Violin (Saint-Saëns); Adagio of Tenth Quartett, and Fugue of the Ninth (Beethoven), executed by all the violins, violas, and violoncellos of the orchestra; Fragments from Suite for Orchestra (Fr. Lachner). Festival Concert at the Hippodrome, in memory of Berlioz (March 8): Overture, "La Vestale" (Spontini); March and Hymn from "La Prise de Troie" (Berlioz); Second Part of "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz); Septett from "Les Troyens à Carthage" (Berlioz); Overture, "Sigurd" (Reyer); Finale of "La Damnation de Faust" (Berlioz); Scene from "Armide" (Gluck); Finale to "Roméo et Juliette," and "Apothéose de la Symphonie Funèbre et Triomphale" (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (March 9): Jupiter Symphony (Mozart); Ouverture Dramatique (C. Dancla); Quintett, C minor, for pianoforte and wind instruments (Spohr); Rondino for wind instruments (Beethoven); Overture, "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Concert du Conservatoire (March 16): Choral Symphony (Beethoven); Fragment from "Orphée" (Gluck); "Adieu aux Jeunes Mariés," double chorus unaccompanied (Meyerbeer); Overture to "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn).

Leipzig.—Gewandhaus Concert (February 20): Overture, "Lodoiska" (Cherubini); Pianoforte Concerto, G major, and Variations in F major (Beethoven); Symphony, A minor (Saint-Saëns), vocal soli. Conservatorium Concert (February 21): Quartett, F major (Beethoven); Concerto, C major (Reinecke); Violoncello Concerto (Reinecke). Euterpe Concert (March 4): Overture, "Leonore" (Beethoven); Pianoforte Concerto, C minor (Raff); Orchestral Serenade (Jadassohn); Symphony, G minor (Mozart). Conservatorium Concert (March 1): Quartett, E flat major (Mendelssohn); Preludes and Fugue (Jadassohn); Violoncello Sonata, D major (Mendelssohn).

Finale to "Loreley" (Mendelssohn). Conservatorium Concert (March 7): Octett (Gade); Fantasia, F sharp minor (Mendelssohn); Andante and Scherzo for Violin (David); Trio, D minor (Mendelssohn), vocal soli. Last Euterpe Concert (March 11): Overture, "Sturm und Drang" (Bolck); Violin Concerto (Beethoven); Symphony, C minor (Gade).

Berlin.—Concert of the Symphoniecapelle (February 27): Music to "The Ruins of Athens" (Beethoven); "Wotan's Abschied" and "Feuerzauber" from "Walküre" (Wagner); Choral Fantasia (Beethoven). Bilse Concert (March 1): Overture, "Dimitri Donskoi" (Rubinstein); Spanish Dances (Moszkowski); Septett (Beethoven); Overture, "Les Huguenots" (Meyerbeer). Concert of the Symphoniecapelle (March 5): Overture, "Faust" (Wagner); Symphony, C major Schubert); Clarionet Quintett (Mozart); Scherzo (Cherubini); Overture, "Oberon" (Weber). Bilse Concert (March 8): Overture, "Zauberflöte" (Mozart); Violin Concerto, No. 1 (Bruch); "Phaëton" (Saint-Saëns); Symphony, No. 1 (Brahms); Overture, "Egmont" (Beethoven).

Heidelberg.—Historical Lecture and Concert by Dr. L. Nohl (March 20): Subject: The Development of Choral Music from the Oldest Times to the Present Epoch. Musical Programme: Homer's Hymn to Demeter (?); First Pythian Ode of Pindar (fifth century B.C.); "Der Wald hat sich erlaubet," for three voices (fourteenth century); "Alla Trinità beata," for four voices (fifteenth century); "Improperia," by Palestrina (1520-1594); Four-part Chorale, by Bach (1685-1750); Air, "O Isis und Osiris," by Mozart (1756-1791); Prisoners' Chorus from "Fidelio" (1770-1827); Four-part Song, "To the Forest" (Mendelssohn) (1809-1847); "Ave Maria," by Liszt (born 1811); "Wach auf," from "Die Meistersinger," by R. Wagner (born 1813).

Boston, U.S.—Concert of the Apollo Club (February 19): Hymn to Music (Lachner); Movements from Septett, D minor (Hummel); Duet, "Non fuggir," from "Guillaume Tell" (Rossini); "Evening's Twilight" (Hatton); "Song of the Spirits over the Waters" (Schubert); Songs and Glees (Rheinberger, Evans, Bishop).

Salem, U.S.—Concert of the Salem Oratorio Society (February 17): Verdi's "Requiem."

CORRESPONDENCE.

TEMPERED AND UNTEMPERED INTERVALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I do not propose troubling you with any further remarks upon the German sixth. We all know how to use the chord, and that is, after all, the essential point.

Two of your correspondents, however, having referred to my first letter, I will, with your permission, address a word to each of them.

To J. F. I would point out that much smaller musical difficulties than are involved in a new signature for the minor key, have proved insuperable. My contention was that, taking our notation as it is, the relative signature is not obligatory upon any one; and I pointed out a way in which it may be, and frequently has been, avoided.

And to J. L. I would reply that I have throughout taken the tempered scale for granted. In pleading for untempered intervals, I think he has forgotten one circumstance. When violinists do make a distinction between, for example E♭ and D♯, they, in most cases, make it in an opposite sense to that demanded by theory. Such a passage, for instance, as the following—is executed by them as if written—

E♭ being, as we know, theoretically the higher pitch of the two, it is the pitch demanded in this case by the ear of the performer.

A great player on a very poor instrument—unendurable in any hands but his—once showed me this necessity very clearly. The concertina possesses separate reeds for E♭ and D♯, and although the pitch of these sounds is now identical (the instrument being equally tempered), there was in the earlier instruments a perceptible difference between them. Until the change was made, at his own suggestion, Regondi always, in passages of this nature, substituted the flat for the sharp. If he will make the inquiry, J. L. will find that solo violinists do the same.

The study of acoustics is most interesting, and so is the theory of colours. But I cannot perceive that musicians and painters are directly concerned with these sciences. Modern music being based upon the tempered scale, we must needs sacrifice either pure intonation or the greater part of our musical literature. And if pigments reflecting impure colours suffice for the needs of the greatest painters, the musician may well be contented with such an approach to pure intonation as is not incompatible with the higher aims of the composer.

I am, &c.,

Dover, March 5, 1879. C. W.

THE DIAPASON NORMAL IN SPAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Your readers will be interested to learn that by a Royal Decree of February 21st the adoption throughout Spain of the Diapason Normal (la=870 vib. per second) has been ordered.

The preamble inter alia recites: that a series of measures are proposed, which, having due regard for all interests, if they do not bring about the immediate general adoption of the Diapason Normal (and this result has not, in other countries, been attained all at once) will tend sooner or later to place Spanish lyrical art on a uniform footing with that of the most advanced countries of Europe.

The decree provides that the National School of Music, the Academy of Fine Arts, and all normal schools for elementary instruction where music is a compulsory subject, shall use the Diapason Normal. No subsidies shall be granted for any theatre, concert, school or society which does not adopt the same.

Measures shall be taken to supply military bands with instruments adjusted to the new pitch, and as far as practicable to introduce it into all churches.

No public moneys shall be employed in the purchase or renewal of instruments for hospitals, churches, &c., except upon proof that the said instruments are of the reformed pitch.

Such national funds as are at present available for the propagation and protection of music may be employed in the assistance of such orchestras, &c., as shall satisfy the authorities that they are without the funds necessary to make the change.

Standards of pitch are to be provided for public use at the Academy of Fine Arts of San Fernando, and the National School of Music, as well as at all provincial government offices.

A subsequent Royal Order appoints a commission of seven members to see that the above decree is duly carried out. I remain, Sir, yours faithfully, 10, Rushmore Road, Cecil Burch.

Clapton Park, E., March 17, 1879.

THE MONOTONE AND SPEAKING VOICE IN CHURCH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In his valuable Primer on "Church Choir Training," the Rev. J. Troutbeck gives it as his opinion that the "Speaking Voice" rather than the Monotone is suitable for the Church's prayers. Allow me to make a few remarks on this subject. The chief objection to the "Speaking Voice" is this, that so few of the clergy find themselves able to "speak" the prayers with sufficient simplicity. And what more trying to the worshipper than to listen to an unctuous, well-mouthed delivery, in which the minister gives, what he imagines to be, the right emphasis to certain sentences and expressions of joy or sorrow. In using the "Speaking Voice" for praying, one who is somewhat of an orator finds it difficult to avoid vanity and display, while a bungler, by his wrong emphases, &c., distresses the congregation. On the other hand, by saying the prayers on one note, the minister entirely sinks his own individuality, and becomes the mouthpiece of the Church, whose supplications he offers before the Throne of Grace. And if, as Mr. Hullah states, 90 per cent. of the population possess a musical ear, I am convinced that a little patient practice will make a clergyman a pleasant "monotoner," whereas a great deal of practice will not make him, without natural gifts of oratory, a good "speaker." Add to this that the immemorial custom of the Church has been to recite prayer on a musical monotone, using also at times musical inflections for the Collects, and I think a stronger case can be established for the use of the Monotone than for that of the "Speaking Voice."

Yours faithfully,
H. H. Woodward.

MUSICAL EDUCATION IN SCHOOLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Having been music-master in a private school, and also the author of a little volume "An Introduction to the Theory of Music," may I trespass on your valuable space for a few words on this subject in reply to Mr. Martin von Gübbs' letter in your last month's issue.

I think the real cause of the evil is owing to the neglect of the study of the theory; and as a result of such neglect, many boys, after being taught (?) merely the practice and execution of music at school for two or three years, desist from further study, because, without being grounded in the rudiments of the art, they find it too difficult for them, and that they make but little progress. One of my pupils, who played (?) the "War March" and the "Hallelujah Chorus" was totally ignorant of the difference between a quaver and a crotchet, and I had the greatest difficulty in getting one hour a week allotted to me for class-teaching and theory. Indeed, the principal of a well-known Margate school when urged by me to adopt a theory book, which commenced with the staves and the names of the notes, replied that he found it too advanced for beginners.

The public musical examinations—e.g., the Oxford and Cambridge (Local), the College of Preceptors, Trinity College, London, (Local), and the higher Examination for the degree of Bachelor in Music at Oxford and Cambridge—are all in the theory of music, no public performance being necessary; and I think that the importance of combining with the practice of music the study of the theory of it cannot be too strongly urged upon principals of schools, choirmasters, and others engaged in tuition.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
Chertsey, March 6, 1879. W. H. E.

ORGAN IMPROVEMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—It has often occurred to me that a very decided improvement might be made in building organs (especially very small instruments) by having two sets of keys and stops to the same sound-board instead of only one—this, of course, would have to be effected by borrowing. Each set of keys and stops should be precisely similar, but acting independently of each other, thus enabling the player to obtain effects otherwise impossible. The value for solo-playing alone would be worth the extra outlay.

Take for instance a small organ of five stops; say—Open Diapason, Claribella, Dulciana, Flute, Principal, with each stop available independently on both rows of keys and the advantage is at once apparent. I am aware that borrowing has disadvantages, but I think, all things considered, the above would be a decided improvement to an otherwise one manual instrument.

Yours, &c., Thomas Elliston,
Organist of St. Gregory's, Sudbury, Suffolk.

THE EMPLOYMENT OF THE ORGAN IN THE ORCHESTRA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In Mr. Prout's interesting and instructive paper "On the Employment of the Organ in the Orchestra," he states that Haydn's "Et incarnatus," of the 4th Mass, is the only instance of special organ-part writing he has met with by this master. Now the 12th Mass of Haydn is peculiar in this respect, as the score contains a part for Organ Concertante or Fundamente. The score of this work has never, I believe, been published. I have a friend who has built up, by transcription, a full score from the single parts. Mr. V. Novello also states, in a note to his arrangement, that he was indebted to a "MS. score formerly belonging to Dr. Burney." My friend's copy reveals several errors in the Novello arrangement. The motive, I have heard it stated, for writing the Organ Concertante part, was that the organ and the orchestra occupied opposite and distant positions in the Church for which the Mass was originally composed. Mr. Prout may be able to gather reliable knowledge, and again favour your subscribers with another paper on the subject.

Yours, &c.,
March 13, 1879. William Helsby.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

J. P. H. ("Choir," "Quire").—The words are interchangeable, but should be pronounced alike—Kwīr. Undoubtedly Quire is the older form. On reference to the first folio of Shakespeare we find he never used the words Choir or Chorister In "The Life of King Henry the Eighth," describing the Coronation scene, he writes:—"Quirristers singing"—"having brought the Queen to a prepar'd place in the Quire."—"The Quire with all the choisest musicke of the kingdome, together sang Te Deum." We do not often at this day hear the singing boys called Quiristers, but the late celebrated wit and divine Sydney Smith used so to pronounce the word.

W. H. Prince.—The Cantata "Hereward" will be performed in June next, at St. James's Hall, by the Borough of Hackney Choral Association, previously to which the vocal score will be published by Novello, Ewer and Co.

A. Pitman.—We cannot undertake to give lessons in the theory of music.

Joshua D. Horwod.—We are unable to furnish our correspondent with the information he desires.

W. B. C.—We have often heard of persons who derive no gratification from listening to the works of the great composer mentioned, but our correspondent can scarcely expect us to tell him what we think "the probable cause of this."

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Aberdeen.—The University Choral Society's annual private concert has now fairly taken a place as one of the musical events of the year in Aberdeen, and the concert on the 7th ult. was as well attended and as well worth hearing as any of the former ones. The programme was miscellaneous, and included a collection of part-songs for male voices, all of which were adequately rendered, and showed signs of careful practising. Mr. Kirby played accompaniments on the organ to several of the choruses, with excellent effect. Mr. J L. Van Geyzel, in addition to his two piano solos, which were both well received, played the accompaniments to the songs very efficiently. The solos were all excellently rendered. Herr Meid acted as Conductor with his usual care and ability.

Berwick-upon-Tweed. — On Friday, February 28, the members of the Berwick Choral Union gave an excellent performance of Handel's Messiah. The soloists were Miss Robinson (soprano), Madame Armytage (contralto), Mr. Richardson (tenor), and Mr. Dodds (bass). The choruses were well sung, and the orchestral accompaniments given by a small orchestra of well-known performers. Mr. Barker conducted.

Birmingham.—On Wednesday, the 5th ult., at a meeting of the Choir of the Church of the Saviour, a testimonial consisting of a beautifully illuminated address, handsome Sèvres time-piece with vases en suite, was presented to Mr. Andrew Deakin on his resigning the office of Organist and Choirmaster—a post he had filled with great ability for upwards of thirty years. The presentation was made by Mr. Wm Glydon, and suitably acknowledged by Mr. Deakin. The proceedings were enlivened by the singing of several glees in which Mr. Bickley, Mr. Woodhall, Mr. Glydon, and other members of the choir took part——Mr. Stockley's second orchestral Concert took place in the Town Hall, on Thursday, the 6th ult. The programme comprised Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, the Overtures Wedding of Camacho (Mendelssohn), Preciosa (Weber), and The Naiades (W. S. Bennett), and incidental music by Gounod and Rubinstein. Miss Emma Beasley and Mr. Barton McGuckin were the vocalists, and Herr Daubert solo violoncellist. The programme was admirably executed, several pieces being encored.——An invitation Concert of chamber music was given at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, the 13th ult. The artists were Mr. C. J. Duchemin, pianoforte; Mr. T. M. Abbott, and Mr. Ward, violin and viola; and Mr. J. Owen, violoncello; the first-named gentleman being one of the promoters of the concert. The programme included Mozart's Quartett in G minor, and the Quartett in A, Op. 26, by Brahms, for piano and strings; movements from Raff's Sonata in D, Op. 128, and Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata, for piano and violin; the Duet in E flat, No. 2, Op. 39, Spohr, for violins; Schumann's Romance in D minor, from Op. 32, and Bach's Gigue in G minor from the fifth French Suite for pianoforte. All were admirably rendered, and the concert afforded a great treat to local amateurs.——Messrs. Harrison's last popular Concert for the season took place in the Town Hall, on Monday, the 17th ult. The artists were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Orridge, Mr. Maas, and Mr. Santley, vocalists; Mr. C. Hallé, pianist; Mons. Sainton, violinist; Mr. Stimpson, organist; and Herr W. Ganz, conductor. A miscellaneous programme of more than average merit was well executed, and the encores were numerous.——The Philharmonic Union gave a performance of Handel's Samson in the Town Hall on Thursday, the 20th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Giulia Warwick, Miss Annie Butterworth, Mr. C. Abercrombie, Mr. D. Harrison, and Mr. Pountney. Mr. Stimpson rendered the accompaniments on the organ in his usual skilful manner, and Dr. Heap conducted. The performance was, on the whole, very good.——The third annual Concert by the teachers and children attending the Board Schools was given in the Town Hall on Friday, the 21st ult., and was as interesting and successful as any of its predecessors. The Mayor (Jesse Collings, Esq.) and several members of the School Board showed their interest in the matter by attending.

Blairgowrie.—The Blairgowrie and Rothsay Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul, in the Town Hall, on Wednesday the 5th ult. The choir numbered over seventy voices, and was fairly balanced. The solos were well sung by Mrs. Myers, Birmingham, and Messrs. Grayson and Tuke, Lichfield Cathedral. A small but thoroughly efficient orchestra gave the overture and accompaniments most satisfactorily. The choruses were very well sung, most commendable attention being paid to light and shade. Mr. George Neale, of Broughty Ferry, conducted with marked ability.

Bradford.—A performance of Verdi's Requiem was given at the Subscription Concerts, on Friday evening, the 14th ult., in St. George's Hall. The chorus had been well drilled under the careful and experienced training of Mr. Burton, and Mr. Hallé's orchestra was all that could be desired. The principal vocalists were Madame Sherrington, Mdlle. de Fonblanque, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Herr Henschel. There was a large audience, though not so overflowing as at some of the well-known oratorios. Mr. Hallé conducted.

Bristol.—On Monday, the 3rd ult., another of Mr. Riseley's Monday Popular Concerts was given at the Colston Hall, when the programme included Romberg's Symphony in E flat, Lachner's "Festal Overture," Auber's overture to La Sirène, and two compositions by Mr. J. L. Roeckel, who had written the same expressly for these concerts, Notturno, for flute, clarionet, and strings, and "Marche Turque," which were very well received by the large audience. The composer who conducted the performance was warmly applauded. Miss Amy Hare, R.A.M., played Sterndale Bennett's Caprice for piano and orchestra, Op. 22, and Herr August Lortzing was the vocalist. Mr. George Riseley conducted.——On Wednesday, the 12th ult, a Ballad Concert was given in the Colston Hall, under the direction of J. H. Macfarlane, Esq., in aid of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund of the Great Western Railway Provident Society. The audience was a good one, and the following mostly local artists took part in the long programme provided: Miss Kate Probert, Madame Pattie Keate, Mr. Charles J. Cross, Mr. E. T. Morgan, Mr. H. J. Dyer, and Mr. W. D. Meaghan. Mr. George Riseley gave some solos on the great organ, and a glee party also took part.——At the Monday Popular Concert on the 17th ult., the band performed the Wedding March (Mendelssohn), at the commencement of the concert, in honour of the Royal Marriage. The programme included the overtures Peter Schmoll (Weber), and Masaniello (Auber), Sir George Elvey's "Festal March," and Raff's "Festal March," and for the first time some ballad music by R. L. de Pearsall. Beethoven's Concerto in C minor, for pianoforte and orchestra (Op. 37), was finely played by Miss Alice Heathcote, Thalberg Scholar, R.A.M., who had composed the Cadenza especially for this occasion. Miss Maclean and Miss C. Stevens, two lady amateurs, and Herr Lortzing were the vocalists. Mr. A. W. Waite was leader of the band, and Mr. George Riseley conducted.

Coventry.—An extra performance of the Messiah was given in St. Michael's Church, by the Musical Society, on Tuesday, the 18th ult. The magnificent church, which was kindly placed at the disposal of the committee by the Vicar (the Rev. Canon Baynes), was crowded to its utmost capacity, many persons being unable to obtain admission. The principals engaged were the Misses Robertson, Mr. Alfred Kenningham, and Mr. Hilton. The performance was preceded by prayer and concluded with the Benediction. The behaviour of the vast audience was, throughout, orderly and reverent, and the whole of the arrangements were most creditable to the churchwardens and stewards. On account of a disparity in the pitch, the organ (on which Handel himself played) was not used during the performance; but the veteran Organist (Mr. Edward Simms) played the "Benedictus" from Mozart's Requiem, whilst the people were assembling. The Oratorio was conducted by Mr. Arthur Trickett, F.C.O., and the band and chorus numbered upwards of 150 performers.

Durham.—The first evening Concert under the auspices of the recently established Philharmonic Society at Durham was given in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, the 13th ult., and was an unqualified success. The Society was promoted in 1878 to meet a want in the city, under the presidency of the Mayor of Durham. Mr. D. Whitehead, of the Durham Cathedral Choir, was appointed Conductor; Mr. J. Wood, leader; and Mr. S. Wilkinson, organist. The first part of the programme was devoted entirely to Mozart's Twelfth Mass, the solos being sung by Mrs. Foggitt, Mr. G. Leatham, Mr. E. Gibbon, and Mr. W. H. Grice. The choruses were exceedingly well rendered. The second part of the programme consisted of miscellaneous selections.

Edinburgh.—Professor Sir Herbert Oakeley gave an Organ Recital in the Hall, Park Place, on the 13th ult., when there was a large attendance. The programme was an interesting one, and opened with Handel's "Occasional Overture," which the Professor played in good style. An Air, with variations, by Beethoven, elicited hearty applause; and Weber's "Huntsman's Chorus" received an encore, and was partly repeated. Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played in commemoration of the Duke of Connaught's marriage. A young student gave two solos creditably; the first a Prelude and Fugue by Bach, showing his pedal as well as manual dexterity.——The members of the Amateur Opera Company, who last year achieved so great a success in their performance of Flotow's Opera Martha, have been giving performances of the same composer's Stradella at the Theatre Royal. No English version of the libretto being in existence when the work was fixed upon, the translation was undertaken and admirably performed by Madame Zoblinsky, the wife of the conductor of the company. All the principal parts were creditably supported, and the choir sang with unfailing precision, satisfactory volume of tone, and intelligent attention to expression. The orchestra was a strong one, and gave a really good and finished rendering of the fine overture and picturesque instrumentation of the work. Under the capable direction of Mr. Zoblinsky, to whom a large share of credit is unquestionably due, the performances have been most successful.

Golcar.—On Saturday evening, the 8th ult., a performance was given in the Wesleyan Chapel, Outlane, consisting of selections from Handel's Messiah and Judas Maccabæus. The principal singers were Mrs. Whitwam (soprano), Mrs. Crosland (contralto), Mr. Fred Lunn (tenor), and Mr. Oliver Singleton (bass). There was a chorus and band of about 150 performers. The leader of the band was Mr. Thomas Hirst, and the conductor, Mr. Henry Pearson, both of Golcar.

Greenock.—A concert was given in the Temperance Institute on Monday, the 3rd ult., by the members of the Tonic Sol-fa Harmonic Society. The programme consisted of sacred and secular music. The singing of the choir was marked by precision and firmness of attack, and the solos were finely rendered by Messrs. G. Easton, D. H. Robertson, W. Kirkwood, and J. T. Fraser. The accompaniments were played by Mr. David Inglis, and Mr. John McCallum, A.C., conducted.

Halifax.—On Tuesday the 18th ult., an Organ Recital was given by Dr. Roberts (Organist and Director of the choir at the Parish Church), upon the large new organ, built by Messrs. Conacher and Co., of Huddersfield, for the Stannary Congregational Church. The large and beautiful building was crowded to excess. The programme included J. S. Bach's Prelude and Fugue in E minor, and Toccata and Fugue in D minor; Mendelssohn's Organ Sonata in A (No. 3); Handel's Overture and Minuet to Samson; besides compositions by Widor, Guilmant, Gounod, Adams, &c. After payment of all expenses the sum of £30 was devoted towards the organ fund.——The members of the Philharmonic Society gave a concert in the Mechanics' Hall, on Wednesday night, the 19th ult. Mr. Whitaker, by whom the band and chorus were conducted, and to whom the success of the concert is largely due, must have felt highly gratified by the performance of the various pieces. The concert opened with Beethoven's Symphony in C minor. Mr. Rickard was the only solo vocalist, and his songs were all well rendered. The part-songs were sung by the chorus of the Halifax Musical Society with excellent effect. The best were "Winds that so gently flow," "Who shall win my lady fair," and Mendelssohn's "Hunting Song." Messrs. Pidduck and Reynolds played a duet on the flute and oboe, Mr. Whittaker accompanying on the piano. The only other feature of the concert requiring particular mention was the performance of Wagner's Overture, Tannhäuser, which was splendidly executed throughout.

Hull.—The second Concert of the season by the Harmonic Society took place in the Jarratt-street Music Hall on the 7th ult., when there was a large attendance. The programme comprised Sir Sterndale Bennett's sacred Cantata, The Woman of Samaria, and Mozart's Twelfth Mass. The band, though not numerically strong, gave an efficient rendering of the intricate accompaniments of both the works. The solo vocalists were Miss José Sherrington (soprano), Miss Helen D'Alton (contralto), Mr. Harper Kearton (tenor), and Signor Brocolini (bass). Mr. J. W. Stephenson conducted, Mr. E. Winter led the band and Mr. G. H. Smith presided at the organ. The Cantata was very creditably performed, and Mozart's Twelfth Mass, which occupied the second half of the concert, was given with minute attention to details as indicated by the composer. The choruses were taken up ardently, and the singing was exceedingly bright.

Maidstone.—On Tuesday evening, the 11th ult., the members of the St. Paul's Choral Society gave a performance of Handel's Oratorio, the Messiah, in the Corn Exchange. The performers numbered in all about 130. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Jones (soprano), Miss Fanny Robertson (contralto), Mr. Harper Kearton (tenor), and Mr. R. Rhodes (bass). Mr. J. B. Groom conducted. The choruses were all well given. Mr. W. Sinclair's trumpet obbligato to "The trumpet shall sound" was greatly appreciated. The concert was most successful.

Manchester.—The Manchester Glee Union, of 20 male voices, gave its first annual Concert on Ash Wednesday, in the Cotton Exchange, Market Place, assisted by Miss Lucy Watson, Miss Cotterell, Miss Cario Dean and Miss Price. A new glee, "Merry boys at sea," for male voices, composed by J. Yarwood, sung for the first time, was vociferously encored. Many other pieces were admirably rendered, and the concert was highly successful. Mr. Carrigan was pianist, and Mr. J. Yarwood conducted.——The choir of the Athenæum Musical Society gave a Concert, on Wednesday evening, the 5th ult., which was as well attended as usual. Part-songs formed the staple of the choral selections, and these were chosen from amongst the best of their kind. The chief attraction of the evening was the first public performance of Dr. Hiles's glee, "The wreck of the Hesperus," a picturesque setting of the words which must succeed whenever it is given with such precision as on this occasion. The solo vocalists were Messrs. Shorrock, Jones and Tomlinson.

Mossley.—On Saturday the 8th ult. a concert was given in the Congregational School, Micklehurst. Mrs. Warren and Miss Ada Moore, assisted by Mr. Tom Maude and Mr. Winterbottom, pupils of Mrs. Warren, were the artists. The singing of Mrs. Warren gave the utmost satisfaction, and Miss Ada Moore received enthusiastic applause for her several solos. Several part-songs, rendered by the singing class, were highly effective. Mr. Thomas Lees Buckley presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. W. Maude conducted. The concert was very successful.

Norwich.—The fifteenth Concert of the Norfolk and Norwich Musical Society took place in St. Andrew's Hall on the 13th ult., when there was the usual good attendance. It being the day of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught's marriage, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was performed at the conclusion of the concert. The programme comprised compositions by Beethoven, Handel, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Wagner, Heller, Lizst, Geyer, Blumenthal, Gabussi, Tours, and the Conductor, Dr. Bunnett. The pianoforte contributions of Mr. Arthur E. Bunnett were exceedingly interesting. Two movements from Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C (Adagio and Allegro) were brilliantly given, Mr. Bunnett displaying a vigorous touch and great facility in execution. The vocalists were Miss Faith Howlett, who appeared for the first time at these concerts, and was highly successful, Mr. Minns and Mr. Brockbank. Handel's fine choruses "The many rend the skies" (Alexander's Feast), and "May no rash intruder" (Solomon); Beethoven's "A calm sea and prosperous voyage;" Wagner's "Faithful and True" (Lohengrin), and Dr. Bunnett's part song, "Spring," were very creditably rendered.

Oxford.—The Philharmonic Society performed Elijah in the Corn Exchange, on the 11th ult., to a large audience. The chorus singing was marked by spirit and lightness. The solo parts were entrusted to Miss Emma Beasley, Mrs. Mudie-Bolingbroke, Mr. Shakespeare, and Mr. Santley; and the work was conducted by Mr. Taylor.——Miss Agnes Zimmermann, assisted by Mdlle. Redeker, as vocalist, gave a Pianoforte Recital in the Town Hall, on Tuesday, the 18th ult.

Paisley.—The members of the Paisley Musical Association concluded the session on the 20th ult. with a performance of Handel's Judas Maccabæus in the Abbey Church. The principals engaged were Madame Ernst (soprano), Madame E. Frith (contralto), Mr. Verney Binns (tenor) and Mr. E. Frith (bass). The orchestra was under the leadership of Mr. Wm. H. Cole, and Mr. Thomas Berry presided at the organ. Mr. Alexander Thomson conducted. The choir throughout the Oratorio performed their duty in a manner that at once testified that they had been careful observers of their conductor's directions, and the result was that they materially assisted him in making the concert one of the most enjoyable and successful that has ever been given by the Society.

Ripon.—Since the opening of the magnificent organ at the Cathedral, the organist, Mr. E. J. Crow, has fully displayed the power and capacity of the instrument. The services generally have, with increased musical power, rapidly improved, and under the supervision of the Precentor, the Rev. S. Joy, the congregation have now presented to them something becoming the head church of the diocese. With this advance in the services, and while the efficiency of the present choir cannot be questioned, it has been felt that to give full effect to many of the anthems, the power of the singers is altogether inadequate, and, consequently, the Dean and Chapter have decided on Sundays to make an addition to the choir of six voices—bass, tenor and alto—which will also probably be augmented by a few additional treble voices, and thus the Precentor and organist will have the satisfaction of seeing their efforts to produce good music well sustained and ably carried out by a powerful and efficient choir.

St. Neots.—A performance of Handel's Messiah took place in the Corn Exchange on Tuesday evening, the 11th ult., under the able direction of Mr. Liddle, Organist of the Parish Church. The band consisted principally of professional artists engaged for the occasion. Miss Hobson presided at the pianoforte. Mr. J. S. Liddle, Mus. Bac. (son of the Conductor), was first violin, and his clever performances were highly appreciated and warmly applauded. Amongst the vocalists only three professionals were engaged. On the whole the singing of the choruses reflected great credit on Mr. Liddle.

Terre Haute, Ind., U.S.A.—On Friday, February 14, at the third concert of the Oratorio Society Handel's Messiah was performed before a large audience at the Opera House, and repeated on the following day. The solos, which were taken by members of the Society, were exceedingly well rendered, and the same may be said of the choruses, especially "Surely He hath borne our griefs," "All we like sheep," and the "Amen." The Society consists of a chorus of 146 voices and a band of twenty-six instruments. The Conductor, Mr. Anton Shide, is the teacher of music at the Indiana State Normal School, which is situated here. He possesses nearly all the qualities of a good conductor. The full score, orchestral parts, and chorus-books were from the press of Novello, Ewer and Co.

Wakefield.—An Organ Recital was given in Salem Chapel on the 18th ult., by Mr. W. Blakeley, on the occasion of the re-opening of the organ after enlargement and improvement. A well-selected programme served to show the capabilities of the instrument, and several vocal solos agreeably varied the proceedings.

Windsor.—A popular ballad Concert was given in the theatre on Monday the 10th ult., by Messrs. Mellor and Christian of Eton College. There was a large attendance, and the applause was frequent and hearty. Miss Baxter and Miss Annie Sinclair were highly successful in their selections. In addition to the ballads a few glees were given by Messrs. Mellor, Christian, Hunt, and Hilliard. A capital band selected from one of the regiments in the town played a choice selection of instrumental music.

Wishaw.—The annual Concert of the local Choral Association was given in the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 19th ult., with its wonted success. Haydn's Creation was the work performed, the orchestra and chorus—all members of the Union—numbering 150. The solos were sung by Madame Ernst (soprano), Mr. Verney Binns (tenor), and Mr. Edwyn Frith (bass). Mr. Thomas Steed, the able leader of the band, did excellent service in the performance throughout.

Wolverhampton.—The Members of the Festival Choral Society gave their third subscription Concert of the season at the Agricultural Hall, on the 19th ult. Amongst the executants were Mr. Charles Hallè, Herr Straus, Signor Piatti, and Herr Berzon; Mr. Mann accompanied, and Mr. Stockley officiated as conductor. The vocal soloists were Miss Anna Williams (soprano), and Miss Helen D'Alton (contralto). The programme consisted of selections from the works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Gounod, Sullivan, Glover, Mozart, Locatelli, and others. The choruses in "Hear my prayer," and some glees, including one entitled "Hushed in death," by Dr. Hiles, which in 1878 obtained the prize offered by the Manchester Gentlemen's Glee Club for the best serious glee, were well sung by a choir numbering 150.

Worcester.—The Philharmonic Society gave its third and last Concert of the season, on Tuesday the 18th ult., Mendelssohn's St. Paul (first part), and selections from Handel's Samson being chosen for performance. The soloists were Miss Marian Williams (soprano), Mr. Abercrombie and Rev. E. V. Hall (tenor), and Rev. W. Jekyll (bass). Master Blandford of the Cathedral choir sang the alto music in St. Paul. This concert was one of the most successful given by the society. The band, though small, was effective, and the trumpet obbligato of Mr. Robinson, of Hull, in Samson, and the violoncello obbligato, in St. Paul, by Mr. Hill, of Birmingham, were finely played. Mr. Done conducted, and Mr. A. R. Quarterman presided at the harmonium.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. E. F. Seppings, Organist and Choirmaster to S. Ethelburga, Bishopsgate Street, E.C.—Mr. Arthur Henry Lye, to Zion Congregational Church, Toronto, Ontario.—Mr. A. M. Colchester, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Augustine's, Highbury New Park, N.—Mr. Edwin Rake, to St. Philips's Church, Georgetown, Demerara, West Indies.—Mr. J. W. Dry, Organist and Director of the Choir to the Parish Church, Cavan.—Mr. William Blakeley, Organist and Choirmaster to the Church of the Holy Trinity, Wakefield, Yorkshire.—Mr. E. A. Sydenham, to St. James' Church, Bury St. Edmunds.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. William Marr (Alto) to St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.—Mr. James B. Sarjeant, Director of the Choir to St. Ann's, South Lambeth.—Mr. Charles Rowcliffe, Choirmaster to St. Botolph, Aldgate.

OBITUARY.

On the 8th ult., at Hadleigh, Suffolk, Henry Hardacre, for 45 years Organist of Hadleigh Church, aged 72.

On the 8th ult., at 26, Rue Veron, Paris, A. M. R. Barret, late of 31, Gloucester Street, Regent's Park, and Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, aged 76.

On the 8th ult., at 10, Powis Road, Brighton, of bronchitis, Samuel Brewer, of 23, Bishopsgate Street Within, and 14 and 15, Poultry, Cheapside, aged 62.

On the 10th ult., at 93, Sun Street, Bishopsgate, E.C., Daniel Sedgwick, Hymnologist.

On the 17th ult., at Salisbury, Sarah, the wife of William Price Aylward, aged 74.

On the 18th ult., suddenly, at Huddersfield, Luke Liversidge, aged 57.

On the 22nd ult., at his residence, 1, Randall Well Street, Bradford, Yorkshire, and late of 41, New Bond Street, London, Charles Ollivier, aged 74, of acute bronchitis.

Will be Ready on April 15,

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

FOUR-PART SONGS

(COMPLETE)

FOR SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, AND BASS.

Price One Shilling.

Op. 41.

1. In the woods.
2. O fly with me.
3. One night there came.
4. Over the grave.
5. May song.
6. On the sea.

Op. 48.

7. The first day of Spring.
8. The primrose.
9. The celebration of Spring.
10. The lark's song.
11. Morning Prayer (The deep repose of night).
12. Autumn song.

Op. 59.

13. The woods.
14. Early Spring.
15. Departure (O hills, O vales)
16. The nightingale.
17. The vale of rest.
18. Hunting song.

Op. 88.

19. For the New Year.
20. The happy lover.
21. The shepherd's song.
22. The wood minstrels.
23. The victors' return.
24. The wandering minstrel.

Op. 100.

25. Remembrance.
26. Praise of Spring.
27. Spring song.
28. In the forest.

Each Song will be published separately.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

WEBER, C. M. VON.—"Preciosa." An Opera. The English words translated by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. 8vo, 1s. 6d.

ROMBERG, ANDREAS.—"The Transient and the Eternal." An Ode. 8vo, paper covers, 1s.

GADSBY, H.—"The Lord of the Isles." Chorus Parts, 1s.

POLE, DR. W.—The Story of Mozart's Requiem, carefully compiled from the best and most authentic sources. 1s.

GADSBY, H.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in D major, for Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 4d.

MILLER, C. E.—Benedicite omnia Opera, set to Chants. Post 8vo, 2d.

TOZER, FERRIS.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Short and easy setting. 8vo, 4d.

OAKELEY, SIR HERBERT.—Benedictus. (Supplementary to the Service in E flat.) Vocal parts, 8d.

LITTLE, H. WALMSLEY, Mus. Bac.—"Christ our Passover." Full Anthem for Easter. 8vo, 4d.

SAMSON, L.—"By the rivers of Babylon." Full Anthem (8vo Anthems 197). 4d.

—— "For the mountains shall depart." Full Anthem (8vo Anthems, 198). 3d.

STAINER, J.—"My hope is in the Everlasting," and "Awake, thou that sleepest." Anthem for Easter Eve (with Solo), or Eastertide (Chorus only), or for general use. 8vo, 6d.

WILSON, H. A. B.—"We praise Thee for the glorious resurrection." Verse Anthem for Easter. 8vo, 1s.

HOLLAND, C.—"The Triumph of Death." (Novello's Part-Song Book, 400.) 8vo, 3d.

HUSBAND, REV. E.—"Jerusalem." A Christmas Hymn. Words by the Rev. Gerard Moultrie. 8vo, 4d.

BOOTH, J.—"It was a lover and his lass." (Novello's Part-Song Book, No. 422.) 3d.

BROWN, A. H.—"This is the birthday of my love." Part Song, S.A.T.B. 8vo, 4d.

FAREBROTHER, BERNARD.—"The great god Pan." Part-Song. The Poetry by E. B. Browning. 8vo, 6d.

PIERSON, H. H.—"Now the bright morning star." (Novello's Part-Song Book, 401.) 8vo, 3d.

ROBERTI, GIULIO.—(Novello's 8vo Edition of Trios.) No. 64, "Peace," 3d.; No. 65, "Fare thee well," 3d.; No. 66, "Twilight," 4d.; No. 67, "The Night," 3d.; No. 68, "Charming little valley," 3d.

SMART, H.—(Novello's 8vo Edition of Trios.) No. 69, "Our home shall be on this bright isle," 4d.

YOUNG, W. J.—"To a sleeping child." A lullaby. Four-Part Song. Words by Edmund Walburn. 8vo, 2d.

NOVELLO'S TONIC SOL-FA SERIES.

To the sons of Art. Cantata. Mendelssohn ... 3d.
No. 100. The Lord is my strength (Easter). V. Novello ... 1d.
101. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. J. Scott ... ... 1d.

CROSSLEY, HASTINGS.—"Love laid his sleepless head." Song (Bass). Poetry by A. C. Swinburne. 1s. 6d.

GAUL, ALFRED R.—"Faithful yet." Song. Words by E. Oxenford. 2s.

McENENY, P.—"Oh! call my brother back to me." Song. Poetry by Mrs. Hemans. 1s. 6d.

T. P. M.—Six Songs. Book II. 3s.

GOODWIN, W. QUELLE.—The Miltiades' March, for Pianoforte Solo. 1s. 6d.

HAYDN.—Menuetto from Quartett in D minor, Arranged for the Pianoforte, by Agnes Zimmermann. 1s. 6d.

SAMSON, LOUIS.—Danse Norvégienne, pour le Pianoforte. Op. 32. 2s.

ZIMMERMANN, AGNES.—Suite for the Pianoforte. Op. 22. No. 1, Prelude, 1s. 6d.; No. 2, Mazurka, 1s. 6d.; No. 3, Scherzo, 2s.; No. 4, March, 2s.

SPARK, DR. W.—"Organists' Quarterly Journal," Part XLII. 5s. Prelude for the Diapasons (G major), T. L. Forbes. Alla Marcia Funebre (C minor), Reinhold Succo, Konigl Music-Director, Berlin. Postlude (D major), Sydney R. Coles, F.C.O. Four Short Introductory Voluntaries—1. C major; 2. G major; 3. E flat major; 4. G major; Arthur Johnson. Postlude (C major). H. Cardini Cole, F.C.O.

THE LATE DR. ELVEY'S PSALTER.

THE PSALTER;

OR, CANTICLES AND PSALMS OF DAVID.

Pointed for Chanting on a New Principle, with Explanations and Directions.

BY THE LATE

STEPHEN ELVEY, Mus. Doc.,

Organist of New and St. John's Colleges, and Organist and Choragus to the University of Oxford.

EIGHTH EDITION. Demy 8vo, cloth, 5s.

ALSO,

A CHEAPER EDITION

(the Eleventh).

With a Memorandum on the Pointing of the "GLORIA PATRI," by Sir G. J. ELVEY. Fcap. 8vo, cloth limp, 2s. 6d.

THE CANTICLES SEPARATELY

(Sixteenth Edition). Fcap. 8vo, 6d.

The Psalter is used at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and at many Cathedrals.

"There can be no doubt but that we owe most of what is good in the chanting of to-day to the (seven years) labour and care bestowed on the first edition of this work issued in 1856."—Musical Standard, September 25, 1875.

"Taken as a whole, Dr. Elvey's work has not been surpassed. . . . We believe that educated musicians generally—with a sense of the importance of this part of worship—if they must chant from such a pointed Psalter, would prefer Dr. Elvey's conscientious framework to any other we know."—The Orchestra, January, 1878.

Oxford and London: JAMES PARKER and CO.

THE PSALTER AND CANTICLES

POINTED AND SET TO ACCOMPANYING

CHANTS, ANCIENT AND MODERN,

By the Rev. SIR H. W. BAKER, Bart., and WILLIAM HENRY MONK,

Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, London.

The Cheap Edition, with Vocal Score (Gregorians in unison), is now ready; size, double post 16mo.

Limp cloth, cut flush, and lettered ... ... 2s. 0d.
Cloth boards, turned in, and lettered ... ... 2s. 6d.
Cloth boards, turned in, gilt lettered, red edges ... 3s. 0d.

A large Imperial 8vo Edition, with accompanying harmonies for the Gregorian Tones, is in the Press.

The distinctive object aimed at is to unite under the same pointing two forms of chant hitherto considered incompatible—the Ancient and the Modern, the Gregorian and the Anglican—and to introduce a new form of Chant, which is commended with confidence for the use of Parish Choirs.

The work includes about 50 varieties of the Gregorian Chants, some from sources not easily accessible; and about 390 chants of the Anglican form, of which 100 are more or less well known, the remainder having been composed expressly for this work by musicians of distinction, including most of our Cathedral Organists.

Canticles only, 6d., 9d., and 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa and Plain Song Editions will be published as soon as possible.

London: W. Clowes and Sons, 13, Charing Cross, S.W.

MR. J. SHARPE (Oboeist).

For Oratorios, &c., address, 235, Lidgett Hill, Pudsey, near Leeds. N.B.—Bandmasters and others supplied with the New Model Oboe. Best Oboe Reeds, 2s. each. Staples recaned, 1s. each.

SOPRANO wishes for a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a Church of England choir. Address, H. L., 32, East Street, W.C.

CHOIR BOYS.—TREBLES WANTED for S. Barnabas, Bell Street, Edgware Road. £5. Apply to the Rev. R. W. Burnaby, 17, Blandford Square.

AS ALTO.—WANTED an ENGAGEMENT in a Church Choir. Good references. Apply, stating full particulars, to Charles Locke, 110. Westmorland Road, Walworth, S.E.

AN ALTO (Gentleman) is required for a West-End Church. Sunday services and a Week-Evening practice. £20. Address, C. A. B., Messrs. Novello's, 1, Berners Street, W.

MEN and BOYS WANTED for the Choir of S. Ethelburga, Bishopsgate Street. Boys paid according to ability. Apply at the Church, on Tuesday, April 1, at 6.30, or after any service.

REMOVAL of RESIDENCE.—Mr. ABERCROMBIE respectfully requests that all communications respecting engagements be addressed to his new residence, Ellerslie, Bedford Park, Chiswick, W.; or N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for the Church of S. Margaret, Anfield, Liverpool. Stipend, £70 per annum. Fine three-manual Hill organ. Address, Rev. J. Sheepshanks, Anfield, near Liverpool.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of some years' experience, who has had great success in Choir-Training, will shortly be open to an ENGAGEMENT. The highest testimonials and references. A Choral Service and good Organ desired. Address, B., Organist, care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A LADY (Pupil of Mr. John Francis Barnett) is open to ENGAGEMENTS as TEACHER of the PIANOFORTE in Schools or Families. First-class testimonials. Address, K. D., Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

AN OPENING in a Provincial Town for a Good VOCAL PROFESSOR, able to teach English, French, and Italian Singing. No opposition. Address, M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER or SALESMAN, &c., DISENGAGED, or would travel. Practical. Been through factory. W. G., 36, Beresford Road, Stoke Newington Green.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (Experienced), from Cadby's, seeks an ENGAGEMENT. Understands Harmoniums. Address, 425, Fulham Road, West Brompton.

A TUNING CONNECTION to be LET or for SALE. For particulars apply to C. J. T., High Street, Blechingley, near Redhill.

ORGANS, CHURCH or CHAMBER, New and Second-hand.—Several very superior Instruments of various sizes, by eminent Builders, for SALE or HIRE. Can be had on easy terms of purchase. Apply, E. Carder, East London Organ Works, 9, Burdett Road, Mile-End Road, London, E.

ORGAN for SALE. Two manual, CC to G; pedal organ, full compass; variety of stops; fine tone. Apply, E. C., 9, Burdett Road, Mile-End Road, London, E.

ORGAN (powerful). Two manuals, 6 stops, and 27 pedals. By letter, W. J. Haywood, 179, Drummond Street, N.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to Pianos with organ action; fitted complete, £4 10s. F. Haywood, 179, Drummond Street, N.W.

CC ORGAN for SALE. A bargain. Thirty-one stops, 3 manuals, and pedals. Can be finished by Easter. Apply to T. S. Jones, Organ Builder, 25, Pentonville Road, N.

Now ready, No. XIX., 76 columns, price 2d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW, the Musical Literature of the Month, and Journal of the Music Trade. Letters to J. F. Reid and Nephew, Advertising Agents, 14, George Street, Mansion House, E.C. Trade supplied by Pitman.—A specimen copy free on receipt of post-card.

MENUETTO

FROM

HAYDN'S QUARTETT IN D MINOR,

For two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello, arranged for the Pianoforte, by AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

PIANO SOLO. Price 3s.

March of the Israelitish Warriors

From the Oratorio of Judith.

Composed by Dr. Jacob Bradford.

London: Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

By the same Author. Piano, 3s.; Organ, 3s.

MARCHE HEROIQUE.

London: Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, Regent Street, W.

MUSIC PUPIL'S REGISTER, by Dr. Jacob Bradford. Price One Shilling.

London: Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, Regent Street, W.

NOTICE.—To the MUSIC TRADE.—CHARLES SALAMAN'S PIANOFORTE and VOCAL MUSIC heretofore published by Mr. Lamborn Cock, 63, New Bond Street, has been TRANSFERRED to Messrs. STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER & CO., 84, New Bond Street.

Just published.

PRECIOSA

AN OPERA

COMPOSED BY

C. M. VON WEBER.

The English Words translated from the German Version of C. A. Sternau, by the Rev. J. Troutbeck.

Price 1s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS

IMPORTED BY

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

	s.	d.
BARGIEL, W.—Third Trio arranged for Piano duet. Op. 37	15	0
BEHR, F.—Les songes dorés. Waltz for Piano. Op. 409	4	0
—— L'Amaranthe. Polka for Piano. Op. 410	3	0
BRONSART, H. VON.—Ballade for Piano. Op. 5	6	0
—— Nachklänge aus der Jugendzeit. Tonbilder for Piano. Op. 2. Two books ... each	7	0
CHOPIN, F.—Praeludium (Nos. 6 and 5 from Op. 28), arranged for Harmonium or Organ (with pedal obbligato)	3	0
FÖRSTER, A.—Six Sonatinas for Piano. Op. 42. Book I., 7s.; II.	9	0
GADE, N. W.—Octett. Op. 17. Arranged as Piano duet	14	0
GIESE, TH.—In stiller Nacht. Serenade for Piano. Op. 271	3	0
—— Frühlingsblüthen. Idylle for Piano. Op. 273	3	0
—— Treue Liebe. Gavotte for Piano. Op. 274	2	0
GOUNOD, CH.—Polyeucte. Airs de Ballet, arranged for Piano, complete	3	6
—— La Procession sacrée. Marche for Piano solo	6	0
The same, for Piano duet	7	0
HAMERICK, A.—Nordische Suite arranged as Piano duet. Op. 22	8	0
HUBER, H.—Sonate for Piano and Violin. Op. 42	12	0
KIRCHNER, TH.—Four Elegies for Piano. Op. 37	6	0
The same, singly ... each	2	0
—— Twelve Studies for Piano. Op. 38. In four books ... „	5	0
KRUG, D.—Les Trois Amis. Small Fantasias on favourite operas for three performers on one Piano (six hands). Op. 349, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6 ... each	3	0
No. 5	5	0
LASSEN, E.—Grande Polonaise for Orchestra. Op. 63—
Full score	10	0
Orchestral parts	20	0
Piano solo	5	0
Piano duet	7	0
—— Die Linde am Ettersberg. Op. 64. Vocal score	5	0
—— Five Songs with Piano. Op. 65	7	0
LÖW, J.—Das Echo am See. Piece for Piano. Op. 345	2	0
—— Ein Tag der Wonne. Piece for Piano. Op. 347	2	0
—— Romanze for Piano. Op. 348	2	0
LULLY.—Gavotte for Orchestra. Arranged by R. Kleinmichel—
Full score	2	0
Orchestral parts	5	0
Piano solo	1	0
Piano duet	2	0
Piano and Violin	2	0
Piano and Violoncello	2	0
LYSBERG, CH.—Reflets intimes for Piano. Op. 145	3	0
MATTHISON-HANSEN, G.—Three Pieces for Piano. Op. 10	4	0
—— Novelette for Piano and Violoncello. Op. 12	7	0
PARRY, C. H. H.—Trio, E minor, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello	18	0
REINECKE, C.—Six Sonatinas for Piano	5	0
RIES, F.—Quintett in C minor. Op. 28. Score	10	0
„ Parts	16	0
STANFORD, C. VILLIERS.—Sonate in A major, for Piano and Violoncello. Op. 9	13	0
VOGEL, M.—Two easy Sonatinas for Piano. Op. 35 ... each	4	0
WAGNER, R.—Six Transcriptions from Lohengrin for Organ or Harmonium (with pedal obbligato)	5	0
—— Ouverture to Tristan and Isolde, arranged for Organ or Harmonium (with pedal obbligato)	4	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

GLINKA'S POLONAISE

(WITH CHORUS),

FROM "LIFE FOR THE CZAR."

Octavo. Price Threepence.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CHARLES SALAMAN'S LATEST SONGS.—2s. net.

A LEAVE-TAKING	T. or S.	Words by Algernon C. Swinburne.
SWEET, HAVE THE ROSES	T. or S.	„ Malcolm C. Salaman.
WHAT SHALL I SEND TO THEE, SWEET?	C. or B.	„ Malcolm C. Salaman.
EVA TUAL. New Irish Song	C. or T.	„ Perceval Graves.
ZULEIKA. Oriental Romance	T. or S.	„ Arthur O'Shaughnessy.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

New Edition.

THE PSALTER. Richard Redhead, Organist of St. Mary Magdalene's, Paddington, London.

THE PSALTER and PROPER PSALMS, from the Book of Common Prayer, pointed and set to the Ancient Church Tones. Edited by Richard Redhead. Price 2s.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

THE LORD WAKED AS ONE OUT OF SLEEP. Anthem for Easter. By J. L. Hatton. Price 3d.

AWAKE, THOU THAT SLEEPEST. Anthem. Composed by G. B. Allen. Price 4d.

THE DAY-SPRING FROM ON HIGH. An Anthem. Music by Ch. Gounod. Price 3d.

LORD, THOU HAST BEEN OUR REFUGE. Anthem. Composed by Henry Smart for the Sixth Annual Festival of the London Church Choir Association, 1878. Price 1s.

MOTETTS FOR FEMALE VOICES. By John Hullah.

WE WAIT FOR THY LOVING KINDNESS, O GOD. 1s.

THY WORD IS A LANTERN. 1s.

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. 1s.

The above may be had complete in paper covers. 2s. net.

AN EVENING SERVICE.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS. Set to music in the key of G major, for the Sixth Annual Festival of the London Church Choir Association, 1878. By Henry Gadsby. Price 6d.

TWENTY CELEBRATED MARCHES. Arranged for the Organ, with Pedal Obbligato. (In Four Books.) By Dr. Spark. Price 3s. net, each book.

Contents.

Book 1.
1. G. F. Handel. March in Scipio.
2. Orlando di Lassus. March (F major).
3. G. F. Handel. Dead March in Saul.
4. Schumann. Birthday March (C major).
5. Joseph Haydn (E flat).
6. Joseph Haydn (C major).
7. W. A. Mozart. March in Zauberflöte.
8. Glück. March Religiosa.

Book 2.
9. L. Cherubini. March in Medea.
10. L. van Beethoven. Funeral March. Composed on the death of a hero.
11. F. Schubert. Grand March (C major).
12. F. Schubert. Grand March (G major).

Book 3.
13. Spontini. March (La Vestale).
14. Hummel. Roman March.
16. Wagner. Bridal March (Lohengrin).

Book 4.
17. Chopin. Marche Funèbre.
18. Spohr. March (Jessonda).
19. Meyerbeer. March (Camp of Silesia).
20. Wagner. March (Tannhäuser).

(These Books are indispensable to Organists, &c.)

CARMEN

OPERA BY GEORGES BIZET.

PIANOFORTE SCORE. 6s.

VOCAL SCORE.
Italian and German, 12s. French, 12s.

Menuet de L'Arlesienne

Pour piano executé par Theodore Ritter. Musique de Georges Bizet. Price 4s.

Vingt Melodies

Par Georges Bizet. Chant et piano. Price 8s.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Spring's Advancing.
Four-Part Song, by Henry Smart. Price 1½d.

Pack Clouds Away.
Four-Part Song, by Alfred Cellier. Price 1½d.

The Northern Star.
Four-Part Song by Henry Smart. Price 1½d.

Fly Night Away.
Four-Part Song, by Samuel Reay. Price 1½d.

Stay at Home.
Four-Part Song, by Alfred Cellier. Price 1½d.

Lady, I think of thee.
Four-Part Song, by James Coward. Price 1½d.

Who knows what the Bells say?
Four-Part Song, by Henry Parker. Price 1½d.

Cuckoo.
Four-Part Song, by Samuel Reay. Price 1½d.

In the Early Morning.
May-day Chorus for Boys' Voices, by Rev. E. Husband. Price 1½d.

London: METZLER & CO., 37, Great Marlborough Street, W.

LINDSAY SLOPER'S

TECHNICAL GUIDE

TO

TOUCH, FINGERING, AND EXECUTION

ON THE PIANOFORTE.

Price Three Shillings.

"Concise, clearly written, and full of valuable precepts. The minor scales being given in both ways, the harmonic and the arbitrary, gives special interest and importance to the guide, which is in every way to be commended."—The Queen.

"We quite agree with the author of this book that a very decided line should be drawn between pianoforte 'studies' and pianoforte 'exercises;' for it is only by a vigorous practice of mere finger-work that true mechanism can be obtained; and to hope to play any of the studies of the great masters, therefore, before the hand has been properly trained by 'exercises,' is manifestly absurd, for it is beginning at the wrong end. Mr. Sloper truly observes, 'No one should attempt Moscheles's Chromatic Study (No. 3 of Book I.) who has not thoroughly mastered the simple chromatic scale, nor, to take an easier instance, hope, by practising Heller's First Study, Op. 46, to obtain the evenness of touch and clearness of articulation which only a steadfast adherence to five-finger exercises can give.' To those who believe in the truth of these remarks the book before us will prove of the utmost value. The author modestly says, 'I shall be glad and flattered if it meets with the approbation of my professional brethren,' and we can scarcely doubt that his hope will be realised; for although pianists do not always agree as to the method of fingering certain passages, the broad principles are sufficiently recognised, and it is good that pupils, in the absence of the master, should have so systematic a work to refer to. We are glad to find that Mr. Sloper recommends the practice of what may be termed the 'harmonic' as well as the 'melodic' minor scale."—Musical Times.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S

CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.

Part 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
Part 2. VOCAL.
Part 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
Part 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
Part 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARIONET, &c.

Sent Gratis and Post-free to any part of the World.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S

YELLOW CATALOGUE for 1879.

COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE USE OF THE TRADE, PROFESSION, AND SCHOOLS.

COMPRISING A

SELECTION OF UPWARDS OF 4,000 STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS, IS NOW READY.

Among the Composers of Pianoforte Music will be found the names of Beethoven, Bach, Bertini, Chopin, Clementi, Czerny, Cramer (John), Dussek, Handel, Haydn, Henselt, Hummel, Herz, Kalkbrenner, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Moscheles, Mozart, Scarlatti, Schubert, Schumann, Schulhoff, Thalberg, Weber, &c., &c. Among the Vocal—Bishop, Braham, Arne, Dibdin, Callcott, Shield, Horn, Purcell, Haydn, Moore, Mazzinghi, Handel, &c., &c. SENT GRATIS AND POST-FREE TO ANY PART OF THE WORLD. All applications for trade terms must contain card, circular, or reference.

London: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

HIME & ADDISON'S

Latest Publications.

COMPOSITIONS, WITH WORDS, BY

EDWIN WAUGH.

		s.	d.
Come whoam to thi childer and me. Song	P. Delavanti	3	0
What ails thee, my son Robin. Song ...	H. Phillips	3	0
Eawr folk. Song	J. J. Harris	3	0
The Dule's i' this bonnet o' mine. Song ...	N. Dumville	3	0
The Sweetheart Gate. Song. Set to an old English Melody, "The Manchester Angel"		3	0
Come, Mary, link thi' arm i' mine. Song ...	G. Eyles	3	0
I've worn my bits o' shoon away. Song ...	E. De Jong	4	0
God bless these poor folk. Song	H. Burrowes	3	0
Yesterneet. Song	H. Burrowes	3	0
'Twas on a rosy morn. Song	English Melody	3	0
Christmas Morning. A.T.T.B. Folio	Dr. Smith, net	0	9
The Moorland Witch. Song	C. Greenwood	4	0
The Wanderer's Hymn. Song	H. Bond	3	0
What makes your leaves fall down. Song	H. Bond	3	0
Oh, had she been a lowly maid. Song ...	T. W. Gillibrand	3	0
The Wounded Lark. Song	H. Bond	4	0

Complete, bound in roan, limp, gilt, net, 1s.

London Agent: J. Williams, 24, Berners Street, W.

SIX SELECTED MOVEMENTS

From Mendelssohn's Organ Sonatas.

Arranged and Fingered with Full Pedal Indications, also Stops marked for the Organ by JAMES LOWE.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Adagio. Sonata 1 ... ... net	0	9
2.	Allegro Maestoso. Sonata 2 ... ... „	1	0
3.	Andante Tranquillo. Sonata 3 ... ... „	0	9
4.	Andante Religioso. Sonata 4 ... ... „	0	9
5.	Allegretto. Sonata 4 ... ... „	1	0
6.	Andante. Sonata 6 ... ... „	0	9

Complete, 3s. 6d. net.

Manchester: Hime and Addison.
London: C. Jefferys.

SACRED.

		s.	d
Hear my voice. Anthem	James Lowe	0	4
Watch and Pray. Anthem	W. Lockett	4	0
The Lord is my strength. Anthem. ...	J. J. Harris, folio, net	2	9
Three Introits, by J. J. Harris. Folio, 3d. each. Complete ...		0	6
The Confession (Harmonised)		0	1

Manchester: Hime and Addison.

PIANOFORTE.

		s.	d.
March in F	C. B. Grundy	4	0
Bachelor's Polka	J. L. Goodwin	3	0
Grande Valse Brillant	A. Greek	3	0

Manchester: Hime and Addison.

SIX NEW PART-SONGS.

Words by Charles Swain.

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES J. HALL.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Flowers ... ... S.A.T.B.	0	2
2.	Morn ... ... „	0	2
3.	The camp is up ... ... „	0	2
4.	The Meadow Gate ... ... „	0	2
5.	First emotions ... ... „	0	2
6.	The Dawn ... ... „	0	2

Manchester: Hime and Addison.

Manchester: HIME & ADDISON,

30, VICTORIA STREET.

RICORDI,

265, REGENT STREET, W.

NEW ADDITIONS TO RICORDI'S CHEAP PUBLICATIONS.

	Net Prices. s. d.
PERGOLESI.
La Serva Padrona ... ... Vocal score	2 0
CIMAROSA.
Il Matrimonio Segreto ... ... „	4 0
DONIZETTI.
Anna Bolena ... ... „	3 6
Linda di Chamounix ... ... „	4 0
VERDI.
Requiem ... ... „	4 0
CHERUBINI.
Requiem (for Men's Voices) ... ... „	1 6
MERCADANTE.
Third Mass (for Men's Voices) ... ... „	1 6
F. LISZT.
Agnus Dei (Verdi's "Requiem"), for Pianoforte, Organ or Harmonium	4 0
Aïda (Verdi's), Transcription, Pianoforte	6 0
F. P. TOSTI.
Amore Waltz, Pianoforte	3 0
„ Vocal	4 0
Eco di Napoli, containing 50 of the most popular Neapolitan Songs	3 0

Lists of every description gratis and post-free. All works produced in Italy, &c., promptly procured without extra charge.

Augener & Co.'s Quarto Editions.

NEW ORGAN VOLUMES (in Blue Paper Covers).	s. d.
ANDRÉ, J.—Voluntaries for the Organ. Op. 65... ... net	3 0
BACH, J. S.—12 Preludes and Fugues. Edited by Scotson Clark ... ... net	3 0
CLARK, SCOTSON.—15 Marches (Marche aux Flambeaux, &c., &c.) Oblong ... ... net	4 0
—— 12 Choruses from Handel's Oratorios ... ... „	3 0
—— 12 Songs from Handel's Oratorios ... ... „	3 0
—— First Steps in Organ-Playing ... ... „	5 0
GLADSTONE, F. E.—The Organ Student's Guide ... „	4 0
—— Organ Music for Church Use ... ... „	3 0
PAUER, E.—March Album. A Collection of 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged by W. J. Westbrook ... ... net	4 0
RINCK, CH. H.—Organ Music. Selected, Edited, and Adapted to English Instruments, by F. E. Gladstone ... ... net	3 0
NEW HARMONIUM VOLUMES (in Blue Paper Covers).
CLARK, SCOTSON.—15 Marches for Harmonium solo (Marche aux Flambeaux, &c., &c.) ... ... net	3 0
—— Voluntaries for Harmonium solo ... ... „	3 0
—— First Steps in Harmonium Playing ... ... „	4 0
LÖW, JOS.—Harmonium Album. A Collection of 100 Favourite Songs and Airs, &c., arranged in progressive order. For Harmonium solo ... ... net	3 0
PAUER, E.—March Album, containing 45 of the most celebrated Italian, French, and German Marches. Arranged for Piano and Harmonium by Jos. Löw ... ... net	5 0
—— The same, for Harmonium solo by Scotson Clark „	3 0

London: Augener and Co., 86, Newgate Street; Foubert's Place; and 81, Regent Street, W.

Just published,

PIANOFORTE PIECES

BY

JOHANNES BRAHMS

Op. 76.

First Book. 8s.	Second Book. 8s.
No. 1. Capriccio. F sharp minor.	No. 5. Capriccio. C sharp minor.
„ 2. Capriccio. B minor.	„ 6. Intermezzo. A major.
„ 3. Intermezzo. A flat major.	„ 7. Intermezzo. A minor.
„ 4. Intermezzo. B flat major.	„ 8. Capriccio. C major.

Sold at half-price.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

POPULAR CANTATAS

In the Staff Notation.

COUNTRY LIFE. By E. F. Rimbault, LL.D. 2s. 6d.

THE BUILDING OF THE SHIP. By Henry Lahee. (Folio.) 6s. (Separate Voice Parts, 1s. each.)

THE WRECK OF THE ARGOSY. By W. H. Birch. 3s.

THE BURNING SHIP. By B. F. Baker. (2s.) (Nearly ready.)

THE PICNIC. By J. R. Thomas. 1s.

ESTHER, THE BEAUTIFUL QUEEN. By Bradbury. 2s. 6d.

DANIEL. By Root and Bradbury. 2s. 6d.

THE PILGRIM FATHERS. By Root. 2s.

THE HAYMAKERS. By Root. 4s.

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST. By Root. 2s. 6d.

THE BLESSING OF THE CHILDREN. By Lahee. 1s.

THE FLOWER QUEEN. By Root. 2s. 6d.

 Tonic Sol-fa Editions of all these Cantatas may be had.

London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

FOR THE CAMBRIDGE EXAMINATION.

EIGHTY MUSICAL SENTENCES, to illustrate Chromatic Chords, composed by G. A. Macfarren, M.A., Mus. Doc., Principal of the Royal Academy of Music, and Professor of Music in the University of Cambridge. With preface and analytical table. Price 3s.

NEW WORK ON COUNTERPOINT.

TEXT BOOK OF COUNTERPOINT, by George Oakey, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 1s.

London: J. CURWEN & SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.

A COLLECTION OF

SACRED MUSIC FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS.

EDITED BY

JAMES TILLEARD.

One Shilling.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A COLLECTION OF

SECULAR MUSIC FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS.

EDITED BY

JAMES TILLEARD.

One Shilling.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY

A Cantata for Female Voices

THE POETRY WRITTEN BY

ALFRED TENNYSON

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

HENRY LAHEE.

Price 2s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE WATER-FAIRIES

A Cantata for Female Voices

The Poetry written by Edward Oxenford.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

FRANZ ABT.

Price 2s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW CHARACTERISTIC PIANO DUETS. By Charles Devereux. "The Village Gossips," price 5s. (30 stamps). "Cavalry March," price 4s. (24 stamps). Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

SIXTY-THIRD EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

For Choirs.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

For Schools.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

For Choral Societies.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

COLLEGIATE SERIES PUBLICATIONS.

VOCAL TUTOR (2s. 6d. net). Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

SOLFEGGI. Arranged as Duets and Trios, specially adapted for High Schools for Girls and Singing Classes. Books I. and II. 3s. each, net.

PIANOFORTE TUTOR. 58 pages. 2s. 6d. net.

ORGAN TUTOR. By F. Archer. 3s. 6d. net.

PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, Anthems. By R. L. De Pearsall, Dr. Wesley, &c. See "Collegiate Series" Catalogue. 110 numbers now ready. From Twopence each.

CONSECUTIVE 5ths and 8ves. Essay by R. L. De Pearsall. 2s. net.

To be continued.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

BOOK 2.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SINGING MANUAL.

Containing

FIFTY FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS, CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

Price One Shilling.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper covers, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

London: Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

SPECIMEN of the CHROMATIC STAVE or KEYBOARD SYSTEM of NOTATION.

(From the "Old Hundredth.")

Note.—The spaces correspond with the White Keys and the lines with the Black Keys of the Piano, Organ, &c., the wide spaces embracing two notes each.

Advantages of the system: Accidental Sharps and Flats abolished, remote keys made easy, and the proper key on the Piano, &c., for every note, clearly indicated by the space or line on which the note stands. For further explanation, address J. Dyson, Albert Road, Farnworth, Bolton, enclosing stamp.

SOCIETY OF ARTS MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS.—Set of Six Specimen Examination Papers, for the guidance of intending Candidates, compiled by W. Meston. Price 1s.

Aberdeen: A. Brown and Co.

RIX'S NEW FLUTE MUSIC.—SIX ORIGINAL DUETS for FLUTE and PIANO, by this rising Composer, forming a most important contribution to the flautist's répertoire, are now ready, 2s. each, or 8s. the set, post-free.

London: Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

WORKS BY JOHN HULLAH, LL.D.,

Professor in Queen's College and in Bedford College, London.

WILHEM'S MANUAL of SINGING for the use of Teachers and Pupils. Parts I. and II. Price 2s. 6d. each; or together in cloth, 5s.

EXERCISES and FIGURES contained in Parts I. and II. of the Manual, for the use of Pupils. Books I. and II. Price 8d each.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Figures in Part I. of the Manual. Nos I. to VIII. in a Parcel. Price 6s.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Exercises in Part I. of the Manual. Nos. IX. to XL. in Four Parcels of Eight Nos. each. Price 6s. per parcel.

LARGE SHEETS, containing the Figures in Part II. of the Manual. Nos. XLI. to LII. in a Parcel. Price 9s.

TIME and TUNE in the ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, a New Method of Teaching Vocal Music. Price 2s. 6d.

EXERCISES and FIGURES contained in "Time and Tune," for the use of Pupils. Price 1s. sewed in paper, or 1s. 2d. limp cloth. To be had also in two Parts, price 6d. each sewed in paper, or 8d. each in limp cloth.

CHROMATIC SCALE with the Inflected Syllables used in "Time and Tune," on a Double Sheet of Extra Medium paper, price 1s. 6d.

CARD of the CHROMATIC SCALE, with the Inflected Syllables used in "Time and Tune," price 1d.

NOTATION, the Musical Alphabet, 6d.

RUDIMENTS of MUSICAL GRAMMAR. Price 3s.

GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. Royal 8vo. Two Parts, price 1s. 6d. each.

EXERCISES to GRAMMAR of MUSICAL HARMONY. Royal 8vo, price 1s.

GRAMMAR of COUNTERPOINT, Part I. Price 2s. 6d.

HYMNS for the YOUNG, New Edition, 8d.

SCHOOL SONGS for Two and Three VOICES. Two Books, 6d. each.

INFANT SCHOOL SONGS. Price 6d.

OLD ENGLISH SONGS for SCHOOLS. Harmonised, 6d.

EXERCISES for the CULTIVATION of the VOICE. 2s. 6d.

London: Longmans and Co.

Nearly ready. In post 8vo, cloth.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF MUSIC.

A Popular Exposition of the General Theory of the Art, as based on the researches of Helmholtz.

Being the Substance of a Course of Lectures delivered at the Royal Institution of Great Britain, in February and March, 1877.

By WILLIAM POLE, Mus. Doc., Oxon,

Fellow of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh; one of the Examiners in Music to the University of London.

London: Trübner and Co., Ludgate Hill.

Now ready. Fourth Edition, Revised and Corrected.

A TREATISE ON HARMONY

AND THE

CLASSIFICATION OF CHORDS.

With Questions and Exercises for the use of Students.

By JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Cloth, Seven Shillings and Sixpence.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Also an APPENDIX, containing faults in action with remedies. Price 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. Hemstock, Diss, Norfolk.

THE RUDIMENTS of MUSICAL THEORY. By Louisa Corrie.

London: Lamborn Cock, 63, New Bond Street, W.

THEORY of MUSIC.

A FIRST BOOK (7th Edition),

A SECOND BOOK,

A THIRD BOOK,

By LOUISA GIBSON,

Author of "The Class Singers' A B C." 6d. Highly recommended by Dr. Macfarren and the leading musicians of Great Britain.

London: Weekes & Co.; Novello, Ewer & Co.; Whittaker & Co.

THE PIANIST'S PRACTICAL GUIDE to THEORETICAL KNOWLEDGE and MANUAL EXECUTION. By F. Weber, Resident Organist, German Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. Third edition, 4s. net. "A work eminently calculated to improve the method of teaching the piano."—Daily News.

London: J. B. Cramer; Novello, Ewer and Co.; Schott and Co.; Stanley Lucas and Co.

TRUTH AND EASE IN MUSIC. NO MORE SHARP OR FLAT KEYS FOR INSTRUMENTALIST OR VOCALIST.

Just published, price Sixpence, with illustrations, a new edition (1879) of

THE SEQUENTIAL SYSTEM OF MUSICAL NOTATION

By WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

"Its completeness and simplicity, when once understood, should recommend it to universal adoption."—Blackburn Standard.

London: E. W. Allen, 11, Ave Maria Lane.

Reduced Price, One Shilling.

A MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

CHOIR-TRAINERS & SCHOOLMASTERS

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

Dr. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight in a comparatively short time.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT.

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

One Shilling.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, Mus. Doc., M.A.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

In Sol-fa Notation, 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWO SETS OF

SIXTY VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED FOR

THE HARMONIUM

BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

Price One Shilling each set.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORATORIOS AND MASSES

ARRANGED FOR

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

	s.	d.
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	5	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	5	0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	2	6
MOZART'S SECOND MASS	3	0
MOZART'S SEVENTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S FIFTEENTH MASS (REQUIEM)	3	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

In issuing this series of Music Primers the Editor sees with pleasure the realisation of a desire he has long felt, to place in the hands of teachers and students of music a set of educational works of a high standard at a price so low as to render them attainable by all.

The growing interest in music generally, and rapid spread of its study, so very evident in this country, render it of the utmost importance that the student's first steps in every branch should be directed with skill and based on sound principles. The Editor has kept this object steadily in view, and he believes that each one of these Primers will prove to be as carefully constructed in detail as it is comprehensive in design.

Such a result would have been impossible but for the hearty support and sympathy of those authors, men of known ability in their special branches of art, who have embodied the results of their long and valuable experience in their respective contributions.

While gratefully acknowledging the kindness of these gentlemen, the Editor cannot but express a hope that the Primers may prove as useful to the public, and as beneficial to art, as both authors and publishers have endeavoured to make them.

NOW READY.

1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - - E. Pauer.
2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. Cummings.
3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - - - Dr. Stainer.
5. SINGING (4s. Paper boards, 5s.) A. Randegger.
6. SPEECH IN SONG (Singer's Pronouncing Primer) (2s.) - - - A. J. Ellis, F.R.S.
7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - - E. Pauer.
8. HARMONY (2s.) - - - - Dr. Stainer.
9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - - Dr. Bridge.
10. FUGUE (2s.) - - - - James Higgs.
11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - - - - - - Dr. Stone.
13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - - - - Rev. J. Troutbeck.
14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - - Rev. T. Helmore.
15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. Prout.
16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - - - E. Pauer.
18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - - John Curwen.

IN PREPARATION.

4. THE HARMONIUM - - - King Hall.
12. HISTORY OF MUSIC - - E. Pauer.
17. THE VIOLIN (Nearly ready) Berthold Tours.
19. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT AND CANON - - - - Dr. Bridge.

(To be continued.)

ANY OF THE ABOVE MAY BE HAD, STRONGLY BOUND IN PAPER BOARDS, PRICE 6D. EACH EXTRA.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.		s.	d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper covers	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo	1	6
„	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK, containing 258 Tunes and 85 Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 1.	Limp cloth, turned in	2	6
„ 2.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3	6
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 3.	Limp cloth, turned in	2	0
„ 4.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2	6

About 250,000 copies have already been sold.

Now Ready.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK (Second Series), containing 298 Tunes and 74 Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 5.	Limp cloth	2	6
„ 6.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3	6
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 7.	Limp cloth	2	0
„ 8.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2	6
	FIRST AND SECOND SERIES BOUND TOGETHER.
No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
„ 10.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	5	0
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa, cloth	3	0

Now Ready.

SMALL EDITION OF THE COMPLETE WORK.

715 Tunes and Chants, providing for nearly 200 Varieties of Metre.

No. 11. Cloth 3 0

Each Edition may be had in Superior Binding.

Communications and inquiries as to Copyrights, and also as to supplies of this work at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: Novello, Ewer, and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. Morgan; and all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Now Ready.

THE LONDON TUNE-BOOK. A Companion for all Hymnals. Cloth, 3s.; red edges, 3s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

Second Edition. Reduced Prices.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and Simpkin and Marshall.

Enlarged Edition.

TUNES, NEW AND OLD; comprising all the Metres in the Wesleyan Hymn-Book. Also, Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by John Dobson; and for the most part revised or re-arranged by Henry John Gauntlett, Mus. Doc.; John Frederick Bridge, Mus. Doc., Oxon.; and Samuel Reay, Mus. Bac., Oxon. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, and 80 & 81, Queen Street. Sold also at 66, Paternoster Row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 5s. TONIC SOL-FA EDITION: plain cloth, 2s.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 3s.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS (in C), by Eaton Faning. Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, 1878. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE BURNLEY TUNE-BOOK.—NOTICE.—An ADDENDA of nearly 500 Tunes, inclusive of all the old favourite and standard Tunes, will shortly be added, and every known metre will be provided for. MSS. received. Address, the Editor, Burnley.

Price (A) limp cloth, 1s. 4d.; (B) cloth boards, 1s. 6d.,

ALL SAINTS' PSALTER. Pointed by the Rev. C. A. Stevens, M.A., Vicar of All Saints', Blackheath. National Society's Depository, the Sanctuary, Westminster. Reduced price to members and the clergy.

New Edition, cloth, red edges. Price 1s. 2d.

THE LITTLE DIRECTORY of PLAIN SONG, by the Rev. J. W. Doran and Spenser Nottingham, containing Psalter, Canticles, Ambrosian Te Deum, Responses, three Settings of the Litany, with its Antiphon and Table of Tones.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH.—TE DEUM in F, Threepence. SOUTHWELL SCHOOL SONGS, 1s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

THE MORNING SERVICE. Set to music in the key of C, by Edwin J. Crow, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist and Choirmaster of Ripon Cathedral. Octavo. One Shilling and sixpence. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; or direct from the Author.

EASY and EFFECTIVE TE DEUMS for Parish Choirs, by Alfred J. Dye. In E flat, price 3d.; organ copy, 6d.; and in D, price 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Second Edition.

THE CANTICLES POINTED, by Joshua D. Horwood, and used by the late Dr. Dykes. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, set to Music in the Key of A, by B. Luard Selby. Octavo 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, in E flat. By Arthur E. Dyer, Mus. Bac. Price 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE OFFICE of the HOLY COMMUNION, set to Music in the Key of E flat, by Alfred J. Eyre. Price 1s. The "BENEDICTUS QUI VENIT" and "AGNUS DEI" can be had separately, price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

MISSA SERAPHICA. The Office of Holy Communion (complete). Set to original music by Arthur H. Brown. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWO ANTHEMS, Nos. 5 and 6 of Op. 14, "COME UNTO ME" and "NOW UNTO THE KING ETERNAL," by Sir Herbert Oakeley, each 1s. Also (supplementary to Service in E flat), "BENEDICTUS," composed for St. Paul's Cathedral, 1879. Score and separate vocal parts.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE NICENE CREED. 8vo, score ... 3d.

Twelve Kyries	6d.
Eleven Offertory Sentences	4d.
Anthem—"The Lord is my Shepherd"	4d.
Anthem—"Let not your heart be troubled" (arrangement)	4d.
Tunes, set to popular Hymns, and Chants. Books 1 and 2, each	4d.

By Charles Swain, Stockport.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE NICENE CREED.

THE NICENE CREED, principally from Ancient Sources, in Unison. With Organ Accompaniment. By Sir John Goss. 8vo, 3d.; Voice Part, 1d.

THE NICENE CREED, composed by Merbecke. With Organ Accompaniment arranged by John Stainer. Folio, 6d.; Unison copy, 1d.

THE NICENE CREED, composed by Merbecke. With Organ Accompaniment arranged by Joseph Barnby. 8vo, 1½d.

THE NICENE CREED, for Four Voices, or for Voices in Unison. With Organ Accompaniment. By John Stainer. Folio, 6d.; without Accompaniment, 1½d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper covers, 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., &c., and Edwin George Monk.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ouseley, Bart., etc., and Edwin George Monk. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by Edwin George Monk, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. Monk, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co. Oxford: Parker.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. Monk, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Fourteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper covers; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. Joule. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small Edition is in preparation.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. Joule. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

No. 1.	Let your light so shine.	13.	Charge them who are rich.
2.	Lay not up for yourselves.	14.	God is not unrighteous.
3.	Whatsoever ye would that men.	15.	To do good.
4.	Not every one that saith unto Me.	16.	Whoso hath this world's good.
5.	Zacchæus stood forth.	17.	Give alms of thy goods.
6.	Who goeth a-warfare.	18.	Be merciful after thy power.
7.	If we have sown.	19.	He that hath pity upon the poor.
8.	Do ye not know.	20.	Blessed be the man.
9.	He that soweth little.	21.	Let your light so shine. Festal Setting.
10.	Let him that is taught in the word.
11.	While we have time.
12.	Godliness is great riches.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

PAROCHIAL ANTHEMS, by T. Mee Patison.

O PRAISE THE LORD (Chorus, Duet for Two Trebles, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 4d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES.

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. T. FIELD.

1.	Let your light so shine.	11.	While we have time.
2.	Lay not up for yourselves.	12.	Godliness is great riches.
3.	Whatsoever ye would.	13.	Charge them who are rich.
4.	Not every one.	14.	God is not unrighteous.
5.	Zacchæus stood forth.	15.	To do good.
6.	Who goeth a-warfare.	16.	Whoso hath this world's good.
7.	If we have sown.	17.	Give alms of thy goods.
8.	Do ye not know.	18.	Be merciful after thy power.
9.	He that soweth little.	19.	He that hath pity.
10.	Let him that is taught.	20.	Blessed be the man.

Price One Shilling.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MY SOUL TRULY WAITETH STILL UPON GOD. Anthem for Four Voices. Composed by Edwin George Monk, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d.; octavo, 4d.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD. Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. Composed by Edwin George Monk, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 2s. 6d.; octavo, 8d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 3d. "Easy and Effective."

ANTHEM, "GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH." Composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by Frank Bates, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Baldred's Episcopal Church, North Berwick, N.B. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 6, Quality Street, North Berwick, N.B.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready, 8vo, price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED. Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by Edwin George Monk, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST'S

EASY CHURCH MUSIC.

Composed expressly for Parish Choirs.

Almighty God, give us grace	Anthem	2d.
Almighty and everlasting God	,,	2d.
And I will pray the Father	,,	2d.
God is gone up	,,	2d.
Hear my prayer	,,	2d.
He shall be great	,,	3d.
Like as Christ was raised up	,,	3d.
Thou visitest the earth	,,	3d.
The Offertory Sentences (complete)		4d.
Te Deum Laudamus, in G major		3d.
Morning Service, in C major		4d.
Communion Service, ditto		6d.
Evening Service, ditto		2d.
Complete Service, ditto		1s.
Ten Kyries and Glorias before and after Gospel		3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 73, Farleigh Road, Stoke Newington, N.

NEW ANTHEM for Lent or general use.—"BOW DOWN THINE EAR, O LORD." Composed by J. J. Simpson. 8vo, price 3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CHORAL MUSIC for the form of SOLEMNISATION of MATRIMONY, with an Introductory or Processional Hymn, by B. H. Hilton. Charles W. Smith. Price 1s. James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord Street, Liverpool (by special appointment to the Queen).

NEW GRAND MARCH, "CHRISTIAN, THE PILGRIM," for organ or piano from Wilford Morgan's sacred Cantata, "Christian, the Pilgrim" (Fifth Edition), as played at Marlborough House, at the Alexandra and Crystal Palaces, and at the Brighton Festival, with the greatest success. Post-free, 2s. net. Morgan and Co., 18, Surrey Street, W.C.

REDUCED PRICES OF

OUSELEY AND MONK'S

POINTED PSALTER.

	s.	d.
4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score	4	0
12mo Edition. Vocal parts .... Each	1	6
32mo Edition. Words only	0	9
Ditto ditto with Proper Psalms	1	0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

NOVELLO'S
PARISH CHOIR-BOOK,
A COLLECTION OF MUSIC FOR THE SERVICE OF THE CHURCH,
By MODERN COMPOSERS.

Published under the Patronage of the Ely Diocesan Church Music Society.

No.			Price
5.	ALLEN, G. B., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
14.	ARMES, Dr. P., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
16.	ARNOLD, Dr. G. B., in C ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
3.	BARNBY, J., in D (Unison) ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
4.	BARNBY, J., in B flat (Do.) ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
	Voice part only, octavo post, 1½d.
35.	BARRETT, E. R., in E flat ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
18.	BEST, W. T., in C...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
9.	CALKIN, J. B., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
30.	CHIPP, Dr. E. T., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
12.	CLARKE, J. H., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
26.	DYKES, Rev. J. B., M.A., Mus. Doc., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
31.	ELLIOTT, J. W., in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
36.	GADSBY, H., in E flat	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
6.	GARRETT, Dr. G. M., in F ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
10.	HAKING, R., in C (Chant form)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
22.	HERBERT, E., Mus. Bac., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
15.	HOPKINS, J. L., Mus. Bac., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
29.	IRONS, H. S., in G	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
	Voice part only, octavo post, 1½d.
27.	LITTLETON, A. H., in E flat ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
17.	MACFARREN, WALTER, in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
8.	MACFARREN, G. A., in G (Uni.)	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
7.	MONK, Dr. E. G., in A (Unison)...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
13.	MONK, W. H., in A	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
34.	MORLEY, THOMAS, in F ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
25.	NUNN, J. H., in F...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
11.	OUSELEY, Rev. Sir F., in F ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
33.	REAY, SAMUEL, in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
28.	REDHEAD, R., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
32.	SMART, HENRY, in F	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
19.	STAINER, Dr. J., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
1.	STEGGALL, Dr. C., in A ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
24.	STEPHENS, C. E., in C... ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
21.	STEWART, Sir R. P., in G ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
2.	SULLIVAN, A. S., in D	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
20.	THORNE, E. H., in C	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
23.	TILLEARD, JAMES, in F ...	Te Deum laudamus	3d.
37.	WOODWARD, Rev. H. H., in E flat	Te Deum laudamus	3d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.

MENDELSSOHN'S OVERTURES

In One Volume, folio size, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges. Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 10. Marriage of Camacho.	Op. 36. St. Paul.
„ 21. Midsummer Night's Dream.	„ 60. Walpurgis Night.
„ 24. Military Band.	„ 70. Elijah.
„ 26. Hebrides.	„ 74. Athalie.
„ 27. A Calm Sea.	„ 89. Son and Stranger.
„ 32. Melusine.	„ 95. Ruy Blas.
	„ 101. Trumpet.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published,

POHLMANN'S
NATIONAL PSALMODY.

Consisting principally of Compositions and Arrangements
By Dr. H. J. GAUNTLETT;
With a few additions by
Mr. W. H. WHITAKER, Mr. T. WADSWORTH,
Mr. R. JACKSON, and Miss C. THOMPSON.

This work, one of the last contributed to by the late Dr. Gauntlett, is intended to form a Supplement to Houldsworth's Cheetham's Psalmody, and contains a FINE COLLECTION OF NEW AND OLD HYMNS, beautifully though simply arranged with words, complete, and suitable for use either at Home or in Church for CONGREGATIONAL SINGING.

At the commencement there are some practical rules for Chanting and Singing Sacred Music, with observations on Accent, Expression, &c., by Mr. W. H. Whitaker, then follow the Hymns, which with the exceptions of those contributed by Mr. Whitaker, Mr. R. Jackson, Mr. T. Wadsworth, and Miss Thompson, are all arranged or composed by the late Dr. Gauntlett.

The last few pages are devoted to CHURCH MUSIC so as to form a complete Musical Service.

In this part there are six beautiful "Te Deums" by the late Dr. Gauntlett, and one of Mr. Wadsworth's, inserted by permission.

To make this new work as attractive as possible, the quarto copy has been printed on the best toned paper, and is very easy to read, the type being clear and large, and the bindings are quite original in design and very handsome.

PRICES FOR THE "NATIONAL PSALMODY."

Super Royal 8vo, on fine paper, strongly sewn in elegant stiff covers	5 6
Super Royal 8vo, in special cloth binding of new design, with gilt edges	8 0
Best 4to copy, on extra toned paper, in elegant stiff covers ...	7 6
Best 4to copy (Presentation Copy), in special embossed cloth binding, with gilt design and gilt edges	10 6

Published by
POHLMANN AND SON,
HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

London Agents:
Forsyth Brothers, 272A, Regent Circus, Oxford Street.
Simpkin, Marshall and Co., 4, Stationers' Hall Court.
Manchester:
Forsyth Brothers, South King Street.

NEW EDITION, CAREFULLY REVISED.

MENDELSSOHN'S SYMPHONIES

In One Volume, folio size, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges. Price, Solo, 12s.; Duet, 15s.

Op. 11. First Symphony.
„ 52. Second Symphony (Lobgesang).
„ 56. Third Symphony (Scotch).
„ 90. Fourth Symphony (Italian).
„ 107. Fifth Symphony (Reformation).

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth ..	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper covers. 32mo	0	3
Canticles, 32mo	0	1
Ditto, 8vo	0	3
The Psalter, with Chants, Post Quarto, cloth ..	5	0

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post Quarto, paper covers	2	0
Ditto, cloth	3	0
Foolscap Quarto, paper covers	1	0
Ditto, cloth	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE CONGREGATIONAL PSALMIST.

Edited by Henry Allon, D.D., and H. J. Gauntlett, Mus. Doc.
Providing Tunes, Chants, and Anthems, by the best Composers, Ancient and Modern. List of editions on application.

CHURCH ANTHEMS, &c. Edited by Henry Allon, D.D. Containing One Hundred and Fifteen Anthems for Congregational Use. Crown 8vo, cloth, 3s.; crown 8vo, roan, 3s. 6d.; Cheap Edition, limp cloth, 1s. 4d.; stiff cloth, 1s. 8d.

"Dr. Allon has done so much to promote an intelligent use of sacred music in Divine worship that we gladly call attention to his last, and as we think, most wise effort in the same direction. Having issued in the 'Congregational Psalmist' a valuable series of hymn tunes, chants, kyries, &c., he has now published in a little pocket volume a collection of anthems intended for the use of the congregation, and not simply for the choir. The pieces, as a rule, require, in singing, a degree of musical culture somewhat greater than that required by chorales and chants, but they are, on the whole, within the reach of persons possessing a practical acquaintance with sight-singing."—The Choir.

London: Hodder and Stoughton, 27, Paternoster Row; and Novello, Ewer and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

The Organist's Quarterly Journal

CONTAINING

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS.

Edited by WILLIAM SPARK, Mus. Doc.,

Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds.

The first Thirty-two Parts, each containing Twenty Pages, may now be had at the Reduced Price of 2s. 6d. each. Parts 1 to 40 may be had in Five Volumes, each containing Eight Parts, Cloth, 21s. each. A List of Contents may be had of the Publishers.

From The Eastern Morning News, March 8, 1879.

". . . In every respect the Organist's Quarterly Journal is a standard work, and while its pages afford ample music to place before the accomplished organist, the less advanced professional will find every form of composition to meet his tastes. The editor's own contributions to the work, numbering about a dozen, afford continued proof of the zeal and industry he throws into the journal, even at the end of ten years' devoted labour. It is with him, therefore, such a labour of love as must earn the honourable association of his name therewith in after years when the book merges into standard retirement. We look, however to years of usefulness meanwhile, and to even a further increase of the high reputation it now enjoys, for, as has before been remarked in this paper, we recognise in the book just the kind of work required by organ students of the present day. We should add also that its general get-up is highly commendable. The type is neat and bold, and the quality of the paper excellent. Novello and Co. generally do their work well, but they appear to have a special pride in the presentability of Dr. Spark's popular and enduring Organist's Quarterly Journal."

The Work is being continued quarterly. Subscription, 10s. 6d., post-free, per annum.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS

FROM THE

GREAT MASTERS,

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN

With Pedal Obbligato by

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.

1. "Wedding March," by Mendelssohn.
2. March from "Tannhäuser," by Wagner.
3. March from "Scipio," also from Occasional Oratorio, both by Handel.
4. "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Prophète."
5. "The Dead March" in "Saul" and "See the conquering hero comes," both by Handel.
6. Andantino, from the 11th Grand Symphony by Haydn, and "Wait her, angels," from Handel's "Jephtha."
7. "As pants the hart," from Spohr's "Crucifixion," and "Where'er you walk," from Handel's "Semele."
8. "My heart ever faithful" (Mein gläubiges Herz frohlocket), by Bach.
9. Andantino from the 5th and Andante from the 4th Sonatas, by Pleyel.
10. "The Hero's March," by Mendelssohn.
11. "Quis est homo?" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
12. Air et Chœur, from "La Dame Blanche," by Boieldieu.
13. Grande Marche Héroïque in C, by Fr. Schubert.
14. Grande Marche Héroïque in D, by Fr. Schubert.
15. Overture, "Berenice," by Handel.
16. Overture, "Sosarmes," by Handel.
17. Handel's Overture, "Alcina."
18. Gavotte, from Handel's Overture, "Otho."
19. "La Carità," by Rossini.
20. "Angels ever bright and fair," and "Pious orgies," both by Handel.
21. "Ave Maria," by Franz Schubert.
22. Aria, by Antonio Lotti. Circa 1700.
23. "My soul thirsteth for God," Aria from Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm.
24. "Gloria in excelsis," from Weber's Mass in G.
25. "Fac ut portem," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
26. "Pietà, Signore," from the Oratorio "San Giovanni Battista," by Stradella.
27. Handel's Overture to "Julius Cæsar."
28. Serenade, by Franz Schubert.
29. Aria, by Cavaliere Gluck. 1765.
30. Aria, from "Alcina," by Handel.
31. Aria, from "Artaserse," by Leonardo Vinci. 1730.
32. Cantata, by Alessandro Scarlatti.
33. Aria, by Ch. Gluck. 1769.
34. Aria, by Domenico Cimarosa. 1784.
35. "Diedi il Coro," Aria by Handel.
36. Siciliana Long.
37. Andante.
38. Aria, by Padre Martini. 1763.

[Continuing.]

Price Two Shillings each.

Volume I., bound in cloth, containing 20 numbers of above, now ready.

London: B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row.

Price 5s., paper covers; or 7s. 6d., handsomely bound in scarlet cloth, gilt lettered, gilt bordered, and gilt edges.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST. New Edition, complete in One Volume. It contains 78 Voluntaries, all of which, except 4, were composed expressly for the work by nearly all the most eminent English musicians.

"Shows in an interesting manner the present state of musicianship in England."—Musical Times.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FIVE INTRODUCTORY VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN. Composed by T. Mee Pattison.

These Voluntaries, of medium difficulty, with Pedal Obbligato, will be found eminently useful for the introduction of Divine Service, both as regards character and length. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN MUSIC.

STONE, J. T., Classical Organist. A SELECTION of celebrated COMPOSITIONS from the works of Handel, Mozart, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, &c., arranged from the Orchestral Scores for the Organ with pedal obbligato, six volumes, oblong folio, £1 10s. (published at £3 12s.), or separately, at 5s. 6d. per volume. A list of the Contents sent on application.

London: S. White, 38, Booksellers Row, Strand, W.C.

New Organ Work, dedicated to W. T. Best, in oblong folio, with Pedal Obbligato.

GUSTAV HERMANN'S SIX ORIGINAL PIECES.

No. 1. Quasi duetto.	No. 4. Dolce far niente (Pastorale).
„ 2. Harvest March.	„ 5. Concert March.
„ 3. The Pilgrim's Return (Fantasia).	„ 6. Promenade Militaire (Fanfare).

These pieces are rapidly rising in favour with good Organists, and will be welcome to all who desire effective original works of moderate difficulty, uniting the resources of the modern with the purity of the old school. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each; the set, 6s.; handsomely bound, 8s.

London: Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

Price 1s. 6d. each, post-free.

THE COLLEGE MARCH, for Organ or Pianoforte. "Very playable, and would be effective on the organ."—Musical Standard.

LA BELLE. Valse Facile. "A well-written waltz, both as to melody and harmony. We recommend it for teaching purposes, as it is calculated to refine and improve the taste."—Musical Standard.

E. W. Taylor, Mus. B., L. Mus., &c., Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

TO ORGANISTS.

NEW, MELODIOUS, AND EFFECTIVE VOLUNTARY FOR EASTER AND OTHER FESTIVALS, GRAND FESTIVAL MARCH

FOR THE ORGAN.

By ERNEST C. WINCHESTER.

1s. 6d. net.

London: F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MARCHE JOYEUSE, by Wilford Morgan, Piano or Organ. Brilliant but easy. Post-free, 18 stamps. Morgan and Co., 18, Surrey Street, W.C.

"MR. ALFRED ALLEN has melody and scholarship; his 'Postlude in D' is the composition of a musician."—Public Opinion. Net, 1s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"OUR NATIONAL CHURCH"

(Dedicated to the Clergy of the Church of England),

AND

"ENGLAND'S GLORY."

New Part-Songs for S.A.T.B., price 3d. each,

By WILLIAM J. YOUNG.

Composer of Popular Part-Songs.

I love the merry spring-time	20th Edition	2d.
Gaily through the greenwood	29th „	2d.
Hail! merry, merry Christmas	16th „	2d.
Fairy revels	9th „	3d.
Forest echoes	7th „	3d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow	7th „	3d.
The coming of spring	3rd „	3d.
To a sleeping child...	(just published)	2d.
O welcome, merry May	6th Edition,	2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Manchester: The Composer, 6, Grove Terrace, Longsight.

POPULAR FOUR-PART SONGS BY GABRIEL DAVIS.

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN	2d.
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE (14th Edition) ...	2d.
THE DISTANT SEA	2d.
TO THE WOODS	2d.
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC	2d.
THE HOUR OF REST	2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 2d.,

DAME WIGGINS OF LEE

Humorous Part-Song.

COMPOSED BY

GABRIEL DAVIS.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 2s. net.

New Song,

THE ZINGARA.

Written and composed by Gabriel Davis.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Edition.—Reduced Prices.

Choral Songs for School & Home.

FORTY-TWO ORIGINAL SONGS

FOR

ONE, TWO, OR FOUR VOICES.

Composed by ROBERT JACKSON.

Cloth, complete, 2s. 6d.; Parts I. and II., paper cover, 1s. each; Single Numbers, 1d.

From Concordia.

"This little book is designed for singing-classes in schools, and the simplicity, tunefulness, and attractiveness of the small compositions it contains eminently adapt it for such a purpose."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte by Berthold Tours. In one volume, Cloth, gilt, price 5s.; or in two parts, in Paper covers, 2s. each; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d. each.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, without accompaniment. Price, in Paper covers, 1s.; in Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; or twelve numbers divided as follows, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 41.
1. In the woods ... ...
2. O fly with me ... ...
3. One night there came ...
4. Over the grave ... ...
5. May song ... ...
6. On the sea ... ...

Op. 48.
7. The first day of Spring ...
8. The primrose ... ...
9. The celebration of Spring
10. The lark's song ... ...
11. Morning Prayer (The deep repose of night) ...
12. Autumn song ... ...

Op. 59.
13. The woods ... ...
14. Early Spring ... ...
15. Departure (O hills, O vales)
16. The nightingale ... ...
17. The vale of rest ... ...
18. Hunting song ... ...

Op. 88.
19. For the New Year ...
20. The happy lover ... ...
21. The shepherd's song ...
22. The wood minstrels ...
23. The victors' return ...
24. The wandering minstrel...

Op. 100.
25. Remembrance ... ...
26. Praise of Spring ... ...
27. Spring song ... ...
28. In the forest ... ...

 A Tonic Sol-fa Edition of the above Songs (for S.A.T.B.) is in preparation.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, with ad lib. Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d; or twenty-one numbers, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 50.
29. Turkish drinking song.
30. The hunter's farewell.
31. Summer song.
32. On the water.
33. Love and wine.
34. Wanderer's song.

Op. 75.
35. The merry wayfarer.
36. Serenade.
37. Eastern drinking song.
38. Farewell meeting.

Op. 76.
39. Song of the worthy man.
40. The Rhine.
41. 'Tis the song whose spirit.
42. Students' parting song.

Op. 120.
43. A festal greeting.
44. Gipsy song.
45. Hunting song (Waken, lords).
46. Land of beauty.
47. The recompense.
48. Night song.
49. The foundation-day festival.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Novello, Ewer and Co.'s only Complete and Uniform Edition of MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the Original Words. Octavo, One Shilling; or cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English Words. Octavo. Paper covers, 2s.; cloth, gilt edges, 4s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the Original Words. Folio Edition, complete, 2s. 6d.; or singly, 1s. 6d. each, net.

1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from Ruy Blas.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

The only complete Edition.

MENDELSSOHN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS. Complete in Five Vols. Octavo, paper cover, each 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, each 6s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

MENDELSSOHN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS. Vol. V. Octavo. Paper cover, 4s.; cloth gilt, 6s.

Contents.

Three Preludes. Op. 104 A.
„ Studies. Op. 104 B.
Sonata. Op. 105.
„ Op. 106.
Album Blatt. Op. 117.
Capriccio. Op. 118.
Perpetuum Mobile. Op. 119.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE GENTLEMAN'S TWO BEST SONGS for PENNY READINGS, &c., are

THE LIGHTHOUSE. By A. J. Dye. Sung by Broccolini, and THE WAGONER. By Wrighton and Oxenford. Sung by Thurley Beale.

Either of the above post-free for 2s.

Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, London, W.

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO
H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

SONGS FOR SAILORS

WRITTEN BY
W. C. BENNETT,
SET TO MUSIC BY
J. L. HATTON.

ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO, CONTAINING
FORTY SONGS:

Trafalgar.	Saturday night at sea.
Would you be a sailor's wife?	Duncan at Camperdown.
A fisher-wife's song.	Rum.
Nay, never cry, lass.	Rodney and De Grasse.
A kiss to take to sea.	From sea.
Homeward bound.	A wife's song.
The Nile.	The winds, inconstant ever.
The apparition.	Old Benbow.
The Dutchman's broom.	There's nothing like a smoke.
Take me, lass, for life.	The seaboy's dream.
The fine old English admiral.	A song of the sea.
Ring, happy bells.	The wife for a British sailor.
The forsaken.	We roam and rule the sea.
The sailor's dream.	The homeward watch.
To sea.	Off to sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.	A mother's song.
A thousand leagues away.	Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
Strike, and strike hard.	A Christmas song.
Were I that gull.	Outward bound.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.	Herrings are in the bay.

With Illustrated Cover and Engraved Portrait of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.
LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

THREE SONGS.

"ROSAMOND'S EPITAPH;" "ON THE WATER;" "PRAYER."

COMPOSED BY FREDERICK CORDER.

Four Shillings.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW SONG. "WINTER." Music by E. Bunnett, Mus. Doc. Price 1s. 6d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOW READY, as sung by Mdlle. ARNIM at Mr. Kuhe's Musical Festival, 1879, a new edition of AULD ROBIN GRAY, as originally composed by the Rev. William Leeves in the year 1770. To be had of Novello, Ewer and Co., London; R. Potts and Co., Brighton; Forsyth Brothers, Manchester, &c. Price 1s.

Ready next week. Price 6d.

LITTLE JACK HORNER. Humorous Glee, by the Composer of "Humpty Dumpty," "Jack and Jill," &c.
Alfred J. Caldicott, Mus. Bac., Worcester.

EASY and EFFECTIVE PART-SONG, "Come where lovely springing flowers," by Vincent Percival. In either Sol-fa or Old Notation. Price 1d. J. Curwen and Sons, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.; or F. Pitman, 20, Paternoster Row, E.C.

PART-SONGS for MEN'S VOICES.—HARK! the NIGHTINGALE is SINGING (Serenade). 6d. CHRISTABEL (Glee). Poetry by Robert Crompton. Music by Stephen S. Stratton. 6d.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published.

"SWALLOW SONG," from Tennyson's Princess; also "SPRING-EVENING" (Frühlingsabend), and "THE SUNNY SOUTH" (Sehnsucht); with English and German words. Composed by Sir Herbert Oakeley for Edinburgh Orchestral Festival, 1879. Price respectively 4s., 3s., and 4s. Forsyth Brothers, 172A, Regent Circus, London; and South King Street, Manchester.

Second Edition, price 2d. each.

NEW PART-SONGS, by Alexander S. Cooper.—"Happy bygone days," "The wayside well," "Cheerily," and "Sweet echo," for mixed voices; "O tranquil eve," and "Every season," for male voices.
London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; and Weekes and Co.

Just published.

SUITE DE PIECES, Four characteristic pieces for the Piano, by C. Ridsdale. Dedicated to Earl Beauchamp.

No. 1. Contentment.	No. 3. Mirth.
No. 2. Energy.	No. 4. Joy.

Complete in one book, 3s. net.
Enoch and Sons, 19, Holles Street, W.

MOZART'S REQUIEM.

Now ready

THE STORY OF MOZART'S REQUIEM

Carefully compiled from the best and most authentic Sources,
By WM. POLE, F.R.S., Mus. Doc.
Price One Shilling.

This immortal work, independently of its value as a musical composition, has great interest on account of its very remarkable history. The mysterious commission given for it, the supernatural impression made by this on Mozart, his composition of the work under such pathetic circumstances, partly on his deathbed, the difficulties as to its publication, the fierce controversy as to its authorship, which for fourteen years engaged the attention of some of the most learned men and profound musicians of Europe, the extraordinary disappearance and long concealment of the manuscripts, their ultimate discovery, the difficult and perplexing questions as to their genuineness, the strange revelations gradually made as to the secret history of the various transactions, and the doubts which, after all possible information has been obtained, still hang over the authorship of some parts of the work; all these things, spread over seventy or eighty years, form a story of unparalleled interest in the annals of music.

The object of the present essay is to tell this story, which is hitherto but little known in England; and it will form, it is hoped, an appropriate companion to the various editions of the "Requiem," published by Messrs. Novello and Co.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW AND CAREFULLY REVISED EDITIONS
OF
MENDELSSOHN'S

LIEDER OHNE WORTE

Octavo, 160 pp., paper covers	4s.	od.
" " cloth, gilt edges	6s.	od.

CHEAP EDITION.

Octavo, 104 pp., paper covers	2s.	6d.
" " cloth, gilt edges	4s.	6d.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION
CONTAINING BOOKS 7 and 8.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED PRICE, TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LEFÉBURE-WELY'S

OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN.

Or singly:—

1. Offertoire in B flat	...	1s. od.	4. Offertoire in G	...	1s. 9d.
2. " F	...	1s. 6d.	5. " A	...	1s. od.
3. " C	...	1s. od.	6. " E	...	1s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY DIETRICH BUXTEHUDE
(1635—1707).
EDITED BY
PHILIPP SPITTA.

Containing Preludes and Fugues, Toccatas, Canzonettas, Chorales, &c.

Two Volumes	each, net	24s.
Or Twelve Books	each,	6s. to 10s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW ORGAN MUSIC

BY GUSTAV MERKEL.

	s.	d.
OP. 122. TWO ANDANTES.
No. 1. A flat. No. 2. A minor	each net	2	0
OP. 124. TWELVE FUGUES.
Book I.	net	3	6
Book II.	"	4	0
In single Numbers...	each	1	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A NEW WORK FOR THE HARMONIUM.

THE HARMONIUM BOOK

FOR THE CHURCH

A SELECTION OF

SOFT AND LOUD VOLUNTARIES,

CHANTS FOR THE CANTICLES, RESPONSES, GLORIAS,

KYRIES, SANCTUSES, OFFERTORY SENTENCES,

HYMN-TUNES, &c.

EXPRESSLY ARRANGED FOR THE HARMONIUM,

With full directions for the use of the stops, by

EDWARD F. RIMBAULT.

PRICE 5s.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

J. LEYBACH'S L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE

120 MORCEAUX FACILES POUR HARMONIUM OU ORGUE.

In two Vols., each 6s. net; or eight parts, each 2s. net.

"This work will be found very useful to the amateur organist."

NEW WORK FOR SINGING CLASSES.

CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS.

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

The present collection of Part-Songs is entirely new, being selected and adapted from the most striking and popular Choruses in the Favourite Foreign Operas. The Arrangement is purely Vocal, such Choruses only being chosen as can be sung without the aid of an Instrumental Accompaniment. The Words have been expressly written for the work, and the harmonies arranged in four parts, as likely to be most useful in small classes.

1.	Hymn of the Fisherman's Children	Adapted to a Melody from Herold's "Zampa."
2.	Fays and Elves (In mia fe)	From Flotow's "Marta."
3.	Spring's Bright Glances (In Elvezia non v' ha)	From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
4.	From Yonder Vale and Hill (D' immenso giubilo)	From Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."
5.	Here we rest (Qui la selva)	From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
6.	Onward to Battle (Squilli echeggi)	From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
7.	Rataplan (Rataplan)	From Donizetti's "La Figlia del Reggimento."
8.	The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche)	From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
9.	War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica)	From Bellini's "Norma."
10.	In Mercy, hear us! (Cielo clemente)	From Donizetti's "La Figlia del Reggimento."
11.	Come to the Fair! (Accorete, giovinette)	From Flotow's "Marta."
12.	Friendship (Per te d' immenso giubilo)	From Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."
13.	Away, the Morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen)	From Auber's "Masaniello."
14.	Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus)	From Gounod's "Faust."
15.	The soft Winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus)	From Weber's "Preciosa."
16.	See how lightly on the Blue Sea (Senti la danza invitaci)	From Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia."
17.	See the Moonlight Beam (Non fav Motto)	" " "
18.	On yonder Rocks reclining	From Auber's "Fra Diavolo."
19.	Happy and light	From Balfe's "Bohemian Girl."
20.	Come, come away (Ah! que de moins)	From Donizetti's "La Favorita."
21.	Hymen's torch (Il destin)	From Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots."
22.	Come on, Comrade (The Celebrated Chorus of Old Men)	From Gounod's "Faust."
23.	'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross)	" " "
24.	O Balmy Night (Com' è gentil)	From Donizetti's "Don Pasquale."
25.	Haste o'er the hills (Introductory Chorus)	From Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell."
26.	Come, sing the Song (Opening Chorus)	From Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable."
27.	With fair Ceres (The March Chorus)	From Bellini's "Norma."
28.	The Tuneful Song of Robin's Horn (Tyrolese Chorus)	From Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell."
29.	The Chorus of Huntsmen	From Weber's "Der Freischuetz."
30.	Hark! the distant hills (Hunting Chorus)	From Flotow's "Marta."
31.	Hence! away with care	From Meyerbeer's "Gli Ugonotti."
32.	Hail to the Bride	From Wagner's "Lohengrin."
33.	Hark! music stealing! (subject from Overture)	From Rossini's "Semiramide."
34.	A bridal wreath we twined (Chorus of Bridesmaids)	From Weber's "Der Freischuetz."
35.	Behold, how brightly breaks the Morning! (The Barcarole)	From Auber's "Masaniello."
36.	From hill to hill resounding (subject from Overture)	From Auber's "Fra Diavolo."

Postage-free, 1½d. each; or Three for 3½d.

(To be continued.)

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co. at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row; and by Ditson and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Tuesday, April 1, 1879.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE

STEINWAY PIANOFORTES

AND

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA COMPANY.

THE following letter relative to the STEINWAY PIANOFORTES from the distinguished Artists whose names are thereto attached, is the complement of the Testimonies to their UNRIVALLED EXCELLENCE which have been given by the GREAT PIANISTS of Europe. It is scarcely necessary to add that the verdict of public opinion has amply confirmed that of these eminent authorities—the STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, although necessarily commanding the highest prices, having by far the largest annual sale of any Pianofortes throughout the world.

"New York, December 28, 1878.

"Messrs. Steinway & Sons.

"Gentlemen,—Having used your celebrated Pianofortes, both in public and in private, during the present Opera Season, we desire to express our unqualified admiration of their sonority, evenness, richness, and astonishing duration of tone, most beautifully blending with and supporting the voice. These matchless qualities for accompanying the voice, together with their precision of action and unequalled capacity of remaining in tune for a great length of time, render, in our opinion, the Steinway Pianofortes, above all others, the most desirable Instruments for students of vocal music and the musical public generally.

(Signed)

"MINNIE HAUK.	ETELKA GERSTER.	MARIE ROZE.
"CL. CAMPOBELLO.	G. LABLACHE.	G. DEL PUENTE.
"ITALO CAMPANINI.	A. F. GALASSI.	F. DE RIALP.
"J. FRAPOLLI.	A. J. FOLI.	LUIGI ARDITI."

Miss Minnie Hauk has also written in the following terms:

"December, 1878.

"Messrs. Steinway & Sons.

"Dear Sirs,—Allow me to express to you the entire satisfaction I feel in praising your magnificent Pianos. They are the finest Instruments in the world, and I have therefore taken every opportunity while in Europe to extol their sterling qualities.

"Believe me, yours very sincerely,
"MINNIE HAUK."

STEINWAY HALL (LONDON),

LOWER SEYMOUR ST., PORTMAN SQ., LONDON, W.

CHALLEN AND SON'S
GOLD MEDAL PIANOS,
20, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

PRIZE MEDAL, LONDON, 1862.

FOR EXCELLENCE OF TOUCH AND TONE.

GOLD MEDAL.

SOUTH AFRICA, 1877.

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

FOR GOOD AND CHEAP PIANOS.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL PIANETTE
WITH CHECK ACTION, IN ELEGANT WALNUT OR ROSEWOOD CASE.

FROM 25 GUINEAS.

"The Pianettes manufactured by CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments."—Anton Rubinstein.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL SEMI-COTTAGE,
WITH CHECK REPEATER ACTION.

FROM 32 GUINEAS.

"I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing at a most moderate cost pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice as being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence.

"The Instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, at Paris, were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section."—John Stainer, M.A., Mus. Doc., one of the Jurors of the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL COTTAGE
TRICHORD THROUGHOUT; BRASS BRIDGE; CHECK REPEATER ACTION.

FROM 60 GUINEAS.

"CHALLEN & SON is a name synonymous with wonderful durability, great beauty of tone, and moderation in price. We know of not one single maker whose Pianos excel theirs in the qualities most desirable in a good and lasting Piano."—Cape Argus, May 7.

EXCELLENCE IS GUARANTEED, AND EVERY INSTRUMENT WARRANTED TO BE OF THE HIGHEST CLASS WORKMANSHIP AND MATERIALS.

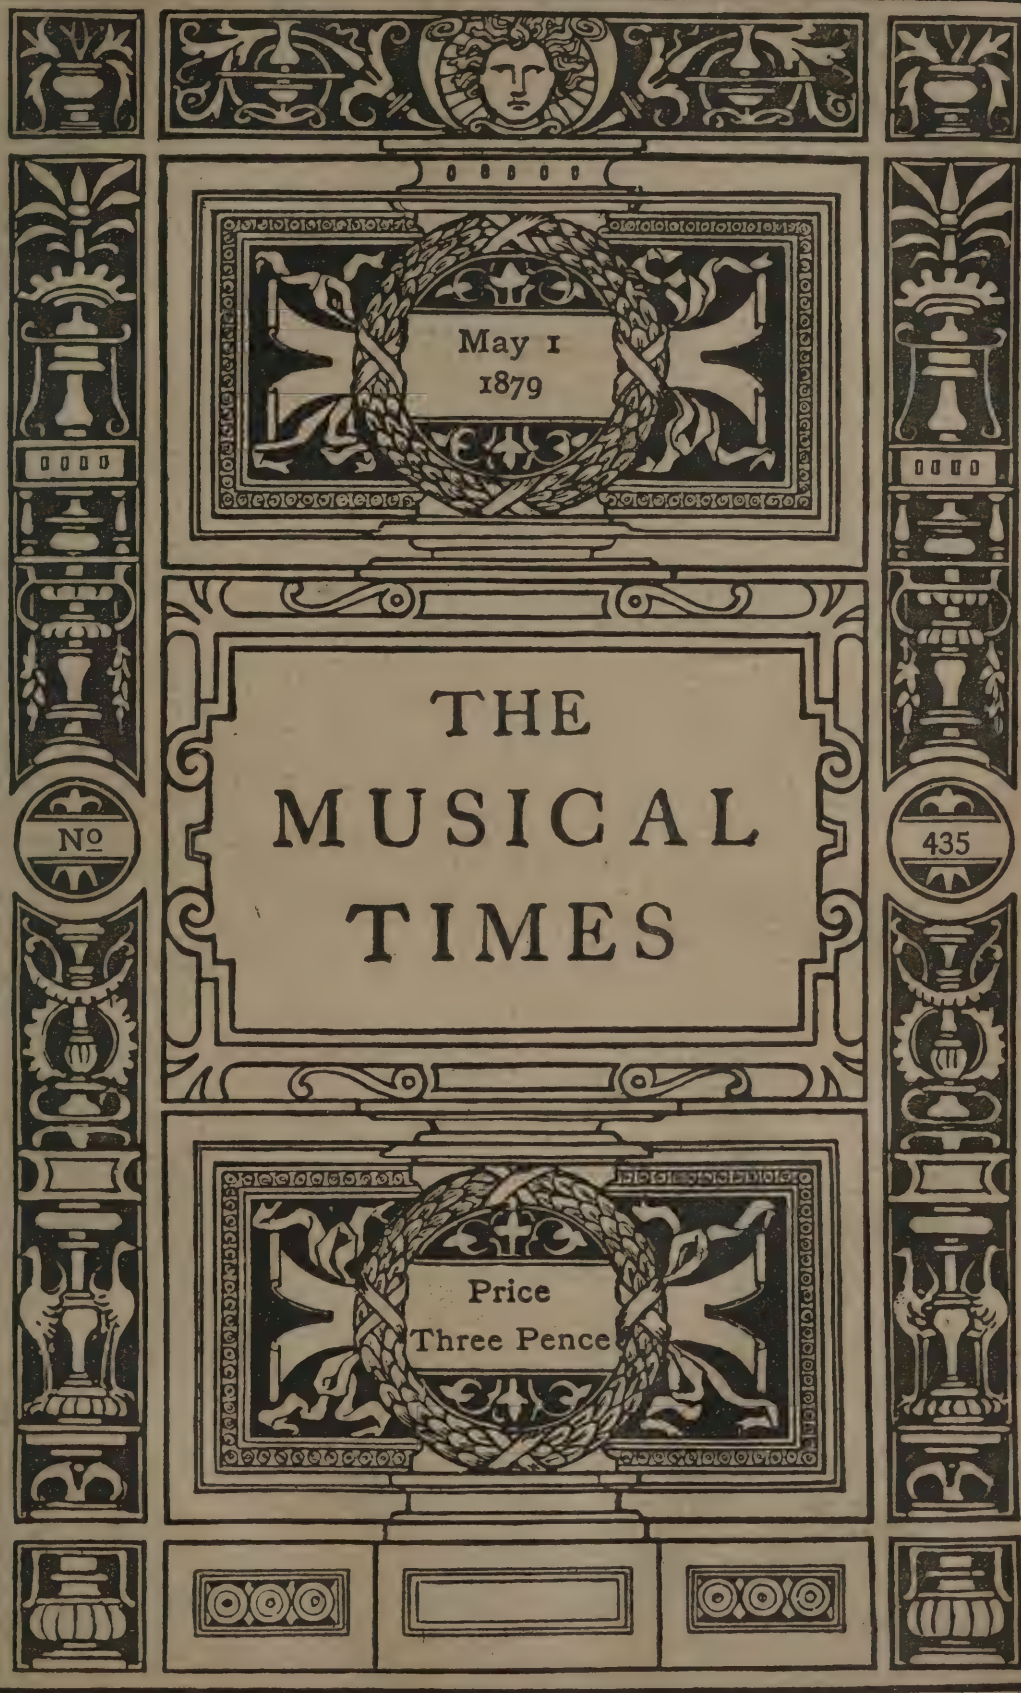
EBONISED AND GOLD PIANOS
Kept in Stock, of Superior Make and Elegant Designs.

May be obtained from all Musicsellers. Illustrated List forwarded free.

CHALLEN & SON, 20, OXFORD ST.
STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co. at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Tuesday, April 1, 1879.



May 1
1879
THE MUSICAL
TIMES
No
435
Price
Three Pence

NEUMEYER & CO.,

Pianoforte Manufacturers.

The Trade only supplied.

Berlin: 7, Britzerstrasse, S.O.

London: 114, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

MANUFACTURED EXPRESSLY AND GUARANTEED TO STAND ALL CLIMATES.

VIEW OF THE INTERIOR CONSTRUCTION.

MANUFACTURED EXPRESSLY AND GUARANTEED TO STAND ALL CLIMATES.

PATENT DOUBLE OVERSTRUNG IRON-FRAMED TRICHORDS,

CHECK REPEATER ACTION.

Acknowledged by the Trade and Profession to be the best and Cheapest Instruments ever Manufactured.

NEWEST, MOST ARTISTIC, AND STYLISH DESIGNS. 66 DIFFERENT SPECIMENS.

New "strictly private" Illustrated Trade Catalogue post-free on application to London Address.

H. BROOKS & CO.'S

STEAM PIANOFORTE ACTION MANUFACTORIES,

31 TO 36, CUMBERLAND MARKET, REGENT'S PARK;

138, Hampstead Road; Lyme Street, Camden Town; and Bartholomew Road, London, N.W.

PATENT RISING MUSIC-STOOL

THIS Stool is an improvement beyond all others, and has been recommended by Professors and the Music Trade generally. Its mechanical appliance is simple, noiseless, and durable; enables the sitter of any age to raise or lower the elevation with one hand, without quitting the seat, and from its extreme steadiness and comfort for Pianoforte players is testified by Charles Hallé, Esq., to be "the most useful stool for public and private use," and is used by him in his public performances. The patronage thus given has greatly increased the demand, and justified a revision in its original charge. It can now be obtained at a considerable reduction in Walnut, Rosewood, or Mahogany, covered in any coloured Leather, Satin, Velvet, or other fancy material.

Price Lists and Illustrations free on application to us or to any Musicseller, through whom these Stools and other articles of Music Furniture can be obtained.

Black and Gold Stools and Canterburies in great variety.

HONOURABLE MENTION, 1862.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 435.—Vol. 20. MAY 1, 1879. Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

ORCHESTRAL FESTIVAL CONCERTS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Under the Patronage of T.H.R. the Prince and Princess of Wales, H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, H.R.H. the Prince Leopold, H.S.H. the Duke of Teck, His Excellency Count Karolyi.

ORCHESTRAL FESTIVAL CONCERTS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—May 5, 7, 8, and 12. Conductor, Herr HANS RICHTER. Leader, Herr HERMANN FRANKE. ORCHESTRA of 110 PERFORMERS. Vocalists, Frau Schuch-Proska (of the Royal Opera, Dresden), Fräulein Thekla Friedländer, Fräulein Augusta Redeker, Herr Ferdinand Jaeger (of the Imperial Opera, Vienna), and Herr Georg Henschel. Instrumentalists at the Chamber Concert: Herr Xaver Scharwenka (of Berlin) and Herr Grünfeld (of Vienna), pianoforte; Herr Franke and Herr Ernst Schiever, violin; M. Holländer, viola; M. Van Biene, violoncello. Conductors for the Chamber Concert, Sir Julius Benedict and Herr Theodor Frantzen. Reserved Stalls, 21s. and 10s. 6d.; Reserved Balcony, 21s. and 10s. 6d.; Unreserved Balcony, 5s.; Area and Gallery, 2s. 6d. Tickets and Programmes for each Concert are now ready, and can be obtained at the principal Musicsellers and Agents, and at Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall.

MR. RIDLEY PRENTICE'S CONCERT, at St. George's Hall, on WEDNESDAY MORNING, May 7. Messrs. Henry Holmes, Pezze, Parker, Shakespeare, and Ridley Prentice; Misses Lloyd and Alice Alsop and Madame Patey. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 3s., 1s., at the Hall; and of Mr. Ridley Prentice, 33, Kensington Square, W.

MADAME PATEY will sing Mr. RIDLEY PRENTICE'S Sacred Song "Evensong," at his Concert, on May 7.

MR. RIDLEY PRENTICE will play his favourite Pianoforte Pieces, "By the Sea" and "Harvest Home" (published by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.), at his Concert, May 7.

MISS ANNIE SINCLAIR'S BENEFIT CONCERT will take place on MONDAY EVENING, May 5, at the Langham Hall. Letters to be addressed to 17, Vicarage Road, Camberwell.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. MONDAY, May 5, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE, Esq., M.A., LL.D. (President of the Royal Society), "On Beats and Combination Tones."
9, Torrington Square, W.C. JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.

AN ORGAN RECITAL will be given at the Parish Church, St. Mary's, Whitechapel, by Mr. Henry Lister, Mus. Bac., on TUESDAY, May 13, commencing at 8 o'clock, when the following programme will be given:—1. Adagio, from Symphony in G minor, Spohr; 2. Sonata, No. 4, in B flat, Mendelssohn; 3. Andante, from Symphony in C minor, Beethoven; 4. Duet, vocal; 5. Finale to Symphony in E flat, Mozart; Organ Concerto, No. 6, Handel; Air with Variations from String Quartett in F, Haydn; Solo, vocal; Prelude and Fugue in A minor, Bach; Grand March in E flat, Smart. Admission free by ticket, to be obtained at Novello's, Queen Street, Cheapside; Cramer's, 46, Moorgate; and at 2, Canonbury Park South, N.

LAMBORN COCK & CO.—NOTICE is hereby given that all persons having any CLAIM whatsoever against the undersigned as Trustee of this Estate, either in respect of royalties or copyrights, or the assignment thereof, or Composers or Authors' claims of any kind whatsoever, or in respect of work done or goods sold and delivered at 63, New Bond Street, W., prior to the 25th day of March, 1879, are requested to send forthwith particulars of such claims to me, Frederick Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

LAMBORN COCK begs to announce his REMOVAL to 23, HOLLES STREET, OXFORD STREET, W.

NOTICE to the MUSIC TRADE.—The business of the late Mr. S. BREWER, Music Publisher and Pianoforte Manufacturer, of 23, Bishopsgate Street Within, and 14 and 15, Poultry, Cheapside, will be carried on as usual.
J. T. STONE,
W. FOOTTIT, } Executors.

SCRUTTON & CO.—NOTICE is hereby given that all persons having any CLAIM whatsoever against the undersigned as Trustee of this Estate, either in respect of royalties or copyrights, or the assignment thereof, or Composers or Authors' claims of any kind whatsoever, or in respect of work done or goods sold and delivered at 12, Little Marlborough Street, London, W., are requested to send forthwith particulars of such claims to me, Frederick Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W. Dated this 25th of April, 1879.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., General Printers. Books, Magazines, Newspapers, Illustrated Catalogues, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Music Printers. Illustrated Titles, Engraving, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Colour Printers. Show Cards, Labels, Almanacs, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Typographical Music Printers. Hymnals, Books for Church Festivals, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Lithographic Printers. Maps, Plans, Circulars, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Music Engravers and Printers. Oratorios, Operas, Cantatas, &c.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO. are prepared to forward estimates for the above or any other variety of printing. Works—69 & 70, Dean Street, Soho, W.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO., Publishers' and General Bookbinders. Estimates forwarded. Works—111 & 113, Southwark Street, S.E.

SOPRANO wishes for a RE-ENGAGEMENT in Church of England choir. Nine years' experience. Address, N. K., 13, Harpur Street, Red Lion Square, W.C.

BOYS.—TWO LEADING TREBLES WANTED for St. Ann's Church, South Lambeth. Salary £4 to £10, according to ability. Apply, by letter, to J. B. Sarjeant, Albion Lodge, Brockley, S.E.

ST. COLUMB'S CATHEDRAL, Londonderry.—Two ALTOS, salary £30 and £15, and a BASS, £20, are REQUIRED for the above Cathedral Church. Two services on Sundays, and a few weekday services during the year. Applicants should state occupation, as, if suitable, Vestry would try to get them employment in the city. Apply to Jas. Stewart, Hon. Secretary to Vestry, Shipquay Street, Derry.

BRISTOL CATHEDRAL.—LAY CLERK WANTED (TENOR VOICE). A Communicant. Age not above 30. Some knowledge of Cathedral music required. Salary, £60 per annum, with fees for extra services. Apply to the Rev. Precentor Hey, S. Augustine's Gate, Bristol.

TENOR WANTED, for the Choir of Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury. Surpliced choir. Two months' holiday in the year. Salary, £10. Apply to Dr. Bradford, at the Chapel, on Friday evenings, at 7.

NEW COLLEGE, OXFORD.—On FRIDAY, June 20, there will be a trial of voices of selected Candidates for TWO LAY CLERKSHIPS, one for a BARITONE, annual salary, £100; the other for a BASS, annual salary, £80. Duties and salary to begin at Michaelmas, 1879. Applications, stating the Candidates' age (which must not exceed 30 years) and experience, with references and testimonials as to moral character and musical ability, should reach C. E. Bickmore, Esq., New College, Oxford, not later than Wednesday, June 4. Travelling expenses allowed to Candidates selected for trial.

WANTED, a BASS for Christ Church, Woburn Square, W.C. Stipend, £10. Two services Sunday, Friday evening practice. Apply to H. Walmsley Little, Mus. Bac., 77, Millbrook Road, Brixton, S.W.

HEAD GARDENER, &c.—John Towill, gardener to the Earl of Glasgow, and Vicar-Choral (BASS) of the Cathedral of the Isles, Cumbrae, will shortly be DISENGAGED. Age 35. Eight years in present situation. Practical working gardener. BARITONE VOICE. Good musician. Competent to teach a choir or brass band if required. Long experience in church music, and for some years Bandmaster 2nd Bute Artillery. Address, Mr. Towill, The Lodge, The Garrison, Isle of Cumbrae, Greenock, N.B.

WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for a Church in Quebec. Salary, £60 per annum. In addition, a fair opening for private tuition. Apply to Rev. C. C. Hamilton, 17, Wilton Street, London, S.W.

WANTED, in June, an ORGANIST for S. Mark's, North Audley Street, W. Must be first-class accompanist and thorough choir-trainer. Usual Holy-day services. Fine three-manual organ. Salary, £60. Voluntary choir. Apply, inclosing testimonials, to the Rev. R. B. Dowling, 3, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—ENGAGEMENT WANTED. First-class testimonials. Must be good organ. A. B., 51, Gibson Square, N.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano).
Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS FANNY CHATFIELD (Soprano).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, Lessons, &c., 11, St. Ann's Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

MRS. WARREN (Soprano).
Of Mr. C. Hallé's Concerts. For Oratorio or other Concerts, address, 150, Radnor Street, Hulme, Manchester.
Lessons in Singing. References—C. Hallé, Esq., and E. Hecht, Esq.

MISS ADA MOORE (Soprano) and MISS MARIE MOORE (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 95, Bristol Street, Manchester; or Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

MRS. DAGLISH (Soprano).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Newark, Notts. Reference, S. Reay, Esq., Mus. Bac., Newark, Notts.

MISS ROSA BAILEY (Mezzo-Soprano Vocalist).
Of the Bath, Clifton, and Bristol Concerts.
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, &c., 15, Brigstocke Road, Bristol.

MADAME PATTIE KEATE (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 66, Fentiman Road, S.W., or City Arms Hotel, Bristol.

MISS KERSHAW (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Clarksfield Terrace, Lees, Manchester.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Soirées, Dinners, &c., address, 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimore Square, S.E.

MR. GEORGE COX (Tenor).
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 44, Park Place, Bayswater, W.

MR. S. FORD (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Mander Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Sig. Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).
12, Berners Street, W.

MR. H. PIERCEY (Tenor).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, care of Truslove and O'Neill, 36, Union Passage, Birmingham.

MR. GREENHILL (Tenor).
7, Park Place, Regent's Park.

MR. THOS. NETTLESHIP (Baritone).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 44, Holland Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. HENRY POPE (Bass).
16, Holtham Road, Abbey Road, N.W.

MR. D. SUTTON SHEPLEY (Bass).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., apply 1, Hope Street, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. W. MORTON (Bass).
(Leeds Parish Church).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 3, St. Helen's Terrace, Hunslet, Leeds.

MR. RICKARD (Bass).
Of the Schubert Society's Concerts, and Pupil of Signor Ciro Pinsuti.
For Oratorios and Concerts, address, King Cross, Halifax, Yorkshire.

MR. THORNTON WOOD (Bass).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 2, Hallfield Place, Bradford, Yorkshire.

FOR ORATORIO OR OTHER CONCERTS, &c.,
MADAME CROSS LAVERS,
Soprano;
Address, 7, Mornington Crescent, N.W.
MR. HENRY CROSS,
Bass.
Address, St. Andrew's, Wells Street, W.; or 7, Mornington Crescent.

MR. W. F. ILLINGWORTH (Solo Pianist).
From the Conservatoire, Leipsic.
Address, 33, St. James's Road, Halifax, Yorkshire.

HERR W. SCHMIDT (Solo Pianist).
From the Conservatoire, Cologne.
For Concerts, address, W. S., Messrs. Robert Cocks and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London, W.

MRS. BUCKNALL-EYRE, A.R.A.M., begs to intimate to her Pupils and Friends that her address in future will be 41, Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, W. At home on Saturday afternoons, May 10 and 17.

MR. ALFRED J. EYRE has removed to 41, Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, W.

MR. H. T. BYWATER (TENOR) is OPEN to ENGAGEMENTS for ORATORIOS and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS. Address, 36, St. Germain's Road, Forest Hill, London, S.E.; or The Retreat, St. Mark's Road, Wolverhampton.

MR. FAULKNER LEIGH requests that all communications respecting Engagements may now be addressed to his new address, No. 6, Montagu Place, Montagu Square, London, W.

MR. H. WALMSLEY LITTLE, Mus. Bac., Oxon., A.R.A. Mus., begs to inform his Friends and Pupils that he has removed to 77, Wickwood Terrace, Millbrook Road, Brixton, S.W.

MR. FREDERICK G. EDWARDS (Organist and Director of the Choir of Christ Church, Westminster Bridge Road) has REMOVED to 140, Stockwell Road, S.W.

SIGNORINA MAZZUCATO (holding certificate of the Royal Conservatoire, Milan) gives LESSONS in SINGING, either at pupil's house or at her residence, 31, Westbourne Park Terrace, W.

MADAME BEATI, Professor of Singing, gives LESSONS in Croydon and the neighbourhood. Schools attended. For references and terms, apply to Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. C. STIEBLER COOK, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, five years Music and Choir Master at Uppingham School. For PIANO and HARMONY LESSONS, address, 17, Keppel St., Russell Square, W.C. Schools attended. Choirs conducted.

J. W. HINTON, M.A., Mus. D., continues to Orchestrate or Revise Compositions. Harmony or Counterpoint by post, if desired. Address, care of Messrs. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thorough-bass, and Modulation," "Hiles' Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives Lessons in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., by post.

MR. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. B., Oxon., F.C.O., L. Mus., T.C.L., PREPARES CANDIDATES for Musical Examinations; also gives lessons in Harmony, &c., by post. Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address, Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

TO MUSICAL STUDENTS.—GENTLEMEN who are studying for the Profession, and who may be desirous of living a few miles from town, can be received into a private family, with board and residence, upon moderate terms.—Address, F. W., 87, Parrock Street, Gravesend.

MR. S. CORBETT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., L. Mus., PREPARES CANDIDATES through post for Musical Examinations. Twenty-six pupils have passed various musical examinations this year. Address, Bridgnorth, Salop.

MR. CHARLES TREW (Professor at the London Academy of Music) begs to announce that he holds CLASSES at his residence, for ladies and gentlemen wishing to study Harmony, Counterpoint, and Composition. Fee, One Guinea per quarter. 35, Great Portland Street, W.

MR. J. ROBERTSON MURRAY gives LESSONS on the ORGAN, the PIANO, and also in SINGING. Address, 18, Aldersgate Street, E.C.

DR. ALLISON instructed by post Candidates who passed Mus. Bac., Oxon. (1878); Mus. Bac., Cantab.; F.C.O. (1879) and T.C.L. (1879) examinations. 206, Marylebone Road, London.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park. MUSIC SCHOOL: Head Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS to be competed for by pupils of not less than one year's standing in the Music School will be awarded by Professor Macfarren, of which due notice will be given in the papers.
FRANCIS J. HOLLAND, Chairman.
Trinity Term begins Friday, May 2.

A GENTLEMAN is desirous of giving LESSONS by post in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. References from present pupils if desired. Terms very moderate. Address, Magister, Musical Times Office, 1, Berners Street, London, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE or INSTRUCTION.—Three Manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by the Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, which are strictly inclusive, on application at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.
Sole Agent for the HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. The cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE, on a fine new instrument with 2 manuals, 16 stops, and full compass of bourdon pedals. Terms (strictly inclusive), one shilling per hour, at the Organ Studio, 15, Southampton Street, Strand, W.C.

ORGAN LESSONS or PRACTICE, 140, STRAND (opposite the Gaiety, and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W.), on fine two-manual C ORGANS (Hill and Son). Pedalling specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 140, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN LESSONS and PRACTICE on a fine new Instrument, with 2 manuals, 15 stops, 2½ octaves of pedals, with bourdons throughout. Terms moderate. Allen's Musical Instrument Warehouse, 17, Percy Street, Bedford Square, W. Lessons and Practice on other Instruments also.

MR. G. F. GEAUSSENT, Organist of the Parish Church, Lee, Blackheath, and Conductor of the Blackheath Musical Society, will shortly have a VACANCY for a well-educated gentlemanly Youth as RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL. Great advantages offered. Large new three-manual organ. Cathedral service, and paid choir. Frequent Concerts and Recitals. Every home comfort. Residence in best part of the neighbourhood. Pupil might hold an appointment. Full particulars on application to 6, Park Place, Blackheath.

ORGANIST WANTED for an English Church in Germany. Small salary, or equivalent, to a young gentleman or lady, with advantages for the study of languages and music. Apply to Chaplain, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED, by a Gentleman of several years' experience. Excellent testimonials and references. Large town preferred. Address, L. M. Z., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of seven years' experience, desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT immediately. Scotland preferred. Has been used to Scotch service. First-class testimonials. Address, H. P. Dixon, Organist, Ogbourn St. George, Marlborough, Wilts.

LONDON ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, of some years' experience, is open to RE-ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Good testimonials and references. Address, Y. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. HORACE BUTTERY (for 13 years Organist and Choirmaster of S. Mary's, Boltons, West Brompton) is open to a similar ENGAGEMENT. 173, Piccadilly, W.

MR. J. ROBERTSON MURRAY, Choirmaster of the London Church Choir Association, is desirous of obtaining an APPOINTMENT as CHOIRMASTER to a Church in London. Address, 3, Hungerford Road, Camden Road, N.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is open to RE-ENGAGEMENT in London. Address, G. E., 51, Cumberland Street, S.W.

A CLERGYMAN'S SON will give his services as ORGANIST on a week evening, or on a Sunday afternoon, if in the neighbourhood of Ealing, in return for the use of the organ for practice. Address, F. E. B., 3, West Kensington Terrace, London, W.

ORGANIST is open to an ENGAGEMENT at a ROMAN CATHOLIC Church in London or suburbs. Salary no object. Address, S. P. X., Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, Cheapside.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman of many years' experience as above, a good sight-reader, theorist, accompanist, and conductor, seeks an ENGAGEMENT in the S.E. district. High testimonials as to ability and character. Address, Organist, 30, South Street, Greenwich.

A WELL-KNOWN ORGANIST will shortly be open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT. The neighbourhood of Kensington preferred. Apply, by letter, to J. H. C., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman requires a RE-ENGAGEMENT as above or to deputise. Address, H. A. S., 29, Grayshot Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

HONORARY ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. A Gentleman of experience (TENOR VOICE) offers free service where good singing is desired. Would deputise. "Choir," 444, Oxford Street, W.

A PROFESSIONAL ORGANIST of many years' experience, and successful conductor of several Choral Societies, having some spare time, wishes to meet with ENGAGEMENTS, either to act as Accompanist to a Glee Party, to conduct a Choral Society, or to organise Concerts in the suburbs. Address, T. P. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

WANTED, a PIANIST to accompany an Entertainer. Age under 35, and one who can sing preferred. Apply only by letter, to J. B., 66, Colvestone Crescent, West Hackney, E.

WANTED, a PIANOFORTE TUNER of first-class ability and character. Apply to Mr. Henry Farmer, Nottingham.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER WANTED for a few days every three or four months, in Norfolk. State qualification, terms, &c., to A. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by a Young Man, a SITUATION in a Music House, where he would have an opportunity of learning to tune. Plays creditably on the Organ, Piano, and Harmonium, and understands the principles of Tuning. Would give his services for board and lodging. Address, A. B., 17, Elm Grove Terrace, Salisbury.

WANTED, by a Young Man (23), a SITUATION as JUNIOR TUNER. Can repair and play well. Address, G. C. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by a Young Man (age 21), SITUATION as TUNER. Used to sheet trade and small goods. Moderate salary. Address, B. S., care of Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A YOUNG MAN, from large firm, desires whole or part ENGAGEMENT as TUNER and REPAIRER. Wages from 21s. Musicus, 29, Great Western Terrace, Bayswater.

A TUNER, with knowledge of Repairing, would be glad to meet with an ENGAGEMENT for three days per week, in or near London. Address, G. Mills, 29, Emmott Street, Mile End, E.

PIANOFORTE TUNER open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT in town or country. Address, C. C., 14, Richford Street, Hammersmith.

TUNER. — RE-ENGAGEMENT by a steady respectable Man. Understands harmoniums. Good references. Address, Tuner, 33, Smithdown Road, Liverpool.

MUSIC BUSINESS. — An APPRENTICE WANTED to the above business, where he will gain a thorough knowledge of the Counter Trade, and will also be taught Pianoforte Tuning and Repairing. For particulars, apply, Mr. F. Davis, Pianoforte Saloon, Minster Street, Reading.

WANTED in a Music Warehouse, in a fashionable watering place, a LADY ASSISTANT, not under 26 years. Must be experienced. Apply, by letter, to Messrs. Waddington, Music Warehouse, 43, Stonegate, York.

WANTED, a Young Man of good address (about 21), with a thorough knowledge of the music trade, as ASSISTANT in a good Book, Stationery, and Music Depôt in a fashionable watering place. Must be thoroughly trustworthy and active. Will have an opportunity of learning the Book and Stationery trade. Address, stating salary required, reference, &c., D. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

RE-ENGAGEMENT REQUIRED by a Young Lady in Music Warehouse. Good bookkeeper and saleswoman. Address, M. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for a Youth aged 14, a SITUATION in a Music Warehouse, where he would obtain general knowledge of the trade, and have opportunities of continuing his studies. Intelligent, good education. Plays piano fairly. Address, Mr. Klee, Nassau Cottage, Quest Hills, Malvern.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE. Seventeen years' lease. Average net profits £29 4s. 6d. monthly. Can let off two-thirds of rent. Main road. Three railways to City. Trade improving. Active partner would remain six months. Price, stock at valuation, lease, and goodwill, about £1,200. Satisfactory reasons for disposal. H. and H., 7, Haine Terrace, Kilburn, N.W.

ORGANIST will lend Organ (250 pipes, pedals, &c.) and preside at same for £15 per annum. Church or chapel services. Organ may be purchased by instalments. H., 2, Belmont Street, Chalk Farm Road, N.W.

W. MARRIOTT & SONS, Music Publishers, 296, Oxford Street, London. Universal Music Warehouse. Authors' Works Engraved, Printed, and Published in the best style at the most moderate charges. Estimates on application.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED with despatch on moderate terms. Quotations given on receipt of MSS.
London: B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

TO COMPOSERS.—MUSIC PRINTED and PUBLISHED in the best style at unusually low prices. Estimates free on receipt of MSS. The best work and the very lowest charges. London: Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, W.

NEW MUSIC PRINTING PROCESS. Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types. 50 per cent. cheaper Patent Paper Type Company, 8A, Red Lion Square, London, W.C.

12S. WORTH of MUSIC for One Shilling, post-free for fifteen stamps, soiled and surplus stock.
James Smith and Son, 76, 74, and 72, Lord Street, Liverpool.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK. Some chemists and stationers for extra profit deceive you. Genuine label, "Daughter of late John Bond." Works: 75, Southgate Road, N. No heating required.

CAUTION.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE HAIR RESTORER for the MILLION. In bottles at 6d., 1s., and 2s. It is nourishing, strengthening, and developing. Genuine label has the words, "Prepared by the daughter of the late John Bond, the great marking-ink maker." Trade mark, Crystal Palace.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the Music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED, APRIL, 1866.

THE ENGLISH GLEE UNION.

Mr. H. ASHTON (Alto). Mr. FRED. H. COZENS (First Tenor and Pianist).

Mr. FOUNTAIN MEEN (Second Tenor and Pianist). Mr. ALBERT HUBBARD (Bass).

ASSISTED BY

Madame ASHTON (Soprano).

For terms, either separately or collectively, address, Mr. H. ASHTON, Secretary, Ivy House, Stamford Hill, London, N.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS. — Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms highly advantageous.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row.

232ND STARR-BOWKETT BUILDING SOCIETY.

NEXT APPROPRIATION, MAY 1, 1879.

Five hundred Members are to Constitute this Society, who contribute about £35 per week. These contributions are balloted to the members successively (£100 to £400), free of interest, as loans to purchase property, and after having been lent in that manner are to be returned to the members pro ratâ, less working expenses. Subscriptions, 6d. per week per share of £100. Entrance fee, 1s. per share.

EDMUND DREW, Secretary.

27, Lyall Road, Bow, London.

THE leading Continental House.—MILLEREAU'S BAND INSTRUMENTS. Highest class of excellence for Artists' Cornets, Raoux French Horns, Clarionets, Cylind. Boehm Flutes, &c. Catalogues free. 66, Rue d'Angoulême, Paris.

W. D. CUBITT (Twenty years Manager to S. A. Chappell), MAKER and IMPORTER of BAND INSTRUMENTS to H.M. ARMY, NAVY, &c., is prepared to supply Instruments on the latest models, made expressly for Militia, Volunteer, Factory, School-Bands, &c., at greatly reduced prices. Price list and terms on application to W. D. Cubitt and Son, 3, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

MUSIC STRINGS—WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

J. P. GUIVIER AND CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

ALL KINDS OF MUSIC STRINGS FOR ALL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Sole Depot for Signor ANDREA RUFFINI'S (of Naples) Celebrated Strings for Soloists, manufactured by him on a system invented by Mons. J. B. VUILLAUME, of Paris.

Sole Agent for CHARLES ALBERT'S (of Philadelphia, U.S.) new Patent Improved Chin Rest; also his improved String Gauge.

25, SHERWOOD STREET, REGENT CIRCUS, PICCADILLY.

Price List free on application.

All kinds of strings covered in a superior manner on powerful machines made on the best principle with all modern improvements.

The only Gold Medal for Wind Instruments with Keys, in the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878, was unanimousiy awarded by the Jury to Messrs. P. GOUMAS & CO., for the fine quality of tone and finish of their Instruments.

SPECIAL MANUFACTORY OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR CLARIONETS, FLUTES, PICCOLOS, OBOES, BASSOONS, COR ANGLAIS, FLAGEOLETS, AND SAXOPHONES.

P. GOUMAS & CO.

(Late BUFFET, CRAMPON & Co.),

ESTABLISHED 1830.

Nine Prize Medals have been awarded to GOUMAS & Co. for general excellence and improvements in the Manufacture of Wind Instruments with Keys.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Wood Wind Instruments for Military Bands, Musical Instrument Makers to Her Majesty's Army and Navy, and to the Armies, Navies, and Conservatoires of France, Belgium, Italy, Russia, Austria, Spain, America, &c.

Manufactory at Mantes (Seine et Oise), France. Paris: Passage du Grand Cerf, 18 et 20.

LONDON: 5, MADDOX STREET, REGENT STREET.

Price Lists sent free on application.

LONDON AGENTS,

MESSRS. MOUTRIE AND SON,

PIANOFORTE SALOON,

55, BAKER STREET, LONDON, W.

MR. J. HAMILTON begs to inform Organists, Organ Students, and others that the Pedals and Action for attachment to Pianofortes manufactured by him can be inspected and ordered at the above address.

A set of Straight Pedals, 30 notes (C to F), with action and printed instructions, "How to Attach," price £4 10s. Or Radiating and Concave Pedal Board, with action, price £5 10s.

Orders accompanied with Cheque or P.O. Order will receive immediate attention. Send for prices to the Profession and Trade.

Address, J. HAMILTON, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing Class Tutor, 12th ed., 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

RUSSELL'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

CONCERTINAS, Harmoniums, Organ Accordions, Flutinas, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Violins, Cornets, Saxhorns, Clarionets, Flageolets, Guitars, Banjos, Musical Boxes, Strings, &c. Self-instruction Books. Instruments repaired or exchanged. Price Lists free. J. Russell, 158, Goswell Road, Clerkenwell, London.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES.—150 by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Allison, &c., from 4 guineas upwards. HARMONIUMS (New), from £5, in Walnut or Mahogany cases. Largest stock of Pianos and Harmoniums in London at Kelly and Co.'s, 11, Charles Street, Middlesex Hospital. Trade supplied.

TO SELL MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS of every description, also Libraries of Music, Music Plates and Copyrights, Stock-in-Trade, &c., SALE (devoted exclusively to this class of property) held every month. Single instruments inserted. Consignments received at any time. Puttick and Simpson, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C. [Established, 1794.]

BORD'S PIANOS.

THESE CELEBRATED PIANOS ON SALE OR HIRE, AND ON THE EASY PURCHASE SYSTEM
AT
15, SOUTHAMPTON STREET, STRAND, W.C.
(Illustrated Lists Free.)

MALEY, YOUNG & OLDKNOW,

ORGAN-BUILDERS,

KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

Organs rebuilt to suit any position, repaired, enlarged, tuned, and revoiced in any part of the kingdom, at very moderate charges.
Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first class.
Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of organs.
N.B.—New and second-hand organs for sale. Inspection invited.

FOR SALE, several small Second-hand ORGANS, suitable for small places of worship. Apply to Mr. J. Porritt, Organ Builder, Leicester.

A. MONK, ORGAN BUILDER.—Organs built to any design, to suit any position, and for Foreign Climates, for Churches, Chapels, Chambers, &c. All guaranteed superior Organs, at moderate prices. 100-Guinea Organs, 2 CC manuals, 10 stops, 16-feet pedal pipes. 200 guineas, 16 stops. 300 guineas, 3 manuals, 21 stops. 400 guineas, 3 manuals, 27 stops. 600 guineas, 36 stops. 1,000 guineas, 4 manuals, 50 stops. Larger or smaller Organs built to any Specification. Price-list and Estimates sent free. Old Organs rebuilt. Additions, Tunings, &c. Sussex Terrace, Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.

ORGANS for SALE or HIRE.—8 stop Organ with 16 feet pedal pipes; 3 stop Organ, swell and pedals; 2 stop Organ; all in good condition, taken in exchange, to be sold cheap. A. Monk, Sussex Terrace, Gt. College St., Camden Town, London, N.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS, with Organ Action, fitted complete, £4 10s. F. Haywood, 179, Drummond Street, N.W.

THE INSTANTANEOUS CIPHER CURE.—This little Spring can be affixed to the Keyboard of an Organ or Harmonium in less than a minute, and will instantly remedy ordinary ciphering caused by damp. "A contrivance so ingenious should be in every organist's possession."—J. W. HINTON, M.A., Mus. Doc., late Professor of the Organ, Trinity College, London. In boxes of 1 dozen, 6d. each. Window Cards for the Trade. London: Messrs. WEEKES & Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

THE ORGAN now in Westminster Chapel, James Street, Buckingham Gate, for SALE. To be seen by applying to the Chapel-keeper. For particulars apply to R. J. Jenner, 33, St. James's Street, Piccadilly, London, S.W.

CC ORGAN for SALE at a very low price. Three Manuals. For particulars and price, apply, T. S. Jones, Organ Builder, 25, Pentonville Hill, N.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, by WREN. Twenty-two stops, gilt front pipes, &c.; in first-class condition. Price £240. Apply, W. E. Richardson, Organ Builder, Milton Street, Hulme, Manchester.

ORGAN, price £85. A Bargain. Two manuals, 11 speaking stops, 2 couplers and bourdon, full compass of pedals. Mahogany case, speaking pipes in front. One composition pedal on great. M., 12, Enmore Park, Norwood Junction.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE, three manuals and separate bourdon pedals; compass CC to G; great organ, 5 stops; swell organ, 4 stops; choir organ, 4 stops; 2 composition pedals to great, and 2 to swell. Oak case with spotted metal front. Apply to A. Hunter, 379, Kennington Road, S.E.

FOR SALE.—An American ORGAN, by G. WOODS and Co. Two rows of keys, 16 stops, walnut case. Cost £135. To be sold for 70 guineas. The instrument is nearly new and in perfect order. Address, Mr. H. A. Harding, Organist, Sidmouth.

ORGAN HARMONIUM, £35. Two manuals. Fine organ tone. Dulciana stops, bourdon on full compass pedals, Walnut case, 2 couplers, foot and hand blower. One manual with pedals, 2½ rows of reeds, £21. Manufactured for organ practice by W. J. ROBERTSON, 107, Tottenham Road, Kingsland, London, N. Lists free, with extracts of letters from organists.

GRAND ORGAN for SALE, built by the celebrated M. CAVAILLÉ-COLL, of Paris, in richly carved oak case designed by Mr. Simil, in the Louis XVI. style, having two manuals, complete set of pedals, and 16 stops.

MR. GEORGE GOULDSMITH will include the above in the Sale by Auction of FURNITURE, at No. 25, Rutland Gate, on FRIDAY, May 2, 1879. Auction and Estate Offices, 2, Pont Street, Belgrave Square, S.W.

VIOLINS, TENORS, &c.—Beautiful copies of great makers, fine tone, at very moderate prices. Particulars from H. Tomson, High Street, Forest Hill, London.

ORGAN PEDALS. — Two-and-half Octaves of ORGAN PEDALS for affixing to a PIANOFORTE. These were made by one of the first Organ Builders, and are in perfect repair. They will now be sold considerably under the original price, being no more required. May be seen at 48, Finborough Road, S.W.

VIOLINS, &c., by CRASKE, some of them fifty years old, and equal to Straduarius and Guarnerius, except in name only. The whole of this great maker's instruments on SALE at Edward Crompton's, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester. Will be sent for trial on receipt of satisfactory reference.

VIOLIN for SALE.—Amateurs, Collectors, and others, wishing to possess a very fine instrument of the old Italian school, an opportunity now presents itself for so doing. This Violin is over 270 years old, rich in tone, and in fine preservation. Can be seen and tried any day, except Tuesday and Thursday, between the hours of 12 and 4 p.m., at the offices of J. T. Goodban, Esq., 12, Angel Court, Throgmorton Street, Bank, E.C. Price 100 guineas.

CROGER'S Celebrated VIOLIN STRINGS are used by Leading Artists. 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d. per Bundle of 30 Rings. Italian Solo Strings, 6s. per dozen. R. Croger, 184, Whitechapel Road, London.

ANTHEMS for ASCENSIONTIDE.

Awake up my glory	M. Wise	3d.
King all glorious	J. Barnby	6d.
Leave us not, neither forsake us	J. Stainer	1½d.
Lift up your heads	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O how amiable	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lord our Governor	H. Gadsby	3d.
O Lord our Governor	Marcello	1½d.
O risen Lord	J. Barnby	1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	J. Baptiste Calkin	3d.
Rejoice in the Lord	Sir Geo. Elvey	1½d.

WHITSUNTIDE.

As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
Come, Holy Ghost	T. Attwood	1½d.
Come, Holy Ghost	J. L. Hatton	3d.
If ye love Me	Dr. C. S. Heap	1½d.
If ye love Me	W. H. Monk	1½d.
If ye love Me	Tallis	1½d.
O Holy Ghost, into our minds	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.

TRINITYTIDE.

Blessing and glory	Dr. Boyce	1½d.
O Father blest	J. Barnby	3d.
Blessed is the man	Sir John Goss	4d.
Grant, O Lord	Mozart	1½d.
How goodly are Thy tents	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
How lovely are Thy dwellings	Spohr	1½d.
I know that the Lord is great	Sir F. Ouseley	1½d.
In Jewry is God known	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	1½d.
I will magnify	J. Shaw	3d.
I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
I will sing unto the Lord	H. Wareing	3d.
Lord, we pray Thee	Dr. Roberts	1½d.
O taste and see	Sir J. Goss	3d.
O taste and see	A. Sullivan	1½d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	J. Shaw	3d.
The Lord is my Shepherd	G. A. Macfarren	1½d.
The Lord will comfort Zion	Dr. H. Hiles	6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR ASCENSIONTIDE.

God goeth up with shouting.

A SACRED CANTATA
COMPOSED BY
J. S. BACH.

The Pianoforte Accompaniment arranged by ROBERT FRANZ. The English words translated from the German and adapted by the Rev. W. H. MILMAN, M.A.
One Shilling.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

COME, HOLY GHOST

ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNTIDE
BY
J. L. HATTON.
Octavo, 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

I WILL GREATLY REJOICE in the LORD. Anthem for Whitsuntide. By BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
BACH, J. S.—Suite in D, arranged for Piano solo by R. Kleinmichel	4	0
BEETHOVEN, L. V.—Contra-Tänze, arranged for Piano solo by Isidor Seiss	3	0
BÖDECKER, L.—Three Short Sonatas for Piano. Op. 11. Nos. 1 and 2 ... ... each	3	0
No. 3	2	0
BRAHMS, JOH.—Studies for Piano.
No. 3. Presto, by J. S. Bach. (First arrangement)	2	0
No. 4. Presto, by J. S. Bach. (Second arrangement) ...	2	0
No. 5. Chaconne, by J. S. Bach. (For the left hand alone)...	4	0
BRUCH, MAX.—Violin Concerto. Op. 26. Arranged as Piano duet	10	0
CONRADI, A.—Easy Trio for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 49	10	0
GASSMANN, A.—Aux Bords de la Mer. A brilliant and characteristic piece for Piano. Op. 14	4	0
GIESE, TH.—Frohe Laune (Bonne Humeur), for Piano ...	2	0
GOLDMARK, C.—Quintett, for two Violins, Viola, Violoncello, and Piano. Op. 30	40	0
HANDEL, G. F.—Recitative and Air for Soprano, with Flute obbligato, from "L'Allegro," with an accompaniment for Piano by Rob. Franz	5	0
HAMERIK, A.—Jüdische, Trilogie, for Orchestra. Full score	14	0
HUBER, HANS.—Römischer Carneval. Humoreske for full Orchestra. Full score	10	0
Orchestral parts	22	0
JUNGMANN, A.—Beim Fensterl'n. Sérénade montagnarde, for Piano. Op. 340. No. 1	2	0
—— Abschied (l'Adieu), for Piano. Op. 340. No. 2	2	0
—— Matrosengesang, for Piano. Op. 340. No. 3	2	0
—— Sängerfahrt, for Piano. Op. 340. No. 4	2	0
—— Emmy, for Piano. Op. 340. No. 5	2	0
—— Herzensschläge, for Piano. Op. 340. No. 6	2	0
—— Mein liebes Heimathland, for Piano. Op. 342	3	0
KAFKA, JOH.—Nachtigallen Maigesang. Melodic Piece for Piano. Op. 182	3	0
—— Nächtliche Wacht. Nocturno for Piano. Op. 183... ...	3	0
—— Edelweiss-Sträusschen. Impromptu for Piano. Op. 184...	3	0
KIRCHNER, TH.—Dorfgeschichten. Fourteen Pieces for Piano. Op. 39. Books 1 and 2 ... ... each	7	0
—— Serenade for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello	10	0
KLEINMICHEL, R.—Valse Caprice for Piano. Op. 39 ...	3	0
—— Two Melodies for Piano. Op. 40	3	0
—— Polonaise for Piano. Op. 41	4	0
—— Six Sonatinas for Piano duet, quite easy, without octaves. Op. 43. Nos. 1—6 ... ... each, from 3 0 to	5	0
—— Silhouetten. Twelve easy Pieces for Piano. Op. 44. Books 1 and 2 ... ... each	6	0
LEITERT, GEO.—Romanze for Piano. Op. 44	2	0
LISZT, F.—Transcriptions for Piano, from E. Lassen's Music to Hebbel's Nibelungen and Goethe's Faust. Book I. ...	5	0
Book II.	4	0
Book III.	7	0
LÖW, J.—Im Rosenthal. Idylle for Piano. Op. 346	2	0
—— Im Circus. Polka Caprice for Piano. Op. 351	3	0
MOZART, W. A.—Twenty-one Andantes from his Concertos, arranged for Piano and Harmonium, by D. L. Besozzi each 5 0 to	7	0
—— Andante, from the Sonata for two Pianos, arranged for Piano and Harmonium, by D. L. Besozzi	5	0
MÜLLER-BERGHAUS, C.—First Quartett for two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello. Op. 11	10	0
—— Second Quartett for two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello. Op. 12	10	0
RAFF, J.—Valse brillante for Piano duet. Op. 156	6	0
RUBINSTEIN, A.—Caprice russe, for Piano. Op. 102... ...	12	0
—— Sérénade russe, for Piano	3	0
SAINT-SAENS, C.—Second Symphony in A minor. Op. 35. Full score ... ... net	12	0
Orchestral parts ... ... net	25	0
SCHOLZ, B.—Tanz im Lager, from his opera "Zieten 'sche Husaren." Piano duet. Op. 30	4	0
SCHUMACHER, P.—Symphony (Serenade), D minor. Piano duet. Op. 8	16	0
SCHUMANN, ROB.—"Manfred." Op. 115. Fragments d'Orchestre. Full score ... ... net	3	0
Orchestral parts ... ... net	5	0
SPINDLER, FR.—Spinnrädchen. Op. 164. For orchestra. Parts ... ... net	3	0
WEBER, F.—Easy Trio in G major, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 13...	7	0
WOLFRUM, P.—Sonate in B minor, for Organ. Op. 1 ...	5	0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published. Price 10s. 6d.

SUITE

PRELUDE, MAZURKA, SCHERZO, AND MARCH FOR PIANOFORTE,

COMPOSED BY

AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

Op. 22.

Or singly:—

No. 1. Prelude ... ... 3s. | No. 3. Scherzo ... ... 4s.
„ 2. Mazurka ... ... 3s. | „ 4. March ... ... 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD TOURS. In one volume, Cloth, gilt, price 5s.; or in two parts, in Paper covers, 2s. each; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d. each.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, with ad lib. accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, and BASS, without accompaniment. Price, in Paper covers, 1s.; in Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; or twelve numbers divided as follows, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 41.
1. In the woods ... ...
2. O fly with me ... ...
3. One night there came ...
4. Over the grave ... ...
5. May song ... ...
6. On the sea ... ...

Op. 48.
7. The first day of Spring ...
8. The primrose ... ...
9. The celebration of Spring
10. The lark's song ... ...
11. Morning Prayer (The deep repose of night) ...
12. Autumn song ... ...

Op. 59.
13. The woods ... ...
14. Early Spring ... ...
15. Departure (O hills, O vales)
16. The nightingale ... ...
17. The vale of rest ... ...
18. Hunting song ... ...

Op. 88.
19. For the New Year ...
20. The happy lover ... ...
21. The shepherd's song ...
22. The wood minstrels ...
23. The victors' return ...
24. The wandering minstrel...

Op. 100.
25. Remembrance ... ...
26. Praise of Spring ... ...
27. Spring song ... ...
28. In the forest ... ...

TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS (S.A.T.B), complete. Edited and translated into the Tonic Sol-fa Notation. By W. G. MCNAUGHT. Price 1s., or 21 numbers at 1d. each.

MENDELSSOHN'S FOUR-PART SONGS for MEN'S VOICES, with ad lib. Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Price, in Paper covers, 2s.; in Paper boards, 2s. 6d; or twenty-one numbers, price Three Halfpence each.

Op. 50.
29. Turkish drinking song.
30. The hunter's farewell.
31. Summer song.
32. On the water.
33. Love and wine.
34. Wanderer's song.

Op. 75.
35. The merry wayfarer.
36. Serenade.
37. Eastern drinking song.
38. Farewell meeting.

Op. 76.
39. Song of the worthy man.
40. The Rhine.
41. 'Tis the song whose spirit.
42. Students' parting song.

Op. 120.
43. A festal greeting.
44. Gipsy song.
45. Hunting song (Waken, lords).
46. Land of beauty.
47. The recompense.
48. Night song.
49. The foundation-day festival.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Novello, Ewer and Co.'s only Complete and Uniform Edition of MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the Original Words. Octavo, One Shilling; or cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English Words. Octavo. Paper covers, 2s.; cloth, gilt edges, 4s.

MENDELSSOHN'S THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the Original Words. Folio Edition, complete, 2s. 6d.; or singly, 1s. 6d. each, net.

1. I would that my love.
2. The passage bird.
3. Greeting.
4. Autumn song.
5. O wert thou in the cauld blast.
6. The maybells and the flowers.
7. My bark is bounding.
8. Can I light-hearted be?
9. Evening song.
10. Zuleika and Hassan.
11. The Sabbath morn.
12. The harvest field.
13. Song from Ruy Blas.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

The only complete Edition.

MENDELSSOHN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS. Complete in Five Vols. Octavo, paper cover, each 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, each 6s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MENDELSSOHN'S PIANOFORTE WORKS. Vol. V. Octavo. Paper cover, 4s.; cloth gilt, 6s.

CONTENTS.

Three Preludes. Op. 104 A.
„ Studies. Op. 104 B.
Sonata. Op. 105.
„ Op. 106.
Album Blatt. Op. 117.
Capriccio. Op. 118.
Perpetuum Mobile. Op. 119.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S

ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION OF

OPERAS

Edited, Corrected according to the Original Scores, and Translated into English, by Natalia Macfarren, Rev. J. Troutbeck, and Berthold Tours.

Price 2s. 6d. each; or in scarlet cloth, 4s.

	Paper covers.	Scarlet cloth.
AUBER.	s. d.	s. d.
FRA DIAVOLO. French and English words	2 6	4 0
MASANIELLO. French and English words	3 6	5 0
BEETHOVEN.
FIDELIO. German and English words..	2 6	4 0
BELLINI.
NORMA. Italian and English words ..	2 6	4 0
LA SONNAMBULA. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
I PURITANI. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
DONIZETTI.
LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
LUCREZIA BORGIA. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
FLOTOW.
MARTHA. German and English words	2 6	4 0
GLUCK.
IPHIGENIA IN AULIS. French and English words	3 0	5 0
IPHIGENIA IN TAURIS. French and English words	2 6	4 0
MEYERBEER.
L'ETOILE DU NORD. Italian and English words	5 0	7 6
MOZART.
DON GIOVANNI. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
LE NOZZE DI FIGARO. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
DIE ZAUBERFLŒTE. German and English words	2 6	4 0
IL SERAGLIO. German and English words	2 6	4 0
ROSSINI.
IL BARBIERE. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
GUILLAUME TELL. French and English words	5 0	7 6
VERDI.
IL TROVATORE. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
RIGOLETTO. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
LA TRAVIATA. Italian and English words	2 6	4 0
ERNANI. Italian and English words ..	2 6	4 0
WAGNER.
TANNHÄUSER. German and English words	3 6	5 0
LOHENGRIN. German and English words	3 6	5 0
FLYING DUTCHMAN. German and English words	3 6	5 0
WEBER.
OBERON. Italian and English words ..	2 6	4 0
DER FREISCHÜTZ. German and English words	2 6	4 0
PRECIOSA. German and English words	1 6	3 0
EURYANTHE. In the Press.

(To be continued.)

NEW AND CAREFULLY REVISED EDITIONS

OF

MENDELSSOHN'S

LIEDER OHNE WORTE

Octavo, 160 pp., paper covers .. .. .. 4s. od.
" " cloth, gilt edges .. .. 6s. od.

CHEAP EDITION.

Octavo, 104 pp., paper covers .. .. .. 2s. 6d.
" " cloth, gilt edges .. .. 4s. 6d.

THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION

CONTAINING BOOKS 7 and 8.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MENUETTO FROM HAYDN'S

QUARTETT IN D MINOR,

For two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello, arranged for the Pianoforte, by AGNES ZIMMERMANN.

Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published,

PIANOFORTE PIECES

BY

JOHANNES BRAHMS.

Op. 76.

First Book. 8s.	Second Book. 8s.
No. 1. Capriccio. F sharp minor.	No. 5. Capriccio. C sharp minor.
" 2. Capriccio. B minor.	" 6. Intermezzo. A major.
" 3. Intermezzo. A flat major.	" 7. Intermezzo. A minor.
" 4. Intermezzo. B flat major.	" 8. Capriccio. C major.

Sold at half-price.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TWO SETS OF

SIXTY VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED FOR

THE HARMONIUM

BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH SET.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Symphonies for the Organ

BY

CHARLES MARIE WIDOR.

	s. d.		s. d.
No. 1 in C	6 0	No. 5 in F	9 0
" 2 " D	6 0	" 6 " G	7 6
" 3 " E	4 6	" 7 } In the Press.
" 4 " F	4 6	" 8 }

Nos. 1 to 4 in one Book, 12s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

REDUCED PRICE, TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LEFÉBURE-WELY'S

OFFERTOIRES for the ORGAN.

Or singly:—

1. Offertoire in B flat ...	1s. od.	4. Offertoire in G ...	1s. 9d.
2. " F ...	1s. 6d.	5. " A ...	1s. od.
3. " C ...	1s. od.	6. " E ...	1s. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

BY

DIETRICH BUXTEHUDE

(1635—1707).

EDITED BY

PHILIPP SPITTA.

Containing Preludes and Fugues, Toccatas, Canzonettas, Chorales, &c.

Two Volumes ... ... each, net 24s.
Or Twelve Books ... ... each, 6s. to 10s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

FACULTY OF MUSIC.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC, July 9, 10, 11, 1879.—All names and entrance fees for the undermentioned Examinations must be sent in by MONDAY, June 23.

1. Diplomas of Licentiate and Associate in Music.
2. Higher Musical Certificates to Women (Harmony, Pianoforte, or Singing, &c.).
3. Special Certificates for Technical Skill (Harmony, Counterpoint, Pianoforte, Singing, Organ, Orchestral Instruments, &c.).

Candidates may sit for any one or more subjects in Nos. 2 and 3, at their option.

Further particulars may be obtained on application to the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON. — LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in ELEMENTARY MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE, FRIDAY, June 13, 1879.—National Prizes of £5 and £3. Adjudicator, Sir Julius Benedict. Cathedral Boys' Prize of £3 3s. Adjudicator, Sir John Goss, Mus. D. These examinations, which are open to all comers, irrespective of age, sex, or creed, will be simultaneously held at various local centres throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies. Copies of the regulations will be supplied by any of the local secretaries, a list of whom may be obtained of the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.—HALF-TERM.—Students can now be received for the undermentioned Classes and Lectures:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Canon, and Fugue, Form in Musical Composition, Orchestration, Organ, Pianoforte, Harmonium, Solo Singing, Violin, Violoncello, Flute, Harp, Sight and Class Singing, String Quartett Practice.

The STUDENT'S MUSICAL EVENINGS will be continued as before.

For a Syllabus of Classes and other particulars, apply to the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, Weymouth Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON. — LADIES' CLASSES in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT.—Lecturer, HUMPHREY J. STARK, Mus. B., New College, Oxford. A WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON CLASS is now being formed for the convenience of Governesses and others unable to attend the Tuesday or Thursday Classes. Apply to the Resident Secretary, Trinity College, Weymouth Street, Portland Place, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON. — PHYSIOLOGY of the VOCAL ORGANS. Dr. LLEWELYN THOMAS, Physician to the College, will continue his Lectures at the Half-Term. Apply to the Resident Secretary, at the College, Weymouth Street, W.

Just published.

THE

TRANSIENT AND THE ETERNAL

AN ODE COMPOSED BY

ANDREAS ROMBERG.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THREE SONGS.

"ROSAMOND'S EPITAPH," "ON THE WATER," "PRAYER."

COMPOSED BY

FREDERICK CORDER.

Four Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

PRECIOSA, AN OPERA

COMPOSED BY

C. M. VON WEBER.

THE ENGLISH WORDS TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN VERSION OF C. A. STERNAU, BY THE REV. J. TROUTBECK.

Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE LORD OF THE ISLES.

A Dramatic Cantata (founded on Sir Walter Scott's Poem) by FRANK MURRAY.

The Music Composed by HENRY GADSBY.

Octavo, Four Shillings. Chorus parts, 1s. each. Orchestral parts, in manuscript, may be had on hire.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EACH MONTH)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY

A CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES

THE POETRY WRITTEN BY ALFRED TENNYSON

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

HENRY LAHEE.

Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE WATER-FAIRIES

A CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES

The Poetry written by EDWARD OXENFORD.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

FRANZ ABT.

Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

Edited by Dr. STAINER.

198 pp., Demy 4to.

SINGING

BY ALBERTO RANDEGGER,

Professor of Singing at the Royal Academy of Music.

Price Four Shillings. Paper Boards, 5s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS.

Edited by Dr. STAINER.

CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING

BY THE

REV. J. TROUTBECK, M.A.,

Priest in Ordinary to the Queen and Minor Canon of Westminster.

Price 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MOZART'S REQUIEM.

Now ready.

THE STORY OF MOZART'S REQUIEM

Carefully compiled from the best and most authentic Sources,

BY WM. POLE, F.R.S., MUS. DOC.

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

This immortal work, independently of its value as a musical composition, has great interest on account of its very remarkable history. The mysterious commission given for it, the supernatural impression made by this on Mozart, his composition of the work under such pathetic circumstances, partly on his deathbed, the difficulties as to its publication, the fierce controversy as to its authorship, which for fourteen years engaged the attention of some of the most learned men and profound musicians of Europe, the extraordinary disappearance and long concealment of the manuscripts, their ultimate discovery, the difficult and perplexing questions as to their genuineness, the strange revelations gradually made as to the secret history of the various transactions, and the doubts which, after all possible information has been obtained, still hang over the authorship of some parts of the work; all these things, spread over seventy or eighty years, form a story of unparalleled interest in the annals of music.

The object of the present essay is to tell this story, which is hitherto but little known in England; and it will form, it is hoped, an appropriate companion to the various editions of the "Requiem," published by Messrs. Novello and Co.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

MAY 1, 1879.

MUSIC IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

THE subject of musical education in all its branches is evidently not destined to expire for want of kindly and energetic support. There is truly nothing new to be said on the question, but it cannot be too often brought before the notice of the public; and we are indebted to the Social Science Association for giving Dr. Hullah an opportunity during the month of reading a paper on "Musical Instruction in Elementary Schools." The Earl of Aberdeen presided on the occasion, and the room in Adam Street, Adelphi, was filled by members of the Social Science Association interested in the subject, together with a large number of professors of music, many of whom are of considerable repute as teachers.

Dr. Hullah was, as he told us, on the eve of his departure to the Continent on a mission from the Education Department. He is commissioned to study the system of elementary and—as we suppose—general musical instruction adopted in the different European States, and under Government aid and inspection, or under the auspices of private colleges and societies. At the last Congress of the Social Science Association he had already explained his own views in detail. The paper now under notice was, as Lord Aberdeen described it, "practical and brief," and intended rather to elicit discussion than to restate the general question. It was chiefly confined to two points: the necessity of beginning the teaching of music very early; and of ascertaining, through competent inspection, if it was properly taught in the national schools.

Music, as Dr. Hullah reminds us, is like modern languages or horsemanship, or most other acquisitions dependent on the mechanism of nerve, muscle, or memory. If we are to arrive at proficiency we must begin when the mind is fresh and the frame supple. He repeated his favourite dictum that what constitutes a musician, in embryo at least, is the power of identifying the key-relationship of sounds by the ear, and naming them according to some system of notation. That power, which he considers the fons et origo of musical skill and science, is with difficulty acquired by adults; and then only by an expenditure of time he thinks might be better employed in other studies.

Dr. Hullah informs us that these desiderata—singing at sight, and naming the notes from dictation—the only means by which a child can acquire solid instruction or rational pleasure in vocal music, are neglected in the present system of teaching in our elementary schools. It is not, he says, for want of "teaching power." The training-schools for schoolmasters and schoolmistresses have made the study of vocal music an essential part of their curriculum; and, as he tells, with fair success. Since 1872 he has annually examined collectively and individually the students who have been trained in those schools; of which there are in England and Wales forty-one, and in Scotland seven. Last year he examined 1,965 students, and yet, with all this annual production of "teaching power," he says, "we have little or no teaching of music in the national schools."

To reform this state of things Dr. Hullah advocates the appointment of paid Government inspectors who have sufficient special knowledge of music to judge whether the children are properly taught. At present Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools are not necessarily accomplished musicians, and if they hear a song well sung they are satisfied; and indeed are satisfied if the singing is not altogether "insufferable."

The main difficulty is of course, as Dr. Hullah acknowledges, to persuade ratepayers that beyond the "good song" or the "not insufferable song" there is anything in the teaching of music worth the extra money required.

The object of the meeting at which Lord Aberdeen kindly presided, and of Dr. Hullah's paper, seemed to be to enlist the sympathies of musical men in favour of a crusade against the public apathy and ignorance in regard to the system of musical instruction patronised by the School Boards.

The whole question naturally divides itself into three very obvious points: Is music worth teaching at all?—what is the best way to teach it, if it is?—and if people will not pay for the best way, is it worth while continuing any other?

The first point we can dismiss from consideration, as thereon we can all agree to differ. No arguments will convince a person of the educational value of music who does not see it instinctively from the possession of the musical faculty himself. As to the second point there can be but one opinion amongst people of any musical cultivation. The only way to teach music is as Dr. Hullah recommends. Whilst admitting that much, there are many who will ask, "Why should we have the additional expense of special inspectors of music, when in other branches of instruction one inspector serves for arithmetic, geography, &c., and even drawing?" Dr. Hullah gives us the answer when he tells us that, unless in music we begin early, as most of us have done in arithmetic and geography, we can never acquire the power of identifying sounds by the notation or by ear in a specific relation to what is called a tonic. We can all tell whether a boy sings more or less in tune, but unless we can detect at once whether he is singing sol or fa we know nothing about it, and we are not qualified as inspectors.

Then comes the third point: "If we are to have all that bother," some will say, "let us go on as we are." That certainly is a question. For our own parts, we should say decidedly not. It is simply a waste of the children's time and of public money.

However, there are many gentlemen of experience, such as Mr. John Hamilton Pollock, who spoke at the meeting apparently on behalf of the School Boards and the existing system of music inspectors, who seem to be of a different opinion. He seemed to afford Dr. Hullah immense amusement by appealing to the skilful renderings of the works of Beethoven and Mendelssohn by the children at Bath Street Schools, City Road. Like all advocates of similar opinions, Mr. Pollock appeared to treat music as a question not of education but of moral edification. That may be true of the art and its general effects; but in elementary schools it is a question of common education, like any other subject.

Even Mr. Helmore, who has had many years' experience in teaching, observed that such men for example as Mr. Matthew Arnold, although not specialists in music, were quite competent, with the assistance they eagerly sought, to estimate the advancement of school children in music. Mr. Mackeson alluded also to what is likely enough a pertinent fact, that the children of the Board Schools derive great pleasure from the visitation and friendly words of the general inspector. We ourselves do not doubt for a moment that the children would be vastly more pleased with the sweetness and light of Mr. Matthew Arnold, than with the criticisms of some expert fresh from a training-school. But is that the point? And could we not, as we think Mr. Mackeson suggested, have both inspectors?

Teaching of any kind requires the hard, practised pedagogue; and, on the principle of "setting a thief to catch a thief," the inspector, to do his work properly, must be something of the same nature. Dr. Hullah himself is an old hand; and in allusion to excerpts from Beethoven and Mendelssohn and the rest at elementary schools, he gave us an instance of a school where there appeared to be excellent singing and at sight; but it was led by one clever urchin. On Dr. Hullah requesting "that boy" should be made to sit down, there was an end of it.

There were other kinds of suggestions made, tending towards the exacting of too much rather than too little of music-inspectors and of teachers. Mr. H. M. Smith, in the course of his observations, dwelt on the desirability of the inspectors being qualified to judge of the "scientific culture of the voice." And Mr. West alluded to the inequality of teachers in the different departments of schools, resulting in children either not being prepared for promotion from one department to another, or losing in a higher class what they had learned in another.

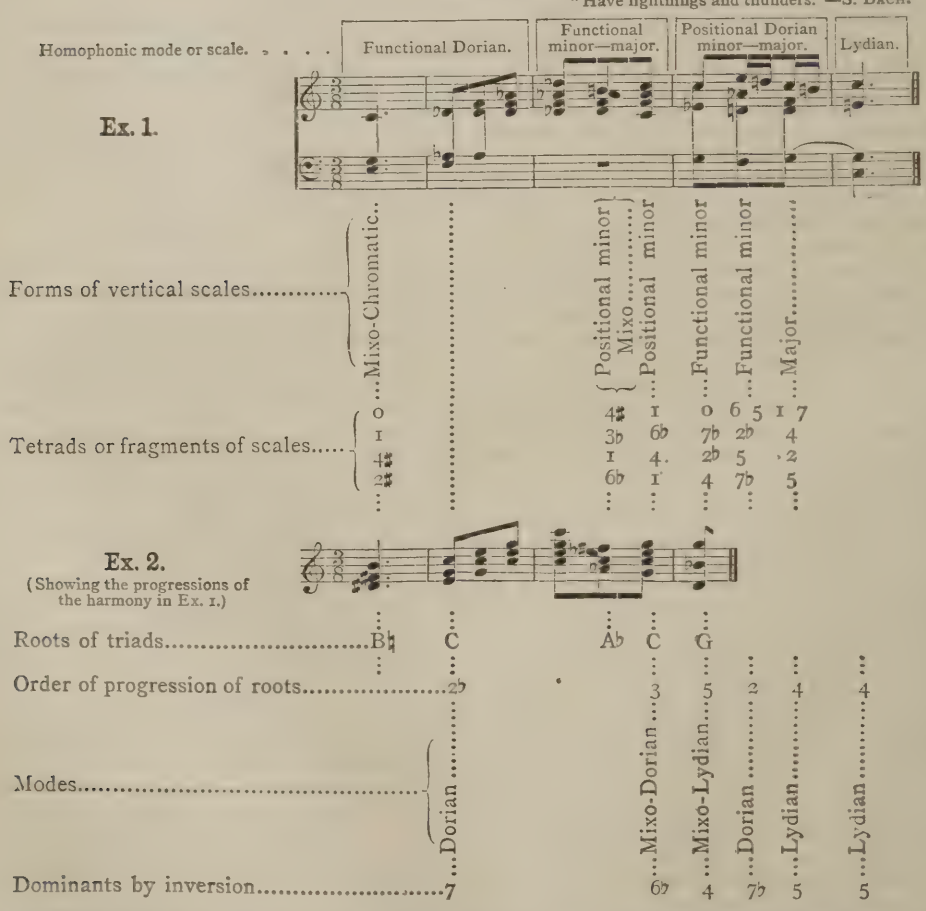
As a climax, one gentleman observed that he was not a musician, but he knew something of "boys and girls," and he thought there was too much teaching; and deplored the hypercriticism in the present day of "one in a family" who happened to know a little more music than the rest, and who marred the pleasure which some who were not so clever might and did give to themselves and to others. The gentleman's particular views would certainly settle the vexed question of music-inspectors in elementary schools. However, Dr. Hullah easily met the objection, and also referred to the impracticability of getting teachers of equal merit; and as for the power of judging the "scientific culture of the voice," he said there were perhaps two men in all Europe who would be competent as music-inspectors in schools if that were a necessary qualification.

He strongly insisted on the desirability of improving, by practice and proper system, the "national ear;" and observed that he had throughout the kingdom found everywhere workable materials, with perhaps some exceptions in Scotland. Here the noble chairman winced visibly, and the Scottish lion growled audibly; but Dr. Hullah explained that he alluded to the extreme West and Western Islands, N.B., where people never heard any music, and it was not possible their ear for it could be very precise.

HARMONY MODES.

By Joseph Green.

"Have lightnings and thunders."—S. Bach.



It is essential to the system to remember that all tetrads resolve on a certain tonic or they change their significance and numbers. Helmholtz, Westphal and many others who take the authentic or plagal cadence in a minor horizontal scale and call it Dorian, have overlooked the principle. G, b♭, d♭, f, resolving on A♭ is Dorian; resolving on C it is Lydian inverted; and is precisely the same as 7, 2, 4, 6 resolving on 3: that is, b, d, f, a in the scale of C resolving on E, which notes in relation to E are 5, 7♭, 2♭, 4. The pure Dorian cadence is 7♭, 2♭, 4, 6♭ resolving on the major triad; but major or minor makes no difference in the second chord. The best position of the chords is not now a question.

Glancing at the foregoing examples, a musician might say, "It is simply a question of transposition." It is certainly a question of transposition, but by interval progression, and not as he understands the term transposition; that is, by shift only. Ex. 2 represents nominally—but to avoid complications, not completely—the progressions in Ex. 1 in relation to one tonic C♮. Although Ex. 2 changes its tonic relation at bar 4 the principle is the same, and it represents literally and absolutely what occurs in Ex. 1. Ex. 2 shows the principle of the movable Doh by a kind of reversed method. Ex. 1 shows the principle of the fixed Doh, the change of pitch, the "pictorial effect" of the common notation. Both principles are equally indispensable in music and musical theory.

The homophonic or horizontal scale gives different results to the vertical scales or "harmony modes." In bar 3, Ex. 1, the melodic mode is "functional minor-major"—that is, the inverted mode of the third or Dorian,* with the leading note of the major scale. We see here very plainly how the chord of the "German sixth" is produced by no harmony method, but by the natural movement of the melody or form of scale. Helmholtz and others before him have long since pointed out, but only en passant and not systematically, how the chords of the extreme sixth are a relic of the ancient homophonic modes. In the bar in question there is no doubt about the last triad, which is that of F. In relation to that tonic, it is equally certain that the preceding chord is 6♭, 1, 3♭, 4♯, as given in the numbering over Example 2.

We may quarrel over the root of the second of two consecutive chords, but that once fixed the numbering of the preceding chord will be the same whatever may be its root. A change of root in one or other chord alters the order of progression, and therefore the harmony mode; the order 4 gives Lydian; 2 gives Dorian; 7, Phrygian; and 5, Mixolydian. These numbers are those of the dominant chord (5, 7, 2, 4) in reversed order. If we proceed in the double octave of thirds, thus—the dominants 6, 1, 3 represent superposed modes. The 4, or sub-dominant, is common to both systems as an added sound in the Lydian and a nominal dominant in the Mixolydian system. The progressions 6, 1, 3, or rather 6 and 3—the order 1 not representing a progression, as explained in the next paragraph—are used in modern music in passages such as Dr. Macfarren in his Lectures alludes to in Rossini's trio in "William Tell" as "Gallicisms." They are, however, the staple of the modern effects used by Mendelssohn in some of his overtures, by Wagner in the Grail music of the Lohengrin, and appear in most music of the "tone-picture" and sentimental style. In their minor and chromatic forms they have a poetically vague and undecided but iridescent effect; something similar to what colourists call "pavonian" or "shot colours." The mixture of modes we get by the employment of the "modal" or modic sounds 3 and 6 are seen in this diagram representing a vertical scale of tetrachords.

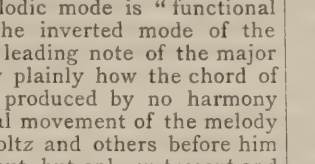
In some respects, imitating Westphal, we can classify this particular system of "superposed modes" as Dorico-Mixolydian, or Dorico-Eolian, or simply Eolian. As specific modes they may be called Mixos on this principle*:—



There is a rule quoted by Dr. Macfarren that where there is no change of root there is no modulation. When rightly applied the rule is important, though curiously ignored by the best writers, who never seem safe in the use of chromatics if the problem is at all doubtful.

In Example 1, bar 3, the B♮ seems to be only a passing or melodic alteration of the preceding chord; and it would be so if there were no change of root in the next. The B♮ as 6♯ of D♭ the sub-dominant of A♭ is what the Sol-faists call le. In most technical, and in all the scientific theories that I know of, chords are still treated either as purely abstract combinations or without any thoroughgoing system of tonal or modal relation. For instance, Dr. Macfarren, who—if I may be permitted to pay him a high compliment—rivals Fétis as an intuitive theorist, says the chord determines the resolution. In the system here suggested the general rule is just the reverse; the resolution determines the chord. Hence the B♮ in the example is 4♯ (fe)—a diezeugtic semitone in relation to F, the following root.

In deference to the correspondent who throws "perfect fifths" and "beats" at us, as if we had never heard of them before, we make the root of the German Sixth A♭ (or D♭ in Ex. 1, bar 3); and it is so as a question of harmony. The 4♯ is an exigency of the melody or scale. In common musical phraseology, founded on the shift from one horizontal scale to another, Ex. 1 is in D♭ modulating to E♭, and concluding in C♮. The definition can only be clumsily modified by allusions to the major and minor modes of C♮ unless we have more modes than two. According to received methods, of which there are only two worth classifying, the old system of figured bass counting from a temporary bass note, and a little newer system of figured bass counting from a funda-

* Helmholtz, who on the subject of Greek music represents the opinions of many authors he has consulted, gives two examples of the Dorian cadence in harmony. In his second example, from Handel's "Samson" (page 476, English edition), he evidently intends the Dorian cadence to be the last one in the example—minor triad of A♮ to triad of E♮—order of progression, 5. Westphal would assuredly have given the same nomenclature. In the system here proposed the progression 5 (subdominant to tonic, or Church plagal cadence) is Mixolydian. Mr. Ellis, the translator of Helmholtz, points out in a note the particular progression in the example he considers to be the Dorian. The order of progression is 2, and agrees so far with the system. Dr. Marx gives different names to the same progressions, and appears to be no authority on the subject, and is evidently guided solely by the homophonic modes in the beautiful examples he gives. I generally observe in books where the examples are most beautiful that theory is scarce. Mr. Ellis, by the way, corrects the term "mode of the sixth," used by Helmholtz, and calls it the mode of the "minor sixth." The corrected form, I think, is not much better than the original. The true expression is mode of the third, direct or inverted. The same of the rest, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.

* In its adaptation to modern notions, Greek music naturally divides itself into SYSTEM and sub-system Hypo and Hyper; MODE hypo and hyper, and OCTAVE plagal and authentic. The OCTAVES are of the same ratio as the normal scale, whatever it is, tone or mode. Consequently the Eolian octave in the Lydian or Dorian system, whichever we take as normal, retains the same ratios. Otherwise it is a question of change of modal system, not of the octave. In equal temperament or in the Pythagorean scale, only seven modes are possible; and they are simply seven octaves of one system. The Pythagorean system was evidently a practical device for musicians; a device like our equal temperament. Thus we find half a dozen different names given to the same octave, such as octave A—A, Hypo-Dorian (Ptolemy), Dorian (some modern commentators), Hyper-Dorian, Eolian, Locrian, Syntono-Lydian (Westphal), &c., &c. Unless these various titles each represent theoretically a different tetrachordal shift and change of ratio, the whole thing is ludicrous. To exact "just intonation" in practically adapting different ratios to our modern "chord music" is another matter.

mental, the root of the chord in the centre of bar 3, Ex. 1, would be either D♭, the sub-dominant of A♭, or B♭, the supertonic (chromatically raised), or B♮, the leading note of the normal scale C♮, or its dominant G♮ as a fundamental, when A♭ would appear as a minor 9th, and the D♭, seemingly the foundation of the chord in the example, would be treated as a chromatic.

The word dominant or supertonic presupposes a scale. Instead, therefore, of taking the more abstract combination, 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 11, 13, let us take at once a scale beginning on the dominant—5, 7, 2, 4, 6, 1, 3. We here rise out of acoustics into music; but it is only homophonic music, or at most the harmony of one mode, unless we change the resolution. Dr. Day and Dr. Macfarren wish to show us, and in some respects do show us most admirably, the difference between the old tonality and the modern system of keys. Unhappily for their purpose they make use of the term deceptive cadence. There is no such thing as a "deceptive cadence." One cadence determines the modern key better than another, but a change of progression of any kind is simply a change of mode; and unless the dominant on any series resolves on the tonic the fundamentals lose their titles, and the dominant becomes a supertonic, and the supertonic a dominant, or other sound of a new scale. The possible error of Day's system can be shown in this way. Take the abstract combinations 1, 3, 5, 7♭, and let the figure 1 represent C♮. If the resolution is on C♮ there is no modulation according to Dr. Macfarren's rule, and the flat rises properly to the natural. If the resolution is on E♮ minor the 7♭ becomes 4♯. In some of the examples given by Dr. Macfarren and other theorists of the same school, the chord of resolution is written as E, G, an interval which might belong either to C, E, G or E, G, B, and the point in question is evaded. Dr. Day excludes the latter chord from his key. As a question of a series of tonics of keys formed on the Pythagorean system—and they are so formed—that is correct, but not as a question of octave modes we have all chosen to consider matters only fit for churchmen or antiquarians.

Again, if instead of resolving the dominant series of thirds on the tonic, we take the "deceptive cadence" G to A♭, the B♮ in that series becomes the D♯ which Dr. Day was obliged to abolish to preserve the contour of his system, depending on the minor 13th, an inversion of the No. 5 in the series of harmonics of the dominant. Were we anxious for a theory of that kind, or could we conceive that the wondrous complications of the musical art could be reflected in one wretched little physical fact, we could get the D♯ at once like the F♯ as positive existencies in the clang-tint of the dominant triad. But given the harmony triad we can obtain what we require more logically by the scale and its inversions, and by the interval progressions of one vertical scale to another. By the latter principle the D♯ eliminated in the "order of progression" 2♭, alluded to above, is as much an absolute fact as if it appeared visibly in the notation. Those who fail to see it can comprehend nothing not made palpable to the senses.

We can indicate the formation of scales by purely harmony methods according to the following principle:—

Let the sign $\overset{\circ}{\cdot}$ mean overtone or major triad.
" $\overset{u}{\cdot}$ " undertone or minor triad (inversion of the major).
" $\overset{\circ+}{\cdot}$ " major triad with added sound (seventh 16 : 9).
" $\overset{u+}{\cdot}$ " minor triad with added sound (second 9 : 8).

As a rule, the sign $\overset{\circ}{\cdot}$ means dominant, and the sign $\overset{u}{\cdot}$ means subdominant, indicating in rather a remarkable manner the place and value of the subdominant in the musical system. It is the undertone dominant or dominant of the mode; and that is why many of us have tried hard to exclude it from the key. The effort was right enough from the old stand-point, the system of adjacent triads, in which the subdominant was taken as a fundamental in the major key, and a nominal fundamental in the minor key; the minor intervals being not systematically derived, but assumed.

The formula suggested for the major diatonic scale is therefore $5\overset{\circ+}{\cdot}—3\overset{u}{\cdot}$; and for the minor or inverted scale $4\overset{u+}{\cdot}—6\overset{\circ}{\cdot}$.

We see here an explanation of the mystery of the mixed major and minor, or minor and major systems —or mixed Lydian and Dorian systems.

The formula for the scale of adjacent triads even when adapted to a system of inversion is—

Major 5° 1° 4° Minor $4\overset{u}{\cdot}$ $1\overset{u}{\cdot}$ $5\overset{u}{\cdot}$

The minor scale in both instances is the mode of the third inverted.

To my mind, the "adjacent triads" represent no theory at all; they are simply a coarse or, as the French would say, a "brutal" juxtaposition of facts.

In the same way as the octave A—A is Dorian in position, or a scale of the subdominant of E, the common minor scale of C♮ is an inversion in position of the tetrachordal scale (or tone) of the subdominant F. To put the scale of F in position to C, we have only to number it in relation to that tonic, and invert if required. All numbering in position represents the principle of the fixed Doh. Numbering in power represents the principle of the movable Doh. We see it in this way:—

Alphabetical Signs.	Sol-fa Notation.	Numerals.
b♯. d^{x}. f^{x}.	d. m. s.	7♯. 2^{x}. 4^{x}.
c. e. g.	d. m. s.	1. 3. 5.

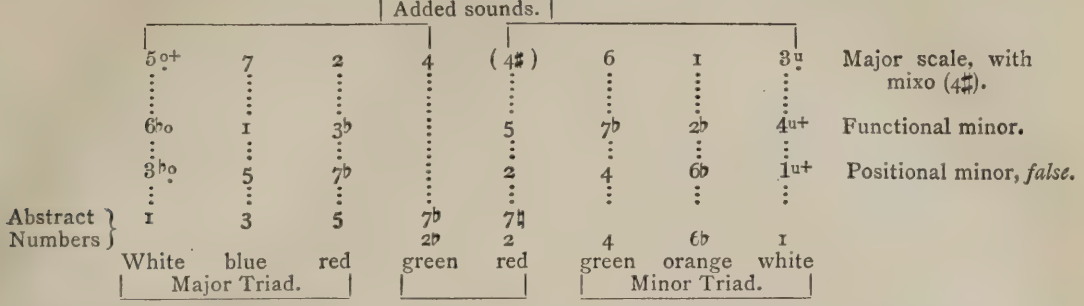
To put the Sol-fa notation in position, we have to add a numeral or alphabetical symbol; and even then, in theoretical diagrams as in musical notation, the "pictorial effect," the immediate recognition of relationship in differences of pitch, is lost. The two systems are simply two sides of a shield. We take one or other according to the problem.

The Sol-fa notation has special advantages of its own. We see them in the numeral 6, or the letter A, which has no theoretical meaning until we name it lah or lay. On the other hand lah means only a third, and lay means a fifth; and so far they represent the old harmony method of adjacent triads to which the system of notation was originally adapted.

If it be a question whether in a system of scales the lah is derived as a third of F or as a fourth of E—the Dorian mese—neither the Sol-fa nor any of the scientific notations that have been proposed will inform us. To meet that requirement, and with the idea of making the suggestions in this article of some practical value, I submit for adoption a systematic method of colouring diagrams for the school-room or lecture-room; and a system of nomenclature—very much wanted in some form or another—for the forty-nine sounds of any normal system founded on the commonly received principles of musical arithmetic and inversion.

The system of colouring has these advantages: it follows a certain analogy in sound and light by making complementary intervals or inversions correspond with complementary colours; and as only the triad and its inversion are employed, we require but four colours and white; the latter always representing a fundamental or the intervals unison and octave.

System of Colouring.



Added sounds.
5 7 2 4 (4♯) 6 1 3
6♭ 1 3♭ 5 7♭ 2♭ 4
3♭ 5 7♭ 2 4 6♭ 1
Major scale, with mixo (4♯).
Functional minor.
Positional minor, false.
Abstract Numbers 1 3 5 7♭ 2♭ 7♯ 2 4 6♭ 1
White blue red green red green orange white
Major Triad.
Minor Triad.

False fifths arise in all complete octave scales. In regard to system or sub-system, the condition is that they shall not occur between sounds forming a tetrachordal basis, as 5—1—4 of the Lydian or tonal system, or 7—3—6 of the Dorian or modal system, direct or inverted.

In an overtone chord the sign of the false fifth will be $\overline{5}$; denoting that the fifth is a komma flat. In an undertone chord the sign will be $\underline{5}$, denoting that the underfifth is a komma flat. A false underfifth when reversed becomes of course a fourth, a komma sharp.

In the diagram above the positional minor is purposely shown wrongly derived. As it stands, without the sign of the false fifth it is not C♮ positional minor, but G♮ functional minor (formula 4^{u+}—$6^{\flat o}$ or C^{u+}—$e^{\flat o}$), or the Dorian or mi mode in the system or normal diapason G♮.

It is only with the sign of the false fifth that we can put the common minor scale into a nominal harmony formula. That sign shows that the scale is not a normal mode, but an octave like the so-called "relative minor" or lah-mode. When we invert the lah, and call E♭ doh, that surely is an equal temperament or key-board heresy, which has crept into what was intended for, and might be made, an admirable theoretical system. The E♭ doh and the E♭ final are different affairs. To get out of the difficulty I should propose that it be shown, as in the diagram above, that the lah does not appear in the system as the third (blue) of F, or even the sixth of C, which amounts to the same thing; but as the fourth (green) of E♮, the true doh of the minor system. A difference of colour does not necessarily imply a change of ratio, but it always indicates the system of scale derivation.

Nomenclature of a system of sounds. It is scarcely worth while anticipating the objection that the following table is "not new." The chief advantage of the table is that neither the form nor the nomenclature is new. What novelty it contains is in the general system.

It will be understood that all the sounds in the vertical lines above the horizontal central line are in series of major thirds (5 : 4 blue); and all below are in series of minor sixths (8 : 5 orange). The horizontal lines are in series of fourths (green) to the right of the normal tonic (white), and of fifths (red) to the left —always counting upwards.

Specific Nomenclature.	Hypo-quintal.	Quintal.	Hypo.	Normal.		Hyper.	Quartal.	Hyper-quartal.	General Classification.
Tertian Enharmonic ...	5^{X}	1^{X}	4^{X} ...	7♯ 375 : 192 ...		3♯	6♯ (ba)	2♯	... Enharmonic.
Supertertian	3♯	6♯ (fe)	2♯ ...	5♯ 25 : 16 ...		1♯	4♯ (rah)	7	... Chromatic.
Tertian	1♯	4♯ (ray)	7 ...	3 5 : 4 ...		6	2	5	... Modal.
Normal	6	2	5 ...	1		4	7♭	3♭	... Tonal.
	27 : 16	9 : 8	3 : 2			4 : 3	16 : 9	32 : 27
Sextilian...	4	7♭	3♭ ...	6♭ 8 : 5 ...		2♭	5♭	1♭	... Modal.
Subsextilian	2♭	5♭	1♭ ...	4♭ 32 : 25 ...		7♭♭	3♭♭	6♭♭	... Chromatic.
Sextilian Enharmonic...	7♭♭	3♭♭	6♭♭ ...	2♭♭ 384 : 375...		5♭♭	1♭♭	4♭♭	... Enharmonic.

To find the ratio of any sound, we have only to multiply the fraction in the horizontal central line above or below the sound in question by the fraction in the central vertical line to right or left of the sound; thus, 7 in the tertian system is 3 : 2 × 5 : 4; and 5^{X} in the tertian enharmonic system is 27 : 16 × 375 : 192.

It must be observed that the table is constructed on the common tetrachordal basis. If we employ the maximum second 8 : 7 and its inversion 7 : 4, we must simply change those sounds 2 and 7♭ in the central horizontal line. It will also involve an addition—only a temporary or accidental addition—in the system of colouring. 2 (8 : 7) is purple; and its inversion 7♭(7 : 4) is yellow. These are not added sounds of a scale, but new harmony intervals.

As for the mode of using the nomenclature, we have only to combine the names to the left of each horizontal column with the names over each vertical column. For instance, 1^{X} in the upper horizontal line is quintal tertian enharmonic. Again, the fe and the ba are respectively 4♯ quintal tertian, and 4♯ quartal supertertian. The latter being more distantly related to the normal tonic than the fe; a fact—if it be a fact—entirely opposed to the old system of adjacent triads and so-called chromatics of the scale. The same in regard to the ray and the rah. What is true of any particular sound is, mutatis mutandis, true of its inversion.

The more modern and now generally received classification of chromatics—using the term in its general sense—is confirmed by Helmholtz in his method of eliminating the ancient diatonic scales, on which he seems to found his musical system. It must be confessed, his method of "elimination," according to his theory of timbre, is not quite logical or complete. He has learned lately to appreciate the music of Wagner! When we hear of him again —and we are sure to do so, as the musical theory affection is in most cases incurable—we shall probably be informed of some modifications in his technical musical system as far as it has been carried in the "Sensations of Tone."

Helmholtz as a critic once spoke of Beethoven as an outcome of revolution; and in the same narrow spirit of orthodoxy he deplored the "enharmonic modulations" of Spohr. The truth is, what we call "enharmony" is not only a natural result, but a very early result in a musical system. Its first appearance is in the diatonic scale itself—in the tritone 4♯ or 5♭, taking it as an abstract interval fa—si or si—fa. It is "a question" in the 6♭ 1 3♭ 4♯ in the common progression in Bach's chorus in Ex. 1.

The d♯, to which allusion was made at the commencement of this article, is diatonic as 7 in E♮ major; chromatic as 2♯ in C♮ major; and enharmonic as 4ˣ in A♭. The last-named interval, I venture to think, requires a new definition, as the "augmented tritone." Theorists will find it an absolute necessity in pursuing the question from what Mr. Ellis calls the musical "cell," 6♭—1—3, represented by the three scales just quoted a♭—c—e; the beginning of inversion, upon which all latter-day musical theories are founded, consciously or unconsciously—and generally speaking unconsciously. A striking example of the want of systematisation of the principle of inversion is the theory of Von Oettingen, which explodes at the end in an example from Beethoven's "Prometheus." Von Oettingen, looking at it from his ordinary harmony point of view, simply gives it up. It is the more strange in that writer, as amongst his many "icities" as "tonicity," "phonicity," &c., is "reciprocity," a principle represented in the "cell." It must be noted that Mr. Ellis's cell is a highly morphological one. The protoplasm of music is the fifth or its inversion. All chords can be reduced theoretically to that interval, perfect, chromatic or enharmonic,* the intervals themselves showing the various tonic relations. If we find the interval c—fˣ we may be pretty certain that the C is 6♭, and that the scale of E♮ or one of its modes enters into the combination.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS, SKETCHED BY THEMSELVES.

By Joseph Bennett.

No. VI.—MENDELSSOHN.

For the first time in the course of these papers I have to deal with one who may be called a professed letter writer. Haydn and Weber, Mozart and Beethoven, were not, as we have seen, particularly gifted correspondents. They wrote to their friends, as most of us write, without much attention to graces of style, or literary interest of any kind. With Mendelssohn the case was very different. He could use the pen of the epistolar with almost as much effect as the pen of the composer, and he knew it. With him to be conscious of ability was always to exercise it in the best manner. Hence the finish, nay, the art of his letters, each one of which seems as though it had been put together for the public eye. A natural consequence of this fact is that Mendelssohn's printed correspondence forms a part of universal literature. At any rate, few who take interest in musical matters are unacquainted with it, and, therefore, to make many long quotations, as I have done from the letters of other composers, would be superfluous. Mendelssohn's communications, however, suggest a good deal of remark with regard to himself, and may not prove the less a source of interest because they are generally familiar.

In May, 1830, Mendelssohn, being then just of age, started from Berlin on a grand tour, the first stage of which was Weimar, the home of Goethe, with whom the young musician was acquainted. At this point the letters begin; but, to understand the earlier of the series, it is necessary to know somewhat about the writer's personality. For this we cannot go to a better authority than Edward Devrient, the master's constant and intimate friend. The following is what, amongst other things, Devrient says of Mendelssohn: "Of middle height, slender frame, and uncommon muscular power, a capital gymnast, swimmer, walker, rider, and dancer, the leading feature of his outward and inner nature was an extraordinary sensitiveness. . . . Moreover, he would take no repose. The habit of constant occupation, instilled by his mother, made rest intolerable to him. To spend any time in mere talk caused him to look frequently at his watch, by which he often gave offence; his impatience was only satisfied when something was being done, such as music, reading, chess, &c." He had "large expressive dark eyes, with drooping lids, and a peculiar veiled glance, through the lashes; this, however, sometimes flashed distrust and anger, sometimes happy dreaming and expectancy." Although attached to his friends, "he loved only in the measure as he was loved. This was the solitary dark speck in his sunny disposition. He was the spoiled child of fortune. Unused to hardship or opposition, it remains a marvel that egotism did not prevail more than it did over his inborn nobleness and straightforwardness. The atmosphere of love and appreciation in which he had been nurtured was a condition of life to him; to receive his music with coldness or aversion was to be his enemy, and he was capable of denying genuine merit in any one who did so. A blunder in manners, or an expression that displeased him, could alienate him altogether; he could then be disagreeable, indeed, quite intolerable. . . . But his irritability, his distrustfulness, even to his most intimate friends, were sometimes quite incredible. A casual remark, a stupid jest, that he often accepted from me with perfect good temper, would sometimes suddenly cause him to drop his lids, look at me askance, and ask, doubtfully, 'What do you mean by that? Now I want to know what you wish me to understand by this?' &c., and it was difficult to restore his good humour." Such was the handsome, cultured, sensitive, spoiled and somewhat petulant young gentleman, who, on perfectly good terms with himself and an applausive world, sallied forth to make a tour of which he became the brilliant historiographer. One other glimpse of him, and then we shall know the man sufficiently well for our purpose. Devrient had agreed to take part in the first performance of Mendelssohn's "Son and Stranger" at a family fête, but was commanded to a royal concert on the same evening. This would necessarily interfere with the arrangements, and, says Devrient, "Felix was dreadfully put out at the tidings; he was really angry. Unaccustomed to be crossed in any of his undertakings, he quite lost, in the maze of vexations he saw before him, his usual sense of what was due to the position of others. He required me to give up the court concert, which, after all, was no part of my regular engagement, &c.; in short, the performance of his operetta appeared to him at that moment the one important thing of the world. I tried to comfort him with the promise," &c. "All this, however, marred the fête as it was to have been,

* Within the last thirty or forty years a most unhappy innovation patronised by the Germans has been attempted in the nomenclature of musical intervals. It is a thoroughly key-board innovation, and curiously enough adopted by Chevé, the disciple and successor of Galin. We are taught to call fifths major and minor; so that the inversion of a major fifth is a minor fourth! A minor fourth is a diminished fourth, the inversion of an augmented fifth. The innovation cannot be too soon removed from our recollection.

and his excitement increased so fearfully, that when the family was assembled for the evening, he began to talk incoherently, and in English, to the great terror of them all. The stern voice of his father at last checked the wild torrent of words; they took him to bed, and a profound sleep of twelve hours restored him to his normal state." To this picture not a touch need be added. We start with our young and splendid traveller perfectly assured that in the eyes of Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy nothing than that same Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy was more important.

Our hero set out from Berlin in that happy state of mind which leads a man to think that everybody envies him. He saw envy in the looks of all he met. Lounging students, bustling fellow-travellers, and especially the drivers of "slow coaches" wished themselves in his place as he sped gaily along through the May landscape. No wonder that he was in a good temper, and at Eckartsberge felt disposed to join the street children in a merry-go-round! Presently he reached Weimar, and wrote home his impressions of the "old gentleman"—Mendelssohnian for the great philosopher and poet. The naïve self-assurance of the Weimar letters is wonderful. "I shall probably remain here for a couple of days more," writes Mendelssohn in his first message home, "which is no sacrifice, for I never saw the old gentleman so cheerful and amiable as on this occasion, or so talkative and communicative." The idea of any time spent with such a man being a sacrifice, even though he were surly as a bear the while, is exquisite, but let us follow the writer further: "I don't in the least regret this (a detention of two days), for, as I have told you, I live a most agreeable life here, and thoroughly enjoy the society of the old poet. . . It is quite delightful to hear him conversing on every subject, and seeking information upon all points." By the way Goethe's thirst for "information" seems to have struck his young friend immensely. It was, perhaps, an ordinary compliment for the author of "Faust" to seek musical knowledge from the future composer of "Elijah." "Then he begged me to play to him," we read, "and said it seemed strange that he had heard no music for so long; that the art had greatly advanced without his marking its progress, and therefore he wished me to tell him a great deal on the subject." All this was, for Mendelssohn, a common experience, but Goethe did not stop at this, although we may doubt if he quite bargained for the readiness of his youthful visitor to impart general information. "Yesterday I told him a great deal about Scotland, and Hengstenberg, and Spontini, and Hegel's 'Æsthetics.'" No doubt the "old gentleman" was amused as well as instructed, but Mendelssohn adds: "He sent me to Tiefurth with the ladies." There can be no doubt at all that Goethe had a great liking for the society of the brilliant Berliner, and found pleasure in contemplating his radiant youth. But surely one may trace a dash of good-humoured sarcasm in some of the remarks which Mendelssohn complacently quotes: "I am not devoid of tact, so I contrived to have him asked yesterday whether I did not come too often; but he growled out to Ottilie, who put the question to him, that he must now begin to speak to me in good earnest, for I had such clear ideas that he hoped to learn much from me. I became twice as tall in my own estimation when Ottilie repeated this to me. He said so to me himself yesterday, and when he declared that there were many subjects he had at heart that I must explain to him, I said, 'Oh, certainly!' but I thought, 'This is an honour I can never forget.'" So matters went on until the day of parting came, and then Goethe seems to have gathered up his powers to show Mendelssohn how he could talk and what he had to talk about: "He began to converse on various subjects, passing from the 'Muette de Portici' to Walter Scott, and thence to the beauties in Weimar, to the 'Students' and the 'Robbers,' and so on to Schiller; then he spoke on uninterruptedly for more than an hour with the utmost animation about Schiller's life and writings, and his position in Weimar. . . . He proceeded to relate various anecdotes of the time when he was director of the theatre, and when I wished to thank him he said, 'It is mere chance, it all comes to light incidentally—called forth by your welcome presence.' These words sounded marvellously pleasant to me; in short, it was one of those conversations that a man can never forget as long as he lives." We should all dearly like to know something of what Goethe said on the interesting subjects to which he referred, but Mendelssohn's memory appears to have retained only words applicable to himself, save, it is true, a few sentences uttered by the sage when his young friend insisted on playing Beethoven's Symphony in C minor. These, however, are sadly disappointing because, truth to tell, somewhat commonplace. "It is very grand, very wild; it makes one fear that the house is about to fall down, and what must it be when played by a number of men together!" Thus Goethe on the "C minor." Mendelssohn had better have committed to paper the old giant's remarks about Schiller.

On the whole the Weimar letters are hardly to be accounted satisfactory. Approaching them for the first time, one would expect to find them full of Goethe, but they are full of Mendelssohn instead. In one, for example, the writer uses the first personal pronoun sixty-three times, as against forty-nine nouns and pronouns referring to his illustrious host. This, however, is but a clumsy test. Students of human nature will pay more heed to the spirit and tone of the young master's words, and be struck with the effect wrought upon his essentially fine nature by years of adulation. The whole episode in Mendelssohn's career harmonises with the fact that he never forgave Bernhard Klein because, when sitting with him—who was then a boy—in an opera-box, he said, "Cannot that lad keep his feet from dangling?" As keen as the humiliation so inflicted must have been the pleasure of instructing Goethe in Hegel's "Æsthetics" at the age of twenty-one.

Away from Goethe, Mendelssohn becomes pleasantly saucy. It is not, perhaps, quite in good taste to sneer at people who do their best to entertain one, but we can forgive much for the humour of such a passage as this—the reference is to a relative at Gratz. "How can a traveller who knows the mother and sister to be charming, put up with a brother, who is also an ensign, in their stead? In short, the man did not know what to do with me, for which I freely forgave him, and shall not defame him to his mother when I perform my promise and write to her, but I do not forgive him for taking me to the theatre to see the 'Roebuck,' the most wretched, trashy, objectionable piece that that precious Kotzebue ever wrote, and, moreover, for pronouncing it very clever and piquant, for this 'Roebuck' is so high flavoured as to be scarcely fit for a cat." This is in the true Mendelssohn vein, and so is the description of a vehicle and driver which the young traveller had to employ: "You would certainly have gone wild with impatience, and possibly assaulted the coachman too, for at every little declivity he got slowly off the box, put on the drag, and crept up the smallest hill at a snail's pace; then he thought fit to walk beside his horse for a time to stretch his legs. Every possible conveyance passed us on the road, even when drawn by dogs or donkeys, and when at last, at a steep hill, the fellow put on two oxen as leaders, whose pace corresponded with that of his horse, I had the greatest difficulty in not belabouring him, indeed I did so more than once, but he then gravely assured me that we were going at a capital pace, and I had no means of proving the contrary." This "had no means," &c., is charming—a bit of most excellent humour.

The critical spirit indulged towards his friend at Gratz was, naturally, much more sharp when art and artists were its object. It belonged to Mendelssohn as a youth. Hear him, for example, talking about the English in 1830, while still a guest of England. "May the devil take all rogues! here not a few run about unhanged, without counting pickpockets. Strange it seemed the other evening when I heard the 'Messiah,' how all the notes were the same; how the entry of every part was precisely in English as in German; how the music speaks the same universal language, and yet every note spoke loudly that an Englishman played it, and that he did not care overmuch about it. The letter was there, but the spirit was absent, and, inasmuch as the letter kills, life was everywhere wanting. About the English style of singing I will say nothing, but will give you a specimen in December; you will fall from your chair with laughing; indeed, you must introduce an English singer on the stage." The British artists of fifty years ago did not know that their nineteen-year-old censor suggested turning them into ridicule for Teutonic amusement, or they would, doubtless, have amended their ways, upon the model of the mellifluous vocalism for which, as everybody knows, German singers are famous. Exactly the spirit shown in the above extract appears in some remarks upon Munich: "You know that when I begin to abuse I go on at it for some time, and so I will take this opportunity to tell you that I was little pleased with the painters at Munich. They are wanting in the first quality that I think a painter ought to have, and that is reverence. They speak about Peter Paul Rubens as if he were one of them, or, indeed, scarcely so high; and think they glorify Cornelius when they arrogantly disparage another great artist, whose worst picture they will never understand. I wish the devil would take the odious vanity that is the order of the day now. By heaven! these people do not know anything beyond their tiresome 'I,' and that is the reason they are so faint-hearted. There is Czerny, for instance; he thinks of nothing in the world but himself, his credit, his fame, his money, his popularity. What is the consequence? He is thought little of in Vienna, no longer considered even as a pianist, and although he has constantly, even whilst giving his lessons, music paper and pen and ink at his side to give forth his ideas when he cannot retain them any longer, even the publishers shrug their shoulders and think, 'The public is no longer so responsive as it used to be!'" This is severe, but it could not be said of Mendelssohn that he was nothing if not critical. His first letters from Italy are full of genuine enthusiasm for the people and country, excited, no doubt, by the idea of being for the first time in that renowned though faded land of arts and arms. We seem to hear the tumult of his feelings as we read: "It happened to be Sunday, and on every side people were coming along in bright southern costumes and flowers, the women with roses in their hair. Light, single-horse carriages drove past, and men were riding to church on donkeys. At the inns groups of idlers were to be seen, in the most picturesque, indolent attitudes; among others, one man placed his arm quietly round his wife's waist and swung round with her, and then they went on their way. This sounds trivial enough, and yet it had a pretty effect. . . . The whole country had such a festive air that I seemed to feel as though I were myself a prince making his grand entry, and the vine branches, with their rich purple grapes, hanging in festoons from the trees, made the most lovely of all festive wreaths." By the way, careful readers will hardly fail to note, as evidence of character, the fact that even here Mendelssohn made himself the central figure of the scene. He was the prince; the people were paying him homage, the vine wreaths were decorations in his honour.

Once fairly in the art-world of Italy, Mendelssohn abandoned himself to its influences, and not to those of music alone. His letters are full of eulogy respecting the old masters of painting, whom he evidently did not look upon, as do so many now, in the light of vastly overrated people. Mendelssohn, so to speak, took them all in, and appears to have regarded them more in a sentimental than a critical mood. Thus he wrote: "I was gazing at Titian's 'Martyrdom of St. Peter,' in the Franciscan Church. Divine service was going on, and nothing inspires me with more solemn awe than when on the very spot for which they were originally designed and painted, those ancient pictures in all their grandeur gradually steal forth out of the darkness in which the long lapse of time has veiled them." But the young master had other experiences than these, and he gives an amusing account of a rough journey through the Apennines, where he found vile accommodation and plenty of cheating. He was, however, though a foreigner in a strange land, equal to the occasion. As to the cheating he says: "I therefore, once for all, protested against every demand they made, and declared that I would not pay at all if they asked more than I chose to give; so in this way I managed very tolerably." As to the cooking: "I made them prepare the soup under my own eyes, giving, moreover, good advice on the subject, but, after all, it was not eatable." As to the people: "I entered into conversation with my subjects from my throne on the hearth" (by this time Mendelssohn had promoted himself from prince to king); and as to the vetturino, who is generally a traveller's superior on his own ground: "I corrected many a fault in his pronunciation." Mendelssohn in due course reached Rome, and one may imagine his exaltation on entering that historic city and first comprehending the extent of its treasures. Over the expression of these feelings—so natural to every man, and not distinctive of any one—we may pass, as also over a good deal of gossip respecting persons and places. But one letter written at this time should be noted. Mendelssohn had reason to believe, from the irritated tone of his father's communications, that matters were not quite smooth at home. Wherefore he addressed to his brothers and sisters an epistle full of sage counsel, and marked by a degree and kind of shrewdness surprising in one so young. After asking whether some domestic recipe for cheering the head of the house could not be concocted, he went on: "I mean by forbearance and concession, and especially by dwelling on the cheerful rather than the depressing side of things; by avoiding all disagreeable topics; instead of calling things 'shameful,' say 'unpleasant'; or instead of 'superb,' 'passable.'" He then recalled his own experience at home—how, when he took an independent course in musical studies, his father retaliated by constantly abusing Beethoven. "So long then as I persisted in upholding and exalting my Beethoven, the evil became daily worse, and one day, if I remember rightly, I was even sent out of the room. At last it occurred to me that I might speak a great deal of truth and yet avoid the particular truth obnoxious to my father, so the aspect of affairs speedily began to improve, and soon all went well." This course Mendelssohn strongly recommended to his brothers and sisters: "My father considers himself both much older and more irritable than, thank God, he really is, but however much we may be in the right it is our place to yield to him as he has often done to us. Strive, then, to praise what he likes, and do not attack what is implanted in his heart, more especially ancient established ideas. Do not commend what is new till it has made some progress in the world and acquired a name, for till then it is a mere matter of taste. Try, then, to charm my father into your magic circle, and be playful and kind with him." Here speaks the good son and wise brother, and in these words, perhaps, we may find some clue to the popularity of Mendelssohn in after-life, when his brilliant gifts were supplemented by more worldly wisdom than quick and impetuous feeling allowed him to show—though we now see that he possessed it—in youth. That a man may utter a great deal of truth while evading that which is obnoxious to his hearers is a fact worth remembering by most people; though, of course, there are occasions in every life when the truth must be told though the heavens fall.

All these Roman letters show with what intense earnestness Mendelssohn regarded art. His whole soul turned against the frivolity and heedlessness of the Italians concerning matters than which, to him, none were more sacred. "The fact is that the people are mentally enervated and apathetic. They have a religion which they do not believe; a Pope and a Government which they ridicule; a brilliant and heroic past which they disregard. It is thus no marvel that they do not delight in art, for they are indifferent to all that is earnest." Wherefore the young musician's wrath blazed up when he saw the Loggie of Raphael defaced "with inconceivable recklessness and disgraceful barbarity;" when he read the inscription "Christ" beneath the Apollo Belvedere; when he could not see a portion of Michael Angelo's "Last Judgment" for a huge altar erected before it; and when he found cattle driven through saloons decorated by the hand of Giulio Romano. It was natural under these circumstances that he should be prejudiced against what he must have regarded as the effete artistic society of Rome; but there were other reasons, above all in the case of the painters. Mendelssohn, the adored of polite society, the hero of numberless drawing-rooms, the gentleman jusqu'au bout des ongles, possessed little in common with the uncouth Bohemians of the Eternal City. Indeed, something of wonderment as well as contempt pervades his clever description of these people: "They are a formidable race to look at as they sit in their Café Greco. I scarcely ever go there, for I dread both themselves and their favourite place of resort. It is a small dark room about eight yards square, where you may smoke on one side, but not on the other. Round this they sit on benches, with sombrero hats on their heads and huge mastiffs beside them; their cheeks and throats and the whole of their faces covered with hair, puffing fearful clouds of smoke (only on one side of the room), and saying rude things to each other, while the mastiffs provide for a due distribution of vermin. A neckcloth or a coat would be here quite innovations; spectacles hide any portion of the face left visible by the beard, and so they drink their coffee and talk of Titian and Pordenone just as if they were sitting beside them, and wore beards and sou'westers like their own. Moreover, they paint such sickly Madonnas, such feeble saints, and such milksop heroes, that I feel the strongest inclination to knock them down. These infernal critics do not even shrink from abusing Titian's picture in the Vatican, about which you asked me, saying it has neither subject nor meaning; yet it never seems to occur to them that a master who had so long studied a picture with due love and reverence must have had as deep an insight into the subject as they are likely to have, even through their coloured spectacles." The musicians were no better, in Mendelssohn's eyes, than their brothers the painters, and he mentions them with scorn: "The orchestras are worse than any one could believe; both musicians and a right feeling for music are wanting. The two or three violin performers attack in different styles, and join in when they please; the wind instruments are tuned either too high or too low, and they execute flourishes in the subordinate parts like those we are accustomed to hear in the streets, but hardly so good; in short, the whole forms an absolute caterwauling, and this applies even to compositions with which they are familiar. . . . I heard a solo on the flute where the flute was more than a quarter of a tone too high; it set my teeth on edge, but no one remarked it, and when at the end a shake came they applauded mechanically. If it were even a shade better with regard to singing! But the great singers have left the country . . . and the pigmies who remain copy their finest points, which they turn into intolerable ridicule." One cannot read the foregoing without being conscious of exaggeration. Mendelssohn made the worst rather than the best of what he saw and heard, but the fact is only another testimony to the intensity of his feeling on all such matters. He was a zealot in the cause of art, and, perhaps, his onslaughts were more vigorous than discriminating, but, happily, he never pointed the moral of Dobell's lines:—

'Tis a zealot's faith
That blasts the shrines of the false gods, but builds
No temple to the True.

Mendelssohn's "Temple to the True" is amongst us, beautiful and enduring.

While thus irritated by much around him in Rome, Mendelssohn found plenty of consolation. Monuments of ancient greatness and of the genius of the past appealed to his imagination and his keen sense of artistic verity, while the natural beauties of the country gave him exquisite pleasure. "Why should Italy," he exclaims, "still insist on being the Land of Art, while it is in reality the Land of Nature, thus delighting every heart! . . . I went lately with the Vollards to Ponte Nomentano, a solitary dilapidated bridge in the spacious, green Campagna. Many ruins from the days of ancient Rome, and many watch-towers from the Middle Ages, are scattered over this long succession of meadows, chains of hills rise towards the horizon, now partially covered with glittering snow, and fantastically varied in form and colour by the cloud-shadows. And there is also the enchanting vapoury vision of the Albanian Hills, which change their hues like a chameleon as you gaze at them—where you can see for miles little white chapels glittering on the dark ground of the hills, as far as the Passionist Convent on the summit, and whence you can trace the road winding through the thickets, and the hills sloping downwards to the Lake of Albano, while a hermitage peeps through the trees. . . That it is a lovely vision I say in earnest. No lack of music there; it echoes and vibrates there on every side; not in the vapid, tasteless theatres."

(To be continued.)

MUSICAL HONOURS.

By Henry C. Lunn.

Falstaff says, "Will honour set a limb?" but assuredly those who fully acknowledge the sarcasm involved in the question will admit that much of the pain of the shattered limb is mitigated by the conviction that honour is gained by a wound which has been received on the field of battle and in defence of a country's rights. Were an army divested of all chivalric surroundings, of all the pomp and glory which attend a soldier's life, where indeed could be found the men who cheerfully, and even eagerly, would lead a cavalry charge, or mount a scaling-ladder over heaps of dead and dying, at the head of what is appropriately termed the "forlorn hope"? If honour were not the feeling which principally animates men of high, and even noble, birth to these deeds of daring, the records of a nation's military heroes would be poor indeed. Granting then that titles conferred by monarchs for the successful conduct of a campaign or for numerous instances of bravery can never raise a man in public estimation as much as he has raised himself by his own actions; as a lasting acknowledgment of his merit from the nation he has fought for such honours should be ready for all who have legitimately earned them; and it would be unnecessary to point to the many whose distinctive title is indelibly associated with the special service for which it was granted.

Yet, with all due reverence for the memory of our departed warriors, and a firm reliance upon the courage and endurance of those still living and emulating their example, let us not forget that far removed from general observation and the possibility of any of their acts being chronicled, live a number of true and noble heroes of peace; persons who have bravely worked—even at much personal and pecuniary sacrifice—to relieve the necessities of their fellow-creatures. How many doctors in remote country-places have often driven at midnight over numberless dreary miles to attend on a dying man or woman without a thought of any recompense for the trouble and misery endured? How many clergymen work night and day in a small parish to mitigate the evils arising from ignorance and intemperance? How many real "Sisters of Charity" devote themselves to the service of the aged and needy, reaping their reward only in the consciousness of having lessened the misery existing around them? True these heroes labour but in a small circle, and their benevolent actions have no perceptible effect upon what may be termed the outer world; but they seek a healthy happiness during their lifetime, and their good deeds are recorded after their death in the memory of those amongst whom they dwelt.

And do we not find equally zealous workers in art—above all arts, too, in that which not only refines and elevates, wherever its influence is felt, but has the effect of knitting together large bodies of individuals in the pursuit of one object? Music is indeed a humaniser, in the highest sense of the word; for the works of the great composers speak in a language which requires not to be translated to make its way in every part of the world. Slowly, and almost imperceptibly, the art has crept onwards until it has grown from a luxury for the rich into almost a necessity even for the poor. Artists, too, who have toiled hard in the cause are beginning—perhaps somewhat tardily—to occupy a share of public attention, and to force upon those who have the power to influence Royalty the necessity of granting some kind of State recognition of their services. The list of those who have received this proof of national sympathy has recently been much enlarged; and as every musician must feel that in ennobling the artist the art itself is raised in proportion, the heartiest congratulations must be tendered to all who have been thus selected for musical honours.

But with every wish that those who have worked for and won these honours before the world may long live to wear them, we must remember that there are many, very many, whose labours in the furtherance of art have been limited to a narrow space, and whose life-long services are known but to a few. As the comparatively obscure heroes we have already mentioned devote themselves to the relief of the physical, so do these administer to the mental wants of those around them; and often, within our own knowledge, has the cultivation of a taste for the highest class of music in a country-town been solely owing to the unwearied exertions of one man. In considering this subject, indeed, instances spring up the record of which would far exceed the limits of our present paper. A professor in a provincial town, who might content himself with the usual routine of a teacher's life, and obtain the best pupils—in a pecuniary point of view—by flattering their vanity and giving lessons upon the showy pieces of the day, commences his career by openly declaring his respect for the art and his fixed resolution to foster its best interests. At the church he positively refuses to play the trash provided for him, and substitutes music worthy of the occasion. In doing this he offends the authorities, resigns his situation as organist, and obtains another in a neighbouring parish. His influence, however, is felt in the place of his residence, and his lectures, at first heard from curiosity, are soon listened to with interest; the effect being that he is urgently requested to teach those very pieces the introduction of which a short time before lost him a good connection. Another emissary in the good cause, who begins by obtaining the post of organist in a country church, immediately forms—principally from the working-men of the neighbourhood—a class for the study of choral music, which he teaches gratuitously, and even occasionally copies out music for practice. Instead of organising concerts for the purpose of playing and introducing works of his own, he boldly attempts to inculcate a taste for the standard compositions by giving performances of pieces which, although entirely unknown to his hearers, he feels convinced must eventually meet with the appreciation they deserve. The success of these endeavours amply rewards him for his labour and anxiety; and although he becomes not a prosperous man, he is at least a happy one. A third, who devotes his mind exclusively to the difficult art of teaching, produces pupils who, although afterwards availing themselves of the instruction and the name of a celebrated master, in fact owe the whole of their training to the modest professor whose fame has reached only a few miles from his own residence. Let it also be said that often when accredited metropolitan Conductors visit a town for the purpose of directing a grand performance of high-class music, the local professor, whose name is only casually mentioned, is the one who bears the whole of the hard work of preparation. He it is who enters heart and soul into the spirit of the undertaking, calling rehearsals as frequently as he sees necessary for the due rendering of the works, directing at intervals separate departments of the choir, smoothing petty jealousies, and in truth never losing sight of the fact that on a certain given day he is to hand over his musical forces to the appointed General in command, perfectly trained for immediate action.

With these facts before us—and many others which might be adduced—may it not be truly said that the spread of music throughout the country is mainly effected by those who diligently and silently work in districts where, but for the earnest preaching and teaching of such missionaries, the most dense ignorance on the subject would prevail. Issue cheap music as you will, and bring the best compositions within the reach of all; depend upon it until these treasures are opened by one who can thoroughly appreciate them, and will explain and illustrate their manifold beauties to those around them, but little real progress can be made. Those who, like ourselves, are in constant communication with the many who are thus scattering the seeds of art through the length and breadth of the land will, we are sure, join us heartily in this small tribute to their worth. "Musical honours," indeed, have they nobly earned by years of diligent and patient toil; and they may rest assured that these honours are no less respected because from their very nature they can receive no national recognition.

THE promised production of the "Mefistofele," at one of our large operatic establishments is, to a certain extent, a sign of the times, and is of some interest. The generation which most of us know "in print" has gone by. A new audience and new leaders of public opinion have come to the front. A British public is at no period self-reliant in art-criticism; and, generally speaking, the publicists on whose opinions it depends, have proceeded from a class—not social, but intellectual—in which there is a predominance of the "bourgeois," the "chauvinist," the "Philistine," or, to use a still more comprehensive word now universally adopted in our language, the "jingo." The orthodox jingoism has latterly been so much ridiculed, that the new leaders of the public taste—followed at a respectful distance by the older hands—seem to vie with one another in driving their flocks into new pastures. We have learned to recognise a few well-known harmony progressions as Wagneresque; and we clap our hands with joy at our critical acumen when we detect them, as we certainly can, in one new composition after another, foreign or British. We have been taught to admire enthusiastically the "Carmen" of Bizet, as an example of Wagnerian influence; whereas it is well known that, as far as Bizet is concerned, his "Carmen," compared with his earlier works, was a return to the old traditions of the "Opéra-Comique." Its success was due mainly to that circumstance; and also to the local colouring borrowed from the Spanish Zarzuela, of which, in this country, we know absolutely nothing. In the first few bars of Arrigo Boito's "Mefistofele" we shall be able to seize upon those eternal chords, those reminiscences of the old German hymns, so happily employed firstly by Meyerbeer, and afterwards by Wagner in modern opera. A younger composer, Gobatti, in the "Goti," and even Verdi in one part of his "Aïda," and Macfarren in some celestial chorus in his Oratorio, "John the Baptist," have all condescended to copy those now commonplace effects. Signor Boito is a poet as well as musician. Like Wagner he writes the dramas he sets. Whether that innovation is an advantage to the art is a point we cannot stop to discuss. It however ensures in the musician a certain general cultivation which will be reflected in his music. The very photograph of Boito enlists sympathy in his favour. He looks the bright, clever, gentlemanlike artist and littérateur that no doubt he is. The "Mefistofele" is full of cleverness and of those lofty intentions we call audacity, when they fail. There are times when we are forced to call them puerilities. Young people who have a fancy for writing operas and dramas generally choose tremendous subjects. The "Faust" of Goethe with its supernatural mise-en-scène terrified even Beethoven; whilst Gounod has succeeded by limiting himself principally to the worldly love-story and the general terrestrial attractions of the drama. Boito, on the other hand, makes a feature of the "Prologue" and its dramatis personæ. If we have only the sense to put Goethe and Wagner out of the question, we shall probably enjoy the musical edition of "Faust" M. Boito has provided for us. We have neither to criticise him as an Italian Wagner or Berlioz, nor as a true representative of the present-day Italian school of operatic music. Behind Boito, is at least Ponchielli, who in our opinion is facile princeps amongst the post-Verdians. Although dramatic and, for an Italian writer, even picturesque in his style, his favoured traditions are evidently more ancient than those of the followers of Verdi and Donizetti. Ponchielli is more of the school of Pacini and Mercadante, who were less dominated than some of their contemporaries by the influence of Rossini. And what do we know in this country of Ponchielli—of the "Promessi Sposi" or the "Lituani?" What are we likely to know? unless we judge for ourselves, with some universality of taste, and are not bullied by cliques and claques of newspapers and theatres. We cannot abuse the theatrical managers. They are mere men of business, and are supposed to know their own interests. If we are taught that only this or that is possible, they will in course of time give us this or that; five and twenty years or more after date, as was the case with the "Lohengrin," or eleven years, as is now to be the case with the "Mefistofele." Why, like vulgar worshippers, should we allow ourselves to be prompted, English-like, to exchange only one shibboleth for another? Why dethrone Mendelssohn to put Wagner in his place? or depose one set of lunatics to instal another? when there is charming music to be had, suited to all tastes, and at present for the most part unknown to us in this country. It is time we were sufficiently educated to appreciate different styles of music. Any tolerably instructed charity-boy will appreciate the best style of music. Years ago we remember at an hotel in Edinburgh asking an old waiter if there was anything for a fellow to do—any music-hall or—— "No, no, no, sir," he said; "there is nothing here but Shackspere and Sir Waalter Scoot."

SOME days ago a morning contemporary announced that the question of the Paris Opéra was, after tiresome delay, on the high road to a satisfactory settlement. At that time everybody acquainted with the facts thought so too. The Superior Commission nominated by the Minister of Fine Arts and the Sub-Commission of the Budget had agreed upon a scheme according to which the Opéra was once again to pass directly under State control. Experience had shown, according to the Commissioners, that private management (although public interests were to some extent guarded by the Government in right of the subvention) was a failure; and they proposed that the Department of Fine Arts should take the establishment in hand, appointing a manager with a council of advisers, and generally carrying on the business for the good of the people. The proposal seemed to meet with much favour, as might have been expected, on the principle that when things are at the worst any change must be for the better, and it was believed that as soon as the Legislature reassembled its sanction would be easily obtained. All this, however, was equivalent to reckoning without M. Jules Ferry, an exemplary Republican who happens just now to be Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts. Before the scheme could reach the Chambers it was bound to obtain the approval of the Minister who would be responsible for it in the House. That approval M. Jules Ferry declined to give. Indeed, he vetoed the entire proposal at once, and thus sent the Opéra, which was furling sail for port, out to sea again. We do not know the Minister's reasons. He may have considered that it was no business of the State to directly provide operatic entertainment for the people, and that the precedent would be a bad one. Or he may have shrunk from making the public Treasury, upon which there are certainly demands enough, responsible for the mistakes of indifferent management. Or he may, like a good Republican, have thought that the project savoured too much of Imperialism, which has always had a fancy for playing the part of an "enterprising impresario." Anyhow, the scheme has fallen to the ground, and with its fall have risen the hopes of several gentlemen who are ready to succeed M. Halanzier, provided they can get enough from the State to make their own risk small. But private management of the Grand-Opéra has always been more or less a sham, since the ultimate responsibility rests with the Government, which has time and again come to the rescue. The private managers run up debts, and, when things are at the worst, the Treasury pays rather than face the unpopularity certain to arise from closed doors. When Napoleon III. ascended the throne, for example, the Opéra was loaded with liabilities, and 50,000 francs were voted for a number of years in succession, till the obligations were discharged. Looking at the special circumstances in the case, it is a matter for doubt whether M. Ferry's decision has saved much to the country. That it involves a loss to art is more than probable.

All persons engaged in the education of children are fully aware of the necessity of presenting subjects to them pictorially, whenever such method is possible, not so much with the object of amusing them, as of vividly impressing upon the mind certain abstractions which would otherwise be dry and uninteresting. Carrying onward this form of conveying instruction, many persons suppose that games can be invented which, whilst they engage the attention of young people, will enable them thoroughly to master difficulties which would otherwise be almost insurmountable. With this theory (as we have before said in these columns) we cannot agree, for experience has proved to us that children, however young, prefer to work when they work, and to play when they play; and that the attempt to unite the two destroys the earnestness necessary for both. The inventor of the "Royal Game of Music made Easy," recently forwarded to us, in his prospectus confidently assures us that those who follow his instructions will find that whilst the game has "all the absorbing qualities of Chess, but none of its difficulties," it will afford "endless amusement to young or old;" and at the same time impart "easily and effectually" a perfect knowledge of the position of the notes in the staff, their relative value, and indeed all that is necessary for a young pupil to become acquainted with. For this purpose a representation of the key-board of a seven-octave piano is given, with the names written over the notes—no sharp or flat occurring on a white key, however, being mentioned—and the game is played by counters similar to Draughts. Whether children will derive much gratification from drawing these counters, placing them upon the right black dots, scoring a number according to the value of the note, deducting from their score when they draw a rest, &c., we cannot say; but this we confidently affirm, that as the practice of music is not a game, all this can have little to do with the acquisition of any useful knowledge on the subject. Do we, in performance for example deduct anything for a rest? and can we teach sound principles upon the rudiments of the art by calling Middle C "Jumbo," and counting fifteen?

The programme of arrangements for the inaugural festival of the theatre at Stratford-on-Avon was in every respect well suited to illustrate the genius of Shakespeare, for although few of his works could be given within so limited a space of time, those which may be called representative plays were judiciously chosen. With the purely dramatic portion of the festival, however, deep as is our interest in the cause, we have nothing here to do; but considering how closely the poet and the musician are allied, we cannot pass over the occasion without expressing our gratification at the fact of one entire evening being devoted to a "Concert of Shakespearian Music." Addison in one of his papers in the Spectator, speaking of the authors who have excelled in entertaining their readers' imagination "with the characters and actions of such persons as have many of them no existence but what they bestow on them," unhesitatingly awards the highest place to Shakespeare: "There is something so wild and yet so solemn," he says, "in the speeches of his ghosts, fairies, witches, and the like imaginary persons, that we cannot forbear thinking them natural, though we have no rule by which to judge of them, and must confess, if there are such beings in the world, it looks highly probable that they should talk and act as he has represented them." Let us now go beyond this, and imagine that were these ideal persons to have their speeches and actions more deeply illustrated by music, even Shakespeare himself could not have conjured up more truly sympathetic settings than our great composers have bequeathed to us. All arts are linked together by an indissoluble bond; and it is no marvel therefore that musical offerings to our great dramatist's poetry should abound; but when we see a "concert of Shakespearian music" announced at a festival in honour of the poet, we may accept it as a sign that time has proved these offerings to be fully worthy of the occasion.

Old playgoers may remember that one of the best parts ever played by the favourite low-comedian John Reeve was that of a parish constable, who being always desirous of preserving order and rigidly obeying the law, insisted, in his inebriated moments, upon taking himself into custody and fining himself five shillings. We have lately been forcibly reminded of this by the action of the music-hall proprietors, who, instead of rebutting the charges urged against the nature of their performances, have now not only openly admitted their truth, but earnestly prayed that they may be placed under proper restraint. In proof, however, of the code of morals which they have always been desirous of acting up to, they—rather unkindly, we think—shift whatever blame has been cast upon them from their own shoulders to those of their singers, and boldly assert that they are powerless to prevent their interpolating verses of a questionable character into the otherwise pure and inoffensive songs which are written especially for their establishments. We are quite certain that any person attending these music-halls could never have had the faintest notion that many of the lines given forth by the "great" and "inimitable" vocalists who appeared were surreptitiously introduced against the wishes of the proprietors; and we cannot but feel sorry for the nightly shock thus given to their feelings. But if they really wished for a censor, why have they waited until indignation has been so aroused by their doings as to cause action to be taken in the matter? Surely what they have done now they could have done years ago; for music-hall singers have really no more right to offend public decency than any other body of individuals. At all events they must know that they were responsible, as proprietors of a licensed hall, for what took place within the building; and must not feel aggrieved, therefore, if their bland toleration of an admitted evil should imperil their licence in the future.

Rumours, for some time vague and uncertain, but now assuming a more tangible form, apprise us of the demolition of Exeter Hall, and the erection of a theatre and hotel on its site. Considering the large number of theatres and the small number of concert-rooms in the metropolis, we should have been better pleased to hear that some building devoted to the drama were to be converted into one devoted to music; for all concert-givers know how difficult it is in the heart of the season to secure a room suitable for the performance of any works of importance. Exeter Hall—so long associated with the excellent concerts of the Sacred Harmonic Society—can indeed ill be spared, especially as we feel convinced that, with a few judicious alterations, it could be speedily converted into one of the finest concert-rooms in London. Let us hope, therefore, that the report of the destruction of a building which we have grown almost to regard with veneration may still prove unfounded. There is always a consolation, however, to be derived from our misfortunes; and should this hall—hitherto devoted to the performance of Oratorios—disappear, we may congratulate ourselves that sacred music of the highest class is now asserting its claim to be heard amidst those surroundings which so materially deepen its effect upon the hearers. The performances of Bach's "Passion Music" at St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey, and the frequent introduction of portions of the standard musical works into the services, not only in these buildings, but in several London churches, are gradually accustoming us to associate the composition with the building in which it is heard. Handel said that his object in composing his Oratorios was not to "entertain" the people, but to "make them better." Sacred music may "entertain" us in a concert-room, but it may "make us better" in a cathedral.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

This establishment opened for the season on the 8th ult. with Meyerbeer's Opera, "Le Prophète," Madame Smeroschi playing the part of Bertha with her usual success, and Madame Scalchi sustaining the arduous character of Fides so well, under the depressing influence of very apparent indisposition, as to ensure both the admiration and sympathy of her hearers. As usual in the early part of the season, new appearances have been relied upon as the principal attraction. Not first in order, but first in merit, must be mentioned Mdlle. Turolla, whose charming performance of Margherita, in Gounod's "Faust," created an effect upon the usually impassive audience which should nerve her to future exertion; for, beautiful as is undoubtedly the quality of her voice, she has much to acquire before she can pass from a good to a great singer. Her appearance is decidedly in her favour; that she sings invariably in tune may be accepted as a proof of her innate musical faculty; and her passionate delivery of the passages in the love-scene with Faust—always a crucial test for the representatives of this character—sufficiently manifested that she has much dramatic as well as vocal power. Her success was decisive; and there can be little doubt that she will prove a valuable acquisition to the company, especially if she is permitted to assume during the season the position she is justly entitled to, even when our established favourites return to us. Mdlle. Pasqua, who made her début as Leonora in "La Favorita," has a mezzo-soprano voice of good quality, and in the Air, "O mio Fernando," she aroused her hearers to genuine enthusiasm. In several scenes, too, she gave evidence of excellent training as an actress as well as a singer; and the applause throughout her performance was warm and well deserved. The part of Marguerite de Valois in "Les Huguenots," was well chosen for the first appearance of Mdlle. Schou, whom we remember to have heard at one of the Concerts of the Philharmonic Society. Her voice is a pure soprano, and she can take exceptionally high notes with comparative ease; but there is a coldness in her manner which somewhat mars her best efforts, and if she retain a place in the establishment, her range of parts must necessarily be limited. The new tenors, Signori Nouvelli and Sylva—the former appearing as Lionello, in "Marta," and the latter as Roberto, in Meyerbeer's "Roberto il Diavolo," can scarcely be said to have achieved any extraordinary success, although they were both well received. Neither Signor Vidal nor Signor Silvestri can be welcomed as basses of the first order, but both have good voices. The part of Marcel, in "Les Huguenots," was, however, a severe trial for the former; and the low notes written for Baldassare, in "La Favorita," are not in the register of the latter artist. Mdlle. Thalberg has returned with some increase of vocal power, and M. Capoul and Signor Gayarré have worthily maintained their reputation in the tenor department, although the last-named vocalist rarely enlists our sympathies. The houses have been uniformly good during the month.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

Schubert's finest Mass—that in E flat—formed the special attraction of the Concert on the 29th of March, being given on that occasion for the first time at the Crystal Palace. There is no work of the master in which his individuality is more clearly shown than in this, one of his latest as well as greatest compositions. It was written in 1828, only a few months before his death, at about the same time as the great symphony in C, and the quintett for strings in the same key. In every movement melody, harmony, modulation, and orchestration alike reveal their composer. Schubert has written nothing more exquisite than the "Kyrie," the "Et incarnatus," the "Benedictus," and the "Dona;" while in the "Domine Deus," the opening of the "Sanctus" and the "Agnus" we find a grandeur of idea to which he seldom attains elsewhere. Even the comparative weakness of his fugal writing is characteristic of him; for he never excelled much in the strict style; his exuberant imagination could not be restrained by the fetters of counterpoint: and it would be difficult to name one really great fugue from his pen. The instrumentation of the Mass is delightful throughout, the treatment of the brass instruments being especially charming. The difficulty of the choral writing in this Mass is considerable, far exceeding that of any other of Schubert's Masses; it was therefore with very qualified expectations that we awaited the performance by the Crystal Palace Choir. We are bound to add that they agreeably disappointed us. The work had evidently been most carefully studied by Mr. Manns; and the rendering was distinguished not merely by accuracy, but by an attention to light and shade which were most commendable. Never has the choir been heard to greater advantage. The solo parts, which are of less importance in this Mass than in many others (at least as regards their length), were well given by Miss Anna Williams, Mrs. Bolingbroke-Mudie, and Messrs. Shakespeare, R. Hollins, and H. A. Pope. The Mass was preceded by a short miscellaneous selection, including the two overtures to Sullivan's "Light of the World," and the "Invocation à Vesta," from Gounod's "Polyeucte," well sung by Miss Anna Williams.

At the following Concert (the 5th ult.), the Symphony in F, by the late Hermann Goetz, was given for the first time at the Crystal Palace. The work has twice before been heard in London, on both occasions at Madame Viard-Louis's concerts at St. James's Hall, under Mr. Weist Hill. Every fresh opportunity of hearing this noble and thoughtful work confirms our favourable opinion of it as a genuine inspiration, and deepens our regret at the premature death of the composer. That we find in it points open to criticism is no more than would be expected in the first important instrumental essay of a young musician; in parts it appears over-elaborated, and too crowded with detail; but it is unquestionably a work of real genius, and one which will take its place side by side with the Symphonies of Schumann and Brahms. The performance under Mr. Manns was no less perfect than is usually the case at these concerts. On the same afternoon Miss Anna Mehlig gave a fine rendering of Chopin's Concerto in E minor; and Mrs. Osgood contributed four settings of the "Kennst du das Land," by Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, and Liszt. The comparison of the four versions, so unlike one another, yet each in its own style so appropriate to the text, was full of interest; opinions will doubtless be divided as to which deserves the palm. Two songs by Mr. Santley, and Mendelssohn's Overture to the "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage," completed the programme of this concert.

The selection on the following Saturday (the 12th ult.) was less interesting than usual. Beethoven's great Symphony in A is of course always heard with pleasure; but of three novelties contained in the programme none were of any especial note. A Concertino for violoncello and orchestra, composed and played by Signor Piatti, pleased rather by his delightful performance than by the intrinsic merits of the music, whilst two other works given for the first time in England—a "Festival Overture" (Op. 148) by Carl Reinecke, and a "Pastorale Religioso" for orchestra by C. A. Krebs, made no particular mark. The vocalist at the concert was Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, who sang "Angels, ever bright and fair," and Ellen's scena from Macfarren's "Lady of the Lake."

Rubinstein's "Ocean" Symphony was the opening piece of the concert on the 19th ult. This fine though very unequal work was last heard at the Crystal Palace two years ago, when it was conducted by its composer. Some parts of it, especially the first and fourth movements (it contains in all six), are among the best things that Rubinstein has written; but as a whole the Symphony is too long, containing two slow movements and an allegretto as well as a scherzo. The finale is moreover one of the weakest movements, so that the impression left on the hearer is not altogether satisfactory. The performance left nothing to desire. Madame Montigny-Remaury had been announced as pianist at this concert, but as she was prevented from appearing, her place was taken at a very short notice by Herr Xaver Scharwenka, who gave a very fine performance (we believe without rehearsal) of Beethoven's E flat Concerto. The vocalists were Madame Patey and Mr. Joseph Maas. The gentleman will be remembered as one of Mr. Carl Rosa's leading tenors in his English opera company; that he is equally well qualified for the concert-room was shown by his very fine singing of the prayer from the fifth act of Wagner's "Rienzi."

On Saturday (the 26th ult.) Mr. Henry Gadsby's Cantata "The Lord of the Isles," composed for Mr. Kuhe's last Brighton Festival, was performed, for the first time in London, under the direction of the composer. The work was criticised in such detail in these columns on the occasion of its production at Brighton that it is needless now to do more than to say a few words as to its performance. The solo parts were undertaken by Miss Mary Davies (Edith), Madame Cummings (Isabel), Mr. Barton McGuckin (Ronald), Mr. Wilford Morgan (Allaster), Mr. Ludwig (Robert Bruce), and Mr. H. A. Pope (the Abbot). Unfortunately, the last-named gentleman was suffering from so severe a cold as to be unable to do full justice to his fine voice; he nevertheless gave much effect to the music allotted to him. The other singers, it need hardly be said, were excellent, an especial word being due to Mr. Ludwig, who has only recently been heard in our concert-rooms, and who obtained an encore for his song, "O holy man." Miss Davies and Mr. McGuckin also sang admirably. The choruses were very fairly sung by the Crystal Palace Choir, and the orchestra left very little to desire. As the concert took place at the moment of our going to press, it is impossible to enter into fuller details. The "Lord of the Isles" is so popular in style that it will most probably be heard again.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

Only two evening performances of this excellent institution remain to be noticed, viz.—those which took place on the 31st of March and 7th ult. respectively, the latter bringing the, on the whole, very successful twenty-first season of these Concerts to its close.

The principal feature of interest in the programme of the first-named evening was the production of a Pianoforte Quintett by Hermann Goetz—one of the comparatively few novelties which the present cyclus of these Concerts has brought forward. The composer, whose short career was so full of promise and whose compositions have of late been rapidly gaining ground in the appreciation of amateurs in this country, does not appear to the fullest advantage in the Quintett now under notice. It could hardly be otherwise. Only genius of the highest order—standing, as Goetz did, as yet in the midst of his artistic development—could have manifested that power of artistic abstraction and concentration of individuality which the art-form in question demands. There can be no doubt, however, that the composer of "The Taming of the Shrew" and of the Symphony (Op. 9) occupies a prominent place among modern German composers, and as such his Quintett (Op. 16) met with at least a succès d'estime on the occasion referred to. The work is divided into an "Allegro con fuoco," an "Andante con moto," followed by an "Allegro moderato, quasi minuetto," and concluding with an "Allegro vivace," the characteristic key being C minor. There is no lack of melodious writing, in which the respective instruments by turns participate, but the general impression produced is that of a certain restlessness and striving after originality which, indeed, characterises most of the productions of a similar kind emanating from the modern German school. The Quintett was capitally played by Mdlle. Krebs, MM. Joachim, Zerbini, Piatti, and Reynolds. The lady pianist just mentioned gave a very fine reading of Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor (Op. 35, with the funeral march), adding an Impromptu by the same composer in response to an encore. Herr Joachim, in association with Mdlle. Krebs, was enthusiastically applauded in the rendering of Beethoven's Sonata in E flat, for pianoforte and violin, as was Mdlle. Hohenschild, the vocalist on this occasion, who gave an air by Handel and two songs by Schubert. Haydn's ever-popular Quartett, embodying the masterly variations on the composer's hymn known as "Gott erhalte Franz den Kaiser," concluded the performances; Sir Julius Benedict being the accompanist.

The final Concert of the season, which, as already mentioned, took place on the 7th ult., presented in accordance with the now time-honoured custom at this institution a programme of a lengthy and miscellaneous character. On the occasion of the "director's benefit" every one looks for a special display of the talents of the principal virtuosi who have contributed so much to our enjoyment during the season about to conclude, and consequently the spacious St. James's Hall is filled in every part with an audience eager to demonstrate their unqualified appreciation of the services rendered by a body of artists of sterling excellence. On such an occasion criticism is almost out of place, and we therefore limit our remarks to a mere statement of the numbers included in the programme, every one of which represented a different composer. The Concert opened with Beethoven's Quartett in C major (Op. 59) for stringed instruments, and was followed by three instrumental soli—viz., Bennett's "Rondo Piacevole" for pianoforte (Miss Agnes Zimmermann), Mendelssohn's "Three Etudes" for the same instrument (Mdlle. Marie Krebs), and a Largo for violoncello by Boccherini (Signor Piatti), which concluded the first part. The second part commenced with Chopin's "Introduction and Polonaise Brillante" for pianoforte and violoncello (Mdlle. Krebs and Signor Piatti), to which were added Tartini's "Il Trillo del Diavolo" for violin (Herr Joachim), and three Nos. of Brahms's Hungarian Dances (Mdlle. Janotha and Herr Joachim). The vocalists were Mr. Santley and Miss Marriott, Sir Julius Benedict again acting as Conductor.

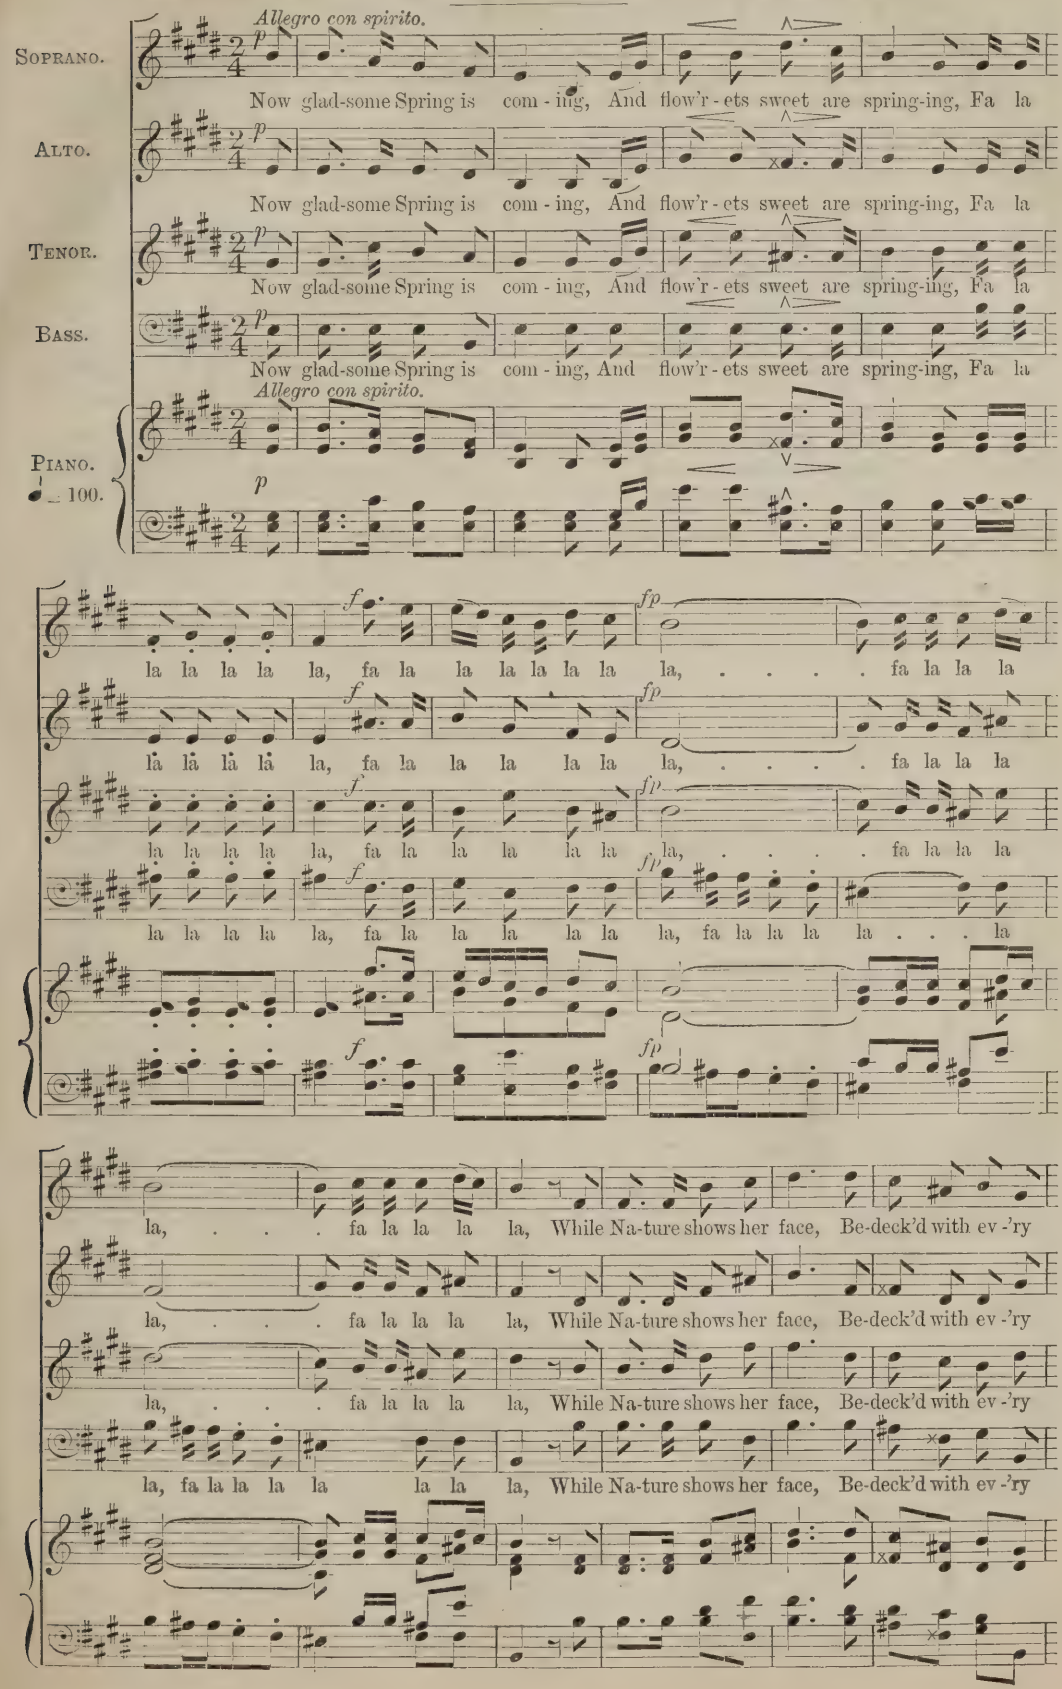
An extra Concert in connection with this institution took place on the afternoon of the 2nd ult., devoted exclusively to compositions by Beethoven, and comprising the composer's posthumous Quartetts for stringed instruments (Op. 127 and 132) as well as his pianoforte Sonata in E minor (Op. 90) and vocal soli.

Song for Spring.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Composed by E. Silas.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.).



Allegro con spirito.
Soprano.
Alto.
Tenor.
Bass.
Piano.
Now glad-some Spring is com - ing, And flow'r - ets sweet are spring-ing, Fa la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la, ... fa la la la la, . . . fa la la la la, While Na-ture shows her face, Be-deck'd with ev -'ry

grace, Fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, The grace, Fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, The grace, Fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, ... The grace, Fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, The Spring, clad all in glad- ness, Doth laugh at Win-ter's sad- ness, Fa la la la, fa
Spring, clad all in glad- ness, Doth laugh at Win-ter's sad- ness, Fa la la la, fa
Spring, clad all in glad- ness, Doth laugh at Win-ter's sad- ness, Fa la la la, fa
Spring, clad all in glad-ness, Doth laugh at Win-ter's sad-ness, Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la la la la, And la la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la la la la, And la la la, fa la la la la la la la la la, And la la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la, fa la la la la la, And ma - ny a blos - som gay Lies strewed a - long her way, Fa la la la la la ma - ny a blos - som gay Lies strewed a - long her way, Fa la la la la la ma - ny a blos - som gay Lies strewed a - long her way, Fa la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la, ... fa la la la la, . . .

la, fa la la la la la la, ... fa la la la la, . . .
la, fa la la la la la la, ... fa la la la la, . . .
la, fa la la la la la la, fa la la la la . . . la, fa la la la la
. . fa la la la la, While earth her voice up - rais - es To sing her wel-come prais - es, Fa la
. . . fa la la la la, While earth her voice up - rais - es To sing her wel-come prais - es, Fa la
. . . fa la la la la, While earth her voice up - rais - es To sing her wel-come prais - es, Fa la la . . . la la, While earth her voice up - rais - es To sing her wel-come prais - es, Fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, We la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, We la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, ... We la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, fa la la, We join our cheer-ful lay, . . And chant our rounde - lay, . . Fa la la la, fa join our cheer-ful lay, . . And chant our rounde - lay, . . Fa la la la, fa join our cheer-ful lay, . . And chant our rounde - lay, Fa la la la la, fa join our cheer-ful lay, . . And chant our rounde - lay, Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la, fa la la la, fa la la la la la.

la la la la la la la, fa la la la, fa la la la la la.
la la la, fa la la la, fa la la la la la.
la la la la la la, fa la la la la la la, fa la la la la.

We cannot relinquish our agreeable task of recording the sterling performances of this institution without a word of regret at the non-appearance again this season of an artist whose unique and not unfrequently inspired interpretations of classical pianoforte music were wont annually to delight us here, and to keep alive among us the traditions of a grand school of pianoforte playing —we mean, of course, Madame Clara Schumann.

The Popular Concerts will be resumed early in November next.

MADAME VIARD-LOUIS' CONCERTS.

After a longer interval than usual, out of respect for Lent, these excellent Concerts were resumed on the 23rd ult. in St. James's Hall, Mr. Weist Hill directing the numerous and efficient orchestra as on former occasions. But, besides an orchestra, there was this time a chorus of about 100 voices, Madame Viard-Louis having undertaken to produce a "Stabat Mater" by M. Salvayre, a young French composer respecting whom many hopes are cherished. No doubt the spirited directress deserves thanks for introducing to us an unknown writer, but whether she acted wisely in departing from the exclusively orchestral character of her programmes (the usual songs count for little or nothing) is a distinct question to which we have a decided answer. These concerts must stand or fall upon their merits as orchestral performances, since the repute they have already gained has been so made; and it is a well-known fact that amateurs who love Symphonies and Concertos are by no means those who make up a public for choral works. Madame Viard-Louis should not, therefore, attempt to serve two masters. Her supporters prefer orchestral music to all other, and the field of labour being wide enough, to them she should consistently appeal. This consideration, however, has nothing to do with the merits of M. Salvayre's "Stabat," to which we must now refer. The composer is still on the threshold of his career, having written this present work as an exercise for the Grand Prix de Rome in 1876. Whether it brought M. Salvayre the honour he coveted, we cannot at the moment say; but such was the impression made by it upon some musical authorities in the French capital that it received a public performance, and served to place the author in a position not often reached by a mere neophyte. Remembering the truth of Schumann's remark that the music of a young composer, unless he be a phenomenon like Mendelssohn, must necessarily embody reproduction and not absolute creation, we do not look to M. Salvayre's "Stabat" for originality of thought or expression. This is well, because, if we did, we should not find it. The work is actually the result upon a clever young musician of Rossini's influence. M. Salvayre has been deeply impressed by and, we venture to say, loves the "Stabat" of the Italian master—a fact of which he need not be ashamed. In the spirit of that work he has written his own. This does not at all imply the guilt of plagiarism. There are no passages in the new setting of the hymn which can be directly traced to the old. It is only that the feeling, mode of expression, and general treatment are, in both cases, identical to a considerable extent. Having noted this fact, we may proceed to give M. Salvayre much credit for the qualities his music displays. He can write agreeable and well-balanced melodies, witness the "O quam tristis" and "Sancta Mater"; he can use the chorus with much effect of expression, as the opening number and the "Fac me cruce" testify; and he can employ the orchestra with adequate control over its resources, while, if his music be no more sacred in character—as we English deem sacredness—than that of Rossini, it is at least forcible and impressive after its manner. M. Salvayre, however, is not yet equal to wielding the thunderbolts of a musical Jove, and his grandiloquent treatment of the "Inflammatus" is a decided failure. But this is the only case throughout the work, and, therefore, we shall be glad to make M. Salvayre's further acquaintance as his knowledge and experience increase in the years to come. The work was on the whole well performed, the soloists being Miss Arthur, Mr. Fabrini, and Mr. Ludwig, and many of the numbers were received with applause.

Turning to the orchestral portion of the Concert, we need not dwell upon the performance of Hérold's overture to "Zampa" longer than is necessary to say that it was splendid. A Fantasia, entitled "Ein Traumbild," by Herr H. Stiehl, made a decidedly favourable impression, though not in any sense original. Herr Stiehl's orchestration is based now upon that of Wagner, now upon that of Gounod, and now upon that of Mendelssohn, whose manner, by the way, he copies in other respects. But while lacking distinctiveness, the Fantasia is so well put together, so admirably suggestive, and in all senses so musicianly that it cannot be heard without pleasure. Finely given by Mr. Hill's band, it elicited emphatic applause. In Hiller's Concerto (F sharp minor) for piano and orchestra, Madame Viard-Louis achieved a decided success, increasing very greatly the respect in which she is held as an artist. Nothing hitherto played by her set her ability in so favourable a light, and as the work itself is to all intents and purposes a masterpiece, we hope she will repeat it at some future time. The delicacy and skill with which Madame Viard-Louis rendered the Cologne musician's charming passages of display should not be limited to a single occasion. That Beethoven's Symphony in A gave the orchestra a magnificent opportunity of which full advantage was taken need hardly be said. In many respects its performance was superb; the Allegretto and Finale especially having such justice done to them as is not often rendered. The programme closed with a "Concert Finale" by Miss Oliveria Prescott—an animated movement, very simple in character, and not calling for particular remark.

THE BACH CHOIR.

This Society began its fourth season on the 3rd ult. in St. James's Hall, doing so very appropriately with a performance of Bach's great Mass in B minor. It will be remembered that the Choir began its public labours in 1876, with the work chosen to inaugurate the present session, and, indeed, that the amateurs composing it were organised chiefly for that very purpose. Naturally, therefore, the Mass in B minor remains as a pièce de résistance, to be served up once a year at least, with all the distinction which the status and means of the Society can secure. If the Bach Choir existed for no other purpose than this, it would have reason enough for living. The Mass cannot well be brought within the repertory of ordinary concert-giving bodies. It demands too much time for adequate rehearsal, and appeals to a public far too limited for pecuniary success. Hence the Choir has a special mission, interfering with no other, while setting an example which, we are glad to know, has already been followed. Let us have as many as possible of these bodies of well-to-do amateurs—men and women who really love art for its own sake, and are ready to further it without reference to pecuniary results. It is not too much to say that the future of music lies in a great measure with such persons. Constituted as our public are, professional concert-givers dare not, if they would, extend the limits of musical knowledge. Their clients have no musical curiosity and will not follow them. Time and again has the experiment been tried by men of enterprise and devotion to the cause, but always with the same disastrous result. Let us then welcome the advent of Societies which, like the Bach Choir and the new London Musical Society, are prepared to show us "fresh woods and pastures new," without the need first of all to ask whether they are likely to lose or gain by the transaction.

We shall hardly be expected to discuss the character of Bach's Mass. That has been done sufficiently during the past few years, and amateurs are now well informed with regard to the work. But a word is due to the performance, conducted by Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, with Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Shakespeare, Mr. Kempton, and Mr. Thorndike, as principal vocalists. Taken as a whole, the rendering of the Mass gave much satisfaction. Some of the soloists, it is true, were not quite equal to the demands of the exacting music they had to sing, but the choruses, for which the Mass is chiefly to be esteemed, were superbly given and made a deep impression. The Choir know them now thoroughly, and sing with a confidence as great as their obvious delight in the task. Hardly a mistake, therefore, challenged notice, and scarcely once could critical ears detect a waver-ing attack, or a diminution of the spirit necessary to give due effect to Bach's exalted strains. The "Sanctus," especially, was a grand performance, and will long be remembered by those who heard it. Applause was, of course, liberally bestowed.

The second and last Concert takes place on the 14th inst., when Bennett's "Woman of Samaria," Bach's Double Chorus, "Now shall the grace," Brahms's Motett, "Es ist das Heil," and other works of interest will be given.

On the 23rd ult. Lord Shaftesbury opened a bazaar in aid of the building fund of the Tonic Sol-fa College, at the Oriental Buildings, Blackfriars Bridge. Mr. Curwen, the Principal of the College, which is situated near the Forest Gate Station of the Great Eastern Railway, commenced the proceedings with a brief history of the Tonic Sol-fa movement, and, speaking of the College, said that they had at present only got the east wing completed, and that the committee had resolved not to put another brick on the land until they had the money. Lord Shaftesbury said he believed that the instruction of the people in the art and science of music was one of the most powerful of the numerous movements for the elevation of the masses. During his life he had seen many instances of the elevating power of music. One case in particular suggested itself to his mind at that moment. It was that of a degraded woman whom he used to call upon in his visiting rounds. He had scarcely any hope of her, until one day he was informed that she was quite an altered being, and was asked to go and see her. He did so, and was astonished at the change that had taken place. On questioning her as to the cause, she told him that preaching and argument had never done her any good, but when she heard her little girl sing the beautiful hymn she had learned at a Sunday School, that was too much for her; she could not withstand its influence, and was melted into tears. He remembered, too, hearing how during the Peninsular War, that celebrated regiment the German Legion, numbering 2,000 men, used to turn out every day and sing their morning hymn in the hearing of the other troops, on whom it made a great impression. On one occasion, when in the West Riding of Yorkshire, he visited the mills of the Messrs. Crossley at Halifax. In going round with one of the partners they came upon a room in which about a hundred young women were engaged at some noiseless work, when suddenly one of their number struck up a popular tune, in which she was immediately joined by all the rest, and the impression produced upon his mind when he heard the beautiful chorus of voices was one he should never forget.

An interesting Recital of the drama of "Alcestis," with Mr. Henry Gadsby's music, was given at the Walworth Literary Institution on the 1st ult. A review of the music having appeared in our columns when the work was first performed at the Crystal Palace, we need only remind our readers that Mr. Gadsby, following the line taken by Mendelssohn in composing incidental music to "Antigone" and "Œdipus," has written some very effective numbers, which, although somewhat simpler in character than those of Mendelssohn, are well adapted to the capabilities of amateur Societies. On this occasion the choruses (notably the dramatic chorus, "Yes, liberal house") were very spiritedly rendered; several members of the choir having taken part in the original performance, being thoroughly familiar with the music. The recital of the drama was on the whole fairly commendable, each character having its respective representative, the most noteworthy being the Admetus of Mr. W. J. S. Gadsby (who also conducted the choruses), and the Hercules of Mr. T. Weller, the elocution of the latter gentleman being especially worthy of praise. The performers had the advantage of the personal assistance of the composer, who accompanied throughout on the pianoforte, and played the effective Funeral March. The performance was received with frequent marks of approbation from a large and attentive audience.

A Committee has recently been formed for the purpose of assisting Mr. William Weaver Ringrose, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.C.O., who has been pronounced by Dr. Maudsley, 9, Hanover Square, and Dr. Robert Bridges, 52, Bedford Square, London, to be suffering from general paralysis. Mr. Ringrose has been compelled to resign his post as organist and choirmaster of Southwell Minster, Notts, and now he and his wife and child will have nothing to depend upon. For nearly fourteen years he held the appointment of organist and choirmaster of Great Marlow, where, by his general character and musical attainments, he secured the highest esteem. It has been found imperative to place Mr. Ringrose under medical restraint in a private asylum (his incurable case rendering him unfitted for any of the public institutions), which will involve a weekly expense, to meet which there are no available funds. The aid of professional and amateur musicians and the musical public generally is therefore earnestly solicited. Donations will be thankfully received by the Honorary Treasurer, M. E. Wesley, Esq.; or the Honorary Secretary, George Carr, Esq., at the College of Organists, 41, Queen Square, London, W.C.

The Borough of Hackney Choral Association, which usually confines its operations to the east of London, where, as our readers are aware, it is doing good work for the cause of music, will shortly make its appearance for a single evening at St. James's Hall. On June 4 the new Cantata "Hereward," which Mr. Ebenezer Prout, the Conductor of the Association, has written expressly for his own choir, will be produced under the direction of the composer. The libretto of the Cantata, which is said by those who have seen it to be most excellent, has been written by Mr. W. Grist, the subject being taken from the late Charles Kingsley's novel, "Hereward the Wake." The cast of soloists at St. James's Hall will be a strong one, including Mrs. Osgood, Miss Mary Davies, Miss Marian Williams, Mr. Barton McGuckin, and Mr. Frederic King. It may be anticipated that many music-lovers who are familiar by report with the proceedings of the Association, but for whom Shoreditch Town Hall is too far for a visit, will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this fine choir in a more convenient locality.

The programmes of the four "Orchestral Festival Concerts," under the conductorship of Herr Hans Richter and the leadership of Herr Hermann Franke, have now been issued. A large portion of these performances will consist of selections from the works of Wagner; but, three of Beethoven's Symphonies are to be given—No. 7, in A major; No. 3, in C minor; and the "Eroica"—and also the Overtures, "Manfred" (Schumann) and "Benvenuto Cellini" (Berlioz). The third concert will consist exclusively of chamber-music. As we announced in our last number, the orchestra will comprise 110 performers, and the following is a complete list of the artists engaged:—Soprani, Frau Schuch-Proska and Fräulein Thekla Friedländer; alto, Fräulein Augusta Redeker; tenor, Herr Ferdinand Jaeger; baritone, Herr Georg Henschel. For the Chamber Concert—pianoforte, Herr Xaver Scharwenka and Herr Alfred Grünfeld; violin, Herr Hermann Franke and Herr Ernest Schiever; viola, Monsieur Holländer; and violoncello, Monsieur A. Van Biene.

An Organ Recital was given in Christ Church, Westminster Bridge Road, on Tuesday, the 1st ult., by Mr. Frederick G. Edwards, Organist and Director of the Choir of the Church. Effective vocal music was contributed by Madame Florence Lancia, Miss Jessie Williams, and the Christ Church Choir. Madame Lancia's rendering of Gounod's "There is a green hill" was most artistic, as was also the duet from the Lobgesang "I waited for the Lord," in which Miss Williams lent valuable aid. Mr. Edwards's programme included Handel's Occasional Overture, Mendelssohn's Prelude and Fugue in G, Rea's Air with variations, the Larghetto from Mozart's Clarionet Quintett, and a Bridal March of his own composition. The Recital was listened to with deep attention by a large and appreciative audience. The church-organ built by Messrs. Lewis and Co., of Brixton, is a fine specimen of their excellent work, combining a perfect mechanism with a full pure tone.

The twenty-third Report of the Benevolent Fund of the Sacred Harmonic Society for 1878 shows that the amount of subscriptions and donations for the past year is smaller than usual; while, on the other hand, the sum expended in relief is, with one exception (1862), much greater than that of any year since the formation of the Fund. The small periodical payments or pensions which are granted to the pensioners now on the Society's books absorb the whole of the income of the invested property of the Fund; and we earnestly hope, therefore, that many of the Society's executive whose attention may not yet have been directed to the benevolent object of the Fund will be induced to add their names to the comparatively small list of donors and subscribers contained in the present Report.

AT Spitalfields Wesleyan Chapel, on Good Friday last, a performance of Handel's "Messiah" was given, in aid of the Organ Fund, before a large audience. The choir consisted of nearly 200 voices, including a large contingent from the Sacred Harmonic Society and Mr. William Carter's choir. The choruses were well given, the "Hallelujah" being repeated by special desire. Miss Marie Warwick sang the contralto solos with much taste, Mr. Sherrard in "Comfort ye," and Mr. W. H. Monk in the "Passion" music, displaying good and well-cultivated tenor voices. Mr. E. Cympson conducted with great care and judgment, the accompaniments being supplied by Messrs. Mellon and Guest on the organ and pianoforte respectively.

THE St. Philip's, Dalston, Choral Society gave its third Concert in the Woodland Street Schoolroom, on Easter Tuesday, under the conductorship of Mr. George Wells, Madame Ourry accompanying the vocal music. Pianoforte solos were contributed by Miss M. Hepworth and Miss Page, which were received with much applause. Haite's "Hymn to Music," the Madrigal, "Since first I saw your face," and Hatton's "Ripe strawberries," were well given by the choir; and a Part-song by the Conductor, "Morning," was encored. Songs were effectively rendered by Miss M. Hepworth, Miss Alice Simmons, Messrs. E. W. Neems, F. Swayne, and Waterfield, some of which were redemanded.

THE fourteenth performance of new compositions, by the Musical Artists' Society, took place at the Royal Academy of Music, on the 26th ult., and excited much interest. Miss Agnes Zimmermann performed a very fine pianoforte Sonata, written expressly for her by Professor G. A. Macfarren, one of the Vice-Presidents of the Society, and whose name appeared for the first time in the Society's concert scheme; and Mr. George Wheeldon gave an excellent performance of two fugitive pieces by Xaver Scharwenka, and a Romance ("The Black Knight") by Arthur O'Leary. Mr. Wheeldon has appeared once before at one of the Society's concerts, and his last performance confirmed the high opinion formed on that occasion of his merits as a pianist.

THE Members of the St. John's Choral Society, Holloway, gave a private Concert on the 4th ult., when Mendelssohn's "Athalie" and a miscellaneous selection were performed. The choir was supplemented by about twenty members of the Athenæum Amateur Orchestral Society, whose excellent playing contributed materially to the success of the Concert. The solos in "Athalie" were intelligently sung by members of the choir, the lyrics being recited by Mr. Charles Fry. In the second part, Mr. Frank Manly played Mendelssohn's "Andante" and "Rondo Capriccioso" very effectively. The performance was conducted with care and ability by Mr. David Beardwell.

IT is proposed to give a performance of the "Messiah" in the Royal Albert Hall in June next, in aid of the Choir Benevolent Fund. We understand that Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Cummings, Dr. Stainer, and other eminent artists have generously promised their assistance, and the members of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society will probably take part in the performance, Mr. Barnby having kindly consented to conduct. A special feature of interest will be the addition to the choir of the boys of Her Majesty's Chapels Royal, St. Paul's Cathedral, and Westminster Abbey, the permission of the ecclesiastical authorities having been obtained with this view.

SPOHR'S Oratorio "Calvary" was the work selected for the special Lenten Services at St. Stephen's, South Kensington, and so great has been the interest taken in these services that the church has been crowded on each occasion. The solo parts were sustained by Miss Elène Webster, and Messrs. Pounds, Fletcher, Gray, Pugh, Pye, and Prenton. Mr. Albert Lowe conducted with much care and ability, and every credit is due to him for the introduction of this great work into the service of the English Church. Mr. W. F. Bradshaw accompanied most ably on the organ, and Mr. Jackman presided at the Mustel Organ. The orchestra consisted of twenty-four instrumentalists.

A RECITAL of Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix" was given at the Steinway Hall on Wednesday evening, the 9th ult., the principal artists being Mesdames Lincoln, Leipold, and Serruys; Signori Zoboli, Vergara, Lindi, and Mr. Faulkner Leigh. A word of praise must be given to the duet between Miss Lincoln and Mr. Faulkner Leigh, "A consolarmi," which had to be repeated; to Miss Lincoln's rendering of "O luce di quest' anima; and to Mr. Leigh's singing of "E la voce." The choruses were conducted by Signor Mazzoni, and Signor Li Calsi presided at the pianoforte.

THE twenty-third annual Lenten performance of Handel's "Messiah" was given by the North London Choral Association on the evening of Good Friday, in the Queen's Road Chapel, Dalston. The principals engaged were, Miss Clara Ingram, Miss Julia Derby, Mr. W. H. Brandon, and Mr. George Weige, all of whom were highly successful. The band and chorus numbered 250 performers. Mr. M. R. Bassett conducted; Mr. R. Virgoe Miles presided at the organ; and Mr. Henry Baynton led the band. The concert was under the direction of Mr. J. Avery, jun., the Secretary.

AN important collection of musical autographs was sold by auction on the 23rd ult., by Messrs. Puttick and Simpson. The most interesting item in the sale was one of Beethoven's sketch-books, containing a large number of themes to be found in the "Pastoral Symphony." These appear in many varieties of form, proving the immense amount of thought bestowed by the master upon the motives he afterwards elaborated in his works. This book, which also contains sketches for various other well-known compositions, was bought by Mr. Julian Marshall for £55.

THE Plymouth Vocal Association, under the conductorship of Mr. F. N. Löhr, concluded its twelfth season on the 16th ult., with a grand performance of "Israel in Egypt," the artists engaged being Miss Anna Williams, Miss Helen D'Alton, and Mr. H. Guy. Mr. Pardew led the band, and Mr. Faull presided at the organ. The performance throughout was a complete success. This is the fifty-second Concert given by the Association since its formation in 1868.

THE Islington Choral Society gave Root's sacred Cantata, "The Pilgrim Fathers," at the Islington Congregational Church, River Street, Essex Road, on Tuesday the 8th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Tavender, Miss Toynbee, Miss Carpenter, Mr. A. Fincham, Mr. Sparks, Mr. Butt, and Mr. Bird. The chair was taken by the co-pastor, the Rev. James White. Organist, Mr. William Henry Whitmore; Conductor, Mr. George Randal. The proceeds were given to the Organ Fund.

CANDIDATES for the Preliminary Examination for the degree of Mus. Bac. at Cambridge University, on the 29th and 30th inst., must send their names on or before the 15th, through the Tutors or Prælectors of their respective Colleges, or the Censor of non-collegiate students, to Dr. Garrett, St. John's College.

AN excellent Concert was given by Mr. F. Cowland, at the Manor Assembly Rooms, Hackney, on Thursday evening, the 3rd ult., when he was assisted by Miss Mary Davies, Miss Martha Harries, Miss Florence Taylor, Mr. Albert James, Mr. George Weige, and Mr. Harradine. Mr. Fountain Meen accompanied, and played some solos with his usual brilliancy.

WE regret to hear that, in consequence of failing sight, Professor Ella contemplates retiring from the active direction of the Musical Union, with which he has been associated from its commencement. Professor Ella some time since lost part of the iris of his left eye, and he is now urged by Dr. Bowman to rest from his professional duties. In other respects the veteran is hale and hearty.

THE St. John's Wood Victoria Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Mr. John Farmer's Oratorio "Christ and His Soldiers," on the 22nd ult., in the New School-room. Solos were well rendered by Miss Ada Barnett, Miss Fanny Gullick, Miss Porter, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Imoff. At the pianoforte, Mr. Parker; Conductor, Mr. Edward Jenn.

Miss Margaret Bucknall, A.R.A.M., a young pianist who has rapidly gained a high place in public estimation, was married to Mr. Alfred J. Eyre, of the Royal Academy of Music, on the 15th ult., at St. Peter's, Vauxhall. The wedding was choral, and was witnessed by a large number of friends of the bride and bridegroom.

Various stories being afloat with regard to the transfer of Sir Julius Benedict's services from Covent Garden to Her Majesty's, we may state explicitly that Sir Julius, of his own will, severed the connection with Mr. Gye, and afterwards accepted an offer spontaneously made, in very handsome terms, by Mr. Mapleson.

Signorina Mazzucato, daughter of the famous teacher of singing, Alberto Mazzucato, who was well known as the instructor of many vocalists of celebrity (including Mr. Sims Reeves), has recently taken up her residence in London, and intends devoting herself to giving lessons in singing.

Mr. W. A. B. Lunn, who died on the 4th ult., although known chiefly in the literary world, deserves a record in this journal as the inventor of the "Sequential System of Musical Notation," a brief notice of which has recently appeared in our columns.

Madame Albani, we regret to say, will not be able to take part in any of the provincial musical festivals next autumn. An offer of an engagement at Hereford has been indirectly made to Madame Gerster, but without the wished-for result.

Sir Julius Benedict's Annual Concert will take place this year in St. James's Hall, and present more decided attractions to amateurs than of late. The principal artists of Her Majesty's Theatre give their services on the occasion.

The Right Reverend Bishop Piers Claughton, D.D., Archdeacon of London, has consented to become the President of the London Church Choir Association, in the room of the Rev. W. C. F. Webber.

Gounod's Opera, "Polyeucte," was performed at Antwerp on Friday, the 18th ult., with immense success. M. Gounod conducted the performance.

We understand that there is no prospect whatever of Signor Boito's "Mefistofele" being produced at Her Majesty's Theatre this season.

Mr. John Francis Barnett is engaged upon an orchestral work having, like his "Lay of the Last Minstrel," a "poetic basis."

REVIEWS.

The Arts in the Middle Ages, and at the Period of the Renaissance. Music: a Supplementary Chapter. By Paul Lacroix (Bibliophile Jacob), Curator of the Imperial Library of the Arsenal, Paris. [Bickers and Son.]

M. Lacroix's works on the Middle Ages have obtained a certain amount of favour, due alike to the careful manner in which they are prepared and the popular style in which they are written. The "Supplementary Chapter" devoted to music, and published separately, contains what we may reasonably suppose any intelligent compiler would collect upon the subject, and which may serve the masses, who merely desire to gain some knowledge of what music was like in the Middle Ages. A student, however, will we think scarcely rest content with a reproduction of the records which are evidently copied from the old works on the history of music, because in the present day many of these records have been proved to be unreliable. Mr. Chappell, for example, in his book on the ancient systems of music emphatically says, "The two systems, Ambrosian and Gregorian, did not exist at the dates of their now-supposed founders. The meaning of 'Ambrosian music' is 'music according to the use of Milan;' and of 'Gregorian music,' 'according to the use of Rome'—Ambrose and Gregory having been the founders of the two churches," and modern research upon the subject certainly proves Mr. Chappell to be right. The statement that St. Ambrose suppressed "the three systems of grave, medium, and acute," and substituted for all the scales "gamuts of the four principal tones which represented the ancient scales of Greek music—Dorian, Phrygian, Eolian, and Mixolydian" will scarcely perhaps be accepted by those who have dived a little more deeply into the question. There is a little obscurity, too, in the paragraph which informs us that Pope Gregory I. "inaugurated his musical reform by collecting the fragments of the melodies of the primitive Church in order to form a book of Anthems, and by modifying the four tonal scales of St. Ambrose." Certainly the addition of scales commencing a fourth below each of those already in use could hardly be called modifying the old ones. But this subject always has been, and we fear always will be, obscure; for as Greek names were given to scales without any real meaning, it is scarcely to be wondered at that authors should differ in their attempts to unravel the mystery; and many of the most learned historians of this period will tell you that it is exceedingly difficult, and indeed almost impossible, to decide in which of the ecclesiastical scales a Chant is written. The illustrations form a highly attractive feature in the little Treatise before us. The chromo-lithographic print representing King René and his Musical Court is really excellent; and from the twenty-one other illustrations we may select for special praise the "Personification of Music, with the auxiliaries, the Poets, and the Musicians," which is a fac-simile of a wood engraving of the "Margarita philosophica nova" (Strasbourg edition); and also the Celestial Concert, in which the angels are represented as playing the various instruments in use during the fifteenth century, from a painting by Fillippino Lippi, in the Minerva Church, Rome.

A Dictionary of Music and Musicians (A.D. 1450—1879). By eminent writers, English and Foreign. Edited by George Grove, D.C.L. Part VI. [Macmillan and Co.]

This work appears to improve as it progresses. In the present part we have some highly interesting articles, that on "Harmony" being perhaps the best that has yet appeared, not only because it presents a well-digested history of the subject from the days of Hucbald to the present time, but because the author has wisely refrained from colouring it so with his own opinions as to make it rather a vehicle for the promulgation of a theory than a review of the varied theories of others. This praise we cannot give for an article upon J. N. Hummel, which may certainly represent the estimate of this artist by "Young Germany," but we scarcely think will be endorsed by the admirers of the school of which Hummel was so eminent a representative. That he was a "classic" of the pianoforte we admit; but that he was a "dull classic" we deny. Several of his Sonatas are masterpieces; his pianoforte Fantasia in E flat and his well-known Duet in A flat are not only remarkable for beauty of melody and polish of style, but for artistic development and command over the resources of the instrument, many of his passages indeed being quite new at the time they were written. Considering the writer of this article only mentions his pianoforte Concertos in A minor and B minor, we may presume either that he does not know, or despises, the Concerto in A flat, which Madame Arabella Goddard performed at a recent concert of the Philharmonic Society. Then are we to give no place to his Septett, Op. 74, save as an "Academical Stockpiece," under which head are also here ranged the only two Concertos mentioned, and the Sonatas in F sharp minor, Op. 81, and D major, Op. 106? His Masses too, although, perhaps, scarcely rising to sublimity—a fault which may be truly charged against similar works of many standard composers—are full of beauty, and he has left us some really admirable ballet music. Considering that (as we have already said) the Concerto in A flat is omitted from the list of his works by his present biographer, and that his pianoforte Duet in the same key is also not named, we are by no means surprised at the writer's opinion of the few which are mentioned; nor at the closing sentence that, besides those particularly specified, there are "a number of Sonatas, Etudes, and miscellaneous display pieces for two or four hands, a couple of Trios, a Quintett, &c.;" but we certainly are amazed at the following summary of his artistic gifts and perfect culture: "Endowed with curiously little inventive power, rarely warm, and quite incapable of humour or of passion, but fully equipped with every musical virtue that can be acquired by steady plodding, he appears expressly cut out for the hero of respectable mediocrity." We quite agree with the writer of this paragraph when he ridicules the fact of Hummel having been regarded in his prime as "the equal of Beethoven;" but in art there are degrees of merit; and we cannot allow so disparaging an article upon a composer who has left us such charming works, and an executant who may be said almost to have founded a school of pianoforte-playing, to pass without an earnest and most emphatic protest.

The Sleeping Beauty. A Cantata for Female Voices. Poetry by Alfred Tenhyson. Music by Henry Lahee.. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

TEACHERS of choral singing in ladies' schools and classes will be grateful to Mr. Lahee for the happy thought that suggested this work. So small is their repertory of good music, apart from detached pieces, that any addition to it certainly commands a welcome, especially when, as in the present case, both story and illustration are well adapted for general use. We need not recommend the poem in which our Laureate has enshrined the beautiful old fairy tale of the enchanted court, the slumbering princess, and the happy prince whose kiss of love broke the sleep of a hundred years. Everybody knows it, and reads it again and again with unabated pleasure, for, though the idea may not shape itself definitely to us, we are all waiting for some form or other of the "fated fairy prince," with whose coming—

> Will the hundred summers die,
> And thought and time be born again;
> And newer knowledge, drawing nigh,
> Bring truth that sways the souls of men.

Mr. Lahee was, therefore, fortunate in his choice of a subject. Let us now see how he has treated it. In the first place he has chiefly written concerted music, in two, three, or four parts, thus showing a due regard for the circumstances under which the work will, as a rule, be performed. There is only one air, but the incidental solos are neither few nor unimportant, while properly avoiding difficulties beyond the average amateur's means. And, in the next place, he has given special and graceful prominence to the accompaniment, awarding to it a distinct and independent share in the general musical expression, and writing for pianoforte and harmonium with excellent taste and just appreciation of the effects to be produced. The Cantata includes five numbers and a short instrumental prelude of twenty-four bars only. In the first number we have a description of the "Sleeping Palace," set as a chorus for three (sometimes four) parts, and relieved by short incidental solo passages. Owing to the great length of the poetic text, the style adopted often approximates to a quasi recitative, whole lines, for instance, being sung upon one chord. Yet the effect is not bald, for it is here that Mr. Lahee's accompaniment stands well to the fore, giving life, variety, and interest to the ensemble. The expression of the verses is, on the whole, well brought out, although Mr. Lahee's self-imposed limits keep him very much to the diatonic scale and the keys closely related to his tonic. Perhaps the most effective portion of the chorus begins with the entrance of the second subject in the relative minor. Here a dramatic spirit animates the music, and an entire change of style makes the subsequent return to the graceful and flowing first theme remarkably agreeable. No. 2, "The Sleeping Beauty," begins with a tranquil contralto air, most unpretending and even languid in character. It seems to reflect the somnolence of the heroine and her surroundings. This is followed by a Serenade for soprano solo and four-part chorus, which may be described as pretty, according to a somewhat familiar order of prettiness. Then we reach No. 3, "The Arrival," and, by means of a two-part chorus, follow the prince as he enters upon his grand adventure. Life and vigour pervade this movement, in happy contrast with the preceding, and we observe that in the accompaniment Mr. Lahee makes use of the polacca rhythm to obtain the effect sought. This chorus is undoubtedly one of the most attractive portions of the work, and will be a general favourite with young ladies, not alone for the fact that it brings a charming prince upon the scene. No. 4, "The Revival," is, however, the gem of the Cantata, so vividly has Mr. Lahee described, by simplest means, the awaking of the court to sudden life. The music rushes on like a March wind, from which, however, we get a little change now and then by, so to speak, slipping round a corner, and watching the effect of revival upon such stately persons as the king and his chancellor. Altogether, the number is capital. In No. 5, "The Departure," the appropriate and inevitable finale to the whole story is shown. Mr. Lahee has contrived to make his love-music sufficiently earnest as well as pleasing, and the whole work ends as agreeably as it began. We congratulate the composer upon the true success which consists in exactly hitting the mark aimed at, neither going beyond it nor falling short.

Preciosa. An Opera. Composed by C. M. von Weber. The English words translated from the German Version of C. O. Sternau by the Rev. J. Troutbeck. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WHEN Wolff sent his drama of "Preciosa" to Weber in the hope that he would compose better music for it than had been supplied by Eberwein, there can be little doubt that he was tolerably confident of the result. We have no records of the original setting of the libretto; but it is impossible to imagine a more charming and sympathetic colouring than Weber has bequeathed to the world, although we know that he cared but little to write incidental music to dramas at the time he undertook the task. Weber could do nothing by halves; and when "Preciosa" was submitted to him, therefore, although his mind must have been haunted with reminiscences of his greater work, "Der Freischütz," which he had just completed, he plunged at once into all the descriptions of gipsy-life he could procure, and reproduced some of the most characteristic melodies he had heard amongst the Spanish soldiers, all of which it is needless to say he transformed into veritable gems by the force of his genius. And yet, strangely enough, with the exception of the Overture, the music of this work is but rarely heard save in detached portions in the concert-room, or woven into an Opera with which it has no connection for the display of some particular vocalist. In the octavo popular edition now before us the improbability of its being produced as an Opera appears to have been foreseen; for although the whole of the music is included, the condensed libretto by C. O. Sternau has been translated into English, in view of the performance of the composition as a Cantata in the concert-room becoming usual. Should it be desired, however, to present the Opera on the stage, the original libretto must be substituted for that here given. The translation is exceedingly good throughout, and we sincerely hope that this new edition will do much towards spreading a knowledge of a work so thoroughly representative of the individuality of its composer.

The Transient and The Eternal. An Ode. Composed by Andreas Romberg. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

ANDREAS ROMBERG is but little known in this country save by his Cantata, "The Lay of the Bell;" and even this is scarcely heard as much as its merits would justify. It has often been said that it is a misfortune for a clever man to write one work which attains excessive popularity, because it prevents his others from obtaining a fair share of recognition. This is certainly the case with Romberg, who was one of the most prolific of composers, the catalogue of his works including six Symphonies, eight Overtures, Quintetts, and other compositions too numerous to mention. The Ode now published, called in English "The Transient and The Eternal," although certainly inferior to "The Lay of the Bell," contains many beauties which should recommend it to the attention of Choral Societies. It is excessively simple in construction; but some of the choruses, especially, are good examples of pure and melodious writing; and its publication in the well-known octavo edition will no doubt rescue it from the neglect with which it has been treated for so many years.

Novello's Octavo Anthems.

No. 193. The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away.
,, 194. The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich.
Composed by A. C. Mackenzie.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

IT is no easy matter to set music to any one among the solemn opening sentences of the Burial Service such as can stand the test of numerous and exacting comparisons. Funeral anthems, indeed, are as hard to write as funeral marches, and success in either is equally problematical.

But in his "The Lord gave," Mr. Mackenzie certainly commands attention, not, it is true, by any startling novelty of design, nor any wealth of melodic power, but by the sustained beauty and solemnity of his harmonies. Upon the effect of these he relies, and with justifiable confidence. Hardly a single progression is commonplace, and yet none strike us as far-fetched and artificial. The result is beyond question appropriate, and the anthem is a valuable addition to a part of the Church's musical repertory which has never been destitute of high merit. The second anthem, "The blessing of the Lord," is of a different character, and wholly beautiful. There are features in it of exceptional power and happy device, such as the treatment of the words "The fear of the wicked," and the delightful manner in which, at the close of this episode, a soprano solo, borne on the sustained harmonies of the chorus, comes in like a ray of sunshine with the assurance, "But the desire of the righteous shall be granted." The whole anthem is a credit to its talented composer and an honour to English music. May Mr. Mackenzie give us many more like it.

I acknowledge my transgressions. Anthem, composed by Clement H. Perrot. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The music of the first part of this anthem is very good indeed in itself, but unfortunately it does not assist in realising the sense of the words in the least. As for the fugal part at the end, Mr. Perrot would do well to gain a little more experience before publishing anything more in this particular style.

Give ear, Lord, unto my prayer. Anthem composed by Haydn Keeton, Mus. Doc., Oxon. [Weekes and Co.]

Dr. Keeton shows us in this important composition that he can write well in a good, old-fashioned, though considerably worn-out style. The first chorus is fugal, and the subject quite beautiful, if not original. Then follows a fairly interesting tenor solo, accompanied towards the end by a semi-chorus. A short chorus in recitative form and a final fugue worked out in scholarly style bring this long anthem to a conclusion.

Three settings of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. By B. Luard Selby (in A), F. Reginald Statham (in E♭), and Henry Gadsby (in D). [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Mr. Selby's music is very commendable indeed, and we recommend it without reservation to choirmasters on the look-out for modern services of the cathedral type and of moderate difficulty.

The setting by Mr. Statham is of a different style. It is in unison throughout, and intended for ordinary parish choirs. It is distinctly melodious and easy; indeed, if we mistake not, it will be a favourite wherever music of this kind is sung.

Mr. Gadsby has given us a valuable addition to the same style of composition. His music is of exceedingly moderate compass—being within the limits of an octave—and with its effective organ accompaniment cannot fail to become popular with both choir and congregation.

FOREIGN NOTES.

The past few weeks have been productive in first representations of new Operas at various German establishments, among which we may mention the following: "Der Rattenfänger von Hameln," by V. E. Nessler (Leipzig); "Iwein," by A. Klughardt (Neustrelitz); "Der Geiger zu Gmünd," by J. Stich (Munich); "Robin Hood," by A. Dietrich (Frankfurt); "Ekkehard," by M. Jaffé (Bremen). Thus it would appear there is as yet no lack of supply of German musical stage-works, although it remains to be seen whether any among those enumerated will possess sufficient vitality to hold their own in the artistic "struggle for existence." Herr Goldschmidt, the young composer whose Oratorio, "The Seven Cardinal Sins," has lately attracted so much attention in Germany, is likewise said to be engaged upon an operatic work to which he has, in accordance with modern art principles, himself written the libretto.

Rubinstein's Opera "Feramors" continues to attract crowded audiences at the Berlin Royal Opera-house. A propos of the refusal on the part of Madame Mallinger to sing certain passages assigned by the composer to the heroine, Berlin papers state that one of the ladies of the chorus having volunteered to undertake the singing of the portions objected to by the prima donna, acquitted herself of the task in such an admirable manner as to attract general notice. In consequence of this promising début, it was decided to test the abilities of the young lady (Mdlle. Bettaque) still further by intrusting her with the part of Agathe in "Der Freischütz," an experiment which, it is said, confirmed the favourable impression previously produced, and thus it would seem that for once the caprices of a great vocalist have done a good service to the art she professes, It will be remembered that the brilliant artistic career of Madame Pauline Lucca had a somewhat similar beginning, she having likewise risen from the ranks of the chorus-singers at the Viennese Opera.

According to the Leipzig Signale, the directors of the Berlin Royal Opera have definitively abandoned the idea of producing Herr Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen" at the establishment in question, on the ground that its performance would "absorb the répertoire for a length of time, ruin the voices of singers, and prove a mistake both from an artistic and financial point of view." Meanwhile, as our reports in these columns have shown, other German operatic stages, both subsidised and independent, vie with each other in the carefully organised production of the Tetralogy, the popularity of which would seem to be decidedly on the increase.

While on this subject we may mention that in one of its recent issues the Allgemeine Deutsche Musikzeitung reminds its readers of an interesting passage which occurs in the preface written by the poet Jean Paul (Fr. Richter) to C. T. A. Hoffmann's well-known book "Phantasiestücke in Callott's Manier." Writing from Bayreuth in 1813, the poet says: "Hitherto the god of muses has distributed the gift of poetry with his right hand and that of music with his left to two individuals so far removed from each other, that to this day we are waiting the advent of the man who would produce a genuine opera, at once its poet and musical composer." We are not sure whether the sentimental poet, had he lived long enough, would have been an approving spectator at the Bayreuth Festspiele, but the passage quoted is nevertheless curious and remarkable.

The University of Breslau has bestowed the academical dignity of "Doctor Philosophiæ" upon Herr Johannes Brahms, who, as will be remembered, has already received the degree of Mus. Doc. from the Cambridge University. In the diploma conferring the Breslau degree, the eminent composer is characterised as "artis musicæ severioris in Germania nunc princeps" (the chief representative of serious musical art in Germany), an academical dictum which should, we think, disarm all criticism of the composer's works for the future.

Dr. Johannes Brahms has, we understand, set to music a portion of "Fingal" (from Ossian's poetry) for chorus and orchestra, and the work was to be performed for the first time last month at Cologne, under the direction of the composer.

The Government of Japan has nominated Herr Eckert, a principal hautboy-player in the German marine, as musical director of military bands of the empire, with a view to their entire organisation on the German system.

In accordance with the annual custom, Bach's "Passion Music" according to St. Matthew was performed on Good Friday last by the choristers of St. Thomas's Church, Leipzig. The occasion was rendered special this year by the fact that it was the fiftieth anniversary of the regular performances of the grand work which, as is well known, were revived under the direction of Mendelssohn in 1829.

The winter season of concerts at the Leipzig Gewandhaus closed on March 27 with a performance of Beethoven's C minor symphony, and the same composer's music to Goethe's "Egmont."

The directors of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik Verein announce that this year's meeting of the Society will take place at Wiesbaden, from the 5th to the 8th of June: five concerts, at least, in connection with the event will take place during that period.

Mdlle. Carlotta Patti, the sister of Adelina, who, after an interval of fourteen years, recently reappeared with qualified success at Viennese concerts, has, it is stated, accepted an engagement for a concert-tournée in Australia, for which she is guaranteed the sum of 300,000 francs.

The Wiener Signale contains an enthusiastic notice of a concert recently given at Pesth by Franz Liszt, in aid of the sufferers from the inundations at Szegedin. The Abbé, who, besides other compositions, played his own "Cantique d'Amour" and "To the genius of Petösi," is said to have perfectly electrified his audience by his unique performance. We learn, on the same authority, that the eminent Austrian pianist, Herr Bonawitz, has lately interpreted on three evenings fifteen of Beethoven's most important Sonatas entirely from memory.

The eminent firm of Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig, are about to add one more to the monumental editions of the works of classical composers already published by them, viz., a complete and critically revised issue of the works of Palestrina. The edition will comprise twenty-nine volumes, of which six have already appeared in the press.

The Behr'sche Buchhandlung of Berlin has just published an interesting work, entitled "Die Familie Mendelssohn," from the pen of S. Hensel, containing in three volumes an account of the distinguished family of which the composer was the most prominent member. We shall reserve a conspicuous place for an analysis of the work in our next number.

"Sordinophon" is the name of a new contrivance, patented by Herr Thomas Zach in Vienna, for rendering silent (except to the executant) the tone of any violin; an invention the beneficial qualities of which we need scarcely point out.

A festival Concert, devoted to the works of M. Gounod, took place on the 15th ult. at the Trocadéro at Paris, on which occasion some four hundred vocal and instrumental artists interpreted a variety of compositions under the direction of the distinguished composer. The concert was a great success.

A new Operetta by M. Ch. Lecocq, entitled "La Petite Mademoiselle," was produced on the 12th ult. at the Paris Théâtre de la Renaissance; it was well received, and is likely to remain on the répertoire of that establishment for some time.

A German tenor, Herr Linden, of the Stadttheater at Lübeck, has just been engaged under very favourable conditions for the coming season at the Paris Grand-Opéra.

Referring to a recent performance at the Concerts Populaires of Wagner's Overture to the "Flying Dutchman," the Revue et Gazette Musicale characterises the composition as "very highly coloured, fatiguing to listen to, and devoid of inspiration; certainly the feeblest of Wagner's overtures."

M. Gounod's Opera "Polyeucte" has created much enthusiasm at its recent first performance at Antwerp.

"Bad times" have caused the managers of several theatres in Belgium to close their respective establishments, notably, those of Verviers, Bruges, Mons, and Liége.

Wagner's Opera "Die Meistersinger" has recently been performed with great success at Rotterdam, under the able direction of Herr Müller.

A Concert in aid of the sufferers at Szegedin was given last month at the Apollo Theatre, in Rome, in the presence of the King of Italy. The first part consisted of Verdi's "Requiem," the second being of a miscellaneous character. Much enthusiasm was created by the singing of Signora De Vere, of whose sympathetic voice and artistic attainments the Roman press speaks in the highest terms of praise. At the same establishment, Verdi's Opera "Rigoletto" has just been performed for the first time, under the direction of Signor Mancinelli, with much success, to which the admirable talent of Signora De Vere is again said to have greatly contributed.

Signor Gomes' new Opera, "Maria Tudor," which was brought out at La Scala, Milan, last month, has proved a failure, although the libretto, from the pen of Signor Praga, is said to be full of suggestive, dramatic, and lyrical situations.

The San Carlo Theatre, at Naples, will, it is feared, have to close its doors on account of want of public support.

We regret to have to announce the death of Ernst Friedrich Richter, for many years professor at the Leipzig Conservatorium, and "Cantor" of St. Thomas's Church of that town, a post which, through the great Sebastian Bach's former occupancy, has become one of special distinction in Germany. Richter was also the author of a number of musical compositions, chiefly ecclesiastical, but his chief importance to musical art consisted in his eminent talent as a teacher of its theory, while his standard work on the subject, entitled "Lehrbuch der Harmonie," which has run through sixteen editions and has been translated into several languages, will sufficiently testify to his exceptional ability as an author. Richter died at Leipzig, on March 9, in the seventy-first year of his age.

At Darmstadt, died on March 1, Carl Becker, a baritone singer of eminence and an earnest artist, who for nearly a quarter of a century had been one of the chief members of the personnel of the Grand Ducal Opera.

The death is also announced, at Paris, of H. Valiquet, professor of the pianoforte and composer of a great number of easy and popular pieces for that instrument.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts, recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Concert du Conservatoire (March 30): Symphony in F (Beethoven); Fragments from "Stabat Mater" (Bourgault-Ducoudray); Symphony in C (Haydn); Ninety-eighth Psalm (Mendelssohn). Concert Populaire (March 30): Pastoral Symphony (Beethoven); Orchestral Suite (Saint-Saëns); Adagio from Thirty-sixth Quartett (Haydn), executed by all the violins, violas, and violoncellos of the orchestra; Overture, "Flying Dutchman" (Wagner). Concert Populaire (April 6): Orchestral Movements from Ninth Symphony (Beethoven); Prelude to "Tristan" (Wagner); Concertino for Violin (Madame de Grandval); Fragments from "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn); vocalist, Miss Emma Thursby. Last Concert du Conservatoire (April 13): Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven); Symphony, G minor (Mozart); Overture (Th. Dubois); Fragments from Requiem (Cherubini). Gounod Festival (April 15): Messe Solennelle de Ste. Cécile; Marche Religieuse; Gallia, Lamentation for chorus and orchestra; Entr'acte from "Philemon et Baucis;" Psalm for chorus and orchestra; Chœur des Soldats from "Faust;" 450 executants. Last Concert Populaire (April 20): Prelude to "La Reine Berthe" (Joncières); Septet (Beethoven); March from "Harold en Italie" (Berlioz); Violin Concerto (B. Godard); First act from "Lohengrin" (Wagner).

Berlin.—Bilse-Concert (March 29): Second Rhapsody (Liszt); Violin Concerto (Goldmark); Chiaconna (Bach-Raff); Pastoral Symphony (Beethoven); Coronation March (Meyerbeer). Bilse-Concert (April 5): Overture, "Zur Weihe des Hauses" (Beethoven); "Schiller Festival" March (Meyerbeer); Prelude to "Königin von Saba" (Goldmark); Fragment from "Roméo et Juliet" (Berlioz); Spring Symphony (Urban). Symphoniecapelle (April 10): Symphony, C minor (Brahms); Largo, F sharp major (Haydn); Symphony Eroica (Beethoven).

Leipzig.—Gewandhaus Concert (March 27): Music to "Egmont," and Symphony, C minor (Beethoven). Conservatorium Concert (March 21): Quartett, E major (Spohr); Rondo, A minor (Mozart); Violoncello Concerto (Schröder); Trio, F major (Gade); Pianoforte Quartett, G minor (Mozart). Conservatorium Concert (March 28): Scherzo (Bargiel); Pastorelle (Haydn); Sonata (Moscheles); Prelude and Fugue (Sgambati); String Quintett (M. Fiedler); Vocal soli. At St. Thomas's Church (April 11): "St. Matthew Passion Music" (S. Bach).

Cologne.—Gürzenich Concert (March 31): Symphony, D minor (Schumann); Overture, "Julius Cæsar" (Bülow); Concerto, E flat major (Beethoven); Adagio for Violin (Bruch); "Kaisermarsch" (Wagner).

Baltimore.—Concert of the Peabody Institute (March 1): Symphony, "Jupiter" (Mozart); Cavatina from "Il Barbiere" (Rossini); Melodrama from third act of "The Maid of Arles" (Bizet); Pianoforte Concerto, E flat major (Beethoven); Overture, "Egmont" (Beethoven); Italian Songs.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE EMPLOYMENT OF THE ORGAN IN THE ORCHESTRA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—I thank Mr. Helsby for supplementing, by his note in this month's paper, my remarks on Haydn's use of the organ. I have never seen a score of Haydn's 12th Mass, but in the late Mr. Edward Holmes's analysis of the work, which appeared in The Musical Times for August 1, 1858, mention is made of the organ obbligato, and a bar from the "Benedictus" of the Mass in question is quoted to show the manner in which it is combined with the orchestra.

Since writing my article I have met with two interesting examples of independent organ parts, in the new edition of Mozart's Masses, just issued in full score by Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel. In the Mass in C, No. 11 of this edition (which, by the way, is also No. 11 in Novello's edition), the "Benedictus" is accompanied by two violins, basses, and organ. The part for this last instrument is obbligato throughout, and is fully written out. Sometimes combined and sometimes alternated with the strings, it is mostly treated in a rather florid style, with passages of triplet quavers in rapid tempo, suggestive rather of the piano than of the organ. An interesting point occurs near the close of the movement, the quartett of solo voices being supported by a dominant pedal of nine bars for the organ, without chords, full harmony being only added at the cadence.

An even more curious instance of the employment of the organ may be seen in the Mass in C, No. 15 of the same edition (No. 14 of Novello's edition). This work was the last of Mozart's Salzburg Masses, and was written in 1780, shortly before "Idomeneo," which appeared in the following year. It is, as regards orchestration, one of the most interesting of all Mozart's Masses. Mr. Edward Holmes appears for his analysis of the Mass (Musical Times, April 15, 1855) to have got hold of a curiously incorrect score, because he speaks of there being parts for clarinets and for four trumpets. There are only two trumpets and no clarinets, but on the other hand there are three trombones, which Mr. Holmes does not mention. This digression from my subject is only apparent; I have referred to Mr. Holmes's article, because in it he speaks of the "Agnus Dei" as being "a soprano solo, with obbligato accompaniment for an oboe, clarinet, and bassoon." The part which in Mr. Holmes's score was doubtless given to the clarinet is in reality an organ part. The instrument is employed here in a way which, so far as I know, is absolutely unique—as a solo wind instrument, combined with the oboe and bassoon, just as Mozart would probably have used the clarinet had there been any in the Salzburg orchestra, which it is known there were not. The right-hand part for the organ, evidently intended to be played on some soft eight-feet flue-stop, is in single notes all through the movement, sometimes playing a florid passage in thirds with the oboe, or in sixths with the bassoon, while the left hand has passages such as this—of a kind that Mozart in concerted music often gives to a solo horn. Mozart is evidently employing his organ in this movement as a substitute for the obbligato wind instruments that were not at his disposal.

Since my article appeared in print I have received a note from the Rev. H. A. Walker, reminding me of a fact which I had forgotten—that in Schumann's Mass in C minor (which was produced by Mr. Walker at St. Alban's, Holborn, at the time when he was Precentor in that church) there is a fully-written-out organ part, the instrument being treated as an integral part of the orchestra. I may also, for the sake of completeness, add that Schubert's "Salve Regina" (Op. 47) for soprano solo, orchestra, and organ, contains a part for the last instrument which in two passages, each fifteen bars in length, is written out in full, while through all the rest of the piece there is only a fully figured bass. A more recent instance of a fully-written-out organ part may also be seen in the score of Gounod's "Cecilian Mass."

Yours very faithfully,

April 23, 1879. Ebenezer Prout.

A PLEA FOR THE FLUTE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In the March number of The Musical Times I was glad to see a "Plea for the Flute" by so eminent a musical writer as Mr. Lunn. I waited for the April number to see if any professors or amateurs would come forward and second Mr. Lunn's endeavours to raise an always favourite, and now perfect, instrument to its rightful position in the concert-room. As none have appeared, may I add my testimony as an amateur flautist to the value of this instrument in its modern and perfected state.

There are three chief qualities in flutes: (1) tone; (2) intonation; and (3) fingering. The two former have been vastly improved by Boehm; the latter by many eminent manufacturers, chiefly by Carte. And it is not too much to say that as a result of the improvements by the two, and now combined in a double patent, the Boehm and Carte flute is the most perfect of wind instruments. Every note is equally full, free, and in perfect tune according to the equal temperament. This flute presents no difficulties in remotest scales, which can be fingered with ease; and, in fact, all sorts of passages are practicable on the instrument. The blowing is "as easy as a glove," and the faintest sigh breathed over the embouchure will awaken a vibration; while a powerful crescendo may be obtained without in any way affecting the pitch.

Having tried various flutes by various makers, and made in various materials, such as silver, wood, &c., I have found that the richest and softest tones are produced by those constructed of vulcanite. The quality of tone is pure, rich, and "velvety" in the lowest octave, and clear and sweet in two upper octaves.

In comparing orchestral instruments, strings will always take the front rank. Among wind instruments the great range of the clarinet will always cause it to be regarded as the most useful. But there is a richness and exquisite sweetness, a peculiar charm, in the tone of the modern flute, which I look for in vain even in the violin: while the perfect intonation and facility of fingering, extending to remotest keys, raise its usefulness in the orchestra to the highest rank. The power also obtainable from the lowest octave, which owing to the weakness and imperfection of the old flute has been seldom used in the orchestra, will now enable it to compete favourably in this respect with the clarinet and oboe.

Can I say more to induce amateurs to take to the study of my favourite instrument? I quite agree with Mr. Lunn's remarks as to shallow, showy solos for the flute, in which the ear is tortured with the musical imitation of the motions and sounds, real or supposed, of butterflies, swallows, &c. Let us hope that an improved taste will lead amateurs to study the master-pieces of Kuhlau and others; and that our best composers will favour us, as Dr. Macfarren has done, with music of a classical form for one of the most beautiful instruments which modern ingenuity has placed in our hands.

I remain, Sir, yours obediently,

H. J. Poole.

Stowell Rectory, Sherborne, April 9, 1879.

NATIONAL MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—Permit me to hope that you will favour me by inserting these lines, though imperfectly written by a foreigner to your language, but a great admirer of national music.

The knowledge of national tunes was formerly considered an insignificant matter, and it was thought that any one was able to collect such pearls of art—memory of a gone musical age. To what extent the art itself has suffered by ignorant and incapable collectors, it is scarcely possible to conceive, still less to describe.

In "The Songs of Scotland," by G. F. Graham, London, 1857, vol. ii., p. 137, he says: "The musical competency of the collector is of much more consequence than is generally supposed. He must not only be a good musician, but able to write down accurately, with due pauses, any air that he hears sung or played. Very few persons are able to do this—not one in a hundred, indeed, of amateur musicians. A very extensive knowledge of music is required for such a task; the want of such knowledge has produced the gross errors in many of our collections of Scottish music." Not only, I may add, of Scottish, but of most other national tunes.

In our days the study and collecting of national tunes has grown to a science, requiring an extensive knowledge not only of music, but likewise a solid groundwork of humaniora. "The Music of Ancient Nations," by Carl Engel, written only from figures on stone monuments, is a highly interesting musical history of the Assyrians. Even a musical composer of world fame, wanting an extensive learning, could not create such a work.

The Welsh air, written down by that eminent master and published in your paper of March, this year, gives the strongest proof possible, not only of the ability of Mr. Engel, but of the qualities necessary for such a task. I have never seen a national tune from the British Islands with such a "fine," considering the melodical construction—the intricate and genial connection of the different movements as well as the harmonious treatment. A life-long experience does tell me that here every note is true, neither one too much nor too little.

I am unable to resist expressing my admiration of, as well as giving hearty thanks to, Mr. Carl Engel for having saved from eternal oblivion such a masterpiece of national music as that above-mentioned "Welsh Hornpipe."

C. E. SÖDLING,
F. R. Acad. of Music.

Weitervik, Sweden, April 16, 1879.

ORGAN IMPROVEMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Your correspondent, Mr. Elliston, I fear, is not aware that by far the most expensive part of an organ is the mechanical portion.

To do as he has proposed, would entail an outlay quite equal to that which would provide a small and wholly independent second manual.

Here are two plans which, for their contents, can hardly be improved upon for real usefulness, I think.

Two manuals, CC to C, 61 notes. Great: open diapason, 8 feet; dulciana or salicional, 8 feet; flute harmonique, 4 feet. Swell: gamba (French), 8 feet; trumpet, 8 feet. Super octave coupler on itself. Pedal, CCC to F, 30 notes. Sub-bass or contra-bass, 16 feet. The usual couplers.

Three manuals, CC to C, 61 notes. Great: open diapason, 8 feet; flute harmonique, 4 feet. Choir: dulciana, 8 feet; flute gedackt, 4 feet. Swell: gamba (French), 8 feet; trumpet (if funds admit), 8 feet. Super octave coupler on itself. Pedal, CCC to F, 30 notes. Contra-bass (small wood open to speak quickly), 16 feet. The usual unison couplers.

Both these instruments could be built so that the sound-boards should be under one table. The "power" would depend upon the scales used.

I know it to be the fashion with many organists to advocate large "swells," to meet the cost of which the instrument is cut down to two manuals; but, from rather a lengthy experience, I am persuaded that it is better to distribute the cost so as to secure three or even four manuals of small dimensions; for it is variety of effect which is to be sought rather than an overwhelming forte, or crescendo, at any rate, as the prior consideration.

I am, yours faithfully,
CARLTON C. MICHELL,
Organist, &c., S. Michael's School, Slough.

Aldin House, Slough, April 2, 1879.

THE MONOTONE AND SPEAKING VOICE IN CHURCH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I felt quite relieved by the remarks of Mr. Woodward in the current number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, on the above-mentioned subject. I, for one, have often suffered from a pompous or sentimental style of delivery on the part of clergymen who have maintained the practice of preaching the prayers. Moreover, I have found that wherever this plan prevails, as a general rule there will be a want of heartiness in responding, and at most the responses will sound like a confused murmur.

But while I take exception to Mr. Troutbeck's advice as to speaking the prayers, I gladly confess that there is much in his Primer which is worth the careful attention of all to whom it is addressed, and especially of inexperienced clergymen and organists who are attempting improvements in the musical part of divine service.

One thing in particular I heartily agree with, and that is the distinct denunciation of what has been well termed a "piebald" service, viz., a service in which while the clergyman, through want of musical ability or, more frequently, through obstinate and unmeaning conservatism of old-fashioned ways, preaches the prayers, the choir respond on a musical note, sometimes with an organ accompaniment. The congregation not knowing what to do, some sing the responses, some speak them, while others in despair relapse into habitual silence. Let the service be of one kind or another: (1) Fully choral; (2) monotoned; (3) or simply spoken. But any incongruous mixture of these methods is much to be deprecated as disagreeable in its general effect, and fatal in its distracting influence upon the minds of the worshippers.

Yours truly,
A. C. A. DROUGHT.

Winchmore Hill, N., April 5, 1879.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will greatly oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music pages are always stereotyped, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

C. H. and P.—The hood worn by Fellows of the College of Organists is of brown silk lined with light blue.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER. — The work mentioned is translated into English; but we cannot undertake to recommend books to students.

A. T.—The motif of the Allegretto from Beethoven's Seventh Symphony has been arranged as a Double Chant by Sir John Goss, and may be found in the "St. Paul's Cathedral Chant Book" and other collections. It is quite possible it may have been arranged as a Hymn Tune.

FRED. R. GREENWOOD.—There can be no doubt that Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" (as it is usually termed) was not so named by its composer. The late Herr Rellstab, in one of his Essays, compares the work to "a barque visiting by moonlight the wild coasts of the lake of the four Cantons"; and it has been said that this is the origin of the name "Mondscheun Sonate."

W. W.—Application to the Chorusmaster of either Opera-house would elicit the desired information.

C. T. V.—You will find this subject discussed at some length in the numbers of THE MUSICAL TIMES for October and November, 1864; also in the numbers for March 1, April 15, and June 1, 1854. The articles in the last-mentioned numbers will be found reprinted as an introduction to Novello's quarto edition of the work.

J. A. M.—Not at every comma should a stop be made, but, as in good reading, where the sense requires it, and where a breath has to be taken. This rule prevails in the best London choirs.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—We think you have no power over the composition unless you hold a written assignment direct from the composer.

NEMO.—Your best course would be to write direct to the Institution.

A CORRESPONDENT asks:—"Are gas-engines being used for filling wind-chests of organs, and if so, where can one be seen so applied, in or near London?"

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ALNWICK.—To inaugurate the music classes formed at the Scientific and Mechanical Institution, in connection with Trinity College, London, a grand evening Concert, on a scale hitherto unprecedented in this town, was given in the Corn Exchange, on Thursday evening, the 17th ult. The band and chorus numbered 170 performers, the choral selections being executed by a body of no fewer than 150 vocalists. Mr. Charles E. Moore was an able Conductor, and Mr. A. J. Gosden, As. Mus., showed himself a most skilful accompanist. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from Judas Maccabæus, the choruses of which were excellently rendered, the solo parts being admirably sustained by Misses Picard, Cockburn, and Thompson, Messrs. T. Picard, jun., R. C. Embleton, and John Bell. The second part was miscellaneous, a feature in the selection being the performance of Mozart's Sonata in A, for pianoforte and violin, by Messrs. A. J. Gosden and B. Thompson, jun., which was warmly applauded. On the Wednesday evening before the concert, the singers assembled for the rehearsal presented Mr. C. E. Moore with a silver-mounted ivory bâton, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Mr. Charles E. Moore, on his conducting the band and chorus of 170 performers at a concert in the Exchange, Alnwick, on the 17th April, 1879." The presentation was made on behalf of the performers by Mr. F. J. Maule.

ARBROATH.—The Choral Society gave a rehearsal of Handel's Oratorio Samson, in the Public Hall, on the 4th ult. The chorus numbered about 100 voices. The soloists were Madame Ada Paterson, soprano; Madame Edwyn Frith, contralto; Mr. Sydney Tower, tenor; and Mr. Edwyn Frith, bass. Mr. W. H. Richmond presided at the organ, and Mr. Henry Nagel conducted. The solos in the Oratorio were very fairly interpreted by the principals. The singing of the choir was admirable, and evinced on the part of the members a very intelligent acquaintance with the work. The instrumental part of the rehearsal was well sustained by Mr. Richmond on the organ, and to Mr. Nagel, the energetic and conscientious conductor, a special meed of praise is due. The excellent attendance at these concerts from time to time gives satisfactory and unmistakable proof that the high-class works brought forward by the Society are not losing in favour with the public.

ARMAGH.—The Armagh Musical Society brought its first season to a most successful close on March 31, by an excellent performance of the Messiah. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Incase (amateur), Miss Cowan (amateur), and Messrs. Wentworth and Price, all of whom were highly effective. The choruses throughout were finely given, the "leads" being taken up with much point and spirit. Much credit is due to Dr. Marks for his unwearied exertions in bringing his choir to such perfection in the choruses of a work like the Messiah, in the short space of three months, and with but one practice a week.

AUBURN, N.Y.—The first Organ Recital of Mr. J. V. Flagler at the Presbyterian Church on the 7th ult. was largely attended, and his performance highly appreciated. The programme was well selected, and the local papers are most enthusiastic in praise of Mr. Flagler's playing.

BATH.—On Saturday, the 5th ult., a special Concert took place in the Pump Room, for which, Mr. Salmon, the indefatigable Conductor, provided an additional band and a solo vocalist as extra attractions. The band of the North Somerset Yeomanry Cavalry occupied the orchestra, the Pump Room band being placed on the dais. Madame Lily Lowe's rendering of Handel's "Angels ever bright and fair" was a specimen of simple vocalisation, which commended itself to her listeners, and secured unqualified approval. The performance of the united bands—especially in Costa's "March of the Israelites"—was exceedingly good.——The Pump Room Concert, on Easter Monday, was numerously attended. Mr. Salmon's full band occupied the upper orchestra, and amongst the selections were several by the Conductor, which were greatly admired. Miss Rosa Bailey, of Bristol, was highly successful in the rendering of the four songs allotted to her, Blumenthal's "The old, old story" and Sullivan's "Golden days" being so well sung as to elicit an enthusiastic encore.

BIRMINGHAM.—The members of St. Mark's Advanced Singing Class gave their first Annual Concert in the Schoolroom adjoining the church, on Monday evening the 7th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. S. Richards, organist of the church. The music consisted of selections from Handel's Messiah; and "The King shall rejoice," Hummel's "Quod in orbe," Mozart's 12th Mass, &c., were admirably rendered, considering the short time the class has been formed.—— Mr. H. R. Rickard, a Birmingham student, who has carried off the highest honours at the Leipzig Conservatorium, gave a Pianoforte Recital at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, the 2nd ult. The programme comprised examples by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Haydn, Liszt, Reinecke, Rubinstein, and a Novelette by the performer. The executive display was of the highest order, and won most enthusiastic applause. Mr. Abbott (violin), and Herr Daubert (violoncello), with Mr. Rickard, performed Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor, and Herr Daubert gave a solo.——A performance of the Messiah, with organ accompaniment, was given in the Town Hall by the Philharmonic Union, on the evening of Good Friday. The principals were Miss Carina and Miss Edith Clelland; Mr. T. W. Hanson and Mr. Lander. The work was excellently rendered. Mr. Stimpson played the accompaniments in masterly style, and Dr. Heap conducted.——On the same evening, the Grand Assembly Room, recently erected at the lower grounds, Aston, was opened with a performance of the Messiah. The room is a magnificent building, capable of seating 5,000 persons. The principals were Miss Mary Davies, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Harrison. There was a full orchestra, which, with chorus, numbered some 400 performers, the whole being under the direction of Mr. Charles J. Stevens. The performance was very good. There is now a permanent orchestra of thirty-one performers, under the conductorship of Mr. Seaton Ricks, and on the 12th, 14th, and 19th ult., grand Promenade Concerts were held. The artists were Madame José Sherrington, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Cecil Tovey, vocalists, and Mr. Keppel, solo flute.—— On Saturday, the 12th ult., the first of a series of Free Concerts, given by the Mayor (Alderman Jesse Collings), took place in the Town Hall. These concerts are intended for those whose opportunities of hearing high-class music are very scant. The hall was crowded with an audience composed of working-men and their families. The concert was under the direction of Mr. W. C. Stockley, and consisted of selections from the Messiah, Judas Maccabæus, and the Creation, also part-songs, ballads, and organ solos. The solo vocalists were Miss Eleanor Farnol, Mr. Young, and Mr. Lander, the choruses being given by members of the Festival Choral Society. Mr. Stimpson presided at the organ. Several members of the Town Council and other leading personages were present. The novel experiment was entirely successful, the audience highly appreciating the treat provided for them.

BRADFORD.—The fourteenth season of the Subscription Concerts came to a termination on Thursday evening, March 27, when the eighth performance was given in St. George's Hall. A somewhat larger audience than usual assembled to hear a programme of Chamber Music, performed by Dr. Joachim, Signor Piatti, Herr Straus, Herr Ries, Mdlle. Krebs, and Mdlle. Redeker. The selection was somewhat disappointing, only one String Quartett (Beethoven's, in F minor, Op. 95), and one Pianoforte Trio (Haydn's, in C, No. 8), being included in the programme; but the performance, it is almost needless to say, was of the highest order, and the applause throughout the Concert proved that the efforts of the eminent artists engaged were thoroughly appreciated. The songs were ably accompanied by Mr. Edward Misdale.

BRASTED, KENT.—At the service on Easter-day, in the Parish Church, the anthem was by Dr. Stainer, "Awake, awake, put on thy strength." After the service an excellent Organ Recital was given by Mr. A. S. Pratt, the Organist, to a large and attentive congregation. The selection included Festival Marches by Gustav Hermann and E. C. Winchester, Offertoires by Lefébure-Wely, Andantes by H. Smart and J. M. Fox, "Jerusalem the golden," with variations and fugue, and the "Hallelujah" chorus. It should in justice be said that the services and music generally in this church have very much improved since the appointment of the present Choirmaster and Organist.

BRISTOL.—At the Monday Popular Concert on March 31, at the Colston Hall, the band performed Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, the Overtures to Prometheus (Beethoven), and Merry Wives of Windsor (Nicolai), Schumann's "Chant du Soir," and a Gavotte for strings only, by Bazzini, the two latter for the first time in England, Weber's grand Concerto in E flat for piano and orchestra was played by Mrs. Viner Pomeroy, and the vocalist was Mr. Herbert E. Thorndike.——On the 7th ult., the next Concert of the same series was given in the Colston Hall, when the programme was composed entirely of sacred music. It included the last two movements of Mendelssohn's "Reformation" Symphony, the Overtures to Palestine (Dr. Crotch), Athalie (Mendelssohn), and, said to be for the first time in England, Otto Nicolai's new Overture, "Ein feste Burg." Molique's March from Abraham, a "Lieder" (Ave Maria) by Schubert, and "Meditation" by Gounod, were also included in the programme. Miss Agnese Heathfield was the vocalist.——On Monday, the 21st ult., the last Concert but one of the same series was given in the Colston Hall, when the band played in capital style Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, the Overtures to Jessonda (Spohr), and Preciosa (Weber), and the March from Wagner's Tannhäuser. Mrs. J. L. Jackson Roeckel played for the first time in England a Concerto in B flat by John Christian Bach, in which is introduced a celebrated Scotch air, "The yellow-haired laddie"; Mr. George Horton, an oboe solo, "Liebeslied" (Taubert); Mr. W. L. Barrett, Glinka's piccolo solo, "Pas des Patineurs"; and Miss C. Steevens and Mr. Dyer were the vocalists. At each of these concerts Mr. A. W. Waite was leader of the band, and Mr. George Riseley the Conductor.

BURFORD, OXON.—The Burford Harmonic Society gave a concert on the 15th ult. The programme included a selection of glees, the most noticeable being Macfarren's "Break on thy cold grey stones, O sea." "The Lord is a man of war" was excellently given by Messrs. Westrope and Bevans. In the second part Miss Cunnynghame played Pauer's "Cascade" with much effect, and encores were accorded to Mrs. Innocent for Verdi's "Doom'd an exile," and to Mr. H. Cunnynghame for Sullivan's "From rock to rock." The Rev. H. Barter's singing of the solo in the "Three Chafers," which was also encored, gave great satisfaction. Mr. Wells's conducting was all that could be desired.

CARLISLE.—On Tuesday, the 22nd ult., Mr. J. Price's Concert Party gave a Concert in the County Hall. The singers were Miss Clara Samuell, Miss Martha Harries, Mr. Price, and Mr. Lucas Williams, assisted by Mr. Thomas Hughes, harpist, and Mr. Puddicombe, pianist. Most of the members of the company are students of the Royal Academy of Music, and their tour in Cumberland during the Easter recess has been very successful.——The Carlisle Choral Society performed Mr. J. F. Barnett's Cantata, The Ancient Mariner, on Easter Monday, in the County Hall, to a large audience. The principal vocalists were Miss Fanny Bristow and Miss Hannah Dutton, of Manchester, Mr. J. W. Brown and Mr. Arthur Crick, of Carlisle. The local orchestra was led by Mr. Ambrose Lee, of Manchester, and Mr. William Metcalfe conducted. The performance was highly successful.

CHERTSEY.—The members of Mr. Fred Monk's Choir gave a successful Sacred Concert, on the 3rd ult., at the Infants' School. The following works were performed: Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm; Mozart's Motett, No. 1, "Splendente Te Deus;" Haydn's Air and Chorus, "The marvellous work;" and a new Anthem, "Fret not thyself because of the ungodly," composed by the Conductor and scored by him for orchestra for the occasion. Mr. J. S. Liddle, Mus. Bac. (of Windsor), led an excellent band, and played Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E minor (Op. 64) with much brilliancy.

CHICHESTER.—The annual Soirée of the Choral Society took place in the Assembly Rooms on the 22nd ult., when the opportunity was taken of presenting a testimonial to Mr. and Mrs. W. Dean, who have been respectively Conductor and Accompanist to the Society since its formation. The testimonial, consisting of a gold brooch and earrings for Mrs. Dean, and a silver-mounted ebony bâton and gold Albert chain for Mr. Dean, was presented by Mr. R. G. Raper, who added, as a personal gift, a gold locket for the acceptance of Mrs. Dean. During the evening an interesting miscellaneous programme was performed.

CORK.—The last Concert for the season of the Cork Orchestral Union was given on March 27, at the Assembly Rooms, the hall being crowded to its utmost limits. The orchestral pieces included the Overtures to Zanetta and Der Freischütz; the "Hungarian Suite," of H. Hoffmann; the first movement of the "Pastoral Symphony," of Beethoven; Schubert's grand "Marche Héroïoque" (adapted for orchestra by Mr. Atkins); and Mendelssohn's Capriccio for pianoforte and orchestra, the solo part admirably rendered by Mr. Arthur Hill. A novel feature was Handel's Harp Concerto, well played by Herr Adolf Sjöden, the Swedish harpist, who also contributed a beautiful "Romance" of his own composition. Some vocal pieces were effectively rendered by Miss Mortelle, Mrs. Brewer, Mr. W. Harvey, Mr. H. Roche, and Mr. P. St. John Murphy. Mr. R. D. Howard led the orchestra, and Messrs. Waters and Pridmore did good service at the pianoforte. Mr. W. Ringrose Atkins conducted a highly efficient orchestra.

CREWE.—The members of the Philharmonic Society closed the season with a performance of the Creation in the Town Hall, on the evening of Tuesday, the 25th of March, to a crowded house. The principal artists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Mr. W. Grayson, and Mr. Thomas Brandon, all of whom were highly efficient. The orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. S. Benn (Manchester), was supplemented by a valuable contingent from the bands of Mr. Charles Hallé and Mr. Edward De Jong. The choral portions of the work were sung in such a manner as to reflect the highest credit on the conductor, Mr. F. James. Mr. George Young, the Organist of the Society, presided at the "Estey" American Organ, and discharged his duties in a highly satisfactory manner.

DISS.—The Diss Choral Society produced on Wednesday evening, the 16th ult., a new Oratorio, composed by Dr. Horace Hill, and it is satisfactory to know that the enterprise has been as beneficial to the Society's funds as to its reputation, since the Corn Hall, in which the concert was given, was crowded. Dr. Hill, who has arranged with great judgment his own libretto, has selected for the subject of his Oratorio the history of Nehemiah, as given in the book of the Bible bearing that name, the leading features of it being the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem. The solo parts were rendered by Miss Bessie Hill, Miss A. L. Moore, Messrs. H. J. Minns, Shelford Cole, W. J. Foxell, and F. Aldrich, all of whom were thoroughly efficient. The impression produced by the work was highly favourable. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous.

DUNDEE.—The members of the Dundee Amateur Musical Society gave their second Concert for the season in the Kinnaird Hall, on the 4th ult. The programme consisted of selections from Cowen's Cantata The Rose Maiden, Mendelssohn's Walpurgis Night, and Kinross's chorus "The Night Dance." The choir sang carefully, and with due attention to light and shade. The solo parts in the above works were well rendered by Miss Ellen de Fonblanque, Mr. Barton McGuckin, and Mr. Cecil Tovey. In the second part Miss de Fonblanque was highly successful in Hullah's "Storm" and "Love, the pilgrim," both songs eliciting warm and hearty applause. Mr. Barton McGuckin also sang with much effect two matin songs by Mr. Kinross, the Conductor of the Society. Mr. Henry Hartley presided at the piano, Mr. Hirst at the harmonium, and Mr. Kinross conducted.

EDINBURGH.—Professor Sir Herbert Oakeley gave an Organ Recital on the 3rd ult. in the Music Class-room, Park Place, before a large audience. The programme was an interesting one, and opened with a selection from Handel's Solomon, which included the Overture, the Choruses "The Nightingale," and "Thus rolling surges rise," with the Air, "What though I trace," and the Sinfonia to Part III. of the Oratorio. All were finely played and thoroughly appreciated. The other pieces were examples of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Gluck, Kullak, and Haydn. A student also performed with much success a Prelude and Fugue by Bach, and a Motivo, "Orpheus," by Gluck.——The first Concert of the Edinburgh Select Choir, formed under the direction of Mr. Adam Hamilton last autumn, took place on the 21st ult., in the Freemasons' Hall, George Street. The programme was chiefly made up of part-songs and glees, judiciously varied with vocal solos and instrumental numbers. Madame Woycke, Miss Agnes D. Hamilton, Mr. W. Daly, and Mr. Carl Hamilton gave their aid, and the result was a very enjoyable concert. The choir, which numbers about twenty-seven voices, merits the name it has taken, for it includes many of the best choral singers in Edinburgh. A Gavotte by Bazzini, for two violins, viola, and violoncello, was well played by Miss A. Hamilton, Mr. Daly, and Messrs. A. and C. Hamilton. Two movements from a string Quartett of Haydn's (Op. 64, No. 1) were charmingly rendered by Madame Woycke, Miss Hamilton, and the Messrs. Hamilton. Madame Woycke displayed much power of execution in her performance of an arrangement by Joachim of one of Brahms's Hungarian Dances; and Miss Hamilton won a well-deserved encore by her playing of a Ballade and Polonaise by Vieuxtemps.

ELY.—On Tuesday, March 25, the Ely Musical Society (assisted by the gentlemen and choristers of the Cathedral choir) gave a performance of Mendelssohn's St. Paul, in aid of the funds of the Hunstanton Convalescent Home, in the Corn Exchange. The building was crowded by a large and appreciative audience, additional seats having to be provided before the concert could commence. The band and chorus consisted of about 140 performers, and the solos were sustained with much efficiency by Misses J. Merivale and Dimmock; Messrs. Haslop, Cox, Evans, Bidwell, Turner, Meacham, and Kempton. The performance of the Oratorio reflected the utmost credit upon all concerned; and Dr. Chipp, the talented Organist of the Cathedral, deserves hearty thanks for the care and attention he must have bestowed upon the preparation of the work.

ENNISKILLEN, IRELAND.—On Friday evening, the 4th ult., a Musical and Literary Entertainment was given in the Protestant Hall, to a crowded audience, in aid of the Fermanagh Protestant Orphan Society. An important feature in the programme was Haydn's Sonata No. 1, in G, for piano and violin, performed by Messrs. Arnold and Knightley. The vocal music was contributed by Messrs. W. C. Trimble, James Plews, Waters, and Major Sitwell, with considerable taste and effect. Mr. Arnold, Organist of the Parish Church, presided at the piano.—— On Easter Sunday, the following selection of music was admirably rendered by the Parish Church Choir:—At opening of noon service the introit, "This is the day" (G. A. Macfarren), Te Deum and Jubilate (Dr. J. C. Whitfeld), in E; anthem, "Now is Christ risen" (G. B. Allen); at evensong Gibbons's setting of the "Magnificat" and "Nunc dimittis;" anthem, "Christ being raised" (Taylor). The Organist, Mr. Arnold, played most appropriate selections from Handel's Messiah.—On Easter Monday the annual Soirée was held in Lisbellan Orange Hall, when the Choir of Enniskillen Church sang several part-songs with effect. The solo vocalists were Miss Weemer, Miss McKeugne, and Miss Lockmine. The chair was occupied by Councillor Jonstone, J.P.——On Easter Tuesday an Entertainment was given in the Town Hall to an overflowing audience, in aid of the Isandula Fund. The band of the Welsh Fusiliers, under Herr Gecks, gave selections at intervals, and songs and duets were sung by local amateurs. Mr. Arnold presided at the piano.

EXETER.—The second Easter Festival in connection with the Western Counties Musical Association took place at the Victoria Hall, on the 15th ult. The greatest praise is due to the Rev. C. S. Bere, Rector of Uploman, who conceived the establishment of this Association, and to his able coadjutor Mr. George Hirtzel. The Oratorio chosen was Mendelssohn's Elijah, which was admirably rendered by a choir of upwards of 300 voices, united to a well-selected band, numbering about fifty instruments. Mr. Henry Leslie conducted. The professional vocalists were Mrs. Osgood and Mrs. Turner (soprani), Miss Grace Godolphin (mezzo-soprano), Madame Mudie-Bolingbroke (contralto), Mr. Joseph Maas (tenor), and Mr. Thurley Beale (bass).

GLASGOW.—A Concert was given by the members of Kinning Park Parish Church Musical Association, in Kinning Park Parish Church, Scotland Street, on Tuesday, March 25. The programme consisted of sacred and secular selections. Among the pieces sung by the Choir were "The Gloria," from Mozart's Mass in C, two choruses from Acis and Galatea, and Bishop's chorus, "The chough and crow," which were particularly well rendered. The choir was ably conducted by Mr. E. B. Conner; and Mr. John Conner, Organist to the church, accompanied with his usual care and good taste.

GLOUCESTER.—The Gloucestershire Philharmonic Society was inaugurated by a general meeting of the members in the Abbot's Hall, at the Palace, on the 29th of January, under the auspices of the Lord Bishop of the Diocese and Mrs. Ellicott. Up to the present time about 220 members have joined the Society, and the first Concert took place in the Shire Hall, on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 26. The works selected for performance were Beethoven's Mass in C, and Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise. A full band, chiefly professional, was provided, and was led by Mr. A. Burnett. The music was, on the whole, well executed, and gave evident satisfaction to a large and appreciative audience. All the solo parts were sung by amateurs, those in the Mass by Miss Wood, soprano; Mrs. Ellicott, alto; Rev. H. Kynaston, tenor; and Rev. S. R. Majendie, bass; those in the Hymn of Praise by Miss Ellicott, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Daubeny, and Mr. Thorley. The choruses were given by the Members of the Society with the aid of a portion of the old Gloucester Choral Society. The performance of the orchestral movements of the Hymn of Praise by the band was excellent, and elicited warm and well-deserved applause. The musical arrangements were made, and the performance admirably conducted, by the Cathedral Organist, C. Harford Lloyd, Esq., Mus. B., who is the Society's appointed Conductor.

GOOLE.—Mendelssohn's Athalie was given at the Concert of the Goole Choral Society on Friday evening, the 4th ult., in the Alexandra Street Schoolroom. The chorus numbered over ninety. Mr. James Milnes acted as Conductor and Accompanist, and the programme (the second part of which was miscellaneous) was well rendered. The performance of Athalie occupied the earlier part of the concert. In Mr. Milnes's hands it is needless to say that the Overture and "War March of the Priests" were done as much justice to as could be expected on a single instrument. Upon Mrs. Haigh devolved the chief burden, but she was not in such good voice as usual, evidently labouring under indisposition. The choruses were on the whole well given, and the narrative portions were effectively recited by Mr. Amos Gooderidge. The concert was a satisfactory one throughout, and the Society may be fairly congratulated on the result of its year's work.

HANLEY.—The Hanley and Shelton Philharmonic Society's second Concert was given at the Imperial Circus on the 17th ult., the principal portion of the programme being devoted to the first and second parts of Haydn's Creation. Miss Mary Davies, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Thurley Beale rendered the solos in this work with marked success; and a choir of nearly 200 voices gave the choruses with excellent effect. In the miscellaneous part of the concert several part-songs were finely sung by the choir. The concert was ably conducted by Mr. F. Mountford.

HETTON-LE-HOLE, DURHAM.—On Good Friday evening, the 11th ult., the Oratorio Judas Maccabæus was performed in the Methodist Chapel by the Choral Society, to a large audience. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Shepherd, Miss Lonsdale, Mr. D. Whitehead, and Mr. Grice. Leader of the band, Mr. Ferry; Organist, Mr. Shepherd, A.R.A.M.; Conductor, Mr. R. Strachan.

HEXHAM.—To Mr. John Nicholson, the Organist of the Abbey Church, is due the credit of having taken the initiatory steps towards the production, for the first time in Hexham, of Handel's Oratorio The Messiah, and on him, we believe, devolved the responsibility attaching to its performance on Thursday, the 10th ult., in the Town Hall. The chorus consisted of forty-eight voices—eighteen trebles, nine altos, nine tenors, and twelve basses; the principals were Mrs. Vinycombe (soprano), Mr. Hedderley (alto), Mr. W. J. Pletts (tenor), and Mr. Metcalfe (bass). Mr. W. Wilson presided at the organ, and Mr. John Nicholson accompanied on the pianoforte. Mr. Metcalfe, in addition to his duties as a soloist, officiated as Conductor—a position which his large experience and musical ability eminently qualified him to fill. The choruses were given with great precision, steadiness, and accuracy; and the members of the Choir, as well as their teacher, Mr. Nicholson, are deserving of unqualified praise.

HIGH WYCOMBE, BUCKS.—On the 16th ult., the Choral Association gave its second Concert of the season. The programme comprised a selection of vocal and instrumental music, solo and concerted. Among the vocal pieces, mention must be made of Thorne's part-song, "The Lake and Waterfall," Blumenthal's song, "Life" (well sung by Mrs. Webb), and Hatton's song, "The Lark now leaves," well sung by Miss Emily Butler. Mr. J. S. Liddle's playing of a "Valse de Concert" (Kalliwoda), and a Bolero by Mosezkowski elicited much applause. Mr. J. G. Wrigley, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Oxon., conducted, and played the "Adagio" and "Rondo," from Beethoven's "Sonata Pathétique," and a "Nocturne" and "Polonaise," by Chopin.

Holywood, Belfast.—On the 10th ult. the first of a series of Recitals was given on the organ of the Parish Church by Mr. W. F. W. Jackson, Mus. Bac., Oxon, the recently appointed Organist. The programme, which was well selected, was listened to with much interest by a large audience.

Hyeres (South of France).—The English Philharmonic Society of Hyères gave its third and last Concert this season at the Theatre, on Saturday, March 29. The celebrated Marseilles Quartett Party, composed of Messrs. Millont, Zauffenberger, Aubert, and Casella, gave an admirable rendering of Beethoven's 2nd Quartett for strings; and a pianoforte Quintett, by Schumann, was also finely given by the above-named artists and M. Cahen, a pianist of great merit, and Prix de Rome of the Paris Conservatoire. The vocal and instrumental solos were all excellent of their kind, especially two small pieces for the violoncello, by Popper and Offenbach, splendidly played by M. Casella, a young artist of very great talent.

Leeds.—At the Concert of the Philharmonic Society which took place at the Town Hall on the 15th ult., the whole programme consisted of compositions which have never previously been heard in Leeds. The most important work was the Sixth Chandos Anthem, one of the finest of the twelve composed by Handel. The second and fifth numbers, which are unaccompanied choruses, were so well sung as to be redemanded in a manner that would admit of no denial. Astorga's Stabat Mater, a grand setting of the old hymn, and Schubert's Cantata The Song of Miriam, which abounds in lovely melody and magnificent choral effects, were also highly appreciated. The soprano solos were well sung by Miss Arthur, who possesses a fine voice and admirable style. Mr. Thornton Wood sang the bass music with much success, and Miss Dixon and Mr. Verney Binns sustained the contralto and tenor parts. Mr. James Broughton, the efficient Conductor of the Society, made the very best of the materials at his command, and Mr. Alfred Broughton rendered excellent service at the organ.

Leicester.—The new Choral Society gave a performance, on March 31, in the Temperance Hall, of Sir M. Costa's Oratorio Eli, with a band and chorus of about 300 performers. The principals were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Martha Harries, Mr. B. McGuckin, Mr. R. C. Allen, and Mr. Thurley Beale, all of whom were thoroughly successful—Madame Lemmens-Sherrington in "I will extol Thee," Miss Harries in the Morning Hymn, and Mr. McGuckin in the grand War Song, eliciting warm and well-deserved applause—and the choruses being given throughout in a manner highly creditable to the Society. The band was everything that could be desired. Mr. H. B. Ellis (Organist of St. Mary's) presided at the harmonium, Miss Clowes at the harp, and Mr. Hancock, Mus. Bac., conducted.

Liverpool.—The eighty-third Anniversary Dinner of the Apollo Glee Club, which is the oldest Society of the kind but one in England, took place on the 3rd ult. Mr. Joseph Queen presided; Messrs. W. Laidlaw and T. Armstrong being vice-presidents. An excellent selection of glees by Webbe, Dr. Callcott, Dr. Jno. Clark, Bishop, Battye, Hatton, Geo. Holden, Danby, &c., was well rendered by the performing members. Mr. Joseph Skeaf presided at the piano. During the evening a testimonial was presented to Mr. J. B. Clarke, who for many years has acted as honorary secretary.

Llanidloes.—A Concert was given, on the 16th ult., in aid of the Baptist Church Building Fund, the majority of the performers engaged comprising a choir of upwards of seventy voices, a numerous orchestra, and several soloists chosen from the juvenile portion of the inhabitants of the locality. The performances of the choir in choruses from Handel, Haydn, &c, were quite up to the average of the excellent chorus-singing in this locality; and much credit is due to the able Conductor, Mr. Hugh Jennan, who evidently has spared no pains in the training of either the singers or the instrumentalists, the band playing with much effect several selections from Verdi, Donizetti, &c. The juvenile soloists were the Misses George and Florence Kitto (Llanidloes) and Owen (Newtown), and the adult principal singers Messrs. W. Francis (tenor) and W. Jenkins (bass). The only professional engaged was Miss Jeannie Rosse, of the Royal Academy of Music, who was most successful in all her songs. The accompaniments were ably played by Miss Littlehales (Oswestry) and Miss Kitto and Mr. A. Morris (Llanidloes).

Lyndhurst.—The Lyndhurst Choral Society gave its last Concert for the season on Thursday, the 17th ult. The first part consisted of Sir W. S. Bennett's Woman of Samaria. The vocalists were, Hon. Mrs. Robinson, Miss Baldock, Rev. E. B. Brackenbury, and Mr. G. Wade, who ably filled the place of Mr. W. F. Summers (prevented by indisposition from appearing). Mrs. Macleay presided at the piano, and Miss Burrard at the harmonium. The solos were exceedingly well rendered, and the choruses given with the utmost care and precision. A miscellaneous part followed, when Mr. A. H. Lushington gave a song, and Mr. J. Ridgway, R.A.M., a piano solo. Conductor, Mr. E. Hammick.——An Organ Recital was given in St. Michael's Church, on Monday the 21st ult., by Mr. W. F. Summers. Among the pieces performed were, Largo from Symphony in G (Haydn), Fugue on Chorale in G (Krocker), and Fugue in G minor (Bach). The programme was interspersed with selections from the Woman of Samaria, performed by the Lyndhurst Choral Society.

Maidstone.—A Concert was given on the 18th ult. at the Concert Hall, by Mr. Francis Howell, whose Cantata entitled The Song of the Months formed the principal feature in the programme. Of the merits of the Cantata as a musical work there can be no doubt. Throughout the music is pleasing and effective, and is extremely creditable to the composer. In order to produce the composition in an attractive manner considerable pains had been taken. A numerous chorus had been carefully trained, and the principal vocalists were Miss Ellen Horne, Mr. Morriss, Mr. Crowe, the Rev. T. Constable and Mr. H. C. Pearson. Mr. Howell acted as Conductor, Mr. Sidney H. French ably presided at the pianoforte, and the band was thoroughly efficient. The second part of the concert was miscellaneous.

Middlesborough.—On Thursday evening, the 17th ult., the first Subscription Concert of the season was given by the members of the Middlesborough Philharmonic Society. The Orchestra, which is considered a very good one, gave, under the able conductorship of Herr Grönings, a good rendering of Beethoven's No. 1 Symphony, the Entr'acte, Rosamunde, Act 2, Schubert, and the Overtures to Semiramide, and Guy Mannering. Madame Patey and Mr. Barton McGuckin were the solo vocalists. Mr. Rudersdorff contributed a violoncello solo, which was encored, and Mr. Kearney gave an excellent rendering of Vivier's Romance for Horn.

Montreal.—The first of the series of classical Chamber Concerts, under the direction of Mr. F. E. Lucy-Barnes, R.A.M., took place in the Synod Hall, on Tuesday evening, March 18, before an audience which completely filled the hall, and included a large number of the musical profession. The programme comprised two Trios for pianoforte (Mr. Barnes), violin (Mr. Maffre), and violoncello (Mr. Reichling), a duet for violin and piano, two pianoforte solos, and two songs, all of which were most efficiently rendered. Mrs. Barnes sang, as she always does, like a thorough artist. The exquisite pathos of Schubert's "Meine Ruh ist hin" was most effectively brought out, and Henry Smart's bright and graceful song, "The birds were telling one another," was charmingly sung. On Mr. Barnes's pianoforte playing we need not dilate, suffice it to say that, great organist as he is, as a pianist he is fully as good. Praise must also be awarded to Miss Holmes, whose rendering of a Gavotte, by Saint-Saëns, on the pianoforte, was much admired.

Morecambe.—On Tuesday evening, the 22nd ult., the members of the Morecambe Choral Society gave a highly successful Concert to a numerous and fashionable audience. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from Judas Maccabæus, Elijah, and Mendelssohn's Lobgesang. The second part was miscellaneous. The solos and duets were well rendered by Miss Curwen, Miss Asquith, Miss Shaw, Miss Holmes, Mr. Holmes, and Mr. Atkinson; Mr. T. Wilson acted as Accompanist. The choruses were rendered in a creditable style, "Let all men praise the Lord," "Sing unto God," and Gounod's setting of Psalm 137, "By Babylon's Wave," receiving marked favour. Mr. W. W. Wilde conducted.

Northampton.—The members of the Northampton Choral Society gave their third and last Concert of the season on Thursday, the 17th ult., Mozart's Twelfth Mass and Macfarren's Cantata, May Day, being chosen for performance, with a miscellaneous selection between. The soloists were Miss Arthur (soprano), Miss Annie Butterworth (contralto), Mr. Frank Boyle (tenor), and Mr. Edley Swift (bass). Mr. Noah Pratt was the Conductor. There was a very good attendance, although not so large as on previous occasions.

Norwich.—Haydn's Oratorio, The Seven Words of Our Redeemer on the Cross, was given in its entirety at the Cathedral on Good Friday evening, before an exceedingly large congregation. Following the original design, the Very Rev. the Dean of Norwich delivered a short address on each of the seven sentences, which was immediately followed by the corresponding movement in the Oratorio. The effect was very impressive. This was specially marked by the reverent attention of the vast congregation assembled in the grand old building. The performance of the work was exceedingly good throughout, Dr. Gladstone presiding at the organ with great ability and judgment. The service commenced and concluded with prayer.

Penninghame, N.B.—On the 2nd ult., Mr. S. W. Pilling, of Bolton, gave a Recital on the new organ in Penninghame Church, recently erected by Mr. Harston, of Newark. The programme was selected from the works of Wely, Wesley, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Lemmens, W. S. Bennett, G. Merkel, and F. Lux. The entire scheme was rendered with Mr. Pilling's well-known ability, and met with the hearty approbation of a numerous audience. Various vocal pieces were given by the choir, assisted by a few friends, under the conductorship of Mr. McDowall.

Rochdale.—The sixth season of the Amateur Orchestral Society was brought to a close on Tuesday evening, the 1st ult., by a Concert, which was very successful. There was some good solo playing, especially that of Mr. W. E. Holt, Mr. Nichols, and Mr. F. J. Hill; Mr. Hill also played the accompaniments with admirable skill and judgment; Mr. Sedgwick conducted. The vocalists were, Miss Carina Clelland and Mr. H. Green.

Sherborne.—An excellent Concert was given by the Sherborne School Musical Society, on Easter Monday, in the enlarged School Chapel. The programme included the instrumental movements of Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise—which were rendered most effectively—and selections from the Messiah, the solo parts in which were admirably sustained, and the choruses—especially the "Hallelujah"—sung with a precision which reflected the utmost credit on the indefatigable Conductor, Mr. Louis N. Parker.——On the following evening the Sherborne Musical Union gave a Concert, in the Assembly Rooms, at the Digby Hotel, which were filled to overflowing. The early portion of the programme was devoted to the first part of Elijah. The vocalists were Mrs. R. Ensor, Mrs. Car Glyn, Miss Blathwayt, Messrs. Hayden, Goldsmith, and Price. The choruses were finely sung throughout, "Thanks be to God" being especially worthy of praise. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous, and concluded with Mr. Eaton Faning's spirited chorus, "The Song of the Vikings." Mr. Louis N. Parker was again a highly efficient Conductor.

Southend.—A very successful performance of Haydn's Oratorio, The Creation, was given in the Public Hall, on the 19th ult., in aid of the Organ Fund of Canvey Island Church, the soloists being Madame Edith Wynne, Mr. A. J. Thompson, and Mr. H. G. Froome; and the band and chorus consisting of members of the Sacred Harmonic Society and the Handel Festival Choir. Madame Wynne gave a most artistic rendering of the soprano music, the Airs, "With verdure clad," and "On mighty pens," being loudly applauded. Mr. Thompson was very efficient in the tenor solos, and secured a well-merited encore for "In native worth." Mr. Froome, who possesses a fine deep voice, gave the bass music throughout with great care and telling effect. His rendering of the Air, "Rolling in foaming billows," being especially successful, and the finish on the lower D eliciting universal applause. The chorus, though few in number, did their work remarkably well.

"The Heavens are telling" and "Achieved is the glorious work" being given with much spirit. The band, under the leadership of Mr. Bent, though in one or two instances a little unsteady, performed their part with considerable credit. Mr. Tomling very efficiently conducted and Mr. J. Lilly presided at the pianoforte. The audience was numerous and fashionable, and included a large number of the clergy of the district and their friends.

SOUTH WEALD.—The Rev. C. A. Belli, the late vicar of South Weald, has added yet another to the memorials which already existed to show his interest in the parish which he served so long and so well, by presenting to the Parish Church a very handsome new organ, the erection of which was so timed that its opening might take place on Easter Sunday. The organ was built by Messrs. Conacher and Co., of Huddersfield, from the specification of Sir Herbert Oakeley, Mus. Doc., Professor of Music in the University of Edinburgh, who presided at the instrument, and at both the morning and evening service performed with his usual ability an excellent selection of classical music. The cost of the organ was £600. It is enclosed in a massive case of stained oak, richly worked, the front pipes being of pure tin, burnished.

ST. ANDREW'S, N.B.—On Tuesday, the 15th ult., the members of the University Musical Association gave their first Concert, in the United College Hall, before a large and fashionable audience. The programme consisted principally of part-songs, solos, trios, vocal and instrumental duets, &c., all of which were well sung, under the Conductorship of Mr. Charles Freeman, to whom great credit is due for having so effectively trained the Society.

TAMWORTH.—On Thursday evening, the 17th ult., a Concert was given in the Town Hall, in aid of the funds of the Young Men's Institution, so long conducted by Mr. J. Thompson. The artists were Mr. Gregory, Mus. Bac., Organist of Boston Parish Church; Mr. Wadely, Organist of St. John's, Kidderminster; Mr. Creswell, Organist of St. Peter's, Drayton Bassett, and to the Right Hon. Sir Robert Peel; Mr. T. Hickins and Miss Laura Sapey. Miss M. Miner and Mr. J. A. Schofield were the vocalists.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The precedent established last year by the Tunbridge Wells Vocal Association giving during the Lenten season their Annual Concert, and the success it achieved, induced the committee this year to fix on the same season for the performance of Handel's sacred Oratorio, the Messiah, which took place at the Great Hall, on Monday evening, March 31, before a crowded audience. The principal parts were most efficiently rendered by Miss José Sherrington, Madame Poole, Mr. Guy, and Mr. Pope; and the choruses—especially "And the glory of the Lord," "For unto us," the "Hallelujah," and "All we like sheep"—were sung with much precision and effect. Mr. Irons conducted, and Mr. Clarke (Organist of Rusthall Church) presided at the harmonium.

ULVERSTON.—Mrs. William Salmon gave a Concert on the 16th ult. The vocalists were Madame Edith Wynne, and Miss Wakefield, a pupil of Signor Randegger, who was very successful in all her songs. Miss Pattinson, Organist of Trinity Church, played the accompaniments with much ability.

VENTNOR.—The Ventnor Choral Society gave the last Concert of the season on Monday evening the 21st ult. Rossini's Stabat Mater occupied the first part of the programme, and the second part was miscellaneous. The principal vocalists were, Madame Worrell, Miss Ellen Wallace, Mr. R. Roche, and Mr. J. Jones, who were supported by an efficient band and chorus. Mr. Charles Fletcher, leader of the band, was encored in his violin solo; and Master Edwin Lemare (holder of the Sir John Goss scholarship) elicited well-deserved applause for his pianoforte performance. Mr. Lemare (Organist of Holy Trinity Church), the Conductor of the concert, deserves great praise for the manner in which he has trained the choir.

WARRINGTON.—Mr. Pattison's new Cantata, The Ancient Mariner, was given at the Public Hall, on Wednesday the 16th ult. The hall was crowded to excess, and the performance most successful.

WINDSOR.—Messrs. Christian and Mellor, of the Eton College Choir, gave a Concert in the Town Hall on the 16th ult. The artists engaged were Miss Kate Baxter, Madame Wells, Mr. C. Lawrence, Mus. Bac., Oxon., and Mr. H. Nicholson. The profits of the Concert, above £25, have been handed over to the Mayor of Windsor in aid of the Isandula and Rorke's Drift Widow and Orphan Fund.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. George H. Foster, to St. Andrew's, Worcester.—Mr. W. T. Russell, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Saviour's, Warwick Road.—Mr. Charles Edward Butcher, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Margaret's Church, Anfield, Liverpool.—Mr. H. J. Elder, to Latimer Congregational Church, Mile End, E.—Mr. Arthur Godfray, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Mr. H. Austin Storry, to H. M. Dockyard Church, Portsmouth.

OBITUARY.

On March 20, at No. 35, Holly Avenue, Newcastle-on-Tyne, THOMAS STORY, aged 66 years.

On the 4th ult., at Great Coram Street, Russell Square, WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

On the 5th ult., at Chichester, WILLIAM KEN WESLEY, M.R.C.S., the youngest son of the late Dr. SAMUEL SEBASTIAN WESLEY.

On the 10th ult., at her residence at Brighton, ANNETTE SALAMAN, the youngest daughter of the late SIMEON KENSINGTON SALAMAN, Esq., formerly of Baker Street, and sister of CHARLES K. SALAMAN, of 24, Sutherland Gardens, W.

"A supreme and perfect harmony of Notes."

E. & W. SNELL'S IMPROVED HARMONIUMS and REED ORGANS. For tone, touch, articulation, and general excellence, are pronounced by the profession and public the best and cheapest extant. Prices, designs, &c., free, of E. & W. Snell. Works: King Street North, Camden Town, London, N.W. Trade supplied. The new Spécialité "Drawing-Room" Model, 24 guineas.

THE LATE DR. ELVEY'S PSALTER.

THE PSALTER;

OR, CANTICLES AND PSALMS OF DAVID.

Pointed for Chanting on a New Principle, with Explanations and Directions.

BY THE LATE

STEPHEN ELVEY, MUS. DOC.,

Organist of New and St. John's Colleges, and Organist and Choragus to the University of Oxford.

EIGHTH EDITION. Demy 8vo, cloth, 5s.

ALSO,

A CHEAPER EDITION

(the Eleventh).

With a Memorandum on the Pointing of the "GLORIA PATRI," by Sir G. J. ELVEY. Fcap. 8vo, cloth limp, 2s. 6d.

THE CANTICLES SEPARATELY

(Sixteenth Edition). Fcap. 8vo, 6d.

The Psalter is used at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and at many Cathedrals.

"There can be no doubt but that we owe most of what is good in the chanting of to-day to the (seven years) labour and care bestowed on the first edition of this work issued in 1856."—Musical Standard, September 25, 1875.

"Taken as a whole, Dr. Elvey's work has not been surpassed. . . . We believe that educated musicians generally—with a sense of the importance of this part of worship—if they must chant from such a pointed Psalter, would prefer Dr. Elvey's conscientious framework to any other we know."—The Orchestra, January, 1878.

OXFORD AND LONDON: JAMES PARKER AND CO.

THE PSALTER AND CANTICLES

POINTED AND SET TO ACCOMPANYING

CHANTS, ANCIENT AND MODERN,

By the Rev. SIR H. W. BAKER, Bart., and

WILLIAM HENRY MONK,

Professor of Vocal Music in King's College, London.

The Cheap Edition, with Vocal Score (Gregorians in unison), is now ready; size, double post 16mo.

Limp cloth, cut flush, and lettered ... ... 2s. 0d.
Cloth boards, turned in, and lettered ... ... 2s. 6d.
Cloth boards, turned in, gilt lettered, red edges ... 3s. 0d.

A large Imperial 8vo Edition, with accompanying harmonies for the Gregorian Tones, is in the Press.

The distinctive object aimed at is to unite under the same pointing two forms of chant hitherto considered incompatible—the Ancient and the Modern, the Gregorian and the Anglican—and to introduce a new form of Chant, which is commended with confidence for the use of Parish Choirs.

The work includes about 50 varieties of the Gregorian Chants, some from sources not easily accessible; and about 390 chants of the Anglican form, of which 100 are more or less well known, the remainder having been composed expressly for this work by musicians of distinction, including most of our Cathedral Organists.

Canticles only, 6d., 9d., and 1s.

Tonic Sol-fa and Plain Song Editions will be published as soon as possible.

London: W. CLOWES and SONS, 13, Charing Cross, S.W.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, Southsea.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Full Choral Service, chiefly Gregorian. State stipend and references. Copies only of testimonials. Address, the Vicar.

ORGANIST WANTED for a Private Chapel. Music Gregorian. Services, Sundays, morning and afternoon, daily at 5 p.m. Apply by letter, stating last engagement and salary required, to Rev. J. J. E., 1, Greek Street, Soho Square, W.

WANTED, for the Church of the Holy Trinity, Lyonsdown, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Salary £30 a-year. Apply to the Rev. G. Yeats, Lyonsdown Vicarage, New Barnet.

ORGANIST WANTED for Sunday Evening Service, in a church near London Bridge. Fine Organ. Capital opportunity for a competent amateur. Address R. H., 42, Southwark Bridge Road, S.E.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

PURCELL, HENRY.—(In D.) Te Deum and Jubilate. Edited by Geo. C. Martin. 1s. 6d.

BARNETT, NEVILLE G.—Twelve Chant Series for the Te Deum laudamus. 8d.

CROWE, R. W., Mus. D., Cantab.—Te Deum laudamus. 8vo, 4d.

CAMBRIDGE, F.—The Offertory Sentences. 8vo, 1s. 6d.

KEETON, HAYDN, Mus. D.—(In B flat.) Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in Chant Form. 8vo, 4d.

SADLER, C. G.—(In F.) Te Deum laudamus, for four voices. 8vo, 4d.

TOZER, AUGUSTUS E.—(In C.) Chant Service for the Te Deum, Benedictus, Sanctus, and Kyrie eleison. 8vo, 4d.

WOODYARD, BENJAMIN.—(In F.) Te Deum laudamus. An easy setting. 8vo, 6d.

CŒLEBS, FRINGILLA.—Four Hymn Tunes. Demy 8vo, 2d.

E. R.—Five Hymn Tunes. Demy 8vo, 3d.

POWELL, REV. J. B.—"Salve Festa Dies." Nos. 2 and 3. Ancient Procession of the English Church for "the Dedication of a Church" and "Corpus Christi." 8vo, 4d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION of TRIOS, QUARTETTS, &c., for FEMALE VOICES. Volumes 1, 2, and 3, each 5s.

THE ORPHEUS (New Series).—A Collection of Glees and Part-Songs for Male Voices. Volumes 1, 2, 3, and 4, each 5s.

MENDELSSOHN.—Four-Part Songs (S.A.T.B.) complete. Translated into the Tonic Sol-fa Notation by W. G. McNaught. 1s., or 21 Numbers, 1d. each.

GABUSSI.—"The Lament." (Novello's 8vo Trios, 70). 3d.

CARTER, W.—"St. George and Merrie England." Four-Part Song. The Poetry written by M. Deigh. 8vo, 3d.

HAYDN.—"With joy the impatient husbandman" (Air, Bass), 1s. "Come, gentle Spring" (Chorus), 1s. (Seasons).

HEAP, C. S., Mus. D., Cantab.—"Evensong." Four-part Song. 8vo, 3d.

YARWOOD, J.—"Merry boys at sea." Ship Glee (A.T.T.B.). 8vo, 6d.

DEAN, F.—"Long Ago." Song for Contralto. 1s. 6d.

MARTIN, G. C.—"Little Mary." Song. The Words written by Alaric St. Barbe. 1s. 6d.

—— "My Sailor Love." Song. The Words written by A. Wellesley Batson, Mus. Bac. 2s.

—— "Oh! my love, my love." Song. The Words written by A. Wellesley Batson, Mus. Bac. 1s. 6d.

YOUNG, W. J.—"Our National Church." Part-Song (S.A.T.B.) 8vo, 3d.

HUSBAND, REV. E.—"The March of the Christian Soldiers," for Piano. 1s. 6d.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

PIANO, SINGING, and HARMONY.—Elementary and Finishing Lessons given. For terms apply to F. Sewell Southgate, R.A.M., 14, George Street, Manchester Square, W.

WANTED, a PUPIL ASSISTANT, under 18, who can play a good Parish Service and help to train Boys, &c. Further particulars on application to T. H. Collinson, Mus. Bac., Oxon, Organist and Choirmaster, S. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.

WANTED, a SITUATION as REGULATOR and REPAIRER. Good references. Country preferred. J. A., 10, Park Road, Crouch End, Hornsey, N.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, thoroughly competent, requires SITUATION as INDOOR TUNER. Three years in present situation. Has had a London experience. Address, H., 40, Old Market Street, Bristol.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION

OF

TRIOS, QUARTETTS, &c.

FOR

FEMALE VOICES.

Seventy-six Numbers of this Collection, including compositions by Mendelssohn, Schubert, Brahms, Raff, Hiller, Gounod, Abt, Smart, Hatton, Leslie, &c., are now ready. Prices from 2d. each.

Vols. I., II., and III., cloth, gilt edges, price 5s. each.

Lists on application.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ORPHEUS

(New Series)

A COLLECTION OF GLEES AND PART-SONGS FOR MALE VOICES.

One Hundred and Eighteen Numbers of this Series, including compositions by Weber, Schubert, Schumann, Gounod, Goss, Hatton, Sullivan, Pinsuti, Reay, Leslie, Calkin, &c., are now ready, prices from 2d. each.

Vols. I., II., III., and IV., cloth, gilt edges, price 5s. each.

Lists on application.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO PROFESSORS.—A thoroughly competent TUNER and REPAIRER, wishing to extend his connection, would be thankful to hear of an OPENING. Address, A., 11, Askew Terrace, Shepherd's Bush.

WANTED, a Lady to MANAGE SHEET MUSIC DEPARTMENT. Must know catalogues well, and play at sight. Apply, with testimonials, Catlin, Cox, and Moore, Royal Arcade, Leicester.

WANTED, a PARTNER, with from £1,000 to £2,000 at command, to EXTEND HIRING BUSINESS, &c. Apply, Simpson and Son, Office of this Paper.

PARTNERSHIP OR BUSINESS.—An excellent opportunity now offers in an old-established Music Publishing House. From £500 to £1,000 required. Apply, W. H., care of Mr. F. Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, W.

SIMPSON & CO.—Authors having Plates in charge of Messrs. S. & Co., Works on Sale, or any other claims against above firm, are requested to communicate particulars of same at once to Mr. F. Lucas, 20, Great Marlborough Street, W.

LARGE HARMONIUM for SALE by Alexandre. Drawing-room model, 16 stops, percussion, extra blower and knee-swells with seat, 26 Guineas (cost 65). 462, Hackney Road.

SILVER FLUTE (Cylinder), Rudall, Rose, and Carte's Patent. Old system of fingering. Originally cost £25, price £8 5s. S. White, 38, Booksellers Row, Strand, W.C.

SPECIMEN of the CHROMATIC STAVE or KEYBOARD SYSTEM of NOTATION.

(From the "Old Hundredth.")

Note.—The spaces correspond with the White Keys and the lines with the Black Keys of the Piano, Organ, &c., the wide spaces embracing two notes each.

Advantages of the system: Accidental Sharps and Flats abolished, remote keys made easy, and the proper key on the Piano, &c., for every note, clearly indicated by the space or line on which the note stands. For further explanation, address, J. Dyson, Albert Road, Farnworth, Bolton, inclosing stamp.

Large Sale of Musical Property.—Important to the Trade, Profession, and Public.—120 Pianofortes by Broadwood, Collard, Kirkman, Hopkinson, Erard, Allison, Ziegler, &c.; Organs and Harmoniums by Alexandre, Cramer, Bryceson, Christophe, Kelly, Hermann, &c.; Harps (Gothic and Grecian) by Erard, &c.; Violins; Pianoforte Small Work, including Hammers, Levers, Ivories, Butts, Keys, &c.; Umbrellas, Marine Glasses, Paintings, Music Stools, &c.; together with a large quantity of Sheet Music by Modern Composers, being the Unredeemed Pledges from various Pawnbrokers, and goods consigned for positive and immediate realisation.

MESSRS. KELLY and CO. beg to announce they have received instructions to Sell by Auction the above important PROPERTY at their premises, 11, Charles Street, Berners Street, London, W., on Wednesday, May 21, 1879, commencing at 12 o'clock precisely. The goods may be viewed and catalogues had, post-free, the day prior and morning of sale.

NEW ORGAN MUSIC.

SIX PIECES FOR THE ORGAN.

DEDICATED TO THE

CHEVALIER J. LEMMENS.

COMPOSED BY

E. SILAS.

	s.	d.
No. 1.—Andante non troppo	3	0
„ 2.—March	4	0
„ 3.—Moderato	3	0
„ 4.—Pastorale...	3	0
„ 5.—Meditation in a Cathedral	3	0
„ 6.—Elegy	4	0

"The talent of Mr. Edouard Silas as a composer is too widely recognised to render any preliminary eulogium of his merits advisable in approaching the discussion of these welcome additions to the narrow repertory of genuine organ music. No. 1 on our list has a plaintive flowing subject, very expressively harmonised. There is an alternative section in the tonic major consisting of a song-like theme, with accompaniment in quiet arpeggios. Then the first subject returns differently harmonised, and the piece comes to an effective close. The March is an elaborate composition. The first theme savours of commonplace, though a sudden change from dominant to sub-dominant harmony has a striking effect. The first trio in the relative minor is sad in character, and it contains some further remarkable transitions. After the usual return of the principal subject there is a second trio in the tonic minor. This is somewhat in the style of a choral, with a moving pedal bass. Fresh matter of an agitated nature is then introduced, but the first theme at length returns, and then a brief coda brings the March to a conclusion.—No. 3 commences with a pleasing motive, which is carried on for twenty-six bars. Then a fugue is started, and continued for four pages, after which the first portion is repeated in a slightly varied form.—The Pastorale opens simply, the first portion being constructed on a tonic and dominant pedal alternately. The key then changes to the minor, and there follows a good deal of imitative writing, eventually leading to a half-close on the dominant. The conclusion is more energetic, and the pastoral manner is certainly not maintained throughout.—As may be supposed from its title, No. 5 is eminently ecclesiastical in style. It opens with a solemn adagio, and the writing for some time is purely contrapuntal, though modern in spirit. Towards the end it works up to a fortissimo, and the piece ends with some pompous chords.—The Elegy has a few bars of introduction in unison lento, and then a theme is given out and treated as a duet. After a close on the tonic, the key changes to G flat, and the next portion is church-like, with curious harmonies. The duet then returns in extenso, and is followed by a more jubilant subject in the tonic major. The next section is very bright and vigorous, but it does not come to a full close, and the sombre vein returns, the piece ending in the quietest manner. We can cordially recommend these compositions to the notice of organists. Without being demonstrative or vulgar, they are pleasantly unconventional, and are free from the heaviness of the German school, the frivolity of the French, and the weakness of the English. Nos. 1, 2, and 6 will especially repay attention."—Music Trades Review.

LONDON: ASHDOWN AND PARRY,

HANOVER SQUARE.

RICORDI,

265, REGENT STREET, W.

NEW ADDITIONS TO RICORDI'S CHEAP PUBLICATIONS.

	Net Prices. s.	d.
BOITO.
Mefistofele ... ... Vocal score	15	0
„ Pianoforte	8	0
PERGOLESI.
La Serva Padrona ... ... Vocal score	2	0
CIMAROSA.
Il Matrimonio Segreto ... ... „	4	0
DONIZETTI.
Anna Bolena ... ... „	3	6
Linda di Chamounix ... ... „	4	0
VERDI.
Requiem ... ... „	4	0
CHERUBINI.
Requiem (for Men's Voices) ... ... „	1	6
MERCADANTE.
Third Mass (for Men's Voices) ... ... „	1	6
F. LISZT.
Agnus Dei (Verdi's "Requiem"), for Pianoforte, Organ or Harmonium	4	0
Aïda (Verdi's), Transcription, Pianoforte	6	0
Eco di Napoli, containing 50 of the most popular Neapolitan Songs	3	0

Lists of every description gratis and post-free. All works produced in Italy, &c., promptly procured without extra charge.

THE CLASSICAL ORGANIST,

A SELECTION OF

CELEBRATED COMPOSITIONS

FROM THE WORKS OF

HANDEL, MOZART, BEETHOVEN, MENDELSSOHN, MEYERBEER, &c.,

ARRANGED FROM THE ORCHESTRAL SCORES FOR THE ORGAN,

WITH PEDAL OBBLIGATO,

BY

J. T. STONE.

In Three Volumes Oblong Folio (each containing 193 pages, £1 1s. each; or in 54 Numbers, 1s. 6d. each, net.

Messrs. BREWER & CO., in announcing to the professors and accomplished amateurs of the Organ the publication of a new edition of the "CLASSICAL ORGANIST," beg to state that this important work is eminently adapted to supply the requirements of the Modern School of Organ-Playing.

The Editor, having arranged the celebrated compositions contained in the present work from the full scores, has endeavoured to represent, as far as practicable, the orchestral effects capable of being produced upon the grandest and most majestic of all musical instruments.

This work is engraved in the first style, on large plates, oblong folio size, and printed on a thick superfine paper, which has been made expressly for the purpose. The publishers confidently state that they have spared no expense in rendering the present work for the Organ truly worthy of the "King of Instruments."

 The Copyright of the "CLASSICAL ORGANIST" is the sole and exclusive property of Messrs. Brewer & Co., 14 and 15, Poultry, Cheapside, and 23, Bishopsgate Street Within.

The Fourth Volume of the Classical Organist is in the Press, and will be published in the course of the present year.

Specimen Pages and a Thematic List of Contents of Vols. I., II., and III. will be forwarded on application to the Publishers, or to Mr. J. T. STONE, 6, Upper College Street, Nottingham.

SIXTY-THIRD EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

COLLEGIATE SERIES PUBLICATIONS.

VOCAL TUTOR (2s. 6d. net). Containing Treatise on Voice and Vocal Art, with Anatomical Illustrations of the Vocal Instrument.

SOLFEGGI. Arranged as Duets and Trios, specially adapted for High Schools for Girls and Singing Classes. Books I. and II. 3s. each, net.

PIANOFORTE TUTOR. 58 pages. 2s. 6d. net.

ORGAN TUTOR. By F. ARCHER. 3s. 6d. net.

PART-SONGS, MADRIGALS, Anthems. By R. L. DE PEARSALL, Dr. WESLEY, &c. See "Collegiate Series" Catalogue. 110 numbers now ready. From Twopence each.

CONSECUTIVE 5ths and 8ves. Essay by R. L. DE PEARSALL. 2s. net.

To be continued.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

Just published.

BOOK 2.

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SINGING MANUAL.

Containing

FIFTY FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS, CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

Price One Shilling.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper covers, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street.

Now ready, No. XX., 76 columns, price 2d., by post, 3d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW, the Musical Literature of the Month, and Special Journal for the Music Trade. Letters to Reid and Nephew, 14, George Street, Mansion House, E.C. Pitman, Paternoster Row. Order of your Bookseller.

MUSIC PUPILS' REGISTER, by Dr. JACOB BRADFORD. Price 1s. Simpson and Co., 33, Argyll Street, Regent Street, W.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready. Fourth Edition, Revised and Corrected.

A TREATISE ON HARMONY

AND THE

CLASSIFICATION OF CHORDS.

With Questions and Exercises for the use of Students.

BY JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Cloth, Seven Shillings and Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IMPORTANT TO TEACHERS OF SINGING.

CRAMER'S VOCAL SCHOOL.

NOW PUBLISHED,

EDITED BY

J. WILBYE COOPER.

FOUNDED ON COOKE'S "SINGING EXEMPLIFIED."

Ninety-six Full-size Music Pages, bound in limp cloth.

Price 5s. net. Postage, 6d. extra.

London: J. B. CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent Street, W., and at all Musicsellers.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated. Also an APPENDIX, containing faults in action with remedies. Price 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. Hemstock, Diss, Norfolk.

THEORY of MUSIC.

A FIRST BOOK (7th Edition),

A SECOND BOOK,

A THIRD BOOK,

By LOUISA GIBSON,

Author of "The Class Singers' A B C." 6d. Highly recommended by Dr. Macfarren and the leading musicians of Great Britain.

London: WEEKES & Co.; NOVELLO, EWER & Co.; WHITTAKER & Co.

Just published by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., price 5s. net (Specimen copy, 2s. 6d.), COURSE V. of A. HENNES' NEW METHOD FOR THE PIANO. Translated and improved from the twenty-fifth German and the third French Edition by H. MANNHEIMER. Contents of Course V.: Fifty Melodious Pieces and Preludes (accompanied by the most minute explanations how to play correctly) representing all major and minor keys, succeeding each other according to the Circle of Fifths, Dominants, and Sub-dominants; the Ornaments; an Introduction to the Science of Harmony; to which is added a complete Index to all the five courses, together with a copious Glossary of all Musical Terms in English, French, German, and Italian. All closer information about Hennes' System of Teaching Music, as well as the Twenty-four Key-Signatures (represented by the dial of a clock), to be had on application to H. Mannheimer, Victoria Street, Maidenhead.

THE PIANIST'S PRACTICAL GUIDE to THEORETICAL KNOWLEDGE and MANUAL EXECUTION. By F. WEBER, Resident Organist, German Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace. Third edition, 4s. net. "A work eminently calculated to improve the method of teaching the piano."—Daily News.

London: J. B. CRAMER; NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; SCHOTT and Co.; STANLEY LUCAS and Co.

TRUTH AND EASE IN MUSIC. NO MORE SHARP OR FLAT KEYS FOR INSTRUMENTALIST OR VOCALIST.

Just published, price Sixpence, with illustrations, a new edition (1879) of

THE SEQUENTIAL SYSTEM OF MUSICAL NOTATION

By WILLIAM A. B. LUNN.

"Its completeness and simplicity, when once understood, should recommend it to universal adoption."—Blackburn Standard.

London: E. W. ALLEN, 11, Ave Maria Lane.

Price 2s. 6d. Issued April 26.

REEVES' MUSICAL DIRECTORY.—Arranged upon an entirely new plan. Price 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. Post-free.

London: W. REEVES, 185, Fleet Street.

Third edition; reduced price, Sixpence.

A GUIDE to the LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in ELEMENTARY MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE, of TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON; by FREDERIC CLARK, Organising Secretary to the College. Published with the sanction of the Academical Board. London: Reeves, 185, Fleet Street.

LONDON GREGORIAN CHORAL ASSOCIATION.—THE GREGORIAN QUARTERLY MAGAZINE contains original articles on Church Music, Ancient and Modern, Correspondence, Reviews, &c. No. II. is now ready, price 3d.

London: GRIFFITH and FARRAN, St. Paul's Churchyard, E.C.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

CHOIR-TRAINERS & SCHOOLMASTERS

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight in a comparatively short time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, MUS. DOC., M.A.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d. In Sol-fa Notation, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL CHANT BOOK.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper covers. 32mo	0	3
Canticles, 32mo	0	1
Ditto, 8vo	0	3
The Psalter, with Chants, Post Quarto, cloth	5	0

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post Quarto, paper covers	2	0
Ditto, cloth	3	0
Foolscap Quarto, paper covers	1	0
Ditto, cloth	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published,

POHLMANN'S NATIONAL PSALMODY.

Consisting principally of Compositions and Arrangements

BY DR. H. J. GAUNTLETT;

With a few additions by

MR. W. H. WHITAKER, MR. T. WADSWORTH,
MR. R. JACKSON, AND MISS C. THOMPSON.

This work, one of the last contributed to by the late DR. GAUNTLETT, is intended to form a Supplement to Houldsworth's Cheetham's Psalmody, and contains a FINE COLLECTION OF NEW AND OLD HYMNS, beautifully though simply arranged with words, complete, and suitable for use either at Home or in Church for CONGREGATIONAL SINGING.

At the commencement there are some practical rules for Chanting and Singing Sacred Music, with observations on Accent, Expression, &c., by MR. W. H. WHITAKER, then follow the Hymns, which with the exceptions of those contributed by MR. WHITAKER, MR. R. JACKSON, MR. T. WADSWORTH, and MISS THOMPSON, are all arranged or composed by the late DR. GAUNTLETT.

The last few pages are devoted to CHURCH MUSIC so as to form a complete Musical Service.

In this part there are six beautiful "Te Deums" by the late DR. GAUNTLETT, and one of MR. WADSWORTH'S, inserted by permission.

To make this new work as attractive as possible, the quarto copy has been printed on the best toned paper, and is very easy to read, the type being clear and large, and the bindings are quite original in design and very handsome.

PRICES FOR THE "NATIONAL PSALMODY."

Super Royal 8vo, on fine paper, strongly sewn in elegant stiff covers	5 6
Super Royal 8vo, in special cloth binding of new design, with gilt edges	8 0
Best 4to copy, on extra toned paper, in elegant stiff covers	7 6
Best 4to copy (Presentation Copy), in special embossed cloth binding, with gilt design and gilt edges	10 6

Published by

POHLMANN AND SON,

HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

London Agents:

FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272A, Regent Circus, Oxford Street.
SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., 4, Stationers' Hall Court.

Manchester:

FORSYTH BROTHERS, South King Street.

THE CONGREGATIONAL PSALMIST.

Edited by HENRY ALLON, D.D., and H. J. GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc.

Providing Tunes, Chants, and Anthems, by the best Composers, Ancient and Modern. List of editions on application.

CHURCH ANTHEMS, &c. Edited by HENRY ALLON, D.D. Containing One Hundred and Fifteen Anthems for Congregational Use. Crown 8vo, cloth, 3s.; crown 8vo, roan, 3s. 6d.; Cheap Edition, limp cloth, 1s. 4d.; stiff cloth, 1s. 8d.

"Dr. Allon has done so much to promote an intelligent use of sacred music in Divine worship that we gladly call attention to his last, and as we think, most wise effort in the same direction. Having issued in the 'Congregational Psalmist' a valuable series of hymn tunes, chants, kyries, &c., he has now published in a little pocket volume a collection of anthems intended for the use of the congregation, and not simply for the choir. The pieces, as a rule, require, in singing, a degree of musical culture somewhat greater than that required by chorales and chants, but they are, on the whole, within the reach of persons possessing a practical acquaintance with sight-singing."—The Choir.

London: HODDER and STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster Row; and NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION OF

SACRED MUSIC FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS.

EDITED BY

JAMES TILLEARD.

One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION OF

SECULAR MUSIC FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS.

EDITED BY

JAMES TILLEARD.

One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.		s.	d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
„	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper covers	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo	1	6
„	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK, containing 258 Tunes and 85 Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 1.	Limp cloth, turned in	2	6
„ 2.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3	6
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 3.	Limp cloth, turned in	2	0
„ 4.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2	6

About 250,000 copies have already been sold.

Now Ready.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK (Second Series), containing 298 Tunes and 74 Chants.

		s.	d.
No. 5.	Limp cloth	2	6
„ 6.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	3	6
	TONIC SOL-FA EDITION.
„ 7.	Limp cloth	2	0
„ 8.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	2	6
	FIRST AND SECOND SERIES BOUND TOGETHER.
No. 9.	Limp cloth	4	0
„ 10.	Cloth boards, red edges, gilt lettered	5	0
„ 12.	Tonic Sol-fa, cloth	3	0

Now Ready.

SMALL EDITION OF THE COMPLETE WORK.

715 Tunes and Chants, providing for nearly 200 Varieties of Metre.

No. 11. Cloth ... 3 0

Each Edition may be had in Superior Binding.

Communications and inquiries as to Copyrights, and also as to supplies of this work at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN; and all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Now Ready.

THE LONDON TUNE-BOOK. A Companion for all Hymnals. Cloth, 3s.; red edges, 3s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Enlarged Edition.

TUNES, NEW AND OLD; comprising all the Metres in the Wesleyan Hymn-Book. Also, Chants, Responses, and Doxologies. Compiled by JOHN DOBSON; and for the most part revised or re-arranged by HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT, Mus. Doc.; JOHN FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Oxon.; and SAMUEL REAY, Mus. Bac., Oxon. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, and 80 & 81, Queen Street. Sold also at 66, Paternoster Row. Prices: plain cloth, 3s. 6d.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 5s. TONIC SOL-FA EDITION: plain cloth, 2s.; extra cloth, bevelled boards, red edges, 3s.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, set to Music in the Key of A, by B. LUARD SELBY. Octavo, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

In small quarto, 330 pages.

THE BURNLEY TUNE BOOK, containing nearly 700 original Tunes, Chants, Kyries, &c. Adapted to the wants of all choirs and congregations. Prices, plain, 4s.; gilt, 5s.

London: F. PITMAN. Burnley: T. SIMPSON.

PARR'S PSALMODY. 392 Tunes, 301 Chants, with Responses, &c., free from modern corruptions; with memoirs of the Composers, and reference to the authorities; giving historical and bibliographical information nowhere else to be found. Price 7s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORDS from the BOOK of PSALMS selected and arranged for Introits or Hymn-Tune Anthems, so as to be used with an ordinary Tune-book. By J. POWELL METCALFE. Part I. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BY REV. R. F. SMITH.—TE DEUM in F, Threepence. SOUTHWELL SCHOOL SONGS, 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

THE MORNING SERVICE. Set to music in the key of C, by EDWIN J. CROW, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist and Choirmaster of Ripon Cathedral. Octavo. One Shilling and sixpence. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; or direct from the Author.

EASY and EFFECTIVE TE DEUMS for Parish Choirs, by ALFRED J. DYE. In E flat, price 3d.; organ copy, 6d.; and in D, price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TE DEUM.—NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Twelve Chant Series for the Te Deum, by NEVILLE BARNETT. In these the Hymn is properly separated into its natural divisions, the sentiment of the words is duly expressed, there is ample musical variety, combined with extreme simplicity. Also useful as a Supplemental Chant Book. Price 8d. in stiff covers.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

MISSA SERAPHICA. The Office of Holy Communion (complete). Set to original music by ARTHUR H. BROWN. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE NICENE CREED. 8vo, score ... 3d.
Twelve Kyries ... 6d.
Eleven Offertory Sentences ... 4d.
Anthem—"The Lord is my Shepherd" ... 4d.
Anthem—"Let not your heart be troubled" (arrangement) ... 4d.
Tunes, set to popular Hymns, and Chants. Books 1 and 2, each 4d.

By CHARLES SWAIN, Stockport.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIMON PETER. A Service of Sacred Song, being a Collection of Scripture Passages and Hymns illustrating the principal scenes in the life of the Holy Apostle St. Peter. The tunes selected from "The Hymnary." Compiled by J. H. Brammall. Price 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

DR. DEARLE'S ORATORIO, "Israel in the Wilderness." 8vo Edition, 5s., cloth boards; 4s. 6d. paper covers. Subscribers' names for the printed list can be received until May 18th instant. 192, Camberwell Grove, May 1, 1879.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo, 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now ready, 8vo, price Threepence.

THE APOSTLES' CREED. Set to Music (chiefly in Recitative) for Voices in Unison, with an Accompaniment for the Organ, by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Director of the Choir, York Minster.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORATORIOS AND MASSES

ARRANGED FOR

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

	s.	d.
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	5	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	5	0
MOZART'S FIRST MASS	2	6
MOZART'S SECOND MASS	3	0
MOZART'S SEVENTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS	3	0
MOZART'S FIFTEENTH MASS (REQUIEM)	3	0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., etc., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS. Set to Music by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c.

For general or Festival use; for male voices and four-part Chorus, with Organ accompaniment, ad lib. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 1s.; cloth, 2s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. Novello, Ewer and Co., and Parker and Co.

Fourteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper covers; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation. Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-notes.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small Edition is in preparation.

Seventh Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES

WITH AN APPENDIX FOR FESTAL USE,

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 1s. 6d.; or in Numbers at 2d. each.

No. 1. Let your light so shine.	13. Charge them who are rich.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	14. God is not unrighteous.
3. Whatsoever ye would that men.	15. To do good.
4. Not every one that saith unto Me.	16. Whoso hath this world's good.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
7. If we have sown.	19. He that hath pity upon the poor.
8. Do ye not know.	20. Blessed be the man.
9. He that soweth little.	21. Let your light so shine. Festal Setting.
10. Let him that is taught in the word.
11. While we have time.
12. Godliness is great riches.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS, by THOMAS SMITH. Each, price 3d.

WHITSUNTIDE.—"If ye love Me." Second edition.
"Sing we merrily." Second edition.
"O worship the Lord." Fifth edition.
"I was glad."
Five Kyrie Eleisons. Second edition.

A Concise Explanation of the Rules of Simple Harmony. Dedicated to Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley. Third edition. Price 1s.

A Short Practical Method for Teaching Singing. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W. Post-free from the Composer, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Just published.

THE OFFERTORY SENTENCES.

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. T. FIELD.

1. Let your light so shine.	11. While we have time.
2. Lay not up for yourselves.	12. Godliness is great riches.
3. Whatsoever ye would.	13. Charge them who are rich.
4. Not every one.	14. God is not unrighteous.
5. Zacchæus stood forth.	15. To do good.
6. Who goeth a-warfare.	16. Whoso hath this world's good.
7. If we have sown.	17. Give alms of thy goods.
8. Do ye not know.	18. Be merciful after thy power.
9. He that soweth little.	19. He that hath pity.
10. Let him that is taught.	20. Blessed be the man.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MY SOUL TRULY WAITETH STILL UPON GOD. Anthem for Four Voices. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 1s. 6d.; octavo, 4d.

GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD. Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. Composed by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, York Minster. Vocal score, folio, 2s. 6d.; octavo, 8d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published, price 3d. "Easy and Effective."

ANTHEM, "GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH." Composed expressly for Parish Choirs, by FRANK BATES, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Baldred's Episcopal Church, North Berwick, N.B. London: Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 6, Quality Street, North Berwick, N.B.

CHARLES JOSEPH FROST'S

EASY CHURCH MUSIC.

Composed expressly for Parish Choirs.

Almighty God, give us grace	Anthem	2d.
Almighty and everlasting God	,,	2d.
And I will pray the Father	,,	2d.
God is gone up	,,	2d.
Hear my prayer	,,	2d.
He shall be great	,,	3d.
Like as Christ was raised up	,,	3d.
Thou visitest the earth	,,	3d.
The Offertory Sentences (complete)		4d.
Te Deum Laudamus, in G major		3d.
Morning Service, in C major		4d.
Communion Service, ditto		6d.
Evening Service, ditto		2d.
Complete Service, ditto		1s.
Ten Kyries and Glorias before and after Gospel		3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.; or of the Composer, 73, Farleigh Road, Stoke Newington, N.

CHURCH MUSIC, by ALEX. S. COOPER. New Editions lately published:—

COMMUNION SERVICE. Fourth edition. Equally adapted for Singing in Unison or in Harmony. Price 1s.

BENEDICTUS AND AGNUS DEI. Second edition. Price 3d.

NICENE CREED. Ely Prize Setting. Fourth edition. Reduced price, 4d. Unison copy, 1d.

ATHANASIAN CREED, with Appropriate Chants. Price 3d.

COME UNTO ME. Short Full Anthem. Fourth edition, Price 3d.

UNISON CHANTS, by different Composers. Second Series, with varied Accompaniments. Price 6d.

TE DEUM, with 21 different sets of Chants; single and double. Sixth edition. Reduced price, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and WEEKES and Co.

PAROCHIAL ANTHEMS, by T. MEE PATTISON.

O PRAISE THE LORD (Chorus, Duet for Two Trebles, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 3d.

IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD (Chorus, Treble or Tenor Solo, Chorus) ... ... 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW, SHORT, AND EASY ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNDAY.

IF YE LOVE ME KEEP MY COMMANDMENTS. Composed by G. F. HUNTLEY. 8vo, 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEM FOR WHITSUNDAY.

I WILL POUR OUT MY SPIRIT UPON ALL FLESH. Composed by W. FEAR DYER. 8vo, 8d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY ANTHEM.—"Bow down Thine ear, O Lord." Composed by J. J. SIMPSON. 8vo, price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

Third edition enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper covers; 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN
PSALTER CHANTS
SINGLE AND DOUBLE

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants, which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS

FROM THE

GREAT MASTERS,

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN

With Pedal Obbligato by

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.

1. "Wedding March," by Mendelssohn.
2. March from "Tannhäuser," by Wagner.
3. March from "Scipio," also from Occasional Oratorio, both by Handel.
4. "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Prophète."
5. "The Dead March" in "Saul" and "See the conquering hero comes," both by Handel.
6. Andantino, from the 11th Grand Symphony by Haydn, and "Waft her, angels," from Handel's "Jephtha."
7. "As pants the hart," from Spohr's "Crucifixion," and "Where'er you walk," from Handel's "Semele."
8. "My heart ever faithful" (Mein gläubiges Herz frohlocket), by Bach.
9. Andantino from the 5th and Andante from the 4th Sonatas, by Pleyel.
10. "The Hero's March," by Mendelssohn.
11. "Quis est homo?" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
12. Air et Chœur, from "La Dame Blanche," by Boïeldieu.
13. Grande Marche Héroïque in C, by Fr. Schubert.
14. Grande Marche Héroïque in D, by Fr. Schubert.
15. Overture, "Berenice," by Handel.
16. Overture, "Sosarmes," by Handel.
17. Handel's Overture, "Alcina."
18. Gavotte, from Handel's Overture, "Otho."
19. "La Carità," by Rossini.
20. "Angels ever bright and fair," and "Pious orgies," both by Handel.
21. "Ave Maria," by Franz Schubert.
22. Aria, by Antonio Lotti. Circa 1700.
23. "My soul thirsteth for God," Aria from Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm.
24. "Gloria in excelsis," from Weber's Mass in G.
25. "Fac ut portem," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
26. "Pietà, Signore," from the Oratorio "San Giovanni Battista," by Stradella.
27. Handel's Overture to "Julius Cæsar."
28. Serenade, by Franz Schubert.
29. Aria, by Cavaliere Gluck. 1765.
30. Aria, from "Alcina," by Handel.
31. Aria, from "Artaserse," by Leonardo Vinci. 1730.
32. Cantata, by Alessandro Scarlatti.
33. Aria, by Ch. Gluck. 1769.
34. Aria, by Domenico Cimarosa. 1784.
35. "Diedi il Coro," Aria by Handel.
36. Siciliana Long.
37. Andante.
38. Aria, by Padre Martini. 1763.

[Continuing.]

Price Two Shillings each.

Volume I., bound in cloth, containing 20 numbers of above, now ready.

London: B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row.

FIVE INTRODUCTORY VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN. Composed by T. Mee Pattison.

These Voluntaries, of medium difficulty, with Pedal Obbligato, will be found eminently useful for the introduction of Divine Service, both as regards character and length. Price 3s.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

DEDICATED BY SPECIAL PERMISSION TO

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

SONGS FOR SAILORS

WRITTEN BY

W. C. BENNETT,

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. L. HATTON.

ONE VOLUME, OCTAVO, CONTAINING

FORTY SONGS:

Trafalgar.	Saturday night at sea.
Would you be a sailor's wife?	Duncan at Camperdown.
A fisher-wife's song.	Rum.
Nay, never cry, lass.	Rodney and De Grasse.
A kiss to take to sea.	From sea.
Homeward bound.	A wife's song.
The Nile.	The winds, inconstant ever.
The apparition.	Old Benbow.
The Dutchman's broom.	There's nothing like a smoke.
Take me, lass, for life.	The seaboy's dream.
The fine old English admiral.	A song of the sea.
Ring, happy bells.	The wife for a British sailor.
The forsaken.	We roam and rule the sea.
The sailor's dream.	The homeward watch.
To sea.	Off to sea.
Rooke in the Bay of La Hogue.	A mother's song.
A thousand leagues away.	Here we sit by our Christmas fire.
Strike, and strike hard.	A Christmas song.
Were I that gull.	Outward bound.
Hawke in Quiberon Bay.	Herrings are in the bay.

With Illustrated Cover and Engraved Portrait of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published, price 2s. net.

New Song,

THE ZINGARA.

Written and composed by Gabriel Davis.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A NAME IN THE SAND. Song. Composed by Berthold Tours. The words by Hannah Gould. 4s. "One of the most striking songs which we have come across for some time past is 'A name in the sand,' a really beautiful composition."—Graphic.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOW READY, as sung by Mdlle. ARNIM at Mr. Kuhe's Musical Festival, 1879, a new edition of AULD ROBIN GRAY, as originally composed by the Rev. William Leeves in the year 1770. To be had of Novello, Ewer and Co., London; R. Potts and Co., Brighton; Forsyth Brothers, Manchester, &c. Price 1s.

PART-SONGS for MEN'S VOICES.—HARK! THE NIGHTINGALE IS SINGING (Serenade). 6d. CHRISTABEL (Glee). Poetry by Robert Crompton. Music by Stephen S. Stratton. 6d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MENDELSSOHN'S TEN FOUR-PART SONGS (S.A.T.B.)

Op. 88 and 100.

For the new year.	The wandering minstrel.
The happy lover.	Remembrance.
The shepherd's song.	The praise of spring.
The wood minstrels.	Spring song.
The victors' return.	In the forest.

The small number of copies still unsold of these Songs, complete in One Book, may now be purchased at the reduced price of Sixpence EACH.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"OUR NATIONAL CHURCH"

(Dedicated to the Clergy of the Church of England),

AND

"ENGLAND'S GLORY."

New Part-Songs for S.A.T.B., price 3d. each,

By WILLIAM J. YOUNG.

Composer of Popular Part-Songs.

I love the merry spring-time	20th Edition	2d.
Gaily through the greenwood	29th „	2d.
Hail! merry, merry Christmas	16th „	2d.
Fairy revels	9th „	3d.
Forest echoes	7th „	3d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow	7th „	3d.
The coming of spring	3rd „	3d.
To a sleeping child...	(just published)	2d.
O welcome, merry May	6th Edition,	2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.; Manchester: The Composer, 6, Grove Terrace, Longsight.

POPULAR FOUR-PART SONGS BY GABRIEL DAVIS.

THE KNIGHT'S RETURN	2d.
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE (14th Edition) ...	2d.
THE DISTANT SEA	2d.
TO THE WOODS	2d.
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC	2d.
THE HOUR OF REST	2d.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just published, price 2d.,

DAME WIGGINS OF LEE

Humorous Part-Song.

COMPOSED BY

GABRIEL DAVIS.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Edition.—Reduced Prices.

Choral Songs for School & Home.

FORTY-TWO ORIGINAL SONGS

FOR

ONE, TWO, OR FOUR VOICES.

Composed by ROBERT JACKSON.

Cloth, complete, 2s. 6d.; Parts I. and II., paper cover, 1s. each; Single Numbers, 1d.

From Concordia.

"This little book is designed for singing-classes in schools, and the simplicity, tunefulness, and attractiveness of the small compositions it contains eminently adapt it for such a purpose."

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MUSICAL ANTIQUARIAN SOCIETY'S PUBLICATIONS, 19 Vols. complete, scarce, £10 10s. Handel's Works, Arnold's Edition, complete, 38 Vols., £12 12s. For other works of a similar character see H. White and Son's Catalogue of ancient and modern music, post-free, 337, Oxford Street, W.

New Organ Work, dedicated to W. T. Best, in oblong folio, with Pedal Obbligato.

GUSTAV HERMANN'S SIX ORIGINAL PIECES.

No. 1. Quasi duetto.	No. 4. Dolce far niente (Pastorale).
„ 2. Harvest March.	„ 5. Concert March.
„ 3. The Pilgrim's Return (Fantasia).	„ 6. Promenade Militaire (Fanfare).

These pieces are rapidly rising in favour with good Organists, and will be welcome to all who desire effective original works of moderate difficulty, uniting the resources of the modern with the purity of the old school. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each; the set, 6s.; handsomely bound, 8s.

London: Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

E. PAUER'S FAVOURITE COLLECTIONS of CLASSICAL PIANOFORTE MUSIC. Quarto size.

PAUER, E.—Old English Composers for the Virginals and Harpsichord. (William Byrde, Dr. John Bull, Orlando Gibbons, Dr. John Blow, Henry Purcell, and Dr. Thomas Augustine Arne.) Revised and Edited by E. Pauer. With portrait of Purcell, &c. (205 pp.) Elegantly bound net 10 6

—— Sunday Music. A Collection of 100 Short Pieces extracted from the Sacred, Vocal, and Instrumental Works of the most celebrated Composers. Selected, arranged for the Pianoforte, and Revised. With illustrations, &c., &c. (170 pp.) In blue paper cover ... ... net 7 6

—— The same, elegantly bound ... ... „ 10 6

—— The Classic Companion. A Collection of easy and moderately difficult Pieces from the Works of the most celebrated Composers of the 17th and 18th Centuries. (229 pp.) Elegantly bound ... ... net 10 6

—— The Family Gift Book. A Collection of Pianoforte Pieces, comprising Christmas Music, Pastorals, Hunting Songs, Love Songs, Soldiers' and Sailors' Songs, Patriotic Hymns, National Melodies, Dances of the Olden Time, National Dances and Modern Dances, many of them composed for this work. With illustrations. (475 pp.) Elegantly bound ... ... net 21 0

BACH, J. S.—The Children's Bach. 36 Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (Solos and Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. Pauer. With Portrait and Biography. Blue cover ... ... net 3 0

HANDEL.—The Children's Handel. 36 Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (Solos and Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. Pauer. With Portrait and Biography. Blue cover ... ... net 3 0

HAYDN.—The Children's Haydn. Short Pieces for the Pianoforte (24 Solos, 6 Duets). Selected, Arranged (without octaves), Fingered, and Revised, by E. Pauer. With Illustrated Biography. Blue cover ... ... net 3 0

London: Augener and Co., 86, Newgate Street; Foubert's Place, Regent Street; and 81, Regent Street, W.

NEW GRAND MARCH, "CHRISTIAN, THE PILGRIM," for Organ or Piano from Wilford Morgan's sacred Cantata, "Christian, the Pilgrim" (Fifth Edition), as played at Marlborough House, at the Alexandra and Crystal Palaces, and at the Brighton Festival, with the greatest success. Post-free, 2s. net. Morgan and Co., 18, Surrey Street, W.C.

MARCHE JOYEUSE, by Wilford Morgan, Piano or Organ. Brilliant but easy. Post-free, 18 stamps. Morgan and Co., 18, Surrey Street, W.C.

MARCH from Oratorio of "Judith," composed by Dr. Jacob Bradford. Weekes and Co., 16, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W. (Piano Solo, 3s.)

NEW SACRED MARCH. — "March of the Christian Soldiers." Composed by the Rev. E. Husband. For Piano or Organ. 3s. Band parts may be had on hire.

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Price 1s. 6d. each, post-free.

THE COLLEGE MARCH, for Organ or Pianoforte. "Very playable, and would be effective on the organ."—Musical Standard.

LA BELLE. Valse Facile. "A well-written waltz, both as to melody and harmony. We recommend it for teaching purposes, as it is calculated to refine and improve the taste."—Musical Standard.

E. W. Taylor, Mus. B., L. Mus., &c., Ebenezer Place, Stafford.

"MR. ALFRED ALLEN has melody and scholarship; his 'Postlude in D' is the composition of a musician."—Public Opinion. Net, 1s. London: Novello, Ewer & Co.

CHEAP MUSIC for Piano, Harmonium, Violin, Violoncello, Flute, &c. List sent free. H. Tomson, High Street, Forest Hill, London.

VIOLIN and PIANOFORTE MUSIC at Reduced Prices. List sent on application. S. White, 38, Booksellers Row, Strand, W.C.

FLUTE and PIANOFORTE MUSIC, by J. Harrington Young. "Keel Row," 1s. 3d.; "Ash Grove," 1s. 3d.; "Home, Sweet Home," 1s. 6d. Post free. S. White, 38, Booksellers Row, Strand, W.C.

SONGS

COMPOSED BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

	s.	d.
THREE SONGS, Op. 17. The Poetry by Christina Rossetti.
No. 1. The first spring-day	3	0
„ 2. When I am dead	3	0
„ 3. A birthday	3	0
The song of love and death. From Tennyson's "Idylls of the King"	3	0
In our boat. The poetry by Miss Muloch	4	0
While my lady sleepeth. Serenade. The words translated from the Spanish by J. G. Lockhart	3	0

London: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

LIST OF WORKS SUITABLE FOR PRESENTS AND SCHOOL PRIZES.

	Net Prices. S.	D.
A DICTIONARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. Edited by J. STAINER and W. A. BARRETT. ... ... Cloth, gilt	16	0
BACH'S FORTY-EIGHT PRELUDES AND FUGUES. Folio	6	0
BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. New and complete Edition. Edited by AGNES ZIMMERMANN. ... Folio. Cloth, gilt	21	0
BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS. New and complete Edition. Ed. by AGNES ZIMMERMANN. 8vo. Cloth, gilt, 7s. 6d. Paper covers	5	0
BENNETT'S (Sir W. Sterndale) SONGS. Twelve Songs Op. 23 and 35 (English and German Words). Octavo. Cloth, gilt, 6s. Paper covers	4	0
CHRISTMAS CAROLS—NEW AND OLD. Words edited by Rev. H. R. BRAMLEY, M.A., and J. STAINER. Beautifully illustrated and elegantly bound ... ...Cloth, gilt	7	6
FRANZ'S FOURTEEN SONGS. Set to Poems of ROBERT BURNS ... ... Paper covers	2	6
HAWKINS'S HISTORY OF MUSIC ... Two Volumes. Cloth	21	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by BERTHOLD TOURS	5	0
MOORE'S IRISH MELODIES. Edited by M. W. BALFE ... ... Folio. Cloth, gilt	21	0
MOORE'S IRISH MELODIES. Edited by M. W. BALFE ... ... Octavo. Cloth, gilt, 4s.; Paper covers	2	6
MOZART'S SONATAS. New and complete Edition. Edited by AGNES ZIMMERMANN ... ... Folio. Cloth, gilt	18	0
MOZART'S SONATAS. New and complete Edition. Ditto ... Octavo. Cloth, gilt, 5s. Paper covers	3	0
MOZART, LIFE OF ... ... Octavo. Cloth	5	0
MUSICAL MYTHS AND FACTS. By CARL ENGEL. Two Volumes ... ... Demy Octavo. Cloth	12	0
NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES AND SONGS. By J. W. ELLIOTT. With 65 illustrations, and elegantly bound ... ...Cloth, gilt	7	6
RUBINSTEIN'S EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. Cloth, 4s. 6d. Paper covers	2	6
SACRED SONGS FOR LITTLE SINGERS. Words by FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL. Music by ALBERTO RANDEGGER. Illustd. Cloth, gilt	5	0
SCHUMANN'S FOREST SCENES ... ... Paper covers	1	0
SCHUMANN'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM. Op. 68 and 15 (56 pieces) ... ... Octavo. Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d. Paper covers	2	6
SCHUMANN'S SONGS. Volume I., containing Op. 24, 25, 27, and 30. Edited by N. MACFARREN. Folio. Cloth, gilt	10	6
SCHUMANN'S VOCAL ALBUM. Containing 30 of his most celebrated Songs Octavo. Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d. Paper covers	2	6
THE HARMONIUM TREASURY. Vol. I. A Series of Select Pieces (Sacred). Vol. II. A Series of Select Pieces (Secular). } Arranged for the Harmonium by J. W. ELLIOTT. ... ... Folio, each, cloth, gilt	10	6
THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. A Collection of Sacred and Moral Songs, with original Music by the most Eminent English Composers. With 46 illustrations. Handsomely bound	7	6
VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM. Forty Songs, with the original Words and an English Version by JOHN OXENFORD. Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d. Paper covers	2	6

LONDON: 1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET (E.C.)

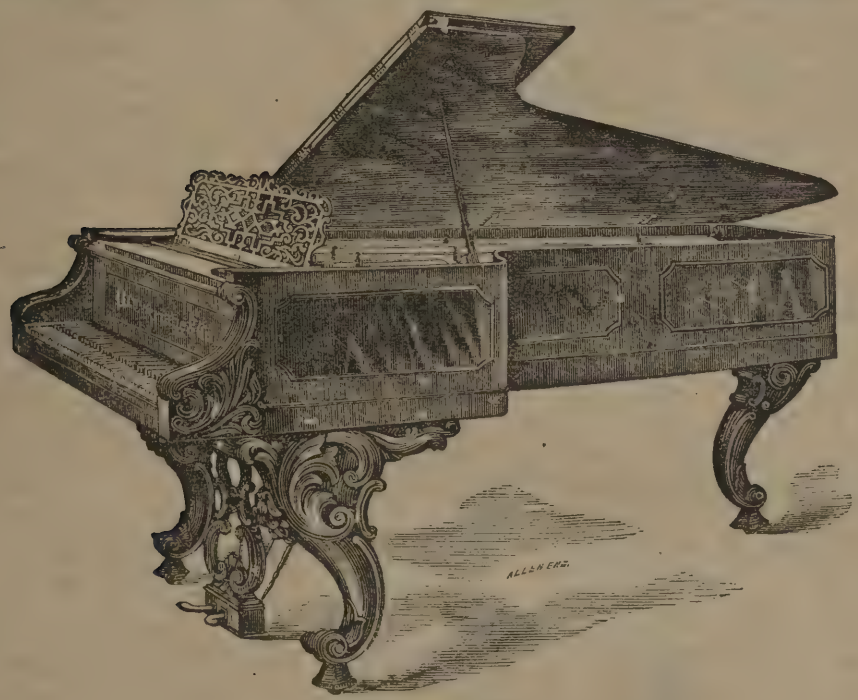
Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Thursday, May 1, 1879.

THE KNABE AMERICAN PIANOFORTE.

Highest Award, Philadelphia, 1876.

PRICES, 120 to 300 GUINEAS.

FOR SALE, HIRE, OR ON THE THREE YEARS' SYSTEM.



TESTIMONIALS.

SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

The Grand Concert Pianoforte by W. KNABE & Co., which I had the pleasure of trying myself, and which I also heard performed upon, combines, in my opinion, an admirable quality of tone, equally adapted to the display of power or to expression, with a most excellent, easy, and yet elastic touch.

The solidity and finish of the workmanship of this splendid Instrument is beyond all praise, and, taken altogether, I consider it one of the most perfect pianofortes I ever met with, and whose success, whether in a large concert-hall or in a private drawing-room, does not admit of the slightest doubt, and will become as universal as well-deserved. JULIUS BENEDICT.

London, Nov. 27, 1878.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.

The Grand Pianos by Messrs. KNABE & Co. are remarkable both for touch and tone, while the ingenious addition of a Third or Sustaining Pedal enables the performer to produce effects of a very novel and interesting character. BRINLEY RICHARDS.

London, Nov. 4, 1878.

SYDNEY SMITH.

I have tried the American Grand Pianofortes by W. KNABE & Co., of Baltimore, exhibited by Messrs. METZLER & Co., of Great Marlborough Street, and find they possess the essential attributes which constitute a fine Instrument, viz., good quality, and great volume of tone and excellent touch. SYDNEY SMITH.

London, Nov. 28, 1878.

WILHELM GANZ.

I have lately examined the Grand Pianofortes manufactured by Messrs. WILLIAM KNABE & Co., of Baltimore and New York, and it gives me great pleasure in certifying that these instruments are in every respect most perfect in tone and touch. By the additional Third or Sustaining Pedal the player is enabled to produce the most striking harmonical effects, and it thus offers a great advantage over instruments which have only the ordinary Two Pedals.

Their outward appearance is most elegant, and I am sure they require only to be known in order to become popular in this country.

Dec. 4, 1878. WILHELM GANZ.

London: METZLER & CO., 37, Great Marlborough Street, W.

The Musical Profession and Amateurs are invited to inspect these Instruments.

Catalogues Gratis and Post-free.

CHALLEN AND SON'S
GOLD MEDAL PIANOS,
20, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

PRIZE MEDAL, LONDON, 1862.

FOR EXCELLENCE OF TOUCH AND TONE.

GOLD MEDAL.

SOUTH AFRICA, 1877.

PRIZE MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

FOR GOOD AND CHEAP PIANOS.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL PIANETTE
WITH CHECK ACTION, IN ELEGANT WALNUT OR ROSEWOOD CASE.

FROM 25 GUINEAS.

"The Pianettes manufactured by CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments."—Anton Rubinstein.

CHALLEN & SON'S GOLD MEDAL SEMI-COTTAGE,
WITH CHECK REPEATER ACTION.

FROM 32 GUINEAS.

"I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing at a most moderate cost pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice as being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence.

"The Instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, at Paris, were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section."—John Stainer, M.A., Mus. Doc., one of the Jurors of the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

CHALLEN & SON'S
IRON FRAME COTTAGE PIANO
RESISTS DAMP; WANTS BUT LITTLE TUNING; REMARKABLY POWERFUL AND PURE IN TONE; IS TRICHORD, AND BEST CHECK ACTION, IN ELEGANT CASE WITH TRUSSES; ESPECIALLY ADAPTED FOR COUNTRY HOUSES AND THE COLONIES.

PRICE 55 GUINEAS.

"CHALLEN & SON is a name synonymous with wonderful durability, great beauty of tone, and moderation in price. We know of not one single maker whose Pianos excel theirs in the qualities most desirable in a good and lasting Piano."—Cape Argus, May 7.

EBONISED AND GOLD PIANOS
Kept in Stock, of Superior Make and Elegant Designs.

May be obtained from all Musicsellers. Illustrated List and Testimonials forwarded free.

CHALLEN & SON, 20, OXFORD ST.
STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co. at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row; and by DITSON and Co., Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.—Thursday, May 1, 1879.

No. 436

THE MUSICAL TIMES

Price 3d.

JUNE 1, 1879

THE HIGHEST AWARD, PARIS, 1878; THE CROSS OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR; THE GOLD MEDAL (L'ACADÉMIE NATIONALE); AND ALSO THE SILVER MEDAL; THE GOLD MEDAL AND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR, SOUTH AFRICA, 1877; THE MEDAL OF HONOUR AND DIPLOMA OF MERIT, PHILADELPHIA, 1876; THE GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR, PARIS, 1874; THE GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1869; THE DIPLOMA OF EXTRAORDINARY MERIT, AMSTERDAM, 1869; MEDAL OF HONOUR, PARIS, 1867; PRIZE MEDAL, LONDON, 1862; &c., &c., HAVE BEEN AWARDED TO

JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS' PIANOS

WHICH WERE PATENTED 1862, 1868, 1871, 1875 & 1879, THROUGHOUT EUROPE & AMERICA.

Extracts from Opinions of the Musical Profession and London Press:—

"The Legion of Honour. In addition to the other distinctions awarded to Messrs. JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS, Wigmore Street, London, for superiority of Pianos exhibited at the Paris Exhibition, the founder of the firm has been created Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, this distinction being conferred on no other British Pianoforte Manufacturer."—Morning Post.

"There is but one class of Gold Medals for the Exhibition, and the Decoration of the Cross of the Legion of Honour constitutes a SUPERIOR RECOMPENSE.

"A. FETIS,
"Reporter of the Musical Jury, Paris International Exhibition of 1867."

"PARIS, November 4, 1878.

"I have attentively examined the beautiful Pianos of Messrs. JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS, that are exhibited at the Paris International Exhibition of 1878. I consider them to be exceptional in the ease with which gradations of sound can be produced, from the softest to the most powerful tones. These excellent Pianos merit the approbation of all artists, as the tone is full as well as sustained, and the touch is of perfect evenness throughout its entire range, answering to every requirement of the pianist. CH. GOUNOD."

"We, the undersigned, certify that after having seen and most conscientiously examined the English Pianos at the Universal Exhibition of 1878, find that the palm belongs to the Grand Pianos of the house of BRINSMEAD,
"Paris the 8th September, 1878."

"NICOLAS RUBINSTEIN.
"D. MAGNUS.

"PARIS.

"I have played several times at the Paris Exhibition on the Grand Pianos of Messrs. JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS, and I have found them most beautiful. The sound is full, melodious, and of extraordinary power, the touch is extremely elastic, and the repetition is excellent. A peculiarity of these Pianos consists in the prolongations of the sounds, which enable the player to produce great harmonic effects, and which exist in no other instruments. This I have demonstrated to the Jurors of the Exhibition, who came to hear and examine these Pianos. As soon as they had heard these instruments they unanimously concurred in my opinion. "CHEVALIER DE KONTSKI.
"(Commandeur et Officier de plusieurs Ordres, Court Pianist to the Emperor of Germany)."

"The highest praise is certainly due to Messrs. JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS for the complete success which has crowned their efforts to produce, on the most simple principles, a perfectly even, smooth and sensitive repetition touch. The purity of the tone and the excellent mechanism of the Pianos exhibited by them in the Paris Exhibition called forth warm eulogies from all competent critics.
"JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.
"(Member of the International Jury of the Paris Exhibition, 1878.)"

"Messrs. JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS, the eminent Pianoforte-makers, of Wigmore Street, have manufactured a magnificent Grand Pianoforte. The instrument comprises several most important improvements, whereby the touch and tone are brought to rare perfection. The mechanism applying to the key-board is simple and solid in structure, but, nevertheless, realises a touch that is most agreeable to the player, commanding all the degrees of power and delicacy, and great readiness of repetition. The tone is of extreme beauty, and is unusually prolonged in vibration by the peculiar construction of the sounding-board, a speciality in which is that the thickness is greatest in the centre, diminishing towards the edges. The method of stringing, too, and additional bridges, are peculiar, and tend much to enhance the sonority and vibrating power. Another important feature in the instrument is the addition of a third pedal, which gives the performer the power of sustaining, almost indefinitely, some notes, while others may be played staccato. This is a particularly valuable quality. The metal frame-work used in the interior is of the most substantial kind, bracing the instrument together with a force that renders it independent of atmospheric changes. The workmanship is of the highest excellence in all the details, and the instrument is, altogether, an admirable specimen of English manufacture."—Illustrated London News.

"The new Pianoforte claims notice not only on account of its beauty and richness of tone, but specially for some ingenious mechanical novelties."—Daily News.

"These Pianos have received the greatest approbation everywhere of musicians and manufacturers."—Standard.

JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS,

Pianoforte Manufacturers,

18, WIGMORE STREET, LONDON, W.,

AND THE "BRINSMEAD PIANOFORTE WORKS," GRAFTON ROAD, KENTISH TOWN, N.W.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE

STEINWAY PIANOFORTES

AND

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA COMPANY.

THE following letter relative to the STEINWAY PIANOFORTES from the distinguished Artists whose names are thereto attached, is the complement of the Testimonies to their UNRIVALLED EXCELLENCE which have been given by the GREAT PIANISTS of Europe. It is scarcely necessary to add that the verdict of public opinion has amply confirmed that of these eminent authorities—the STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, although necessarily commanding the highest prices, having by far the largest annual sale of any Pianofortes throughout the world.

"NEW YORK, December 28, 1878.

"Messrs. STEINWAY & SONS.

"GENTLEMEN,—Having used your celebrated Pianofortes, both in public and in private, during the present Opera Season, we desire to express our unqualified admiration of their sonority, evenness, richness, and astonishing duration of tone, most beautifully blending with and supporting the voice. These matchless qualities for accompanying the voice, together with their precision of action and unequalled capacity of remaining in tune for a great length of time, render, in our opinion, the Steinway Pianofortes, ABOVE ALL OTHERS, the most desirable Instruments for students of vocal music and the musical public generally.

(Signed)

"MINNIE HAUK.	ETELKA GERSTER.	MARIE ROZE.
"CL. CAMPOBELLO.	G. LABLACHE.	G. DEL PUENTE.
"ITALO CAMPANINI.	A. F. GALASSI.	F. DE RIALP.
"J. FRAPOLLI.	A. J. FOLI.	LUIGI ARDITI."

Miss MINNIE HAUK has also written in the following terms:

"December, 1878.

"Messrs. STEINWAY & SONS.

"DEAR SIRS,—Allow me to express to you the entire satisfaction I feel in praising your magnificent Pianos. They are the finest Instruments in the world, and I have therefore taken every opportunity while in Europe to extol their sterling qualities.

"Believe me, yours very sincerely,

"MINNIE HAUK."

STEINWAY HALL (LONDON),

LOWER SEYMOUR ST., PORTMAN SQ., LONDON, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 436.—Vol. 20.
Registered for transmission abroad.

JUNE 1, 1879.

Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

